THE SHOT HEARD 'round the world may very well be aimed at City College. The fellow pictured above is trying to prove the ancient adage that women are the weaker sex—his target is the women's gym.

Actually the cannon is used during the off season for warding off peeping Toms by shooting Puffed Wheat at those who gather around the dressing room windows. Being pelted by a barrage of Rice Crispies is a little bit better than being hit by hot bacon fat, though.

In conclusion, if you happen to see a cannon ball bouncing down the street on wheels please contact The Guardsman office and leave a message telling how many flap jacks it takes to cover a shingled dog house.
—Guardsman photo by N. P. Dodge

Council Tables $3000 BSA Request

A $3000 request by the Black Students Association and a faculty petition supporting the Free Critic highlighted last Wednesday's Student Council meeting. Both proposals were tabled.

Jake Carter, BSA vice president, and other members of the BSA presented a proposal to Student Council which would allocate the $3000 to send black students to a conference in Philadelphia as guests of the Westinghouse Corporation, commonly known as CBS.

Besides Carter, BSA President Don Herman and four additional black students would attend the conference.

BSA REPRESENTATIVES stated that they "plan to approacb qualified black instructors of black majority universities on the East Coast and present our needs for them in a black curriculum studies program here."

The conference would also be "an ideal opportunity to forward efforts to enhance the Afro-American studies at City College," according to the BSA.

In Philadelphia, a documentary film will be sbown on May 10-12. The film is intended to point out the racism in America and the need for improvement in black communities. After the showing of the film, there will be a conference discussing the problems.

Herman and Carter were selected by Westingbouse to represent City College at this conference. The $3000 request was to send the additional black students to Philadelphia.

IN CONSIDERING the black students proposal, the council pointed out that the total AS fund has now dwindled to $519.52.

Councilman Tom Doudiet announced that he felt most of the AS funds have been wasted on providing the Free Critic with publishing money. Doudiet said "Giving money to the Free Critic is like pouring money down a rat hole."

Dean of Student Activities James Wyatt then proposed a meeting between Dr. Louis Batmale, college vice president, and the BSA. Wyatt said that "We can find if there are other funds available for the BSA and other campus organizations through a financial meeting with Dr. Batmale."

The council voted to table the BSA proposal until its next meeting.

In other council action, 33 faculty members signed a petition protesting the recent denial of AS funds to the Free Critic. Council voted to bold the petition in consideration until the return of AS President Ray Bietz.

Bietz was attending a luncbeon with Governor Ronald Reagan in Sacramento.

ANOTHER PROPOSAL made to council was a swimming team request to finance qualified members in attending the state swimming meet. Councilman Doudiet pointed out "If we could send our basketball team to the state tournament, I think we should be able to do the same for our swimming team."

The amount requested by the swimming team was $383.90 of the council's remaining funds. The proposal was tabled until the next meeting due to the absence of swimming coach Curt Decker.

Council bas maintained this semester that organizations submitting financial requests have a sponsor available at the meeting to answer any questions which might arise.

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 66 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—WEDNESDAY, MAY 1, 1968 NUMBER 9

Student Union, Visual Arts Building Plans Revealed

Ground Breaking Set For May 16; Mayor Alioto May Attend

Architects, Faculty, Students Meet To Review Drawings

By Boku Kodama

Construction of the Visual Arts Building, a structure which will relieve some of the congestion in the present buildings, will begin with ground-breaking ceremonies on May 16, revealed Victor Vaio, assistant coordinator of construction on campus.

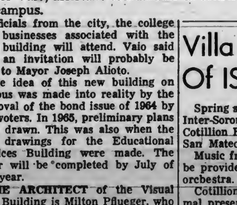
Officials from the city, the college and businesses associated with the new building will attend. Vaio said that an invitation will probably be sent to Mayor Joseph Alioto.

The idea of this new building on campus was made into reality by the approval of the bond issue of 1964 by city voters. In 1965, preliminary plans were drawn. This was also when the first drawings for the Educational Services Building were made. The latter will be completed by July of this year.

THE ARCHITECT of the Visual Arts Building is Milton Pflueger, who is also the architect of this college and who has also prepared preliminary plans for the Student Union.

Just prior to the signing, Buttimer held a meeting with officials of City College and student leaders to discuss the plans for the new construction. Those attending the meeting were Victor Vaio, assistant to Buttimer; James Wyatt, student adviser; Lawrence Bloomer, political science instructor and Lawrence Franceschina, instructor of architecture. The students present were Bill McQuaid, sophomore president; Jim Dierke, Student Council representative; Guardsman editor Ed Holmes and John Waterfield, Student Council representative.

The cost of the Visual Arts Building has been estimated by the architects as being about $1,290,000.



The site of the building will be in the hilly area east of Arts Hall. The structure will cover 34,030 gross square feet and be only one level.

On the southeast side of the building will be photography laboratories. Advertising Arts and Graphic Arts will occupy the northeastern section.

TWO LECTURE HALLS will be provided on the northwest side. Along the southwestern portion, reading laboratories and several regular classrooms will be situated.

A small courtyard will be provided in the middle of the building. A conference room and a food vending room have also been planned.

The Visual Arts Building is hoped to be completed in 16 months if all goes well.

Preliminary drawing for the new Student Union Building have been prepared by Milton Pflueger.

Pflueger, architect of City College, met with members of the faculty and student representatives on April 23 and showed the rough drawing of the newly proposed building.

Attending the meeting were Harry Buttimer, coordinator of construction; Victor Viao, assistant coordinator of construction; James Wyatt, student adviser and Lawrence Bloomer, social science instructor.

Student representatives present at the meeting were Jim Dierke, John Range and Derrick Quan.

THE ESTIMATED COST of the building will be about $600,000. Earlier, it had been thought that the building would be substantially more, around $990,000.

The building will be on the slope where the campus bookstore, the Ramporium, is presently occupying.

The drawings of the proposed building show that it will have a basement and three levels.

The first floor will be the recreational area. Game rooms, food facilities and a library will dominate the space on this floor.

The main floor will be on the second level. Here, the lounge area will be situated.

There will be an area here for dances, conventions and exhibits. An auditorium, storage facilities, dressing rooms, meeting rooms, a check room and a service kitchen will also occupy this floor.

Halfway up to the third level will be a mezzanine and above that will be the various offices including those for student body officers, union management offices and Student Council chambers.

The height of the building from the basement to the roof will be 44 feet high while the length of the top floor will be 140 feet long.

A RALLY AREA has been planned next to the Student Union on the northern side.

Preliminary plans must be submitted to the United States Department of Housing and Urban Development by May 15 for the $550,000 loan at three percent interest. This loan to the student body is to be paid back over a period of 50 years.

If the loan is approved by the government, construction will begin in six months and be finished within three years.

Villa Hotel Site Of ISC Cotillion

Spring semester's gala affair for the Inter-Sorority Council will be the ISC Cotillion Friday at the Villa Hotel in San Mateo.

Music from 9 p.m. to midnight will be provided by Bill Catalano and bis orchestra.

Cotillion is the traditional and formal presentation in which the sororities take the opportunity to proudly present their new sorority sisters.

These are new girls who have managed to survive the rusbing affairs and Pledge Week, more commonly known as "Hell Week."

Sharon Hufnagel, president of the Phi Beta Rho and president of the ISC, will present diplomas to her new sorority sisters.

Likewise, Linda Unger, president of Theta Tau will present diplomas and red or white carnations to her sorority's new sisters.

As tradition goes, Theta Tau sisters are to improvise with red or white formals, whereas the Phi Beta Rho have a more varied choice of any pastel-colored formal.

Honored pledges for the two sororities on campus are: Sharon Bacon, Olivia Ferrer, Sue Graber, Karen Hall, Fran Hanley, Jackie Jahl, Susan Lovaseen, Cheryl O'Connor, Katie O'Dowd, Carolyn O'Sheroff, Shelly Roselyn, Karen Schlumpp, Jan Tickner, Pat Varela, Karen Waite and Leslie Wellsman.

Guests at this formal occasion will include the proud parents of the new pledges; Miss Joanne Hickey and Mrs. Betty Johnson, respective patronesses of Theta Tau and Phi Beta Rho; Dean Mary Golding, sponsor of the ISC; and other patrons and patronesses.

The sororities and fraternities on campus have first preference in obtaining tickets to the Cotillion.

Others interested in attending the ball may secure tickes this afternoon in Bungalow 4, if there are any left.

Tickets are $2.50 per couple.—R. Q.

The Guardsman Editorial Page
Official Weekly Publication of City College of San Francisco
ED HOLMES, Editor
Vol. 68, No. 9 WEDNESDAY, MAY 1, 1968 Page 2

And The Beat Goes On

THREE SEMESTERS AGO a bulldozer began knocking down trees on a small knoll at the southwest corner of this campus. Ground-breaking had begun for a new administrative services building.

Now that the building is nearing its anticipated final outline, it's not hard to see that it will add to the campus aesthetically as well as functionally.

On the 15th of this month plans for a $600,000 student union will be submitted in hopes of securing construction funds. While this project is admittedly subject to many "ifs," there is nothing "iffy" about the next day's ground-breaking ceremony for a visual arts building.

CAMPUS GROWTH is not limited just to the physical plant. The Experimental College is well beyond the embryonic stage in which it started this semester. Freedom of expression on this campus has never been higher, despite the Critic's snapping at the hands feeding it. Curriculum changes, if slower than some are demanding, are showing solid, thoughtful progress.

Growth of this nature is becoming increasingly important. Students today are demanding more and more of their schools throughout the nation and San Francisco students will always rank among the most progressive. The proportion of local high school graduates who continue their education is 25 per cent higher than the statewide average. The planning and growth apparent on this campus is a lot more than just nice—it's imperative.

And the beat goes on.

Newspaper Evaluation

Lack Of Succinct News Claimed Of Guardsman And Free Critic

By Boku Kodama

This article concerns those of you who use The Guardsman and/or the Free Critic to wrap your fish, start fires or make spitballs.

The Guardsman, once a famous All-American newspaper, wanted to find out what students thought of their newspaper and the newly established freedom for the Free Critic.

Kevin Shea, a freshman photography major, believes the Critic is "a little outrageous. But it is more interesting than The Guardsman because of its subject choices. I think there should be more pictures in both papers," he stated.

CHRIS SCRIMGOUR, a sophomore, thinks the Critic is "amusing" and likes it. She commented, "They take the extreme and go overboard, but I think The Guardsman takes the other extreme because it doesn't come out and say anything."

"I like the sports," said freshman Max Schneeberger, when asked about The Guardsman. As for the Critic, Schneeberger said, "I have seen it but I haven't seen it very often. They don't really report on things on our campus."

Another freshman, Esther Palun likes the Critic sometimes, especially the Blue Guitar. She seemed angry at The Guardsman for having terrible spellers. "They make up more names for fraternities and sororities than there are on campus."

MOST OF THE PEOPLE interviewed liked Labelled and Recorded, a music column appearing in The Guardsman and the Blue Guitar, a column appearing in the Free Critic.

(Continued on Page 3, Column 1)

Labelled And Recorded

England Report—The Doors' Bloody Flick

by Martin J. Arbunich

FROM OUR MUSIC correspondent in northern England comes some interesting facts and figures regarding the concentration of progressive rock music into England's one central locale—London.

"In northern England the 'soul' type of groups get good reception from the un-hip majority. To try and put over new musical ideas on stage up here is to commit a great sin—most of the idiot mass just won't accept it and shout 'Tamla or die!' (in this country it would be "Motown"—M.A.).

"Even John Mayall (and the Bluesbreakers) had a shout of 'Play some Tamla!' from people in Glasgow recently. John also refused to play a dance hall when the promoters banned anyone with long hair entering the hall. The whole scene really is sickening outside of London.

"London is really the whole thing, the centre of it all; outside of London the places that have anything like 1 per cent of the scene can be counted on one hand. As far as people go, the north is really backwards concerning music—although this is really no fault of their own, the promoters do very little to encourage progression."

Very soon our correspondent will supplement the foregoing with a more detailed analysis of the rock scene in England (or London, to be more accurate). Keep tuned to this column for his exclusive report.

The office donned the guise of a movie house staging a major sneak preview when we rolled out the projector and screen to play back Unknown Soldier, the Doors' new four-minute promotion flick with the title song as the soundtrack.

The color film at first appears absurd and gruesome but its raw denuding of the war picture through burlesque techniques is very effective as an anti-war illustration.

One scene, a rather climactic one, shows Jim Morrison as his melodramatic self, crucified to a post and "mortally shot" as his head slumps forward and a river of blood gushes from his mouth onto a bouquet of flowers at his feet. The soundtrack then begins "make a grave for the unknown soldier" as WWII footage ensues.

Students having access to a 16mm projector and interested in viewing this film should contact this writer in The Guardsman office, S-304.

THE ROCK CALENDAR

The lineup for the ballrooms here for the month of May looks something like this: Fillmore—Moby Grape, the Hourglass and United States of America this weekend; Tiny Tim, H. P. Lovecraft and the Crome Syrcus next weekend; Country Joe and the Fish, the Incredible String Band and Albert Collins, May 16-18; Yardbirds, Cecil Taylor and It's a Beautiful Day, May 23-25; and the Chambers Brothers, Richie Havens and the Buffalo Springfield May 30-June 1.

Avalon has Canned Heat, Junior Wells and Clover this weekend; Mother Earth, the Wedge and the Flaming Groovies May 10 with Quicksilver filling in for the Wedge May 11 and 12; Junior Wells, Sons of Champlin and the Santana Blues Band May 17-19; Kaleidoscope, the Hourglass and a headliner May 24-26; and Dave Van Rhonk, Credence Clearwater and a headliner May 31-June 2.

The Carousel's lineup has Dr. John (the Night-tripper), Thelonious Monk and the Charlatans this weekend; Steve Miller, the Youngbloods and Kaleidoscope, May 10-12; Electric Flag, Don Ellis Orchestra and PG&E, May 17-19; tentatively H. P. Lovecraft, Manfred Mann and Mad River, May 24-26; and Jefferson Airplane and Charlie Musselwhite, May 30-June 2.

Ruff Studies This Week

It's not exactly what the pooch had in mind, but this type of boning up seems to be the only effective way to combat that dreadful invention: midterms.

MIDTERMS ALWAYS SEEM to catch some students unaware but those that strike in the heart of Spring seem diabolical. Students have just returned from Easter vacation so anything they might have learned in class via osmosis is erased, which only leaves the student his uncracked textbook, and a mass of undecipherable notes.

So the deathlike scene of cramming students settles over the campus. Fellow students never seen anywhere but in the cafeteria before are caught hunched over stacks of books in the library. Students still fail asleep on the campus lawn, but now with book in hand to prove they haven't given up completely.

After these midterms, students vow to begin reading early for the next one. Inevitable, however, the said student finds himself left with one week in which to read a semester's work, which takes some real studying.

EVEN THE EXPRESSION "midterms" is a misnomer as this term should mean there would be one testing period at the mid point in the term. But midterms strike twice because one testing period might have been a fluke, especially if you did reasonably well, and if you didn't do so well another testing period will really establish your ignorance.

And somehow the best weather always occurs during midterm week, and a thousand other temptations to keep a student away from the books.

But the agony only lasts a week, and if you managed to get by both midterms unscathed you can start worrying about finals.—J. B.

'Soul Study' Rates As Top Course

Of all the popular courses offered on this campus, psychology—which is one of the hardest courses offered—is rated in the number one spot.

For those students who aren't acquainted with psychology, it is the science that deals with the human mind or soul and its operations. In general, psychology is a study of human behavior and personal development and adjustment.

There are many courses of psychology offered at the college and one of the most interesting courses along this line is childhood and adolescence psychology. This course is an introductory survey of the development and behavior of an individual from conception through adolescence.

The course is recommended for those students who are interested in being able to understand children and parents and is necessary for a professional career.

Another very stimulating course in psychology is the personal adjustment course. This course is a study of the nature of personality and of the factors contributing to personal development and adjustment. In this course the student analyzes his own personality and strives for a more effective relationship with others.

The course that is second rated among the popular elective courses is sociology. Sociology is also considered a science but whereas psychology is a study of an individual and the behavior of that individual, sociology is the study of groups and their various behaviors.

Sociology is concerned with group life in modern society and it is defined as the study of human interaction and social organization.

Lab Chicks Just 'Pigs'

No, City College is not turning into an animal farm. The chickens, mice and rabbits found in the Science Building are merely "guinea pigs" used in biology experiments.

Chickens are involved in a hormonal experiment. In this experiment chickens are injected with testosteral. This injection causes male characteristics, such as the waddle and comb, to develop early. A group of chickens not injected with testosteral are used as a control group to check and compare the difference in development.

The chickens, obtained from a chicken farm in Petaluma, are now members of the Life Science G 11 class. Soon they will be used in Physiology 12.

These animals have been used for this experiment for a few weeks and already the difference in development between the two groups is noticeable. The group that was injected have larger feet and larger combs on the top of their heads, compared to the control group.

The coat color inheritance in mammals is the experiment the mice are partaking in. In this experiment eye and coat color changes of the mice are observed. The mice in the genetics experiment have been used for years, according to Carter Baum, from the biology department. These mice are used in Life Science G 11, Zoology 10 and Microbiology.

Kept in the same room with the mice are rabbits used for another experiment.

Biology lab assistants play the role of mothers in caring for these animals. At feeding time the chickens are given turkey starter or chicken mash, depending on their age; the mice are given lab blocks; and the rabbits, what else, but rabbit food.

Male and female rabbits are kept segregated for obvious reasons.

Letters to the Editor

Ram's Horn

(Letters to the Editor may be left in the switchboard office, S-160, in Science Hall or in The Guardsman office, S-304. Deadlines are 10 a.m. each Wednesday. The Guardsman reserves the right to edit letters in the interests of brevity and rhetoric. If so desired the writer's name will be withheld, but the identity of the writer must be known to the editor.)

● On The Critic

Editor, The Guardsman:

The United Students for Action in the following article will publicly refute some of the flagrant lies that the Critic has been printing. First, it should be pointed out that the Critic staff includes in its ranks past-active members of the old Change party. Without a doubt this accounts for the bitterness that the Critic has shown toward USA party members and Student Council in general.

Since the Critic will be actively supporting the old Change party candidates in the next elections, perhaps under a different name, let's review the Change party's record, and at the same time take a glimpse into the future. Should another Change party be elected in the next elections, no doubt they will be following the same policies as the old Change party.

THE CRITIC STAFF has recently stated that the present Student Council is dictatorial in comparison with past Student Councils. This statement does not even begin to approach the TRUTH. The Critic failed to say in the article, however, that the Change party was proposing resolutions putting the entire student body against the draft, in favor of anti-draft week and against The Guardsman.

It appears that the Critic has come to the conclusion that the bigger the lie, the bigger the suspicion and doubt that is placed on the USA Party. The Critic staff has often written that the USA party is censoring the Critic. It should be pointed out that the Critic is against censorship only so long as this policy works in their favor and the Change party's favor. The Change party did not approve of what The Guardsman was printing because the Change party and the Critic staff wanted the Critic to appear on the front page of The Guardsman. After reading one issue of the Critic it is very evident why The Guardsman refused to permit the Critic to appear on its front page.

FOR ITS REFUSAL to cooperate with the Change party and the Critic staff, The Guardsman's funds were frozen for over a month, until The Guardsman staff was forced to allow the Critic to be combined with The Guardsman. Where was the Critic staff at this time? How could the Critic staff who have always been crusading for freedom of the press have advocated such tactics against The Guardsman? Why didn't the Critic staff and the Change party have any consideration for the students who were enrolled in The Guardsman's journalism class for a grade? The Critic staff, the great crusaders for freedom of the press were pushing harder than anyone else for these dictatorial means of achieving what they wanted. This semester the Critic staff has chosen to blame the USA party for losing control over The Guardsman's budget and the administration to finance The Guardsman. It was in fact the Critic staff and the Change party, however, who forced The Guardsman to seek help from the administration in financing the paper in order to prevent the Critic staff and the Change party from dictating how The Guardsman was to be printed.

The USA party does not have a staff of writers, as the Change party does, to refute the lies that the Critic has been printing, but we sincerely hope that in the next elections, you will keep in mind the sources of the accusations and lies that have already been launched against the USA party and will vote accordingly.

The United Students for Action Party

Guardsman Staff — Spring 1968

EDITOR IN CHIEF ..... ED HOLMES
Managing Editor ..... Martin J. Arbunich
Feature Editor ..... Tom Graham
Staff Editor ..... Barbara Hamamm
News Editor ..... Doug Boston
Sports Editor ..... Mike Duggan
Editorial Assistant ..... D. K. Dorn
Circulation Manager ..... Arthur Fanfello

Reporters: John Bandorffis, Lani Brand, Rita Carroll, Dennis Klein, Boku Kodama, Sharon Roberts, Lynda Sandstrom.

Cub Reporters: David Albertson, Penny Blum, Garret Duncan, Willy Durkin, Lawrence Farrari, Jerry D. Fink, Randy Flynn, Michael J. Flynn, Wayne Hiroshima, Ed Jimison, Lavine Lee, Rita Quong, Leonard Ribeiro, Carol Roehl, Jerry W. Stokron, Pam Tomasello, Gavin L. Watt, James Baggett, James Billbury, Robert Forsker, Lawrance Lee.

Photographers: Dawn Turner, Chief, Garth Ogle, Nathaniel Dodge, Carol Gillmore, Herbert Gong, Glenn Graham, Fred Harris, Jerry Jew, James McElory, Doug Mills, Robert Morris, Jens Pretzs, Mike Reams, Larry Tiscornia, Melvin Weiner and Samuel Woo.

SHOOTIN' IT

by D. K. Dorn

PEOPLE are shocked that Bonnie and Clyde and John Wesley Hardin are sort of folk heroes in this modern age. Bonnie and Clyde being the bank robbers who killed people for fun as proclaimed in the movie ads, and John Wesley Hardin being another bandit-murderer popularized by Bob Dylan.

"John Wesley Hardin was a murderer who killed people," said The Guardsman's former staff editor Glynn Petrie in disbelief. "How can you honor a person like that? He was just a killer and a robber."

So was James Bond and so is the military who get away with it. But there's a difference there because they had God on their side or something.

Then, if thou can kill, then anybody's fair target material. And if somebody's got to go, why shouldn't it be those people who are the oppressors, no matter who they are. That means cops who harass poor people, soldiers who attack peasants, and lately in the Haight Ashbury area, spades who shake down hippie dope dealers.

That means everybody is going to get guns. The cops have them to stop criminals. The Black Panthers have them for defense against the white cops who are scared at being in the ghetto anyhow. Great sections of white America are getting guns in defense against summer race riots by blacks. Hippies are getting them in defense against people who never understood compassion in the first place. Nobody wants to use theirs first. This country has atomic weapons to keep the Russians and the Chinese from using theirs first. But the other side says it will never be the first to use their weapons.

And Martin Luther King said we're a violent nation?

ERATA: Decency week was not last week as reported in this spaced space. The Mayor didn't sign the proclamation passed by the supervisors and the supervisors introduced a resolution rescinding their declaration of decency week. Ah, doesn't this column have a diversified readership?

SARAN RAPPINGS: KALW dj Kon Grab was admiring the hair of one long haired kid at one of the ball-rooms the other night. This fellow had really a cool head, especially for a cat. Then somebody pulled off the cat's wig. Gawd, even in the tenderloin cats who wear wigs arent trying to look like other cats.

TIME FURTHER OFF: Sports editor Mike Duggan is getting bored with always being late to class on account the Science Hall clocks are three or four whole minutes behind Cloud Hall clocks. Perhaps the situation could be brought up to standard if a local practitioner of Satanic powers were brought in to fix the time lag between the two buildings.

Time lags make for an interesting phenomena by themselves. Since time is a relative factor instead of an absolute idea, certain areas are subject to time lags. Such lags are relative to situations, we have discovered. It takes longer to do some things sometimes than it takes the same time to do the same thing at another time. All next week's midterms, unfortunately, fall into the area of a massive time lag.

MAY DAY: But despite the violence, the plastic people, the time lags, midterms and the politicians who have the audacity to talk about decency, it's still May Day today.

That doesn't mean that you have to wave red flags, have big parades for peace, freedom, and the glories of Marxist-Leninism or anything boring like that.

Better yet, today is the day for flowers, May poles and dancing. Even if there isn't a festival somewhere (call the Haight-Ashbury Switchboard at 387-3575 to find out exactly), heaven is in your mind.

This column suggests that you kiss at least one person today.

Newsless Newspapers

(Continued from Page 2)

The Guardsman was called a puppet of Ray Bietz by one student while the Free Critic was branded as a takeoff on the Oracle by another. The main argument against The Guardsman was that it does not have enough open views. Against the Critic, students stated that it was hung up on birth control articles.

One thing you've got to admit. The Guardsman and the Free Critic make good wrappings, fires and spitballs.

On Stage With Duke

City College Choir Plays Records With Jazz Great

Duke Ellington's second annual Sacred Concert, held in the Grace Cathedral on April 16, featured the City College choir in a performance that led to a recording session and possible fame for the 35 college larks who attended.

A nationally acclaimed composer and arranger as well as a renowned jazzman, Ellington and his equally talented band performed 12 arrangements and were accompanied by the choir. The concert was a complete sell-out and when it was over, the famed musician expressed his fondness of the choir's style and invited them to record with him.

NEEDLESS TO SAY, the choir accepted the invitation and on April 22, at the Coast Recording Company on Bush Street, Ellington and the choir recorded four of his arrangements.

When asked what plans Ellington had for the recordings, he explained that he would either use them in his next record album release or keep them for his personal collection.

William Grothkopp, choir instructor at City College, explained why Ellington was so fond of the choir when he said, "Obviously, Duke could afford the best voices in the business to accompany him but that wasn't what he wanted. He was looking for a group of young, talented singers that didn't have that highly professional sound but a more youthful tone."

The City College choir may not be Mitch Miller and his boys but nevertheless, the favorable recognition of a master musician such as Ellington is indeed a great compliment to their talents.

"Whether or not anything comes of the recordings," said one choir member, "is minor—but it was a great experience."—R. F.

Course Evaluation Draws Favorable Instructor Reply

Instructor response to the Course Evaluation Program (CEP), scheduled for May 7 and 8, has been extremely impressive, according to Associated Student President Ray Bietz.

The CEP committee has compiled a proposed questionnaire to be answered by the students, which will contain four sections covering lectures, assignments, examinations and miscellaneous questions.

The student will answer most of the questions with "always," "usually," "sometimes" and "never."

Instructors may request copies for one or all of their courses. Their students will be asked to fill out the CEP questionnaires during the class; then the instructor will collect the forms and turn them over to a member of the CEP committee. Bietz emphasized that, "The results of the CEP for each separate course will be returned to the instructor of that course, only."

WHEN ALL THE questionnaires are turned in, the committee, assisted by members of the faculty, will compile the results. Instructors will be given alpha grades and those receiving a "B" or better, will have their names published.

The objective of this program is twofold. The first reason is to help the instructor improve his course, by learning where he is failing to reach the student. The second objective is to help the new student, in selecting future courses. All those involved are confident that the students will grade objectively, rendering a very fair evaluation of instructors and courses.

College's Stage/Jazz Band To Play Concert Tomorrow Morning

The highly acclaimed City College of San Francisco Stage/Jazz Band, under the direction of Art Samuels, will present a Jazz concert during College Hour tomorrow in the college theater.

Over the past three years the band has played to packed houses during the College Hour, appeared in concert with the Bola Sete Trio and journeyed to Monterey for the Monterey Jazz Festival.

As well as taking pride in its fine ensemble sound, the band also has many outstanding soloists.

Halstead Pushes Social Reform In Campus Talk

By Leonard Ribeiro

Socialist presidential candidate Fred Halstead gave a lecture on his opinions of current national issues in the college theater yesterday.

Halstead's appearance on the City College campus was the result of good statesmanship by Associated Student President Ray Bietz.

Initially his selection as a speaker on campus caused a furor in the college administration. They questioned the wisdom of presenting such a radical point of view as being representative of City College's objective political stance.

The 40-year-old cloth cutter has a record of 20 years' involvement in the socialist labor antiwar campaign administration section of the National Mobilization Committee. The NMC was responsible for the anti-war demonstration of April 15, 1968 in which over a half million persons participated.

HALSTEAD WAS born in Los Angeles in 1928. He served with the United States Navy from 1944 to 1946 in the South Pacific. At the end of World War II he was active in the "let's go home" movement among servicemen in that area.

In 1949 he was involved in the farm laborers' strike in the Imperial Valley of California. That same year he helped organize the Garment Workers of America in Los Angeles.

In 1955 he moved to New York City. There he was a staff writer for a weekly publication "The Militant." In this position he became aware of the poor conditions existing in the ghettos of New York's lower East Side and Harlem. In response to those conditions he wrote a book titled Harlem Stirs. This book was published by Marzani and Munsell publishing house in New York.

DURING THE Cuban missile crisis of 1962 he was involved in the hands-off-Cuba demonstration.

Halstead advocates the immediate withdrawal from Vietnam and a return to an isolationist foreign policy. He calls the war an "appalling atrocity" committed by the west on an under-developed country. He is pledged to go to Vietnam and let the troops know. If he is elected in November, he will bring them home.

Styrofoam Snow, Lightning Flash Aid Student Production Of 'Heat'

By Garret Duncan

Heat, a play produced, directed, and rewritten from the original script of Nunizo Caraldi's L'Fumea by drama students of City College, was previewed April 23 in the Little Theater.

This first showing of Caraldi's play proved to be an interesting experience. Even before the first act began, unusual things started to happen. Instead of the curtains parting and moving inconspicuously off to the sides, they parted and proceeded to rise up off the wooden stage into the air. This stunt drew laughter from the half-filled audience in the College Theater comprised mostly of students and professors.

THE PLAY'S ACTUAL dialogue and acting takes place in the first act. Situated in the main office of National Toy Company, the story line centers around the conflict between Chester Desmond, president, and his son Joe Desmond, vice president. Their violent feelings towards each other characterize the much discussed generation gap. Joe wants what is best for the employees of National Toy, and the elder Desmond just wants more money.

The second act begins minus Chester, who is supposedly disposed of by his son, Joe. From this point in the play, things become rather abstract. The two windows in the office are transformed into miniature light-shows that depict a variety of weird events.

At one point, an old King Kong movie is shown as slides of water buffalo and city streets flick on and off in the other window.

A storm, with styrofoam snow and lightning flashes, follows, and a janitor comes to sweep up the mess. He answers the phone (that wasn't ringing), and goes out the door to get Joe Desmond. The janitor never comes back.

THINGS REALLY GET out of hand. The Coo-Coo clock coo-coo's and then the little bird in the clock is catapulted out onto the edge of the stage where it gives a long speech about its need of somebody to love. The spotlight is taken off the bird and placed on the main door where Joe Desmond and the employees of National Toy are found to be in the process of passing around a joint of marijuana. The wing of an old-time bi-plane is thrown on stage and a uniformed Chinese soldier with a gas mask comes out and carries it off.

Plans for the play's reappearance are unannounced to date.

St. Francis Site For Soph Ball

The Sophomore Class is sponsoring a Ball, May 17, in the Colonial Room of the St. Francis Hotel from 9 p.m.-midnight, and plan a King and Queen Contest to raise money for a scholarship fund drive.

Soph President Bill McQuaid commented, "A petition can be obtained in Bungalow 5, with the following rules set for the contest. King or Queen candidates must be enrolled at City College during the Spring semester. In order to run a person must be chosen from an organization on campus. Ten cents will account for one vote, and a club cannot collect money until a petition has been filed with me."

Proceeds collected will go towards the scholarship fund awarded to worthy students on the basis of financial need and academic promise. McQuaid stated, "In order to stimulate interest in our drive, we are going to award prizes to the best fund raisers."

THE WINNERS of the King and Queen Contest will be awarded free trips to Disneyland, donated by Air California Airlines of San Francisco. Each entry in the contest is to receive a prize and also door prizes are to be given. McQuaid stated, "There is an outside chance that the winning King may win a date with Robin Carroll, an entertainer at the Galaxie club.

Student Council has allocated approximately $1,000 towards the Ball. The Ray Heckscher Orchestra, known for their musical abilities for playing various types of music, have accepted to provide the entertainment.

Tickets are free with an AS card and $1 without one. They will be on sale in Bungalow 5 or can be obtained from Soph President McQuaid.

Confab Delegates Find Admin A Liberal Body

By Lavine Lee

Five City College delegates attended the California Junior College Student Government Association's (CJCSGA) 45th semi-annual conference held in Los Angeles early this month.

City College delegates were Ray Bietz, associated students president; Pat Fiuren, associated students vice president; John Waterfield and Tom Doudiet, freshmen councilmen; and Bill McQuaid, sophomore president.

The main purpose of the conference was to get all of the junior colleges in the state together to discuss the main problems shared by most of the colleges.

City College of San Francisco was represented in all of the workshops, including student-faculty relations, education, communication, and the president's committee.

ACCORDING TO Waterfield, our administration is far more liberal and progressive minded than many other colleges and we have attained many of the goals that other colleges are fighting for, such as a Malcolm X Memorial Day, cigarette machines on campus and a far more lenient dress code.

"One of the main problems of the conference," according to McQuaid, "was that the conservative colleges were defeating most of the resolutions introduced by northern colleges. These southern colleges were able to defeat our northern resolutions because there are far more colleges in Southern California. It was very difficult to get anything done at the meetings. I think that the conference would be improved if the northern colleges and southern colleges met separately, and then sent representatives to a state convention."

These conferences first started in 1945. At that time, it was mainly set up for the exchanging of ideas and information between representatives from the junior colleges. Now, according to James Wyatt, dean of student activities, the emphasis has gone to a more legislative program.

THERE WERE TWO major additions to this year's conference. One was the employing of a permanent executive secretary to help in running the conference; the other was a student legislative advocate representing the State at the meeting.

Miss Fluren, who has attended four previous state conferences, stated that more time was spent on work than anything else at this conference. She pointed out that there was only one social event, and that was a two-hour dance on the first night of the conference. The college's representatives worked both day and night (one meeting lasted until 6 a.m.) at workshop and general assembly meetings.

New Police Technique To Curb Reservoir's Auto Vandalism Here

Vandalism and theft in the reservoir parking area should all but cease with the initiation of a new method of police surveillance recently enacted by Campus Police Chief, Stephen J. Gudelj.

Effective immediately, an officer will be stationed in the Science Building keeping close observation on the reservoir. Equipped with radio and binoculars, the officer will be ready to radio in for reinforcements if the need arises. The offender will be immediately apprehended and booked.

This new system is primarily designed to protect the drivers who leave valuable items in their cars as well as to prevent damage to the automobile itself.

Drivers who park in the reservoir will be less apt to lose valuable goods under this new protective enforcement.

Previous attempts, similar to this sort, have proven to be ineffective to curb the influx of burglaries in the reservoir area due to the lack of manpower.

Chief Gudelj emphasized that, "Persons found loitering in the reservoir parking area will be suspects."

This method will prevail througout the semester, according to the police chief.

Dinner Cancelled

Evening dinner in Smith Hall will be cancelled next Monday due to the Thirty-Second Annual California Northern Hotel Association Dinner honoring friends and alumni from the hotel and restaurant industry.

Record Vault Aids Ram Tracksters In Merritt Victory

A college record pole vault by Forrest Shute and double wins by Ernie Provost and Bill Butler carried the Ram trackmen to a closely fought 73-63 victory over Merritt at City College Friday, April 19.

The score stood 64-63 going into the last event of the meet, the triple jump. Butler, August Berry and Tom Clyburn finished one, two and three to sweep the event and give the Rams the win. Butler went 45-11, Berry 44-5 and Clyburn made his season best, leaping 44-2½. Butler also won the long jump with a 22-5 effort while Clyburn took third at 21-7.

Shute vaulted 13-10 in breaking his own school record of 13-8½ set last year. Boh Mahoney took second place for the Rams with a vault of 11-9.

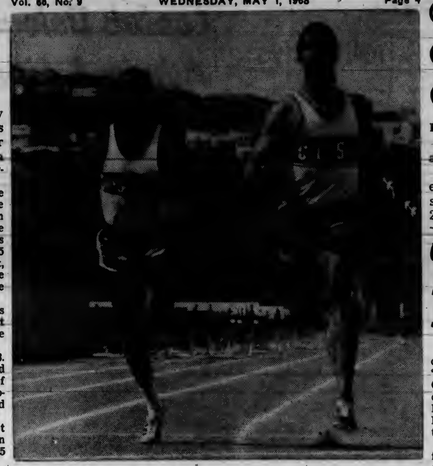
PROVOST took the 220 in 21.8. Norbert Payton of Merritt finished second in 22.5 while Vince Ansley of the Rams placed third in 23 flat. Provost also easily won the 100 ahead of Payton with a fast 9.7.

Larry Mosely and Ansley edged out Merritt quarter miler Roy Turner in the 440 with Mosely winning in 50.5 to Ansley's 50.6.

Eric Barfield of Merritt had dual wins in the hurdle races with a 14.9 in the 120 highs and a 40.7 in the intermediates. The Rams placed Greg Jackson and Craig Johnson behind Barfield in the 120 highs. Jackson was second in 15.1 while Johnson, running in his first meet of the year, was third in 16.1.

MERRITT PRODUCED another double winner in the form of distance star Ken Wilkens. Wilkens edged teammate Claudell Terry in the 880 with a time of 1:59.5. Ram Vic Cary placed third in 2:00.3. Wilkens' other victory came in the mile, winning in 4:34.4. Boh Coleman of Merritt finished second in 4:39.8. Ram George Haza placed third in 4:45.2.

Craig Steadman of Merritt outlasted Haza in winning the two mile in 9:58.1. Haza was second in 10:05.4. Ram Boh Darling placed third in 10:09.2.



Clyburn fell victim to the ruling of fewer misses in the high jump, clearing 6-4¾ for second place to Merritt's Don Crocket, who also went 6-4¾.

Sam Goldberg of Merritt won the discus with a throw of 131-0. Jim Balldocchi of the Rams was second with a mark of 125-8. Goldberg also placed second in the intermediate hurdles with a time of 40.8 and third in the shot put with a 38-6 effort.

Neal Trebotich of Merritt won the shot put with a heave of 46-9. Kennedy of the Rams was second with a 43-3 toss.

With Provost opening up a big lead on the second leg, the Rams' mile relay team of Cary, Provost, Mosely and Ansley won easily in 3:25.6.

Steve Jordan, replacing the injured David Jones, teamed with Jackson, Mosely and Provost to bring the Rams a 43 flat victory in the 440 relay.—D. A.

RAM ERNIE PROVOST (right) brings home victory for City College in 41.8 440 relay over Earl Harris and San Jose. Provost's sprint times of 9.6 and 21.7 rank second only to Harris' 9.5 100 and 21.5 220 clockings. The two will meet again Saturday in the Conference championships.
—Guardsman photo by Robert Morris

Foothill Again Wins Golden Gate Conference Swim Championships

Defending champion Foothill captured the Golden Gate Conference Championship swim meet held at Chabot, April 3-4. Owl freestyler Eric Schwall led the way with three individual wins and two relay victories.

Schwall set a meet record in the 50-yard freestyle, edging teammate Rich Kammeyer in 22.1 to Kammeyer's 22.2.

In addition, Schwall won the 100-yard freestyle in meet record time of 47.9, again edging Kammeyer, this time by two tenths of a second. Schwall also took the 200-yard freestyle in 1:50.6 and swam on both Foothill's 400-yard freestyle relay and the 400-yard medley relay wins.

In diving, Foothill's Gary Dahle won both the three meter and one meter events with 476.05 and 471.55 points respectively.

City College failed to place anyone in the top three of any events, but did qualify five swimmers for the State Meet in Santa Ana Friday.

Joel Wilson, with victories in the 500-yard freestyle, 400-yard individual medley and 1,650 freestyle (winning by 33 seconds over teammate Ralph Perry), paced Chabot to second.

Team scores: Foothill 542½, Chabot 467, Diablo Valley 311, San Mateo 255, San Jose 118½ and City College 25.

Gretton Paces Local Nine Past San Jose; Merritt Next

By Arthur Fanfelle

Ram baseballers were victorious over San Jose, 7-6, in ten innings but lost to San Mateo, 7-3, and Foothill, 5-4, making the Rams' season record six wins and ten losses.

The San Jose Jaguar game saw first baseman Chuck Gretton pace the Rams to a victory. Gretton went two-for-three at the plate, and batted three runs in.

Gretton drove in two runners in the first inning as he tripled, driving in Tom Mayfield and Odel Williams who both singled.

Dave Kline walked to open the second, and after Tim Callen grounded out and John Portoni struck out, Williams then tripled, driving in the Rams' third run.

THE RAMS SCORED again in the third as Jim Smith homered. Mayfield led off the fifth with a walk, Manny Berrios also walked, Kline smashed a single driving Mayfield home.

The next score came in the seventh as Gretton led off with a line drive home run to left center.

The score was tied 6-6 after nine innings. The stage was set for the tenth inning; Mayfield walked to lead off the bottom of the tenth. Dave Kline sacrificed Mayfield to second.

Coach Ernie Domecus put in pinch hitter Joe Dutto, who walked. Williams followed with an intentional pass loading the hases. Pinch hitter Paul Clayton, on a two strike-one ball pitch lined a single to the outfield, driving in Mayfield to win the contest.

HELD TO ONLY five hits, the Rams were hurt by the long ball as the Foothill Owls collected seven hits. The Owls catcher homered in the third inning as Foothill built an early advantage.

Trailing 3-0 in the fifth, the Rams' Chuck Gretton doubled and scored when Manny Berrios' sharp grounder was bobbled by the Owls' shortstop.

The Rams added three runs in the seventh on the combination of Tom Mayfield and Odel Williams hitting as they had back-to-back doubles. A walk to Andy Fracchie and another error on Berrios' grounder scored the other run. Foothill clinched the win with a pair of runs in the eighth.

CITY COLLEGE ran into a hot San Mateo Bulldog team, losing 7-3 on April 18.

The Rams compiled only five hits while the Bulldogs amassed 15 hits.

Al Paganucci, pitching for the Bulldogs, was the star of the game as he struck out six Ram batters. While Paganucci held the Rams he helped himself to a victory by smashing four hits in four trips, including a two-run homer in the big Bulldog eighth.

Tomorrow the Rams will visit Merritt, who they beat earlier this season 25-13.

Weekend Results

THURSDAY
BASEBALL

Contra Costa	000 101 002	2	4	3
CCSF	000 011 001	3	12	1

FRIDAY
GOLF
CCSF 25—Diablo Valley 10
Medalist—Doug Boston (SF), 75

SATURDAY
TRACK
NorCal Relays at Foothill. Team scoring: Sacramento 54, CCSF 39, American River 37, San Jose 36, San Mateo 32, Contra Costa 31, Laney 24, Modesto 16, Sequoias 15, Merritt 10, Diablo Valley 8, Foothill 7, Chabot 2. Tom marks: 100—Provost (SF), 9.7, 440 relay—San Jose, 41.0, 880 relay—CCSF, 1:25.5.

Golf Team Wins Twice; Now 8-3

Climbing back into the winner's corner, the Rams' golf team dropped San Mateo April 19, at Harding Park, then followed up by slipping by Diablo Valley at Concord Municipal Golf Course, April 22.

The linkers have an 8-3 league record this season with three matches left to be counted.

The team as a unit has performed surprisingly well, considering that they started with three new men. Gary Corvi came back from the 1966 season to add quite a bit of help for the team.

Doug Boston, the only returning member from last year, has had his ups and downs this season but has always managed to come away with his share of points. During the year, Boston moved from number three man to number five, then up to number one man.

Corvi's play has been irratic from time to time, but he has been an important part of the team, coming in with good scores when other members of the team have wavered.

Stew Whitman, fresh out of Washington High School has done very well for his first year. Although Whitman has slipped into the 80's a few times, his rounds in the low 70's can't be overlooked.

Paul Rea has been the sleeper of the team. He started out slow, then really came on strong, shooting some fine rounds in the low 70's.

Donn Paulson was another surprise for the Rams. Paulson has played consistently good, saving the team from what could have been losses to wins.

This Friday the Rams will take on Merritt College at Tilden Park. On Monday, the Golden Gate Conference Tournament will be played at Castlewood Country Club.—G. L. W.

Caruthers, Harris Swamp College Trackmen; League Championships On Saturday

By Dave Albertson

Sam Caruthers and Earl Harris paced the San Jose Jaguars to a 87-49 win over the Rams here Tuesday, April 23.

Harris edged Ram star Ernie Provost in both of the sprint events. He won the 100 in 9.7 and the 220 in 21.5. Provost finished second in both with a 9.8 in the 100 and a 21.7 in the 220. Provost's 21.7 was the fastest 220 he has run at City College.

The meet was highlighted by a close finish in the 440 relay. The Rams' Larry Mosely closed the gap on the third leg of the relay. Provost took over from Mosely and outsprinted Harris to the tape. The Rams finished in their best 440 relay time this season of 41.8. The Jags were a tenth of a second behind in 41.9.

CARUTHERS TURNED in a great performance placing in four events while winning three of them. Caruthers won the 120 high hurdles in 14.3. In addition he took the 330 intermediate hurdles in 39.8. Greg Jackson of the Rams placed second in both hurdle races with a 15 flat in the 120 highs, and a 40.4 in the intermediates. Ram Craig Johnson placed third in the 120 highs with a 15.1.

Caruthers also boosted his league leading pole vault mark to 15-6. Jim Roach of the Jags took second at 14-0 while Ram Forrest Shute placed third with a vault of 13-6.

Vince Ansley turned in a fast 49.3 in winning the quarter mile for the Rams. Tim Schneickert of the Jags placed second in 50 flat with teammate Calvin Robinson finishing third in 50.3. Ansley's 49.3 quarter pushed him into second place behind league leader Clarence Taylor.

VIC CARY WON the mile in 4:32.6 with Tony Baccelli adding another point for the Rams with a third place time of 4:48.6. Cary also placed second in the half mile to Mark Wade of San Jose. Wade won the 880 in the time of 1:50.4. Cary trailed in 2:02.8.

Bill Butler of the Rams had dual victories in the long jump events. Butler edged out Harris in the long jump with a leap of 22-7 to Harris' 22-6. Jerry Jackson of San Jose was third in 22-4. Butler won the triple jump with a 44-1½. Caruthers placed third with a jump of 43-4½.

Dale Carlin of the Jaguars won double victories in the field events. Carlin made a toss of 50-6½ in the shot put and threw the discus 139-1. Ram Brian Kennedy placed third in the shot put with a heave of 41-6.

Ted Lepas of the Jags won the high jump with his best jump this year of 6-4. The Rams took second and third places with Clavin McDonald jumping 6-2 for the second time and Tom Clyburn making 6-0.

San Jose easily won the mile relay in 3:22.9 while the Rams finished in 3:33.0.

CONFERENCE CHAMPIONSHIPS

The Conference championships take place at San Mateo this Saturday at 10 a.m. with trials being held this afternoon.

San Jose is the defending conference champs. They overwhelmed second place San Mateo in last year's championships with a total score of 101½ points. The Rams finished in fourth.

Harris won the sprints with a 9.8 in the 100 and a 21.9 in the 220. Provost placed second to Harris with a 9.9 clocking in the 100 and a 22.2 for the 220.

The Rams swept both relays in last year's meet. The team of Robbie Brinkley, David Jones, Greg Jackson and Provost won the 440 relay, while Jones, Jackson, Don Jordan and Hoy Henderson won the mile relay.

Jesse Reed of Contra Costa broke the conference meet record in the high jump with a jump of 6-7¼. Reed has already done 6-8 this season.

The Rams are without the services of last year's middle distance conference star Henderson.

College's Intra Basketball Action Still A Tight Race

The college's Intramural basketball competition is again being led by the 'Big Four.' The Phi Delts lead the Club League with The Guardsman hot on their trail, and the Independent League has the Can't Lasts and the Red Mountaineers in a deadlock for the league lead.

Last Thursday The Guardsman defeated the H&R, 48-46, as Mike Duggan and Tom Graham led their team with 14 and 10 points, overshadowing a fine game by H&R's Waymon Simmons. The Phi Delts humiliated their fraternal rivals, the Alpha Epsilons, 60-47. The Phi Delts were led by Dale Sutton, Til Cosgrove and John Casey, who together scored all but five of their team's points, had 25, 18, 19 points respectively.

In the other league the Can't Lasts slid by the Blackstone Rangers 61-44 as Raines and Hettrich sank 18 and 14 points. The Friendly Bears upset the Celtics 52-35 as Zuereff put in 20 points for the winners.

Tuesday's action saw The Guardsman swamp the Newman Vandals, 71-40.

EASY ED Holmes, hitting six of seven field goal attempts, blitzed for 12 digits to pace The G'man. John Franicovich, Boh Freely and Mike Duggan led the balanced Guardsman scoring attack with 15 points apiece. The Vandals' Dan and John Kennedy, tough on the boards, and the shooting of Ron Basso kept the Vandals close until the second half when Easy Ed got hot to put the game out of reach.

Newman player-coach Mike Wilkerson said after the game, "I thought we were just coming alive when Holmes broke our backs with a quick lay-in, left-handed hook and long jumper in succession."

The Red Mountaineers easily defeated the Ramblers 71-53 as Mike Farrar contributed 20 points for the winners. The Mountaineers' Bob Williams and Ken Jones also contributed to the win with 14 points apiece.

In a highly contested defensive battle the Filippino-Americans won out over the Chi Rho Delts 33-22.

Next Tuesday's competition pits the H&R against the Phi Delts, and the Red Mountaineers versus the Blackstone Rangers in the women's gym. In the men's gym the Friendly Bears take on the Can't Lasts and the Chi Rho Delts play the Newman Vandals in the later contest.

Ram Netters Gain Victory Over Jags

Following its first loss of this year's campaign, the Ram tennis team came back strong to defeat San Jose, 7-0, April 19 at San Jose.

The netters won every event, capturing each singles match plus the doubles. The team was surprisingly up for the match after losing its first contest of the year to San Mateo two weeks ago.

Chuck White, John Wong and Tony Lee showed skill on the tennis court as White beat Paul Lowe 6-3, 6-4; Wong beat John Hasselhlad 6-2, 6-3 and Lee beat Tony Yerly by the unlikely score of 6-1, 4-6, 6-1. George Zoul, who keeps up the team spirit, beat Jaguar Tom Hansen 7-5, 9-7 and joined with Lee to win their doubles match, 6-0, 6-3.

Paul Stafatos, whose record coincides interestingly with the team's, beat San Jose's Joe Sguatrito 6-3, 6-4 for his fifth win in six starts.

This Friday, the Golden Gate Conference Tennis Tournament will be the first of three big tournaments the Rams will enter, leading up to the state finals at Grossmont College, May 17-18. The two-day conference meet is being hosted by San Mateo.

Football Signups

All students interested in football for the Fall of 1968 should contact Coach Dutch Elston in the men's gym. A meeting will be held on Thursday, May 16, at 2 p.m. in Room 107 of the men's gym. The tentative football schedule for next season shows only four home games, with the first conference clash with Laney to highlight the home season.

Date	Opponent	Place
September 20	American River	Home
September 28	San Joaquin Delta	Away
October 4	San Jose	Away
October 11	Diablo Valley	Home
October 18	Foothill	Away
October 25	Chabot	Away
November 1	Merritt	Home
November 8	Laney	Home
November 16	San Mateo	Away

CONFERENCE STANDINGS

Team	Won	Lost
Chabot	14	3
San Mateo	13	4
Foothill	9	8
Diablo Valley	9	8
Contra Costa	8	9
SAN FRANCISCO	7	10
San Jose	5	12
Merritt	3	14

Council Removes Parisi Because Of 'Partiality'

Replacement of Rick Parisi, election commissioner, was the fiery topic at the Student Council meeting last Wednesday.

He was succeeded by Paul Anderson.

Parisi was charged with the showing of "partiality against a political party and several students who are going to be participating in the next Associated Students election" by Ray Bietz, Associated Students president.

THE CHARGES were based on an article in a previous issue of the Free Critic, written by Parisi, which stated: "The five representatives were Miss Fiuren, Mr. Bietz, Mr. Wakefield, Mr. Doudiet and Mr. McQuaid. In the seven and one half hours of workshop, they did not do a damn thing. During approximately fourteen hours of General Assembly, they didn't do a damn thing.

"About the only thing they did do was sleep, not caring if CCSF went unrepresented.

"This seems to be the general attitude of the whole of the USA party. They always appear to be sleeping, not caring if the voice of the students is heard or not."

These statements were made in regard to the recent State Conference held down in Los Angeles earlier last month.

IN DEFENSE of his charges toward the five council members, Parisi stated that he had received no denials to the charges from them. They did not pass or move any resolutions which reached the floor nor did they present any pros or cons during the entire General Assembly.

Shirley Short, secretary of the State Conference of City College, was the source of information for Parisi.

Parisi, admitting he was partial, hacked up his show of partiality with "I have heen impartial to all candidates because legally, there arc no candidates yet."

Continuing his defense, he said, "There is nothing in the constitution which declares of the election commissioner that he must remain neutral though it has been the precedent of the past commissioners.

"Speaking of the past, council had removed officials if they did not achieve a 2.0 grade point in the first midterm. However, this semester, council saw fit to disregard past policies concerning officials and their grade points.

"IN REALITY, I did not follow past procedures as Student Council did not follow past procedures; in return, I was impeached and they awarded themselves a pat on the back!"

Bietz' argument for replacing Parisi was based on the AS Constitution. According to Article II, Section3, paragraph G1, the election commissioner "Shall run and maintain, on an impartial basis, all AS elections."

Bietz elaborated by stating that the election commissioner, following past precedent, has the responsibility of remaining neutral toward all candidates and political parties not only during election days but also during the entire semester preceding the elections.

"Mr. Parisi, as a student, has the right to express his opinions, but as election commissioner, he should not go around making disparaging statements about the candidates, whether announced or not, or about political parties.

"He has indirectly violated the constitution. He has directly violated precedent and the unwritten responsibilities to students, candidates and voters.

"IF HE CANNOT suppress his personal opinions, he should not be allowed to run the election. I had no alternative but to do as I did."

However, Bietz offered no denials as to the "sleeping" allegations made by Parisi.

Miss Pat Fiuren and Bill McQuaid, AS vice president and soph president, have both given reasons combating Parisi's charge on not "doing a damn thing."

"By staying out of the parliamentary ping-pong, we were not joining the mass confusion hindering the importance of the conference!" asserted Miss Fiuren.

She continued, "The reason for not passing or moving any resolutions on the floor was simply because the resolutions were already in effect on our campus."

ANOTHER REASON was brought up by McQuaid. He stated that many of the solutions brought up by the Northern California colleges were defeated by the Southern colleges in California for they were the majority.

As things stand now, the new election commissioner will be Anderson, who was appointed by Bietz.

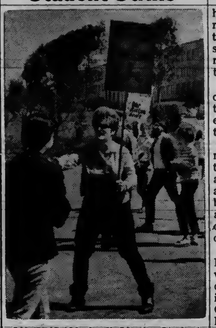
Parisi declined to comment upon his immediate plans at the present. However, he has aligned himself with other students who are working "for the students" to better the conditions on campus.—R. Q.

Medical Record Technology Added To Fall Curriculum

Medical Record Technology will be added to the City College curriculum in the Fall semester of 1968. Dean Jules Fraden, director of the Allied Health Professions program at City, is in charge of preparing this curriculum.

This new curriculum will be a two-year course, with the student receiving both an AA degree and a certificate of proficiency. For the degree, the students will be expected to have general education courses, along with the special technical courses and work experience. "Graduates of the curriculum should experience no difficulty in employment in the field," Dean Fraden said.

ASSISTING THE dean and the faculty is an advisory board, which includes Julie Bishop of Mt. Zion Hospital and Frances Ahrens of Letterman General Hospital. Both of these women work for the medical record department of their respective hospital, as medical record librarians.



When Dean Fraden announced this new curriculum, he emphasized that "This new curriculum meets a critical community and human need."

He added that City College, with its active and outstanding success in related areas, "is a natural place for a pioneering effort in the field." Those interested feel that there is a great and growing demand for well trained and qualified medical record technologists.

The Registrar's Office is now accepting applications, and will be until August 1. Any interested student may enroll in this curriculum, as there are no academic courses required; although there are some recommended courses for the high school students.

Dean Fraden told The Guardsman that Ruth Foggiato has heen engaged by the college to instruct several of the courses.—P. B.

Student Strike

ON FRIDAY, April 26, the Student Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam and the High School Student Mobilization Committee held a national student and faculty strike. Despite the vigor displayed by some picketers attendance figures were normal.
—Guardsman photo by Garth Ogle

No Apathy In Choice '68

By Tom Graham

Eugene McCarthy won the national collegiate presidential primary entitled Choice '68.

The unofficial returns showed that Robert Kennedy, Richard Nixon and Nelson Rockefeller followed closely behind.

City College of San Francisco was one of over 1200 colleges and universities across the country that participated in the election, which took place on April 24.

CHOICE '68 was organized on this campus by Phi Beta Rho sorority and according to Stephanie Shaw, student coordinator of the project, 1500 students here cast their votes.

"For this college, I was pleased with the turn-out because our students usually tend to be apathetic," stated Miss Shaw.

There were four polls on this campus that were used to collect the votes. After all of the votes were gathered they were boxed and shipped to Los Angeles by plane. There the Univac Corporation—a computer company—totaled the votes.

MISS SHAW revealed that a number of students on this campus could not vote because they didn't have registration cards. She also said, "There was a lot of enthusiasm on the part of the students who did vote, however."

The entire slate for Choice '68 consisted of 12 candidates. They were: Fred Halstead, Mark Hatfield, Lyndon Johnson, Robert Kennedy, John Lindsay, Eugene McCarthy, Richard Nixon, Charles Percy, Nelson Rockefeller, Harold Stassen and George Wallace.

The ballot likewise included three referendum issues. Two dealt with our country's involvement in Vietnam and one with the priorities of government spending in confronting the 'urban crisis." The results of these issues were not released yet.

McCARTHY, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, feels that the Vietnam war is "draining off America's most valuable resource—our young men."

The success of Choice '68 on this campus can be attributed directly to Phi Beta Rho sorority, who organized the project here.

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 66 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—WEDNESDAY, MAY 8, 1968 NUMBER 10

Tutorial Program Loses Head; New One Sought

City College of San Francisco's Tutorial Program has undergone organizational changes. Its present head-coordinator, Nick Stash, took a leave of absence from school recently, and resigned from the program. As yet, the tutors have not elected a new head although several people have speculated that the duties will fall upon Hershall Major.

Tutorial has experienced occasional growing pains, the last being about a month ago. A meeting was held then, to discuss their future policy. Among other things brought out in the meeting, was the background of Tutorial.

PATTERNED AFTER the successful SF State program, it was started by several student in October of 1966. They wanted to help elementary school children who were doing very poorly in school. These students felt, as do the present tutors, that the educational system was not reaching some children, most of whom were "minorities."

With the help of their adviser, Burt Miller, they drew up a constitution, and submitted it to the federal government for approval, in order to receive a grant. The grant was given (and still is received), and is matched by the Associated Students. For the Spring semester the Associated Students had allocated $1350 for Tutorial.

It was agreed then, that some of those working for Tutorial would be paid.

THE SALARY would he $1.35 an hour, with a maximum of 15 hours a week. Also, and most important, the student receiving a salary must show a definite need. Dean Wyatt told The Guardsman that up to 20 students have been on the payroll, but at the present, according to Director of Placement Joe Amori, there are only seven.

Along with the election of a new head coordinator, the tutors want to make several changes, or amendments to their constitution. There has been some discussion among all those connected concerning the policies of politics and religion.

If major changes are made, instead of amendments, then a new constitution must he resubmitted to the federal government, for a continuance of the grant.

At the present, there are three neighborhood centers operating under these conditions, St. Agnes (Masonic and Page), St. Peters (in the Mission), and Hamilton Methodist (Haight-Ashbury). Hopefully, when the conflicts are ironed out, additional centers will open; including several that have closed down because of the difficulties.

THE PRESENT faculty adviser, Miller, has decided not to continue with Tutorial next semester because of ill health. Dean of Student Activities, James Wyatt, informed The Guardsman that the administration is looking for a new adviser.

According to many of the tutors, everyone is doing his utmost to preserve Tutorial. One of the tutors said, "The whole idea of Tutorial is great, but it will not be here next semester if we don't come to some sort of conclusion on policy. For the sake of the children, I hope we can."—P. B.

ASSOCIATED STUDENTS ELECTION PETITIONS DUE TOMORROW

Experimental College Success Impeded By Lack Of Publicity And Inadequate Office Space

Experimental College which was added to the campus curriculum at the start of the semester is showing signs of success with the addition of new classes being offered presently.

"Although only five or six of the original ten group offerings are still going, the program is very much a success," says Donald Peterson, faculty adviser of the Experimental College. "Considering the many drawbacks of such a liberal educational program, it is doing very well," he added.

LACK OF PUBLICITY, general unawareness of the program and inadequate office space for the faculty constitute the main problems of the college. "There are some students at City College who do not realize that all students are free to participate in the program," Peterson emphasized.

Students who are enrolled in courses offered by the Experimental College attend these classes on whatever free time they may have. The organizer of each group offering must find a convenient time and place for meetings.

Peterson stated that there was a strong possibility of adopting credited classes into the experimental program with a pass-fail type grading system.

At the present time there is no Experimental College office, but if credit courses are introduced, an office would be a necessity, and thus, would strengthen organization and communication within the Experimental College program.

SEVEN NEW CLASSES are being offered at the present time ranging from "Contemporary Economic Systems" to "Visual Awareness Workshop." Classes are not taught by instructors but rather are group sessions organized hy individuals who are interested in the subject.

One of the group offerings now being held is for faculty members concerning minority group membership and it is led hy a student. Another group now in session is sponsoring a seminar "A Day On Drugs" being held Saturday, May 25 from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. at Riordan High School.

The program will be a discussion on drugs with speakers from various universities and hospitals from the Bay Area. General admission will be $2.00 and students—$1.00. Proceeds will be donated to various campus organizations at City College. Students wishing additional information about the Experimental College are requested to see Donald Peterson, C-338B.

Former FBI Spy Talks Tomorrow

Former FBI counterspy Lola Belle Holmes will speak in the City College theater tomorrow during College Hour.

Miss Holmes spied inside the Communist party as an FBI agent for three years. During that time she carried out orders from Moscow to gain a position of influence in the "Civil Rights" movement and used it as a torch to light a fire of revolution in America.

In 1960 she helped organize the Negro Labor Council and became the first woman to sit as vice president on the council. In addition she belonged to the Illinois State Committee, the Executive Board and the Negro Commission of the Illinois Communist party. She served in these positions for three years.

DESPITE THE constant danger of being discovered, she stayed until January 1963. She emerged as the principal witness before the House Subversive Activities Control Board. Her testimony resulted in the uncovering of many Communists and their past and current activities.

In May 1965 she testified for the U.S. government at the hearings of the House Un-American Activities Committee during their Chicago investigations. Her testimony removed the cover of 12 high ranking Communists.

The Illinois Department of the American Legion awarded her the Citation of Distinguished Service to the United States for service beyond the call of duty.

Supporters of Miss Holmes say "She is acutely aware of the inner workings of the Communist party."

Miss Holmes will appear on invitation from City College Associated Students, as part of their cultural events program.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of City College of San Francisco

ED HOLMES, Editor

Vol. 66, No. 10 | WEDNESDAY, MAY 8, 1968 | Page 2

Parisi Disqualified

COUNCIL'S recent removal of Rick Parisi from the position of Election Commisioner has been greeted with quite a bit of misguided indignation.

This indignation is misguided because it stems mainly from the erroneous supposition that council made a moral judgment. But the decision was no more based on whether Parisi's actions were "good" or "bad" than the decision to remove a faltering pitcher from a tight baseball game is a moral judgment.

A young pitcher may look good in spring training but there is no guarantee he'll be around on opening day. While his contract doesn't specificly say, "You will throw strikes," that condition is certainly implied. Parisi's "contract" called for him to remain impartial. He failed to comply and he was dropped. It's as simple as that.

Suppose an instructor made a public statement in unequivocal terms to the effect that he believed long hair and trousers did not go together and further, that he looked with extreme disfavor upon individuals of either sex who wore both. His ability to fairly grade a large section of the student body would be doubtful and most of the people clamoring for his immediate removal would be the same ones expressing such indignation at Council's recent action.

The Guardsman feels that, in this case, 13 of the 15 council members acted correctly.

A New Kind Of Politics

STUDENT ELECTIONS will be upon us soon, heralding the end of this semester. The issues promise to be "vital" and we expect the apathy shown here last semester will be a thing of the past. While The Guardsman heartily endorses a responsible campaign, we can't help but admire Mrs. Victoria Reich—AS presidential candidate at Stanford.

TRUE, THE 21-YEAR-OLD working girl has demonstrated a certain amount of responsibility by maintaining a grade point average of 3.09, but her campaign proposes "nothing useful . . . nothing more than a little distraction for a lot of book-weary students."

Dancing under the stage name of Vickie Drake seems to have given Mrs. Reich adequate background for her campaign. She is waging it topless.

Labelled And Recorded

Dr. John Is A Nauseating Joke

by Martin J. Arbunich

SIMPLY OUT of curiousity and the desire of being entertained for the evening, we made our way to the Carousel ballroom last weekend only to be confronted by a poorly constructed stage repertoire of Dr. John, the Night Tripper, an "entertainer" who's a much bigger quack on stage than his name alone might suggest.

This writer was first introduced to Dr. John through a new album which KMPX has been playing for the past month. Most of the material is Negro-Creole styled music based on the voo-doo and witchcraft culture of the Louisiana bayous. It's the kind of disc one is most relaxed with in pitch dark while reading a voodoo tale with a dim flashlight. The recording is occult, peculiarly interesting and creates some queer derivations of the authentic Creole form.

But the record is much, much superior to the ridiculous show he put on last weekend.

First of all, Dr. John isn't Negro. But judging from his phony accent and dialogue he probably wishes he were. What he is for sure is a white "spade" who prances around on the stage making a fool of himself in an absurd witch doctor get-up using Creole as a luring gimmick—only to entertain horridly. Comedy should have been his bag. He's a nauseating joke.

His San Francisco debut began with a leap and hound across the stage in traditional witch doctor fashion. His attire was of the same order: frizzy hair, headband, snakeskin draped around his shoulders, shrunken head amulet, something resembling mother's dish rag covering his waist, and, of course, tinted psychedelic goggles. Rather than a musician, he looked more like a typical middle class caucasian out for a Halloween jaunt.

Dr. John's first numher, Gris Gris Gumbo Ya Ya, one of the nicest things on the LP, was also the hest he could do all night—but then that's not saying much. "They call me Dr. John," he screamed, sounding like a sick coyote. And his two mini-skirted Negro warblers in the refrain: "Gris Gris Gumbo . . ." recreating dreadful memories of the now-submerged Shangri-Las. One of them followed that up later with a semi-topless number.

The only bright spots of their entire show were the conga drummer and a Ray Charles number sung by one of the women.

All in all it was a very sloppy night club act and they didn't do their album justice. And one can only wonder how they managed any applause. We just laughed.

• • •

The May 18-19 weekend appears to have two magnificent afternoons of music lined up at the Nor-Cal Folk Rock Festival at the Santa Clara Fairgrounds. The Doors (Sun.), Jefferson Airplane (Sat.), Big Brother, Electric Flag, Country Joe, Eric Burdon, Youngbloods and Taj Mahal headline the two-day (11 a.m.-6 p.m.) affair. Many more groups are on the hill too. Tickets can be purchased at $4 per day at the Downtown Center Box Office or by mail at 325 Mason Street.

This weekend: Steve Miller Band, Youngbloods and Kaleidoscope play the Carousel; H. P. Lovecraft, Tiny Tim, the Loading Zone and Crome Syrcus are at Fillmore; Quicksilver, Ace of Cups, Flamin' Groovies and the Wedge play the Avalon.

Guardsman Staff—Spring 1968

EDITOR IN CHIEF ..... ED HOLMES
Managing Editor ..... Martin J. Arbunich
Features Editor ..... Tom Graham
Staff Editor ..... Barbara Hamann
News Editor ..... Doug Boston
Sports Editor ..... Mike Rogers
Editorial Assistant ..... D. K. Dorn
Circulation Manager ..... Arthur Fanfelle

Reporters: David Albertson, John Benderitis, Penny Blum, Lani Brand, Rita Carroll, Jerry D. Fink, Randy Flynn, Ed Jimison, Dennis Klein, Boku Kodama, Sharon Roberts, Lynda Sandstrom, Gavin L. Watt.

Cub Reporters: Garret Duncan, Willy Durkin, Lawrence Ferrari, Michael J. Flynn, Lavina Lee, Rita Quong, Leonard Ribeiro, Carol Roehl, Pam Tomasello, James Baggett, James Billbery.

Photographers: Dawn Turner, Chief; Garth Ogle, Nathaniel Dodge, Carol Gillmore, Herbert Gong, Glenn Graham, Fred Harris, Jerry Jew, James McElory, Doug Mills, Robert Morris, Jens Protze, Mike Reame, Larry Tiscornia, Melvin Wainer and Samuel Woo.

Whistle while you work.

Scanning 33 Years Of College Drama

By Boku Kodama

The drama department of City College is a major contributer to the culture on this campus, but when it first started out 33 years ago, drama was just another course which one took for credit in graduating.

The first entertainment was not a student stage production but a film at the Galileo auditorium entitled "Gay Divorcee" with Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers.

On February 11, 1936, ten students, seven men and three women, gave the first performance by the drama department. They portrayed the life of Abraham Lincoln which no one saw. It wasn't that no one was interested, but rather that the ten actors did their performance on a radio station—KYA.

For the next several years, the drama department was inactive, and the only other entertainment was movies and music recitals.

In 1939, the Science Building was opened and all drama plays were shown in the College Theater, room 209.

DURING THE THIRD week of January in 1943, the drama class began rehearsals for its first stage production entitled The Very Light Brigade. The cast consisted of seven men and six women. The play was a comedy written hy Katheryn Pratho. The story dealt with love, politics, a high pressure campaign, a group of girls with fancy ideas on how to win the war, and a group of fanatics who plunge the city into a panic. The performances were done on May 27 and 28, 1943.

The next two plays to follow were in 1944. The first being Brief Music, while the latter was Young April. Both were under the direction of Ruth Somers.

DURING THE FIFTIES, the drama department held its plays in the basement of the Science Building where the student police had a rifle range. The last play performed in the Science Building was Amphetryon 38 which was directed by Michael Griffin in spring of 1961. In the middle of March that same year, Arts Hall was opened and the college theater with a capacity seating of 350 was opened. This theater provided a permanent home from the drama performances.

The two heads of the drama department here for the past five years have been Dr. Walter C. Krumm and James Haran.

When asked which play the two men considered the most successful they've put on, Dr. Krumm was quick to answer that it was Lysistrata, just performed last semester. Although Lysistrata was the shortest play ever performed, its attendance was greater than any other play. Krumm believes the play was successful because of its dealing with sex.

Saint Joan, another performance given last year, was perhaps the longest play ever shown here. Its length was three and a half hours.

Haran states that approximately 20 rehearsals are needed for each play and these plays have been from Shakespeare to modern, theaters of ahsurd, comedies and tragedies.

Cosmopolitan Flavor Here

Foreign students from virtually every part of the globe, from Afghanistan to Yugoslavia, attend City College but seem to blend almost unnoticeahly into the college's cosmopolitan atmosphere.

At the beginning of the school year there were approximately 380 students whose high school of graduation was in a foreign country. Hong Kong heads the list with 73 students, followed by Germany with 54.

THE PHILIPPINES sent 48 and Japan 33. Among Central and South American countries represented are Peru with 25, Bolivia 9, Nicauragua 20, and El Salvador 31.

The college can come up with almost any flavor one might want, including Moroccan, Ethopian, Liberian, Maltese or Jordanian.

MOST STUDENTS come over on student visas hut there are also diplomatic, immigrant and parolee visas. Parolee visas are given to those who have been expelled from an iron curtain country.

Different educational systems and language problems rank foremost among student difficulties, according to Dr. Joseph Jacohsen, foreign student adviser. He points out that many countries have educational systems which don't test as frequently as American schools, so students tend to put things off until they have grade problems.

Most students belong to the International Students Club which attempts to help break down the language barrier hy social activities. They seem to he succeeding. Since the club has formed there have been over 40 marriages within the group.

Contact Lens:

What Do You Think Of This Semester's AS Card System?

Glynn Petrie, former journalist major.

I used to think the idea was good but apparently it hasn't accomplished what it was supposed to. Associated Students Card sales have not been much higher than usual, if at all. Bietz doesn't deserve all the criticism he's been getting. I think he really had no alternative. Maybe Associated Students Cards should be mandatory for all students—everything else is free, except books.

PETRIE

Suzanne Buckner, psychology major.

I think it's a poor system and is not serving its purpose. The majority of people who buy them never use them anyway. What I'm saying is—I think it should be mandatory to buy Associated Students Cards. You should not be allowed to register without one. It would even be a good idea if they were to lower the price on AS Cards. I personally don't think the AS Card sales have gone up that much with the present system.

BUCKNER

KEANE

Marilyn Keane, medical assistant student.

I don't agree with the system at all. I don't think students should have to buy Associated Students Cards. If students have an AS Card, fine—if not—then the students attending various events should be charged admission. I don't have an AS Card because I don't want to pay the money. I'd be willing to pay an extra charge if I wanted to go to any event badly enough. The Student Council should be more consistent in ruling that students must have an AS Card. At one event you need one and the next event you don't need one.

JOHNSON

Floyd Johnson, Printing technology major.

The purpose of the Associated Students Card is to support the college functions. However, I don't think students should be made to buy them upon registering. A lot of people don't like to attend events here on campus. If they do attend events then they should be charged. Anyone who likes to participate in college activities will buy one. If students have enough interest in the college they'll buy an AS Card and help support the college.

Pat McHugh, general education major.

I personally don't like it. For one thing if you don't have an Associated Students Card you can't get into most college events. After all if you're a student at City College you should be able to attend events free of charge. They're too expensive. It would he hetter if they lowered the price of AS Cards to $2.50 instead of the present price of $5.00. Associated Students Cards should not be mandatory for the students.

McHUGH

John Harris, business major.

Well I don't know. I'm a working man myself and don't have time to attend the various functions on campus. There may be a time when I'll want to attend something, but right now I just attend my classes and study. I have an AS Card myself. One reason is that I drive a car. You need the card to get a parking sticker. No, I don't think AS Cards are too expensive. I spent my $5.00 without giving it a second thought. I needed one, so I bought one.

—Guardsman photos by Doug Mills

HARRIS

New Building Lacks Name—To Open Soon

City College's new Educational Services Building lacks a name. According to college Vice President Dr. Louis Batmale, the building should open around August 1, or hy the beginning of the Fall semester at the latest.

The building is tentatively called the Educational Services Building. Historically City College buildings remain without an official name until after they have been in use.

The new building will house many of the student services: the counseling offices, registrar's office, the book store, student hank and student government offices. The college president, the deans and the administrators will also have offices in this building.

ONE LARGE LECTURE hall, with approximately 240 seats, is also included in the plans revealed earlier this year hy Dr. Harry Buttimer, coordinator of educational management and faculty member in charge of construction.

Offices that will be vacated when the new building is in operation will be occupied hy the new faculty members and a duplicating and mimeographing center. The bungalows, which will also be vacated, might be used for classrooms or student activity programs.

Architect Milton Pfueger drew up the plans for the building. The administration, Dr. Buttimer said, told Pfueger what they needed and he worked with them filling their needs. These plans were then approved.

Financing of the building is with approximately 1/3 State of California money and 2/3 local money granted by the 1964 local school district bond issue. Dr. Buttimer reported that no federal money is being used.

Dierke Appointed AMS President

Jim Dierke was appointed by Student Council as the new Associated Men Students (AMS) president last Wednesday. He was recommended by Jesse Figueroa, outgoing AMS president.

The office of AMS president was vacated last month when Figueroa took a leave of absence for the rest of the semester to accept employment.

The new president is currently a member of Student Council, and he is also the Associated Students (AS) card coordinator. He is a former Council on Organization chairman and held that position for one year.

This will be the last semester here at City College for Dierke. Next semester he will transfer to Sonoma State College.

Having A Mardi Gras

PIE-IN-THE-EYE, water filled balloons, the dunko and wreck-a-jalopy were among the twelve concession booths featured at the recent annual Spring Festival Mardi Gras.

For the less energetic, a marriage license booth, a fortune teller, authentic dancing and a snack bar were available.

The decorative club booths, lining the walls of Smith Hall, did a thriving business as barkers urged passersby to try their luck and win a prize.

Sponsoring their traditional event was the Council Of Organizations. The nine clubs represented were: Chinese Students Association, Forensics, Ram Ski Club, Recreation Association, Frosh Class, Theta Tau, Phi Beta Rho, Fil-American and the Engineering Society.

A dance in Statler Wing concluded the festive activities.

Approximately 250 attended the Mardi Gras.

—Guardsman photos by Doug Mills

'Peace, Justice'

'Black Panther Day' Feted By BSA At Speech Area

The Black Students Association celebrated Black Panther Day last Wednesday in the free speech area in front of the cafeteria. BSA Information Officer Nehemia Pitts stressed the political nature of the Black Panthers and their allies, the Peace and Freedom party.

"The Black Panthers are a political organization which seeks political power and justice for Black people everywhere," he said.

"The Panthers seek freedom and self determination for the Black community. We want all Black men to be exempt from military service, an immediate end to police brutality and murder of Black people and freedom for all Black people in all prisons and jails. Above all, we want land, bread, housing, education, clothing, justice and peace. We must have peace," Pitts concluded emphatically.

Last week's celebration marked the first anniversary of the show of force by Panthers at the state capitol when they entered the legislative chamber with guns. The rally also sought support for various "political prisoners."

Spectrum: Festival Fester

by Barbara Hamann

WHAT'S HAPPENED to the sprit of the Mardi Gras? Last month City College celebrated its annual Spring Festival Mardi Gras in Smith Hall. Compared to past years, this year's Mardi Gras was nothing to hrag about. No doubt, the handful of clubs that supported this event did a commendable job in spite of the little publicity they sought.

The Mardi Gras has always heen as traditional as sororities and fraternities at City College. Spending a week in advance to prepare for the festive activities was met with enthusiasm and excitement.

Not only college students enjoyed the festive occasion, hut families and the community did as well. It was nothing to see Ocean Avenue lined with colorful floats (each decorated with a different theme), five brass bands and several units of marchers from high schools and other colleges.

SAN FRANCISCO and Campus Police escorted the parade up Ocean Avenue as the grand marshall led them to the campus grounds. The 35 to 40 concession booths, that stood in place of the present reservoir site, were hand-huilt hy members of the various clubs.

H&R sponsored authentic international food booths where every type of food imaginable could be bought. Revelers could exhibit their skills with the bucking bronco booth, dunking tanks, piethrowing events, and water-filled balloons aimed at volunteers.

Gold trophies were awarded to the best decorated float, most original costume and the best marching unit in the parade.

A king and queen reigned over the Mardi Gras as thousands of participants enjoyed the comhined efforts of the annual festival.

IT WAS ALMOST a decade ago that Mardi Gras began to decline. Why? No one seems to know. It is this writer's opinion that the main fault stems from the lack of leadership. When leaders set the example and take the bull by the horns to get the job done the Mardi Gras of the past may again see its day.

The days have passed when the Mardi Gras was such a success that it had to he housed in the Cow Palace, hut with a college community of over 10,000 it surely warrants more support than 380 people.

ELECTIONS: With this month marking the new Student Government elections, this writer endorses full support of the USA party. As a college student, the most beneficial way to voice your opinion is through the student government. If things weren't done your style in the past, now is the time to make the change. Vote this month.

Faithful Wife Finds Spouse Has Mistress —Juliet Of Spirits

Juliet of the Spirits, written and directed hy Italy's Federico Fellini, will he shown in the little theater tomorrow at 8 p.m.

Fellini's film, his first color full-length movie, concerns a faithful, middle-aged wife, (Fellini's real-life wife, Giulietta Masini) who finds that her hushand (Mario Pisu) has a mistress.

She defensively consults a seer and attempts to seek refuge in spiritualism, where she begins to lose touch with reality, and starts living in a fantasy world, with images of abstract evil, dreams of sexual abandon, and phantoms of childhood fears.

Not until she finally loses her hushand does she find herself and make peace with her distraught spirit.

With the use of blaring, daring, spinning, whirling photography, Juliet of the Spirits is molded into a hizarre and gaudy spectacle, a movie stretched to the extreme of Fellini's creative imagination.

Summer School Reg Begins This Monday

Students enrolled in City College summer school may begin pre-registering next Monday.

Pre-registration will last through May 24 for the approximately 3000 college and high school students who will attend. Those who are not students at present will register beginning June 21. Classes will open on June 24.

Republican To Talk

Earle A. Partington, president of the Young Republicans at Hastings School of Law and sergeant of arms for San Francisco County, will speak tomorrow at College Hour in A-215. He will discuss what Republicans stands for and what their roll is in politics.

Letters to the Editor

Ram's Horn

(Letters to the Editor may be left in the switchboard office, S-189, in Science Hall or in The Guardsman office, S-304. Deadlines are 10 a.m. each Wednesday. The Guardsman reserves the right to edit letters in the interests of brevity and rhetoric. If so desired the writer's name will be withheld, but the identity of the writer must be known to the editor.)

• The USA Side

Editor, The Guardsman:

I feel that it is about time USA party was given credit, for some of their accomplishments this semester. No party in the history of City College has accomplished as much as USA.

At the start of this semester USA was faced with the task of rebuilding a totally destroyed Student Government, thanks to the efforts of the old Change party.

A few of USA's accomplishments are: improved Muni service, establishment of a future Student Union, a teacher's evaluation to be held this month, bringing to campus more popular entertainment (such as Dick Gregory), the first Associated Student loan program in a California junior college, and USA is currently working on an on-campus tutorial program for City College students.

THERE ARE OTHER lies about USA party that I would like to clear up. The Free Critic claimed that USA party is clamping a lid on the student voice. They should attend one of the council meetings mentally not just bodily before they start making accusations. I ask any student who wants to know the truth to come to the AS office and listen to the tapes of the council meetings. Any student that does this will agree with me that the Free Critic's name should be changed to the "Half-Truth Critic."

I feel that the dismissal of Rick Parisi by Ray Bietz was justified because the joh of an election commissioner requires impartiality.

I asked Mr. Parisi to tell the truth about his impartiality. He refused to do so when The Guardsman reporter asked him: he stated that he did not want to announce if he was connected with a political party at this time. This does not sound impartial to me.

But the worst is yet to come! USA has finally rehuilt Student Government and now the old Change party is returning. They are hiding under the disguise of a party called the "Coalition." I guess the Coalition, alias Change party, cannot stand to see constructive efforts made. I call for the student body to unite hehind USA and heat back this threat.

But if the student body is duped hy the lies and politics of this new party, there will always be USA party next semester to pick up the pieces of Student Government just as they did last semester after the reign of Change party.

A Concerned Student

SHOOTIN' IT

by D. K. Dorn

STUDENTS are dump trucks: At the end of the second floor corridor in Cloud Hall, which has a "No Students May Enter," only the august campus cops are allowed to parade through the door. Since this writer feels that columnists are as equal, if not more equal than cops, we gave it a try, since short cuts are right up our alley.

As we were going in, we met a very mad little lady coming out. She was shocked to see that a student non-cop was making a break for it.

Evidently there's no harm if campus cops, students all, use "No Students May Enter" short cuts. But all other students must use the standard passages through the hall of learning. Only all of us other students have to follow the orders of these student cops besides.

This is just another example of how student cops learn to break the law when it is convenient to break the law.

So what students need to do is pull an Alice's Restaurant through these forhidden gates.

If one student walks through, then they'll think you're a psychotic and they'll be leary of you. If two students walk through, they'll think it's a conspiracy and they'll run for the CIA. If three students walk through, they'll think it's an organization, and they'll phone for the House Un-American Activities Committee. If four students break on through to the other side, they'll think it's a movement, and they'll phone for the city police. If five students try to assume the rights of the campus cops, they'll think it's a riot, and they'll phone for the National Guard. And if six students should walk through . . .

• • •

APOLOGIES A GO GO: The biggest show to hit this area is yet to happen. It was reported to us that his excellency the Yogi Maharishi Mahish Yogi is to play on the same bill with the Beach Boys next week. Save your soul on the wild surf, guys and gals.

• • •

ELEPHANTS ANONYMOUS: The College of the Holy Names offers a special course in memorization, recall, facts and figure learning, names and faces recall and recognition recall. Similar to our other whizz-bang offers, there is a $79.50 fee even though the usual fee is something like 150 smackers. For more dope, write to I.T.L., 3222 Geary Blvd., S.F., 94118. I.T.L. stands for something, but this writer forgot what it was.

• • •

FLICK FREAKS: For perverted film fans of French director Louis Bunel (who was in town just recently), San Francisco State is offering some of his most influential films for free on May 15 in the Education Building, Room 117. Land Without Bread and Un Chien Andalou (one of Brunel's early flicks) are featured on the bill. Another film by director Franju titled Blood Of The Beast is also on the bill. Show times are 7 p.m. and 9:30 p.m.

• • •

For those students who missed the play Slow Dance On The Killing Ground last month at the Intersection Theater will have another chance to catch that play. Star John Cochran is coming to the college later in the semester to direct another production of Slow Dance here.

He will also he teaching some sociology courses next semester.

• • •

CHANGING OF THE GUARD: Half the editorial staff and reportorial types will prohahly he splitting from the scene come the end of the semester. Thus, if you can dig getting your self into print, working at subverting the Establishment from the Inside or If you have a weakness for sado-masochism, sign up for journalism with your counsellor.

• • •

COP HOP: Illustrious Guardswoman Barbara Hamann (does that make her a G-woman?) reports that on the last day of May, there's going to be a dance sponsored by the illustrious campus cops in Smith Hall. They're going to take their chicks into protective custody in this zala cop out. There will be lil' fuzzies abounding about. Labelled and Recorded Martin J. Arbunich is hoping that Canned Heat will provide the sounds. But we wonder if Big Dick and the Boys In Blues Band might not be a better choice.

San Mateo Wins Conference Track Title; Relay Teams Spark Rams To Fourth Place

San Mateo, with 104 points, won the Golden Gate Conference track and field championship meet on a very cold day, Saturday at San Mateo. The Contra Costa Comets, winner of the dual meet championship, finished second with 96½ points while Sam Caruthers' 15.0 high hurdle win and 15-7½ pole vault victory helped San Jose (88) to a third place finish.

City College (85), led by Ernie Provost, Greg Jackson, Larry Mosely, Tom Clyburn and Vince Ansley, placed fourth. Merritt (51), Foothill (37), Chabot (23), and Diablo Valley (10) rounded out the team scoring.

Provost started off the day against arch-rival Earl Harris of San Jose by anchoring the Rams to a 41.7 win in the 440 relay. After Steve Jordon, subbing for the injured David Jones, and Jackson ran stride for stride with San Jose, Mosely gave Provost a step lead with a fine third leg. San Jose also timed 41.7.

HARRIS survived a bump on the head, received when Ram discus thrower Jim Baldocchi's practice toss hit Harris while he prepared for a long jump on the runway located ridiculously close to the discus area, to win the 100 in 9.8. Provost, after false starting once, came on strong to finish second, also in 9.8.

In the 220, Provost and Harris come out of the turn dead even, and with the aid of a late spurt at the tape, Provost won in 21.9. Harris was second in 22.0 while Ram Jordon picked up a point with a 22.2 sixth place.

Both the Rams and the Comets broke the meet and stadium record of 3:17.7 in the mile relay with Contra Costa winning in 3:16.0 to City College's 3:16.2. Jackson (49.4), taking Jones' spot, led off and trailed the Comets' Roy Finks (48.7) by about five yards, but well ahead of the other teams as Provost and Howard Carter (48.8) took the batons. Provost (48.5) cut the lead in half as both men left the rest of the field well back. Mosely (50.0) ran a fine third leg against Carl Harris (50.5) to give Ram anchor man Ansley a step lead on Clarence Taylor. Ansley (48.3) took a good 10-yard lead at the 220 mark as Taylor (48.0) lagged back, but then put on a tremendous sprint in the final 50 yards to give the Comets the win.

JACKSON TOOK a second in the 330 intermediate hurdles, clocking a 38.8, the same time as winner Eric Barfield of Merritt.

Ansley ran the 440 in 48.5, but finished second to the fast-charging Taylor, who once again came from well back in the pack to win in the final 70 yards in 48.4. Mosely came in fourth in 49.2.

Clyburn rose to the occasion to beat a fine high jump field, winning at 6-6¼. Defending champ Jesse Reed of Contra Costa and former seven foot leaper Don Pierce of Diablo Valley finished third and fifth respectively, both clearing 6-2.

Clyburn and teammate Bill Butler finished fourth and fifth in the long jump at 21-7¼ as defending champ Marion Anderson of Contra Costa took first over runner-up Harris at 23-2.

Ram Vic Cary ran fourth in the 880 in 1:57.0, well behind winner Carter's 1:53.9 while Ram two-miler George Haza was just nipped for sixth spot by San Jose's Art Hernandez.—M. D.

VINCE ANSLEY breaks the tape in recent 440 win in San Jose meet. Ansley started out the year as number three quarter miler on the team, but now ranks second in the conference with a 49.3. Ansley's fast 47.4 anchor in NorCal Relays helped the Rams to a mile relay time of 3:18.1. —Guardsman photo by Jens Protze

Sutton's 27 Paces Phi Delta Win

The Phi Delts continued to dominate Club League intramural basketball action as they hit an all-time high score in their 105-40 humiliation of the Filippino-Americans. The Phi Delts' Dale Sutton hit 27 and Bill Lichtenberger sank 24.

In the Independent League the Red Mountaineers slipped past the Friendly Bears, 54-46, as Allen Cowlings controlled the boards and poured through 14 points for the winners. In the men's gym the Can't Lasts matched the Mountaineers' win, to keep the league lead in a deadlock, by beating the Revisables 53-48.

Last Tuesday the Filippino-Americans broke their losing streak by beating the Newman Vandals, 42-39. The Red Mountaineers continued their winning ways in a narrow win over the Celtics, 54-52.

The Blackstone Rangers put together their best effort of the season in a decisive victory over the Revisables, 65-49.

As in the past, Chi Rho Delta defaulted again (their fifth), this time to The Guardsman.—W. D.

Racketeers Whip Diablo Valley, Tie Merritt For First

Ram racketeers finished the regular season by wiping up Diablo Valley, 6-1, at Golden Gate Park, April 26, to ensure City College a tie for first place with Merritt.

Coach Roy Diederichsen's crew won the first four singles and both of the doubles as only Tony Lee got the accusing finger when he lost to Diablo's John Preston, 6-1, 10-8.

City College number one man Charles White started the ball rolling by beating Gary Beddoe of Valley 6-2, 6-1.

John Wong, using a combination of the American twist and some of his special garbage shots, befuddled Thomas Mitchell 6-3, 6-3.

As wiry George Zoul did the job on Gerald Renouf 7-5, 6-2, Ram Paul Stafatos took his time beating Elbert Taylor 6-1, 4-6, 6-4.

The icing was applied when Wong and White won the first doubles 6-0, 6-2, and Zoul and Lee won the other doubles 6-4, 6-3.

After the game Vikings' Coach Floyd Svennson mentioned that the Rams were "just too tough for us" and that he wasn't ashamed of his team's performance.

This Friday many of the Ram racketeers will enter the Northern California Regional Tennis Tournament. John Wong and Chuck White, who didn't lose a doubles match all season, will be seeded number one and consequently everyone will be gunning for them. If they are to take the state title at Grossmont next week, which many agree is possible, they will have to beat some of the best teams in California.

Wong and George Zoul qualified for the state finals in doubles by winning the Northern California finals last May.—E. J.

Ram Spikers Nab Second Place Behind Sacto In NorCal Relays

By Dave Albertson

City College relay teams made a 39-point second place finish in the Northern California Relays at Foothill April 27.

Ernie Provost won the individual 100-yard dash with a final time of 9.7. Provost narrowly edged Mickey Mathews of Laney, who also clocked a 9.7. Provost's conference rival, Earl Harris of San Jose, finished fourth in 9.9.

THE RELAY team of Larry Mosely, David Jones, Greg Jackson and Provost turned in the fastest two-year college time this season in winning the half mile relay. Their time of 1:25.5 broke the meet record of 1:26 flat by Hancock in 1967. San Jose placed second to the Rams in 1:26.0. Provost ran 20.4 for his anchor leg.

Sacramento tied the national two-year college record of 3:22.8 in winning the sprint medley relay. The Ram team of Jones, Mosely, Vince Ansley and Vic Cary placed second with a fine 3:27.2. Contra Costa was also timed in 3:27.2, but was awarded a third place finish.

The Rams won their individual heat of the mile relay in 3:18.1, but was awarded third place behind Contra Costa and Sacramento. Ansley turned in a 47.4 anchor leg for the Rams.

San Jose's 440 relay team of Lance Calloway, Mike Miller, Calvin Robinson and Harris nosed out the Rams (Jones, Jackson, Mosely and Provost) by two tenths of a second in 41. flat. San Jose's 41.0 bettered the meet record of 41.1 set by Hancock. Contra Costa was third in 41.8.

Ed Temple turned in a fast 4:08.2 mile in anchoring San Mateo to a fourth place finish in the distance medley. Modesto won the medley in 10:07.3 with Andy Vollmer running a 4:17.6 anchor mile.

Tom Clyburn of the Rams placed fourth in the long jump with a leap of 23-1¾. Marion Anderson of Contra Costa won the event at 23-8½.

SAM CARUTHERS of San Jose ran away from the pack in the 120-yard high hurdles in 14.6. Eric Barfield of Merritt was second in 15 flat.

Don Pierce of Diablo Valley soared to a conference high of 6-8¾ in the high jump. Jesse Reed of Contra Costa also cleared 6-8¾, but settled for second place on account of more misses.

George Haza of the Rams placed fourth in running his fastest two mile of the season. Haza was clocked in 9:44.5. Andy Hansen of Fresno won in 9:34.2.

Sacramento won the relays with a total score of 54. The next five schools were closely matched with the Rams at 39, American River 37, San Jose 36, Contra Costa 32 and San Mateo 31.

The Ram relay teams will participate in the West Coast Relays at Fresno this Friday and Saturday.

Linkers Defeat Diablo, Merritt; Conference Record Raised To 10-3

Winning over Diablo Valley, 25-10, April 26 at Harding Park, then bombing Merritt College 33½-1½ at Harding Park, the Rams now hold second place with a 10-3 record in league play.

Doug Boston led the way to victory over Diablo Valley with a 73, taking six points from Tom Burd, who shot an 86. Mike Geyertz, with a 77, took six points from Jack Pingree.

Ram Donn Paulson picked up six points with 77, dropping Dave Norris.

Stew Whitman lost four points to Bill Trask, who shot 81. Paul Rea lost all six points with an 85 to Bruce Canyers. The Rams won the match 25-10.

In the win over Merritt College, Paulson shot a 75, winning six points from Randy Gul, who had an 80. Whitman got six points from Tom Gannon with a 76. Greg Hood lost his six points to Boston who shot a 77.

Rea picked up 4½ points from Leonard Marchen after shooting a 78. Geyertz, with 78, won six points from Mike Grositti.

Next Monday, Central California will host the State Tournament. The Rams can win a berth in the tournament if they finished first or second in the conference tournament played on Monday.—G. L. W.

Baseballers Run Record To 7-11 With Win, Loss; Last Season Encounter Tomorrow

The local nine defeated Contra Costa, 3-2, on April 25 and lost to Chabot, 11-5, on April 30, thus running their season record to 7-11. Tomorrow the Rams will play their final game of the season against the College of San Mateo at San Mateo.

The host Rams' 3-2 victory over Contra Costa saw them collect 12 hits, including a home run. The Rams trailed early in the contest as the Comets' second baseman slashed a home run to left field in the top of the fourth.

The Rams came back with a run in the bottom of the fifth with Tim Calten blasting it deep over the left fielder's head and legging it out for a homer.

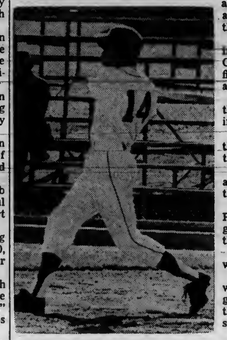
Leadoff batter Odel Williams had three hits in five trips to the plate, including a double.

CHUCK GRETTON contributed three singles in four at-bats to help the winning cause.

Joe Dutto struck out seven Comets and allowed but four hits and walked three during the game.

Chabot's Gladiators invaded Balboa Park to play on the Rams' home ground, and they proceeded to rack the Rams 11-5.

In this contest Ram pitcher Dutto walked seven and struck out eight.



Jim Smith paced the Rams' attack, what little there was of it, as he grounded out in the first, homered in the fourth, singled in the sixth and seventh and sacrificed in the ninth.

THE RAMS collected two runs in the fourth and single runs in the sixth, seventh and eighth.

With the Rams leading 2-1 in the fourth the Gladiators exploded for four runs in the top of the fifth and four more in the eighth which saw the Chabot first baseman smash a homer to pace their attack.

The Rams are presently in sixth place. Chabot, 14-3, and San Mateo, 13-4, are the top two teams in the conference standings.

Ram hitting is sparked by Odel Williams, who has a .345 average. Three other players are hitting over a .300 average. They are Chuck Gretton .342, Jim Smith .326, and Tom Mayfield .310 average. Joe Dutto is the Rams' top pitcher with a 5-5 won-lost record.—A. F.

FIRST BASEMAN Chuck Gretton lashes one of his three base hits in helping Ram nine past Contra Costa, 3-2. Gretton's .342 average is tops on the team.

Foothill NorCal Swim Champs

Foothill took the team title again by winning 14 of the 18 events in the Northern California Meet last week at Aptos.

Foothill won with a total points of 499, while Chabot took second with 329½ points.

Foothill's Eric Schwall took the 100 and 200-yard freestyles, tied for first in the 50-yard freestyle with teammate Glen Finch, and swam on two winning relay teams for Foothill.

Gary Dahle of Foothill scored 473 points in the one-meter diving event for a Northern California meet record and also took first place in the three-meter diving event. Bob McMahon gave the Owls the 100 and 200-yard backstroke victories, and Bob Chatfield won the 200-yard individual medley for the Owls.

Foothill has entered 18 swimmers, the maximum, in the State Meet at Santa Ana.

Grid Signups

Head football coach Dutch Elston and his assistants, Alex Schwarz, Ernie Domecus and Grover Klemmer remind all students interested in playing football at City College for the Fall, 1968, to contact them in the Men's Gym. A meeting will be held at 2 p.m. in Room 107 (Men's Gym) next Thursday (May 16).

RAMblings

Two Sprint Marks Added To JC Records

By Mike Duggan

TWO national two-year college sprint marks have been broken recently by Mel Gray of Ft. Scott (Kansas) and Mike Fray of Mesa (Arizona). Gray sped 100 meters in 10.1, breaking Hal Davis' 10.2 mark set in 1941, at the Kansas Relays, April 19. One week earlier Gray tied the two-year college mark for 100 yards by running a 9.3. Two others have done 9.3—Travis Williams of Contra Costa (now an NFL star for Green Bay) and Fred Kuller of Santa Ana (now a member of USC's relay team which has run the four fastest 440 relays ever).

Gray is from Santa Rosa where he earned All-Northern California football honors and took a sprint double in the State Meet last year.

Fray is now one of the greatest 220 men of all time. His 20.2 around a turn on March 23 has been bettered only by Tommie Smith's world record 20.0 two years ago and a 20.1 by Smith last season. Aside from Smith, who has also done 20.2 many times, only Henry Carr and Willie Turner have run the furlong that fast.

Fray, a sophomore from Jamaica, has also turned in a 9.4 100 and 47.4 440 this season.

LOOKING BACK. In 1954 Sid Phelan was basketball coach at Washington High School. One of Phelan's players and also the school's best high jumper was Johnny Mathis, now a pretty good singer. Also that year, Washington had an All-City soccer player named Pete Cordellos, now City College's equipment manager.

Don Nash, compiler of the original all-time California two-year college track and field best lists, figures out that Fullerton would nip Pasadena, 70½-65½, for the all-time dual meet championship. Among the top point getters in the fictional meet was Pasadena's Mike Robinson, brother of baseballer Jackie and runner-up to Jesse Owens in the 1936 Olympic 200, whose 20.9 220 and 25-5½ long jump would still score high today.

If Nash next trys compiling an all-time championship football game, how's this for City College's starting backfield—Gary Lewis (QB), Tom Piggee (FB), and halfbacks Ollie Matson and O. J. Simpson.

Some astonishing track marks were reported in the Monitor (April 25) in a story advancing the league championship meet for the WCAL. Among the better marks—a 35.3 440 relay by Riordan, a hurdler who jumps 5-10, a St. Ignatius distance star who ran a 4:50.7 two mile, a gronp of 'fast' sprinters from Mitty who run the 100 in 'around' 13.8 and a discus thrower who averages aronnd 12 feet.

The swimmers in the WCAL move quite fast too. According to the story, one man swims the 100-yard breaststroke in 12.3 and a teammate of his covers the 100-yard backstroke in 10.5.

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 66 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—WEDNESDAY, MAY 15, 1968 NUMBER 11

Actor-Director Joins Staff

By Penny Blum

A new first for City College of San Francisco has been established by the Drama Department. John Cochran, an actor-director, was engaged as an artist-in-residence by City College to direct and star in Slow Dance On The Killing Ground.

Cochran has a long list of theatrical credits, in the role of director as well as actor, which include television, movies and stage productions. On television he has been seen on commercials, educational TV and on series programs, such as Ben Casey and Death Valley Days.

JOHN COCHRAN

Lately, Cochran has been trying his hand at movies. At the moment, he is starring in The Other Side, a film being shot in Palo Alto. It should be released this summer if all goes well. He stated that, "The film tells it like it is; none of this Guess Who's Coming To Dinner business." Also, he has co-starred in The Incident, and has a feature roll in the soon-to-be-released The Extraordinary Seaman.

HIS FIRST and last love is the legitimate theater, however. He has directed and starred in productions from coast to coast, centralizing in California. At present, in addition to lending City College his talents, he is directing a play at Mills College, and assisting in another in East Oakland. He recently starred in the West Coast premiere of Slow Dance On The Killing Ground at the 390 Miller Avenue theater. In New York, the play won several off-Broadway awards during the 1964-65 season.

In addition to his theater credits, Cochran has a Masters in social work from University of Southern California, and a Bachelor of Science from Wayne State University. He has worked as a psychiatric case worker for the Hathaway Home for Children. This summer he will teach a course in sociology here at City College.

Also, he has applied for a position with the Drama Department, which would commence this fall.

A department spokesman said that they are anxiously awaiting official approval of Cochran's application.

USA, Coalition Parties Seek Win As Elections Near

By Lavine Lee

United Students for Action (USA) and COALITION will be the two major parties seeking power in this semester's election.

There are 20 Associated Students offices available, and USA's candidates for AS president and AS vice president are Bill McQuaid, the current sophomore president and a member of Student Council, and Shirley Brown, the current Associated Women Students president, respectively.

Art Sullivan, a member of Coalition, stated that his party is for a complete campus reform. He, along with his party, believes that "students will not be free until they're allowed to determine their own destiny, and this would, in fact, mean student power."

USA'S PLATFORM includes a discount on textbooks to AS cardholders at the AS bookstore (Ramporium), more minority culture courses, putting students on faculty and administrative committees, a student takeover of jobs now held by civil service employees (bookstore, janitorial, gardening), a one-week program devoted to cultural events (art exhibits, folk-rock concerts, drama productions), and numerous others.

COALITION'S PLATFORM includes an extensive Black and Chinese curriculum, that off-campus organizations be allowed on campus, that there be more qualified minority teachers, that students control all things that concern the welfare of the student (student power), and others.

Paul Anderson, the new Election Commissioner, feels that this election will be a good one. He pointed that over 40 petitions had been given out.

In order to make the election as fair as possible, Anderson has suggested that observers from both parties watch the polls so that there will not be any illegal occurrences, such as the "stuffing of the ballot box."

The new election commissioner feels that there will be a good turnout of voters because there will be two completely opposite parties running. He stated that last semester's poor voter turnout (only 1.7 per cent of the students voted) was due to the fact that students did not have a choice (only the USA party put up candidates).

The AS election will be held on May 22 and 23. There will be only one polling place which will be located outdoors in the area between the Science Building and Cloud Hall. Any student with a registration card will be eligible to vote.

Batmale Trip Gives City College Noted Recognition In East

City College received nationwide recognition earlier this month when Vice President Louis Batmale addressed New York leaders in junior college education.

Dr. Batmale traveled as a guest of the Ford Foundation to Ellensburg, New York, where he met with the presidents and deans of New York City's six community junior colleges. Together, they talked about the main problems shared by their institutions.

Batmale attended a "two-day retreat" there. The main topic of discussion was a Liberal Arts program for community college students.

The vice president gave an introductory address entitled "Making Liberal Arts Relevant for Community College Students."

He pointed out that in planning for these students the instructor has to get to know and understand the student as well as select the subject matter that is best for him.

He added that instructors who adapt new teaching techniques find that the best possible results are obtained.

In comparing New York City to San Francisco, Batmale found New York to be a bigger city with bigger problems." He said, however, that many of New York's proglems were similar to those in San Francisco.

Batmale also spoke with Irving Lipkowytz, who is connected with the Hebrew Technical Institute and is responsible for the college summer session programs that are available for high school seniors, and with Mr. Arbury from the Statler Foundation.

Registration For Fall Begins Here During Summer

Registration for the Fall semester as outlined by John Brady, coordinator of student welfare, will involve a month-long process for many of City College's students. Registration by grade point will be the basis for priority.

The technical-terminal students will pre-register, also by grade point, from August 6 through 9. On those dates, they will come to school, and fill out course request cards. The cards will be computerized and returned to the students at a later date. The technical student will then return to City College on the 15 or 16 of August to fill out his registration booklet.

ALL OTHER return students will register between August 21 and September 3. Brady pointed out that "This will give the students ten days to register, instead of last semester's three days." Prior to registration, students will again be notified, as to the date and time, they are to register.

By having fewer students register at one time, the counselors and department chairmen can provide more needed classes. The students will again pull their own cards, but this time it will be an arena type registration. If a student really needs a class, he can immediately talk to the department chairman. Brady pointed out that "This puts the human touch back into the procedure."

DONALD MARCUS, the head counselor, emphasized that the students "must bring their yellow program card when they come to register." He stated that, no duplicates can be given out, and a student must have one to register. Marcus also told The Guardsman that students may come and register any time after their registration date.

Students will again be let in on an hourly basis, but without the long lines and the hours of delay. Marcus stated that, "There should be a lot less confusion and waiting."—P. B.

Antigone Tonight

Anouilh's tragic drama Antigone opens a four-night run tonight through Saturday in the Little Theater at 8 p.m.

Antigone is based on the Greek tradegy by Sophicles and was re-written in contemporary dialogue by Anouilh in 1944.

Cinefusion, a combination of movie, television, projections, and live acting, will bring the Antigone story right into 1968. Commentators and analysts will broadcast the latest play events on television while movie clips will bring off-stage action right into the live theater.

Veteran performer Richard Vinson plays Creon to Linda Susoeff's Antigone and Barbara Walzak's Ismene. Also appearing in the cast are Henry Coleman, Alex Bustamonte, and David Wilson as the obedient guards.

The lighting and scenery have been designed to restate in unequivocal modern terms the story of Antigone.

James Haran directs this modernization of the Greek myth.

Admission is free to AS card holders. General admission is $1.00 and 50 cents for outside students.

Council Passes Resolution To Increase Bookstore Inventory

A resolution which will increase the inventory of the bookstore was passed by acclamation by Student Council last Wednesday.

It was introduced by Rodney Fung, a freshman councilman, and it will provide students with such items as food, magazines, records and sports equipment.

Fung pointed out that the California Bookstore already sells some of these items, and it has been successful. He also said that since the bookstore will acquire a new building twice its present size next semester, space will be no problem.

The freshman councilman stated that the purpose of the bookstore was to satisfy the wants, desires and needs of students here at the college as well as to make a big profit from its sales.

Fung also pointed out that the increase in the types and varieties of goods sold will make business between the Associated Students and the California Bookstore more competitive.

In other council action, the course evaluation program was unanimously passed. The proposal was submitted by AS President Ray Bietz. He commented that "We will need the support of the faculty, but mostly the backing of students."

Bietz continued, "The program is a questionnaire for students to rate their instructors."

CEP is designed to give the instructor incentive, as a grade gives a student. Its main objective is to improve the status and abilities of the instructor.—L. L.

Last Day To Take A Leave

Today is the last day for eligible students to file a petition for leave of absence.

Students disqualified in individual courses may not take a leave of absence; however, it is permissible to drop all remaining classes.

According to Mrs. Marietta Settle, assistant registrar at City College, the number of students filing petition for a leave in a typical semester amounts to approximately 13 per cent of the day students and 30 per cent of the night students. When asked how many petitions have been filed so far this semester, she said, "That information will not be available to us until after the deadline tomorrow."

All students wishing to file a petition for a leave of absence must do so immediately. The registrar's office closes at 5:00 p.m.

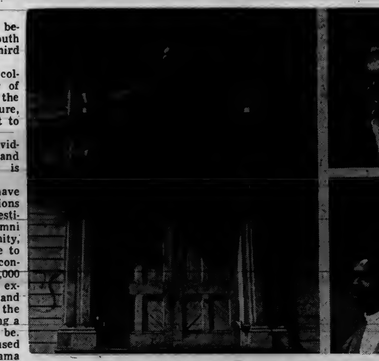
City College Bids On Opera House

By Jerry Fink

City College is negotiating to become the owner of the historic South San Francisco Opera House on Third Street in the Bayview district.

Dr. Walter C. Krumm of the college drama department, initiator of the negotiations, feels that from the historical aspect alone the structure, built in 1888, is worth the effort to preserve it.

With the added attraction of providing more space for the Drama and Music Departments there even is further incentive.



Money for the building will have to be raised through contributions from various sources. With an estimated 100,000 City College alumni members in the immediate vicinity, assistance from them could prove to be invaluable. According to the contractor it could cost between $25,000 and $35,000 to move the building, excluding the price of removing and replacing the power lines along the way. PG&E is presently formulating a rough estimate of what this would be.

THE OPERA HOUSE could be used as a theater for City College drama productions and for concerts as well," said Dr. Krumm. "The theater now in use is a very hectic place. There are many people running around the area of the stage most of the day which makes it almost impossible to work. The added building space would solve numerous problems for us, as well as preserve a historical landmark."

The Opera House, scene of racial disturbances last year, has been used recently as a warehouse, although for a time it provided classrooms for underprivileged children in the area, through the sponsorship of the Economic Opportunity Council.

ROBERT TEALER, former student and now counselor at City College, was one of the teachers who participated in the program. "It was really worthwhile," said Tealer, "but when government funds ran out the whole program had to close down."

Presently, a group of 12 Negro adults, who call themselves the San Francisco Youth Organizers, have a six-month lease on the building which will run out in October. They also KRUMM, JOHNSON—Same building, different plans.

—Guardsman photos by Gavin L. Watt

are very enthusiastic about the ancient structure.

City College and the Youth Organizers are engaged in a friendly competition for the House. The Youth Organizers hope to see the Opera House remain at its present location.

DAVID JOHNSON, spokesman for the group, is well aware of the many problems he and his men face with the building. "We are taking money out of our own pockets to try to fix it up, doing all the work ourselves."

Johnson, as well as Dr. Krumm, feels that the building itself is most important and should be preserved not only for historical purposes but also for its use value.

The Opera House is a large structure, approximately 100 feet in depth, 30 feet high and about 35 feet wide. This is the building housing the audiitorium, the only structure Dr. Krumm is interested in, not an adjoining building which houses the offices, cafeteria, and two Gold Rooms. The Gold Rooms are approximately 15 by 20 feet each, with gold painted walls, gold carpeting, and a podium.

MAYOR JOSEPH L. ALIOTO has asked his Special Projects Committee for $6500 in private funds to assist the Organizers. Hadley Roff, the mayor's confidential secretary, thought last week that Alioto was unaware of City College's attempts to move the building.

Dr. Krumm, who is also interested in the problems of the Hunters Point district and is in agreement that a program such as the Organizers have presented is essential and must be given every opportunity to succeed, hopes some kind of compromise may be reached whereby all concerned will have mutual satisfaction. He has contacted Johnson, expressing his sentiments, wishing him the best of luck in the project.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of City College of San Francisco
ED HOLMES, Editor

Vol. 66, No. 11 WEDNESRAY, MAY 15, 1968 Page 2

Council Has Chance To Truly Represent Students

IT WILL COST 25 cents to ride the Muni to and from City College if Dorothy vonBeroldingen, chairman of the San Francisco Board of Supervisor's Finance Committee, has her way.

Members of the Board of Supervisors have access to city-provided limousines. Their perspective on the proposed fare increase will differ from that of the City College student who must depend upon the Muni to get to class.

FORTUNATELY FOR THE STUDENT, the general manager of Public Utilities Commission, James K. Carr, has not been stampeded by Supervisor vonBeroldingen into an immediate increase.

He has, however, called for a full public hearing on fares, to be held May 28, at 2 p.m.

Earlier this semester, a Student Council committee headed by Derrick Quan made an exhaustive study of the Muni as it pertains to this campus.

Representatives met with members of the Public Utilities Commission and reduced rates for City College student were discussed.

WE HOPE COUNCIL will follow up this fine start by appointing an articulate, well-informed member of that committee to represent City College at General Manager Carr's meeting next week.

Labelled And Recorded

Reviews Of New LP Releases

by Martin J. Arbunich

FOR WHAT IT'S WORTH:

SIMON & GARFUNKEL—Bookends (Colmbia-LP 9529): S&G are infallable when it comes to producing quality music. Paul Simon's lyrics accompany the LP—his words are expressive and inspiring and are sung with the innocence and elegance of the duo. Includes their last four hit singles, the beautiful America, etc. A real gem.

STEPPENWOLF — Steppenwolf (Dunhill-LP 50029): Formerly known as the Sparrow, they're one of the best rock groups on the scene today. An outstanding first effort. They boast an excellent guitarist and strong vocals—overall a very tight, full sound. The Pusher, Hootchie Kootchie Man and Born To Be Wild are especially well recorded. Excellent original material.

SAVAGE RESURRECTION — The Savage Resurrection (Merc.-SR 61156): The first release for this local quintet with a peculiar double lead guitar setup. Vocals are mediocre, the recording process itself occasionally unprofessional. All tunes originals. Interesting item for guitar freaks but, as a whole, doesn't succeed.

JAMES COTTON BLUES BAND—Pure Cotton (Verve-LP 3038): With this LP Cotton's band lives up to what they claim to be: a real blues hand. This one gets more into the blues thing than his first, but he still has trouble keeping the quality consistent. Most cuts are well put together with some outstanding piano and, of course, harp by Cotton. The Creeper is a typical stage number and a very groovy instrumental piece while Somethin' You Got and the Red Riding Hood' number make the LP tedious. Quality, however, has the upper hand on this recording.

ERIC BURDON & THE ANIMALS —The Twain Shall Meet (MGM-LP 4537): Aimed in the same direction as his Winds Of Change, this one is much better. Burdon really gets involved in experimenting and mood setting through phasing, intentional distortion, echoes, etc. Includes the groovy instrumental We Love You Lil, Monterey, Sky Pilot and a very freaky Closer To The Truth. A fantastic, moving creation.

THE NICE—Thoughts Of Emerlist Davjack (Immediate-z12520O4): English quartet with brilliant organist and promising guitarist. Two neat instrumentals in Rondo and War And Peace but rest of material is either too commercial or is rendered horrible vocal treatment. Keyboard is the highlight here.

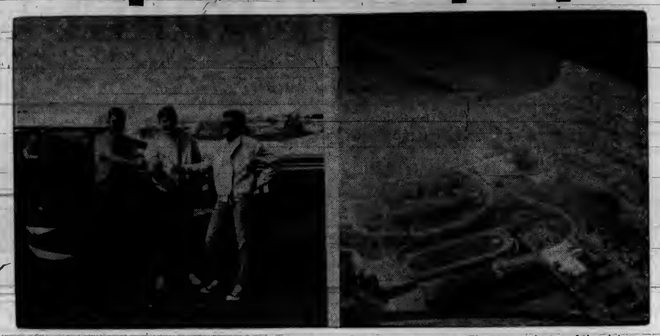
BARRY GOLDBERG REUNION — There's No Hole In My Soul (Buddah-LP 5012): Goldberg's organ and the dominant guitar of Harvey Mandel features heavily on this split blues/rock LP. Interesting rendition of Beatles' Fool On The Hill with Mandel's wahwah pedal fading in and out. Despite the rather illustrious personnel, this album is only so-so lined up next to their Charley Musselwhite record. Nonetheless both Goldberg and Mandel get more than their usual workout on this one.

DAVID BLUE—These 23 Days In September (Reprise-LP 6296): If we were to dismiss the fact that Bob Dylan exists, Blue would probably be called a major lyricist with this record. But then if there were no Dylan, Blue himself would have probably dismissed writing/singing. The coincidence is that Blue's writing and singing is patterned after Dylan. On the bright side, however, even Donovan started out that way. Taking the album for what it is, though, Blue does have some good songs (title song, Grand Hotel, etc.) but his voice is still so unsure, so virgin. Unfortunately this is a premature recording.

BUDDY GUG—A Man & The Blues (Vanguard-LP 9272): Buddy Guy is probably the most important young Negro bluesman of the future, but this album is evidence that blues matures with age and experience. Guy is a blues musician, a great blues guitarist in fact—but not a seasoned blues singer. The horns are lifeless but Otis Spann's piano mixes nicely with Guy's guitar: It's an uninspiring first album for Guy; surely better ones are apt to follow.

Guardsman Staff — Spring 1968

(Official newspaper of City College of San Francisco, published each Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacations, by students in the journalism-newspaper production department of City College of San Francisco. Editorial office, 304, Science Hall; telephone 587-7272, extension 246.)



EDITOR IN CHIEF ..... ED HOLMES
Managing Editor ..... Martin J. Arbunich
Feature Editor ..... Tom Graham
Staff Editor ..... Barbara Hamann
News Editor ..... Doug Boston
Sports Editor ..... Mike Duggan
Editorial Assistant ..... D. K. Dorn
Circulation Manager ..... Arthur Fanfelle

Reporters: David Albertson, John Benderitis, Penny Blum, Lani Brand, Rita Carroll, Jerry D. Fink, Randy Flynn, Ed Jamison, Dennis Klein, Ricky Valdeano, Sharon Roberts, Lynda Sandstrom, Gavin L. Watt.

Cub Reporters: Garret Duncan, Willy Durkin, Lawrence Ferrari, Michael J. Flynn, Lavine-Lee, Rita Quong, Leonard Ribeiro, Carol Roehl, Pam Tomasello, James Baggett, James Billbury.

Photographers: Dawn Turner, Chief; Garth Ogle, Nathaniel Dodge, Carol Gilmore, Herbert Gong, Steve Graham, Fred Harris, Jerry Jew, James McElery, Doug Mills, Robert Morris, Jens Pretze, Mike Reams, Larry Tiscornia, Melvin Weiner and Samuel Woo.

Fly The Friendly Sky

MOMENTS BEFORE FLIGHT, Ed Holmes, pilot, Ed Murtha and Mike Duggan gave the thumbs up sign (left picture). During the flight Mike Duggan took this picture of the campus grounds. The blur at the top of the picture is the wing of the plane (right picture). —Guardsman photos by Larry Murtha and Mike Duggan

By Tom Graham

Four City College students were higher than kites Thursday before last for approximately 60 minutes, which might he classified as a short trip.

The crew included Pilot (Easy) Ed Holmes, editor-in-chief of The Guardsman, Mike Duggan, sports editor, Larry (Larry) Murtha, business major, and his brother (Fast Eddie) Ed Murtha, accounting major.

The three fledglings flipped a coin and the odd man sat in the front seat; 'Easy' Ed's position was never in question, however. Oh, the odd man, by the way, was Larry 'Larry' Murtha.

The flight was promoted by 'Mick,' Larry, 'Larry' and 'Fast Eddie' after they discovered that 'Easy' Ed was a licensed pilot. 'Easy' has 2000 flight hours and received his pilot training in the Navy from 1956 to 1965. He is a member of Tanecho Flying Club, which enables bim to fly as often as he wants or can afford, as the case may be—it's $15 an hour. The flight began and ended at San Carlos County airport.

After his service, 'Easy' decided to enroll at City College to further his education; he will graduate this semester with 62 units.

The plane was a Cessna 172, which is capahle of flying at a speed of 180 mpb, but 'Easy' Ed's top speed was 165 mph (largely due to faint cries of "Take it easy, 'Easy'.")

ANOTHER MEMBER of the crew, 'Mick' Duggan, had this to say about the flight: "I was scared at first, but 'Easy' put me at ease." According to 'Easy' Ed, 'Mick,' who was the most nervous of the three (having flown only once before), mentioned that the people looked like ants. 'Easy' replied, "They are ants; we're still on the ground."

'I nominate 'Easy' Ed Holmes for 1968 pilot of the year. His skill is unsurpassed in aviation circles today," added 'Fast Eddie' with a smile.

City College was one of the spots on the flight-seeing agenda, which took in practically the whole Bay Area. There were complaints received from Bay Area residents about sonic vibrations which shook windows and caused hric-a-hrac to fall, hut Ed swears that he only went 165 mph top, whicb is only a few digits short of Mach 2.

AS ONE STUDENT put it so aptly while watching the aircraft from the ground disappear behind a cloud: "'Easy' Ed is out of sight."

'Fast Eddie' fell out of a parked car two days after his flight, the other members of the crew are being carefully studied for other adverse effects that may be directly related to the fantastic journey.

Dean Jim Wyatt Accepts Position At Canada College

A position as Dean of Men at a new Bay Area college was too tempting for Jim Wyatt, assistant dean of student activities, who will be leaving here for his new joh in June.

The change is viewed with mixed emotions by Wyatt, who is both happy because of the new position, which will offer a wider range of responsihility, hut is reluctant to leave City College: "It's heen wonderful working here and it's hard to leave people you respect."

His new position will be Dean of Men at Cañada College, a new two-year college in San Mateo County, with a starting enrollment of about 2000 students.

Wyatt served two years here as student government adviser, followed by two years as assistant dean of student activities. He is also a former City College student and captained the track team. He previously held the conference record in the half mile (1:57), and his name is in the College Sport's Hall of Fame.

After his student days here, Wyatt went on to graduate from the University of California and then taught 13 years at Abraham Lincoln High School. Besides teaching social studies and physical education, he also served as track coacb and counselor at various times.

Wyatt has worked closely with students for much of his career and looks forward to continuing this relationship with students in his new position. "It gets hectic sometimes, but I still have enthusiasm and find it satisfying."

Student Viet War Veterans Speak Out Against Dissent

By Dennis Klein/Lynda Sandstrom

Current world problems center today over the conflict in Vietnam. Dissent on American college campuses has created quite a fervor among the American people.

The following is an account of how Vietnam War veterans on this campus feel about student dissent.

Dave Albertson, a former Marine, feels that "draft dissenters on campus put on a better show than Bob Hope." "It always takes people like this to spoil the integrity of a country like the United States." He went on to say that "people of this quality are about as unpatriotic as Rasputin." When asked about his major, Albertson stated that his major is girls.

ANOTHER VIETNAM veteran, Russel Nauta, a history major and a member of the Milltary Order of the Purple Heart of the United States of America Inc., had no comment about student dissent on campus, but stated that he is for the Vietnam War because be worked with the Vietnamese and knows them well. He had a close contact with Vietnamese children and is able to sympathize with them. Russel was in the Army and served in the village of Tay Ninh.

Ed Lauer, a history major, and Ed Follows, a general education major, combined their ideas when approached with the subject of student dissent on campus. Both veterans firmly disagree with student dissent on campus. They feel that the image of the American troops in Vietnam is discreditiog and one-sided. "Books on Vietnam take only bad pictures, and don't give a true-to-life account of what really happens in Vietnam. American troops are always being looked down upon, while the Vietnamese are looked upon with sympathy."

THE VETERANS FEEL that the whole concept of tbe American attitude towards the troops is one of disgust. "When veterans return home to this country, they are laughed at everywbere they go and they aren't able to get johs easily." They went on to say, "our image is that of hahy killers because we are being faithful to our country."

They feel that nobody has the right to condemn American troops or say that the war is wrong if they haven't experienced war or the horror that is inflicted by war.

A Swingin' Chick

HAVE YOU EVER flipped over a girl? Reggie Baumgardner did when Wendy Chong, known as "Wednesday" by her fellow classmates, demonstrated that women can throw a lot of weight around too. The petite criminology major is one of four women presently enrolled in the self defense class which meets every Tuesday and Thursday in the men's gym. An additional class meets on Fridays. Under the heading of Criminology 55, self defense is taught by Peter Gardner, a former San Francisco police sergeant. Gardner's instruction includes the techniques in protection against persons armed with deadly weapons and demonstrations and drills in various defensive holds. These same type tactics are used at the San Francisco Police Academy. Not to be confused with judo or karate, the one unit course is open to non-criminology majors as well. So girls, sign up next term for self defense and—sock-it-to-'em. —Guardsman photo by Doug Mills

SHOOTIN' IT

by D. K. Dorn

LOVE in "The Bed"; When you get fed up with too much involvement in the scene game, two flicks currently at the Surf Theater can help in bringing back some good type feelings. Even if psycbic first aid isn't necessary, John Korty's "Funnyman" and James Broughton's "The Bed" are good entertainment.

"Funnyman" is about a member of the satirical North Beach club of satire, The Committee. It's played hy a member of the satirical North Beach club of satire, The Committee who wanders around the city after he hreaks up from a three-year affair.

"GAWD, living in sin really tires a guy," he moans.

After running the gauntlet of writing ads, he falls on his face when his project flops at the Committee theater. The flick ends on a fine note as he runs off to Bolinas for rest and ends up with a perspective on life.

Locally made with local people, "Funnyman" is roughly similar to "The Graduate," hut 'Funnyman' is so much more an honest film that it ain't funny.

"The Bed" on the other band, is a beautiful fantasy by a San Francisco poet of some note, James Broughton. An ornate antique bed decends into green valley, and a series of naked people appear in and around it. A busby and hearded Pan playing a saxophone appears every so often among the nude couples, Zen philosopher Alan Watts as a doctor-priest who administers last rites to astrologer Chester Gavin Arthur II, a mother giving hirth, a little man who squeezes sponges on a hefty Spade chick and dog as of legs sticking out of the bed. There is a long haired lad seduced by a wildly painted chick, a fat old man who is chased off by another chick dressed as a horse another girl who rides off into the dawn on a jet black stallion, a series of bridesmaids and wedding guest types and a ghostly woman admiring a spider. The director even appears with some shockingly naked snakes.

The beauty of "The Bed" is that it's all so innocent and wise. United Nations, peace conferences and youth corps included, beds are the only place that Mankind ever gets together and loves one another. People spend something like two-thirds of their lives in bed. You're born in bed, and will probably die there.

• • •

NEW COLOR: This column lauds Free Critic's Dennis Mundt and Judy Rothermill for adding the new newsstands to the campus. The stands are an artistic endeavor which this illustrious paper hasn't accomplished yet. The stand by the information booth in Science Building is the most noteworthy. The Critic may sponsor a contest to guess what "CE" stands for on that stand. The winner should receive a free kitten or something.

• • •

SPONGE STRIKES: This column was somewhat dubious with Labelled and Recorded's tirade against Dr. John, the night tripper, in last week's column. Martin J. deemed the actor "phony, and nauseating," and a "typical middle class cancasian..." Our reviewer seemed to expect an evening of real voodoo. Dr. J. is a put on, bnt no more a harmless and entertaining phony than any other charlatan. In this day and age, even a little corn is a welcome relief. But then Martin lives in fear that "The Sponge" lurks in the Science Hall basement closet that has a "The Sponge Strikes Again" sticker on it.

• • •

RIDING THE RAILS: Those new red car tickets are the work of Muni's new General Manager John M. Woods who designed them to thwart kids who got 11 and 12 rides out of the ten-punch tickets. Also, the old blue uniforms of Muni men will be phased out over a year's time. Now Muni men will have their duds provided for them by the city fathers.

• • •

FREE SOUNDS: The Haight Ashbury Medical Clinic is sponsoring free concerts for free people in Civic Center Plaza now. They hope to move to Speedway Meadows (or at least somewhere in the Park in a couple weeks. The show starts at noon on Snndays and runs 'til five o'clock. Last week Kaleidoscope headlined the events. It costs about $150 a concert for publicity and PA rentals, so they need donations, if you dig donating.

Bombs Away

Unidentified Caller Warns College Of Dynamite Threat

By Martin J. Arbunich

The occasion could accurately be labelled "bombs away" last Tuesday evening when an anonymous male voice telephoned the registrar's office here that City College was to be the target of a premeditated dynamiting by another man, also unidentified.

The incident turned out to be either a prankster's "scare" or possibly a postponement of the transgressor's psychotic stunt. Fortunately the bomh was not set off.

At approximately 6:35 p.m. that evening, George Stewart, acting registrar of the evening session, received a phone call which led to the necessary evacuation of the entire body of 2000 students, faculty and administrators from classes and offices throughout the campus.

"WHO IS THIS," the caller whispered to Stewart at the beginning of the brief but eventful conversation.

Identifying himself as an administrator, Stewart was shocked at the caller's words of warning. "I only have a few seconds," the man said, "but it's dynamite... I think he's going to put some bombs out there."

Before Stewart could make a response to the startling message, the anonymous caller hung up after saying that he would "try to call back." He never did.

Taking all precautions, Stewart telephoned Ingleside Police Station where Officer Saul Weiner and bis men responded to the emergency immediately.

"We used the PA system to get most of the people out," Stewart said. Hbwever, Weiner and his men, the Campus Police officers then on duty and the non-uniformed officers in James Foley's evening Criminology class still made a thorougb room-by-room search of the entire campus for stragglers and a possible homh. No such explosive has been discovered to date.

ACCORDING TO Stewart, the evacuation procedures were completed hy 7:15 p.m., 40 minutes after the call.

The news of the "bomh scare" didn't reach the gyms, however, until 7:45 p.m. when the college's intramural basketball squads were in the thick of battle.

Most of the players figured the "scare" a joke, hut, nonetheless, all games were postponed. Teams, as in the case of The Guardsman and Phi Beta Delta Fraternity, were accusing each other of the prank call for reasons of cowardice.

PETE CORDELLOS, the equipment manager, humored that the incident seemed to be "a typical desire of cowardly retreat hy The Guardsman team." G'man pilot Mike Duggan naturely denied the validity of the "absurd accusation."

"Why can't these things happen during the day?" a somewhat disappointed day-session student sobbed, his head hanging dispondently.

"Because during the day," another subtly responded, "the lines are always busy!"

Last Week's AGS Bowl Praised By President; Project Will Continue

A college bowl, sponsored hy the Alpha Gamma Sigma Honor Society and patterned after the General Electric College Bowl, was held here on campus last week.

The bowl was composed of eight members set either the English, History, or Science Departments at City College.

Phil Witkower, president of the AGS, reported on the event and hopes that the college bowl can continue next semester. He stated that he has the classroom space and the equipment to continue next Spring.

Witkower praised the work of Mark Sapiro, instructor in the Electronics Department, who was responsible for the creation of the equipment used to operate the college bowl, similar to that of the G-E College Bowl.

Witkower also commended the work of Bert Thompson, of the English Department, who was the coordinator for activities from that department.

He said he hopes to include teachers and other two-year colleges next semester. Auditions will be held then, and students with a grade point average of better than 2.5 stand a good chance of being accepted, according to Witkower.

Students interested should contact either Wallace Wells in S-140 or Witkower, by calling 566-9073.

Revolution And Restoration Talk At CH Tomorrow

Cultural and political revolution in China, and cultural restoration in Formosa, will be topics of a lecture to be given tomorrow in the little theater during College Hour, by Dr. Tinn-Hugh Yu, president of the Institute of Sino-American studies.

Dr. Yu received an LL.B. from Valparaiso University, a B.A. from the University of Maine, and an M.A. and Ph.D. from Clark University.

He has spent 30 years in China, in such various positions as professor of economics, sociology, and law, in Chinese universities, as well as practicing law in Peking.

HE ALSO HELD various advisory positions in the government and found time to serve as publisher and editor of several dailies and magazines.

After returning to America in 1950, he soon founded the Institute of Sino-American Studies, whose objective is the study of both Chinese and American cultures and institutions, by both peoples, to further mutual understanding. Yu has stated that "if these two great nations could sincerely and effectively maintain the peace of the world, there is no doubt that all humanity would be profited."

Yu has been managing editor and columnist of the Chinese World, and many of his own hooks have been published in hoth languages.

The lecture is being sponsored hy the International Students for Social Action and no AS card is required.

Contact Lens:

What's Your Reaction To The Statler Wing Situation?

WONG

Cheryl Wong, general education major

I don't go in alone—I'd rather wait for someone to go in with me. Statler Wing is too conjested. You can hardly get in at times. Big groups seem to clutter right around the doors or in the aisles. Since there are no more cops controlling the flow of traffic it becomes more conjested. The service is quite good. I don't mind the card games. I think the kids should have someplace to go and relax.

COURTER

Wilkie Courter, general education major

Statler Wing is a cesspool of idle minds. The intellectual productivity is nil. As far as I'm concerned, Statler Wing should be abolished and this space could be used for classrooms. Statler Wing represents the high school in City College. It seems to me that if students spent half as much time studying as they do playing cards the probation list would decrease. It would be a good place if students knew how to use it, but unfortunately it is used as an escape from the academic reality.

Ray Bietz, political science major

I like Statler Wing. I feel that it's a place to eat, have coffee and talk with your friends. Statler Wing has taken over as a—well, sort of a—Student Union. The only thing I don't approve of is the card playing. If students have to play cards then they should wait until night. If they got rid of the card playing in Statler Wing it would be a much hetter place to go.

BIETZ

Jay Larson, business major

I don't know. Well—it's a place where everyone can go to relax. I go there to meet my friends. It's really a good place to talk and play cards. Yeah, I play cards in Statler Wing. You don't study there although I've seen people studying. I guess they can if they're not distracted too much. Smith Hall is where they go to eat, not Statler Wing. But—I don't eat lunch here anyway.

LARSON

Compiled by Barbara Hamann, photos by Doug Mills

Final Choice '68 Stats Compiled; Local, National Results Similar

Time Magazine, which sponsored the Choice '68, has tabulated the poll's final results, with City College students varying only slightly from the national results. There were 1228 (10.7 per cent) City students that voted. Along with this college, there were over 1200 other colleges and universities participating. Choice '68 was organized on this campus by the Phi Beta Rho sorority.

The first choice results were as follows:

	CCSF	National
Kennedy	32%	21%
McCarthy	30%	26%
Rockefeller	10%
Nixon		19%

There was a slight variation in second choice:

	CCSF	National
McCarthy	28%	22%
Kennedy	24%	18%
Rockefeller	15%	17%

The students also voted on three national issues; military action in Vietnam, bombing policy in Vietnam, and the urhan crisis. The results were as follows:

MILITARY ACTION
	Reduction	Withdrawal	All Out
City College	50%	26%	11%
National	45%	18%	21%

BOMBING
	Cessation	Suspension	Intensify
City College	42%	30%	13%
National	29%	29%	26%

URBAN CRISIS
	Job Education	Training	Riot Control
City College	43%	37%	10%
National	40%	38%	12%

wiseacre: expression

by Dave Albertson

EXPRESSION may be the key to unlocking the answer to questions you've been asking yourself lately.

Did you ever wonder if your zoology teacher was really full of balony? Don't be afraid to express yourself and tell him how you feel.

You might get an F, but at least you'll have the concrete spiritual satisfaction of knowing the truth. Besides, you might even find out he's really full of salami.

It won't hurt to express your feelings; after all it's only your opinion.

DICK GREGORY recently told an audience at City College, "We are tired of the games this country plays." If you're tired of playing games with people, try expressing your views to someone else about it. Gregory seems to be enlightening numhers of people by merely expressing his views.

Can you picture LBJ telling Mao-Tse-Tung to go to hell without collecting $200 on the way pass go? Maybe this country needs someone who isn't afraid to express his true feeling no matter what the consequences.

On campus, Brown Miller's Communications G6 classes are currently aiding students in the exercise of free expression.

Miller encourages student interest toward expression by having tests and essays orientated toward student interest. He once gave a midtern consisting of the student's ironical interpretation of The Grateful Dead. He also encourages students to speak out and interrupt him whenever they get an idea. The reason for this is that they might forget what their brilliant hrainstorm was by the time the teacher is through talking.

Expression can he used as a tool for greater learning in the classroom as well as a weapon against those cold cruel people you sometimes come up against.

RAY BIETZ CAME up with a great idea for expression in the Course Evaluation Program. This was a big opportunity for students to express their opinions and tell teachers what they think of them.

Of course there are always those who are afraid to stick their necks out.

You might be telling yourself, "I can't say anything because my views just wouldn't coincide with the establishment."

Socrates teachings were opposed by a majority of people of his time. Abraham Lincoln's views on slavery were blackballed by a number of people during his era.

The Free Critic is currently meeting a lot of static because of its free view policy. Is there any speck of human progress which has come about without disagreement with a majority attitude or belief?

Education began with the first person who just wanted to express himself to others.

THERE ARE ALWAYS the uptight people who are infuriated by an idea they don't agree with. Do you really care what the "narrow-minded" minority or majority thinks of you? If you do you may as well keep listening to the uptights and keep your mouth shut and your brain limping.

Congratulations are due to those of you who have decided to escape from your prison of fear and start expressing yourself to others.

Recruiters Seek Job Applicants

Fifty employers from the five San Francisco Bay Area counties and over 200 City College students will participate in the 13th annual Engineering Business Recruitment Day in Smith Hall today.

The job fair will bring together City College graduates and prospective employers for a full day of personal interviews. The program was initiated by the college to better assist with potential job opportunities for graduating students.

Sophomore Ball Set For Friday At St. Francis

The Sophomore Ball which climaxes this year's Sophomore Scholarship Drive with the announcement of the Sophomore King and Queen will be held this Friday evening, 9 p.m. to midnight, at the St. Francis Hotel.

The ball is a semesterly project sponsored by the Sophomore Class.

"Two years ago $1500 was raised. Last year the figure dropped to $400. The amount of money put into the scholarship fund depends on the participants in the king and queen contest," states Bill McQuaid, sopbomore class president.

The contest and scholarship drive has been in progress for three weeks with eight queen candidates and three king candidates presently competing. First prize in the contest is an all-expense-paid trip for four to Disneyland—the king and queen each receiving a trip for two. "At the present time it's impossible to tell how much money has been collected. That's a well kept secret of each candidate," McQuaid said.

Each year the funds raised by this drive are divided equally into various scholarships and presented to graduates of merit.

Diederichsen's Netters Capture League Title; White, Wong Pace Win

By Ed Jimison

Not satisfied in having tied Merritt for the regular season crown the City College netters outpaced the other league teams at Chabot May 3 and 4 to win the Golden Gate Conference Tournament championships.

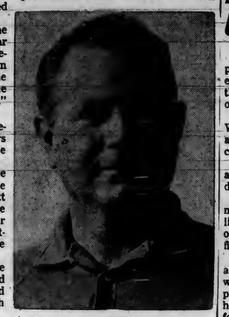
How were they able to do it? George Ponticoff, who led our 1965 team to victory at the championships, watches and works with this year's team and is certainly qualified to know.

Ponticoff speaks for about everyone when he says that the biggest star on the team is Ram Coach Roy Diederichsen. No mean athlete in his own heyday Diederichsen "puts in the time, helps the team. He's a fine coach and does a wonderful job," Ponticoff states.

IT'S THE guiding hand of Diederichsen that turns rough amateurs like David Lei into ace netters like Chuck White.

In the singles championships White made every turn but the last one losing only to Foothill's Mark Elliott in the finals, 6-2, 6-2. In doubles, he joined with John Wong and together they licked the platter clean, defeating Elliott and Craig Parker in the finals, 7-5, 6-3.

Wong, for his part, reached the quarter-finals in the singles but had his perfect (24-0) record blemished when he lost to Elliott in three rough sets, 6-0, 2-6, 6-0.



GEORGE ZOUL teamed up with bony Tony Lee to bring in three all-important games before losing 6-4, 6-2 to ever-present Elliott and his partner.

White took care of Tim Hassler of runner-up Merritt in the singles quarterfinals, 6-1, 6-3 and then Chabot's Ron McPherson, 6-3, 6-2 to make it to the finals against Elliott.

In doubles quarterfinals White and Wong started off with a 6-1, 6-2 win over San Jose's Ron Lowe and Gary Hasselblad and then won over Chabot's McPherson and Tim Discher, 6-2, 6-0 to reach the doubles finals.

The final team scores for the conference meet with final dual meet records were: San Francisco (6-1) 16, Merritt (6-1) 14, Chabot (3-4) 13, Foothill (5-2) 11, San Mateo (5-2) 6, Diablo Valley (1-6) 5, San Jose (2-5) 2, and Contra Costa (0-7) 0.

The state championship tourney will be held this Friday and Saturday at Grossmont College.

COACH ROY DIEDERICHSEN
—Guardsman photo by Gary Lee

Block SF Dinner Will Salute Championship Teams, New Members

The Block SF Society will hold a dinner in Smith Hall on Monday, May 27, to welcome its 60 new members and honor the most valuable players of this Spring and the championship tennis and basketball teams.

Presently, the society doesn't have a president due to the fact that the former president, Jesse Figueroa, took a leave of absence.

Guest speakers at the dinner will include Dr. Louis G. Conlan, vice president, and Dr. Harry R. Buttimer, co-ordinator of educational management. Dr. Buttimer will speak on the "Future of the Campus."

Signups

FOOTBALL—Anyone interested in playing football here next term, sign up immediately with Coach Dutch Elston in the men's gym. An important football meeting will be held tomorrow at 2 p.m. in the men's gym (room 107).

WATER POLO—City College will field its first ever water polo team next year. Anyone interested in participating, contact Coach Curt Decker in the men's gym before May 31.

Local Nine Racks Up Pair Of Wins

Pitcher John Portoni's ten-strikeout performance paced the Ram baseballers to two consecutive victories during the week, defeating Diablo Valley 8-6 on May 7, and Merritt 6-5 on May 2.

In the Diablo Valley game, Odel Williams went three-four at the plate, all of them singles. Going into the contest, Williams was battting .348.

Jeff Smith was two-for-four. He had a two-run homer in the fifth and a double in the eighth.

The game saw the Rams collect nine hits while Diablo Valley was limited to five as Joe Dutto struck out six, making his record six wins, five losses for the season.

THE RAMS won the ten-inning affair with the Merritt Thunderbirds with Portoni winning the ball game, pitching the entire ten innings and helping himself at the plate, going four-for-four.

Portoni collected four singles and a sacrifice. He also pitched one of his finer games of the year, as he struck out ten and walked only one.

Portoni allowed only three earned runs and ten hits, none of them extra base hits.

The visiting Rams scored first. In the top of the first Williams' sharp grounder was bobbled by the T-Birds' second baseman, Jeff Barker grounded out to advance Williams to second.

Chuck Gretton, the Rams' first sacker, batting .342, singled. Tom Mayfield walked, Manny Berrios was struck by a pitch, filling Williams from third. Clayton then followed with a walk scoring Gretton.

Merritt scored in the bottom of the second. The T-Birds' single run came as a result of two singles and a walk.

The Rams added another run in the fourth as with Tilly on second, Williams singled to score Tilly.

THE LEAD was good enough until the bottom of the fifth when Merritt exploded for four runs as they sent eight men to the plate.

Trailing 5-4 in the sixth the Rams rallied for a run as with two out Portoni singled and lead-off batter, Williams, smashed the only extra-base hit of the game, a stinging double, driving in Portoni.

The game remained even until the top of the tenth, as Berrios led off the inning and reached first on an error.

Pinch hitter, Dave Kline, sacrificed Berrios to second. Tilly grounded out and Portoni singled, scoring Berrios for the winning run.—A. F.

RAMBLINGS

'Residence' Drowns Chabot Swimmers

By Mike Duggan

CHABOT'S swimming team, runner-up to perennial champ Foothill in the recent Golden Gate Conference championship meet, has forfeited five places from that meet and two earlier dual meets against DeAnza and San Joaquin Delta. The reason, according to Chabot Athletic Director Ed Hart, was the use of an ineligible swimmer, Joel Wilson.

Wilson failed to meet residence requirements. As a result, Wilson's victories in the championship meet in the 500-yard freestyle, 400-yard individual medley, and 1650-yard freestyle in addition to his part in the meet record 800-yard freestyle relay and a second place 400-yard freestyle relay are all being withdrawn from the books.

MESA JUNIOR College has quite a trio on its track team. A week ago Saturday on San Jose State's new track the threesome performed against some of the best trackmen in the country. 220 man Mike Fray ran 20.2, but lost to the only man in the world who can beat someone who runs 20.2, Tommie Smith.

In the 100 meters, Fray came in third in a photo finish with 60-yard world record holder Billy Gaines (10.2) and San Jose's Ronnie Ray Smith getting the judges votes for first and second respectively.

Mesa's freshman Mac Murro broke his own two-year college javelin mark by over eight feet with a toss of 268-7. Then it was Neville Myton, Mesa's half miler, who took his event in 1:50.1. Myton, a Jamaican like Fray, ran on his country's 1964 Olympic team and at the age of 17 clocked an 800-meter time of 1:47.0.

The highlight of that meet, the San Jose Invitational, however, came in the high jump. In the event, both George Zubrinsky of Santa Clara Youth Village and Darnell Hillman of San Jose State's Frosh cleared 7-0 (later measured at 6-11½). Five weeks ago Hillman's best was 6-5.

The irony of it all is that Hillman is a tall (6-5), thin, 19-year-old student at San Jose State while Zubrinsky is a short (5-9), heavily muscled, 30-year-old sociology teacher at San Jose State.

THOSE AVID Guardsman sports page readers may notice that in comparing the photo of Roy Diederichsen on today's page with the photo that appeared in the October 18 paper last term after Diederichsen's coached soccer teams won number 100 in a row, that our great soccer and tennis coach has aged quite a bit in the span of seven months.

The answer to the puzzle is this. The old mug shot used last October first appeared in The Guardsman on May 3, 1949 and has been used periodically even since then—19 years. Thanks to photographer Gary Lee for bringing a 'new' Diederichsen to The Guardsman sports page.

EIGHT RAM trackmen qualified for the conference meet two weeks ago but did not place in the finals. Their names and their qualifying times are as follows—high hurdlers Craig Johnson (15.7) and Greg Jackson (16.2); intermediate hurdler Floyd Banks (40.6); pole vaulter Forrest Shute (13-0); triple jumpers August Berry (43-1) and Bill Butler (43-1); high jumper Calvin McDonald (6-0) and discus thrower Jim Baldocchi (140-5½). David Jones, who last year ran on two winning relays, finished fourth in the 220 and made the finals in the 440, did not compete due to a leg injury.

Golf Team Defeats Merritt In Final League Encounter; Ends Second In Conference

By Gavin L. Watt

Finishing the season with a win over Merritt College, May 3 at Lake Chabot, the Ram golf team took second place in Golden Gate Conference league play.

San Jose took first place in the league with only one loss for the season. The Rams came in second place with an 11-3 record. San Jose handed the linkers two of their three losses.

Leading the way for the final victory, Stew Whitman fired a 69, taking all six points from Tom Gannon, who had a 73. Doug Boston took 3½ points with a round of 70 from Greg Hood, who also had a 70.

Donn Paulson, with a 72, picked up four points from Randy Gai, who shot a 75. Mike Geveetz took four points from Mike Groseti with a 78. Paul Rea split the points with Leonard Murcussen after shooting a 79.

In the Golden Gate Conference Tournament, Diablo Valley wrapped up first place and a trip to the State Junior College Tournament. San Jose, with the trip already in the bag, took second place in the tournament at Castlewood Country Club, May 6. In the third and fourth places were San Mateo and Foothill respectively. The Rams came in fifth, followed by Chabot and Merritt.

Final Standings

	W	L
San Jose	12	1
San Francisco	11	3
San Mateo	11	3
Chabot	8	6
Diablo Valley	6	6
Merritt	4	10
Foothill	3	11
Contra Costa	0	13

Delta Tops G'man, Wins Club League Intramural Title

Defending champion Phi Delta (10-0) took the Club league intramural basketball title by edging The Guardsman (8-2), 42-38, last Thursday night. The Guardsman led at half, 23-19, but then Delta pulled out and clinched the win on John Casey's two free throws with 30 seconds remaining. The Delts' Bill Litchtenberger and G'man Mike Duggan shared scoring honors with 16 each.

In the other Club league game, the powerful Filippino-American team won by forfeit over the H&R squad.

IN INDEPENDENT league action, the Can't Lasts (9-1) finished in a first place tie with the Red Mountaineers (9-1) by whipping the Celtics, 59-42. The playoff to determine that league's champion was scheduled for last night.

The Revisables won a closely fought battle over the Friendly Bears, 45-42, to end their season on a successful note.

Intramural basketball play was thrown into mass confusion last week with the announcement that the much heralded playoffs will not be held because of a lack of funds. Most of the teams in both the Club and Independent Leagues indicate that they are fed up with the customary unpredictableness of the AMS.

LAST TUESDAY'S games were cancelled when Athletic Director Jack Gaddy was forced to clear both gyms due to the reported bomb planted on the premises.

A week ago Thursday had the Red Mountaineers continuing to lead the Independent competition by defeating the stubborn Blackstone Rangers, 46-43. The winners again being led by the dependable work of Bob Williams and Allen Cowlings. Other action showed that the Mervin Fong-led Revisables trounced the Friendly Bears, 34-23.

The Club League action would have been relatively uneventful if the Chi Rho Delts had not shown up. Their presence on the hard courts, an uncommon occurrence, was marred only by the fact that they lost to the Alpha Epsilons, 60-29. In the other tilt the H&R picked up where the Chi Rho left off, by forfeiting to the Filippino-Americans.

Ram Swimmers End Poor Season

The season has ended for City College team swimmers until next year. Although the Ram team did not do well this year, they have been left with new hopes for next season.

Several Ram swimmers reached their peak at the conference meet by beating their own times for the season. Rich Glass came in eighth in the 100-yard butterfly in 58.9, and pulled an 11th place in the 220-yard butterfly. Dave Nelson took 10th place in the 100-yard backstroke and ninth place in the 200-yard backstroke. Frank Johnson swam the 100-yard butterfly for the first time this year and took 10th place. Jim Vida took 12th place in the 100-yard breaststroke.

Disappointment was in store for the Ram swimmers in the Northern California Conference meet as none of the swimmers placed in any of the events and were, therefore, unable to qualify for the State meet.

"We tried hard and it was a disappointment to the boys and myself that no one qualified for the State meet," commented Coach Curt Decker. The only bright spot is that there are only four members leaving the college next season and there is a prospect of new swimmers, added Decker.—P. T.

Provost, Harris Meet Again At Modesto

By Dave Albertson

Track fans will be watching a familiar rivalry between Ernie Provost and Earl Harris today at Modesto in the Northern California trials.

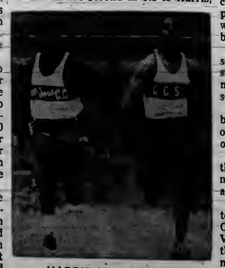
Provost's junior high school year saw him score high in the 1965 state meet placing third in the 100 with a 9.6 and second in the 220 in 21.2. Harold Busby, who is now serving as UCLA's number one sprint star, won both sprints in the 1965 state meet. Busby had a 9.5 for the 100 and tore off a 21 flat in a straightaway 220.

1966 high school track was not so spectacular a season for Provost or Harris of Ayer High School. In the state meet 100 Provost managed to finish fourth with Harris placing behind him in the same heat. The 220 wasn't even that good, with neither Provost nor Harris qualifying in their respective heats. Provost had been hampered by a bad leg during the 1966 season.

THE 1967 Golden Gate Conference championships proved to be a continuation of a growing rivalry between Provost and Harris. Harris managed to win both the sprints with a 9.8 in the 100 and a 21.9 for the 220. Provost placed second in the 100 in 9.9 and second in the 220 with a 22.2.

This season started off with Provost blitzing off a 9.6 time in the 100 against Modesto. Harris came through with a 9.5 later in the season. Harris led the league in the 220 all season with a fastest time of 21.5.

Harris won both sprints in this year's dual meet between City College and San Jose. Provost was slow off the blocks in the 100 after a false start and was second in 9.8 to Harris, who won in 9.7. The 220 was close with Harris first in 21.5 and Provost second in 21.7. Provost did beat Harris, however, on the anchor leg of the 440 relay that day. Provost had taken a handoff from Larry Mosely and started off on the same stride as Harris, and nosed him out at the wire.



PROVOST AND HARRIS faced each other for the last time in Golden Gate competition in the conference championships at San Mateo, May 4. Cold weather prevented lower times from being run.

The 100 saw a repeat of an earlier season mishap. Provost getting a bad start off the blocks after a false start, never caught up to Harris and finished second in 9.8.

Harris was favored to win the 220, but Provost changed that by nosing out Harris in 21.9. Harris was a tenth of a second behind in 22 flat.

Harris and Provost will continue their rivalry in the Northern California finals at Santa Rosa this Saturday at 3 p.m.

Other Rams who will be included in today's trials at Modesto will be Tom Clyburn in the long and high jumps, Vince Ansley and Larry Mosely in the 440, Greg Jackson in the intermediate hurdles and Vic Cary in the half mile. In addition the Rams qualified both their relay teams.

HARRIS AND PROVOST
—Guardsman photo by Mike Reams

Who Cancelled Election Rally?

By Penny Blum

Confusion and disagreement surround the cancellation of last Thursday's Associated Students election rally. There was not only disagreement between both parties, as to the reasons for the cancellation, but also within the USA party itself.

According to Jim Dierke, Associated Men Students president, a meeting was called last Wednesday by Paul Anderson, the election commissioner. Members from both USA and Coalition were there to discuss election matters.

DIERKE STATED that there was a difference of opinion between Anderson and the two parties, as to how many polling areas there will be. The parties wanted more than one polling place, but Anderson thought that one would be sufficient.

Anderson also decided to cancel the election rally that was to be held last Thursday. When Dean Wyatt was asked about it, he stated that, "I was told that the rally was cancelled by mutual agreement of both USA and Coalition."

Dierke stated that Anderson had given him the same reason.

ACCORDING TO OTHER USA members, the rally was cancelled because Mayor Alioto was to attend the ground-breaking ceremonies of the new arts building. The ceremonies have since been put off until May 28. Pat Fiuren, AS vice president, stated that she was informed that the rally was cancelled not only because of the mayor, but also because of the College Hour program.

According to the Coalition party, they were merely informed of the cancellation by Anderson. Derrick Hill, the Coalition candidate for president, stated, "We just heard it was cancelled because of the mayor. We were told that the council and Anderson decided against the rally."

When The Guardsman spoke to him last Thursday, Hill emphasized that the rally was important to both parties. He felt that, "the students should be informed of all the issues."

When Ray Bietz, AS president, was asked to clarify the circumstances of the cancellation, he stated that he knew nothing about it. He said, "The only think I know about the meeting, is that there was some question as to the number of polling booths."

THE GUARDSMAN was unable to reach Anderson, so that he could explain the seeming lack of communication between his position and Coalition.

The effect of the cancellation remains to be seen, but it is anticipated that the voter turnout won't be less than last semester's 1.7 per cent.

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 66 — SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—WEDNESDAY, MAY 22, 1968 — NUMBER 12

Junior College Expansion —$65 Million Bond Issue

By Barbara Hamann

City College has a vested interest in a $65 million state construction bond issue (Proposition 2) which will be used for the expansion of California Junior College facilities if passed on the June 4 state election ballot.

These funds will be distributed by a formula developed by the State Department of Finance. On the basis of past experience it is expected that City College would receive approximately $750,000, with a matching sum to be supplied by the San Francisco Unified School District.

At present there are 67 junior college districts in the state with 81 campuses and nine new campuses are being considered for 1968-69. In addition, considerable construction will be required to provide for regular growth of existing junior colleges.

Unless additional funds become available the capacity of facilities at City College will lag behind the enrollment considerably and will make it impossible to meet the commitment to San Francisco public and private high school graduates and others in the community who want to attend.

CITY COLLEGE'S ENROLLMENT presently exceeds the maximum capacity of its facilities to a considerable extent. It is anticipated that by 1971 enrollment will increase by 3000 or more.

If funds become available through the successful passage of Proposition 2 it will allow start of construction for additional classrooms and laboratories in the present Arts Building.

If Proposition 2 is unsuccessful the construction of additional facilities here will have to be delayed until such time as a bond issue is approved by the local electorate.

Failure to pass Proposition 2 will not only delay construction at City College, but could lead to a return to the situation prior to 1960 in which the only source for junior college construction was the local property tax.

Geneva Ave. Extension

TRAFFIC CONGESTION—on Ocean Avenue near City College will be relieved when the project extending Geneva Avenue is completed early this summer.

The project is being handled by the Flora Crane Service which got the contract from the Department of Public Works of the city and county of San Francisco.

Jack Wood, general superintendent of Flora Crane, stated that his company began the construction on November 29, 1967 and should be finished by the end of June or early July.

The $300,000 venture had to first eliminate several houses which stood in its way before beginning the four-lane road.

The street will have a center divider which will stand about ten feet high at its highest point and be made of concrete. There will be an upper Geneva and a lower Geneva.

Upper Geneva will accommodate traffic going eastward to Mission Street and the freeway and consist of two lanes. Lower Geneva will move traffic westward onto Ocean with its two lanes. The extension of Geneva will be three blocks long, from Ocean to Tara.

The idea of enlarging Geneva Avenue was conceived in the latter part of 1965 and finally designed in January of 1966. The drawings were then approved by Clifford Derka, then head of the Department of Public Works.

—Guardsman photo by Doug Mills

New Registration Plans Proposed For Fall Term

By Randy Flynn

After 16 meetings, a committee comprised of 21 members of the City College administration and faculty have completed a detailed study of registration procedures and have established a hopefully, highly efficient system for the Fall 1968 registration.

The committee, appointed by President Conlan at the beginning of the Spring 1968 semester, was given two essential objectives: 1) to lay out a system that would make it possible for more students to get the courses they need or desire and 2) to develop a procedure that would eliminate the long lines.

In the past, City College has followed the precedent of registering students during the first three days of each semester. However, a steady increase in the number of students registering each term has outdated this system.

Last semester, many students were forced to stand in ridiculously long lines for hours on end, only to find that classes they desired were closed. This situation resulted in many students receiving either part-time programs or in some cases, no programs at all. It was because of this situation that President Conlan established the committee which has since organized the "new registration."

In anticipation of an enrollment of well over 10,000 students, the committee decided to pre-register all students in semiprofessional and technical fields since the courses they will require are in little demand by the rest of the student body.

The procedure for semiprofessional and technical students is as follows: 1) Students are programmed by advisers during the spring semester. 2) Students return programs between August 6 and 19, 1968. 3) Programs are printed by computer and mailed to students. 4) Students return with programs on August 15 or 16 and complete registration in Smith Hall.

Pre-registry students will not be required to return their programs in person (2), as programming for this group will be handled by computers. A parent or friend may return the program if so desired.

All students not being pre-registered will register according to the following procedure: 1) Students will be programmed by their counselors during the spring or summer and will be assigned a date and time to register in August. 2) Students will return on date and time specified to register.

The registration period will include two weekends which will give department chairmen and counselors time to adjust course offerings. By being able to see what courses are more and less in demand, less popular classes can be dropped and replaced by more popular ones.

By registering only 1200 students per days (as compared with at least 3000 in the past), the lines will be very small and more time will be available to cope with any problems.

"No matter how you look at it," said Dean John J. Brady, coordinator of student welfare and chairman of the committee, "registration is a tedious task."

Elections Today, Tomorrow

Coalition, USA Parties Battle For AS Offices

Elections for Associated Students offices begin today and will continue through tomorrow. United Students for Action (USA) and COALITION are putting up candidates for these offices.

Sophomore President and Student Council member Bill McQuaid (USA), and Derrick Hill (COALITION) will be "battling" it out for the president's office. For the office of vice president, the current Associated Women Students president, Shirley Brown, will be running unopposed. Also running unopposed are Lorraine Fong (USA) for AWS president and Rosa Perez (USA) for soph president. For freshman president, it will be Tony Klemens (USA) and Maurice Parker (Coalition).

Elections for Associated Student president and 19 additional AS positions will be held today and tomorrow with voting open to all students with registration cards. The sole polling place, outdoors, will be located in the plaza between the Science Building and Cloud Hall.

USA's platform will include these five items, as well as others; expanding library facilities with modern private study rooms and increased research materials, increasing the current loan fund of $1000 to a more substantial sum, expanding the course evaluation program, and increasing the bookstore inventory.

Coalition's platform will include these among others: getting equal job and housing opportunities for all people, obtaining more minority instructors, getting teachers' aides, and "putting AS funds into better things."

USA's McQuaid says that one of the major goals of the USA party next semester will be to get more student representation on faculty and administrative committees. "Students should have more say in determining their own affairs, and only through the better links of communication that will result from establishing these committees can City College be a progressive minded institution," stated the current sophomore president.

He continued on by saying that his party feels that this campus should be more student oriented, but since students are in college to learn, the administrative side of the college should be left to the administration so long as the voice of the student is heard and heeded.

According to Hill, his party is the most "legitimate" party of the two that are running. He also says that it is a "necessity" for students.

Coalition's presidential candidate has been an instructor in the Experimental College teaching for the Human Rights Commission. He claims that the "college is screwed up," the teachers are out of touch, and students are fakers."

The only polling place for these elections will be located outdoors in the area between the Science Building and Cloud Hall. Any student with a registration card will be eligible to vote.—L. L.

Experimental College Drug Symposium

The Experimental College will present a symposium entitled "A Day On Drugs," this Saturday in the Riordan High School Auditorium from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The symposium was organized by a group of students in the Experimental College. Donald Peterson, head of the Experimental College, stated that one of the major objectives of the program is "to create an involvement including the community and the students."

The program will include short speeches by noted experts in the field of drug use and drug abuse. Peterson pointed out that time will be reserved for audience participation and a question and answer period.

The guest speakers will include Dr. Joel Fort, University of California, formerly with the San Francisco Family Service, and presently working with the Federal government in Peace Corps training. Dr. Fort is a frequent speaker on drugs and law, according to Peterson.

AL RINKER, present director of the Haight-Ashbury Switchboard, graduate student in community psychology at San Francisco State College, has researched the effect of drug use in the Haight. Rinker will speak on "The New Direction of Drug Use in the San Francisco Community."

Patti McWilliams, member of Immediate Psychiatric Aid and Referral Center (IMPAC) at the San Francisco General Hospital, deals with the problem of drug abuse there.

Professor Stuart Loomis of San Francisco State College, formerly with the Haight-Ashbury Clinic, plans to speak on "The Communication Gap Between Generations on the Subject of Drugs."

DR. HARDIN JONES, professor of physiology at the University of California, Berkeley, will lecture on the "Harmful Effects of Drug Use."

Finally, Dr. Tod Mikuriya, an independent researcher and part-time consultant to the Alameda County Alcoholic Clinic, will speak on the "Medical Uses of Marijuana."

General admission will be $2.00, $1.00 for students, and free to City College students presenting either an AS card or a registration card.—D. B.

Chinese Courses Scheduled For Fall Semester

A Chinese language course (Mandarin I) and a Chinese Civilization course will definitely be offered next semester, but Johnson Kam, president of the ISSA, is not overjoyed with the prospects.

Kam, obviously upset with recent developments in his effort to initiate Chinese curriculum here, stated that although 211 students signed up for the language course, and 187 for the civilization course, only one section of each has been slated for next semester.

He was also unhappy with the scheduled time of 4 p.m., since he feels it will be an inconvenient time for many students.

He also mentioned that the Chinese students were not given an opportunity to select instructors for the courses. Kam was disappointed, stating that, "Obviously, Chinese students would be better equipped to select instructors who would be most beneficial to the ISSA."

Kam pointed out some of the services of the ISSA. "The goals of the ISSA include the promotion of Oriental courses for interested students, community services to the Chinese people in Chinatown, and the establishment of a tutorial center at the college."

He also mentioned ISSA guest lecturers, the first of which will lecture tomorrow during College Hour.

The ISSA meets every Tuesday and Thursday during College Hour in Room A-310.

The Guardsman Editorial Page
Official Weekly Publication of City College of San Francisco
ED HOLMES, Editor
Vol. 66, No. 12 | WEDNESDAY, MAY 22, 1968 | Page 2

AS Elections Today

STUDENT GOVERNMENT elections deserve more respect than the dismal voter response of last semester or the irresponsibility shown by all parties in cancelling last week's election rally. Perhaps a larger vote will impress our representatives with their responsibilities. Vote today!

Registration Study Examined

NOBODY FELT more concern over the registration fiasco that started off this semester than the administration. Without trying to minimize the extent of the foulup without wasting time on recriminations and worthless denials—all hands set to work rectifying the situation.

We think they did an astonishingly good job, even though it took months. We personally have heard of no individual who, after exhausting all available means, did not come up with a reasonable schedule.

Besides attending to the immediate problems, a committee was appointed by the president to insure that next semester didn't begin with a repeat performance.

Twenty-five faculty and administrators have met more than 15 times so far to come up with a solution. Unfortunately, due to an "oversight," there is no student representation in this group.

WE ARE ASTOUNDED that such an important committee includes no students. Not only were students excluded from it, but at no time during the committee's meetings to date were students requested to appear before it.

In other words, registration procedures directly affecting 10,000 students are again being drawn up with no advice, recommendation, or even discussion from those 10,000 students.

While it seems from reports that a decent job is being done without conferring with the people most directly involved, we are reminded of the disparity between the advance reports on the last registration and the dismal reality of the actual fact.

WE URGE PRESIDENT CONLAN to immediately rectify this oversight by adding a substantial percentage of students to the existing committee.

If students are not consulted, the administration will—depending upon the outcome of the new procedures—either sit back and say, "See what we have done for you," or face the outrage and acrimony that began this semester.

If students are consulted, it will at worst result in a deeper understanding of the problem by all concerned. At best it will result in a sense of pride, accomplishment and shared responsibility that no campus can afford to lose because of an "oversight."

Labelled And Recorded

Just A Little Pile Of P.S.

by Martin J. Arbunich

DIGNITY has been abused, crippling this column to hardly more than a P.S. this time. Our feature editor, aside from having his own little thing against this column, wasn't in the spirit of generosity while alloting space for this writer's typewriter. This column requests equality for all, particularly in this case.

Tom Donohue and his band of KMPX strikers have thrown away their picket signs with the feeling that they'd rather switch than fight.

Very soon KSAN-FM will become what it never dreamed it would be: the number one radio station in San Francisco, surpassing even the popularity Donohue reaped at KMPX.

As of 6 a.m. yesterday morning KSAN dismissed its classical music format entirely, replacing it with "adult rock."

Donohue, former KMPX program director and DJ, has assumed that same position at KSAN. Other jocks who have joined Donohue are colleagues Bob Prescott, Tony Bigg, Ed Bear and Bob McLay. Stefan Punik (lone surviving KSAN jock) and Steve Somers, a fellow who used to whip up quite a talk show at KNEW, will join them behind the mike. All other KSAN jocks have been fired.

According to Somers, "KSAN will become San Francisco's top station in hardly any time at all."

Somers and company broadcast at 94.9 on the FM dial.

Kaleidoscope, the band playing the Avalon this weekend with the Youngbloods and the Hourglass, is one of LA's best, if not the best. They've

(Continued on Page 3, Column 2)

Guardsman Staff — Spring 1968

EDITOR IN CHIEF ..... ED HOLMES
Managing Editor ..... Martin J. Arbunich
Feature Editor ..... Tom Graham
Staff Editor ..... Barbara Hamann
News Editor ..... Doug Boston
Sports Editor ..... Mike Duggan
Editorial Assistant ..... D. K. Dorn
Circulation Manager ..... Arthur Fanfelle

Reporters: David Albertson, John Bendorffis, Penny Blum, Lani Brand, Rita Carroll, Jerry O. Fink, Randy Flynn, Ed Jiminon, Dennis Klein, Boku Kodama, Sharon Roberts, Lynda Sandstrom, Gavin L. Watt.

Cub Reporters: Garret Duncan, Willy Durkin, Lawrence Ferrari, Michael J. Flynn, Lavine Lee, Rita Quong, Leonard Ribeiro, Carol Roehl, Pam Tomasello, James Baggett, James Billbury.

Photographers: Dawn Torner, Chief; Garth Ogle, Nathaniel Dodge, Carol Gillmore, Herbert Gong, Glenn Graham, Fred Harris, Jerry Jew, James McElery, Doug Mills, Robert Morris, Jess Prolow, Mike Reams, Larry Tiscornia, Melvin Weiner and Samuel Woo.

The Greatest Show IN Earth

G. L. PAULSEN displays his first place ribbon which he won for his Home-Landscape model at the California Garden and Home Exposition. —Guardsman photo by Jerry Jew

Architecture Student Receives Cash Awards

By Lani Brand

City College's Horticulture Department and G. L. Paulsen, an architecture major here, showed their stuff and danced away dollars richer from the California Garden and Home Exposition.

The California Garden and Home Exposition was held May 11 to 19 at the Oakland Coliseum. It was called "The Greatest Show IN Earth"; it was sponsored by the First District Agricultural Association. Awards totaling $1750 were presented to the best high school and junior college entrees. Students at City College won four of the many awards given.

PAULSEN WON THREE of the individual awards. He got first place in the Junior College Division for his Home-Landspace Model and a $200 wash award. He also received $15 and honorable mention for his design drawings, and a special award of $25 for technique of instruction. He designed the City College exhibit, which was a 1000-square-foot miniature garden. He is the first student at City College to take first place in any one of the divisions at the Home and Garden Show.

Paulsen found out about the show a week and a half before the deadline for entries. He managed to plan and put everything together during this period and just made the deadline which was May 10. He had originally only planned to help design the horticulture department's entry. However, upon discovering that he could enter the Home-Landscape competition on his own, he began his project.

In the past he won a National Scholastic Art award, a Hallmark Greeting Card award and first place in a poetry contest. The poetry contest was given by the Midwestern Press Association and his poem was published in a magazine called Echo.

CITY COLLEGE'S students of horticulture won a third place award in the amateur division for floral decoration and received a $50 certificate. The horticulture department had received $700 originally from the show to buy the materials for their project. The money will be added to the $1200 already in the student funds and will be used to enter other competitions during the summer.

The horticulture department took two months to plan its project and four days to put it together. Fifteen students from the horticulture classes helped to assemble the display.

Spring Brings Out Dangerous Tendencies In Local Blackbirds

By Rita Carroll

The arrival of spring brings to City College warm weather, days of lying on the lawn, birds singing and the necessity of cutting a class or two for a dentist appointment—at the beach.

Signs of spring cause spring fever and bring to mind the nearness of the summer months, carefree days all to yourself.

A frustrating side of spring is the influx of blackbirds to all the trees around the campus.

While spring means fun and summer to students, spring means migration and mating to blackbirds. At this time of the year blackbirds migrate to this area from the north.

Someone might innocently ask why the birds can't enjoy the weather sitting in their nests. During mating season blaekbirds do have a tendency to dive towards people passing by their nests.

Dr. John Earl, from the Life Science Department, revealed that the blackbirds dive because of an instinct to protect their young. Apparently the presence of a human being in the vicinity of their nest causes alarm that their young are going to be harmed.

While walking to an eight o'clock class one morning last week, still half asleep, one student reports being brutally attacked, on the corner of Judson and Gennessee streets, by a blackbird coming unnoticed from one of the large trees.

Naturally, it is good that the birds are interested and concerned with the well-being of their young, but the innocent student who is attacked does not know that he is trespassing on the birds' unofficial property.

wiseacre

by Dave Albertson

SEX when seen in print makes prudes glare with self hate, hippies melt with compassion, chicks blush with self-imposed shyness and linguistic laymen stop, click their heels and take notice.

Sex is probably the most censored hush-hushable word ever conceived.

Playboy Magazine is presently capitalizing on our blushes and unspeakables by a realistic acceptance of our "mysterious" dilemma.

Playboy combines a shrewd knack of breeding mystery with desire to produce one of the most controversial magazines on the market.

BIG WIGS whittle sex down to a fine point and use it to bag moocho suckers with their annual multi-million-dollar advertising gimmick. Let's be real. Wouldn't you be inclined to latch on to a can of Rachel Welch's homemade asparagus before even giving Whistler's Mother's brand a passing glance?

History books are sizzling with mind scorchers about our three lettered friend. Ever hear of a dude named Romeo? According to an infamous playwright, a chippy called Juliet didn't blush and fall to pieces when love blossomed with her best friend. Anthony and Cleopatra were not exactly the biggest prudes the sphinx era produced either. I imagine the uptights were trembling in their mummies after that episode.

SEX from a productive point of view is responsible for your being here.

Servicemen go overseas, playboys infiltrate nightclubs, career girls flock to New York, free thinkers congregate at the Fillmore Auditorium and prudes stay home and sharpen their censor peneils.

Confusion and contradiction seem to be the key to modern-day attitudes toward our number one three-letter word.

This little word gets so beat and tugged around, it makes you wonder what the Chief Cloud Rider was thinking when he invented it.

MORALISTS of the self integrity type shout promiscuity, playpeople sing out "times are changing" and "get off my eloud," scientific idealists would rather not say and the uptights keep frowning.

Sex is accepted on a broader level in other societies.

Scandinavia is rumored to be the epitomy of liberalism with Australia pushing in at a close second. France, former champion of liberalism, is presently making third in the liberal limelight. Then there is England and the United States bringing up the rear with their dirty looks and turned up noses.

ATTITUDES toward sex in literal and other uses is currently undergoing an inevitable change thanks to our sculptor and friend—realism. Realistic views slowly but surely seem to be stamping out our narrow minded villians all over this country.

Our own San Francisco is presently under the fire of a lot of criticism hurled by do-gooders hiding behind the mask of virtue.

Did your parents ever tell you things just weren't done that way when they were children, and that our generation is going to pot. It's not that they're pulling a super prude, it's probably that their memories get a little rusty when it comes to recalling their old-time capers.

A recent survey showed liberalist Scandinavia's serious crime and moralistic offense rates much lower than that of England or the United States. Sociologists point out that the general differences in sexual attitudes in different societies are some of the main causes for serious crime and sexual offences."

Our little word makes faces turn, eyes squint, young ladies giggle, young men smirk and uptights tighter around the collars.

Sex reaches a climatic significance in the great masterpieces of past and present times. What would the old masters have done without our friendly word to inspire them? Da Vinci's "Mona Lisa," Picasso's "Blue Lady," Hefner's "Anny Fanny" would never have been created, if they had listened to the bashful babblers of their times.

Confucius say, "To feel natural affection for those nearly related to us is the highest expression of moral sense."

Wiseacre say, "Small mind walk narrow street; broad mind open many door."

Girl Tracking Is Fun

THE NEWLY FORMED girls track team (from left to right): Carolyn Thomas, Toni Hughey, Martha Garcia and Lottie Taylor.

Staying on the right track and giving the crowd a run for their money, these four gals are part of the first female pairing squad at City College of San Francisco.

Taking third place in the 880 medley relay at San Jose State's Invitational Meet on May 10 and 11, the lady spikettes were one of 15 track teams to participate in the tourney.

Four members of the Ram relay team were Martha Garcia, Toni Hughey, Lottie Taylor and Carolyn Thomas, all taking third place medals at the tournament.

Phyllis Vasquez and Susan Conrad coached the spikettes in their first impressive showing. Hope is that the women's track team will gather more participants in the future.

Four Offices Unopposed In AS Elections

United Students for Action candidates will be running virtually without opposition in all major offices in today's Associated Students election, save the AS presidency.

Derrick Hill, of the challenging Coalition party, will be running against Bill McQuaid of the incumbent USA party for AS President Other major candidates include: Shirley Brown (USA) for vice president, Rosa Perez (USA) for sophomore president, Tony Klemens (USA) for frosh president and Lorraine Fong (USA) for AWS president. Again this semester there is no candidate for the office of AMS president.

Freshman Council candidates include, first for the Coalition party: Gary Burton, Trenton Browne, Ray Hing, George Kwan, George Newell, Francis Yee and Maurice Parker. USA candidates are: Won Fong, Lavine Lee, Georgia Newsome, Mike Shafer and Walter Sundberg.

Sophomore Council candidates for the Coalition party are: Janice Lum, Sharon Parks, Fred Wilson, Al Wong and Herschel Major. Running for the USA party are: Mark Mender, Rodney Fung, Tom Mattush, Tim McGeachy, John Range and Rich Shirley. There is one Independent for the aforementioned council, Brian Kennedy.

Class Cancelled

At the request of the chairman of the executive council of the Academic Senate, the 11 a.m. classes today will be cancelled so that a plenary session, which is required under the constitution of the Academic Senate, may be held at that time. This session will be in the college theater.

AWS Awards Dinner Friday

Sack Social, the final awards get-together of the Associated Women Students, Inter-Sorority Council and the Recreation Association, will be held in the Retail Floristry Building Friday from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Awards from the three campus organizations will be presented. Recreation Association will present honors to their women athletes; ISC will present the Dougherty to the sorority sister with the highest point average; AWS will present an award to the woman student who has given outstanding service to the organization this semester beyond the call of duty.

Installations of the newly elected presidents for the fall semester will be presented by the current presidents: Shirley Brown, AWS; Sharon Hufnagel, ISC, and Mary Wambeke, R.A.

"All women students are cordially welcome," invites Shirley Brown.

IBM Testing On Campus Draws Mixed Feelings In Student/Admin Survey

IBM and term tests seem to be causing mixed feelings on campus according to a recent survey.

The main argument presented was that IBM tests leave too much room for guessing and less emphasis on factual knowledge.

Derrick Quan, freshman councilman called IBM tests, "...a chance game in which 50 per cent of the results are pure luck." Quan also said that "IBM is a poor preparation for San Francisco State which is more essay oriented."

DEAN HILLSMAN pointed out that "One of the main reasons for IBM tests is that it simplifies the time-consuming job of checking tests."

Ann Slauson, sophomore Student Council member, said that "IBM is a test of what you don't know and that an essay test gives you the opportunity to write down what you don't know." Miss Slauson feels that one problem is that "Teachers ask you subjective questions and expect objective answers." She also said that, "...a combination of objective and essay questions would be more effective."

Jim Wyatt, assistant dean of student activities, said that "an essay test gives students with a gift of gab an unequal edge over other students." Wyatt agreed that IBM helps cut down on the time-consuming job of cheeking tests. He also felt that, "... a combination between essay and objective questions would be the best test of a student's knowledge."

Rich Shirley, freshman class president, said that, "There is no such thing as a completely right or wrong answer on IBM tests." Shirley said that the biggest problem was that "the word interpretation on an objective IBM test could be completely different in a teacher's interpretation as opposed to a student's interpretation." He also said, "...if teachers are going to score us ABCDF, they should let us score them the same way."

SHARON MEYER, who is a co-originator of the Over-Five-and-Twenty Club, offered a solution to the IBM problem. Miss Meyer said, "...if we could obtain more teachers the load would be lessened and then they could give more essay tests."

The Art Of Distraction

THREE GOOD REASONS not to drop classes: Bernadette Rodriques, Betty Wagner, Gilda Foz. —Guardsman photos by Herb Gong

Campus Beauties Male Study Project

By Dave Albertson

Distractions come in all "shapes and sizes" in classrooms and study halls on campus.

Did you ever take botany and find yourself studying second semester biology major Nancy Mellinger instead?

Pat and Cindy Cassidy of Washington High cast a double distraction to studious male scholars. Pat and Cindy are identical twins who are, as Pat puts it, "majoring in husbandry."

GUARDSMAN REPORTERS have found a lot of distractions this semester from the likes of platinum-haired Pam Tomasello. Pam is presently writing sports for The Guardsman, and is being blamed for the mediocre performance of this year's swimming team. It was reported that a certain Ram swimmer lost a race when he stopped just before the finish line to take a better look at Pam cheering on the sidelines.

Raven-haired Bernadette Rodriguez of Balboa High is in her second semester of distracting medical students from their studies. Bernadette is planning to become "a medical assistant." Ben Casey has all the luck.

Gloria Villar of Woodrow Wilson High has great aspirations to go into teaching. It is generally felt that when Gloria starts teaching, the percentage of male high school dropouts will sharply decrease from "a strange new development of concentration perception."

Gigi Gates is busy distracting male actors in our Drama Department. Gigi is one of City College's bright young drama starlets. Her high school's name of "Star of the Sea" fits her to a T.

Campus photographer Herbert Gong got so shook taking Lynette Janks picture that he fell into a thorny bush trying to get the right camera angle. Lynette is planning to become a secretarial assistant after graduation. Gong feels that Lynette should go into modeling instead.

Distractions can sometimes be put to constructive use as was the case in Kenna Burchill's art class. The guy sitting next to Kenna drew a picture of her and got an A for having the initiative of discovering the obvious.

Did you ever take Anatomy 12 and find a distraction like physiology major Stefanie Melvin more interesting than dissecting cadavers?

Then there was the time a certain Guardsman reporter, sipping on a coke in the basement of Science Hall, almost choked to death on an ice cube when a super distraction in the form of English major Linda Salgado strutted by in a mini-skirt.

A STRANGE sociological phenomenon seemed to have occurred in Annette Solomon's sociology class. Apparently all male students who sat within three rows of Annette had to drop sociology for lack of ability to "grasp the subject."

A new survey just completed found that girls didn't distract male students from studies. The main point brought out by a number of male students in the survey was that "studies are too much of a distraction from girls."

Summer Reg. Closes Friday

There are only two days left to register for the Summer Session at City College which will begin June 24 and run until August 2. Sign-ups must be made by 4 p.m. Friday.

Students will continue to register at one of the two windows located in the Science Building, S-117 and S-188A.

Extra sections from over 40 different courses of study will be offered, including co-ed physical education. Special courses of workshop will be conducted in radio and television. Youth for Service will also be on campus as part of a joint venture between City Hall and the college.

Just A Little Pile Of P.S.

(Continued from Page 2)

gone without recognition for too long. They're the most eclectic group around with a repertoire that's amazing: everything from bluegrass to rock to their incredible "Turkey Rock." Fillmore has the Yardbirds, Cecil Taylor and It's A Beautiful Day. H. P. Lovecraft plays the Carousel.

The feature editor will hopefully be overwhelmed with generosity by our next publication date, which deserves an applause from readers of this column.

Contact Lens:

Are You For Or Against The Practice Of Abortion?

BROULLON

CHIN

Roddy Broullon, photography major

Well, let's see. Let us say I'm for it. I would imagine that anyone old enough would know what they're getting into. It would be up to the mother. She's the one who would live with the baby all her life. It would definitely be up to her. You know, times change so much. What's not accepted now will be accepted 50 years from now. Of course, people look to the Bible for... well, I won't go into that now.

Marilyn Chin, bnsiness major

I'm for abortion because there are too many people doing the "thing" these days. You know the "thing." Everybody knows what that is. Couples find themselves in a spot and are too young to get married or handle the responsibility. Why should the child suffer for the parents' mistakes? Let's face it—sex is here to stay. Maybe I'd better not say that—oh, never mind—put that down too. Abortions should be legalized to protect the mother. Some women can't take it emotionally or physically.

Dick Dunets, general education

No, I don't mind you asking me. Yes, I am for it. I've been involved with several youth groups in Far East Asia and also have worked in various hospitals where I've seen innocent children suffer from incurable diseases... and I've seen children deformed wasting away in a hospital bed. My wife is a nurse and she sees the same thing all the time. She sees cases where actual harm is done to a mother by having the child.

DUNETS

Enna Bnenrostro, teaching major

Wow! That's a hard question to answer. You really have to think about that one for awhile. Come on back in about an hour while I think of something. Well yes, I guess in some cases it's alright. For instance, in the case of rape or where it would endanger the mother's life. An abortion after two or three months would be like killing a life. But there are many different types of abortions so it's hard to really say.

BUENROSTRO

Compiled by Barbara Hamann, photos by Doug Mills

SHOOTIN' IT

by D. K. Dorn

SEE HOW THEY RUN: With elections on the now, the two competitors locked in combat over the power structure present the two polarities which this society is heading for. There are the cute posters of USA candidates with their freshly scrubbed, clean cut All-American look, and then there are the Coalition's bluntly worded scrals which look like that familiar old suggestion on sides of walls. There are USA's dittoed leaflets which make promises to bring candy and magazines to the bookstore, and there are China Voice's posters which look like Red Guard annouuements of China's cultural revolution.

What all this boils down to is whether or not this college wants to continue to leave the government up to the present ruling class of student body types who have run it in the past, or whether the government should be run by representatives of activist students. By the United Students for Action type of thinking, action which benefits "the school" indirectly is in order: dances, social functions, reforms in Freshman and Sophomore Councils and other things which the majority of students seldom (if ever) have anything to do with. But what are conservatives supposed to do? They're not—that's their job.

Though Coalition types can be equally enigmatic about their goals ("I stand on my record" was old in junior high), they can be counted on to push for reform which benefits greater masses of students. They're promoting things such as student power, trying to stop the sprinklers from spraying students instead of the lawn and generally trying to get the college to be run for the students instead of for the administrators and their protegees. The election is between those who play the game and those who don't want to play it.

The only thing to be wary of is if the anti-gamers get caught in the game-of-our-own game.

But nonetheless, this column is wary of all politicians. See how they run.

• • •

DANCIN': The Experimental College is doing a dance at California Hall come May 29. The faculty's Human Relations Committee and the Mission Rebels will help sponsor the event which will feature a rock band, a soul band and a blues band with lights by Optic Illusion in conjunction with Paul Hewett's Light Show Class of the EC. The gig is a scholarship fund for people with less than a 2.0 grade average.

• • •

COPPIN' AND HOPPIN': The Guardsman's own B. B. Hamann who usually tips us off to the goings and comings of the campus cops is irked with them since they won't crown her Bunny of the Cop Hop dance May 31. The cops' frat, Chi Rho Delta, is leaning on Staff Editor Hamann because they don't want anybody to know that the cops are doing the dance. The cops think that nobody will come if it be known that the cops are in on the dance. This column promises it won't tell a soul.

• • •

ON THE WIRELESS: KCSF and KALW (91.7 on FM) will expand next semester into Statler Wing and on the air, besides—"if council gives us enough money," says Phillip Brown, station advisor. At present, KCSF is on betwixt 8 and 10 a.m. with Mike Careris, Russ Weaver in the Manchild and Jerry Taber on Mondays. Ed Johnson, Bob Bloom and Steve Jacobs are on Tuesdays. Wednesday finds Ed Joseph, Chris Cassel, Jack Ruiz and Pat Holland sending out rock, wallpaper music and classics. On Thursdays, Verni Henderson does a jazz show, Tom Reibenspies and Dennis Christie do it to it until 10. John Hayward, Wayne Jeffcoat and Steve Thomas finish up things for KCSF's week. KALW does even more experimental things between 11 and 2:30.

• • •

DOPE NEWS: There is a confab abont dope to be held at Riordon on Saturday, May 25 from 11 to 5 p.m. (See news story for particulars.) Dr. Joel Fort, progressive thinker on narcotics in the straight community, and Al Rinker of the H-A Switchboard are heading the deal. Advanced tickets are available for a bnek at the student bank. If you're one of the select minority with an AS card, ducats are only 50 centavos. Bring your own.

Spikers Fifth In Relays

Provost Runs 100 In 9.4, Anchors Fast 440 Relay

Strong winds didn't stop Ram relay teams from making a fine fifth place finish in the 42nd annual West Coast Relays at Fresno Saturday, May 11.

Ernie Provost of the Rams ran his fastest 100 this season, but placed third with a 9.4. Mickey Mathews and Marion Sims of Laney placed first and second ahead of Provost. Mathews won in 9.3 while Sims was second in 9.4.

Sam Caruthers of San Jose got over the 16-foot mark in the pole vault with a vault of 16-1. John Olander of Grossmont also did 16-1, but was awarded second because of more misses.

THE RAM 440 relay team of Greg Jackson, Vince Ansley, Larry Mosely and Provost finished second to Compton who won with a relay record of 40.8. City College turned in their season best of 41 flat. San Jose finished fourth.

The Rams' time of 41.0 is only one tenth of a second off the school record set two years ago by O. J. Simpson, Bob Prince, Lee Benton and Adam Banks.

Once again all-around sprint star David Jones was unable to participate in the meet, due to a sore leg.

The Rams' Tom Clyburn finished third in the long jump with his best effort of 24-3½. Marion Anderson of Contra Costa placed second with a 24-4¼ jump. Art Reaves of Fresno also jumped 24-4¼, but was awarded first because of a longer second jump. In addition, Clyburn did 6-8 in the high jump.

FRED JACKSON of Laney cleared the seven-foot barrier in winning the high jump. Jesse Reed of Contra Costa was fourth at 6-8.

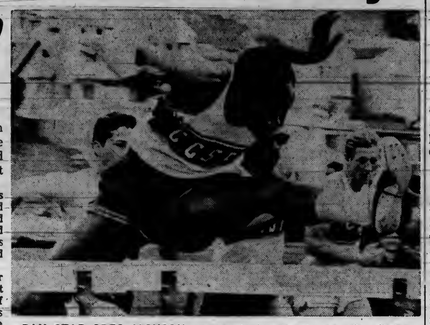
The fourth place Ram 880 relay team was only eight tenths of a second behind Los Angeles City's winning time of 1:25.7.

The Ram mile relay team settled for a fifth place finish with a good time of 3:17.4. San Diego of Mesa won the relay in 3:16.3

Los Angeles City College won the team title of the junior college section with a total of 32. City College, placing higher than any other Golden Gate teams, finished fifth with a total of 20.

The foursome of Provost, Mosely, Ansley and Jackson also made up the 880 and mile relay teams.

Intercollegiate action saw world record holder Jim Ryun of Kansas turn in a 1:46.6 anchor 880 in the two mile relay. Ryun earned his relay team a second place finish behind Villanova. Kansas clocked a 7:26.8 while Villanova won in 7:23.5.



BOB SEAGREN of USC vaulted to a relay record height of 17-6¼. He broke the former mark of 17-5½ which he set in last year's relays.

A showdown between quarter miler Lee Evans and Larry James of Villanova came in the anchor leg of the mile relay. James had recently ripped off a 43.9 quarter mile leg at the Penn Relays.

At the handoff, Evans was trailing James by a few yards. Evans took the lead at the front of the home stretch, and battled James off to the wire. Evans was clocked in 45.1, while James had a 45.7. The winning San Jose relay time was 3:09.4.

San Jose won the over all team scoring with a total of 71. Brigham Young was second with 56.

Provost will try, along with other Rams, to score high in the two-year college State Meet at the Modesto Relays this Saturday.—D. A.

RAM STAR GREG JACKSON on way to hurdle win over San Mateo during dual meet season. Jackson, in addition to being the top hurdler on the Rams, joined with Vince Ansley, Larry Mosely and Ernie Provost to lead the Rams to fifth place in the recent West Coast Relays.
—Guardsman photo by Jens Protze

Cagers, Boxers To Highlight Tomorrow's AMS Sportsnite

Intramural basketball is now ready for its finale. Last Tuesday the Can't Lasts, who proved that they 'could last,' won the Independent League championship by whipping the Red Mountaineers, 47-34.

The Can't Lasts turned a superb team effort, with Bill Marra giving his team the necessary spark with his playmaking and defensive work, stymied the usual high-scoring and highly favored Red Mountaineers.

Now that the state is set, the Championship Game between the Can't Lasts and the Phi Delts, Club League champs, will be played on the AMS Sportsnite.

The highly-touted AMS Sportsnite (tomorrow at 6:30), which really is one of the better college activities, will not only have the basketball game, but will have a complete slate of sports exhibitions. There will be a ping-pong tournament, a program put on by the college's gymnastics classes, wrestling matches, and the usual crowd-drawing boxing matches.

Promoter and referee Roy Diederichsen will present six matches on the AMS Sportsnite boxing card. The first bout will pit Jose Garcia against Curtis Wong in the 135-pound class. The following match finds two young middle weights, Wes Simpson and Wade Francois both in the 175-pound class. The other match now set is the Bob Freethy and Andrew Lee bout.

Ram Nine Defeated In Shutout As San Mateo Wins Season Finale

Coach Ernie Domecus will rest easy for the remainder of the year as his diamond nine ended the season losing to San Mateo 12-0, making their final standings 13 losses, 8 wins. This was the worst season since 1962 when they won 3, lost 11.

Mark Dunleavy and Steve Fuller, San Mateo pitchers combined to shut out the Rams while striking out 14, and limiting the Rams to three hits.

It appeared as though the Rams were to start off on the right foot but they were misled as Odel Williams opened the top of the first with a single.

The Bulldog pitchers did not allow another hit until the sixth inning when John Portoni hit a double.

The only other hit was a single in the seventh inning by third baseman Jim Smith. The Bulldogs had 10 hits including two doubles and a three-run homer in the six-run fifth inning. San Mateo had a single run in the second and four more in the sixth. The Rams committed seven errors during the course of the contest. The Rams were hampered by the loss of Tom Mayfield, starting pitcher.

The pitching staff was worn thin as Domecus used three pitchers. Portoni worked the first six innings, with Irv Jones and Joe Lago cleaning up in the seventh and eighth.

The Bulldogs collected seven bases on balls while giving the Rams none.

Chabot won the Golden Gate Conference title, and defeated Laney for the NorCal title and will represent the league in the upcoming State championships.—A. F.

Chuck White, John Wong Lead Ram Tennis Team To NorCal First Place Tie

City College's Ram netters, once again paced by Chuck White and John Wong, finished in a first place tie with American River at the two-year college Northern California Tennis Tournament, played at Golden Gate Park, May 10 and May 11. Only one week earlier, the Rams captured the Golden Gate Conference title.

Wong and White, the strongmen of the regular season, led the Rams to the victory.

In singles, Wong beat Bob Deese of Shasta 6-0, 6-0, Jim Swanson of Reedley 6-0, 6-0, and John Batchelder of Cabrillo 6-2, 6-1 before losing an extremely close match to undefeated Mark Elliott of Foothill, 6-3, 4-6, 9-7.

WHITE, also reaching the quarter-finals, beat en route Len Golomeic of Hartnell 6-3, 6-2, Bob Strange of Sacramento 6-3, 6-2 and Doug Penero of Delta 6-4, 6-3 before losing to Merritt's Les Hansen 2-6, 6-1, 6-0.

In doubles, Wong and White beat four teams straight in order to reach the finals, including Hansen and Tim Hassler of Merritt.

In the finals, however, they lost 6-3, 7-5 to John Hennessey and Ed Oats of American River College.

OF THE 26 competing colleges, the City College team tied American River for first place in the tournament while Merritt and Foothill came in second and third respectively.

Ram Coach Roy Diederichsen, as chairman of the Northern California Junior College Tennis Association, has the responsibility of buying the trophy for the winning team. According to a statement he made at the beginning of the meet the size of the trophy would depend on who won.

Swimmers Hope Pool Funds Will Be Approved Soon

By Pam Tomasello

Coach Curt Decker sees room for improvement as next year's swimming squad will have several returning veterans and several new members on the team.

Hopes are high that funds will be approved for a pool. This would be a great benefit to the team. Also, the fact that a water polo squad is being formed, the pool would help greatly.

The first meet of the season was cancelled when Merritt College dropped from the league. The first real competition came for the Ram swimmers when they met with Chabot College and lost, 104 to 9.

Although the College of San Mateo took the second meet by 104 to 9, the Ram team took two first places. Rich Glass took first in the 200-yard butterfly and Dave Nelson took first in the 200-yard backstroke.

THE THIRD MEET of the season with San Jose City College was the most exciting one of the season. Glass again took first in the 200-yard butterfly and broke his own time in the relay in 59 flat. Jim Vida took second in the 500-yard breaststroke in 2:48.9.

Tom Jarvis entered the three-meter diving event in the meet with San Jose and took second place with a total of 134.80 points. Jarvis performed several dives which he had never before done on the 3-meter board.

The final score of the meet was 82 to 29 in favor of San Jose.

The fourth meet was a dual meet for Diablo Valley with Chabot and City College of San Francisco. City College was badly defeated in that meet. City College was also swamped by the champion Foothill in April.

THE RAM swimmers showed much determination in the Golden Gate Conference Meet in April which was a two-day affair held at Cabrillo in Santa Cruz. Glass, again, broke his own time in the 100-yard butterfly.

Nelson took 10th place in the 100-yard backstroke and 9th place in the 200-yard backstroke. Vida placed 12th in the 100-yard breaststroke and Frank Johnson placed 10th in the 100-yard butterfly.

Spirits dropped as no one placed and no points were scored in the Northern California Meet which disqualified all members of the Ram team from entering the State Meet in Santa Ana.

All in all, a bad season for the Ram team and a few bright spots, the team looks forward to next season with new determination.

Anyone interested in joining the water polo squad is advised to contact Coach Decker in the men's gym before the end of this month.

Four Varsity Linkers To Return Next Season; Prep Golfers Promising

After a fine showing in the Golden Gate Conference league play, finishing second to San Jose City College, the Rams look forward to a good season next year.

Doug Boston, who finished the season as first man for the Rams, is the only member of the golf team who won't be present next year. Stew Whitman, Donn Paulson, Paul Rea and Mike Geverts will be back to hit golf shots for City College next spring.

The team played good as a unit this year, with each individual helping establish an 11-3 record, second best in the conference.

With the high schools turning out good players every semester, prospects for a championship team here are in the making.

Eight Nominees For Hall Of Fame Honors

ONCE AGAIN the time has come for two former City College athletes to be named to the college's Hall of Fame. Eight ex-Ram greats have been nominated for the honor. The two will be chosen by a committee of three judges: Ralph Hillsman, dean of men; Jack Gaddy, athletic director; and counselor Bill Fischer.

The judges get three choices each on a three-two-one scoring basis for first, second and third selections. The two accumulating the top number of points are then added to a list of former athletes which includes the likes of Hillsman, Jim Wyatt, Louis G. Conlan, Bob Tealer, Burl Toler, Ollie Matson and Gary Lewis.

The nominees must have been out of athletic competition from the college for at least two years, so this makes this year's voting quite a battle considering that next year O. J. Simpson and Dwight Tucker, both 'quite' worthy of selection, will be eligible.

The eight nominees are: Everett Adams (basketball 1962-63), Ron Fassler (football 1964-65), Bob Siska (tennis 1962-63), Henry King (basketball and football 1964-65), Alex Mendieta (soccer 1964-65), Ron Coleman (football 1961-62), Art Adams (basketball 1963-64), and Brad Duggan (basketball 1961-62).

EV ADAMS—A former All-City star from Washington High, "Goose" was fourth in team scoring on State Championship team of 1962 behind Duggan, Elton McGriff, and Chuck Currington. Adams finished second in scoring in 1962 with 435 points while being named both All-Conference and All-State Tourney. Only 5-10, but able to stuff, Ev went on to star at San Francisco State for two years where his record single game high of 58 still stands.

FASSLER—Ranks fourth in career rushing behind Simpson, Tom Piggee and Matson. Ron has a 97-yard run to his credit and enjoyed a 165-yard day against San Mateo on only 10 carries in 1965. Fassler played his second year in shadow of Simpson, but still managed 'Back of the Year' in the league and All-Conference honors on both offense and defense.

SISKA—Number one singles man in conference for two years. Siska led Rams to Northern California and the State titles both year. Bob was league, NorCal, and State doubles champ his two years and made it to the singles finals of the State both years before being eliminated. A real winner, Coach Roy Diederichsen calls him the "best tennis player I ever coached."

KING—An all-around athlete from Poly, King earned All-Conference grid honors as a defensive back in 1964 and doubled as the team's top end on offense. King earned All-American defensive honors two years ago at Utah State. Henry, a center in basketball, made the All-Conference cage team in 1965.

MENDIETA—A two-time All-American center forward, Mendieta led the Rams to two State titles by scoring 57 goals (28 in 1964 and 29 in 1965). In State Championship wins over Victor Valley by 8-0 and 14-0 in '64 and '65, Mendieta paced the wins with three and six goals respectively.

COLEMAN—Played in shadow of Piggee in 1961, but led Rams to Lettuce Bowl win on touchdown run with 1:32 remaining to break 14-14 tie with Monterey Peninsula. In 1962, "Chunky" had touchdown runs of 82 yards from scrimmage, 82 yards on a kickoff and 80 yards on a punt. Coleman led 1962 Rams in scoring, rushing and receiving and earned the Golden Gate Conference 'Back of the Year' award.

ART ADAMS—Placed third in team scoring in 1963 with 432 points and made second team All-Conference. Adams led the 1964 league champion Rams with 640 points and was named first team All-Conference that year. He is the highest scorer in the college's history for Golden Gate Conference play.

DUGGAN—Led the 1962 cagers to first over State Championship and received Most Valuable Player of the State Tournament. Brad's 40-footer at the buzzer sent the championship game into overtime, which the Rams eventually won. All-Conference in 1962, Duggan his 237 league points. Brad, like Ev Adams, also went on to star at State, and now is assistant basketball coach here. His brother, Kevin, is already a member of the college's Hall of Fame.

RAMblings

By Mike Duggan

Simpson, Tucker Not Eligible This Year

80 Awards To Highlight RA Dinner Next Tuesday

The Recreation Association's semi-annual awards dinner will be held in Smith Hall next Tuesday at 6 p.m.

Approximately 80 awards will be presented to coed members of the Recreation Association.

RA participants, friends, alumni and faculty are invited to attend the awards dinner. Tickets, at a nominal fee, may be obtained by contacting Mary Wambeke, president of the RA in the women's gym.

Following presentation of awards, new officers will be introduced.

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 66 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—WEDNESDAY, MAY 29, 1968 NUMBER 13

Coalition's Derrick Hill Wins AS Presidency

Voter Turnout 1669 Strong; USA Loses Most Seats

COALITION'S Derrick Hill was elected AS president for the Fall semester as a result of the elections held on May 22 and 23, in which he defeated Bill McQuaid of the USA party.

A total of 1669 students (only 18 per cent of the students on campus) voted in this election with 1147 voting the first day and 522 voting the second day.

The new AS vice president is Shirley Brown, and the new AWS president is Lorraine Fong, both from the USA party.

The office of AMS president is vacant due to the fact that there was no candidate running. Next semester, a president for this office will be appointed by the newly elected Student Council.

THE NEW SOPHOMORE president is Rosa Perez (USA). On the Sophomore Council next term will be Rodney Fung (USA), Brian Kennedy (Independent), Janice Lum (Coalition), Herschel Major (Coalition), Sharon Parks (Coalition), Fred Wilson (Coalition), and Al Wong (Coalition).

The new freshman president is Maurice Parker (Coalition) with Gary Barton (Coalition), Trenton Browne (Coalition), Raymond Hing (Coalition), George Kwan (Coalition), George Newell (Coalition), Mike Shafer (USA), and Francis Yee (Coalition) being the new Frosh Council members.

THE END of the first voting day saw Hill leading Bill McQuaid (USA) by 118 votes. At the end of the second day McQuaid picked up, but lost by 89 votes.

Paul Anderson, the election commissioner, considered this election a success. He stated that the election turnout his semester was the highest in the last three years.

Last semester's turnout of 115 voters was the lowest in City College history.

LEADING Student Govenment next term will be Derrick Hill of the COALITION party. Besides the presidency, the Coalition party took 12 of the 14 Student Council seats.
—Guardsman photo by Samuel Woo

Bloomer Appointed New Financial Aid Advisor

By Penny Blum

Financial aid at City College was completely revamped when Richard Bloomer, political science instructor, was recently established as a temporary financial aid adviser.

Both the administration and students felt the various financial aids available should be coordinated under one head. Bloomer's position is only temporary. Applicants are being screened for the full time position.

In the past, the National Defense Student Loan (NDSL) and the Economic Opportunity Program (EOP), have been distributed by the deans of men and women. The College Work Study Program (CWSP) was handled by Joseph Amori, in student placement.

BLOOMER STRESSED that in the new way the student information will be evaluated in one office. It will be possible for a student to benefit from more than one of the programs.

The problems of the current program were brought to light by two students, Charles Harding and Tom Rice. At the present time, both students are trying to represent the students at various committee meetings.

They feel that the administration and faculty have been very willing to listen and improve present conditions. Harding said, "They are very sensitive to act in the student's best interest."

At the moment, Rice is fighting for a higher CWSP wage, as the one at City is the only one below the minimum California wage. A student receives only $1.46 an hour, and may only work 15 hours a week.

RICE ALSO suggested that City adopt an off-campus CWSP, to supplement the on-campus program. His proposed wage is $1.90 an hour, which is comparable to the San Francisco Civil Service wage.

The Guardsman talked to Harry Buttimer, coordinator of education management, about the prospects of additional funds. According to him, the future is a little bleak, as the Federal Government has cut the aid back 27 per cent.

Ammonia Leak: 'What A Gas!'

By D. K. Dorn

"It was just one of those accidents," said refrigeration instructor Donald Bryant as students gagged on ammonia fumes in the Science Building early last Monday morning.

A leak in the packing around one of the refrigeration units in the refrigeration laboratory caused liquid ammonia to flood into the laboratory classroom. The gas mixed with the air and went off as fumes which spread through the entire building.

Lab technicians John de Jesus and Morris Konnoff donned masks and attempted to stop the leak. Units from the fire department's Engine Company 38 arrived with gas mask equipment to inspect the trouble. Lt. Gene de Fount, with four other masked firemen, determined that there was not any danger to students in the building. De Jesus and Konnoff then started mopping up operations to dump the remaining ammonia into special tanks. They mixed the onion-smelling chemical with water and sent it down the drain.

No one required emergency respiration, and no one was hospitalized on account of the fumes.

Nonetheless, the student wandered around wiping their eyes and gasping at the caustic fumes.

"What a gas," said one student, still coughing.—A. de Vito

Hewitt Lauded As Outstanding In Evaluation

Paul Hewitt, physics instructor, was rated as the outstanding instructor at City College with a 3.83 average out of a possible 4.0 in the first teacher-course evaluation conducted by the Associated Student government.

The questionnaire was given May 15 to 60 volunteering instructors who in turn passed them out to their classes.

THE PURPOSE of the survey was to let the instructors find their weak points as well as their strong ones, since in past semesters, instructors were unable to do so. Results were evaluated by an IBM computer from the testing office on campus.

The questionnaire itself consisted of 20 questions. Of the questions, 15 were concerned with the quality of the instruction. Four questions dealt with the course content and one question graded the overall performance of the instructor. Student Body President Ray Bietz stated that the 6000 student responses were much more than he had anticipated.

Bietz also said that although this semester's evaluation was given to instructors on voluntary basis, he hopes that such future surveys will be made mandatory.

AS FOR HEWITT, Bietz himself considers the physics instructor as the best on campus and that if all instructors were like Hewitt, "this would be an outstanding campus." Hewitt was also voted as the Outstanding Instructor by the Student Council last semester.

Other instructors who placed high in the survey were: Ralph Kermonian, teacher assisting course, 3.60; Richard Packham, foreign language, 3.59; Donald Cunningham, English, 3.56; Raymond Early, American civilization and English, 3.54; Mary Riordan, English, 3.52; Robert Johnson, social science, 3.47; Eugene Roberts, chemistry, 3.40; Susan Light, foreign language, 3.37; and Jack Madigan, health, 3.36.

Vietnam War, Draft Protested

Student Burns Card Despite Warning

A City College student who is a Navy veteran burned his draft card Tuesday morning just off campus property after giving reasons for his action. Gary Young, 21, walked from the speaker's platform onto Phelan avenue and ignited his Selective Service cards after Dean Ralph Hillsman warned him that disciplinary action would follow if he broke the law on campus.

"As a citizen of the world, I cannot accept irresponsible government actions in Vietnam and in the ghettoes," said Young. "I'm an American, and I love my country. I don't think I'll go to Canada. But I don't like what the government is doing.

"SOME PEOPLE will think my act unpatriotic," he continued in a nervous but easy going way. "But I think it un-American to follow blindly whatever the government says.

"People who speak out are branded as 'commies, perverts and un-Americans,'" Young told the audience of more than a hundred.

The Navy veteran asked for public support after Dean Hillsman warned him of the consequences of his act, and then walked to the curb with his wife and baby child. Before Young lit his classification card, Hillsman read the federal law prohibiting the burning or mutilating of the cards to Young.

"I am aware of the penalties that I'm facing," replied the dissenter, "I hope more people will join me in doing something to oppose the way this country is going. You don't necessarily have to burn your draft card."

YOUNG added a touch of humor to the occasion when he said, "I hope my action widens the image of veterans interviewed in The Guardsman last week about the Vietnam war."

An almost carnival-like atmosphere prevailed over some students who joked and pushed nearer Young.

Young's action followed a rally by representatives of the Robert Kennedy for President campaign who had the speaker's platform reserved.

DEAN RALPH HILLSMAN tried to talk student Gary Young out of burning his draft card, but the administrator succeeded only in getting the dissenter to move off college property to Phelan avenue.
—Guardsman photo by Gavin L. Watt

New English Courses Offered For Minorities

Several new English courses, benefitting minority races, are being offered during the summer session, and are also being added to the regular curriculum of City College of San Francisco, according to Donald Snepp, head of the English department.

It was mainly through the efforts of the Black students that many of the new courses came about. In the English field, English 31 (The Negro Poet in America), 32 (Contemporary Negro Novelists), and 33 (The Negro Poet in America) are three new courses that are being added to the curriculum.

IN ADDITION to the courses added by the English department are Anthropology 36 (Negro Culture in America), Drama 30 (Introduction to the Black Theater), History 38 (The South in America), History 48 (African Civilizations), Political Science 7 (Political Problems of Afro-Americans), and several others of a similar nature.

The English department will also be adding English 20 which will deal with American and British literature. It will be taught by James Cagnaci and will encompass poetry, prose and drama.

A letter was sent to Dr. Louis Conlan, president of this college, by the president of the Black Students Association, Donald Herman, explaining to Dr. Conlan that this college's program in Afro-American Studies is the first of its kind in the San Francisco Unified School District.

For other minority races, the English department has expanded in its courses in "English as a Second Language" to help students who do not speak English at home to cope better with college studies.

Also, next fall, a special intensive reading course, which is a combination of English 9 (reading skills) and English K (a course in phonics), will be offered to help those students whose reading disabilities are so great that they are not yet able to cope with Communications G5A.

DURING THE SUMMER session, the English department will be offering two sections of a course which will combine Communications G5A, English 9 and special individual instruction.

This course is an equivalent of Com G5A, and it is hoped that students repeating Com G5A will enroll, as well as entering students.

Another addition is Speech 11, a two-unit special course planned especially for those students enrolled in any of the college's 39 technical-vocational curricula.—L. L.

Play 'Slow Dance' Opens Here Tonight

Slow Dance On The Killing Ground opens tonight at the college theater. The production stars Artist-In-Residence John Cochran on the first two nights and Jake Carter on the second two. Jerry Landis and Dana Kaplan also star in the production which will run four days, tonight through Saturday. All performances will begin at 8 p.m.

The play tells the story of the meeting of three people: Glas (Landis), a proprietor of a candy store; Randall (Carter and Cochran), an 18-year-old Black boy; and Rosie (Miss Kaplan), a lost and pregnant Jewish girl.

Their meeting takes place in Glas's store, which in reality is the "Killing Ground."

COCHRAN directed the play, as well as starring in it. This is the first time City College has had a guest artist to put on a production. He has had much experience in this play, as he has performed it professionally on other stages.

Carter, a student here, will also play Randall. He played in another production at City College, Integration.

He said he was "definitely looking forward to playing Randall." He feels this will just be the first play in the introduction of Black drama at City College.

LANDIS, excellent in the difficult role of Glas, has been performing for many years. For 12 years in Philadelphia, he appeared regularly in productions of the Beaver Theater Play Shop. For the past year he has been performing in California. He has just completed a role in Medusa produced at Mills College. He was also involved with Cochran, while in that play.

The fourth member of the troupe, is the charming Dana Kaplan. She has been in several productions, with the City College Drama department. She played the lead in Lysistrada, and Dr. Von Zahnd in The Physicists. In addition to her roles with City College, she has played at the Straight Theater of Haight street.

These will be no charge for Slow Dance On The Killing Ground for those who have Associated Student cards.

Cochran feels that for those who attend, the play should prove to be an extremely interesting experience.—P. B.

The Guardsman Editorial Page
Official Weekly Publication of City College of San Francisco
ED HOLMES, Editor
Vol. 66, No. 13 WEDNESDAY, MAY 29, 1968 Page 2

Changing Of The Guard

ELECTIONS are over and a new Student Government has been selected. The officers are new but the offices and the powers are the same. Some new slogans were heard at this time, but the ideas behind them were far from new. Student government changes very little from year to year.

Each semester starts with a surge of optimism and the success of the party in power is measured by how far into the semester that optimism lasts.

Each semester ends in a lethargic display of lack of enthusiasm that is caused, we feel, because of the unsoundness of most of the programs launched and later dropped, discarded or otherwise abandoned.

If student representatives spent more time implementing programs of concern to the majority instead of their own individual crusades, we believe that the optimism and enthusiasm of the beginning would have a far better chance of lasting through to the end of each semester.

We charge next semester's Student Council with the task of representing the interests of all the students on this campus. This includes, but is not limited to, dissenters and do-gooders, radicals and red-hots, the querulous and the quiet.

It is a well known adage that the squeaky wheel gets the grease, whether it needs it or not. This is well and good, but a lot of grease is wasted in the process.

Changing Of The Guardsman

MIKE DUGGAN is the newly elected Editor-in-Chief for next semester's Guardsman. We think he was an excellent choice and want to wish him as much luck and cooperation as we have had this past semester.

Labelled And Recorded

Beautiful Night For 'Beautiful Day'

by Martin J. Arbunich

YOU MUST SEE It's A Beautiful Day . . . they're a sheer delight. The local band which seemed to have sprung out of thin air about a month ago, played a very crisp, stirring performance last weekend at the Fillmore. They were joined on the same bill with the Yardbirds and jazzman Cecil Taylor.

They've one of the strangest setups of any band—no lead guitar, but in its place an electric violin. Acting as the meat of their instrumentation, the violinist creates some incredible vibrations, simulating harmonica and guitar more so than violin.

The instrumental work is exquisite and polished and when violin and organ mix, the likings of a rock-flavored orchestra is the product.

The female vocalist has a sharp, poignant voice and when she and her male counterpart teamed for a duet (which was the case most of the night), shades of Grace Slick-Marty Balin rang through this writer's head. The vocal arrangement isn't as effective as that of the Airplane team, but the soaring, sustaining female voice was still a spicy counterpoint to the male lead nonetheless. It was unfortunate she was never given the lead—her voice deserves it.

It's A Beautiful Day is really an experience, and without doubt one of San Francisco's better bands (OH, that violin!). They'll return to the Fillmore this weekend, by the way.

The Yardbirds, though owning a big name, were unimpressive and projected an undedicated atmosphere about them. Jimmy Page, successor of Eric Clapton and Jeff Beck, was an exception though. He tried—very hard, in fact—but his guitar work was dull, uninspiring and overly distorted. His wah-wah and fuzz pedals and violin bow (for guitar) were nice gadgets, but when it was time for a solo, he simply fell apart.

Keith Relf, always a clear voice on record, came through poorly. He was an indecipherable screecher most of the time.

The Yardbirds' repertoire is unprogressive and constructed mainly of old favorites rather than fresh, innovative numbers. Obviously they're in need of improvement.

A mixture of cheers and boos followed the Cecil Taylor ensemble's number which went on and on for better than an hour. The quartet is a strange group, performing like four individuals going four unrelated directions. His plinking piano form was beautiful. The boos came from those people who couldn't understand his music, which was understandable.

• • •

Some of England's biggest bands will be making the San Francisco rounds this summer. The Move, 10 Years After, the Crazy World of Arthur Brown, the Foundations and Jeff Beck's group have dates set for the Fillmore during June and July. The Carousel is bringing in Fleetwood Mac and Manfred Mann and Procul Harum will visit the Avalon.

Beginning June 18 Fillmore will run six nights weekly (Tues. thru Sun.) and the other two ballrooms also have plans to expand their shows.

The lineup through June has It's A Beautiful Day, the Chambers Brothers and Richie Havens (Buffalo Springfield just broke up and cancelled their scheduled engagement) beginning tonight in a very heavy show. The Mothers, B.B. King and Booker T. and the MG's June 6-8; Big Brother, the Foundations and the Arthur Brown group June 13-15; Arthur Brown, the Chambers Brothers and It's A Beautiful Day June 18-20; Sly and the Family Stone and Quicksilver June 21-23; Albert King, the Loading Zone and Rain June 25-27; 10 Years After and Canned Heat June 28-30.

Weekly jam sessions with members of San Francisco bands has become a regular thing at the Carousel. Each Tuesday night rock musicians will jam to the tune of $1.

The Grateful Dead play the Carousel this weekend along with Charlie Musselwhite and Petrus; The Dead, Jefferson Airplane and Fleetwood Mac, one mighty lineup, June 7-9; Booker T, It's A Beautiful Day and Tim Buckley June 14-16; Big Brother, Fleetwood Mac and Dr. John June 21-23; Quicksilver, Initial Shock and Etta James June 28-30.

Avalon's lineup has Dave Van Ronk, Family Tree, Credence Clearwater and the AB Skhy Blues Band this weekend; Iron Butterfly, the Velvet Underground and the Crome Syrcus June 7-9; Buddy Guy and Clearlight June 14-16; Mother Earth and Country Weather Band June 21-23; Procul Harum, It's A Beautiful Day and the Santanna Blues Band June 28-30.

Ah Nuts!

SOME VENDING MACHINES get a KICK out of swindling students, while others receive curious glances from disillusioned customers. What happens to all the money that is lost? There have been accusations circulating that the Associated Students supplement their budget with nickels and dimes.

H&R Leads The Way

Project Feast Gains Popularity, Expanding Through Other States

By Lynn Sandstrom

Under the Ford Foundation grant, Project Feast originating at City College of San Francisco, has grown to become a nationwide success.

David Redmond who came from Mississippi and is now a senior at Oakland Tech, was given the opportunity to participate in Program Feast and is now earning $175 a week as first cook at St. Pauls Towers in Oakland, California.

PROJECT FEAST, sponsored by the Hotel and Restaurant Foundation of City College is a program designed to guide and prepare high school students for further or immediate employment in the food service industry.

The program is conducted during the school year and is centered in high school economic classes in grades eleven through twelve. The basic purposes of the teaching program is to train high school juniors and seniors for jobs in hotel, club, restaurant and travel industry after graduation from high school. Upon graduation from high school these students are encouraged to enroll in regular courses at the famed Hotel and Restaurant school at City College.

FEAST STANDS for Food, Education and Service Training, and was started in 1964 under the direction of Mrs. Hilda Watson Gifford, who was the first director of the Hotel and Restaurant Foundation at City College.

A summer program is held at City College for the training of teachers in this project who are taught under the direction of chefs on the faculty staff.

The enthusiasm of this project has become so overwhelming that two summer sessions of four weeks each will be held at the college beginning on Monday, June 17, and Monday, July 1. Registration for the 1968 Feast Summer Session at the college is already closed.

IT IS BECAUSE of the success of the Feast Program, the project is rapidly expanding to many other states as well as gaining popularity in Northern California.

Registrars and educational administrators coming from Seattle, Washington, Nevada, Detroit, Michigan, and Philadelphia, all plan on observing the operation of this program with hopes of opening Feast Programs in their own states.

Fire Science Grads Debut

By Rita Carroll

In case of a fire on campus, call the fire science technology department which will respond with immediate aid until Captain Alexander Potter, of this department, can "call the corner fire house."

This June fire science will celebrate its second birthday and see its first class graduate. The two-year program that began four semesters ago now has roughly 105 students enrolled, all males. Students who complete this course with a C or better will receive a certificate of proficiency upon graduation.

After completing this program most students go on to become firemen. This program prepares students with every aspect of fire science and they can also go into equipment sales, fire protection engineering, fire alarm equipment and fire insurance.

Captain Potter and Martin Kingariff are the two regular instructors aided by three experts from fire prevention section and others from fire services.

Both Captain Potter and Kilgariff are former firemen. The only instructor who is not connected with the fire department is Eugene Roberts of the City College chemistry section who teaches the hazardous chemical program.

A fire reserve service in San Francisco is operated on a voluntary basis with no pay and many City College fire science students have volunteered. Speaking of these students Captain Potter proudly said, "they know more about it than we do." This type of volunteer work gives the students enthusiasm, he added.

Superchicks Freak Out

Two stoned chicks freaked out on the third floor of the Science Building and had to be removed from the communal crash pad because they were molesting four non-violent type chicks.

The chicks were turned on several weeks ago by an injection of testosterone, a drug which triggers the early development of secondary sexual characteristics in the male. To complete the experiment six other chicks, who abstained, were placed in a separate pad.

Within the past two weeks the experimental chicks have developed large combs, wattles, and the cocks crow, all of which attract female chicks.

Changes in behavior are also apparent as the chicks begin to peck one another and set up separate areas for themselves.

The control group of chicks, which abstained, have no secondary male characteristics. An unexpected difference between the groups is that the chicks from the abstaining group are much bigger, proving again that it's exhausting to be both a fighter and a lover.

Though the turned on chicks have all the secondary characteristics of mature males and would be attracted to female chicks they would be physically unable to consummate the relationship, in spite of their delusions of grandeur.

Guardsman Staff — Spring 1968

EDITOR IN CHIEF ..... ED HOLMES
Managing Editor ..... Martin J. Arbonich
Feature Editor ..... Tom Graham
Staff Editor ..... Barbara Hamann
News Editor ..... Doug Boston
Sports Editor ..... Mike Duggan
Editorial Assistant ..... D. K. Dorn
Circulation Manager ..... Arthur Fanfello

Reporters: David Albertson, John Bendorlitis, Penny Blum, Lani Brand, Rita Carroll, Jerry D. Flint, Randy Flynn, Ed Jimison, Dennis Klein, Boku Kodama, Sharon Roberts, Lynda Sandstrom, Gavin L. Watt.

Cub Reporters: Garret Duncan, Willy Durkin, Lawrence Ferrari, Michael J. Flynn, Lavina Lee, Rita Quong, Leonard Ribeiro, Carol Roehl, Pam Tomasello, James Baggett, James Billbury.

Photographers: Dawn Turner, Chief, Garth Ogle, Nathaniel Dodge, Carol Gillmore, Herbert Gong, Glenn Graham, Fred Harris, Jerry Jew, James McElory, Doug Mills, Robert Morris, Jans Protze, Mike Ruano, Larry Tiscornia, Melvin Weiner and Samuel Woo.

wiseacre

by Dave Albertson

STUDENT BRAINS and con artists will get their chance to see if lady luck will give them the big bloody axe during finals next week.

A great transition from passive meditations to hard core studying will soon be sweeping student homes like the coming of the bubonic plague.

All those apathetic non-homework fun-loving nights and weekends have finally caught up with us. Those nights we spent righteously instead of studiously will claim numerous unfortunates in the finals death toll.

OPTIMISM may be what you need to bluff your way to examination glory. Prolific pollyanna's of the past have used the art of positive thinking to reach unobtainable wonders in times of dire need.

Caesar crossed the Rubicon, the marines stormed Iwo Jima and O'Leary made the acid grade, just because of A-plus attitudes during times of overwhelming crisis.

Tony Grafilo, a veteran of four semesters is optimistic about next week's finals. Grafilo said, "No sweat, my positive attitude always gets me by the great guessing game somehow."

SHANE O'REA, a first semester rookie, appears cool as the pressure mounts. O'Rea said, "I never worry until the night before, then I pull a super cram and slide through with a B or an A." O'Rea's method apparently is working as he is presently carrying a 3.2 average.

Cloud Hall's "ship of fools" library has suddenly been invaded by the apathetic philosophers and mind-searching do-nothings of the past four months.

MALE students are making a super human effort in cutting their girl watching to an unbearable minimum. Creative writers are reaching into the depths of their artistic ability in preparation for the essay tests. Then there are the worry warts desperately sweating out a last gasp stab guessing pattern to apply to the IBM tests.

Mad and Playboy Magazines are now taking a back seat to the crisp new unopened text books. Vows of scholarly allegiance for next semester are sworn to soon be forgotten.

Time goes on and the lucky bluffers climb the ladder of rough knocks and hard studies to satisfying success. The unlucky fakers ride the rollercoaster of misfortune and failure to bar fly excellence—which may begin with these finals that are about to be flunked.

Never say die until the last text book is speed read, the last IBM answer is guessed and the last F is tabulated.

A consoling note for those that won't make it was once struck by a philosopher of some sort. He said something like, "It's not the score, it's the way the game is played." In other words don't worry if you flunk as long as you had fun doing it.

Hope is always left if nothing else. There is always that one chance that you'll come through with a 4.0 and blow everyone's mind including your own.

• • •

Mostly For Men . . . Did you ever wish Mrs. Robinson was your girlfriend? . . . Did you ever wish that Brigette Bardot was a candy bar and you were the wrapper? . . . Did you ever wonder why Superman never made a play for Lois Lane? . . . Did you ever see Nancy Sinatra in the Art Hall and find out it was Gloria Villar? . . . Did you ever smile at a campus chick and have her tell you to take the midnight flight to Saturn? . . . Did you ever wish Elke Sommer would open up a nickel-a-kiss booth? . . . Did your feet ever take you into a wall while your eyes were following Bernadette Rodriguez? . . . Did you ever wonder if the WISEACRE columnist is a paranoid schizophrenic? . . . Did you ever have the feeling you could care less?

SHOOTIN' IT

by D. K. Dorn

FRIDAY is but two sun spinners from June 1, which is but a day before Dead Week and three days before Finals. Amen.

SUMMER READING: Two new comic books from the Grove Press have just been issued. "The Adventures of Phoebe Zeit-Geist" and "The Adventures of Jodelle" are for y'all who dig some good honest Sadomasochism. Avid readers of Evergreen Review remember poor Phoebe's trials at the hands of Nazis, giant spiders, women Marine drill instructors, Communist garbage men, Hong Kong tatoo artists bent on creating masterpieces on skin, ex-roller derby queens, Zen archers, and myrad other characters from some belladona cloud. Phoebe ran around the pages of Evergreen for a year or so sans clothing.

"The Adventure of Jodelle" is a more stylized idea for a mod comic book. Jodelle is a shapely and bosomy model who is a spy for some fantasy country. She is in with some obese chief spy for the same country. The dripping adventures of the two are traced in and out of Freudian intrigues.

Jodelle's activities are illustrated by a Frenchman, and it is translated into English for your further enjoyment and edification.

Pooer lil' Phoebe is written by Michale O'Donoghue and is illustrated by Frank Springer. His illustrations are the most interesting of the two books, with our buxum babe being involved with fantastic individuals instead of the comedy of prototypes as is Jodelle.

These books are a part of a series of such "adult comic books" which have been published by Grove and other people. The volumes are for people who really enjoy seeing some of their fantasies and exploited in such a way as to make the whole thing seem like a pleasurable dream. "Barbella" was another chick who got sent on all sorts of erotic adventures.

Barbella was an immediate hit in France, and the saga made it through the underground press to America. Through magazine and book, her interest caught on in this country to such a way as to warrant a Hollywood version of a hip film starring Jane Fonda and some other such people. Life Magazine did a recent spread on the flick, and the technicolor movie is supposed to run all kinds of good ways at the blest box office.

Both books sell for $5.95. Sorry no special offers this time for readers of this column.

FLICKS: "Elvira Madigan" is a movie which has been playing around for sometime, but which is still busting records at the Music Hall on Larkin near Post. An intensely beautiful film, virtually every scene seems to be a painting instead of a frame of celluloid. The Swedish film concerns the story of a deserting officer from the army and his true love mistress who is an escaped tight rope acrobat. The couple's idyllic wanderings are traced through the Swedish countryside of about 1850. However their journey leads downhill from emancipated people to slaves of poverty and a fear of being apprehended. In fact, the terror of developing doom and tragedy builds up until the beauty of the acting and scenery is detracted by the irony of tragedy.

One thing about flicks, is that they cost less than the dance halls and provide an outta sight change from a continual sound and strobe thing. Such theaters have discount for scholars and other such scoundrels who have some sort of official card from the school or student association. People at the Surf Theater at 46th Ave. and Irving near the beach have good second run movies and an espresso spa next door.

Other art houses have different student rates, but call the box offices.

ERATA: The dance that Chi Rho Delta sponsors this weekend isn't sponsored by the cops. It's just that many members of the frat are campus cops.

NUDIST NEWS: Since there seems to be a number of skin freaks in the audience today, this column wishes to report for vacationers in the New Jersey area. "Bareley Proper" is a way off-Broadway production about families in the natural condition without benefit of clothing. Last year, a chick who sat in the audience as a clothed spectator is this year's lead for the situation comedy. Tickets can be obtained at $5.50 per couple from Circle H Ranch, Dewey Lane, Glen Garden, New Jersey, 08836.

BART Station At Balboa Park

Faster Transportation For Students Hopeful

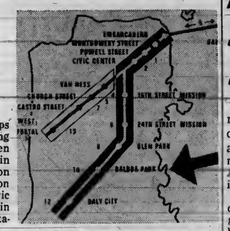
By Sharon Roberts

Actual underground construction work on the Bay Area Rapid Transit system's Balboa Park station, which is expected to be a faster means of transportation for commuting students, is now underway with excavation and the underground right-of-way being constructed paralleling the freeway east of the City College campus.

The construction area is a half mile strip paralleling San Jose avenue, between Colonial and Plymouth streets. Peter Kiewit and Sons are the construction company working on the project.

BALBOA PARK STATION has been designated as the name of the station in the City College area, located between Geneva and Ocean avenues just adjacent to the freeway going east. It will be built underground and a platform 700 feet in length (roughly 2 blocks) houses the trains. Students, in order to reach the station, must walk two blocks east (down) Ocean avenue.

BART fares are set at approximately 25 cents. Officials of BART have set up a program whereby passengers can transfer from Muni buses and streetcars to BART trains. This also includes the East Bay transportation system ACT. Browne, community relations officer for BART, commented, "Student discounts are to be honored."



Five BART stations that are stops along the downtown route leaving Balboa Park station include Glen Park, which can be reached within two minutes, 24th street and Mission four minutes, 16th street and Mission six minutes, Powell street and Civic Center eight minutes, and the main downtown area stop Montgomery station ten minutes.

The trains have a schedule of stopping at Balboa station every three minutes. They operate at speeds up to 80 miles per hour, averaging 50 miles per hour including station stops. Their lengths are either 2, 4, 6, 8 or 10 cars to each train, that will seat seventy-two passengers allowing for standing patrons also.

He stated, "Students from the East Bay can ride directly from the downtown Oakland station to City College in a time span of 18 minutes." Browne continued, "We expect the enrollment of City College to increase due to the fast train service." These patrons going back and forth to the Oakland stations will travel through the pivotal segment of the system, which is the world's largest and deepest underwater tunnel connecting downtown San Francisco with Oakland across the Bay, he said.

DALY CITY was previously planned as the site for the end of the line, but controversial matters and funds have detained the program somewhat.

Interiors of the Bay Area's new rapid transit provide the ultimate in comfort and convenience to the passenger. The car features wide upholstered seats with plenty of elbow room, glare-free lighting focused on the reading plane and large tinted-glass windows to shield the sun's rays, yet provide a panoramic view of Bay Area scenery.

THE ABOVE illustration shows the estimated travel time from the Embarcadero street station downtown.

Proposition B was defeated by the voters in November of '66, which has hampered the finances of BART. "We must have a new shop facility other than the present site of Elkton Yards station, the San Francisco Muni workshop," Browne states. The state is expected to provide added finances and a control center is to be constructed, Bart officials believe.

The importance of locating station sites in low-income neighborhoods was recognized by program planners to broaden and create new choices in employment. "Availability and accessability of employment centers is the key to the broadening process," they said.

Mike Duggan To Head Fall G'man

Members of The Guardsman editorial board elected Mike Duggan as Editor-in-Chief of the college newspaper for the Fall semester in a meeting held last week.

The election also named Doug Boston as managing editor; Barbara Hamann as news editor; Tom Graham as feature editor; Dave Albertson as sports editor and Boku Kodama as staff editor.

Boston was news editor this semester; Hamann was staff editor; Graham was feature editor; and Kodama and Albertson were both reporters. Duggan was sports editor for three semesters before being named Editor-in-Chief.

Academic Senate Supports State Urban School Bill

The City College Academic Senate passed a resolution supporting state aid to urban schools and heard committee reports on a range of subjects in a plenary session last Wednesday.

Other items on the agenda included a constitutional amendment and salary negotiations. Progress in equalizing salaries between regular academic year, summer and extended day schedules shows promise.

Jack Abad of the mathematics department, reported on a faculty poll concerning department chairmen. The two-part questionnaire asks if an election should be required as part of the selection of department chairmen.

Eugene Mead of the social science department said, "Drop-outs here amounted to 12 per cent." Over two-thirds left school due to financial need. Present programs have failed to curb the drop-out rate. He proposed the creation of an emergency fund for students in need. The fund would consist of a $1 contribution from students and faculty.

Contact Lens:

What Changes Would YOU Make At City College?

Ferenc A. Marki, science major

MARKI

I'd build a place where students could go to sit and relax. Like a library where you can talk too. Otherwise there isn't much I would change. I like it here at City College. You go to classes, study and don't get too involved. I appreciate the opportunity offered here where one can get an education free. Probably the one thing I would change, as I said before, is a place where students could study together and relax.

Jerry Fulton, H&R student

FULTON

I'd change a few instructors if I could. Some of them have the most remote ideas. They're too old fashion in their teaching methods. I guess I'm prejudice because I'm not doing well in the classes of the instructors I don't like. I don't appreciate the instructor or the subject. Lectures could be improved. The presentation of certain lectures is poor. Yeah, this is my first semester here.

MANIBUSAN

Marilyn Manibusan, secretarial student

There is a lot I'd change. First, they're too strict with attendance here. If someone is sick and out too often—they're disqualified. I have a friend who is sick—really sick—very brilliant, but because of excessive absences she's disqualified from school. Let's see—oh yes—the cafeteria services. The food is generally OK, but those hamburgers and that spaghetti . . . awful.

WIGGINS

Don Wiggins, business major

If I could I'd change Statler Wing. It's too congested. How can a person enjoy food or relaxation with all that congestion? Most of my friends go there, but that doesn't mean I have to. If they got rid of Statler Wing they could use the room for classrooms. Yeah, that would be a good idea—use the room for classrooms.

Compiled by Barbara Hamann, photos by Doug Mills

More Than 150 Students Win Scholarships

Awards were presented to more than 150 outstanding students in their respective fields at the thirty-third annual Commencement Observance and Awards Assembly held last Thursday morning in the College Theater.

William McQuaid, sophomore president, opened the assembly with a greeting to the Class of '68 followed by a performance of the Chamber Choir, under the direction of William Grothkopp.

HIGH HONOR students were introduced by Dr. Louis G. Conlan, president of City College. Recipients of the President's Cup for Highest Scholarship were Madeline Rosen (biological science) and Homer Chan (premedical). Receiving the President's Plaque for Outstanding Service were Patricia Fiuren and James Dierke both of Student Government.

The three High Honor Graduates, Laurel Ashworth, James K. Wong and Madeline Rosen, addressed the assembly.

A total of 149 scholarship awards were presented in the following categories: memorial scholarships, University of California scholarships, awards and prizes, organizational scholarships and departmental scholarships.

INCLUDED were the Man and Woman of the Year awards presented to Ray Bietz and Margery Brown and the Bank of America awards which went to Terrance Jew (accounting) and Christine Gee (secretarial).

Among the many awards presented at the assembly two new scholarships were introduced. The Martin Luther King Jr. Scholarship was awarded to Robert Easley and the Joan Nourse Scholarship to Barbara Hamann.

The late Joan Nourse is remembered as a founder and adviser of The Guardsman.

The presentation of awards and scholarships, were made by President Louis G. Conlan and Deans Mary Golding, James Wyatt and Thomas Nesbitt.

Following the assembly a reception, hosted by the Alpha Gamma Sigma Scholastic Honor Society, was held in the Horticulture Building. Honor students, parents and members of the faculty attended.

Conlan Shovel Turns Construction Ground

By Randy Flynn

A group of faculty members, students and other distinguished guests looked on as Dr. Louis G. Conlan, president of City College, turned the first shovel of earth in a ground-breaking ceremony yesterday for the new Visual Arts Building soon to be constructed on campus.

The guest list for the ceremony included many of San Francisco's most prominent figures. The 60 gentlemen able to attend represented the advertising, printing, photography and architecture industries as well as the Board of Education and the various departments of the County.

Some of the guests included Dr. Oscar Anderson, coordinator of educational management at City College retired; Commissioner Adolfo de Urioste, chairman of the building committee for the Board of Education; Supervisor John Ertola, president of the Board of Supervisors; Supervisor Terry Francois, member of the Board of Supervisors; Charles Gould, publisher of the San Francisco Examiner; Charles de Young Thieriot, publisher of the San Francisco Chronicle; John Wilkenson, senior architect for the Bureau of Architecture, and Robert Moore will be constructing the new building.

After the groundbreaking, a buffet luncheon was held in the Ornamental Horticulture building for those guests who wished to remain.

THE VISUAL ARTS Center will be located east of the Arts Building and will house modern classrooms, laboratories, workrooms, offices, lecture amphitheatres and display galleries.

In a recent letter sent out by President Conlan to those invited to the ceremony, he wrote, "City College has long enjoyed an enviable reputation in developing outstanding students in the fields of advertising art and design, printing technology and photography. The new Visual Arts Center will provide these departments with facilities commensurate with their reputation."

Historically, new buildings at City College have not been given permanent names until they have been in use for some time. This practice will no doubt be followed for the new building but for convenience, the most popular name at present seems to be the Visual Arts Center.

WHEN ASKED WHEN actual construction of the new building would begin, Architect Wilkenson said that construction could begin as early as next week.

President Conlan summed up the building's significance when he said, "With these facilities, we will be able to better meet the needs of a great and important part of the San Francisco community."

DR. LOUIS G. CONLAN, shovel in hand, is first to penetrate the turf. —Guardsman photo by Herbert Gong

Brad Duggan, Bob Siska Elected To Hall Of Fame

Brad Duggan, basketball star of the 1962 City College state champions and Bob Siska, two year state doubles champ in 1962 and 1963 have been added to the college's sports Hall of Fame.

Judges Ralph Hillsman, dean of men, Jack Gaddy, athletic director, and counselor Bill Fischer gave Duggan and Siska the vote over third place Henry King. Others receiving votes were Ron Fassler, football star in 1964-65 and soccer All-American Alex Mendieta, who played here in 1964-65.

BOB SISKA

The other nominees not selected were Ev Adams (basketball 1962-63), Ron Coleman (football 1961-62), and Art Adams (basketball 1963-64).

The Hall of Fame now has 40 members, including Brad's brother, Kevin, who starred for the 1950 Ram cagers.

Brad led the 1962 Rams to a 13-1 conference mark and then topped it off by taking Most Valuable Player honors at the State Tournament, which the Rams won. The team's top scorer, Duggan also made the All-Conference squad in 1962.

Siska led Roy Diederichsen's netters to two straight state titles, and in the process took the doubles championship and made it to the state singles finals both years.

In both his seasons at City College, the former Junior Davis Cup star led the Rams "best-ever teams" to the Big Eight league title and Northern California titles on way toward the state finals.—M. D.

Competition Heavy As Grapplers Compete In Twenty-Two Man Elimination Tournament

Intramural wrestling has been in full swing since May 6 as the matmen have now pinned their way to the second round of the 22-man elimination tournament to determine the intramural championship.

The first round of action saw the five-division tournament begin with Tom McKinney defeating Dave Sigillo with a pin, to capture the heavyweight division championship.

The 137-pound class advanced to the semifinal round with a pair of quick moving matches, as Keith Hanna defeated Paul Webb and Phil Rancatore out-pointed rugged Andrew Lee.

Bob Foraker out-pointed Henry Friedlander in the lead match of the middleweight class. Norbert Zaenglien lost his 157-pound match to James Healy.

Kevin Shea drew the bye rounding out the first round for the middleweights.

Bob Buchness, wrestling in the 177-pound class defeated Bob Lason, pinning him early in the second.

Nick Castro pinned Steve Mecker in the first round. The winners both move to the semifinals.

The opening round of the light-heavyweights saw Roger Shane lose when John Parent pinned him while Ed Peterson won by forfeit over Ron Gibson.

Joe Baldanabo defeated William Hanson eight points to seven points. Maurice Parker drew a bye.—A. F.

Netters White, Wong Defeated In State Finals

Coach Roy Diederichsen's City College entry to the California State Tennis Championships at Grossmont, May 17, was dealt an early death by almost anonymous players from parts unknown in an anticlimactic end to the 1968 season.

Chuck White and John Wong, both of whom qualified by reaching the semifinals in the regionals here at the park, were eliminated early in the meet.

White lost to Richard Jones of Newark 6-3, 4-6, 7-5 in his first heated match under the scorching Grossmont sun.

WONG DREW Bob Thomas for the first round but although weighing in at 190 pounds, and unseeded, the Granville player was familiar enough with the courts and the climate to beat Wong 6-2, 8-6.

The eventual winner of the singles championships, Jim Penero of San Joaquin Delta, had been beaten by White 6-4, 6-3 in the Regionals but got the title by beating previously unbeaten Mark Elliott of Foothill.

In doubles, White and Wong, who made the finals at the regionals, lost to a pair of twins from Ventura, Ned and Fred Preston, after a long, close match, 7-5, 5-7, 8-6.

WHITE AND WONG, prior to the championships, had not lost a doubles match all season. They were the strongmen for the Rams and were largely responsible for the outstanding record established by the tennis team this year.

Although Penero took the singles championships, the southern schools dominated the meet and eliminated most of the Northern California entries in the first few rounds.

Diederichsen can now schedule about eight months of nostalgia before he has to try to build another championship team.—E. J.

Provost And Mosely Break Records In NorCal Meet As Rams Bag Second Place

By Dave Albertson

Track records fell as Ernie Provost and Larry Mosely led the Rams to a second place finish in the Northern California championships at Santa Rosa Saturday, May 18.

Provost broke a school record in the 220 formerly held by the great O. J. Simpson. Provost won the 220 with the fastest time of his career in 21.1. Simpson's record of 21.5 had been set in the 1966 season.

MOSELY CAME through with an exceptional performance in setting a new school record in the quarter mile. Mosely's winning time of 47.9 broke a record held jointly by Lee Benton and Chris Davis. Benton and Davis had run 48.6 quarters in their respective seasons. Vince Ansley finishing third behind Mosely also surpassed the old record with a fine time of 48.2.

Another school record fell to the mile relay team of Steve Jordan, Provost, Mosely and Ansley. They broke the old record of 3:16.4 set back in 1965 by Ron Coleman, Bob Prince, Davis and Harold Johnson. The new record time of 3:15.1 gave the Rams a third place finish behind Contra Costa who won with a 3:14 flat.

Mickey Mathews of Laney beat Provost out of a double sprint victory by winning the 100 in 9.6. Provost finished second in 9.8. Earl Harris of San Jose was slow off the blocks and ended up fifth with a 9.9.

Don Pierce of Diablo Valley upset Fred Jackson of Laney in the high jump. Pierce won with his best jump this season of 6-10. Jackson who had recently cleared seven feet in winning the West Coast Relays crown, finished second to Pierce at 6-8. Ram Tom Clyburn, Golden Gate Conference high jump champ, finished third at 6-6.

DuWayne Ray of Modesto staged an exciting duel with San Mateo's Ed Temple in the mile run. Ray won with a 4:12.7 mile while Temple finished second in 4:14.3. Ray also won the two mile in 9.19.4. George Haza of the Rams finished fifth with his fastest two mile of the season of 9:31.6.

GREG JACKSON of the Rams added points to the Ram total by taking third in the 330 intermediate hurdles. Jackson was four tenths of a second behind the winning time of 38.1 by Flynn Johnson of Sacramento.

Phil Wash from American River won the triple jump with a mark of 48-3¾. Harris of San Jose placed sixth with a 45-5½ effort.

Marion Anderson of Contra Costa won the long jump with a leap of 24-5½. Bill Butler of the Rams was seventh with a 23-½ effort.

Another meet record fell to Bob Martin of Sacramento in the half mile. Martin ran a fast record time of 1:50.7.

The Ram 440 relay team, favored to win the relay, was disqualified in the trials when one of their sprinters stepped out of his running zone. The relay was won by Hancock in the time of 41.2.

City College barely missed winning the meet with a team total of 54 points. Sacramento won the title with a combined score of 55.

Tammy Thollander Wins Tennis Title

City College's own elaim to fame in the women's tennis ranks was established recently by Tammy Thollander in winning the women's singles in the 18th Annual Northern California Women's Tennis Tournament.

Miss Thollander originally learned how to play tennis on the San Francisco playgrounds and sharpened her skills at the Youth Tennis Foundation. She also played on the Golden Gate tennis courts. The NorCal tournament was Miss Thollander's first tournament at City College as a freshman.

The lone victory by Miss Thollander spoiled a perfect sweep by Reedley College, which won all other matches.

She will return to City College for next season.

RAM BLINGS College Rolls Up Favorable Campaign With Three Titles

By Mike Duggan

ALL IN ALL it was a pretty good year for sports at City College. Three titles, soccer, tennis and basketball have been added during the past nine months. Unlike 1966, when Ram teams took home seven championships, the past year has still been a good one and brought many thrills to the Ram followers.

The Ram football team, under Dutch Elston and without O. J. Simpson to count on to win a game, finished up with a 5-4 record. After starting off with two preseason losses and falling to Diablo Valley, 26-13, in the initial league encounter, the Ram eleven stormed back to win the next five games before losing the championship in the final contest, 9-6, to San Jose. Chabot, at 5-1-1, took the Golden Gate Conference crown. The highlight of the season was a fantastic come-from-behind 24-21 win over champion Chabot as Wayne McConico rushed for 212 yards and Mark Hensley kicked a 34-yard field goal to win the game with only 25 seconds remaining.

TEN RAM gridders earned All-Conference—halfback McConico and tackle John Monroe on first team offense; end Mike Carter, tackle Mike Streich, guard Mike Deschler and center Kevin Shea on second team offense; tackle Ralph Hodge and end Allen Cowlings on first team defense; and back Ken Byrne and linebacker Orice Pittman, second team defense.

After losing a soccer game for the first time in 101 starts against two-year colleges, Roy Diederichsen's Rams achieved their 'usual' state title. All-Americans Otey Cannon, Al Chu and Roger Sarria led the soccermen to a first place tie with Merritt and San Mateo, a playoff victory over Merritt and finally the state title game over Compton.

Basketball season saw Coach Sid Phelan win still another crown, his third straight. An uphill battle all the way, Ray Hearne and Gary Bradford paced a small Ram five to key late-season wins over Chabot and Contra Costa; then Chabot again in a league playoff and finally College of Siskyious to gain a state tourney berth.

SPRING BROUGHT only a tennis title as Diederichsen's top netters, Chuck White and John Wong, led the Rams to the conference crown.

Grover Klemmer's golfers finished a fine 11-3, but lost out to powerful San Jose in the battle for league supremacy.

The Ram baseballers, coached by Ernie Domecus, had an off year and finished only 8-13. The season's high point was the hitting of Odel Williams, who finished up at .365.

In track, despite not winning the conference title, Coach Lou Vasquez's thinclads boast three new City College record holders and three fast relay times.

Ernie Provost, the college's best-ever sprinter, had a fastest time of 9.4 in equalling his own school mark and broke 10.0 for the 100 every time out. Provost twice hit 21.1 in the 220 to break Simpson's 21.5 college record.

LARRY MOSLEY'S 47.9 quarter mile is City College's best ever, with Vince Ansley's 48.2 not far behind.

Pole vaulter Forrest Shute's 13-10 effort raises his own college standard of 13-8½ set last year.

In the recent NorCal Relays, a 1:25.5 880 relay by Mosely, David Jones, Greg Jackson and Provost set still another college record.

Ansley, Jackson, Mosely and Provost have also done 41.0 (one tenth off school record) for the 440 relay and a fast 3:15.1 (school record) for the mile relay. The fact that all four men can run in both the 440 and mile relays indeed deserves them the honor of the best City College relay team ever.

• • •

Track fans shouldn't miss the June issue of Playboy. "Little Annie Fanny" previews the Olympic 800 meters. In it, Annie subs for America's Wilma Malibu and races Russia's Dorshka Blintz, the favorite. Annie wins, but only after one of the most interesting photo finishes of all time.

City College—Where The Action Is

LEFT TO RIGHT. Forrest Shute setting school record 13-10 pole vault. Pitcher Joe Dutto smashing base hit to aid 3-2 win over Contra Costa. Gary Bradford getting loose for two of his 35 points in win over co-champion Chabot. Vince Ansley getting early season win over teammate David Jones in 440. Tom Clyburn clearing 6-6½ in high jump. All-Conference stars Orice Pittman and Ken Byrne racking up San Jose runner.
—Guardsman photos by Jens Protze, Protze, Fred Harris, Protze, Protze and Samuel Woo

Critic Budget Dropped

Council Challenges Use Of Unsupported Facts

Student Council last week cut the Critic's entire next semester budget because of the use of "unsupported facts" by members of the Free Critic staff concerning an alleged Students Activities Fund.

In the May 20 issue of the Free Critic, an article appeared that read in part: "Most students are aware that the Associated Students semesterly operate on a $40,000 budget. However, there exists a fund for student activities granted by the Board of Education that is reported to be in excess of $75,000 (this figure is for Spring '67). This money is administered by Dean Buttimer and little is known about how it is spent or who decides where it will be used."

Dr. Harry R. Buttimer, coordinator of educational management, was asked about the validity of the Critic article. Buttimer flatly stated, "There is not a bit of truth in it."

HE CONTINUED to explain that when the issue in question of the Critic came out, he immediately located Dennis Mundt, editor of the Critic and writer of the article, and asked him about the article.

Buttimer challenged him to find any evidence that such a fund existed. At the time, there were five auditors on campus and Buttimer offered to introduce Mundt to them and have them check the books. The auditors were on campus and available for three days following but Mundt did not take up this offer.

Mundt was not interested and stated that even if he were wrong, the Critic would never print a retraction.

IT WAS in an earlier article that the so-called Student Activities Fund was first mentioned. On April 22 Mundt wrote, "Student Council has access to several thousand dollars in the district funded Student Activities Fund."

After reading this first article, Dean Jim Wyatt questioned Mundt and told him the same thing Buttimer did recently, "No such fund exists." However, Mundt refused to accept this information and stated as he did later that even if he was in error, he would not print a retraction.

It was this attitude on Mundt's part that led to the cutting of the Critic's budget. Various members of the council along with several faculty members stated their disgust in Mundt's attitude toward not admitting error and his practice of pulling facts out of thin air and proving them later (if he can).

COUNCIL PROPOSED that since, according to Mundt, a $75,000 Student Activities Fund exists, the Critic's budget should be cut and their funds should come from the $75,000. Needless to say, since there is no fund, there can be no Critic.

Mundt believes that the $75,000 is probably an excess of other funds allotted to City College by the Board of Education. He went on to say that the members of the council were very gullible because they accepted Buttimer's and Wyatt's explanations as to why the fund didn't exist.

He stated that there would be an extensive investigation next term to reveal whereabouts of the $75,000.

Drug Day' Meet Highlighted By Outstanding Talks

A Day On Drugs presented by the Experimental College last Saturday played to an audience spaced out over the large Riordan High School auditorium.

Stuart Loomis, professor of counseling at San Francisco State College, opened with a mind-expanding talk titled, "The Freedom Fighters: Youth vs. The Establishment." He traced the history of youthful dissent from the time of Socrates up to the present. Loomis divided contemporary "Freedom Fighters" into two camps. One group "mans the barricades and fights for human rights, while the other turns inward and turns on to meditation, drugs and love."

Al Rinker of the Switchboard (formerly the Haight-Ashbury Switchboard) rose to address the dope-using student community in his talk on "How To Use Drugs." He talked on the futility of success and failure in American society.

"Nowadays, to fail is sin," he said. "Everything is geared for success. The happiness of the two parents depends on the grades of the child. The veneer is valued. Even on LSD, a 'bum trip' is avoided. But bum tripping is not necessarily unbeneficial to the individuals. One often learns a lot about themselves on a bum trip."

Patti McWilliams of the Immediate Psychiatric Aid and Referral Center (IMPAC) spoke on addictive drugs.

"The addict must be thought of as a human being and not as some kind of freak."

An afternoon panel discussion highlighted by Dr. Joel Fort, attacked the present marijuana laws.

Dr. Fort claimed that the laws were too restricting, and that marijuana was no more harmful than other socially accepted drugs such as tobacco and alcohol.

Council Approves Aid For Hungry Children

Children in Alabama will not go hungry this summer, thanks to an idea by two City College students, Harry Sponaugle and Rene Vides, and support from Student Council.

After seeing the television special, "Hunger in America," they decided that some things should be done to form the City College of San Francisco Hunger Fund. Sponaugle and Vides went to see Robert Tealer, a counselor here, for assistance in implementing a workable program.

Tealer, working with the students, has drawn up a Flyer Of Communications, explaining the purpose of the organization. Their thought is that no child should go hungry in this land of affluence. The flyers will be distributed among local businesses, radio stations, and around the many campuses of the Bay Area.

This flyer tells all interested persons where to send the money or food. When all is collected, one or more students will be selected to take the goods down to Alabama.

Derrick Hill, the newly elected Associated Students president, has several money-making ideas. One of his ideas is a fund-raising dance before the semester is over. As yet a goal has not been set, as they do not want to limit the contributions.

The Student Council, led by Ray Bietz, has passed a resolution supporting the drive, which will begin around June 3. Bietz said, "It has been my policy to keep City College out of programs that didn't affect the college, but after watching that program (Hunger in America), I saw the need for something to be done."

All expressed the opinion that this program will be well received by the students.

James Wyatt Guest Of Honor At Student Council Awards Dinner

James Wyatt, dean of student activities, was guest of honor at the Student Council's semiannual awards dinner held last week.

Wyatt, who has worked with the student government for many years, leaves City College next semester to accept a new position as Dean of Men at Canada College.

The traditional awards dinner is given each year to honor outgoing officers and students who have contributed outstanding service to the college community during the past semester.

THIS YEAR, the outstanding student award went to James Morrison, founder of the Experimental College and former Student Council member. Vice President of the Associated Students Pat Fiuren commented, "He has been truly a terrific organizer doing an outstanding job with the program." Thirty-five other students were also awarded.

Outstanding Instructor awards were presented to Susan Conral, physical education instructor, and Joseph Alessi, band director.

Miss Conrad, women's track coach, organized the first female gymnastics meet. Alessi is noted for arranging the first organized concert band in the history of City College.

Next semester's Associated Students President Derrick Hill and Vice President Shirley Brown were sworn into office during the presentation.

JAMES WYATT

The Guardsman
Official Publication of the City College of San Francisco
VOLUME 66 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—WEDNESDAY, JUNE 5, 1968 NUMBER 14

Site Of A Dead Week

Experimental College Seeks Recruits For Fall Program

"There are endless possibilities for group offerings in the Experimental College next term," said Judy Rothermel, EC secretary. "Many of the popular classes which were offered this time will probably be back."

Any student or faculty member who wishes to work on forming a learning group should contact the EC adviser, Don Peterson, in Cloud Hall 338-B.

"We're trying to involve anyone who is interested in a certain subject and wants to help form a group dealing with it, for next semester even if they're not an expert in the field," said Miss Rothermel.

International Relations, Yoga, Ayn Rand and Objectivism and Physics Of A Light Show will be among the returning offerings.

The Electronic Environment Of Marshall McLuhan is being organized by Barry Capdeville.

"The EC is becoming far reaching in scope," said the student secretary. "We've been getting inquiries from Washington, D.C., and Ohio State. The University of San Francisco has asked up for help in getting an experimental college started. The EC is spreading the college's name in a positive way."

However, the college's Experimental College is homeless. All organization is centered in Peterson's cramped office.

"Many teachers who were too busy this semester to organize a class are working on groups of their own for next semester," said Peterson.

BSA Participates In Nationwide Racial Discussion

By James Billbury

"One Nation Indivisable," a three and one-half hour special, shown by KPIX, channel 5, San Francisco, presented the racial dilemma threatening America. Members of City College's Black Student Association took part in the panel discussion.

The first 90-minute special dealt with personal feelings and candid interviews of many segments of the American society.

The theme of the program was that America must solve her racial and poverty problem if she is to exist.

Many persons on the program felt that the problem was allowed to come into existence by inactivity of the federal government and that the solution therefore rests with government.

GOVERNMENT SOURCES felt private industry and business had failed to cooperate in helping erase this stigma from America.

A portion of the program was filmed here at the Black Students' bungalow with Don Herman, president of the BSA, leading the way in voicing the feelings of many blacks today while discussing the problems and their possible solutions.

Jake Carter, vice president of the BSA, followed with similar views.

Throughout the program, blacks of different regions, age brackets and social status almost unanimously echoed the same grievances.

THE PROGRAM pointed out that Dr. Martin Luther King's death seemed to have convinced many Negroes that nonviolence was not the answer and more militant means must be employed. This conveyed the urgency of the need for action, for neither white nor black can afford a confrontation of arms.

Many whites interviewed admittedly regretted that society allowed this ehasm of the raees to occur, and were trying to resolve this gap.

THE SECOND portion of the program discussed what is being done to solve this dilemma. Surprisingly, the local governments are more active at the grass root problems than the federal government. Various city officials said the federal government was assuming an air of indifferenee.

Hershall Major Elected Head Of Tutorial Program

By Boku Kodama

Hershall Major has been elected to replace Nick Stash as head student coordinator of the City College Tutorial Program.

The position opened after Stash took a leave of absence and when disruption and organizational changes were underway.

The tutorial program began in October, 1966 to help 8- to 12-year-old children who lagged behind in elementary school. The members had written a constitution in the beginning to set down rules but recently, there has been a growing argument to revise the constitution.

ONE REVISION is sought by the black students who are presently enrolled in the program. They wish for only black tutors to teach black youngsters since they believe only they can help themselves.

Burt Miller, faculty adviser to the tutors since the beginning and who has decided not to continue with tutorial next semester, hopes for more black tutors next semester since only 10 per cent of the tutors now are black. This is compared to the fact that three-fourths of the children being tutored are black.

Miller stated that there are less tutors this year than there were last year. He believes the reason for this difference is that "the program has been directly involved in conflicts on how big a factor racial matters should be in the tutorial program."

EIGHTY STUDENTS had volunteered their services this semester but only about 30 have remained so far. "There are various reasons for the large drop-out rate," said Miller, "basically because students find they are busier than they had anticipated or that they were getting too emotionally involved with their pupils."

The tutors work one or two days a week and for no more than four hours. They mainly teach children reading and arithmetic. They also take their students on field trips because many of them have never been out of their neighborhood. Miller stated, "Some of these kids have lived in this city and have never seen the ocean."

The tutorial program let the volunteers choose where they would like to teach. There are three locations at the present time.

Relocated Bookstore Provides Space For New Student Union

New site for the Ramporium Bookstore will be in the new Administration Building now nearing completion.

Six thousand dollars has been loaned by the government to build this new building of which our campus bookstore will be a part.

Taking the present location of our Ramporium will be a new two-story Student Union Building.

"The main objective is to serve our students to the utmost. With the new location, we will be able to order a larger quantity of books which our students need, for the new Ramporium will be one and a half times larger than the present size," stated Mr. R. Main, Ramporium manager.

With the extra space, displays will increase. Records, cards, and the like will be more abundant.

Pioneer Members Of Faculty To Retire

Doctor Louis Berman, astronomy, and Miss Mary Perry, two pioneer members of City College faculty, will retire at the close of the present semester, as will Madison Devlin, head of the audio visual aids department, Rose Avina, Spanish, Katherine Pedley, library, and Frances Lloyd, home economics.

Miss Perry was originally assistant to the registrar before joining City College's counseling staff.

The Guardsman Editorial Page
Official Weekly Publication of City College of San Francisco
ED HOLMES, Editor
ASSOCIATED COLLEGIATE PRESS ACP
Vol. 66, No. 14 WEDNESDAY, JUNE 5, 1968 Page 2

Registration Committee

NEXT SEMESTER'S committee on registration procedures and problems will include students in its membership, according to John Brady, coordinator of student welfare.

We are told that The Guardsman editorial of two weeks ago had nothing to do with the decision but we are nonetheless pleased to see the announcement.

It appears that in the future, City College's registration procedures will warrant as much merit as does it's fine curriculum.

A Lower Draft Age

THINGS MOVE fast today. Some ideas are formed, articulated, put into practice and out-dated before half the populace is aware of their presence.

Other ideas, unfortunately, seem to take forever to reach a stage of serious consideration. One of the slow movers that we feel is deserving of immediate attention is the lowering of the voting age.

Two states today allow 18-year-olds to vote. Fifty states today require 18-year-olds to pay taxes and to be subject to military draft.

The arguments against such a state of affairs date back to this nation's war of independence. They are too apparent, too sound, to need repeating here.

We note with interest that in a recent state-wide meeting the California Teachers Association has decided to support the movement to lower the eligibility-to-vote age to 18.

The Guardsman applauds this action and hopes that the backing of such an august body will lend needed weight to a vital movement.

A Beastly Feast

FEAST FOR THE BEAST was the horny question passed by the unidentified character on the right as it asked the way to the snack bar but ended up joining the fuzz for lunch bunch. A campus policeman asked to see the slippery figure's parking permit, but received the fiery reply, "I don't have any permit, how does that grab you?" —Guardsman photo by Nathaniel Dodge

Thirty-Seven Courses Offered Here In Semi-Professional Programs

By Lynn Sandstrom

City College of San Francisco offers 37 semiprofessional programs for those students who are interested in a two-year course of specialized training.

These courses are designed to qualify students for employment and prepare them for a profession. Although the program is constructed toward giving specialized training for employment, one of the main objectives is to expand the student's mind in the field of general education.

All of the programs offered in this field require courses in history and government, personal health and physical education.

AN OUTSTANDING attribute of the semiprofessional programs is that the college attempts to find employment for all students who have had basic training in the program. The college has been most successful in being able to place graduates into jobs because they have attempted to train students to meet employers' and community needs.

Of the 37 semiprofessional courses, one of the largest courses offered is the business program. This is a two-year course which offers a study in nine separate fields including accounting, air line stewardess service, data processing, insurance, merchandising, office training, real estate, secretarial training and traffic and transportation.

The business program is designed to help students achieve a high degree of technical skill and to prepare them for the various aspects that are essential for success in business.

Another interesting course offered here is ornamental horticulture and retail floristry. This program introduces the student into two years of preparation for employment in producing, selling and caring for plants and flowers. Training is offered in four fields: commereial cut-flower and greenhouse production, landscape gardening, nursery, garden-center operation, and retail floristry. Each of these fields provide a unique and interesting study for a student interested in this type of occupation.

THE PHOTOGRAPHY program is another intriguing course. There are many different branches of photographic work. Graduates may qualify for just about any photographic work that they might be interested in.

There is also training in specialized fields such as medical and scientific photography and for other work requiring knowledge of photography.

These are just a few of the many courses that are offered at City College. These semiprofessional programs are excellent for those students who only plan on a two-year college education. The courses not only provide for adequate training in these programs, but most important of all, they provide a student with a good chance of obtaining employment upon graduation from college.

Non-Resident Students Requested To File Now

All non-resident students attending the college must contact the registrar's office immediately to file new Residence Statements and Classification of Residence forms for the Fall.

Forms for this semester expired recently and new forms must be filled out in order for non-resident students to be eligible for summer school and/or next semester.

Non-residents will pay $11 per unit during summer school and $12.50 next fall.

Students are advised to obtain all forms as soon as possible. They may be obtained at the registrar's office or from Robin Dunn, head of veterans' affairs.

wiseacre

by Dave Albertson

DAYDREAM BELIEVERS and unauthentic imbeciles produce an uncomfortable stench with their phony airs and unreal roles worthy of academy award nominations.

These fraudulent fakers have developed effective techniques of snuffing out real people's good moods with their narrow-minded maneuvers.

Indestructable realness is what can really upset the counterfeit excuses for people that are trying their best to convert others to their wasteful ways.

Hypocrisy and self contradition illuminates the will-o-wisp types as the true tabooers they make themselves out to be. A sharp, truthful reply often finds them cringing behind their paper-mache shields of seemingly concrete dignity.

EXCELLENT EXAMPLES of the half baked set can be observed slimeing about our campus on their comical clouds of baloney. They are often easier to smell than to spot with their phoney air of undesirable odor.

Then there are the smooth-lipped student playboys pulling admirable but unlehable witticisms out of their bag of trieks to accomplish their ends.

REAL PEOPLE are often left out in the cold by the hard core tactics of the constructive fakers in such places as U.S. politics and its string-pulling business world.

It would be nice to say, "They're only fooling themselves." Perhaps a better statement would be, "They're only fooling themselves, but are reaping a hell of a lot of profits fooling others."

FUNERAL NEWS: This column mourns the loss of The Guardsman's SHOOTIN' IT columnist Doug Dorn and editor-in-chief Ed Holmes. Dorn and Holmes will be venturing out into our cold, clammy world of personal strife and spiritual misgivings after this semester. Columnists and feature story writers are desparately needed next semester, so remember to tell your friendly counselor you have to take Journalism 21-A, so you can show the world what you can write.

DEATH comes slowly or in a violent crash, but this semester at City College has gradually come to a close.

Many of us will move on to bigger or smaller endeavors, and many more will be back here again this fall to plod through another semester of whatever they come here for.

Some of us will leave this semester with a sense of high accomplishment and a 4.0 average. Others will leave with a lost longing for the studying that should have been done and a 0.4 average.

REAL BELIEVERS have signed up for the super sweatbox in summer school. Here they will try to rush through four months' work in one month—not a bad trick, if you can pull it off.

Others will put their summers to more enjoyable excursions such as new boy or girl friends, fun on the beach, sound barrier breaking parties, local bar brawls—or marriage?

Throw out the old and get ready for the new text books, uptight or friendly classmates, half or well done teachers and a lot of the same rigamarow you put up with this semester, if you plan on returning for a future stab at higher education.

STUDENTS will be invading City College next semester with high hopes and who knows what goals from various high schools and institutions from who knows where.

History will repeat itself again as that fresh new semester go-get-'em spirit will again turn to rubble at the end of the term with the familiar "I could care less" outlooks.

All good and bad times must come to an end sooner or later. School closes, engagement rings are thrown, text books are burned, marriages end and WISEACRE quits his column.

Guardsman Staff—Spring 1968

EDITOR IN CHIEF ..... ED HOLMES
Managing Editor ..... Martin J. Arbunich
Feature Editor ..... Tom Graham
Staff Editor ..... Barbara Hamann
News Editor ..... Doug Boston
Sports Editor ..... Mike Duggan
Editorial Assistant ..... D. K. Dorn
Circulation Manager ..... Arthur Fanfelle

Reporters: David Albertson, John Bendoritis, Penny Blum, Lani Brand, Rita Carroll, Jerry D. Fink, Randy Flynn, Ed Jimison, Dennis Klein, Boku Kodama, Sharon Roberts, Lynda Sandstrom, Gavin L. Watt.

Con Reporters: Carret Duncan, Willy Durkin, Lawrence Ferrari, Michael J. Flynn, Lavine Lee, Rita Quong, Leonard Ribeiro, Carol Roehl, Pam Tomasello, James Taggett, James Billburn.

Photographers: Dawn Turner, Chief; Garth Ogle, Nathaniel Dodge, Carol Gillmore, Herbert Gong, Glenn Graham, Fred Harris, Jerry Jew, James McEldry, Doug Mills, Robert Morris, Jens Protze, Mike Reams, Larry Tiscornia, Melvin Weiner and Samuel Woo.

Labelled And Recorded

A Fluid Music Scene And Rock 'n' Roll

by Martin J. Arbunich

Dave Watson, our correspondent residing in Yorkshire, England has written the first part of this week's column, presenting a concise rundown on the pop music being produced in England with references to where the music is headed. Mucho gracias, Dave.—M. A.

IN ENGLAND at the moment, the scene is very fluid. No one type of music has really got the edge over another. The difference lies in the areas of support.

The progressive and blues artists get large amounts of support in London and the southeast of England. The 'soul' and 'pop' groups are more at home in the north. The midlands are also prone to 'soul' and 'pop' but are more likely to accept progression than further north.

There has been an attempt recently to reintroduce the old type or rock 'n' roll (Bill Haley and the Comets, etc.) and Rock Around The Clock has actually made the charts here.

It really is amazing to see some of the diehard 'rockers' walking about just as they were dressed 12 years ago. The revival is not likely to succeed on a large scale, but the reasoning behind it is valid.

In England there is something missing in the music at the present time. The progress of the past few years has had its inevitable casualties and excitement was one of them. Popular music, in its forward movement, is losing the very factor responsible for its birth.

There is no doubt that a great many people (myself included) are satisfied with much of the progress being made, but this does not mean that the old scene of several years ago has to be lost entirely.

The bluesmen such as John Mayall and Peter Green (welcome back Eric Clapton) are just about the only ones to have stuck to their guns. Too many artists have left their audiences in this country. I say 'in this country' because I do not believe we are yet as willing to accept change as in America.

The exception to the rules is the Beatles. They have taken the trouble to take the audience gradually with them.

Exactly where the present apathy of the English youth to music is going to lead, no one is quite sure. It could possibly be a group similar in style, stature and formation to the early Rolling Stones.

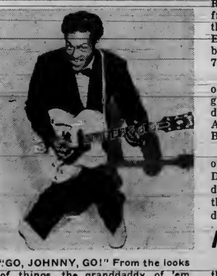
The opinion of the moment is almost unanimous in one thing—whatever the new sound will be, it will have to have excitement.

• • •

ROCK-IT-TO-ME: Along with the above, Dave also forwarded a newspaper clipping which both humored and amazed this writer. Headlined "Rock, Rock, Rock," the article was a huge review of a concert at Royal Albert Hall featuring such old-timers as Bill Haley and the Comets and twangin' Duane Eddy—rockers this writer presumed were either retired or were gathering cobwebs in some musty cellar pub for a few coins the past decade.

No such thing! Thousands were on hand to receive Haley and the boys recently, evidence that this rock'n'roll revival taking place in England is neither a mere jest nor inane sentimentalism. They're downright serious.

Unlike the concerts at the ballrooms here where the casualty rate is nil, the Haley concert was a revival of the screaming, riotous crowds of yesteryear where it was the survival of the fittest and the unfit were usually crushed to a pulp and imbedded in the floor, compliments of the steam-rolling mob.



"Thousands of rockers were draped and leathered, many of them in their late twenties and early thirties on the brink of rioting to the music," wrote the obviously excited reporter (with a tear trickling from his eye, no doubt) in his article. One rocker was groovin' on Duane Eddy's guitar riffs so intensely that he flung a bottle off the head of Eddy's drummer.

If this rock'n'roll revival succeeds in England, there's no question the U.S. will follow suit and at least attempt to bring back people like Chuck Berry, Jerry Lee Lewis and Haley.

Berry has been a San Francisco favorite for years, even after his decline as a recording artist. He always manages to draw large crowds locally at the ballrooms and not too long ago Berry released an album recorded live at the Fillmore.

If rock'n'roll can make the grade it did over a decade ago, it'll be an interesting movement to follow and analyze. Meanwhile keep your leather jacket polished, blue suede shoes buffed and don't overdo the grease on that glistening pompadour job.

It's been fun . . . and hopefully this column will return in the fall to haunt you once again.

"GO, JOHNNY, GO!" From the looks of things, the granddaddy of 'em all, Chuck Berry, is due for another shot at the crown. He still tours the States, turning on crowds wherever he goes with his youthful stage maneuvers and nostalgic guitar-slinging tunes. Needless to say, he's not too pooped to pop.

Samaritans Serve Snacks On Streetcar

A group of students from City College set off last Wednesday on a municipal railway goodwill journey.

Their theme was "Start the Day Off Right"; they served coffee and donuts free of charge to passengers on board the K-Ingleside streetcar from the East Bay terminal to Phelan avenue between the hours of 6:49 and 7:29 a.m.

One hundred and thirty-two cups of coffee and a gross of donuts were given away. The goodwill ambassadors were Richard Toy, Paul Bourbin, Aleta Friedman, William Moriyama, Benna Manders and Gail Malaspina.

The students were given discounts on the food items by Safeway, Hunt's Donut Shop and Fat Boy, Melvin Ogden, the motorman, also donated to the fund. The entire project was student financed and student organized.

Faculty 'Not Realistic' And 'Out Of Touch', Says Derrick Hill

By Lavine Lee

"There should be a better understanding between the administration, the faculty, and the students," stated Derrick Hill, next semester's Associated Students president.

In order to promote a better relationship and understanding, Hill has suggested various changes for this campus that he will attempt to initiate next semester. According to the new AS president, these changes are mainly oriented to benefit the students, but because this college's administration is basically conservative, the changes he has in mind will be hard to get.

In classes, Hill would like to see the word "Mr." be abolished. He wants to "make students aware" since "people usually don't care and are sleeping."

Next semester's president also wants to set up centers to get equal job and housing opportunities for minority groups. He wants leaders from these groups who will help in fighting for the things they want. He also wants these changes to be peaceful.

IN COMMENTING about the Campus Police, Hill stated that the police should be here to serve the students. Gary Barton, a member of Coalition and next term's Student Council, claims that there has been a "harassment" of students by the police, and that since the police have not been doing an efficient job, they and their powers should be "re-evaluated."

An example of such harassment was when the police singled out the Peace and Freedom party and subjected them to lengthy questioning. The police, however, ignored the Kennedy and McCarthy campaigners who were also passing out leaflets.

Hill also hopes to make the present voluntary Course Evaluation Program mandatory. He stated that instructors "are not very efficient and they are out of touch" with the problems and needs of students.

The new AS president also would like to extend the Experimental College program, revise the entrance examination, obtain teachers' aides, create a student court that would handle student discipline, and establish a more efficient job placement center that will meet the demands of minority racial groups.

ONE OF THE MAIN problems the Coalition party foresees next semester is raising money. While they want to raise money, they also want to give more benefits to the student. Hill has suggested, to help in this problem, that more money-making activities be set up.

In commenting about the elections, the new president said he thought it was a good turnout, and that he was happy with the results.

"All of the members of Coalition are sincere," he said. He feels that his party represents all students since it consists of Chinese, Latins, Peace and Freedom followers, and many more of the other minority groups.

The newly elected officers for the Fall semester were initiated last Wednesday night at the Associated Students' banquet.

Continued List Of Student Scholarship Winners For Spring

Space precluded listing the following names of scholarship winners for Spring 1968 at the Awards Assembly as reported last week.

Linda Ann Bill, Karen Millicent Lee, Ronald John Theberge, Kenneth J. K. Yee, Olav M. Gergram, Kenneth Wayne Chin, Jutta Erika Diemath, Edward Jew, Terrance Kenneth Jew, Tamara Salliel, Fred S. Yung, Laurel Ashworth, James K. Wong, Florine Gallegos, Mariko Abe, Krisida Jones, William Kenny, Michael Martin, Robert Mennucci, Nicholas Vicerra, Christopher Wood, Harold G. Rosati, Michael Zak, Stephen J. Gudell, Dorothy Brannigan, Walter Stream, Herman Eberlzach, Irene Lau, Peter Rutherford, James Raccomello, Vernon Wong, Linton Houston.

Pearl Bernard, Oswald Gomez, Joseph Barthelemy, Vincent Bray, Chun-Wing Chan, William Kenefeck, Patrick Lee, Susia Quan Lee, Rose Mae Low, John P. Smith, Marlene Tran, Linda Ming Wong, William Chan, Ray Decalio, Diana Kourmatos, Virginia Ma, Yut Quan, David Smith, Terrance Jew, Glory Chaw, Thomas Hall, Mary Ho, D Katherine Karam, Pansy Kwong, Joseph Lum, Rosa Perez, Philip Witkower, Charles Goldenberg, Diana Lee.

Rose Lew, Laura Birchetti, Kenneth Yee, Stephen Wong, Gary Yee, Gilda Gallope, Mike Shafer, Moses Chow, Vladimir Dobroff, Clifford H. Hayashi, Christopher Loo, Calvin Louie, Oscar Louie, Efran Sapiendante, David Stone, Michael Wise, Joyce Carey, Eris Davis, Carol Deitrich, Ann Perro, Judy Gong, Mario Gonzalez, Susie Lee, Stephanie Melvin, Alfreda Smith, Carol Jean Smith, Gladys Chaw, Joanne Tong, Deborah Emerson, Virginia Ling Chan, Wayne Chin, Frieda Leixner, Dwight Lum.

John P. Smith, Ann Gobbo, Alice L.Iame, Helen Lee, Terry Nathan, Rose Toy, Helena Yee, Michael Raasch, Timothy Clark, Clifford Williams, Van Nickerson, Bruno Leuzinger, Robert Sibold, Julie Glenewinkel, John Carreest, Bert Boe, George Mlaulin, Ben Pickell, Alex Wong, Clifford Replogle, Peggy Roswurm, Tom Craven, Leslie Porter, Jerrold Leong, Bob Dannehold, Walter Johnson, James McGillcuddy, Terry Rickel, Wade Schnee.

Richard Viera, Barry Knowlton, Owen Black, Antonio Bendana, Arthur Hansen, Michael Valle, Martha Birch, Willie Neelson, Stephen Haverty, Charles Bolds, Reggie Baumgardner, Berit Hovde, Janet McCarthy, E. Marie Anderson, Elaine Banchieri, Doris Ogawa, Rhoda Albritton, Betty Hughes and Gerald Corey.

Final Examination Schedule

Spring Semester 1968

Class Hour & Day		Final Exam Time	Day
3-4	Daily	1:00-5:00	Thursday, June 6
3-4	M-W-F	1:00-3:00	Thursday, June 6
3-4	T-Th	3:30-5:30	Thursday, June 6
3:45-5	T-Th	3:30-5:30	Thursday, June 6
3-4:25	T-Th	3:30-5:30	Thursday, June 6
8-9	Daily	8:00-12:00	Friday, June 7
8-9	M-W-F	8:00-10:00	Friday, June 7
8-9	T-Th	10:30-12:30	Friday, June 7
8-9:25	T-Th	10:30-12:30	Friday, June 7
8:45-10	T-Th	10:30-12:30	Friday, June 7
1-2	Daily	1:00-5:00	Friday, June 7
1-2	M-W-F	1:00-3:00	Friday, June 7
1-2	T-Th	3:30-5:30	Friday, June 7
1-2:25	T-Th	3:30-5:30	Friday, June 7
1:45-3	T-Th	3:30-5:30	Friday, June 7
12-1	Daily	8:00-12:00	Monday, June 10
12-1	M-W-F	8:00-10:00	Monday, June 10
12-1	T-Th	10:30-12:30	Monday, June 10
12-1:25	T-Th	10:30-12:30	Monday, June 10
12:45-2	T-Th	10:30-12:30	Monday, June 10
11-12	Daily	8:00-12:00	Tuesday, June 11
11-12	M-W-F	8:00-10:00	Tuesday, June 11
11 T, -11, T, F		10:30-12:30	Tuesday, June 11
4-5	Daily	1:00-5:00	Tuesday, June 11
4-5	M-W-F	1:00-3:00	Tuesday, June 11
4-5	T-Th	3:30-5:30	Tuesday, June 11
4-5:25	T-Th	3:30-5:30	Tuesday, June 11
4:45-6	T-Th	3:30-5:30	Tuesday, June 11
10-11	Daily	8:00-12:00	Wednesday, June 12
10-11	M-W-F	8:00-10:00	Wednesday, June 12
10-11	T-Th	10:30-12:30	Wednesday, June 12
10-11 Th, 11 T		10:30-12:30	Wednesday, June 12
9-10	Daily	8:00-12:00	Thursday, June 13
9-10	M-W-F	8:00-10:00	Thursday, June 13
9-11	Daily	8:00-12:00	Thursday, June 13
9-10	T-Th	10:30-12:30	Thursday, June 13
9:10-25	T-Th	10:30-12:30	Thursday, June 13
9:45-11	T-Th	10:30-12:30	Thursday, June 13
2-3	Daily	1:00-5:00	Thursday, June 13
2-3	M-W-F	1:00-3:00	Thursday, June 13
1-3	Daily	1:00-5:00	Thursday, June 13
2-3	T-Th	3:30	Thursday, June 13
2-3:35	T-Th	3:30	Thursday, June 13
2:45-4	T-Th	3:30	Thursday, June 13
7-8	Daily	8:00-12:00	Friday, June 14
7-8	M-W-F	8:00-10:00	Friday, June 14
7-8	T-Th	10:30-12:30	Friday, June 14
7:8:25	T-Th	10:30-12:30	Friday, June 14
7:45-9	T-Th	10:30-12:30	Friday, June 14
5-6	Daily	8:00-12:00	Friday, June 14
5-6	M-W-F	8:00-10:00	Friday, June 14
Chemistry 1A		8:00-12:00	Thursday, June 6
Bus. Ad. 1A		3:15-6:00	Monday, June 10

Rooms to be Arranged by Instructors

The Lick Of Love

GUARDSMAN PHOTOGRAPHER Doug Mills caught this little episode of canine affection with his camera recently. The scene here was love on the grass with the master on the left gettin' his lovin' from man's best friend.

The Critic, Budget Main Topics In Council Meeting

Student Council balanced the budget and passed an Alabama Social Program in a whirlwind session last week.

In a surprise move Wednesday, council slashed $4015 from the Free Critic's $4016 budget request.

During debate on a $20 bulletin board, Dennis Mundt suggested that the request be dropped and that the Critic be moved to Bungalow 5.

The money needed for publication was cut entirely. After a spirited exchange of charges and countercharges involving rights and ethics, council approved the proposed cuts by a vote of 9-4.

In cutting funds from the Critic, Student Council balanced the AS budget. Approval of the revised budget was approved in vote taken Monday of this week.

Campus organizations can now commit their allocated funds without concern for a rumored blanket cut.

Sophomore Councilman Jim Dierke introduced a resolution for a campus fund-raising drive and travel expenses for two City College students.

After considerable discussion, Sophomore Council Representative Pat Fuiren amended the wording and the resolution was passed by a majority.

Highlights of last week's activities include a fight to keep the choir and the removal of the annual Bloek Club dinner.

Contact Lens:

What's Your Opinion Of The Free Critic And The Guardsman?

GOMEZ

LUM

John Lum, general education student

The Free Critic started out as a good idea. They would attack things and present both sides. It was supposed to find out all the angles. The main idea was to infuriate people which in some cases it did. The Guardsman is a little more mellow about what it says. It reports tea parties and things. However, I think The Guardsman is more interesting this semester than in the past. I enjoy its sports pages and the Labelled and Recorded column.

John Gopez, general education major

The Critic states everything to the extreme by being very critical. It makes people aware of what's going on. I don't think the Critic infuriates people at all. Just the name, Free Critic, tells you what it's about. The Guardsman presents some ideas too, but you have to interpret them your own way. It seems The Guardsman has more humor such as the article about the girls on campus—Distractions. I read both the papers. I enjoy the record column. The other columns say what's been said before.

Lois Martin, English major

The Free Critic is a little more liberal than The Guardsman. I enjoy reading both papers. They both have something to say and they say it in their own way. I do feel The Guardsman has improved considerably. There's nothing special I like about The Guardsman, I just read what's there. If I had a choice I'd keep the Critic because it presents both sides.

MARTIN

Arthur Robinson, medical records technology

The Critic is opposed to The Guardsman—that's why it exists. Freedom of expression keep students from rioting and demonstrating. I do object to the obscenities. It would be a better paper if they cleaned it up a little. The Guardsman is a typical college paper geared to instruct the journalist student. I'd hate to see the Critic go, but if there was a choice I'd say keep The Guardsman because it's part of the curriculum.

ROBINSON

Compiled by Barbara Hamann, photos by Doug Mills

SHOOTIN' IT

by D. K. Dorn

THIS IS THE END: Jim Morrison's words run through the column's head as we hang up our line gauges and typewriter ribbons for another semester. Before this column goes to the big crash pad in the sky, certain kudos must be given.

● The Free Critic, the gazine of free thought, sex and dope, has provided the college a needed voice. It hit the administration and the USA where it registered.

● Physics instructor Paul Hewitt, justly chosen as the college's best teacher twice. He had the ability to communicate an understanding and not just facts. He digs on having students learning something, instead of just being taught so many useless facts.

Some of the dubious notes for all times should be given to the USA party (couldn't think of a better parody ourselves, but then life imitates art); Dean Mary Golding who is a real trip; the campus cops; the A. J. Shooter Co., the contractor who dug digging up the campus during rainy season in the name of beautification; and the magnificent Muni for their mystic service to CCSF.

• • •

ERSATZ AVANT-GUARDE: The column's competitor for risque items, Wiseacre, will push for a lovely babe to blossom the pages of the paper next term. Under the heading of "Ramette of the Week" the young lovelies will harden the arteries and other anotomical features of readers until a real winner comes along who'll be "Ram-it" suggests new editor Mike Duggan.

• • •

COPS PUSH LSD: The Light Sights Dream dance last Friday (sponsored by Chi Rho Delta, a frat of many campus fuzzies, but not made up of policemen exclusively) shows to go you that even the cops will follow the fad.

• • •

SEX NEWS: For those that care, the latest poll among the homosexual vote shows that "Clean" Eugene McCarthy is ahead of Senator Robert Kennedy. This reveals McCarthy's wide appeal to minority groups. Kennedy is chucked aside because of his involvement with the Army-McCarthy hearings which had overtones that were not very nice to homosexuals.

• • •

SOUNDS: "Labelled and Recorded" Martin J.R. Beau-Nitch commences a column in the British music trade publication "Beat Instrumental" on the West Coast Scene. Young Martin plans to plug the local scene to those British blokes who think all American music comes from Mowtown.

• • •

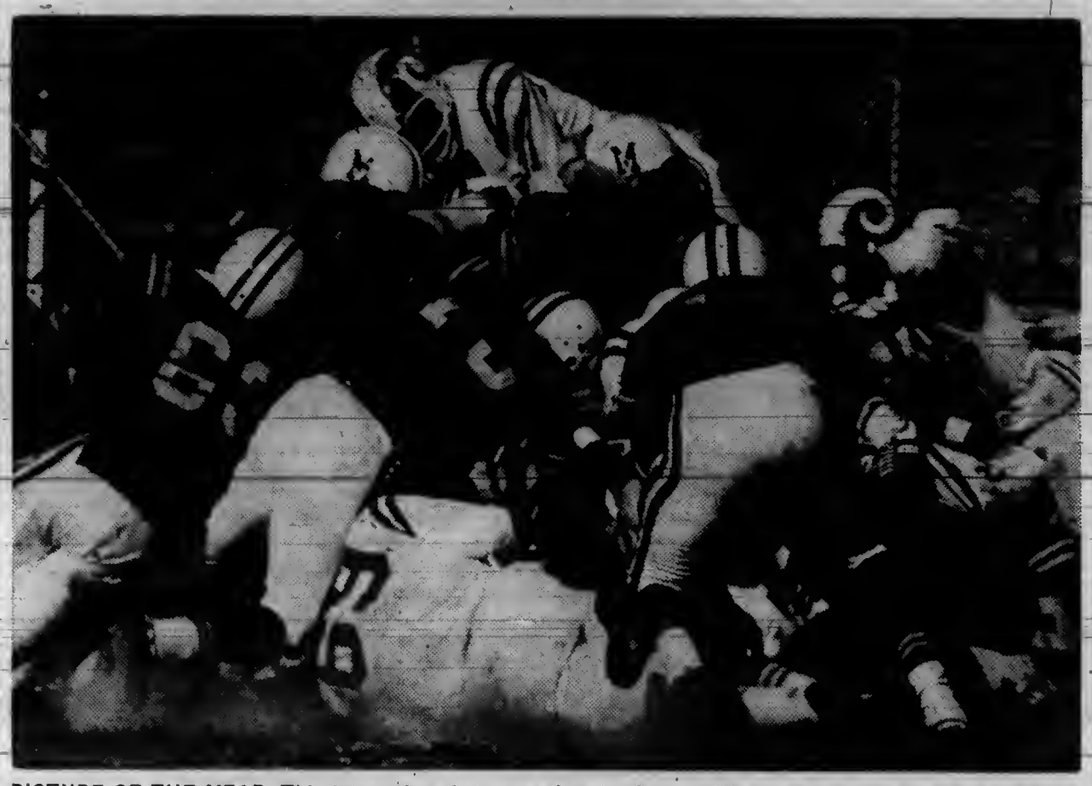
THE QUICK AND THE DEAD: Note to Martin J., who failed to make note of Quicksilver Messenger Service's album on Capitol, and hence missed one of this town's best recordings. The Quick's album captures the group's vibrant stage sound which is so often lost in the recording studio. The Grateful Dead's first album lost the intensity of a live performance. However, the Dead's second album, which may be out within the week, has portions of it recorded at the Carousel Ballroom.

But we concur with Peter (4:5) who asked "Who shall give account to him that is ready to judge the quick and the dead?"

• • •

NOTE TO COALITION: After watching student power go astray at State when the speech makers started believing themselves, power without compassion is the same as law without justice—both conditions are equally corrupt.

• • •



TAKE A COP TO LUNCH WEEK: The city cops are now consulting public relations firms to help improve their image after too many sessions by the "Tactical Squad" of bashing people's heads in. They really want to get their Proposition O passed. It's so very fine to see the police reminded that they're public servants, and not vice-versa.

• • •

Eulogies are fine when the dearly beloved did something worthwhile in the first place, but what can be said when one's only accomplishment has been to spend time shootin' it?

Nonetheless, it's been outta sight until the end.

Fumble!

PICTURE OF THE YEAR. This interesting shot was taken by Samuel Woo and shows 13 men looking for a football. Rams shown include Willie Lewis, on top, Ed Diaz (69) on bottom, and Jon Dyson (24) at far right.

Phi Delta Takes Basketball Crown; Bell Retains Boxing Title At AMS Sportsnite

By Willy Durkin

This semester's Associated Men Students' Sportsnite, Thursday, May 23, perhaps one of the more enjoyable in its recent history, may have been termed a flop because of the ridiculously poor attendance. Even the presence of San Francisco 49er defensive star Alvin Randolph, as guest speaker, did nothing to encourage patrons.

For the third consecutive time the Phi Delta fraternity brought home in the intramural championship.

In the second half the champs switched from a zone to a man-to-man defense and found their own eagle-eyed shooters in Mickey Senn and Dale Sutton.

As guards, Senn and Sutton meshed 13 points apiece, forwards John Casey and Bill Licthenberger completely dominated the offensive and defensive boards; final score—Phi Delts 55, the Can't Lasts 44.

THE NEXT EVENT on the program was an exhibition put on by the best gymnasts in the college's gym classes. Patrick Avera drew special praise for his fine exhibition.

Wrestling, the newest event to be added, was one of the real crowd-pleasers. In the first event, the lightweights, Phi Rancatore had a tough time with opponent Phi Weber but went on to become a victor.

In the heavyweight class Bob Buchness completely overwhelmed the surprised Nick Castro from the starting bell; Buchness went on to win on his deadly atomic bomb hold.

THE USUAL gym-filling boxing matches lost none of its luster by the lack of attendance. To start the ball rolling, or the gloves hitting, as the case may be, were the bantam weights. Bert Dare defeated the fisty Rico Calderon.

In the lightweight category, Jose Garcia barely won over Curtis Wong.

The most controversial bout of the evening, pitted Bob 'K.O.' Freethy against Andrew Lee. Lee, easily the best boxer of the two, had to contend with the unbelievable stamina of 'K.O.,' trained by Goofy Gaffney.

'K.O.' early in the fight won the heart of the crowd, but Lee carefully squeaked out a split decision.

MIDDLEWEIGHT Claude Moreau had little trouble defeating Al Ehni in a relatively uneventful bout.

The heavyweight division consisted of two fights. The first 'tiff' matched spunky Wade Francois against the longer-reached Wes Simpson. Simpson won in a close and unpopular decision.

The final bout of the evening had the college's heavyweight champ, Joe Bell, against the underdog challenger, Orice Pittman. Pittman looked good in the first round, but in the final two, Bell used his bull-like tactics and experience to overpower his opponent for the decision.

Rich Glass Elected Block SF President At Awards Dinner

The Block SF semiannual awards banquet featured steak dinners for all spring athletes and honored the most valuable players for the spring teams. Also, Curt Decker, adviser of the Block SF, named the new officers for next term.

Selected as new Block SF president to succeed Jesse Figueroa was swimmer Rich Glass. Baseball player Tom Mayfield was elected secretary and swimmer Jim Vida was named the treasurer.

Golf Coach Grover Klemmer named Doug Boston as his team's most valuable player. Vida made it a complete evening by being selected the swimming team's top player.

Ernie Provost, City College's best-ever sprinter, earned most valuable man on the track team.

The championship basketball and tennis teams' top players were Gary Bradford and John Wong respectively. In baseball, Coach Ernie Domecus picked first baseman Chuck Gretton as the most valuable player.

Cordellos Brothers In Bay-Breakers Run

The Examiner Bay-to-Breakers race on May 26 saw some unusual runners; mainly numbers 134 and 135.

Number 134 was Harry Cordellos and 135 is his brother Pete. Pete is the equipment manager here at City College.

Harry, blind, saw the race in his youth and made it his life's goal to one day run the famed Bay-to-Breakers race. He now is a major in physical education.

The 30-year-old Cordellos ran the 7.7 miles with the aid of Dr. Richard Rivenes, a professor at California State where Harry now attends.

Dr. Rivenes guided Cordellos in the marathon run, and paced him throughout the run. Pete Cordellos later remarked that, "Harry finished strong and was not breathing hard."

Spikers Take Sixth Place In State Meet; Provost Stars

By Dave Albertson

Modesto's state meet Saturday, May 25, brought this year's track season to a close with City College finishing in a tie for sixth place in the state.

Ernie Provost did a repeat performance of last year's state meet by taking a third place in the 100. Provost ran a 9.5 for third in comparison to last season's 9.4 third place finish.

Mickey Mathews of Laney and Don Moore of East Los Angeles were also clocked in 9.5, but were awarded first and second in a photo finish with Provost and fourth place finisher Lorenzo Russell of LA City College.

PROVOST PLACED higher in the 220 taking second with a fast time of 21.2. He finished two tenths of a second behind Moore of East Los Angeles. Moore's time of 21 flat broke the old meet record of 21.2 set in 1966 by Griffin of Contra Costa.

The Ram mile relay team of Steve Jordan, Vince Ansley, Larry Mosely and Provost lowered their recently established school record of 3:15.1. Jordan's opening leg of 49.8 was followed by Ansley with a 48.7, Mosely in 47.8 and Provost with an anchor leg of 48.6

Their new record of 3:14.7 placed them fifth behind San Diego Mesa, who won the meet mile relay in 3:13.2.

A highlight of the meet was San Caruthers of San Jose winning the pole vault at 16 feet even.

Mosely came through with a respectable fourth place finish in the 440 with a time of 48.7. Ansley finished seventh in 49.1. Monty Turner of East LA won with a 47.8 quarter.

FRED JACKSON of Laney stole the high jump championship away from Don Pierce of Diablo Valley with the fewer misses ruling. Jackson and Pierce both cleared 6-10 in their first and second place finishes. Tom Clyburn of the Rams finished sixth with a jump of 6-6.

Marion Anderson of Contra Costa easily won the long jump at 24-9 with Earl Harris of San Jose placing second at 24-5½.

Greg Jackson of the Rams ended up the season with a sixth place finish in the 330 intermediate hurdles. Jackson ran a fine 38.3 for his sixth place finish behind winner Herman Franklin of Los Angeles Harbor, who won in 36.5.

DuWayne Ray of Modesto ran a fast 4:10.8 in taking the mile championship. Chip Minnich of Cerritos was second in 4:13.2 while Ed Temple of San Mateo was third in 4:13.3. Ray failed to make it a double victory by finishing fifth in the two-mile in 9:11.4. Hartman of Palomar won the two-mile in 9:06 flat.

East Los Angeles won the junior college section of the meet with a team total of 49 points followed by Laney with 35, San Jose 30, Hancock 25, LA City 25 and San Francisco 22.

Other Golden Gate schools placing in the team scoring were Contra Costa in sixteenth place with 14 points and San Mateo well back in the standings with eight points.

THIS SEASON saw outstanding performances by City College's second season veterans Ernie Provost, Forrest Shute, Greg Jackson and David Jones. Provost starred for the Rams all season in the sprints, winning almost every race he ran. Shute turned in another fine year for the Rams in moving his school pole vault record up to 13-10.

Jackson made a great comeback late in the year after an early season leg injury. Jones added many valuable points to the Ram scores, but was kept out of later season action due to a leg injury.

Newcomers Vince Ansley, Vic Cary, George Haza, Tom Clyburn and Bill Butler aided the Ram attack in their first season. Ansley finished second in the conference and seventh in the state in the 440. Cary took numerous Ram firsts in doubling in the 880 and mile.

Haza came through in fine fashion gathering many places in his distance running efforts for the Rams.

Clyburn managed to win the conference high jump crown and added points in the long jump.

The Rams should have many returning veterans from this year's team next season and hope to see a large turnout of newcomers.

Ram Golfer Wins Stockton Tourney On Three-Iron Shot

City College golfer Doug Boston captured the Stockton City Men's Golf Championship last week, edging Ernie Godina of Stockton and Bob Eastwood of San Jose at Swenson Park in Stockton.

The little 5-foot, 8½-inch, 125-pounder, who is just 19 years old and had never won an adult tournament, needed a birdie on the last hole to win—and he got it.

Boston wound up four over par, with 74-74—148, and right on his heels were Godina (149) and Eastwood (150). Eastwood had won the tournament the previous two years.

Boston was six strokes back of Godina after bogeying the 11th and 12th holes. He parred the next three, birdied 16, parred 17 and birdied 18, making difficult putts on four of the last five holes.

He didn't take the lead in the tournament until a 35-foot birdie putt dropped into the cup on 16. The Ram golfer then made a par-3 on the 17th hole and needed a birdie on 18 to win. He got off a good drive down the middle, and then hit his second shot, a three-iron, on the green 15 feet from the cup. Boston then two-putted for the victory.

Ironically, a friend had entered Boston in the tournament. Boston, needless to say, was very thankful for his friend's efforts.

Smith, Williams Selected To All-Conference Baseball Teams

There were a few bright spots in the Ram baseball season, as despite 8 wins and 13 losses the year showed promise for next year as Jim Smith will return to pace the Rams' title hope for next year. Smith and Odel Williams both made all-conference, first and second clubs respectively.

The season ended with Williams leading all hitters with a .364 swat mark and tied Chuck Gretton in the number of hits at 26.

Smith, the former Mission High star, paced the Ram first year men as he pounded the ball at a .338 clip and led the team with 15 runs batted in.

Gretton, ending his playing days at City College, led the team in runs with 18 and in games played (21). He also has the most at-bats and tied for the most hits as well as batting .302. He failed by a mere two votes to make the second club all-conference.

Smith leads the returning players. Some of the returning players are Manny Berrios, shortstop Tim Callen, pitcher Joe Dutto, and second baseman Andy Fracchia. They are only a few of the 27 freshmen on the 38-man preseason roster. Fracchia will long remember the Ram-Merritt contest where he collected 3 hits to lead the Rams to a 25-13 slugfest.

Pitcher John Portoni had one of the finest days at the plate. He batted four-for-four at the plate and pitched one of the finest games of the year, striking out 10 as he defeated Merritt 6-5.

Other outstanding performances saw Berrios go for three hits twice during the season. Once against Foothill where he went three-for-four—scoring two runs and getting two batted in.

Smith led the club in homers, hitting three in the season. In the Chabot contest Smith went three-for-four and collecting four runs batted in. He also led in triples with two and doubles with three and in total bases, 39.

Ram baseballers received awards at the Awards Dinner May 27; the following players were honored: Bill Bacigalupi, Jeff Baker, Ken Batiloro, Larry Brady, Manny Berrios, Tim Callen, Joe Dutto, Andy Fracchia, Chuck Grey, Chuck Gretton, Erv Jones, Dave Kline, Gerry Lagamarsino, Bill McDonagh, Gil Milan, Dave Parsons, John Portoni, Bob Rovspil, Jeff Tilley, Hane Vigil, Bill Wilkens, and Odel Williams.—A. F.

RAMBLINGS

Two Former Ram Ball Players Named MVP

By Mike Duggan

TWO FORMER Ram baseball players were recently selected by the Examiner as Most Valuable Players for their respective colleges. One was Biff Barnes of USF, who played here three years ago and this year hit .301 and fielded at a .930 average at his second base position.

At San Francisco State, shortstop Tom Callen batted .267 but had a fine .928 fielding average and was selected as the Gators' top player.

Many of this year's football stars have gone on to four-year colleges. Wayne McConico, the Rams' top rusher this season, is now at Utah State. All-conference end Mike Carter and running back Calvin Booth have moved on to Sacramento State while All-league tackle Ralph Hodge is now at San Francisco State.

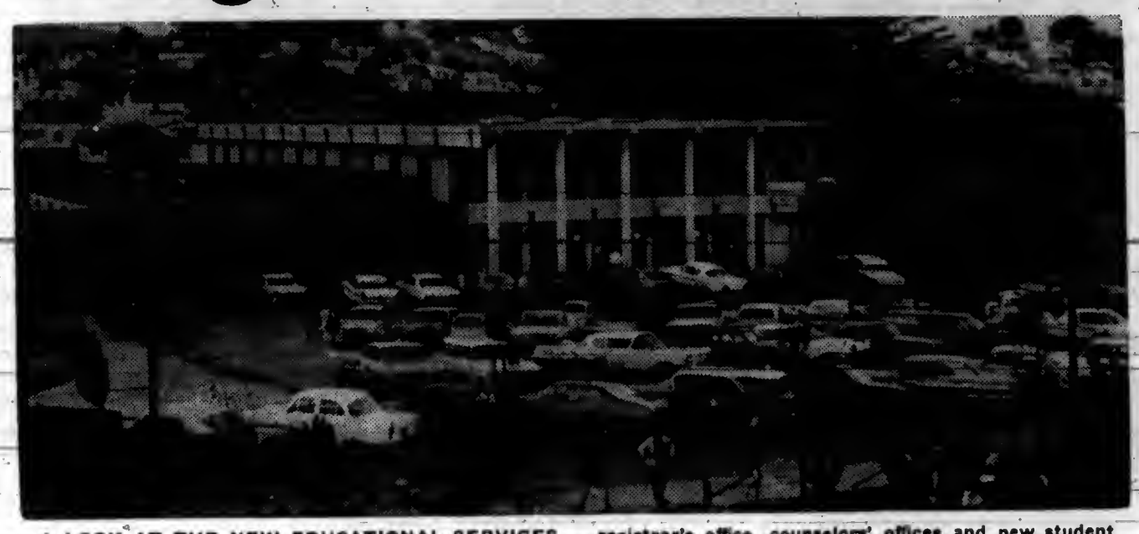
HOY HENDERSON, who last season won the Golden Gate Conference 880 for the Rams, set a Cal State (Hayward) school record in that same event this year.

The NCAA track and field championships, scheduled for June 13, 14 and 15 at Cal have received quite a jolt from the news that 880 and mile record holder Jim Ryun is out of the meet. If track fans can suffer through a boring 1500 and a lousy 800 meters, the meet still will have the likes of Lennox Miller, Earl McCullough, O. J. Simpson, Bob Seagren, Willie Turner, Larry James and Lee Evans.

Why isn't ex-Ram Walt 'No Neck' Williams playing this season for the Chicago White Sox? The answer—the White Sox now have former National League batting champion Tommie Davis. So then, why doesn't Davis play all the time? The answer—the Sox have rookie Bill Voss, currently ripping American League pitching apart with a torrid .143 average, more than 40 points below the worst Oakland A.

TRACK COACH Lou Vasquez should take some credit for the fact that Ernie Provost finished up the year with clockings of 21.1, 21.1, and 21.2 in the 220, a race in which he rarely broke 22 flat last year. The logical reason for the noticeable improvement is that Vasquez put his star sprinter on the mile relay team this year and all the 440 legs Provost ran built up his stamina so he was still strong at the finish of his 220s.

The state basketball tourney for next year has been awarded to Fresno City College (March 6-8). The 1970 tournament will be hosted by Long Beach (March 20-21).



In 1970, regional state basketball playoffs will go into effect and the state tourney will then be a two-day affair with two teams from both Northern and Southern California.

City College will host the state championship tennis tournament next year.

SCHOOL YEAR

1968 — 1969

College Educational Services Building Now Open

A LOOK AT THE NEW EDUCATIONAL SERVICES BUILDING which opened to students this fall. Among others, the new building houses the president's office, registrar's office, counselors' offices and new student bookstore.

—Guardsman photo by Gavin L. Watt

New Site For Registrar's Office, Administrator's

The new Educational Services Building, located at the southwest corner of the campus, is the new site of the registrar's office and the headquarters of various administrators of the college.

Louis G. Conlan, President of City College, is among those officials who has changed his office location.

Also John J. Brady, Coordinator of Student Welfare and Dr. Harry R. Buttimer, Coordinator of Educational Management have offices in this building.

In addition, the offices of Director of Student Activities, Lawrence R. Lawson; the Dean of Students, Ralph Hillsman; Dean of Women, Mary Golding, and Veteran's Counselor, Robin Dunn, are in the new building.

Students may also find the day and evening registrar's office, counseling, testing, and student finance offices in the new Educational Services Building. A lecture hall, seating approximately 250 students has also been included. Important to everyone is the campus bookstore, conveniently located in this building. It replaces the old Ramporium Bookstore.

According to Buttimer, the Educational Services Building was built "to relieve congestion in office areas and to provide for expansion." These original goals have been achieved. The building is located on the southwest corner of the campus and covers approximately 30,000 square feet.

Architect Miiton Pflueger drew up the plans for the building and the 18-month construction was done by Carl Olson & Company. The new building was officially opened last August.

Financing for the building was provided by a one million dollar bond issue from San Francisco and a one-half million dollar appropriation from the State of California.

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 67 | SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 18, 1968 | NUMBER 1

Drama Department Seeks 39 Actors For Roles In Upcoming Royal Hunt Of The Sun Play

By Boku Kodama

The Royal Hunt of the Sun will be the first play to be performed here this semester by the drama department and will offer some unusual effects with an array of original music.

Dr. Walter Krumm, head of the drama department and director of the play, stated that this will be the biggest production he has ever undertaken, and hopes for a large turnout when the tryouts are held today and tomorrow afternoons at 2 p.m. in the College Theater.

Although two actors have already been chosen in the form of James Haran, drama instructor, and John Cochrane, another drama instructor and director-actor of last semester's Slow Dance On The Killing Ground, 39 other parts still must be filled.

NOT ONLY will performers be needed for the play, but 12 dancers and four musicians also.

The Royal Hunt Of The Sun is a two-hour play written by English playwright Peter Shaffer in 1965. Dr. Krumm said that Shaffer's play was written in the style of the existentialists of France.

The story is derived from the history books when the Spanish explorer, Juan Pizarro, conquered the Incas in the year 1533.

The setting takes place in Peru, high in the Andes Mountains. With a band of only 102 soldiers, Pizarro, an old soldier in his sixties, overtook five million Incas, who were led by their young king, Atahuallpa.

The performances, which will be held on November 6 through 9 and again November 13 through 16 in the College Theater, will feature a light show with strobe lights and original music, including rock, organ, jungle music and even some bird calls. The play will employ the entire theater, and as Dr. Krumm worded it, "We will make the audience feel right in the middle of it all."

PAUL CROWLEY, drama instructor, will again supply the background settings which will be both on the stage and in the auditorium. Margrit Affalter will design and produce the large wardrobe, while Lene Johnson, Physical Education instructor, will direct the dance numbers.

The Royal Hunt Of The Sun was first performed by professional companies in London in 1965.

Faculty-Student Lounge To Open In Near Future

A Student-Faculty lounge, established to promote better communication between instructors and students will be opened this semester in Cloud Hall, Room 330.

Arthur Evans, a member of the faculty who is well acquainted with this new development, has stated that there is neither privacy nor enough room in an instructor's office to hold conferences with one student, let alone several.

The need for a lounge in which the instructor may invite students is not new. The idea was discussed last year, but was dropped until completion of the new educational building, which relieved crowded conditions in Cloud Hall. The new lounge will be situated at the old mimeograph room located in Cloud Hall, which was made available when the mimeograph equipment was moved to the old registrar's office. The registrar's office is now located in the new Educational Service Building. The lounge will also be a convenience to some of the faculty since it will be found on the floor in which their offices are located.

Evans furthur stated that he hopes the new lounge can have the added pleasures of a vending machine and hot plate for coffee usage, features which have been approved, but not yet carried out.

Another possibility will be the inclusion of a divider to tone down any interruptions instructors may cause when using the vending machines. Other lounges will be available pending the success of the first one."

W. C. Fields In Film Series

The American comedy film entitled Million Dollar Legs, starring W. C. Fields, the second of a series of 11 films (both American and foreign) to be shown here, is scheduled for tomorrow, 8 p.m. in the College Theater.

As well as comedian W. C. Fields, who heads the cast in this 1932 satire of the Olympics, also appearing is Jack Oakie.

All performances begin at 8 p.m. and are open to all City College students and their guests.

Admission is free.

The uncoming schedule runs as follows:

September 26	Antigone (Greece)
October 3	Richard III (England)
October 10	One Potato Two Potato (USA)
October 24	War Of The Buttons (France)
October 31	La Terra Trema (Italy)
November 21	The Servant (England)
December 5	To Die In Madrid (Spain)
December 12	Nobody Waved Goodbye (Canada)
January 2	Nothing But A Man (Canada)

Aid Program Offers Help For Students

By Elizabeth Ramos

A centralized Financial Aid Program, with several types of resources, has now been established on this campus, according to the newly appointed Financial Aid Advisor, Kenneth Castellino.

"The Financial Aid Program is intended not only for those who are suffering in poverty, but also for those of modest means where financial aid means the difference between their being able to continue in college or dropping out," stated Castellino.

THE FINANCIAL AID Office is open during school days from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. for appointment dates, and is located in S-149.

There are many resources that are now available to students, one of which is under the Educational Opportunity Grant Program. In general, it is a grant-in-aid program intended to assist students who, without substantial aid such as this, could not attend college. A student may be granted as much as $200 to $800 matched by a National Defense Student Loan, a scholarship, or on-campus employment. For eligibility, this program is restricted to students from families with very low income.

ANOTHER RESOURCE is the College Work Study Program. The program allows up to 15 hours of employment per week to qualified students from families of very low and modest income levels. In addition, the College's Placement Office personnel assists students in locating part-time jobs, both on and off campus. The hourly wage is $1.61 or approximately $90 to $100 per month during the school year.

The National Defense Student Loan Program can be of great help. It is a program of low interest long-term loans up to $1000 per year with special cancellation benefits for those who enter teaching careers. The program allows the student $200 to $1000 per year, depending on their need.

Lastly, there is the Federally Insured Student Loan Program. This is a federally sponsored long-term loan program with largely the same terms as the National Defense Student Loan Programs, but with no teacher cancellation provisions.

LOANS WILL be processed jointly by the college and a cooperating agency, for families whose annual income is under $15,000. An agency of the Federal Government will pay all of the interest (seven per cent) while the student is in school, and three per cent after the student terminates his education. The largest amount that can be borrowed is $1000 per year, depending on the need.

Additional information and applications may be obtained from Castellino in his office.

Replaces Wyatt

Lawson Appointed Dean Of Student Activities

The new dean of student activities, replacing James Wyatt this semester, will be the former chairman of the criminology department, Larry Lawson.

Lawson's main task is to plan, finance and schedule all activities on campus. He feels his main objective this semester will be "to work in the interest of all the students and to bring instructors and students closer together."

Lawson was born and raised in San Francisco where he attended St. Ignatius High School. After St. Ignatius, he went on to the University of San Francisco on an academic scholarship. While at USF, he was a member of the honor society, Alpha Sigma Nu, and he was student body president during 1949 and 1950.

Before coming to City College, Lawson was an inspector in the juvenile department of the San Francisco Police Force for eleven years.

Lawson took his student teacher's training at Aptos Junior High School, and he also spent some time teaching at the San Francisco Police Academy. His first permanent teaching assignment was here at the college where he doubled as an assistant football coach and criminology instructor.

Commenting on his job, Lawson said, "It's a challenge, no question about it."

Council Holds Critic Funds

The semester's first Student Council meeting opened up last Wednesday in a flurry of debates, points of order, and discussions on Robert's Rules of Order.

The two main topics of discussion concerned the position of the Finance Committee chairman and funds for the Free Critic.

Originally the Critic asked for a budget of $3000 for the entire semester. The Council decided to give the paper $215 for its first issue with funds for future issues to be decided upon later.

Earlier in the meeting, Paul Slate was elected as head of the Finance Committee. Associated Students President Derrick Hill's selection of Derrick Quan as finance chairman was not approved by the Council.

Near the end of the meeting a resolution was introduced, asking for more coverage of Chinese students on campus in the Free Critic. Presently, the Critic plans to have one page per issue devoted to covering Chinese affairs.

The resolution was tabled for future discussion.

After the meeting, Hill announced AS card sales had climbed over the 2500 mark and probably will reach 3000 by the sales' end.

Microfilms, Carpets Added To Library Plans

Ethel S. Crockett, new director of library services and her new assistants this fall, plan to install carpets and microfilms in the library in an attempt to cut down noise and storage problems.

Before coming to City College, Mrs. Crockett was the director of library services at San Jose City College. "There," she said, "the library is already carpeted and the students really appreciate it, with some of them even sitting on the floor instead of chairs." Those students who would rather sit on the floor instead of chairs may have something warmer to sit on soon.

ALMOST ALL of the colleges in the Bay Area are having their libraries carpeted.

As for the futurc use of microfilms, Mrs. Crockett said, "I am a believer in microfilms because from the point of view of a librarian, it would take less room to store than the back issues." She also went on to say that from a student's point of view, microfilm should certainly be one of value as they would be able to go through a magazine and find that the needed article has not been torn out.

Besides the new director, the college has also acquired two new assistants. They are Anne Munetic, the new reference librarian, and Iole Matteucig, the new catalog librarian.

MRS. MUNETIC holds a Library Degree from the University of Berlin and a Ph.D. in German Literature from the University of Texas. Prior to coming to City College, Mr. Munetic worked as a reference librarian for both Harvard University and the New York Museum of Modern Art. Her background should be a very valuable asset to the college.

The new catalog librarian, Mrs. Matteucig, has served as a substitute librarian for many years at the college. Besides her job as a librarian, she also teaches at the University of San Francisco.

Both Mrs. Matteucig and Mrs. Munetic will also share the responsibility of teaching the Library Technology courses this fall.—S. S.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of City College of San Francisco
MIKE DUGGAN, Editor

ACP PRESS

Vol. 67, No. 1 WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 18, 1968 Page 2

Guardsman Not AS Paper

THE GUARDSMAN, formerly the "Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco," will this term be published entirely with funds provided by the San Francisco Unified School District.

Last semester, with $6000 provided by the school district and the aid of $1200 from the AS, The Guardsman published 6000 copies per issue.

Under the new budget, with no help from Student Council, only 3000 copies per issue will be printed.

Naturally we were not overjoyed with this turn of events. One way of once again returning your student newspaper to its former state of reaching 6000 people is through you, the student.

After all, isn't Student Government supposed to be the voice of the student; just like our national government is supposed to be the voice of our country's people.

We therefore ask that only those students extremely interested in reading The Guardsman to take a copy and we urge those students who can not secure a copy to take their suggestions directly to Student Council.

Letters To Editor Encouraged

THE GUARDSMAN WELCOMES any letters-to-the-editor. Letters will be honored providing the editor is informed of the student's name.

It is agreed upon receiving the letter that the contents can be edited for space and good taste.

Letters may be written free hand, but would be preferred to be typewritten.

If worthy of selection, letters will appear as in the past under the heading "Ram's Horn."

The deadline for letters, which should be brought personally to S-304, is 10 a.m. on Tuesday, the week preceding the actual publication date of the paper.

A Look At Huey Newton Trial

THE VERDICT IN THE HUEY NEWTON murder trial wasn't expected to make all concerned happy. We feel the conviction of manslaughter, whether or not it was judged on a non-biased basis (see Contact Lens), pleased practically no one.

To convict Newton of killing Oakland policeman John Frey and then find him not guilty of wounding Officer Herbert Heanes is definitely an inconsistent verdict.

Apparently four days of deliberation by the jury was not enough for them to realize what seems very evident—that Frey and Heanes were shot by the same person, which could or could not have been Huey Newton.

Contact Lens

Was Huey Newton Verdict Just?

By Lavine Lee and Lynda Sandstrom

BRAXTON

Johnnie Braxton, Communications Major

Due process of law is not eleven whites and one black. The Huey Newton trial can be called in allegoric terms, the black man's oppression in this country. All people are created equal, except blacks who tell the system to go to hell. Huey Newton was such a man. Martin Luther King may have preached non-violence, but that is exactly what the white establishment wants to hear. There is an old nursery rhyme that goes, "Catch a nigger by the toe, if he holiers let him go." Is that what blacks mean in America? I'm afraid it is.

HALLFORD

Linda Hallford, Teaching Major

You can't really say Huey Newton says one thing, the police say another, and the press says their 'thing.' So what do you believe? I don't know what to believe. I think the jury tried to put itself in a safe spot. If the jury gave a pro-Newton verdict, some whites would scream out. If it gave an anti-Newton verdict, the Negroes would scream out.

WONG

Al R. Wong, Liberal Arts Major

No, I don't think the verdict was just, because Huey Newton did not have a jury composed of his own peers. Who are his peers? Blacks, Mexican-Americans, Chinese, and any other racial and ethnic minority groups. Huey's jury was not made up of such people. Therefore, he didn't have a chance from the very beginning. I think there should be a re-trial, with a representative jury.

ROSS

Carolyn Ross, Music Major

I don't know too much about Huey Newton, but I don't think he committed the crime he was accused of. The jury was consisted of eleven whites and only one Negro. I don't think this was fair. There should have been more than one Negro on the jury. I think the press was biased in its coverage because Huey Newton is such a radical, the press didn't really tell what he's trying to do for the black people.

—Guardsman photos by James Pope

Ramette Of The Week

By Dave Albertson

Florine Gallegos is the stunning, dark-haired, brown-eyed Spanish spicer that The Guardsman is pleased to present as its first Ramette of the Week.

The young ramette was discovered in Cloud Hall Square being pointed to, stared at, and whispered about by various male observers. She stands a solid 5-4 and at 18 is in her third semester here. A graduate of Mission High, she was vice-president of her class.

Florine is a serious-minded, outspoken student and is very concerned about politics, and the pros and cons of the civil rights struggle. She likes to meet good people, but says "most guys lack class." She also feels that "long hair is strictly for girls, and long-haired fellows should either get a haircut or wear skirts."

The Optimist Club of El Camino Real once presented our ramette with The Youth Appreciation of the Week Award. If you can't see why Florine won an appreciation award, you had better buy a pair of glasses.

Florine has brains in addition to beauty. She has won $400 in academic scholarships. She says "Our library should be used more for study and less for gab."

Florine, having modeled for Macy's, feels girls should wear clothes which look good on them and not just follow styles, since all styles do not fit all types of girls. She also feels that, "... girls should demand more respect from their boyfriends."

FLORINE GALLEGOS
"Ramette Spanish Spicer"
—Guardsman photo by Sam Woo

This week's ramette is a friendly conversationalist who has quite a background. She aspires to be an elementary school teacher and has had experience as a swimming instructor and counselor at Camp Redwood Glen in Santa Cruz.

Florine doesn't take too kindly to hippies begging for spare change because "... anybody that's able-bodied should be able to make it."

Registration Now Fast And Reliable

In recent years, the history of City College has been filled with bitter experiences concerning registration.

Many attempts on the part of the faculty were made to improve the situation but, nevertheless, it continued to grow worse. Last semester saw the blackest hour of all, as the problem was turned over to computers for the second time, only to have the process fail miserably.

A committee which was headed by Dean John J. Brady, coordinator of student welfare, was established to analyze registration procedures and come up with a new, more efficient registration system. This committee was comprised of 21 members of the administration and faculty appointed by President Conlan, all of whom gave much time and energy to solving the dreaded problem.

After 16 meetings, the committee had completed a detailed study of registration problems and had drawn up the plans for Fall '68 Registration.

This semester, students registering had only a 10 or 15 minute wait in line as compared to several hours in the past. This was one of the goals of the committee as set up by President Conlan. An even more important goal that was achieved was to make it possible for more students to get into classes they needed or desired.

To accomplish this, the number of days for registration was increased from three to ten. This cut the number of students handled each day from 3000 to 1200, thus shortening lines and giving counselors and department chairmen the time needed to add new classes in popular study areas and drop those not in demand.

Thanks to the great effort made by this committee, the old nightmare of registration has now been transformed into a more reliable system.

Of course there are still legitimate complaints by some about fouled up schedules and hang ups in paper work. This is only natural. Man is not perfect by any means, but when one compares him to the "flawless" computers of last semester, he begins to wonder who is really winning that all-important race for efficiency.

—R. F. & R. C.

Gambling Escape From City College To Tahoe Casino

By Leonard Ribeiro

Leave the Bay Area early in the morning. Stop in Sacramento for a bite of lunch. Watch big C141 jets circle McClellan A.F.B. over signs of Bobbie Gentry playing at Harrah's.

Crest Echo Summit on Highway 50, see the vast Tahoe basin. For miles on a 180 degree sweep, nothing but natural wonders. Tall-clumped pines cover the highlands from the horizon to the opaque shoreline. Below a network of lakes in miniature.

Series of motels, restaurants and service stations pass as you enter South Shore, Lake Tahoe. Weather is beautiful. Right for either swimming or sun bathing.

The spires of the gaming casinos draw most of the action in this area.

Wheeling into Harrah's parking lot, by the California-Nevada state line; there is plenty of room to park. Take $30 and try to break the bank. Pick the game—roulette, blackjack, dice, keno, bingo, wheel of fortune, or slot machines.

Slots prevail. They form a moat around dice tables and other games. Coins from nickles to silver dollars fit the slots.

Casinos are in business to make money. In this case, the players'. To do that every ploy in science or sex is used to separate the markers from the mark.

Entrances are just a few steps from the action. Well-groomed dealers, of both sexes, man the blackjack tables. Croupiers use low-key monologue to call the galloping dominoes. Everything is directed at getting the dollar.

Does it work? Do birds fly?

Blackjack has the least adverse odds for the player. However, a female dealer of dimensions can drain finances before you can assimilate proportions.

At Harrah's the crowds are heavier. The staccattos of croupiers are more pronounced in the din of casino action, while the players are being played.

The sound of rushing footsteps, the crash of slamming books shortens travelling time from Tahoe to City College from five hours to 30 seconds.

Guardsman Staff — Fall 1968

EDITOR IN CHIEF ..... MIKE DUGGAN
Managing Editor ..... Doug Boston
Feature Editor ..... Tom Graham
Staff Editor ..... Boku Kodama
News Editor ..... Barbara Hamann
Sports Editor ..... Dave Albertson
Editorial Assistants: Martin J. Arbunich, Lani Brand, Rita Carroll, Lavine Lee, Lynda Sandstrom.
Reporters: Randy Flynn, Leonard Ribeiro.
Cub Reporters: Floyd Banks, Ralph Bayard, Jack Blake, Dan Castro, Joe Cefalu, Patrick Chan, Lynette Conklin, Jeff Deleuse, Phil Di Carlo, Kaye Gramps, Yvonne Lew, Marianne Lim, Dan McCarthy, Florence McCarthy, Ben Marinas, Diana Matson, Alan Pelzner, James Pope, Elizabeth Ramos, Lester Rastorfer, Jack Ruiz, Soonalote Schmidt, Kenneth Surface, Barbara Tyrrell, Val Vallendar, Wong Tse Yiu.
Photographers: Marilyn Astaveh, Chief; Bert Flowers, Glenn Graham, Steven La Plant, Jerry Mishler, Detlef Osburg, Jens Protze, Roberto Guillen, Kevin Shea, Ulmer T. McKnight, Gavin Watt, Calvin Wong, Russell Wong, Sam Woo.
Adviser: Mary Blair

SHOOTIN' IT

by Doug Boston

THE FOLLOWING is a non-political, non-paid-for assortment of bits and pieces which were either stumbled upon or across by yours truly.

It is our hope that these timely notations of fact and fiction might ease the pain of everyday monotony and perhaps be the music to sooth the savage beast.

We wonder with anticipation about the thoughts running through and circling within the mind of Miss Jeane Dixon as election day nears. For the uninformed, or those who lack the benefit of her book such as we have, she professes to have secret powers which enable her to forsee events which tend to be earthshaking, at the least.

Substantial evidence of her power of prophecy rests on her side as she predicted the assassination of John F. Kennedy, the plane crash of Edward Kennedy, the crash and death of Dag Hammarskjold, and the suicide of Marilyn Monroe. Countless predictions have proven accurate.

She perceived years ago, "Our country will move steadily downhill in the next two decades in pride, accomplishments, and dignity." She has many believers in that prediction. For those interested in the presidential elections (there must be a few), Jeane Dixon forsees a Republican victory. Also on the agenda is an inevitable war with Red China.

SECOND CHANCE: Eighteen high school students will get a reprieve this semester at the college. Youth For Service has instituted a plan labeled "Operation Minerva" which will enable high school dropouts to enter college and do it again. If the program can put one person back in school and drive him or her to his potential, it appears to be a sound idea to us. A spokesman for "Operation" hopes that the program will awaken the abilities in the students.

SALUTE: Mary Blair, former English instructor here, requested and has inherited the position of adviser for, as departed scribe D. K. Dorn would suggest, "The Guardsman Of Truth." The staff and this penman applaud her courage. Buena suerte.

ON SLAYING DRAGONS: A popular mouthwash corporation wisely suggested recently that it is often awkward to inform a close friend that he, she or it has a dragon mouth. Consequently, this company has organized a campaign whereby victims of bad-breathing companions merely submit the culprit's name for review. The company then dispatches a letter of grievance to the criminal. 'Tis a great idea. Nothing is worse than standing at a party and having a glass cage surround you, isolating you from the other guests; or finding a note in a desk drawer—once in the morning does it.

SPORT NOTE: Sports page fanatics should consult this column from time to time. Being an athletic supporter, we hope to take time to review activities in the wide world of sports. Did you dig the new hairdressing commercial on the tube featuring the Giants' own Herman Franks and that villian from Dodgertown, Don Drysdale? We witnessed the actual filming of it one Friday morning, noon and night. It must have taken 20 takes before perfected. Herman just could not get his one line down.

POST SCRIPT: That story on page four by Rudolph Albertson, playboy, philosopher and poet, about former Ram standout Bill Kirkpatrick was mine. We scooped him on the story but let it slide when Albertson promised us a glance at the other pictures of Florine Gallegos, his Ramette of the Week.

AT THE BEACH: Made the scene at Carol Doda's new establishment the other night. She headlines her own palace with daneing and acting bits. Everybody in the audience kept talking about a bust, but this writer never saw one cop. Must have been some mistake.

EDUCATION: Students planning to transfer to State in the spring better get the dope (pardon) from the admissions office immediately. Rumor has it that there might not be any room come February.

SPORTSMANSHIP: This is scribbled here mainly as a booster for those who feel that the world is against them because registration went horribly and classes are too tough. Remember the late William Talman, the district attorney in Perry Mason. He lost all 252 cases and never complained.

DISPATCH

by Boku Kodama

WHEN THE American Onery Critters Association was first founded four years ago, its arch-rival, the All-American Good Guys, predicted a quick end to the existence of the new group.

For many years, the Good Guys had dominated the minds of the American public, but as we know, times change and so do people. Many followers of the Good Guys and many non-followers were tired of the same old game with the same old leaders. They sought for a newer and better game which offered excitement and action as well as accomplishment.

The Critters offered what the people wanted; that is, new and refreshing leadership with a game which was bold and different.

The revolutionary new game had no complicated rules and enabled an unlimited number of people to participate. It was not long before many people became interested and wanted to be involved in the game.

Its members were a happy lot with no prejudice toward race. Many young Black, White and Yellow Americans learned that the name of the game was "tenderness is better than bitterness."

As the early months rolled by, strategy was planned and training for the coming season against the Good Guys was in full swing.

Meanwhile, at the team headquarters of the All-American Good Guys, located in a white mansion in Washington, D.C., Loose Belly Johnstead, affectionately known to his friends as L.B.J., was giving the last of the same old instructions to his four assistants who came to represent various parts of the United States. There was Ronnie Raisin from the West, and from the North came Dickie Daisly. The East was represented by J. Eager Gopher, while the South was headed by George E. Wally. They were determined to crush the Onery Critters and go back to the one team system.

The first two clashes of the season occurred in Berkeley and San Francisco respectively. It was an overwhelming victory for the Good Guys in both matches, but as the season moved along to Oakland, Los Angeles, New York and Boston, the Critters grew in strength, and the matches became more evenly matched.

Fearing that his team might go down in defeat for the first time, Loose Belly called for more men and equipment to stop the fast-charging Critters.

Equipped with bayonets, rifles, tear gas and night sticks, the Good Guys were able to suppress the Critters. The Critters were completely surprised and again went down in the ashes of defeat.

By the end of their first season, they had been put down badly, and the philosophy of the Critters began to change. Instead of fighting with words, the Onery Critters decided to fight with bombs, sticks and fires; and instead of wearing love beads—riot helmets, heavy-duty underwear and World War I trench-style gas masks were to be worn.

Training and strategic maneuvers of the Critters today are taught through home study courses in the privacy of one's living room. No material is needed in these courses other than a television set. Ten hours a week of watching and studying prime time violence is a must. For future hopefuls of the American Onery Critters, prerequisites must be fulfilled. Basically, this means the understanding of the super-hero and super-destructive cartoons seen every Saturday morning.

The newly revised Onery Critters have done fairly well against the Good Guys this season, especially in Chicago and Berkeley. The Critters have learned that the only way to defeat the All-American Good Guys is to play like the Good Guys—violent and dirty.

• • •

"The voice of protest, of warning, of appeal is never more needed than when the clamor of fife and drum, echoed by the press and too often by the pulpit, is bidding all men fall in and keep step and obey in silence the tyrannous word of command. Then, more than ever, it is the duty of the good citizen not to be silent and, in spite of obloquy, misrepresentation and abuse, to maintain the everlasting validity of the principles of the moral law." —Charles Eliot Norton
Cambridge, Mass., June 7, 1898

Experimental College

Large Turnout Expected For This Fall's Classes

The Experimental College will swing into its second semester at City College through the combined efforts of both faculty and students next Monday.

Primary functions of the Experimental College are to schedule and organize classes which correspond with student interests. The new college is attempting to break away from specific designs of the college curriculum this semester.

The Experimental College sheds the formal academic structure and atmosphere of a regular college classroom. Members of a group are encouraged to participate and set their own pattern of learning.

Judy Rothermel, a group adviser, stated, "The Experimental College is just people getting together and participating in their common interests. Whether they be yoga, cybernetics, rock music or whatever."

The college is not a club or an organization with house rules. No fees, grades, or credits are given. However, it does stress active involvement by individual members. It is felt that students can concentrate more on the subject matter with grade competition eliminated.

The Experimental College drew active participation from some 200 students, faculty and administrators last semester. A larger turnout is expected for this semester.

The college is still in the early stages of development and there are some rough edges to be smoothed out. There is hope that this semester will see the emergence of new groups and the continuance of established ones.

Rothermel said, "The problem right now is to make it known to the students that the Experimental College exists. People are also needed for office and publicity work, and anyone who is interested can make inquiries in Bungalow 5."

Students wishing to organize their own classes should submit an information sheet giving description of their intended class to either Donald Peterson or Rosalie Wolf in B-5.

Jazz, Chinese Lead Off College Concert Series

For jazz lovers the opening session of College Hour is a must. The Sonny Donaldson Trio will perform in the College Theater tomorrow at 11 a.m.

"The Sonny Donaldson Trio turns jazz into something newer, wiser and more joyous," says The Sacramento Bee. Donaldson himself is considered one of the finest jazz pianists. He has been a professional musician for 22 years and has worked with such jazz artists as Billie Holiday and James Moody.

"What's With Chinatown" is the topic for College Hour on September 24. Jack Chow and Charles Wong will discuss the changing mood of Chinatown. They will explain the causes and significance of the rising Chinese militancy.

Both speakers are authorities on the Chinese situation. Wong is on the staff of the legal assistance office in San Francisco. Chow is a prominent immigration lawyer.

College Hour is held throughout the term on Thursdays at 11 a.m. in the College Theater. Future programs promise to be interesting and informative.

In the event of overflow attendence arrangements have been made to provide potential standees with "live coverage" via closed circuit television.

City College students may attend free of charge. Arrive early and avoid unnecessary inconveniences.

Student Finance Office Open In Educational Services Building

The Student Bank, located in the Education Services Building, Room 207, is open from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. daily.

The bank's policies directly coincide with those established by Harry R. Buttimer, co-ordinator of educational management.

Employment in the bank depends upon recommendation by Joseph A. Amori, director of job placement, James Clinton McConnell, business instructor, or Wallace E. Wells, counseling and honor student adviser.

Financial group banking, loan funds, and instructional accounting for clubs are services available through the bank. Under the group banking, funds can be raised for clubs, fraternities, sororities, athletic equipment and general activities.

General accounting for individual benefactor's loan funds is taken care of by the bank. The Margaret Dougherty loan fund, the Hotel and Restaurant Department fund, the Joseph Pomeroy Nourse Student fund, and the West of the Twin Peaks Lions Club fund are available to needy students.

Upon request, auditing of club books and instructional accounting are offered by the bank. The bank also supervises ticket sales for box office and gate functions.

In the past, the bank has handled the issuing of lockers. But, due to the necessity of needed space, the insufficient number, and the lack of funds to purchase more, no lockers will be issued this year.

Mariam Mosian and Charlotte Bleuler, secretarial clerks, keep the bank in running order and ready to serve the students.

G'man Needs Good Illustrator

The Guardsman is looking for a good editorial cartoonist to enliven the feature page. Any student interested should contact The Guardsman's Mike Duggan in S-304. Prospective illustrators are asked to bring art samples along with them.

A Lot Of Parking

The Campus police will begin tagging illegally parked cars on Monday, September 30, according to Richard DeRamon, Campus Police Chief.

Parking is presently available for students in areas around Smith Hall, Cloud Hall, next to the men's gym and in the reservoir. Unless autos bear a parking sticker, which is available to Associated Student members, they will be tagged for illegal parking.

Chief DeRamon suggests that drivers arriving for 8 a.m. classes make an effort to park between 7:30 a.m. and 7:45 a.m. This will enable drivers to find adequate parking space and cut down on traffic congestion.

A new system, primarily designed to protect the drivers who leave valuable items in their cars, as well as to prevent damage to the auto itself, will continue this semester.

Effective immediately, an officer will be stationed in the Science Building keeping close observation on the reservoir. Equipped with radio and binoculars, the officer will be ready to radio-in for reinforcements if the need arises. The offender will be immediately apprehended and booked.

Vandalism and theft in the reservoir parking area should all but cease with this method of police surveilance, according to the police chief.

Parking permits may be obtained in C-118. Drivers must present an AS card, automobile registration and a driver's license at that time.

Associated Student Card Sales Reach 2600; Hill Says 4000-Sale Probable

The Associated Student card sales have reached close to 2600, and there will be even more sales in the next few days, according to Derrick Hill, AS president.

In comparison to past semesters, the sales have increased considerably. It is due to the 4000 new students that have come in this semester.

"Most of the buyers are freshmen because they are new in this college and they expect to get something out of it," Hill explained.

The new Associated Students president mentioned that it is possible that an amount of 4000 card sales will be reached by the end of the semester even though nothing has been done to push the sales.

An AS card will not be needed to attend all the events on campus unless students are otherwise informed. Associated Student cards are available in the Science Building, Room 109.

Labelled And Recorded

This Was The Summer When...

by Martin J. Arbunich

NO MATTER WHAT kind of crud other scribes may fling, it wasn't a long, hot summer. In fact, it was too short; and as for the weather, this writer managed only to absorb what the moonlight offered, since he was buried deep in his dungeon office, proofreading "Spot and Judy" texts during days and going nuts in the process.

Things weren't all that bad, though. It was a more enjoyable life than being perched in a classroom desk, being fed an undying, tedious diet of Henry the Fourth and his other million-and-one relatives. Instead of an instructor to gawk at in monotony, this writer radiated with a glowing smile when he gazed upon the artistically designed panel wall which was gayly adorned with a colorful, pictorial calendar of . . .

When Spot and Co. weren't around to peck at the eyeballs, the audio sense was being treated to some enjoyable sounds on many occasions; in fact, this was quite a summer for devotees of sounds in the music field. Our record library (it's almost that big!) has almost doubled over the past three months, which is largely due to the huge influx of quality recordings; and things look like they are still on the rise.

For the records, this was the summer . . .

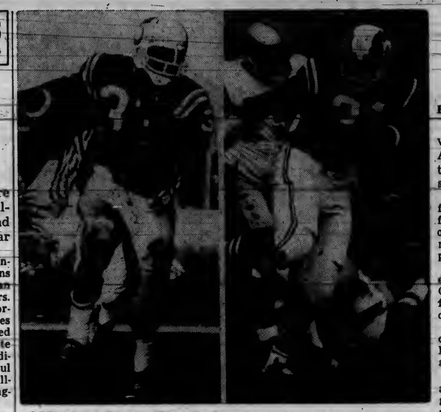
When the Cream called it quits and showed the people that there are even feuds among the gods . . . when the Stones realized they weren't the Beatles but rock and rollers . . . when the Fillmore moved to the White part of town . . . when the KMPX strikers opened shop under a new roof . . . when Hendrix did the thing with his guitar to the delight of many of those in his audiences who belonged to either of the sexes . . . when Eric Burdon dazzled thousands with his incredible display of lights . . . when Jefferson Airplane flew to Europe to do their thing and become the first group with Eric Clapton and must have gotten lost . . .

WHEN TINY TIM was exposed to the world but couldn't be recognized as an important sex figure because he represented a minority one . . . when Buffalo Springfield lost their name, grass but not their fans . . . when Pete Townshend didn't smash his guitar at the Fillmore but instead tossed it to his arms-outspread fans . . . when Janis Joplin got too many "ahs" and decided to leave her real home . . . when we discovered that the Dead and Ten Years After have much in common and might very well be the best bands of their respective countries . . . when Big Pink became known and The Band was finally given a chance.

WHEN JEFF BECK turned us off as a great guitarist, and we recommended that his singer refer to a reputable gargle or satisfy his audience entirely with a vocal chords extraction . . . when John Mayall played games with us and kept changing names and numbers on his Bluesbreakers roster . . . when Sly and the Family Stone showed the Fillmore audience that they have creative soul and the fans showed they had it as well . . .

WHEN JERRY GARCIA became a black mass by growing more hair than he can handle . . . when Arthur Brown failed to excite too many people here, even with his head-of-flames . . . when guitarist Jim McCarty and the new Siegal-Schwall band presented a fantastic debut in S.F. . . . when country music became "in," even though it was all the time under all that makeup.

Aside from that, it was just another summer of disheartening politics, a dragging war, dangerous civil protestors beating their sheep, more racial problems . . . and of course there was old Spot and Judy and the calendar . . .



ROCK VIRTUOSO Al Kooper played a major role in the brilliantly instrumented Super Session recording released this summer. Kooper, along with guitarist Mike Bloomfield and possibly the late Buffalo Springfield's Steve Stills, will make a series of appearances together next week here.

that "Yummy, Yummy, Yummy" did U.S. band worth mention to make the trip . . .

not deserve the shaft entirely because it concerned an unwed mother "with love in my tummy" . . . when Buddy Miles went to England to form a group with Eric Clapton and must have gotten lost . . .

WHEN SPACE ODYSSEY was released without the sound people consulting Jimi Hendrix for soundtrack assistance . . . when Canned Heat recorded a 41-minute "Boogie" for album No. 3 . . . when stereo records weren't really . . . when John McVie became comedian as well as musician by guzzling his bottle(s) as if he were a disposal unit, still managing mean, sober bass lines . . . when Mike Bloomfield and Al Kooper left their own bands and knocked people out with their Super Session together (they'll be at the Fillmore together a week from now) . . . when we discovered

Rams Kickoff Football Season On Friday

RETURNING TO BOLSTER the Ram attack this semester are veteran fullbacks Joe Bell and Willie Lewis. Bell and Lewis were instrumental in the Rams fine showing last year. In the above action Bell and Lewis are caught in the act of eluding enemy attackers on their way to Ram gains. Bell and Lewis will be carrying the ball in similar plays in the season opener Friday.

Veteran Booters Aim For Sixth Straight Title

City College's soccer future looks bright again as two All-American players return to lead California's defending two-year College Soccer Champion.

Al Chu and Otey Cannon, All-Conference and All-American selections last year, are backed by a veteran squad and some talented newcomers. Chu and Cannon lead a talented forward line (the scorers) that includes inside right Jerry Tighe, who scored FOUR goals in last season's state championship game. Other line candidates are brothers Peter and Paul Bogataosky and Clive Butler, an All-City choice last year from Washington High.

Chu, center-forward, and Cannon, a wing, were the team scoring leaders last year. Cannon alone scored two goals in the conference opener against Diablo Valley and four as the team rolled over non-conference opponent St. Mary's, 10-2.

Coach Roy Diederichsen, in his 20th year as Ram Soccer Coach, has an unmatched record that he intends to keep. Conference champ in each of his previous 19 seasons and state champion the past five years (the state championship game is ONLY five years old!!), the team has a strong image to uphold this year. As a matter of fact, the first four state championship wins were shut-outs against Southern California's Victor Valley, and last year's 8-1 win was a whitewash as the Rams muffed a routine pass and actually scored Cannon's lone goal.

After a string of 100 consecutive conference victories, the Rams lost to San Mateo and Merritt last year and had to "play-off" with these two teams in order to proceed to the championship encounter. Merritt and San Mateo, with All-American Al Rodriques returning, are strong again.

The first game of the season pits the Rams against West Valley College on October 2. West Valley, located in Campbell, gave an excellent account of themselves before succumbing, 2-0, to City College in a practice game this spring.—F. D.

Cross-Country Runners Will Open At Foothill

Starting off a brilliant season, Coach Vasquez took his cross-country runners to Lake Tahoe for a meet with Sacramento City College.

This year's team is looking forward to a great season and a possible championship. Reasons for the optimistic outlook are the returning veterans, one of whom is George Haza, the leader of the pack. Haza runs the two mile in 10:43 and is constantly improving. Also returning are stars Vic Cary, Ed Schmidt, and sensational Tony Baccelli. Bacelli, being a great team man, adds depth to the team and is always a crowd pleaser.

THE TEAM also boasts a new star, Klaus Hoffman of Saint Ignatius High School. Hoffman is not only one of the best distance men to come out of San Francisco High Schools recently, but is also academically adept. Hoffman has run the mile in 4:13, which is very good by any high school standards. Hoffman ranks in the number two spot, giving Haza a battle for his number one spot. Not far behind them will be Cary, who was last semester's track team's middle distance hero. At least one first place was expected from Cary every meet. Cary is number three on the team, and the reason could be an extra pay load of twenty pounds he had gained during the summer. Pete (The Greek) Cordellos, the team equipment manager, advises Cary to stay out of the cafeteria, and on the track.

Demetrice Leadbedder, a star quarter-miler from Poly High, is a possible cinderman. Leadbedder took first in triple A competition last year with a 50 flat in the 440 yard dash. Leadbedder's addition would add more depth to the team.

ALL THE "LUNGBUSTERS" competed in the "Bay to Breakers" race and finished well. They will give added confidence to the team when they meet their arch rivals, the San Mateo Bulldogs. The Bulldogs also have a strong team, as do those other tough competitors, The Foothill Owls and The Merritt T-Birds.

According to Cordellos, "No other have what we have, and if we don't take the championship (Pete jokes) it's the coaching."

The first meet will be a tri-meet against San Mateo and Foothill at Foothill Friday, October 25.—F. B.

Recreation Association Offers Six Activities

Students interested in participating in athletics this semester will be given an excellent opportunity through the combined efforts of the Recreation Association and the Associated Men Students.

Some of the sports and activities offered by the RA include bowling, archery, modern and social dancing, basketball and softball leagues.

Water Polo Makes Initial Appearance

City College will have the first water polo team in its history this fall, which will be trained by swimming Coach Curt Decker.

Rich Glass, Frank Johnson, Dave Nelson, Lee McCollum and Ken Canavarro, members of last year's swimming team, will make up the core of this year's squad. Decker is also counting on several new freshmen.

The team will play a double round robin schedule with five other teams in the Golden Gate Conference. Merritt and Laney do not participate in water polo.

The team's first meet will be against Foothill on October 16 at Coffman pool. Foothill should prove to be tough, as they are the defending state champs.

RAMBLINGS It's Happening With Football Once Again

by Dave Albertson

FOOTBALL SEASON will soon open the door to good times and a lot of excellent opportunities that are waiting to be taken advantage of.

That cute little honey you've been eyeballing in your psych class would probably be more than happy to help you cheer the Rams on.

This year's team looks tough with a number of mammoth Ram linesmen eagerly awaiting their chance to put the big bruise on enemy teams. All-Conference back Orice Pittman and standout fullback Willie Lewis will give the Rams a formidable backfield.

This season should prove exciting both on the field and in the stands. We even have a bouncing team of cheerleaders to watch during tempo shags in the game.

THERE IS NO WAY you can go wrong this season. A winning team, a delectable little honey to escort to the game, and a great time is guaranteed. Even if that honey shuts you down, you can always put the hairy eyeball on the cheerleaders.

• • •

Ernie Provost, City College premier sprint star, recently tied the world record in the 100 meter dash with a clocking of 10 flat. Provost tied the record in this year's National A.A.U. Meet. The only problem was that Charley Greene, Jim Hines and Ronnie Ray Smith all broke the world record with identical times of 9.9.

Provost sprinted his way to numerous wins at City College including school records of 9.4 in the 100 yard dash and 21.1 in the 220. Provost's 21.1 in the 220 broke the former school mark of 21.5 set by the former Ram great, O. J. Simpson.

• • •

TSK TSK: Wear a cast iron glove if you ever have the opportunity to meet our football coach, Dutch Elston. This writer almost had his hand crushed away shaking hands with the huge, friendly ex-49er.

• • •

Former Ram all-conference pitching ace Bill Kirkpatrick recently signed a contract with the Baltimore Orioles. Kirkpatrick played a key role in the Rams 1967—conference title drive. He was named to the league all-conference team both of his two years with the Ram baseball team.

Kirkpatrick will start spring training this March with the Stockton team in the Orioles' farm system.

• • •

ANOTHER EX-RAM great in the pro ranks is veteran fullback Gary Lewis of the 49ers. Lewis was voted Golden Gate Conference Back-Of-The-Year in 1960 when he led the Rams in passing, scoring and interceptions.

Lewis has been an outstanding fullback for the 49ers ever since he broke into the big time midway through the 1964 season.

One cannot talk about former Ram greats without mentioning the uncomparable Ollie Matson.

Matson led the Ram football team to the 1947 conference title and he gained fame in the pro ranks playing with the Los Angeles Rams and the Philadelphia Eagles.

Squad Opens Preseason Play With American River Here

By Phil DiCarlo

College is just starting and with it another football season. American River College travels to our campus Friday for the season opener.

Gone are nine All-Conference performers and three-fourths of the offensive and defensive lines, plus most of the experienced reserves. Replacements must be found for several key positions.

"We looked at a lot of players on different positions," remarked head Coach Arthur "Dutch" Elston, who feels we have the potential for a championship season.

This sentiment was echoed by the coaching staff members Alex Schwarz, Ernie Domecus and Grover Klemmer, after Saturday's full squad scrimmage.

"POPS" SCHWARZ, the offensive and defensive line coach, has the biggest problem. He has to replace last year's line which produced All-Conference stars Allan Cowlings, John Monroe, Ralph Hodge, Mike Streich, Kevin Shea and Mike Deschler. Returning veterans are Ed Diaz (5-11, 250), Jerry Vangar (6-0, 200); Dave Kustirian (5-8,205), and Bill McKenna, a 5-10, 215-pound center "who," Schwartz said, "could be our best offensive lineman."

New hopefulls this year include: Monty Consani, 210, from Riordan; Dan Parrish, 235, of Saint Ignatius; Andre Hicks, 250, a Poly grad, and Hilton Dillion, a 6-foot, 265 pounder from Wilson.

DEFENSIVE LINE probable starters include ends Carlton Thomas (6-5, 210) and 24-year-old Harold Phillips (6-3, 215) from Galileo; tackles Dillion, Hicks and John McKenna (6-3, 245). Steve Sanchez, a very quick 5-8, 185 pounds from Balboa High, and Wymon Simmons (6-3, 195), from Birmingham, Alabama's Western Olin High School, are battling for the Middle Guard spot.

One of the vital linebacking slots will be manned by returning star Orice Pittman. He is the only returning All-Conference selection. Pittman is a 5-10, 194-pounder from George Washington.

Pittman typifies the tough, prideful spirit of this year's team. Whether leading calistenics, running the ball from the fullback spot, or "charging up" the defensive team during a scrimmage, his voice and enthusiasm reach everyone on the field.

Another prime contender for linebacker is newcomer Gerry Dyson of Galileo. Dyson is the brother of second-year halfback and last year's AAA Lineman of the Year, Jon Dyson.

FIVE PLAYERS have the inside track for the defensive backfield positions, but "a lot of players have a shot at backfield positions," stated Defensive Secondary Coach Klemmer. The five include tough Craig Martin, a starter last year, and returning Jim Farnham at the safety spots and newcomers Steve Salisbury of Lincoln, Jim Anderson of Sacred Heart and Greg Jackson of Galileo at the wings.

The offensive backs and ends offer a blend of experienced veterans and talented first-year men. Stocky, 5-10, 200-pound Tom Mayfield returns at quarterback. Mayfield is a fine team leader and is backed by 6-2, 170-pound Vince Ansley. Ansley turned in a 48.2 quarter on last season's track team.

New men include Dan Martin of Lincoln, a great long passer, and Chuck Ferrera of Wilson. The running backs combine experience with speed to produce hard-hitting qualities. Big Willie Lewis (6-2, 220), last year's starter, opens at fullback flanked by solid 6-0, 205-pound Joe Bell, Doyle Miller and Jon Dyson. Add two new faces belonging to Eddie Perkins of Lowell and Ron Jones of Poly, plus the ever-present Pittman, and the running picture for '68 looks bright indeed.

ERNIE DOMECUS, receiver coach lost All-Conference pick Mike Carter, but is fortunate to find very capable replacements plus two All-City ends from 1967. Veteran Ralph Bayard (6-2, 175) is joined by George Nicholson (6-1, 195), a Lincoln grad just separated from the Air Force, and Wilson-ite Don McGee (6-4, 195), recently back from a hitch in Vietnam. Mike Baines (6-4, 180), who played in the North-South High School Shrine game this year, and highly-touted Jim Tyree (6-2, 195), are the All-City ends being tried out for defensive positions.

MARK HENSLEY, last year's sensational long distance field goal kicker, returns this season along with punter Bill McDonough. Mayfield and Farnham may be used for the teams placekicking.

This Friday's game against American River and next week's game at San Joaquin Delta are non-league contests. They should provide a good testing ground for the squad, and should give a pretty fair indication of the team's chances in conference play. Coach Elston stated, "We should know our personnel by then, and we'll certainly play for keeps."

Pete Cordellos, equipment manager for the team, has a stack of personnel cards in his office. The top card reads "GGC Champs for 1968" and underneath that, "State Champs, too!!"

Could be, Pete. Could be.

Intramural Basketball Petitions Due As Season Draws Closer

Intramural Basketball team petition lists are due at the Associated Men Student's offices by September 26, 1968. All team captains contact Gary Siri or Til Cosgrove at the Associated Students' office in the new Educational Service Building.

According to Jack Gaddy, to participate in the games, usually played on Tuesday and Thursday nights, the teams must comply with the following specific regulations: all players must have an Associated Student card, team captains must file entry petitions listing their players with the AMS office before the deadline on September 26, 1968, and teams must observe any additional rules posted by the AMS student officers throughout the season.

Although no definite date has been set, competition should start in the first weeks of October as soon as petitions are cleared, and a schedule is set up. At the season's end, winning teams and individuals are awarded trophies and medals on Sports Night.

Instructor John Gaddy, head of the Intramural Sports Program at the Men's Gym, said, "Anyone who is not on a team and is interested in joining a team, please contact me at the Men's Gym."—J. R.

Third Year For Decker As Block SF Adviser

Curt Decker is starting his third year as Block SF adviser to the fall athletes' Lettermen Club.

Decker took over the position formerly held by Football Coach Dutch Elston. In addition to being Block SF adviser, Coach Decker is also the swimming and water polo coach.

Rich Glass succeeds Jesse Figueroa as the new Block SF president. Baseball catcher Tom Mayfield was elected to serve as secretary, while swimmer Jim Vida was named to be the club treasurer.

The Block SF club hosts a semi-annual awards dinner to honor the most valuable players of the fall sports teams. Letter winners in their respective sports are also presented their letter certificates at the dinner.

Most valuable players awards were given last semester to Gary Bradford in basketball, Vida in swimming, Doug Boston in golf, John Wong in baseball and sprinter Ernie Provost in track.

1400 Receive Financial Aid From Veterans Admin

Nearly 1400 veterans attending City College this semester will receive financial aid from the Veterans Administration, according to Veterans Affairs Counselor Robin Dunn.

This figure shows an ever increasing number of veterans, both men and women, who have resumed their academic careers, stated Dunn.

A veteran is entitled to from $130 to $175 a month, depending on the number of dependents he has, the extent of his studies and the amount of time he was on active duty. Veterans attending City College on a part-time basis receive smaller amounts.

The number of units required to receive monetary assistance for veterans is seven units per semester. Amounts of money a veteran receives is determined by the number of units he carries. Anyone with eight to 14 units is considered to be a three quarter student while veterans with more than 14 units is considered a full-time student.

The GI Bill which is in effect now came into existence on October 1, 1966. Since then, the amounts of money alotted to veterans has increased twenty-five percent, according to Dunn. Several other improvements to aid veterans has also been added to the bill.

The Veterans Affairs office of the college has recently moved from the Science Building, room S-132 to the new Educational Services Building, ES-202. It is currently processing applications on a regular basis.

For veterans who have applied for financial aid, checks will be issued within three to five weeks of the initial request. Those who applied at the beginning of this semester should begin to receive benefits by October. Later applicants may not receive checks until November.

Dunn's secretary, Bob Linn, who does much of the paperwork and maintains the files, said that his office is not always informed of changes, so that veterans with new information should contact the office.

To apply for financial assistance, a veteran must first write to the Veterans Administration Regional Office for a certificate of eligibility. This application must include the individual's record of military service. Forms for the request of this certificate and explanations as to information required are available in the Veterans Affairs office on campus.

Upon receipt of this certificate, the veteran must return it to the Veteran Affairs Counselor. A copy of this certificate, with the number of units the individual is enrolled for is then forwarded to the Regional Office. Shortly after the veteran should receive his first check.

While the Veteran Affairs primarily handles the applications of male veterans, there are also applications on file for more than a dozen women veterans. Furthermore, the office handles the administration of benefits for persons with service-connected disabilities and for veterans with special problems.

The Guardsman
Official Publication of the City College of San Francisco
VOLUME 67 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 25, 1968 NUMBER 2

New Bungalows Being Built

Construction Is Resumed After Five-Month Halt

Construction of eight bungalows is currently underway after a five month delay in the parking lot next to the Arts Hall in an effort to house the growing college population.

Each of the pre-fabricated bungalows is put together in three sections and is secured on concrete case-mouldings.

The new buildings are due to be finished in November but must first be installed with heating, lighting and flooring.

Last March construction halted when the Building Trades Council and a San Francisco AFL-CIO Union stepped in with a powerful nay. The action by the local union came just as the concrete foundataion was to be poured, after nearly a year of planning and paperwork procedure by the college.

The only visible remains, until now, of the project were several concrete mouldings pounded into the parking lot.

The only specific reason for the construction halt was based on a 1963 agreement between the school district and the council which they said stated there would be no more temporary buildings erected.

Bungalows are used for various purposes on campus such as offices for the Associated Students, Student Council meetings and meeting place for a number of other school clubs and academic functions.

NEW COLLEGE BUNGALOWS now under construction —Guardsman photo by Tom Graham

Part Time Jobs Available At Work Placement Center

By Jack Blake

The City College Job Placement Service has already received 500 applications for employment, according to Joseph A. Amori, job placement director.

In its 28th year, the City College Placement Center is widely known throughout the bay area and more than one thousand employers seek the center's services for employees. The greatest demand for part-time work is found in the clerical occupational areas—typists, stenographers, accountants, data processing and allied fields.

DUE TO THE LACK of qualified workers, the pay scales have increased from $1.75 per hour to approximately $2.00 an hour. Required speeds for typists are 50 to 65 words per minute and the stenographers' speed is 90 to 125 words per minute. A usual stumbling block for students is the hours of work which, depending upon the employer and student, extends from 1:00 p.m. to 5:00 p.m. Monday through Friday.

A large number of students have already been selected for jobs on campus in the College Work Study Program, but vacancies still remain for students with financial need, academic potential, and American Citizenship. Students should report to S148 for their application.

Amori said that applications for all Christmas employment should be made early since some employers are already seeking employees for the holiday season while others have discontinued their Christmas recruitment altogether. The Post Office, in past year has been a reliable place in which to find a seasonal job. Due to an overflow of regular employees, the Post Office this year can't take on any additional help.

MANY COLLEGE students will therefore be left stranded, but there is hope for the bewildered. There are places of opportunity for job seekers such as department stores, airlines, bakeries, railroads, florists, and speciality shops which plan to hire hundreds of student workers.

Students can apply at the placement center, S188. But hurry! George Crippen, a new placement staff assistant, says that the center is moving to S142 where there will be ample room for individual interviews, reading spaces, career planning, and employer relations.

Old Ramporium To Be Headquarters Of Student Clubs

Interested student clubs will have the opportunity to move their headquarters to the vacated Ramporium bookstore next week, Dr. Harry Buttimer, educational manager, recently announced.

The Ramporium, which was replaced this semester by the larger and more efficient campus bookstore in the Educational Services Building, will again become a busy site once Dr. Buttimer's plans get rolling.

According to Buttimer, his plan is to divide the space in the bookstore evenly among the various clubs that petition. Instead of separate offices, a series of desks will be spaced throughout the rooms to accommodate more people.

Buttimer said that he hopes the project will spark better organization and efficiency in the Student Council and other clubs.

Clubs interested in securing space in the vacated Ramporium may file a petition with Dr. Buttimer in his office in ES-201.

Both the Ram Ski Club and the Fillipino-American Club have already turned in petitions.

Greek Tragedy Is Film Series Flick

Antigone, a film based on Sophocles' play, will be shown tomorrow night at 8 p.m. in the College Theater.

Sophocles' classsic Greek tragedy relates the story of Antigone, daughter of Oedipus, the woman who defies the kingly authority of her uncle Creon when it outrages her feelings and her sense of justice and obligation. This famous drama of conflicting principles and values has been one of the most outstanding of all Greek plays.

The film, made in Greece in 1962, directed by George Tzavellas won the Best Actor Award at the San Francisco Film Festival. It stars Irene Papas and Manos Katrakis in the title roles.

On the screen, the play comes across to the audience as it would appear on the stage. Remaining faithful to the plot and text of the play, Greek director Tzavellas did not incorporate entire spectacular cinematic effects in the film. The action in the film is mainly static and centers in the ancient city of Thebes. It is a "film-play" and not truly, in the visual sense of the word, cinematic.

In reviewing the film, The Saturday Review reported: "Tzavellas has brought forth the singing emotion of this ancient drama with fluent staging and fine photography. He proves that the play has remained very much alive through the centuries and that its power and anguish can affect audiences today."

Like the other films, Antigone was rented through the Audio Film Center in San Francisco and will be free of charge to all City College students and their guests.

Free Critic Secures Council Funds; Special AS Election Slated For Next Wednesday

The Free Critic was allocated $2,996 by Student Council last week. These funds will enable this Associated Students newspaper to publish 14 issues this semester. The decision was made shortly after Council "adopted" it as an AS sponsored paper.

Sophomore Councilman Al Wong introduced a resolution which would allow the Chinese-American students to have two of the Free Critic's eight pages, and it was passed by Student Council last Monday. This will enable the Chinese-American students to express their ideas and viewpoints.

Five thousand copies of this paper will be printed for each issue.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT that the Guardsman, the official publication of City College of San Francisco, was no longer being run with money from the AS played an important part in Council's decision to sponsor the Free Critic. The Guardsman is now being run with money from the San Francisco Unified School District.

In other Council action, $600 was allocated to ISSA (Intercollegiate Students for Social Action). This will enable this organization to provide speakers for Cultural Week which is scheduled from October 7-11.

Assemblywoman March K. Fong of Oakland will open Cultural Week with a speech in the Little Theater on October 7 at 11 a.m.

THE THEME of this week will revolve around aspects of Chinese culture.

On October 8, there will be a lion dance and dragon parade at the Ram. All events of Cultural Week are open to the public and will be held from 11 a.m. to 12 noon.

There will be a special AS election next Wednesday to fill the two vacant sophomore seats on Student Council. They were vacated by Sharon Parks and Herschel Major. Petitions may be obtained from the AS office or Election Chairman. The deadline for petitions is October 1.

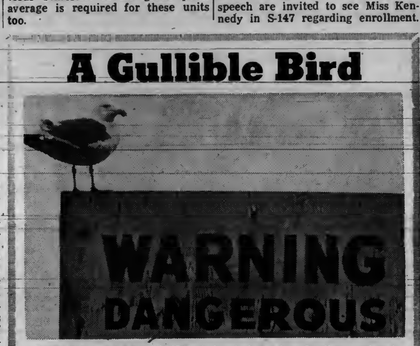
Anyone interested in running must have completed at least 28 units at City College and must have at least a 2.0 grade point average. Fourteen of these units must be from the previous semester. A 2.0 grade point average is required for these units too.

Speech Therapy Class Still Open For New Students

A Speech Therapy course, a class for students having problems in speech, has become a part of City College's curriculum this semester. According to Jo Kennedy, speech instructor and resident Speech Therapist here, there are still openings in the class for interested students.

The course, intended for students with physical and emotional speech difficulties, is also available to students with foreign backgrounds who have problems with accents. Lisping, stuttering, pronunciation difficulties and problems relating to the hard of hearing, are the impediments Miss Kennedy intends to tackle.

Broadly categorized, these include cogential, muscular and neurological defects and those stemming from trauma, lack of self confidence, emotional instability and fear.



"City College, one of the few schools in the United States that actually has a working Speech Therapist, is offering this course primarily as a service to the students," said Miss Kennedy. "Many schools have courses in learning to be a therapist but this is practically unique."

Classes are now being held in the acoustically tiled Radio Room where tape recorders are available.

With a Masters in Speech Therapy from Stanford University Miss Kennedy is also qualified to teach classes in Speech, Foreign Language, Phonics, and English.

Students having difficulties with speech are invited to see Miss Kennedy in S-147 regarding enrollment.

A Gullible Bird

THIS GULL NAMED CLYDE obviously has a lot of gall to read and not heed the words of wisdom he is so gallantly perched upon. Clyde must be one of those protesting types of birds who like to squawk at things that exist for their own bird-brained good. The trouble with these protesting birds like Clyde is that they sit down and protest where people don't want these bird-bodies around. When our able bodied campus cop spots this protester, he undobtedly will be in for a peck of ferocious scolding. Clyde will then spread the alarm of a growing menace of City College bird-brutality.
—Guardsman photo by Gavin Watt

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of City College of San Francisco
MIKE DUGGAN, Editor

Vol. 67, No. 2 WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 25, 1968 Page 2

Alioto Favors Stadium

SAN FRANCISCO MAYOR JOSEPH ALIOTO recently expressed his favor in a $150,000 federal study of the pros and cons of scraping Candlestick Park in favor of a downtown replacement stadium.

We feel, as does Alioto, that San Francisco should act promptly and build the proposed sports complex. The city has wasted too much time already and the result is that Oakland, our east bay rival, by building the beautiful Coliseum arena and stadium, has become the sports capitol of the Bay Area.

In addition to the football Raiders, the baseball A's and the basketball Oaks, Oakland is now the home of the Bay Area's soccer franchise, the Clippers, as well as the hockey Seals.

DESPITE THE FACT that San Francisco's 49ers, Warriors and Giants arrived on the scene well ahead of their east bay rivals, nothing has been done in the way of providing any of these teams with a suitable home to play in.

Candlestick Park, home of the Giants, although only eight years old, is already considered one of the worst stadiums in the major leagues. It's windy and hard to get to, and takes a far back seat to the home of the fabulous A's.

While the young Oakland Oaks of the unproven ABA will play this season in the comfortable Coliseum arena, the established Warriors of the NBA will once again play home games in the Cow Palace, built long ago for a horse and rodeo show.

For the collegiate aged basketball fans, who usually can afford only the cheapest seats, the Warrior supporter will again find himself in one of the four far corners of the Cow Palace, where 20-20 vision and binoculars are a must.

FOOTBALL, QUICKLY BECOMING the number one spectator sport in the country, poses a different problem in San Francisco. Except for lack of parking, nothing is really wrong with Kezar Stadium, home of the 49ers.

Oakland's Raiders, with a new look stadium and a winning team, however, are drawing new fans over to the East Bay while at the same time the Forty-Niners attendance is on the decent.

With nothing resembling a title since 1957, the 49ers are continually supported by the rule which allows liquor to be taken into the stadium. The loyal Forty-Niner fans, despite a losing team, still bring their six-packs and spend their Sunday afternoons at Kezar.

Let's build a complex in San Francisco that will make our professional sports teams and their fans feel proud of their city. We support the work of Mayor Alioto in his attempt to bring the sports capital of Northern California back to the west side of the bay.

Ho Chi Minh Visits Here; Genghis Khan Passes On

By Lavine Lee

City College of San Francisco played host to an 11 foot long, 38 pound Asian Rock Python (a snake) from Viet Nam last Tuesday afternoon.

The only real incident of the day occurred when somebody squeezed Ho. He retaliated by promptly 'going to the john' on his nameless attacker and his books.

Two years ago, our Vietnamese friend, whose name is Ho Chi Minh (no relation to the North Viet Nam dictator), nonchalantly fell onto the back of Darren Stevens who was serving our country at the time. Stevens and Ho returned to the United States together and are now residing in the former's apartment.

Ho eats approximately once every two months. His meals usually consist of water and two live ducks or chickens.

Most of the time Ho just roams around the apartment the two of them occupy. His favorite places include the back of the stereo, the heater, and the shower.

At one time, our illustrious snake decided to, play a little game of hide-and-seek by hiding in the sofa. After three months, he came out (probably he got hungry), and they became one big happy family again. "I wondered why the sofa was so bumpy," stated Stevens after that particular hair-raising incident.

DARREN STEVENS poses with Ho Chi Minh, pet Asian Rock Python. —Guardsman photo by James Pope

After attending some lectures on this campus, Ho is probably the most intellectual snake of his kind. But like all intellectual "students," he slept in many of his classes. Stevens carried him in a briefcase while the two of them attended classes.

When Ho "grows up," he will be approximately 32 feet long, and he will weigh 350 pounds. He was only nine and one half feet long when Stevens first found him in Viet Nam.

Stevens plans to give Ho to the Steinhart Museum in about six years. By that time he will be too big (and dangerous) to keep as a pet. He is now 11 years old and is currently busy looking for a mate (just like a man!!).

Besides his snake, our Viet Nam war veteran also has a German Shepherd named Alfie. He and Ho don't get along very well so they just stay away from each other. A pet falcon of Stevens' named Genghis Khan died recently.

Ramette Of The Week

—Guardsman photo by Samuel Woo

By Dave Albertson

CRISSY PERRY IS A PETITE, bashful, blonde bundle of beauty who is more than amply endowed with qualifications to be selected as this week's Ramette of the Week.

Our comely young 18 year old Ramette was found in the campus cafeteria, sticking out like Rachel Welch in a leper colony.

Chrissy's winning smile and radiant 5-2 form is enough to make King Callous melt with adventurous imagination.

ORIGINALLY FROM CARMEL, this little lovely has traveled around a bit due to her father's occupation. You had better think twice before attempting to get too cute with Chrissy, if you're a serviceman. Her dad is a full bird colonel in his 24th year of service in Uncle Sam's Army.

Chrissy recently graduated from Chicago's Highland Park High and is currently in her first semester at City College.

IN ADDITION TO ATTENDING City College, she is also taking courses at Saint Francis Hospital in pursuit of her future nursing career. Justification could be found in breaking your leg to be bedridden with Chrissy as your nurse.

In reply to what she felt about the race for the presidency, Chrissy said, "I don't care for any of our current candidates. In fact, Humphrey looks like a hick."

HER FAVORITE SPORTS ARE SWIMMING, body surfing and sailing. Chrissy says she likes all water sports and ". . . loves the ocean, especially near Delmonte Beach in Carmel."

She also enjoys wheeling around in sports cars. In addition she plays the guitar and sings folk music, and has sung for a few hospital and other charitable functions. She would like to get in a folk group, if the opportunity comes along.

ON THE FASHION SIDE, CHRISSY SAYS, ". . . all girls who have the right type shapes should wear mini-skirts, but only those who have the right types!"

"Long hair is O.K. on guys, if they keep it clean, but the person is what counts anyway," beamed the emerald-eyed super fox.

Chrissy claims that ". . . I don't meet enough guys at this school. Maybe it's because I've only been here for two days." That might be why, Chrissy—it just might be.

Curriculum Undergoes Expansion

By Rita Carroll

Adding a little color to City College's curriculum, new courses based on the black and yellow racial cultures have become an integral part of study here this semester.

Chinese students are now able to take Chinese 1, a foreign language class teaching the major dialect of China. Also offered, primarily for Chinese students is Chinese 39, the history of Chinese thought and culture.

New English courses, English 31, 32, 33, and 34, involve Black literature and poetry mainly in the United States.

Another new course this semester is Psychology in Minority Groups, Psychology 22 and 23.

These classes are not opened only to minority students. Certain classes have prerequisites, but all students who are eligible are accepted.

James Billwiller, dean of instruction, said that courses directed towards minority students were added to the fall roster of classes mainly because of the avid interest exemplified by Black and Chinese students and department heads. He also said that colleges like University of California, Berkeley and San Francisco State College have been offering these courses for some time, and he though that it was time for City College to follow suit.

Classes for Black Students were chosen by a special committee on Black Students comprised of faculty members, administrators and Black Students. Administrators, Chinese Students and some Chinese organizations on campus selected the special courses for Chinese students.

At least five new English classes, English as a second language, have been added for exchange students and those students whose native language is not English.

Dean Billwiller said these new classes tend to fill up. Both the Chinese language course and the psychology for minority students are filled while the Chinese culture course is not yet completely full.

Student From Thailand Robbed

The gloomy cold weather seemed to add to the sad plight of Siah Ling Sae Ow.

Ling, as he is known among his friends, had the unfortunate and heartbreaking experience of having his books, money and wallet taken from the shelves in the book store. Perhaps the fact that Ling is a student from exotic Thailand and not a citizen of this country makes his experience a little more tragic.

It is doubtful that Ling will hold this one incident against the college but it does leave a rather poor taste in his mouth. This is also his first semester here at the college. He should have received a better reception like all foreign students should.

Originally Ling had gone to the bookshop to check up on some books for his ESL 26 class. When he came back to pick up his books they were not there. Bag, books, wallet and money had all vanished into thin air. There were two Business 61 books, two English books, a note book, pens and pencils, wallet with $20 for tuition fee, apartment keys and a green apple. Said Ling, "I don't know how I am going to get into the apartment."

This case is by no means an isolated one. Regardless of his uniqueness it is regretable that this should have happened to Ling. Perhaps in the future he will be able to look back on this day with a sense of amusement, though it is quite distresssing now. The best to you Ling.—S.S.

Guardsman Staff — Fall 1968

EDITOR IN CHIEF ..... MIKE DUGGAN
Managing Editor ..... Doug Boston
Feature Editor ..... Tom Graham
Staff Editor ..... Boku Kodama
News Editor ..... Barbara Hamann
Sports Editor ..... Dave Albertson
Editorial Assistants: Martin J. Arbunich, Lani Brand, Rita Carroll, Lavine Lee, Lynda Sandstrom.
Reporters: Randy Flynn, Leonard Ribeiro.
Cub Reporters: Floyd Banks, Ralph Bayard, Jack Blake, Dan Castro, Joe Cefalu, Patrick Chan, Lynette Conklin, Jeff Deleuse, Phil Di Carlo, Kaye Granos, Yvonne Lew, Marianne Lin, Dan McCarthy, Florence McCarthy, Ben Marinas, Diana Matson, Alan Pelzner, James Pope, Elizabeth Ramos, Lester Rasterfer, Jack Ritz, Soonaleta Schmidt, Kenneth Surface, Barbara Tyrrell, Val Vallendar, Wong Tse Yui.
Photographers: Marilyn Astalosh, Chief; Bert Flowers, Glenn Graham, Steven La Plant, Jerry Mishler, Detlef Osburg, Jens Profze, Roberto Guillen, Kevin Shea, Ulmer T. McKnight, Gavin Watt, Calvin Wong, Russell Wong, Sam Woo.
Advisor: Mary Blair

SHOOTIN' IT

by Doug Boston

THE CAMPUS POLICE, supreme upholders of law and order here, received a short but exacting jolt to their pride recently.

An unknown evildoer(s) delivered the challenging remarks in the form of painted print on the reservoir wall. The single line message read, "City College Cops Go To Hel."

Now we can draw various conclusions to that erudite phrase. Editor-in-Chief Mike Duggan suggests that the vandals were scared away before they could finish. Another possibility is that they weren't frightened away, and they just never bothered to learn the correct spelling.

AT ANY RATE, the writings have been concealed by black paint, and not a trace of evidence remains. We got a letter from an interested student who was alarmed at the vandalism, suggesting that it sure was one hel of a terrible thing to do.

ALTERATION. Sometime in the near future, students of colleges across the country will probably establish their own curriculum, teach each other, study on their own time, and return or transfer at will, says Stanford professor Lewis Mayhew.

He based his predictions on descernible trends in education. Mayhew believes that computers will be employed in selecting the best college for individuals, thus creating an accent on the individual need of each student.

• • •

THE PROFESSOR reasons that by 1980, the universities and colleges throughout the country will break away from fact memorizing courses; instead, the liberal arts will be emphasized.

We have witnessed efforts, successful one, by Black and Chinese students, to establish courses in African Civilizations and Mandarin Chinese here at the college. High school students (Ravenwood) are also demanding some voice in choice of curriculum.

It appears that students are attempting to have some voice in the selection of classes! We believe this is a sound attempt.

• • •

OF MEN AND MONEY. Arnold Palmer is alive and captured the first prize in the Kemper Open last week, netting him a cool 30 grand. He won in familiar fashion, firing a five under par 67 closing round, coming from three a stern and ending four pops toward the bow.

The tournament not only marks a comeback for Arnie, but it makes him the first golfer in the world to have earned a neat million dollars in prize money. No player can match Palmer in producing the big shot or in keeping the gallery overwhelmed. He has made golf the great sport it is today.

One of his familiar statements, "I get no enjoyment out of the game unless the pressure is on." Long live the king.

Meanwhile, Denny McLain's achievement of a 30 game season is even more noteworthy than Rambling columnist Dave Albertson reports on page four.

McLain not only bested Dizzy Dean's record, but he managed to beat the Time Magazine jinx, his picture being on the cover for the September 13th issue.

• • •

NONCENTS. Many of us are affected by the new muni regulations concerning fares. Drivers don't make change anymore. Flash. The reason: too many robberies, that is, the $50 of change that the drivers once carried.

Wish the robbers would knock it off because we're saving our dimes and nickels for the colleges vending machines which don't often return change, nor do they seldom function at all.

• • •

POSTCARDS are so anti-private. Any mail man can tell you that. How come people write items of importance or personal problems on them, knowing that half of the P.O. and sometimes the wrong people are going to read them? Example: This guy we know got a post card from two of his girl friends—and left work early to beat his wife to the mailbox.

• • •

TIME. Don't let the semester, or the year, pass you by. It looks like school is moving rapidly. Plan that time, and study, there's only about 5952 hours until summer vacation.

DISPATCH

by Boku Kodama

Dudley Studley was only 19 years old when the Selective Service decided to send him a greeting from the President.

Dudley Studley took the news with mixed emotions. He knew he would have to go, but he thought it was a waste of time. Dudley's mother was shocked, "Oh Dudley, you're too young to go. Why didn't they select one of those older men or one of those hippies; they're always causing trouble!"

Mr. Studley took the news as a sign that his son was finally becoming a man. "Don't worry mama," said Dudley's father, "the army will make him into a well-moulded man and a better citizen."

"Why I remember back in '42," he continued, "when I went off to fight for America in World War II. I'll never forget those years, and what a bunch of swell guys we had. Did I ever tell you about the time when the Japs had us surrounded in the middle of the jungle, Dudley?"

"Just a couple of times, Dad," replied Dudley.

"I want to show you my old uniform, Dudley, and some of the souvenirs I picked up in the Pacific," stated Mr. Studley enthusiastically.

So for the twenty-third time, Dudley watched as his father opened the large brown chest and pulled out an old army uniform. Underneath that was his battle-worn helmet and a samurai sword which he claimed belonged to a general.

THAT NIGHT, at the dinner table, Mr. Studley was still babbling on about his days in the army and how Dudley should be proud to serve his country as one of its defenders of freedom and honor. Mrs. Studley was still worried about Dudley but she just didn't know what to say.

Ten days later, Dudley was saying farewell to his parents, relatives and friends.

"Be careful, Dudley," said his mother with tears in her sad eyes. Oh, and don't forget to write, dear."

"So long son and take good care of yourself," his father proudly told Dudley.

When the plane had finally disappeared into the sky, Mr. Studley turned to some of Dudley's friends and said, "Well, there goes my boy. Say, did I ever tell you boys about the time back in '43, when I . . ."

UPON REACHING boot camp four hours later, Dudley was given his unform and equipment. Dudley then found a bunk in the corner of his barrack. He also found that the mess hall was a mess.

In his first few weeks, Dudley strained through the exercises and learned to defend himself. Dudley learned that his only friend was his automatic rifle, and he practiced with it until he could hit a small target 75 yards away. "Boy, this is better than shooting fake ducks at the amusement park," he said.

His next course was in hand-to-hand combat, and he found out that a knife was not just for cutting steak. The army also taught him how to demolish structures which might stand in his way.

When the training was over, Dudley's personality had changed. No longer was he a mere guy but rather an efficient, effective fighting man of the American army. He had found a lust for violence and blood through the courtesy of the government. "The hell with Communism; the only good red is a dead red," Dudley would say.

IN A SHORT TIME, Dudley received notice he would be sent to Viet Nam. He wrote a letter to his parents explaining where he would be for the next few months.

Dear Mom:

We're being shipped out to Viet Nam in a couple of weeks to defend America against those ratty Commies and free those nice Vietnamese people. Will be leaving at pier 37. Hope you can make it. Love, Dudley

When it came time for Dudley to leave, his parents, relatives and friends went to see him off.

"Take good care of yourself, Dudley," said Mrs. Studley, with tears in her eyes."

"Remember son, you'll be out there fighting for me, your mother and all the other Americans who'll be depending on you," Mr. Studley said with vigor.

And as Dudley's ship sailed slowly into the sunset, Mr. Studley was reminded of those fighting days of World War II.

Reception For New Members Of Faculty Set For Today

The annual reception for new faculty members, sponsored by the Faculty Association, will be held today from 3 to 5 p.m. in the Faculty Dining Room.

Among those being honored: Susan Bauman and Louise Scourkes, women's physical education; George Crippen, assistant placemen director; Ruth Foggiato, medical technology; Yvonne Gaul, counselor; John Snidecor, art; Jack Essex, French instructor and Cecelia Lundin, Spanish.

New members of the English department include Aaron Berman, Frank Bratt, Richard Duncan, Tyra Duncan Hall, Ideale Gambera, Richard Gralak, Abdul Jabbar, Deanne Milan, Harold Prewett, Kenneth Sutherland, Sophia Vlamis, and Jill Willis.

The social science department has gained the services of Stephen Atwater, Laurene McClain, Stephen Moorhouse, Richard Oxsen, William Padgett, Peter Spinetta, Patrick Westbook, and Austin White.

The engineering department has added Richard Duncan and Howard Patton as staff members.

Library technology will be instructed by Iole Matteucig and Annaliese Munetic. William Chinn and Stanley Schmidt joined the mathematics department. New science instructors include Perry Close (life science), Frances Connick (chemistry), Edwin Duckworth (astronony), Jerome Hosken (physics) and Robert Manlove (geology).

The business department had added James Carson, Julia Foulk, Howard Granger, James Seguin, Richard Szykalski, and Philip Williams.

Black Students Publish Paper

Black Guard is an on campus newspaper publication this semester which is sponsored by City College's Black Student Association.

The newspaper is supported from contributing funds from the black community and other interested readers.

The theme of the Black Guard will be to focus on issues and items of interest that concern and affect the black community. World as well as local stories will be included.

James Billbury and Alfonso Carter are co-publishers and the Editors in charge of the Black Guard.

Students interested in contributing to the Black Guard contact Carter or Billbury at The BSA.

IFC Smoker Is Re-scheduled For Tomorrow Night

The previously cancelled Inter-Fraternity Council Smoker has been rescheduled for tomorrow night in Smith Hall between 7:30 and 9:30.

The action took place in a special meeting held last week. The date for the smoker was changed because of the inability of the seven different fraternities to contact their members on such short notice so early in the semester.

In order to increase interest in the up-coming Smoker, the different fraternities put tables out during College Hour last week near the cafeteria, and in various other locations on campus. Entertainment will run from music to a boxing film. Til Cosgrove, chairman of the IFC, and Lawrence Lawson, faculty advisor, spoke at length on various ways to increase new interest in fraternities, and encourage members to take a more active role in their respective fraternities.

On the night of the Smoker, the Fraternity Service Award, and the Scholarship Award Trophies will be given out for the previous semester. There will be no admission price.

Dance Here Friday Night

Alpha Sigma Delta fraternity will hold an Asian Benefit Book dance on Friday, from 9 to 12 midnight in Smith Hall.

Admission to this dance will be five books or $1.25 with a associated student card. For students without an AS card, admission is $1.50. Tickets may be purchased at the door.

Dress for this affair will be sport dress.

The objective of this dance is to collect books to be sent abroad.

"The books are to be of educational value," said Alpha Sigma Delta spokesman, Lloyd Larson. He added that drop offs for books for the Asian Book Drive will be on campus the week of the dance.

Music will be provided by the Soulusions and the Sounds Unlimited. A light show will be put on by Optic Illusion.

During College Hour tomorrow, Alpha Sigma Delta will hold a rally. Music will be provided by the Crabs.

Patrons and patronesses at the dance will be Margaret Carter, Tyra Duncan-Hill, Larry Elson, Michael Joseph, and Martin Kilgariff.

Contact Lens

Did Chicago Demonstrators Provoke Police Brutality?

WASSMAN

Paul Wassman, Physics Major

If you look at the statistics where there have been large political rallies, I think the right thing was done at the Chicago convention.

The demonstration was pre-meditated and there were a lot of agitators. At the Republican convention, there were a few people killed, but there weren't any killed at the Chicago convention. I think the police did a good job. The demonstrators were there because they wanted to be heard.

MARSH

Dave Marsh, Art Major

I don't think so. I think it was under Daly's facist regime that he holds in Chicago. If you're not for Daly, you're out. I think it was a pretty sad thing. It's the end of a political machine.

There was much more emotion in the Democratic convention than at the Republican convention. Everyone knew Nixon would get it. They knew Humphrey would get it, but with Bobby Kennedy getting killed, there was much more emotion.

SHEEHAN

WRIGHT

Barry Sheehan, English Major

The demonstrators provoked the brutality by being there, but the police retaliated with a force that wasn't necessary. The police should have permitted the demonstrators to demonstrate as long as they weren't violating the rights of others. I think the demonstrators had a valid point to make, and they had a right to be there.

Barbara Wright, Social Welfare Major

No, most of the demonstrators were young people. They were fighting for something to believe in. It was a peaceful demonstration, but the police took it in their own hands to break it up, as the Chicago police have a tendency to do! I think the police were wrong. They should have handled the situation better. They are not trained properly. There isn't enough communication between the police and the individual. This is wrong.

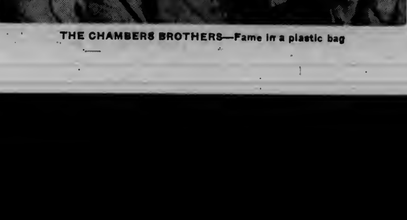
By Lavine Lee and Lynda Sandstrom
—Guardsman photos by James Pope

Labelled And Recorded

Chambers Brothers Cash In On New Skin

by Martin J. Arbunich

THE FIRST TIME this writer saw The Chambers Brothers was when they were unknowns, except to their underground, they were very much in the folk-gospel stream, they played very little rhythm and blues and their electric instrumental sound was almost non-existant aside from the bare essentials.



That was three years ago, since which time The Chambers Brothers have been through countless performances, two record companies, four record albums (with another overdue from Columbia) and, of course, a best-selling single ("Time Has Come Today") which refuses to cut loose from the radio.

ALSO, OVER THE PAST three years the group has steadily been changing its image—musically and physically. And over the last nine months their music has undergone some radical changes, and they seem to be at the stage where they've more or less abandoned the folk-gospel channel they were raised in and perfected over the years.

As a substitutz, the group has gone pseudo-bip (which is a queer choice for a black band), and though characteristics of their former musics still remain, they've re-channeled their repertoire towards a thicker spread of r&b interweaved with the usually heavy electric sounds of rock.

THE MOVE really wasn't for the better, but it was expected. The Brothers, who have been together ten years as a group, found it quite hard to get established as a band doing the music they thought was important—and was. As even the rhythms of "Time" so adequately avow, the Brothers assumed they couldn't be accepted by the masses (after ten years of trying) with their innate form of expression and joined the trend which many progressive rock groups have had remarkable success with.

No matter how many copies of "Time" they may sell, no matter how many people are won-over through their full-house performances, The Chambers Brothers will never regain their importance as a band of originality, exercising their rich heritage of Southern roots, as long as they stay where they're at.

THE CHAMBERS BROTHERS—Fame in a plastic bag

THOSE WHO ARE familiar with The Chambers Brothers' old trend music can readily see that they're still first-rate entertainers—but they're playing a plastic music. Their current repertoire is still highly entertaining to their routine audiences, but to those possessing any background knowledge and familiarity with the band, performances usually come through as being incomplete, unoriginal and synthetic.

The Brothers' attempt to play the roles of first-rate musicians (e.g. "Time") is a farce. Their instrumentation is their least artistic quality (save drummer Brian Keenan who does excell somewhat), and moves to overshadow their vocal finesse with instruments, only further exhibits their mediocrity as musicians.

THIS ARTICLE ISN'T intended to knock the wind out of the band, only to lay down the straight story. The Chambers Brothers are great singers; in fact, they may have the best harmony and individual vocal genius of any group around, and they usually come across real well in that category with all their material—particularly the gospel-based numbers.

The real problem doesn't lie in the performers, but in the direction the Chamber Brothers have chosen. It's too bad fame came in a plastic bag. Their old one was so much better.

• • •

A "super session" with Mike Bloomfield and Al Kooper (and others) will headline the Fillmore West this weekend. On the same show will be the Loading Zone and It's A Beautiful Day. At the Avalon: Flatts and Scruggs, Ramblin' Jack Elliot, Country Weather and the Sons of Champlin. Donovan is at the Civic this Friday.

Letters to the Editor

Ram's Horn

(Letters to the Editor may be left in the switchboard office, S-169, in Science Hall or in The Guardsman office, S-304. Deadlines are 10 a.m. each Wednesday. The Guardsman reserves the right to edit letters in the interests of brevity and rhetoric. If so desired the writer's name will be withheld, but the identity of the writer must be known to the editor.)

● Warning!

Editor, The Guardsman:

At this time of the year when the students as a whole begin to settle down to the new "regime" in power they must come to realize a few if not many things.

The first thing they must realize is the Coalition Party's policy on AS cards. If I recall one of the basic issues that they based their campagin on was these same cards that they are now doing such an excellent job selling, seeing that if they didn't sell them the San Francisco School District wouldn't have given them an activities appropriation.

The next thing, that we must look at is the Council's non approval of Derrick Quan as AS Finance Chairman. If one takes time to read the minutes of that Student Council meeting they will find that the person who moved to have Quan rejected is the same person that Council appooved by the Coalition majority of 9 to 4. Pretty damn dirty I would say.

The third issue which Coalition side tracked so neatly was the three unfilled vacancies on council. According to historical studies and precedences, (English Parliment, 1016) (Democratic National Convention, 1968) when a list of candidates was chosen and some (in each of my two examples, five) of those elected could not take their seats for one reason or another the persons with the next highest votes took those seats.

So let's have a little action since Coalition claimed to be the 'Party for Action for the Student.'

In conclusion I would just like to say that if Coalition continues this policy—Watch Out.

Richard Shirley
COO Vice Chairman

Gridders Swamp Beavers, 32-14

Miller, Coleman Pace Attack; Vangar Honored

By Phil DiCarlo

City College's football team got the 1968 season off to a smashing start, in spite of themselves, by walloping the American River Beavers 32-14 last Friday afternoon at the Ram field.

The game was ragged but never dull. The Rams were brilliant at times, making big, clutch plays time after time, scoring five touchdowns and never "letting up." They also incurred enumerable penalties, fumbled the ball, dropped passes and had three center-snaps go over punter "Scrambling Bill" McDonough's head. When it was over, the team magnanimously awarded the Game Ball to Jerry Vangar, would-be starting guard, who was operated on earlier in the week.

THE OFFENSE featured the power running of Willie Lewis and Joe Bell plus the slashing, dashing styles of Jon Dyson, Doyle Miller and the exciting Otto Coleman.

The pass protection for quarterback Tom Mayfield was, in the words of Alex Schwarz, "phenomenal." Consisting of Ed Diaz, Monty Consani, Bill McKenna, Dan Parrish and Andre Hicks, the interior line did a highly commendable job.

Then there was the DEFENSE! Schwarz, the line coach, said it was "a pleasant surprise," but that could be rated an understatement. Studded with new men and inexperienced veterans, they played extremely well as a unit.

Craig Martin made a magnificent recovery to intercept a pass in the end zone. Two punts were blocked and fumbles were recovered, one by Leo "Black Bell" Lozada deep in Ram-land. The pass defense was superb, the pass rush, excellent. Ray Schultz repeated over and over that his team was "beaten physically." Believe him.

DEFENSIVE END Ed Johnson had a particularly gratifying day. Forced to quit the team earlier in the week due to job interference, he got his affairs ironed out, re-joined the squad and scored the second Ram touchdown—in quite spectacular fashion. Beaver punter, Jon Ritchey, was ejected in the first quarter, forcing Hawaiian Doug King into service. Realizing his lack of experience, the Ram coaches instructed the team to exert great pressure when King had to punt. The strategy paid off in the second quarter when Vince Anderson and George Tinsley blocked a punt. Johnson scrambled after the bouncing ball, gobbled it up on the Beaver 16 and ran for the end zone. The sparse crowd went wild.

Jon Dyson scored the season's first touchdown in the opening quarter. Having dropped a pass on the previous play, he took Mayfield's 16-yard payoff pitch and held on for the score.

The Beavers did manage to score twice, once after recovering a fumble on the Ram 14. The other score was . . . well, one of those things. Leading 13-0, the Rams kicked off to start the second half. On second down, Beaver Henry Wohle led workhorse halfback Pete Halfman through a huge hole in the line. Cutting to his left as he went through, Halfman led his pursuers 79 yards down the sideline for a score.

SHOWING THE MAKINGS of a fine team, City College took the ensuing kick-off and marched 63 yards in only seven plays to score again. Greg Jackson returned the kick 28 yards to the Ram 37. On a big third down play Miller swept left and for 37 yards and a first down on the Beaver 26. Big Willie Lewis scored from the one.

Minutes later, American River's Darrell Cutchlow grabbed a fumble on the Ram six and with it, a golden opportunity for the Beavers to score again. The defense, however, was not to be denied as they stopped the Beavers four straight times for a minus ten yards. The Ram offense, showing their gratitude, took over and marched 84 yds. to touchdownsville. Again another big play on third down kept the momentum as Mayfield passed to Coleman, who ran well with the ball, for a gain of 49 yds. Doyle Miller scored on a sweep from the nine after shaking off a few would-be tacklers back at the 15.

Nary a Beaver was in sight as Miller scored again, taking Mayfield's second TD pass of the game for a 13-yd. score.

Rams To Tackle San Joaquin Delta On Saturday

The hard-charging San Francisco City College Rams will go after San Joaquin Delta in another Golden Gate Conference football game on Saturday, September 27 at UOP stadium.

City College will have at the helm a veteran of an "almost" conference winner last season. Tom Mayfield, an All-City quarterback at Washington high, will guide the team, with two strong backup quarterbacks in Dan Martin, and Chuck Ferrara, a recent Wilson graduate. Mayfield was the starting quarterback on last year's team.

The Rams will have their usual power on the ground. Opposing linebackers will be seeing 220 pound veteran Willie Lewis at fullback, and 210 pound Joe Bell, bulling their way across enemy goalines.

All-City ends Jim Tyree and Mike Baines, and veterans Ralph Bayard and George Nicholson will give the Rams strength in the aerial game. Nicholson will be out for four to six weeks with broken fingers.

The center of the line looks strong with John McKenna, hard-hitting tackle Ed Diaz and guard Monte Consani.

San Joaquin Delta, riding on a one game winning streak with an opening season victory over College of San Mateo, 22-6, will be very keyed up against the pre-season favorite Rams.

Head Coach Dutch Elston, and coaches Alex Schwartz, Grover Klemmer and Ernie Domecus have worked very hard to have the team ready for competition in such a short period of time.

The Rams should fulfill all expectations.

Water Polo Team Faces Tough Season

City College's first water polo team faces a tough assignment on October 16 when they open the league season. They'll be playing against Foothill College, last year's state champs.

One problem this year's team will be plagued by is inexperience. Of the five possible starters only Rich Glass, (forward), Frank Johnson (guard), and Frank Achim (guard) have ever played the game before.

Most of their experience came from playing this summer.

Two other possible starters, Dave Nelson (forward), and Bill Carter (goalie) have never played before.

Another problem that faces Coach Curt Decker is the team's small size of only fourteen players. Compare this with San Mateo or Foothill. They had tryouts of thirty and forty people, and the outlook isn't very bright.

Water polo is played in a pool from 60 to 75 feet long and 20 to 40 feet wide.

The ball itself is not fully inflated to allow players to get a full grip.

To start play both teams line up against their respective ends of the pool, with the ball placed at the center. At the referee's signal both teams head for the ball. This procedure is also followed after a goal is scored.

There are two halves of 8 minutes in U.S. water polo, while in international polo there are 4 quarters of 5 minutes.

The first meet will be held at Coffman pool at 3:30 p.m.

World Series record for a single game attendance is 92,706 in the fifth game of the 1959 World Series between the Dodgers and the Chicago White Sox.

Provost Hopes For San Jose State Track Scholarship

Ernie Provost tied the world record in the 100 meter dash with a clocking of 10 flat in the Sacramento Olympic Trials, recently. Provost missed the U.S. Olympic team finals by one place, by taking sixth in his heat, in which the record was broken by Jim Hines with a time of 9.9.

Provost competed with all time sprint greats, like Ronnie Ray Smith, Jim Hines, Charley Greene and other world renowned sprint stars.

COMPETITION is no new thing to Provost. As an Eagle, Provost competed for Washington High School, where he was "triple A" champion for two years straight in the 100 and 220 yard dash.

At City College of San Francisco, Provost entered into a previous rivalry with an ex-Ayer High School sprint star, Earl Harris.

In the 1968 Golden Gate Conference Championship, Harris managed to win the 100 with a 9.8, but his 22 flat 220 placed him second to Provost in that event. Provost placed second in the 100 with a 9.8, but edged his arch-rival for first in the 220, with a 21.9.

Going into the championships in the 1968 season, Harris had the league's best time in both sprints.

In the start of the 100 yard dash, Provost laid back in the blocks after a false start, and couldn't quite catch Harris in the 100 yard dash.

PROVOST holds the school record in the 100 with a time of 9.4 and the 220 record with a clocking of 21.1. In addition, Provost teamed up Vince Ansley, Larry Mosely and Greg Jackson to produce another team equaling school record in the 440 relay.

The 170 lb., 6-1 trackster, is pleased with his performance. Provost feels he has a greater potential and will not be satisfied until he fulfills it.

Provost is now in his fifth semester at City College, where he is an Art Major.

Provost hopes to get a scholarship to San Jose State College, where he hopes that facilities and the coaching will help him fulfill his potential. Although the competition is great, that's where the speed machines are built.

The competiton should prove to be slightly difficult at San Jose with the likes of world record holders Ronnie Ray Smith, who recently tied Greene and Hines with 9.9 efforts. Lee Evans could also be a tough man to run with on the same team. Evans recently erased Tommie Smith's year old 440 record with a 44 flat.

—F. B.

Ram Spikers Prepare For Upcoming Conference Meet

GEORGE HAZA

City College's Cross Country runners will open their season with a Golden Gate Coneference team race in Golden Gate Park Saturday, October 5 at 10 a.m.

George Haza, Vic Cary and Ted Schwartz, finishing in point position last year, will be attempting to boost this years cinderburners to a vie for first place.

Cary was also instrumental in adding points to last year's track team. He placed first in almost all the meets he participated in. Cary doubled up in the 880 and the mile. His best time in the mile was 4:21, while running a good 1:58.8 for the half.

The team feels that San Mateo, last year's conference winners, will be the team to beat again this season. With the coaching of Lou Vasquez, the combination of faith, confidence, and talent of the men on the team, their chances are strong.

KLAUS HOFFMAN, from St. Ignatius, seems to be the new exciting attraction. Hoffman runs the mile in a burning 4:13. Watch for him to better his record.

Bob Darling, Tony Baccelli, Ed Schmidt and Jose Garcia are other returning impresssive spikers. Veteran runners say to watch Dave Powers and Augie Cano. Both will be going all out to give Coach Vasquez a good impression. The best impression either man can give is a bunch of first place positions and a spot in the finals.

The team will be hurting at the loss of last year's star runners Fred Forsberg and Bob Aanestad. Forsberg ran the four miles in 23:35 and Aanestad ran the four miles in 23:41.

Champion Cagers Prepare New Bid For Fourth Straight Season Crown

At this early date the preseason outlook for the basketball team is not iron clear. Coach Sid Phelan has not yet been able to estimate the strength of his team or the other teams in the league. Chabot and Laney, he feels, will be the cagers strongest foes.

Last year's team was co-champion with Chabot, both teams ending their respective seasons with identical 12-2 records. The Rams gained their third straight conference crown by defeating Chabot in a playoff 77-72 at San Jose City College. Jacob Hill and Ray Hearne led the Ram attack with 21 points apiece. Hill will be returning to this year's team and should be instrumental with the team's attack.

Experience and talent return to the court, this semester, in the forms of Gus Hill, Telvis Jones, Darryl Fregia, Boyd Stevens, Tom Kuhn and Bob Phelan. Another player expected to help this year is All-City leading scorer Jerry Odhams.

Last year's record of 25 wins 7 losses was a pretty piece of statistic matter. Can they repeat or better this feat is now a pending question.

Gary Bradford, who made All-Conference last year, received two scholarships but chose to employ his talents with Uncle Sam in the Air Force.

A compulsory basketball meeting will be held on Monday October 14 for all persons trying out for the team.

Patterson Victim Of A Referee's Decision

KILL THAT ROTTEN no good referee, could easily be justified, if you happen to be tuned in to the recent boxing heavyweight title bout in Stockholm, Sweden, between two-time champ Floyd Patterson and current World Boxing Association titleholder, Jimmy Ellis.

Fighting from his defensive peek-a-boo style, Patterson was obviously in control of the fight from the fourth round on. The former champ battered Ellis from one side of the ring to the other. Ellis' face was a mass of blood due to a fractured nose he received in the first round and a cut over the right eye in the fourth.

A majority of international sports writers also disagreed with Referee Harold Valan's decision in which he scored nine rounds for Ellis and six for Patterson. From an immediate poll of boxing experts taken after the fight, eight had Patterson as the winner while only two agreed with the questionable ruling of referee Valan.

PATTERSON was also a victim of a bad call in his last outing in which he lost a disputed decision to Jerry Quarry in an elimination match, after Cassius Clay's title was vacated by the WBA. Quarry went on to lose the title to Ellis in the finals.

Patterson became the only boxer in history to lose his title and then regain it, when he knocked out Igemar Johanssen of Sweden a few years back. This writer agrees with the boxing experts that he should have regained it a second time.

President of The American Baseball League, Joe Cronin, must have developed a bad taste for poor officials after watching the Patterson farce. Last week Cronin fired long-time lousy umpire Joe Valentine.

Revenge is sweet.

LEE EVANS and Larry James continued their fierce rivalry recently disinegrating the 400 meter world record by a full five-tenths of a second, while qualifying for berths in the Olympic Trials at Echo Summit.

Evans unbelievable 44 flat erased the previous record of 44.5 set by Tommie Smith last year. James was right on Evans heels as he also eclipsed the old record with a time of 44.1.

Vince Matthews ran a 44.4 earlier in the week, but failed to qualify for the final Olympic team position. Ron Freeman grabbed the last Olympic 400 meter ticket from Matthews with a fine 44.6. Matthews finished fourth in 44.8.

Of course the officials were around to spoil things, and are presently doing their best to annulify Evans' mark because he was wearing a new kind of track shoe.

The PUMA 68 shoe which Evans wore on his record run differs from the traditional shoe in that it has smaller spikes.

John Carlos' amazing 19.7 for the 200 meters may also be overlooked due to official meddling.

SUGGESTION OF THE WEEK: All referees, umpires and other blind, brainless and otherwise incapable officials be replaced by electric eye IBM computers.

IT'S ABOUT TIME: Led by 30-game winner Denny McLain, the Detroit Tigers have finally sewed up their first pennant in 23 years.

McLain taking time off from playing his organ and wisling off to reporters, became the first pitcher to win 30 games since Dizzy Dean turned the trick 34 years ago.

REVENGE: Credit must be given to Shootin' It columnist Doug Boston for his scoop of last week on former Ram pitcher Bill Kirkpatrick signing with the Baltimore Orioles. In payment this columnist showed Boston his pics of former Ramette of the Week, Florine Gallegos.

Mysteriously enough, "someone" stole the pics the following day.

RAMBLINGS

by Dave Albertson

New Shoes Win Race For Lee Evans

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 67 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 2, 1968 NUMBER 3

Special AS Election Today

Council Deplores Acts Of UC Board In Cleaver Issue

A special Associated Students election for two vacant sophomore Council seats will be the main topic of the Student Council meeting today.

As of last Thursday, only three candidates have filed petitions for these Council seats. They are Alan DuBane, Walter H. Sundberg, and Hattie Knox.

The Council seats were vacated this semester by Sharon Parks and Hershel Major when they failed to return to the college.

In this special election only Student Council will be eligible to vote. Each of the candidates will make a short speech before Council voters.

DuBANE IS THE CURRENT State information chairman of this college. He is a former student body vice president of Los Angeles City College.

Sundberg, who is in his late forties, ran for Sophomore Council last semester, but was defeated.

Miss Knox has served as a delegate to the Area Six Conference and is secretary of the Council of Organizations.

In other Council action, Councilman Al Wong spoke on the Student-Faculty meeting held two weeks ago. The main topic of the report was based on a proposal that would change the grading systems for classes in remedial courses such as Communications.

ACCORDING to this proposal, these courses would be put on a pass-fail basis. In other words, if a student does not pass a course in communications, the instructor will make no report on it. It would be as if he never enrolled in the class.

AS President Derrick Hill believes this proposal will cut down the number of students who drop classes.

Hill also introduced a resolution deploring the actions of the University of California Board of Regents in disqualifying Eldridge Cleaver from presenting a series of lectures on the UC campus. The resolution was passed. Hill is currently trying to get Cleaver to speak on this campus.

AS PRESIDENT Derrick Hill (standing in center) presides over recent Student Council meeting. At far left is Dean Lawrence Lawson, director of student activities. —Guardsman photo by Jerry Misler

Immigration Experts Talk About Chinatown Problems

"What's with Chinatown" was the topic of the Associated Students lecture event, held in the Little Theater last Thursday during College Hour.

Immigration specialists Jack Chow and Charles Wong presented the background and current conditions in Chinatown. They cited crime rates, generation gap, housing shortages, underemployment and suicide as contributory causes to the Chinese dilemma.

"As a result of the recent influx of immigrants from Hong Kong, facilities in Chinatown have been put under tremendous pressure," according to Jack Chow.

This influx was causes by changes in the United States immigration laws. Prior to 1955, the Chinese "quoto" was 105 immigrants per year. Now the "numerical limitation" is 120,000 annually for all nations.

"Many immigrants get spoiled waiting for transportation to the United States," says Chow. "They receive money from relatives to tide them in Hong Kong and, after months of leisure, lose their interest in working," Chow remarked.

"Consequently, we have a high unemployment rate while some jobs go unfilled," added Chow.

Charles Wong challenged those at the opposite pole in the "generation gap" to identify with the problems of Chinatown and to actively seek out ways to solve them. Few people are aware that San Francisco's Chinatown has the highest suicide rate in the nation," mentioned Wong. In 1965, 59 out of every 100,000 Chinatown population committed suicide, according to Wong. This compares with the eight to ten per 100,000 on the national average.

The event was sponsored by the Associated Students of City College as part of their Fall Concert Lecture Series.

Culprits Kick Daylight Out Of Walkway Lamps—Wave Still On

A couple of juveniles started the whole mess a few months ago.

The initiated a wave of destruction by smashing many of the college's walkway lamps.

Since that time many other vandals have followed suit.

The culprits spared few from their wave of demolition, but most of the lamps which once beautifully adorned areas around the Science Building, really got the daylight kicked out of them. And the destruction probably isn't over yet!

The lamps make the lawns look like a battlefield, with only a few lonely survivors.

Most lie mortally wounded—some with their guts spread out on the battle green; some, spared from the ultimate disaster of the attack, still standing upright but as lifeless as the dead.

According to a Campus Police sergeant, the two kids were caught in the act back in June by a eustodian at night.

But the lamps are still being smashed all the time . . . at night and all days of the week," exclaimed a very concerned Ralph J. Hillsman, dean of students. "It's just terrible!"

The total damage hasn't been estimated yet, but Hillsman added emphatically that the lamps are "very expensive."

LAMPS—Really smashed! —photo by Harry Muhldorfer

Chinese Culture Event To Be Held On Campus Second Week Of October

Intercollegiate Students for Social Action and the China Voice Party will sponsor a Chinese Culture week from October 7 through 11, beginning at 10 each morning on campus.

The Intercollegiate Students for Social Action (ISSA) is a cultural study and service organization. It is mainly concerned with foreign students who have language problems.

According to Archie S. Chen, vice president of ISSA, the week will be full of speeches and demonstrations.

Alan Wong will be the first speaker of the week. His topic will be "The Responsibility Of The Chinese American Citizen." He will be speaking at the Ram.

For lovers of Oriental Art, Lui Sang-Wong, from the East Wind Gallery, will be demonstrating the Chinese art of brush painting techniques. So grab your brushes and paper and get out to the flag pole.

For the politically inclined student, Assemblywoman March K. Fong of Oakland will be speaking in the Little Theater on October 10. Her topic will be "Social Action and Legislative Process."

Other features of the week will include a dragon parade with the famous Golden Dragon on hand to make this a unique experience for all. There will also be authentic Chinese lion dancers to perform besides a lot of delicious and exotic Chinese food.

George Woo will wind up the week speaking at the Ram on a topic still to be announced.

Instructor Dismissed

City Hall Pressures Brown Into Resigning

By Tom Graham

Malcolm Brown, former technical instructing assistant in performing arts, recently resigned from the Drama Department here due to pressure from City Hall.

According to members of the department, an ad appeared in the local newspapers asking for qualified persons to take the Civil Service examination for the position of technical instructing assistant in performing arts at City College.

Brown, however, was working at the time and was not informed of this sudden development until the person that answered the ad came here to look over the job.

THE APPLICANT told Brown that he was sent by City Hall to possibly fill his position.

After the Drama Department did some inquiring, they discovered that Brown's job was only temporary and that he couldn't meet the qualifications now.

Last year, Dr. Lloyd Luckmann, acting president of the college at the time, hired Malcolm Brown as stage manager (without mention of a civil service examination or any qualifications).

The qualifications that the City Hall has set for the position are too high, stated members of the department. Required is a Bachelors degree and five years of professional experience or a Masters degree and about two or three years of professional experience.

DR. WALTER KRUMM, head of the Drama Department, James Haran, drama instructor, John Cochrane, director-actor, and Paul Crowley, art and drama instructor, have all been trying desperately to get Brown reinstated to his former position.

They believe that Malcolm Brown is such an integral part of the planning and structure of the up-coming play (Royal Hunt Of The Sun) that if he leaves they can't do the production. The play is supposed to be the biggest and best production ever to come to this college.

"Mal is not just a carpenter, he is a good technician and has an artistic, creative and productive mind," added Crowley.

BROWN'S DUTIES included setting up for College Hour and all other activities in the College Theater. Right now he is on vacation, but he still helps the department so that the production won't come to a halt.

The following is an excerpt from a letter sent to Mayor Joseph Alioto from Derrick Hill, Associated Students president, in regard to the dismissal of Malcolm Brown:

"Mr. Malcolm Brown has been with us for a year, and his competency can be vouched for by the whole Drama Department. It would be an extreme act of cruelty to dismiss this man, who holds the respect of all those having the opportunity of working with him. It is a matter of urgency for Mr. Brown and those students concerned, because interviews have been set for his replacement starting on the 26th of September, 1968."

All Courses Now Accepted At San Jose And SF State

Beginning this semester, San Francisco and San Jose State Colleges are accepting as transferrable, all City College courses.

Until this semester, nine of City College's courses were not accepted on the State college level. These courses were Communications 5A, 5B, 6 and 12; English K and G9; Psychology G10; Math E and Engineering A. (On page 293 in the City College catalog, item number 2 under Transfer Credit is now obsolete.)

"Although the courses mentioned above are now accepted for transfer by the two State colleges, it is important to keep in mind that they still may not count toward one's major," explained W. Howard Schoon, counselor at the college in charge of relations with schools. To sight an example, if an English major transfers to San Francisco State with Communications 5A and 5B, he will still have to take six additional units of English because communications courses are not acceptable for graduation.

Schoon offered a good rule of thumb when he said, "Students who have had to take remedial courses will more than likely graduate with extra units."

Under the new system of transfer, the student will meet with his State college counselor immediately after enrolling. He will review the student's college record and determine which classes will count toward his major and which will not. "City College counselors," said Schoon, "can advise students as to what classes will be counted toward a given major." Therefore, there is no reason why students cannot plan their schedules to avoid unneeded units.

Schoon mentioned two other important points, one of which dealt with San Francisco State. All openings for Juniors and Seniors are filled at State for next semester. Applications for the Fall 1969 semester will be available January 1, 1969, and not before.

The second point was a bit of advice. "City College students who were planning on transferring to San Jose or San Francisco State with 66 units because of remedial courses taken, might consider dropping a difficult class this semester if it endangers his grade point average.

College Receives Expansion Money From Approved '68 State Bond Issue

City College will receive $1.5 million from state and local agencies for campus projects during the 1969-1970 period, according to Dr. Harry Buttimer, director of educational management.

This is the result of a $63 million bond issue approved by California voters in this year's June election. Funds obtained in this way are distributed to participating schools by way of formulas established by the state department of finance. City College will receive its share in two installment payments.

Dr. Buttimer said, "approximately $424,000 will be received by the college for the 1969-70 period. When this has been done, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors will consider means to allocate some $1.2 million under a matching funds arrangement. This money will be applied to improve and expand the college."

Specific projects to be affected include a new electrical system (an addition to the Arts Building). With the growth City College has experienced in the past seven years, it is a safe bet that the present rate will be at least maintained, and a higher figure of enrollment is very likely in the future. To meet this trend, a new electrical system will be installed capable of servicing new buildings when they are completed.

An extension to the Arts Building is also in the offering.

Deadline October 30 For Dropping Classes

Students planning on dropping classes will have to do so by October 30 if they do not wish to receive a final grade of F in those courses.

According to the Registrar's office, school policy allows ample time for students to determine whether or not their classes are satisfactory. If a class is dropped before the deadline date, the instructor will simply drop the student's name from the class.

Anyone wishing to drop a class should secure a program change card from their counselor. When this card is completed, it should be taken to the Registrar's office where a drop card will be filled out.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of City College of San Francisco
MIKE DUGGAN, Editor

Vol. 67, No. 3 | WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 2, 1968 | Page 2

Absurd Draft Ruling

THE LAW granting the Selective Service System power to reclassify anyone engaging in protest against the Vietnam war is now a year old.

In another recent example of this power given to local draft boards, a Baltimore board reclassified one Arthur Waskow from his former IV-F state to that of 1-A.

Waskow is 34 years old, the father of two children and has a heart condition.

It seems improbable that Waskow will end up in combat duty, but still this case brings to light the unfairness of the Selective Service System and its inane classification ruling directed at war protestors.

Most college students are under 34, childless and in good physical condition; therefore, they are actually closer to the possibility than Waskow is of going to war for a cause they mav not believe in.

We feel that if protesters break the law, they should be punished and held responsible before a court of law. To give a local draft board the power to threaten one with a 1-A classification for attempting to show how he feels about Vietnam, seems to us, unfair.

Reply To Appel Letter

HERE IS OUR REPLY to Student Council Parliamentarian Ron Appel's letter in today's Ram's Horn, asserting that The Guardsman is still the "Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College."

Appel remarks that The Guardsman is "official" and all other publications on campus are "recognized." His statement is only half true, and his error lies with The Guardsman half.

The Guardsman is not the official AS newspaper! It ceased being a possession of the AS the day (February 28, 1968) The Guardsman's entire financial support began to be furnished via another source.

We can understand The Free Critic being labelled "official," since the AS supports it financially. But Appel's letter regards it as merely a "recognized" one. This line of thought we fail to follow.

We regret that Council's constitution is an obsolete document. Some revisions are necessary, and we suggest that Council make a move in a direction to clarify this ridiculous misunderstanding.

Contact Lens

Do You Believe Sex Education Should Be Taught In The Schools?

PIGOTT

Diane Pigott, Nursing Major

Yes, I believe in it. I think it's necessary because that way it will be presented to children in a straightforward way. I think it should be taught in an elementary biology course beginning in the fifth grade. Teachers should be trained to present it in such a way that it will not confuse the students. Kids learn so much younger these days. They should be taught that sex isn't dirty and that its nothing to look down upon. It should start in the home.

GRAHAM

Marilynn Graham, Nursing Major

Yes, because it is a part of life. Kids have to know about it. They should be taught the basics in school, but it should be taught to a great extent by the family. It should begin in the sixth grade when children are becoming aware of one another. If it's explained properly, they'll have no misgivings about the subject. They should incorporate it into a science course and explain from a level that the kids will understand.

BIRKMYER

Phil Birkmyer, General Education Major

Sure I do. It seems to me that sex is like any other subject. You have to learn about it. There should be a qualified teacher to teach it, and it should start in elementary school. It should be a required course before entering college. Parents should tell their kids about sex, but a lot of them don't. There need not be a separate subject for it. It should be incorporated in a science or health course.

DuBANE

Alan DuBane, Speech Major

Yes, I believe in sex education. I think the schools have to assume the responsibility that unfortunately most parents don't assume. Due to this lack of parental responsibility, we have people with extremely serious sex hangups. Young people need to know more about sex than can be learned from the centerfold in Playboy Magazine. There should be an adequate amount of sex education with an emphasis on birth control and the planned family.

GUNTER

Karen Gunter, English Major

Yes, because a lot of times this is the only way children learn about sex. A lot of parents are embarrassed to tell their children how they came into the world; but they weren't embarrassed to commit the act in the first place. It shouldn't be necessary for teachers to go through a course to teach it though. It should be honest and sincere and brought out clearly.

—Compiled by Lavine Lee, photos by James Pope

SON: Dad, what are you doing here?
FATHER: I was protesting the war on your behalf...so they classified me 1-A again.

Clubs, Organizations Offer Ways For Students To Spend Spare Time

College isn't "all work and no play." For any interested student, City College offers at least 50 different ways to spend spare time in the form of clubs and organizations.

A complete list of all the clubs on campus is not yet finished. Petitions can still be filed for on campus clubs at the Student Activities Office, ES-109.

Students belonging to an ethnic group can join Black Students Association, Chinese Students Association, Filipino-American Club, Hillel Foundation (Jewish) or Spanish-Speaking Students Organization.

If you tend to follow the latest political activities, you may join the Peace and Freedom Movement, Young Democrats or Young Republicans. Of special interest to some are the City College Rifle and Pistol Club, Over Five and Twenty, Tutorial Program and Veterans Association.

Block SF, Recreation Association and Ram Ski Club are all back this semester to lure sports-minded students.

Many students come to City College with one ear tuned to mind expansion and the other tuned to social activities. These students should listen carefully to announcements regarding membership from the on-campus fraternities and sororities.

Honor groups, Alpha Gamma Sigma (scholarship), Alpha Phi Omega (service) and Phi Rho Pi (forensics), draw students whose main interest is education.

Professional clubs are many in number, beginning with A Capella Choir and ending with the Women's Treble Clef.

A new club on campus this semester is Advertising Art Associates headed by John O'Brien of the Art Department. This club adds a new approach or new direction to advertising art.

Letters to the Editor

Ram's Horn

● AS Paper?

Editor, The Guardsman:

The Guardsman is still the "Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco." The Student Council of this semester has no jurisdiction over what was done to The Guardsman's budget for this semester. This was the action taken by the Spring 1968 Student Council.

Until there is a constitutional change voted on and approved by the entire student body, The Guardsman is still "The Official Publication of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco." Any other publications are recognized publications of the Associated Students, and as such they are not "OFFICIAL," but "RECOGNIZED."

The allocation, no matter where it comes from, does not make a paper an official publication. What does is what is written in the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco Constitution which reads:

"The Guardsman and the bulletin, This Week, shall be official publications of the AS. The college social calendar and Forum magazine shall be recognized publications of the AS. Other publications may be recognized by Student Council."

Ron Appel
Parliamentarian of Student Council

Guardsman Staff — Fall 1968

(Official newspaper of City College of San Francisco, published each Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacations, by students in the journalism-newspaper production department of City College of San Francisco. Editorial office, 206, Science Hall; telephone 587-7272, extension 246.)

EDITOR IN CHIEF ..... MIKE DUGGAN
Managing Editor ..... Doug Boston
Feature Editor ..... Tom Graham
Staff Editor ..... Boku Kodama
News Editor ..... Barbara Hamann
Sports Editor ..... Dave Albertson
Editorial Assistants: Martin J. Arbunich, Lani Brand, Rita Carroll, Lavine Lee, Lynda Sandstrom.
Reporters: Randy Flynn, Leonard Ribeiro.
Cub Reporters: Floyd Banks, Ralph Bayard, Jack Blake, Dan Castro, Joe Cefalu, Patrick Chan, Lynetta Conklin, Jeff Deleusa, Phil Di Carlo, Kaye Gramos, Yvonne Low, Marianne Lim, Dan McCarthy, Florence McCarthy, Ben Marinas, Diana Watson, Alan Petzner, James Pope, Elizabeth Ramos, Lester Rasterfer, Jack Ruiz, Soonalote Schmidt, Kenneth Surface, Barbara Tyrrell, Val Vallendar, Wong Tse Tui.
Photographers: Marilyn Astalosh, Chief; Bert Flowers, Glenn Graham, Steven La Plant, Jerry Mishler, Detlef Osburg, Jens Protze, Roberto Gullien, Kevin Shea, Ulmer T. McKnight, Gavin Watt, Calvin Wong, Russell Wong, Sam Woo.
Adviser: Mary Blair

Soul Food Is Newest Cafe Idea

Soul Food in the cafeteria? Well, why not? This was one of the interesting ideas suggested by David Borrelli, manager/instructor for the Food Service operation here.

In a letter to Student Council, Borrelli proposed the formation of a "Gourmet Council" as a direct link of communication between the individual students and the cafeteria management.

"I want a voice for the Associated Students and a sounding board for their gripes, complaints, etc.," stated Borrelli.

"We also want the committee to know what our operational problems are, the basic functions, the basic purposes, and the operational costs. After all, as a "break-even" organization, these costs are the backbone of the prices we charge."

He suggests having a day set aside for the serving of what the Black Students proudly call "Soul Food" (Barbecued ribs, smoked links, assorted types of "greens," and the like); a day with a strictly Far Eastern menu, and entertainment provided by the Oriental Club. How about German beef, sauerkraut, on Hof Brau Day? Or Italian Day? Borrelli also mentioned the possibility of honoring the various college athletic teams by having them as guests for special meals.

A committee to air mutual problems seems like a fine idea. As for the special food programs, lead me to it.

SHOOTIN' IT

by Doug Boston

LEGEND tells us that a cat has nine lives. This one does.

The cat's name is George Plimpton, author, editor of The Paris Review, and participant in almost every sports event known to man. Among others, he has played professional baseball, quarterbacked the Detroit Lions in a football game, boxed Archie Moore, matched Arthur Ashe backhand against backhand in tennis, ping-ponged on television against the world champ, and played golf with various professionals.

He has written two books concerning his experiences as a participant in these areas. His first, Out Of My League, and his second, Paper Lion, traced Plimpton's journey into the world of baseball and football. A third book, a description of his golfing skills performed in the Bing Crosby, Bob Hope Desert Classic and Lucky International golf tournaments, is awaiting publication.

We had the pleasure of caddying for Plimpton in the Lucky over at Harding Park. He was on assignment for Sport's Illustrated, to cover the tourney and report the story.

Playing in the Pro-Am, Plimpton was paired with professional Rod Funseth. They didn't do very well. It was exciting to watch Plimpton, a man of so many different abilities, play such terrible golf. But he was certainly a nice guy and a fine sportsman.

Since we are somewhat familiar with golf, we offered some sound advice to the author. He thanked us, but maintained that he was keeping his head down.

Anyway, when the article on the Lucky International was published in Illustrated, we were able to point out various minor discrepancies in the story. This writer's twelve year old brother printed the facts on binder paper and sent them off to Plimpton. We contemplated taking the big jump when we found out about his actions.

Soon afterwards, yours truly received a letter from Plimpton, which reported his apologies. He also informed us that we could expect to find a recognition of our services in his new book, which would "hope to do justice to you and your brother."

We are anxiously awaiting its publication. If this sounds like a plug for Plimpton's book, it probably is. If it is up to par with his other two, it will most assuredly be well worth while. He is one of the most clever writers who ever dipped his pen into an ink well.

• • •

NOT GUILTY. We learned something the other day which we would like to pass on. Here's the scene. Your car is parked in front of the house on a Sunday afternoon about 2 p.m. A driver coming down the street leans toward the glove compartment to put something inside, and loses control of the car, sideswiping your vehicle.

You call the insurance company, and they send someone over to estimate the damages. His report lists the damage at $350. The problem is, he tells you, that since your car is twelve years old, it isn't listed in the blue book.

Therefore, he must appraise the worth of your car before the accident. His answer, $200. He then tells you that the insurance company cannot pay for damages in excess of the automobile's worth.

So the insurance company is only responsible for the first $200. Right? Wrong. There is a rule which states that if you are completely innocent of any involvement in the accident, you are entitled to complete repairs no matter what the cost.

So if the above situation ever happens, tell the insurance man you know the law and I'm covered for all the damage. Here's my attorney's phone number . . .

• • •

BARBER OF SEVILLE. As is obvious by now, the college didn't get the opera house that made the headlines last semester. The San Francisco Youth Organizers wrestled it away. It was reported that it would cost between $25,000-$35,000 to move it from Third Street to the campus. City College has lost an opera house, but the excitement helped fill page one of The Guardsman, something which seems to be harder and harder to do.

• • •

FINALLY. Take your age, divide it by three, and that answer is the number of years you have slept in your lifetime. Bewitching, isn't it?

DISPATCH

by Boku Kodama

A LONG TIME AGO, back in the year 1967, there once was a place standing high on top of a hill called Silly College.

Attending Silly College were big guys, medium guys and little guys.

There weren't too many big guys, just a bunch of medium guys and a gigantic mass of little guys.

The big guys were always doing things and just about ran the college. "Hey, come and join us," the big guys would say to the little guys.

"Nah," said the little guys, "we don't want to join, we're too busy."

The medium guys kept saying, "The big guys are good. Let's work for the big guys."

Well, reading readers, now you know how Silly College stacked up in the olden days, so on with the story.

It was one of those hot, sunny days in that year, 1967, as some oldtimers can remember, when from out of the blue, a piece of the sky fell upon the bank where Silly College kept its money.

The big guys found to their horror that all the money and then some had been cremated by the fallen sky. "Gosh, what are we going to do?," one big guy said, with fear in his voice.

"There's only one thing we can do," answered another big guy, "we'll have to ask the little guys to help us through until we can get back to normal."

THE NEXT DAY in the Sentryman (the official publication of the Associated Students of Silly College), the headline read, "Big Guys Lose Dough, Blame Pie From Sky." The article reported the tragic event and of how badly the college would suffer.

The story went on to say that the Big Guys would need as much help from the little guys as possible "to keep the college running as close to normal as possible."

The little guys were needed to raise money and help with the functionings of the activities.

The big guys sat in their little office waiting for helpers but not one little guy came.

Finally, after sitting in their office for three straight days, the big guys realized that the little guys weren't coming, and so decided to go to them.

Many of the little guys didn't even want to be bothered. "Beat it, you big guys, it's your problem, not ours," the little guys would say.

SO NOW THE BIG GUYS were left all alone and with one alternative to save the college. They decided that all activities had to be temporarily shut down. Gone were the football games, the lectures, rock, jazz and classical concerts and the rallies. No longer was there a newspaper or a radio station.

College life became miserable to everyone. The Campus became quiet.

It wasn't long before the little guys started barging into the little office of the big guys demandling that this sport be revived or that concert be played. And the big guys would reply, "We don't have any money. If you little guys had helped us out in the beginning all this wouldn't have happened."

"It wasn't our fault that the sky fell," stated the little guys, "so why should we have to help?"

Things became a bit boring for many little guys, and they were getting tired of complaining. They wanted more excitement and thought it best that they transfer to another college, get a job or join the armed services.

SILLY COLLEGE, two months later, looked half emptied. The grass was no longer green, garbage lined the streets and the buildings were unusually dirty. Only half of the faculty still remained while the others were laid off.

The college's reputation rapidly declined, and more and more students left, followed by another lay off of instructors.

Finally, the Board of Education closed down the doors of the once-proud college on a hill because of its poor attendance and uselessness.

• • •

Not long ago, back in the year 1968, there once was a place standing high on top of a hill called City College.

Attending City College were big guys, medium guys and little guys who . . .

A snail's pace is equal to about one mile every three weeks.

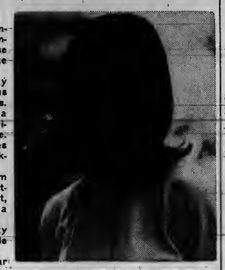
Ramette Of The Week

By Dave Albertson

VENETA BERYLE DENNEY combines a graceful poise with overwhelmingly smooth, shapely looks to compose a sure winner as this week's Ramette of the Week.

This 19-year-old auburn-haired beauty was discovered through the ambitious efforts of one of her eager admirers. He informed The Guardsman of a "sure thing" in Statler Wing. Obviously, her admirer had excellent taste.

This week's Ramette's rare features came from an unusual mixed background of Greek, French and Irish.



Veneta keeps her figure trim from long hours of ballet dancing. She attends Jean Hert's School of Ballet, and eventually hopes to become a dancing instructor.

LAST YEAR she participated in City College's ballet show in the Little Theater.

Some of Veneta's extra curricular time is spent painting, making jewelry and participating in the Ram Ski club. Last semester she was a candidate for the ski club's "Snow Queen" award. Fortunately for the rest of the candidates, she didn't show up for the judging.

Veneta's dad has a few other sparklers in his collection, other than his gem of a daughter. He owns a jewelry store in Las Vegas.

Formerly a graduate of Galileo High, she is in her third semester at City College and is majoring in sociology. She plans to attend San Francisco's Conservatory of Ballet and Theatrical Arts after graduation.

VENETA DENNEY
—Guardsman photo by Gavin Watt

IN THE PAST, she has worked for KFRC Radio as a programer and figures that, "...there sure is a lot of phony people floating around."

On the political side, she feels that, "...with the candidates we have now, they ought to write in McCarthy."

Veneta presents a lot of interesting views on numerous subjects. However, most observers would have to agree that the above illustration is definitely one of the better views on campus.

Grassy Mall Will Replace Mud As Bookstore Facade

Students of the Ornamental Horticulture Department may be slated to plant grass in the open area in front of the Associated Students Bookstore and the new Educational Services Building, according to Dr. Harry Buttimer, coordinator of educational management, and Victor Valo, assistant coordinator on campus.

"The area," observes Dr. Buttimer, "will be used in the future for an extention of the landscaping project which has been going on at the college for the last few semesters. However, that will probably be finished in about a year or so. For now, the area in front of the building will have a lawn so that the rains won't wash the soil away."

This might make the Horticulture Department responsible for the upkeep of the lawn for the time being. However, this measure is only temporary, until more extensive landscaping can be started.

APPROPRIATIONS for this project are reported to have already been made by the city but the job has not yet been given to a contractor. A landscape architect and an engineer are making studies of the site but, as of now, no definite plans to begin have been designated.

Meanwhile, this area has become the focal point of several problems, concerning both the bookstore and the Educational Services Building.

One bookstore staff member pointed out that when the ground is dry, dust is often blown into the store. The flow of customers and the currently warm weather make it impossible to have the front doors of the store closed at all times.

To minimize dust problems, the ground was at first wetted down. This did eliminate the dust, but persons who continued to walk through the area picked up mud on their shoes and tracked it into the buildings. This was not only a nuisance but also damaged new floors.

Alternate proposals for the site included paving it to expand the present parking lot. It was felt this would only add to the dust difficulties. Also, there are two main water shut-off valves serving the new buildings and located underground in the area. This makes it even less suitable for parking.

VAIO POINTED OUT that these valves sit together in a concrete shaft covered by a steel plate. Should the rear of an automobile knock the cover off and fall into the shaft, the valves would be badly damaged.

A simple barricade of rope and wooden stakes was first set up to keep people and cars out of the area. It was soon realized that this was not enough.

City carpenters under the direction of the Board of Education later erected a plywood wall at the front of the buildings to contain the dust. They also built a more permanent barrier around the site to discourage parking there.

Eventual landscaping will include a sunken courtyard adjacent to Smith Hall. This will probably contain several benches, a few shrubs and a paved area similar to that next to Arts Hall. This will extend into an open area to the front of the Educational Services Building. The area to the west of the building will be treated in a similar manner.—J.P.

Labelled And Recorded

'Requiem For A Heavyweight'

by Martin J. Arbunich

ONE OF THE VERY few open funeral services in rock music will commence this Friday evening in the Oakland Coliseum Arena at 8 o'clock.

The "faithful departed"—all three of them—will be there with guitars and drums, and all those friends who have hopes of witnessing the last rites, and have the bread to do so, are invited. Black isn't necessary!

The event will be a significant one in rock music. It will mark one of the last performances prior to the demise of one of the best and most significant bands to emerge from rock music in many years—the Cream. The event will not take on any of the accustomed characteristics of a funeral; in fact, the musicians in question should be very much alive if their past records can be taken into consideration.

The Cream's breakup was expected after a series of inter-group conflict rumors and breakup denials.

Though their records have been selling remarkably well in both the U.S. and England, their live performances have always been considered their highpoint. On stage, the three musicians come on as competent soloists, their music is both improvised and moving, and what meets the ear is usually quite tasteful.

At the close of this final American tour, which is composed of 15 one-nighters including the one Northern California performance Friday, the Cream will split their own ways in directions which are not yet definite.

Traffic, who were scheduled to appear on the same show, ran into some difficulties and won't be around. However, other talents still unannounced will be there. Tickets are still available from the Downtown Center Box Office and the Coliseum Box Office.

• • •

Taking in a campus dance here isn't usually part of our game, but we found the music offered by one of the bands last Friday evening well worth the trip.

The Sounds Unlimited Blues Band proved to be an impressive bunch, with a showy but talented guitarist, and a nice repertoire of blues selections, including some originals.

Their lead guitarist, George Santana, younger brother to Carlos of the superb local band Santana, is the core of the band and handles himself quite well. Many of Carlos' techniques have obviously been picked up by George. The physical movements and the flair for sustaining notes are an active part of the younger Santana's style too.

His solos really get out of hand, though. In fact, on many numbers the rest of the group seemed to play the role of a backup band for the star. The big problem here is that the group is too dependent on the guitar, and are hesitant to carry on without Santana's domination.

Occasionally, the band really moves instrumentally and produces some solid improvisation. Overall, their balance and togetherness seems to hurt, and their lead singer has a tendency to be indecipherable. All these things are curable, though, and are bound to get better if the band has the guts to stick it out.

• • •

We made a sincere attempt Saturday night to fight the crowd at Fillmore West to see the Mike Bloomfield - Al Kooper Super Session, but failed miserably. We never dreamed the pair had so many followers.

After noticing one of the house employees weaving through the masses with a placard announcing that Mike Bloomfield was hospitalized, we deserted the line in search of less congested entertainment. We simply were not in the market for a repeat of the last Big Brother gig. Ouch!

The ballrooms here are too small for this city. In fact, they make for downright uncomfortable music. Bill Graham's move to Market St. really didn't solve anything—and maybe it would show some smarts to return full-time to Winterland where there is room for all bodies.

Off Campus Work

Tutorial Program Promotes Two Additional Facilities

Entering its second successful year, the Tutorial Program is striving to promote two additional off-campus facilities for instructing elementary grade children.

The Tutorial Program is under the direction of Robert Tealer, program adviser, and operates both on-campus and off-campus facilities.

The off-campus program presently functions in the Haight and Fillmore districts, but hopes are to expand to other areas of San Francisco which will include the Mission District.

CHILDREN IN elementary grades are individually tutored in subjects which have caused them difficulty due to problems in language and expression. Field trips, plays and movies are also a planned part of the educational program.

Each center schedules its own tutoring hours independent of each other.

The on-campus program is primarily designed to give students here an opportunity to improve in their weakest subjects. Subjects are tutored by both instructors and qualified fellow students. This method not only improves one's academic grades, but also gives instructors and students an opportunity to work together on a more personal basis.

The Tutorial program consists of approximately 25 members and is in need of more tutors, both students and faculty, in order to expand the needed facilities.

IN ORDER TO QUALIFY, students should have at least a 2.0 grade average. Tealer, a former Peace Corps trainee instructor, pointed out that interest is the most important aspect in this type of work and students who show a sincere interest in tutoring are invited to participate, regardless of their grade averages.

Headquarters for the Tutorial Program is located in both Bungalows 3 and 5 where interested persons can contact Gladys Green and Ed Balley, program co-ordinators.

Tealer hopes to obtain the use of the old Ramporium Bookstore for classrooms, but until then tutoring will continue in the bungalows.—B. H.

Stolen Suggestion Box Utilized As Extra Garbage Can

During the last few weeks of last semester, the suggestion box, which was located outside of the old bookstore, was stolen.

"One day I came to class, and the box was missing," according to Derrick Quan, an assistant in the Associated Students' office. "Even the nails were taken."

The box was never recovered.

Was the suggestion box a success?

"There were, in the course of the semester, two or three good suggestions; but, because of lack of time, we weren't able to accomplish anything. The main problem was that the students did not cooperate," Quan said.

The suggestion box was mainly used as a garbage can, and most of the suggestions were useless.

"Some of the suggestions were to improve the cafeteria food or not to cut the grass so the students could sleep in it," said Quan. "The only decent suggestion was to make the registration cards wallet size."

Whether a new suggestion box will be put up this semester or not depends on the Student Council.

Last semester, the Student Council decided to place the box on the southwest wall of the old Ramporium bookstore for the use of all the students. Each "gripe" or suggestion that came in was answered personally by Quan or a member of his administrative staff. Suggestions or complaints were to be published in the form of Letters to the Editor in the Guardsman.

—D. M.

Campus Lineup:

● Best-Dressed Tryouts

This semester's tryouts for the best dressed coed begins tomorrow and continues on October 10 and 17 in rooms C-258 and C-259.

The semi-finalists will be the models for the Associated Women's Student Fashion Show, and the first place winner will receive a trip to New York in addition to photograph sittings with Glamour magazine.

● Newman Dance

The Newman Club is sponsoring a dance this Friday night in Smith Hall from 9 p.m. to midnight. Admission will be $1.50 without an AS Card and $1.25 with a card. Dress will be casual.

● Film Series

Richard III, a Shakespearian tragedy, will be shown tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in the College Theater. The cast includes Sir Lawrence Olivier as Richard, John Gielgud as Clarence, and Ralph Richardson as Buckingham. Both students and faculty are welcome and there is no admission charge.

● Symphony Tickets

Student tickets for the San Francisco Symphony will go on sale tomorrow at the college Finance Office, Room 207 in the Educational Services Building. Prices ranging from $27.50 to $44 for the 22-concert season represent a savings of up to 76 per cent.

Tickets for each individual performance may be obtained from Merritt Beckerman, humanities instructor, in A-204 on Monday, Wednesday or Friday between 9 and 10 a.m.

Students interested should take advantage of this offer.

● Sorority Tea

The Tau and Phi Beta Rho sororities are signing up women interested in joining either sorority. The signing will be held the rest of this week. A formal tea will be held at the Retail Floristry Building on Judson Avenue this Sunday at 2 p.m.

Rams Ride Over Mustangs, 38-22

Mayfield Combines With Bayard, Bell To Lead Attack

By Phil DiCarlo

On a clear, mild evening in Stockton last Saturday, the Rams crunched their way to a 31-0 halftime lead, then coasted for a 38 to 22 rout over San Joaquin Delta College's weary Mustangs.

A band of approximately 70 Ram fans thoroughly enjoyed themselves as Tom Mayfield, Joesiah Bell, Ralph Bayard and company led the way for the second consecutive victory of the year.

Bell's 113 yards rushing and Bayard's 129 yards gained on three pass receptions, accounted for almost half of City College's 490 total net yards. Tom Mayfield, who some say "can't pass too well," completed nine of fifteen (60 per cent) for 240 yards and three touchdowns. That's five touchdown passes for him in two games.

The opportunistic Rams scored five of the seven times they got the ball in the first half. Midway through the first quarter, Mayfield completed passes to fullback Willie Lewis, who was sneaking out of the backfield alone all evening, for 11 and 14 yards during the ensuing seven-play, 31-yard scoring march. Bell scored from the one.

ONE PLAY LATER, the Rams were knocking on the door again. Ed Johnson recovered a fumble on the Mustang's 30 yard line to set up a quick four-play drive. Mayfield let Bell take over again. Big Joe ran three straight times, the last 20 yards in one chunk. He swept right end on that play, got clear at the 15, pranced gleefully into the end zone and slammed the ball down a la Hewritt Dixon, the Oakland Raider great. Although Bell didn't score again, he averaged 7.4 yards on his 15 carries for a nice night's work.

Later, Mayfield led the team 62 yards to paydirt in only four plays. Lewis gained three, and Doyle Miller seven, before Mayfield must have decided that the overland route was too slow. Fading back on a first down, Mayfield took his time before firing a perfect strike 45 yards down field to the streaking Bayard, who took it for six. The play covered 52 yards.

Bayard scored again ten minutes later, taking a three-yard Mayfield lob to paydirt. Miller, the hard-running, quick-to-smile halfback, started that drive, by galloping straight up the middle of the field, bouncing off tacklers for a 24-yard gain.

MARK HENSLEY, soccer-style field goal kicker, finished up the first half Ram onslaught, when he drilled a 39-yard three pointer 'twixt the uprights. Freshman linebacker Gerry Dyson played another great game. He set up Hensley's boot by intercepting a pass at the Ram 44.

Substituting freely in the second half, Coach Elston got all of his 58 players into the fray, and enabled the Mustangs to get on the scoreboard. But not before the Rams ran the score up to 38, love.

Pushed back to the 16 on successive penalties, Mayfield, Bell and Miller led the Rams to another score.

The Rams almost scored twice more as Jim Farnham, standout wing on defense, scooped up a fumble and breezed 85 yards for an apparent score. Unfortunately, only in the pro ranks is one allowed to pick up a fumble and run. The ball was brought back to the Ram 15. Farnham, who kicked the extra point after each touchdown, sat panting dejectedly on the bench.

THE SECOND "almost touchdown" came on the most exciting play of the game. The Rams were on their own six yard line facing third and long yardage situation. His pride and backside hurting from being "dumped" on the previous play, Mayfield dropped back and lofted a long "bomb" down the field. End Izzi and Bayard had to hesitate a slight bit as the ball "hung up"; this was the only reason he didn't go all the way. The play covered 74 yards.

The 22 Mustang points were hardly well-earned as the Rams committed 13 penalties and had three passes intercepted in that second half. Halfback Stan Hudson scored all three Mustang touchdowns on a one-yard dive, a seven-yard sweep and a five-yard Larry Johnson pass. Johnson will long remember this gamble, as he was "racked up" repeatedly while attempting to run or pass off his favorite roll-out plays.

This Friday evening the team ventures to San Jose City College to start Golden Gate Conference play.

(1) RAM HALFBACK Joe Bell (arrow) begins pass pattern against American River; (2) Bell makes a nice leaping catch of a Tom Mayfield pass; (3) Unidentified American River linebacker hits Bell and jars the ball loose; (4) Play is ruled an incomplete pass as Beaver tackler moves in on the play. Bell is one of the Rams first string backs along with Willie Lewis, Jon Dyson and quarterback Mayfield. More hard action, such as the above picture sequence, is sure to erupt this Friday when the Rams, in a revenge game, take on the San Jose Jaguars.

—Guardsman photos by Samuel Woo

Guardsman SPORTS
Wednesday, October 2, 1968 Page 4

Rams To Meet Rival San Jose In Revenge Game

It was 10 months ago when the gun sounded off, and the scoreboard read City College of San Jose 9, City College of San Francisco 6. San Jose had eliminated the Rams and put themselves into the Golden Gate Conference championship game with American River City College.

The Rams started the season off in fine fashion, trouncing American River, 32-14. Fine performances from the experienced veterans will help the Rams gain the needed moral support to continue the charge when they meet San Jose.

SAN JOSE revolves around two men. These two players play key roles on defense and offense.

The defense is spearheaded by all-league sophomore linebacker Randy Ingram (210). As a freshman last year, Ingram made defensive lineman-of-the-year in the Golden Gate Conference. Ingram's experience should be a tough obstacle—one the Rams will have to overcome to win.

On the offensive side, Sam Caruthers will be a highlight for San Jose. As a pole-vault and high hurdles champion, Caruthers adds speed and size to make a threat in the backfield. Along with other fine ballplayers that back Ingram and Caruthers, San Jose will come equipped mentally and physicality.

It will be a game of revenge when the Rams play San Jose City College in a conference game in San Jose on this Friday at 8 p.m.

Water Polo Faces Tough Competition

City College's first water polo team will be in deep competition on October 14, when they open up the season against Foothill College, last year's state champs. In addition, three members of the team's ten players are on the U.S. Olympic Squad.

According to Coach Curt Decker, the Rams can best be described as "green." Only three players of a squad of 14 have ever played the game before.

WHEN ASKED about the team's strengths, Decker replied, "Who, me? I'm just trying to keep from drowning!"

In contrast to the Rams, Foothill is definitely Northern California's No. 1 water polo power. The Foothill Owls opened up the season by taking third place in the Cabrillo tournament held at Aptos. In the consolation game, they destroyed College of San Mateo by the score of 18-6.

Last year the Owls compiled a record of 23-11 against all competition, and a 22-2 mark against junior college competition.

IN THE LAST six years, they have been state champs four times, and have won the Northern California title seven years in a row. Last year was the first time Foothill had ever been defeated by a NorCal team. The loss came at the hands of San Mateo.

This season the Owls expect to be in the thick of the running for the state title, with two top returnees, Bob Chatfield and Greg Hief. Chatfield scored 29 goals last year, while Hief scored 21.—P. D.

In 1925 Stanford's football team defeated the University of California at Los Angeles, 82-0.

Rams Score Win In Soccer Event Over Balboa

This season's soccer team got off to a great start by overpowering Balboa High School's varsity squad in a 10-0 victory in their first practice game of the season.

Returning this season are All-Americans Otey Cannon, who scored four goals in the practice game, and Al Chu, who scored three.

The team's defensive action was bolstered by Braulio Tirqueros, ever-moving center fullback. Also looking very good in the game were Peter Bogatsky at halfback, and Jose Tovar at right wing.

Diederichsen said that the Rams showed "good team speed" and that they "tackled very well," but, "they are still a long way from achieving maximum ability."

League games will start with a battle against Western Valley today at Crocker Amazon Park at 3:15 p.m.

Western Valley is said to have strong, former football players, but they are also said to "lack skill."

Women's Recreation Open For Men Also

Women's Recreation Association invites one and all to participate in their numerous sports activities. Don't let the title of the activity fool you—it's co-educational!

The 15 sports activities offered range from synchronized swimming to volleyball to bowling. One hundred thirty-five men and women have already signed up and Mrs. Phyllis Vasquez, head sponsor says, there is room for more. All those interested should sign up in the women's gym.

The only requirement is that you are currently enrolled in a physical education class. For prospective male members, requirements are that you can dig playing games with those beautiful chicks. But, who plays games, hmm?

The first sports day is Saturday, October 26, at Foothill College. Buses will leave early in the morning and will return by 4 p.m.

Competition will be held with seven other colleges. Last year the Women's Recreation Association took two first place awards and one second place award.

At the end of the semester, points will be tallied from the previous games. An awards banquet will be held and the deserving competitors will be awarded trophies.—G. S.

Four Regulars Will Return This Year To Bolster Cagers Hopes For Title

By Floyd Banks

The coming Basketball season could be a promising one, according to City College's Basketball Coach Sid Phelan.

At present, there are just a lot of guys trying out. There are no definite set team positions as yet.

Because basketball is a team sport, rating the team is almost impossible. Ram potential includes Telvis Jones, a first string veteran from last year. Jones' stocky 5-11 frame is relatively small for college ball, but his speed and agility compensate for his height. Jones is an ex-Lincoln Mustang, where he was an All-American prep player. Jones' outlook on the season is optimistic, "Some pretty big dudes out there." He feels the veterans will pull the team through. Jones averaged 13 points a game, a good average for his height. Jones' favorite food is barbeque everything, which keeps him in peak condition.

JACOB "GUS" HILL, a 6-3 first string veteran, is a great asset to the team. Hill's dexterity and gracefulness are his main components, attributing to a fine cager.

Hill's walk is a graceful sight, and his moves out on the court is poetry in motion. Hill's an ex-Wilson Warrior, who was an underrated half season graduate. Hill averaged 13 points a game his first season; he hopes for a higher average this year. Hill's outlook is good for the upcoming season, "We have a pretty good chance." Hill sports a "natural," and is quite a ladies' man.

Darrell Fregia is also a first string veteran. Fregia's 6-2, 230-pound frame gives him plenty of coordinated weight to throw around. Fregia is an ex-Balboan, where he was a member of the Oakland Tournament Champions, championship team.

Fregia is a great team man, who keeps the ball moving and helps set the plays. Fregia is also an outstanding dribble and boardman. He also loves to eat. The word about food from Fregia is "I can dig it!"

OTHER RETURNING veterans are Tom Kuhn, a 6-4 ex-Sacred Heart Irish, who has had bad luck with injuries in the past; Boyd Stephens, an ex-Riordan Crusader as a 5-11 potential guard. Tom Clyburn, a 6-3 ex-Balboan cager, will also return.

The new players have great potential this year; their height and ability gives the team great bench and possible starters. The newcomers are great jumpers Keith Miles, Tom McVey and Larry Peoples. Also trying out this year are Mike Mims of Wilson, Jenny Odhams of Mission, Louie Cupp of Wilson, Eli Neal of Wilson, Dayman Chatman of Balboa, Mike Duggan of Riordan, Steve Cranelli of Lowell, and Bob Phelan of Lowell, the coach's son.

Squad meeting for the team will be Monday, October 14. All players interested in trying out must be present.

The first league game is against Chabot on Tuesday, January 7.

Cricket's highest recorded runs by any team was 1107 by Victoria against New South Wales in an Australian Inter-State match at Melbourne, Victoria, on December 26-27, 1926.

Intramural Basketball League Opening Soon, Still Accepting Teams

Opening of the Intramural Basketball League is drawing near, as the round-robin schedule nears completion. Games will be held in the Men's Gym on Tuesday and Thursday nights.

Instructor Jack Gaddy is busy over the up-coming Intramural Basketball League. Gaddy will huddle with Associated Men's Students co-chairmen, Gary Siri and Til Cosgrove over the team entry petitions. They're hoping to get league play under way by the third week in October.

Intramural competition was set up to allow students who are unable to make varsity teams a chance to enjoy athletic competition. Basketball, Baseball, Boxing, Soccer and Wrestling are just a few of the annual sports completing the busy intramural schedule. Sports Night is held after the completion of the fall and spring semesters. Trophies and Awards will be given to the winners of round-robin action, and individual athletes will be honored with awards for outstanding performances during the season.

Anyone who desires to engage in intramural competition, please contact Gaddy at the Men's Gym.

Remember, it is better to have played and lost, than not to have played at all, so come out from behind those books and let's have the biggest Intramural season turnout we have ever had.—J. R.

Dismissal Of Brown, Students Rights, Topics Of Rally Last Thursday

By Randy Flynn

Issues concerning the proposed dismissal of Malcolm Brown, theater technician at City College, were brought out into the open last Thursday as student and faculty leaders addressed students at a special rally.

The rally, held during college hour at the football stadium, hosted Dr. Walter Krumm, head of the Drama Department, Acting President Louis Batmale, AS President Derrick Hill, and BSA President Don Herman.

Krumm was the first to speak, explaining the incidents leading up to that day. In short, Brown was dismissed because he did not take a Civil Service examination for his position.

THE DRAMA Department immediately followed up on the situation and affirmed the fact that Brown, after having been at City College for a year, was being dismissed.

"Malcolm is a real sweet guy," said Krumm, "and I speak for myself and the department when I say that he will be missed greatly." The department head announced that the upcoming drama production, Royal Hunt Of The Sun, was being cancelled because without Brown to handle the complex setting, the play could not be presented.

"I'm glad to see you out here today," Krumm told the crowd, "and I hope you will do whatever you feel is necessary to keep Malcolm here."

BATMALE THEN addressed students, telling of his concern for students in Drama and for all students and faculty members on campus. Those present did not accept him well. When Batmale voiced his concern toward the Drama Department because they could not function well without Brown, students mocked him. Several students shouted, "We want Malcolm back!"

From that point on, Brown's dismissal took a back seat to the plea by Hill and Herman to do something about problems on and off campus.

HILL CALLED the college the best University in the United States. "This university is full of many beautiful people," he said. Most students are here because they're getting some funky check every month or because they can't go anywhere else."

"Conformity must end!" said Hill. "America needs leaders, not followers, and City College needs the same thing!" The AS president told students that whenever they had problems with classes or anything else on campus, he would be available in his office. "You have a voice and we can make it heard," he shouted.

However, both students and administration seemed optimistic that the Civil Service could be convinced to retain Brown.

Following this confrontation, students returned to the Little Theater, where they planned future measures to be taken.

Students Disrupt Meeting; Demand Action, Results

By Dan McCarthy

Demonstrators actively protesting Malcolm Brown's dismissal disrupted President Louis G. Conlan's meeting with the Drama Department Thursday in Conlan's office.

Approximately 50 students, led by Lawrence Harvey, marched from the Little Theater to the administration offices at 2:20 p.m. to demand student participation in the meeting then being held.

Conlan, other members of the administration and the Drama Department, halted their meeting to talk with the demonstrators. Conlan stated students were not represented because the meeting did not involve any decision making.

AFTER STUDENT demands for participation at future meetings, Conlan agreed to the selection of two student representatives for Friday's meeting with Civil Service officials. Harvey and Diane Wall were selected by students for this purpose.

Considering the high qualifications Civil Service has set for Brown's position, Conlan said, "We think these qualifications are unrealistic also. We will try to change these requirements."

Other demands were made by protestors for student decision-making in the areas of drama productions, selection of plays, increased and better drama courses, and obtaining prominent guest speakers.

HEATED DEBATE arose when Vice President Louis F. Batmale stated that the demonstrators did not represent 100 per cent of the student body. Students countered that this protest was due to deep feelings of apathy expressed by many. They claimed this apathy was a product of Conlan's "High school-type administration."

However, both students and administration seemed optimistic that the Civil Service could be convinced to retain Brown.

Following this confrontation, students returned to the Little Theater, where they planned future measures to be taken.

Contract Halts KCSF Broadcast In Statler Wing

Speaker hookups in Statler Wing to broadcast KCSF, the closed circuit radio station of City College, have been delayed due to an unforeseen electrician work contract snag.

KCSF has been broadcasted from Arts Hall in an area directly over Room 145 and cabled to the cafeteria.

The speaker hookups were to be used to broadcast music and news in a louder tone so that it could be heard over the constant noise.

KCSF hopes to be able to stay on the air longer for the enjoyment of the students. The radio station also hopes to be able to broadcast future Rams' football games.

The speakers were to be set up during the summer, but with the questionable electricians' contract, nothing has been done so far.

City College also has an FM station, KAWL 91.7. The station is located at John O'Connell Technical Institute with a special telephone line to City College. The KAWL operates on 10,000 watts and can be heard between 11:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. daily.

Students may pick up KAWL on their radios and in the cafeteria, and enjoy the music and voices of disc jockeys Glenn Howell, Kon Grab, John Hayward, Ted Lange, Ron Burr, Pat Holland and Ernie La Consello.

The disc jockeys must go through an extensive training program before they are allowed to go on the air. After completion of their training program, the DJ's are air-checked by the station officers.

KAWL is basically a music station, and differs in that aspect from KCSF, which operates with an accent on campus news.

News on the two stations is under the direction of John Hayward and is aired at 15 minutes after the hour and 15 minutes to the hour. News casts are in three minute segments; two minutes for news, and one minute for the sports.

All clubs, student officers and others who wish to have bulletins, notices and messages put out over the air by KCSF, can phone extension 444.

The radio stations are under the guidance of Philip Brown, faculty advisor, and Ron Custer, chief engineer.

KCSF Disc Jocky Ron Burr at the mike. —photo by Harry Muhldorfer

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 47 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1968 NUMBER 4

Class Petition Forces Hill, Wilson To Drop

By Tom Graham

Derrick Hill, Associated Students president, and Fred Wilson, English major, decided to drop Speech 1A last Monday because they could not agree with their instructor, Lucille Meredith, or the majority of their class on certain issues concerning the organization of the course.

They didn't drop totally on their own volition, however. Eighteen members of the class signed a petition which expressed their wish to have both Hill and Wilson ejected from the class for disrupting the learning process. The petition was sent to deans John J. Brady and Ralph O. Hillsman, Dr. Alfred J. Tapson, President Louis G. Conlan and Dr. Louis F. Batmale.

In part, the petition stated, "We the students submit that Derrick Hill and Fred Wilson have defied the instructor the right to conduct the course in a manner which is most helpful to the class."

THE ENTIRE incident was sparked off when Wilson was told to be seated for not following the instructions for a speech assignment. The assignment was a report on an article.

When Wilson got up to speak, Mrs. Meredith glanced at his outline and noticed that it was not prepared properly and that it was not a report on an article. She told him not to speak that day since he hadn't followed the assignment.

Wilson stayed after class and told her that he wanted to talk to her about how she was organizing the course.

He stated that she wasn't running the class in a democratic way. Then he commented that it wasn't her course, that the course belonged to the students and they should have some say in how it was run, that he wasn't being treated as an equal, that he was as equal as she, that he was a taxpayer and that she would have to discuss the organization of the course with him sometime.

MRS. MEREDITH suggested that he possibly needed to learn from one of the deans what the responsibility of an instructor was, and that "one of the responsibilities was to organize and set up procedure." He agreed upon seeing one of the deans, but she was unable to contact him before Wednesday's class.

The class started and she announced that it was time for Group II's speeches. One of the students got up to do her speech, then Wilson broke in. He was told to "sit down!" He refused, and talked over and above the speaker who had tried to continue her speech. She finally gave up and sat down and he went to the front of the room.

DERRICK HILL
"Things are going to change . . ."

Some of the students spoke up and said that they didn't want to hear him speak. He asked how many didn't and most of the class raised their hands. Then Derrick Hill took over. He said, "Why won't you hear this man speak? Listen to what he has to say." Some of the members of the class turned on Hill and said that they didn't want to hear from him either.

MRS. MEREDITH asked both of them to leave the class and meet her later at Dean Brady's office. It was after this meeting that they decided to drop the course.

According to Mrs. Meredith, this wasn't the first time that Wilson and Hill had disrupted the class.

Before Hill and Wilson dropped the course, they were informed of the authority of instructors, as it is defined in the catalogue—"An instructor, with the approval of the Co-ordinator of Student Welfare, may exclude from class any student who is discourteous or who neglects to do the work required in a course."

"The issue is who is to run the course," says Mrs. Meredith. She asks, "Can any student take it upon himself to challenge the teachers organization of a class and demand changes?" She believes that "no one student may."

World's On Fire And We Can't Talk—Hill

By Martin J. Arbunich

"We don't have a 'say-so' here at City College," barked an obviously fed-up Derrick Hill, Associated Students president, at the rally held here last week for the purpose of arousing student action in the controversial "Hill-Wilson" and "Malcolm Brown" issues here.

"This college allows you no voice in your destiny," he told the few-hundred students who were there. "And things are going to change around here."

HIS TALK, which was based on the lack of freedom in classrooms, the gap between students and instructors, and what students should do to change these stagnant conditions, started a string of speeches by various individuals who fired away on different campus problems.

Hill's talk concentrated on the classroom incident which caused fellow student Fred Wilson and himself to drop a speech class shortly after a threatened expulsion.

Intructor Lucille Meredith "gave us no chance to speak freely in her class," HIll stated. "The world is on fire all over and we can't talk about it."

Hill considered Mrs. Meredith's treatment of Wilson as unjust. "She refused to hear Fred out," Hill said. "He wanted to give a talk on 'freedom in the classroom.'

"'I am the authority in this class, and I don't want to listen,' she said. She told him if he didn't like it to 'get out'."

THE AS PRESIDENT told the crowd that Wilson's topic was as valid as that of another student who spent time "telling the class how well-qualified George Wallace was for the presidency."

"The teacher didn't stop this student from delivering his views. Neither did the rest of the class," Hill added. Ironically, this same student was the one who headed the petition against Hill and Wilson.

Hill has plans to give the students the freedom they deserve by forming a committee. He asks all students "who have similar problems with instructors" to notify him at his office.

Eldridge Cleaver Not Allowed Because Of City College Policy

Eldridge Cleaver, the controversial leader of the Black Panther political group, will not be permitted to speak at City College.

In an interview with Derrick Hill, president of the Associated Students, he said, "I have been in touch with Kathleen Cleaver, and she feels certain that Eldridge will be able to fit a City College lecture spot into his busy schedule."

Cleaver's appearance here at the college is being blocked by an administrative policy which bars convicted felons from speaking on campus, according to Dean Lawrence Lawson, director of Student Activities. Hill feels that Cleaver is a public personage, and his appearance would be a major contribution here.

Dean Warren White, former Cultural Affairs Chairman, said, "In the past, Concert-Lecture events were arranged a semester in advance by the Cultural Affairs Committee. Starting this Fall guest speakers will be accommodated through Lawson and the Cultural Affairs Committee"—L. R.

Hill Reschedules Council Election

Last Wednesday's Associated Students election was cancelled due to the disqualification of one of the candidates, and was rescheduled for this Monday.

George Samayoa, representing the Spanish Speaking Students Organization was disqualified because he had not taken enough units at the college.

In order to run for a seat on the Sophomore Council, a candidate must be carrying at least 14 units and also have completed 28 units with a 2.0 grade point.

As a result, AS President Derrick Hill postponed the election.

Pete Ramirez was selected in Samoyoa's place.

In other council action Freshman Councilman Gary Barton proposed that clubs no longer be required to attend meetings of the Council of Organizations.

George Masson, COO spokesman, replied that only on campus clubs have the right to post signs, pass out pamphlets and use the mimeograph and sign machines. It was stated that a club that was not a member of COO would be considered off campus, and as a result could lose the privileges mentioned.

After the meeting Masson stated, "Anyone speaking on campus must be sponsored by a campus club. It isn't the COO's policy, it is the administration's."

Sophomore Councilman Bryan Kennedy introduced a resolution calling for the clean up of Smith Hall's windows which have not been washed since the beginning of the summer.

Hill appointed Kennedy to speak to David Borrelli of the Hotel and Restaurant Department for further action on this problem.

The Guardsman Editorial Page
Official Weekly Publication of City College of San Francisco
MIKE DUGGAN, Editor
Vol. 67, No. 4 WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1968 Page 2

Support Of Grape Boycott

THE SAN FRANCISCO Board of Supervisors voted last week to support the boycott of California grape-pickers. The board thus joins county supervisors for Los Angeles in endorsing the national boycott sponsored by the United Farm Workers Organizing Committee.

We back the move of our local supervisors and hope that the strike will eventually succeed so that farm workers can begin to lead average lives.

At present, many grape workers earn less than $1,800 a year. Even if a worker were able to work 40 hours a week for each of the 52 weeks during the year, he could only earn $2,386 annually—approximately one-half the average wage for all Californians.

UNDER THE LEADERSHIP OF CESAR CHAVEZ, director of the United Farm Workers, workers have succeeded in winning collective bargaining agreements for the first time in history.

But the strike is now in its 43rd month and the workers are still out and the goal of total union recognition is still far in the future.

The boycott has had some effect on the market. Sales in California are down 20 per cent, and some grape markets in New York, Boston, Detroit and Chicago are being closed down.

THE WORKERS DEMAND FOUR THINGS with the strike: a minimum hourly wage at all times during the year, sanitary working conditions, seniority system to protect workers of long standing, and an end to harrassment through the appointment of stewards who would represent any worker who felt he had been treated unfairly.

The proposals seem, to us, very necessary. An hourly wage increase is a must; to work and sweat picking grapes all season and come home with but $1,800 is just not enough to support a family in this day and age.

Contact Lens

What Would You Do If You Were To Make Decisions On Viet Nam?

Siah Ling Sze Ow, Art Major

In a way America should be in Vietnam. They are there, so they should stay there. Originally, I was afraid of American control because I am from Thailand. America should not get involved since it is not their business.

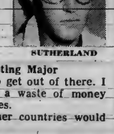
If America had not helped, things might have been different— maybe the South Vietnamese would be stronger and more able to take care of themselves.

OW

Paula Thompson, Art Major

We should have done something a long time ago. Now it's too late. I don't think anything will come out of the peace talks. The North Vietnamese are stalling. We should have gone all out in the beginning. We're not using our full might. I would just pull out. Still, one must remember the lives that are lost and the investments that have been made. There should either be an escalation or a pull out. There's no halfway point.

THOMPSON



Walter Dow, General Education Major

The U.S. has been committed for so long in so many places that if we pulled out, what would happen? It would be impossible to pull out at this time. The peace talks are a big farce. It's a waste of time, people, and money. We're there because all America is concerned with is our image, whatever that is. We're there doing all of the fighting. In every place we've been, we've always carried the burden.

DOW

Jim Sutherland, Science Major

I would stop the bombing and start pulling out of Vietnam. It would have to be a gradual pull out. If the bombing is stopped, it might lead to a break in the Paris peace talks; but, in any case, we should definitely start pulling out. If the war is carried on, it should be carried on by the Vietnamese. I support the demonstrators all the way. There's a lot more anti-war sentiment within the armed forces than most realize.

SUTHERLAND

Evelyn Jimenez, Teaching Assisting Major

I'd certainly find some way to get out of there. I want to get out of there. It's a waste of money which could be used in the States.

If we pulled out, all the other countries would look down on us.

The peace talks haven't done any good. There's too much talk and not enough action.

The South Vietnamese don't want us there. We just interfered.

JIMENEZ

Lorraine Brougham, Lab Technician Major

I am for the war. I'd go all out, but I would not use nuclear weapons because of the danger of retaliation by Russia or whoever's backing the North Vietnamese. We're fighting to keep the Communists away from our country. If we left, the Communists would gradually take over one country at a time until they were at our doorstep. By then it would be too late.

BROUGHAM

—Compiled by Lavine Lee, photos by James Pope

Finders Keepers?

All young people are not irresponsible protestors as many elders believe. Among the young there still remain many thoughtful, considerate youths.

Somewhere in the area by the Ram recently, Thomas Johnson lost his wallet containing his ID card and $20.

Soon after, three City College students, Evelyn Taylor, a Data Processing student, Vanda Nolan and Morva Pelley, each General Ed majors, found the wallet. Looking through the wallet, noticing the ID and money, the girls began debating whether they should keep the wallet or turn it in. Twenty dollars is a sizeable amount of money, even split three ways.

In the true spirit, the girls decided the owner was probably in need of his ID card, not to mention the $20. It's not easy now to get another ID card, it not only takes time, but it is a great inconvience to be without one.

These three girls subsequently paid a visit to Robert Tealer, a friendly, understanding counselor to whom the students can easily take their problems and speak freely.

They told their story to Tealer and gave him the wallet.

Tealer found the girls' deed very commendable and worthy of praise, it is not every day a wallet is found and turned in the day it was lost.

Since there was no telephone number or address of the owner in the wallet, Tealer assumed that the owner was a student at the college, so he consulted the college's files. Locating Johnson's name and telephone number, he called and notified him that his wallet was found.

Johnson got his wallet back, contents intact, and this case was closed, contradicting the ancient adage of "finders keepers, losers weepers."

Violence Causes Students To Take Up Classes In Art Of Self Defense

By Sonia Schmidt

Nation-wide crime and violence in the streets has caused people to consider learning the art of self-defense. Joe Mollo, instructor of the San Francisco Tactical Squad, is presently instructing interested students on campus.

Mollo first became interested in self-defense 12 years ago while rooming with a Hawaiian friend in San Jose. He taught for five years in the San Jose Pacific Judo Academy before coming to San Francisco. At present he is the instructor of the San Francisco Tactical Squad, coach of the Northern California National Judo Team (which competed in Sacramento this year), and a holder of the third degree black belt.

He is teaching a combination of karate and judo here at the college.

IN KARATE the students learn the basic punches and blocks used in street defense.

Whether or not Karate is used for sport or self-defense, the techniques are similar. The training methods and situations in which they are used, however, are quite different. In self-defense you can be moderately proficient in the use of some of the hand and foot blows, but perfection of techniques in sport karate is everything.

Colored belts are usually issued for techniques in sport karate. To earn a belt one must be judged by a trained instructor. Those who are interested only in karate as a means of self-defense need not worry about belt ratings.

In judo, as in karate, the students are taught the basic steps. They are instructed on how to roll and fall without injury to themselves, and they also learn the basic throwing techniques.

LIKE YOGA, JUDO was started for health reasons, but gradually it became the sport which we know of today. Literally, one could define judo as meaning "gentle way," which seems quite ironic in the light of the pictures one sees of judo.

Since judo is an art that is practiced as a sport, the line of distinction as to where the art ends and the sport begins is very difficult to define. However, the aims of judo are threefold: physical development, proficiency in contest, and mental development.

Students of judo are graded according to their skill, and normally all beginners start off with a white belt. Later they are eligible to proceed to higher degree belts. It is not necessary to advance through all of the stages of the brown belts. A student may advance from a white belt directly to a first grade black belt.

There is no set age limit, and both sexes are eligible to join.

Classes in karate and judo with Joe Mollo are held every Tuesday and Thursday from 11 a.m. to 12 noon in the Men's Gym. For interested male students, there are already eight lovely young ladies in the class to keep things jumping.

Letters to the Editor

Ram's Horn

● Rebuttal

Editor, The Guardsman:

This letter was written to correct the fallacies found in Richard Shirley's letter (September 25). In the first place, what in the hell was his bitch of Coalition's AS Cards policy about?

Contrary to what Richard wrote, Coalition's basic campaign issue was not the AS Cards. Unlike the status-minded USA kids, who preferred more social dances and tea parties to student services programs, the Student Coalition basic issue was that the student government should be more progressive and responsive to students' needs.

This meant an expanded tutorial program, more ethic cultural programs, the creation of a draft counciling center, etc. Our only policy on the AS Cards was that they should not be required for entrance to films, plays and lectures, and that was a minor part of our platform.

In the second place, who the Student Council approves or disapproves is up to the individual councilman to decide. The students who elected us felt that we were better qualified to run things, and it was our decision

(Continued on Page 3, Column 1)

Guardsman Staff — Fall 1968

EDITOR IN CHIEF ..... MIKE DUGGAN
Managing Editor ..... Doug Boston
Feature Editor ..... Tom Graham
Staff Editor ..... Boku Kodama
News Editor ..... Barbara Hamann
Sports Editor ..... Dave Albertson
Editorial Assistants: Martin J. Arbunich, Lani Brand, Rita Carroll, Lavine Lee, Lynda Sandstrom.
Reporters: Randy Flynn, Leonard Ribeiro.
Cub Reporters: Floyd Banks, Ralph Bayard, Jack Blake, Dan Castro, Joe Cefalu, Patrick Chan, Lynette Conklin, Jeff Deleuse, Phil Di Carlo, Kaye Kramps, Yvonne Lew, Marianne Lim, Dan McCarthy, Florence McCarthy, Ben Marinez, Diana Matson, Alan Pletzner, James Pope, Elizabeth Ramos, Lester Rasterfer, Jack Ruiz, Goonalote Schmidt, Kenneth Surface, Barbara Tyrrell, Val Vallendar, Wong Tse Yui.
Photographers: Marilyn Astaiosh, Chief; Bert Flowers, Glenn Graham, Steven La Plant, Jerry Mishler, Detter Osburg, Jona Protze, Roberto Quillan, Kevin Shea, Ulmer T. McKnight, Gavin Watt, Calvin Wong, Russell Wong, Sam Woo.
Advisor: Mary Blair

SHOOTIN' IT

by Doug Boston

WE CONDUCTED a minor survey on campus recently which should be of some interest to students who value their safety.

The survey was a visual one; not an oral one. It was an observation of students walking down the path proceeding toward the area between the new Educational Services Building and Smith Hall. It should be inserted here that we stumbled across the situation quite by accident. And stumbled is exactly what happened.

The problem is that those two paths meet (the one going toward the cafe and the other one leading alongside), but not evenly. One pathway is about two inches lower than the other. That slight ledge is where the danger lies.

With books in one hand and a coke in the other, this writer marched along, not realizing the event which was to follow shortly.

As crowds of people gathered, we tripped on the raised ledge, stumbled and momentarily lost our balance, and painted one of those pillars with cocacola, much to the amusement of the bystanders.

Then we watched. In the following twenty minutes, no less than six students met with the same disaster, and one poor soul hit the deck completely. We witnessed the embarrasment on each of their faces as they regained their equilibrium and crawled away hesitantly. This is merely a warning. Watch your step. Okay?

• • •

NEGLECT. We forgot to mention two items concerning George Plimpton in last week's column. Firstly, he will go to camp with the Boston Celtics, suggesting that he intends to make the NBA his next challenge.

Secondly, the world premier of Paper Lion, the movie adapted from Plimpton's book was held in Detroit last week. Alan Alda portrays Plimpton, a quarterback trying to make the Detroit Lions football team. Tickets were $50. We decideed to wait until the movie makes it to SF, and see it for two dollars.

• • •

QUICKSHOTS. We had something else all typed up and ready to go in this space but unfortunately the school calendar screwed us up because the event listed for today does not exist. Onward... Did you know there is a poster near the bulletin board in the Science building that reads, "Majorettes: If you have no knowledge of twirling, you will be taught"... How about tears of real sorrow are much saltier than tears of joy... A porcupine has about thirty thousand quills... The average citizen who drives a car spends 24 hours at stop lights during his life... Midterms are next week.

• • •

BAD NEWS. Remember when Al Capone and Elliot Ness used to chase each other around and all that crime and bootlegging was going on. Today, some forty years later, the crime rate is hard to believe. We've got a few statistics here which are currently taking place in the United States. There is one serious crime committed every seven minutes. There is one violent one every minute. A murder is carried out every 43 minutes, and a forcible rape every 19 minutes. In the time it took you to read the column to this point, at some area in the country, the following occurred: Four aggravated assaults; three robberies; 24 burglaries; 16 larceny crimes and five auto thefts.

• • •

CHATTER. Last semester, in describing the situation here at the college, Coalition's Derrick Hill announced that "the college is screwed up, the teachers are out of touch, and students are fakers." We would like to go on record as stating that the college is not screwed up, only a few teachers are out of touch, and not all students are fakers. At Harvard, one might find a more mature atmosphere and fewer members of the bourgeoisie, but the price of education there does exceed that of City College. A real good education calls for the coin, just like anything else.

• • •

We know you've heard about the magazines it takes to fill a baby carriage: a Playboy, a Mademoiselle, a few Liberties and Time.

State Legislature Pushes Mandatory AS Membership

Legislation making student association memberships a requirement on junior college campuses may be proposed in the next general session of the California State Legislature.

Word of this intended measure comes from Alan H. Du Bane, state information chairman for the California Junior College Student Government Association at City College of San Francisco. He is also past sponsor of a similar measure narrowly defeated in the last session of the California Legislature.

Aside from taking part in many phases of student government, Du Bane also serves to keep the CJCSGA aware of student trends and attitudes on this campus.

It was the CJCSGA that first saw a need for mandatory student association memberships in the state's 92 junior and community colleges. Because this association is representative of these junior college governments on a state-wide basis, it was felt that the proposal represented a majority of the colleges.

When last introduced, the measure was defeated by only a slight margin in the California State Legislature. Last year, Assembly Bill 440, dealing with mandatory student association memberships, met with a 4-4 vote in committee discussion. The tie vote, Du Bane pointed out, eliminated the measure from further consideration during that legislative session.

This year, however, Du Bane feels more pressure can be brought to bear on passage of the measure than ever before. As he sees the situation, this pressure, along with the backing of the state's junior college student governments, will bring desired action from the lawmakers.

If the proposal becomes law, it would affect almost every student at City College. Purchase of an Associated Students membership would become a requirement for registration.

—J. P.

Ram's Horn

(Continued from Page 2)

that Paul Slate was a better candidate.

Finally, the Student Council of CCSF has a certain procedure for filling vacancies on council. This procedure calls for a special election open to any qualified candidate. This was what Richard's party did last semester, and this is what Coalition is doing this semester.

Therefore, what Coalition is doing is nothing "Damn Dirty" (except to a poor loser). Let's hope that the students didn't dig Richard's story, but instead keep a good ear open to what Coalition's doing.

Al Wong
Member, Student Coalition

● No Student Voice

Editor, The Guardsman:

Your recent article concerning the appointment of Lawrence Lawson as Director of Student Activities (Issue No. 1) failed to point out one important fact: no students were consulted as to whom they wanted to head their activities. I am not questioning Mr. Lawson's qualifications for the position he now holds.

What I am deeply concerned with is the manner in which he was placed in that position by Administration of this college. It was an absolute authoritarian decision on their part. No consultation was made with the Student Council or any members thereof. Students are this college, yet none were consulted.

Is the Administration of this college blind as to what is happening at campuses across the world? Alienation does not breed evolution. I pray that the people in position at this college realize that students are not entities but are human beings whose backs can break.

Edward B. Glazer

● Unwanted Worker

Editor, The Guardsman:

City College administrators, in their omniscient wisdom, have decided that it is more economical and better serves student interest, to have a paid school employee occupy the information booth in the Educational Services Building rather than to post a building directory.

It is obvious that a building directory could be used by many students simultaneously and would be in the highest traditions of sound management, efficiency and economy as practiced by our fearless leader, Governor Reagan.

Howard Leighty

System Of Pass-No Report Discussed At Joint Meeting

A "pass-no report" grading system, Grievance Committee, library smoking area and improved student-instructor relationships were subjects of debate at a joint meeting of members of the Faculty Association and Student Council representatives recently.

This was the first of a series of meetings designed to build rapport between students and faculty in the discussion of mutual problems.

Arthur Evans, business instructor and president of the Faculty Association stated that the group will discuss common problems and direct its proposals to the Faculty Senate, administration officials or other related bodies for enactment.

A "pass-no report" system of grading in remedial courses was a key proposal of the student representatives. Under this system students would not be penalized for failures in basic English, health, math and business courses.

In courses such as Communications G 5A and Health 21, student failures would not be recorded on transcripts. Students in these courses would not be given letter grades but only credited with a "pass."

A proposal for the formation of a Grievance Committee composed of students and faculty, equally represented, was also made. Students and instructors alike would have a chance to present their problems and complaints to this unbiased group.

Both the Faculty Association and the students agreed to the formation of the committee, but its ultimate power was the subject of debate.

The establishment of a library smoking section was another proposal of the student representatives.

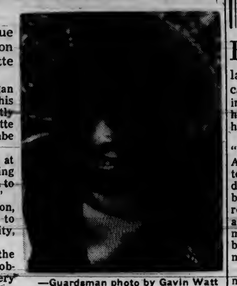
A problem discussed by everyone was the lack of communication between the students and instructors. It was suggested that calling instructors by their first names was one way to bring about better communication.

Several faculty members argued that calling instructors by their first names was not as important as the overall classroom atmosphere.

Future student-faculty meetings are scheduled to be held weekly in the student-faculty lounge on Thursdays at 3 p.m.—F. M.

Ramette Of The Week

By Dave Albertson



DIANE BAKER'S picturesque form presents an alluring vision worthy of selection as Ramette of the Week.

Guardsman Editor Mike Duggan must be given credit for finding this week's Ramette. Duggan is constantly on the prowl for prospective Ramette candidates. He found this week's babe strolling through Science Hall.

Diane is in her fifth semester at City College and plans on becoming a medical assistant. She hopes "... to someday work in a doctor's office."

She is formerly from Washington, D. C., and is planning on returning to D. C. to attend Howard University, after this semester's graduation.

Diane is currently the head of the Ram cheerleaders. She can be observed doing her cheering thing every Friday at the Ram football games.

—Guardsman photo by Gavin Watt

SHE ENJOYS participating in a number of sports and says that, "... I sometimes play "touch" football with the guys." One would wager that the guys would prefer to play tackle.

Dancing and bowling in Jack and Jill's Blue Chip stamp tournament every Sunday is included in our Ramette's busy schedule.

Diane has had an interesting tour of the globe. She has traveled with her dad while he was a master chief in the Navy. Her old homes include such places as Hawaii, Midway and the Marshall Islands.

Diane charmingly claims that, "I have a tendency to do crazy things at times, which could be due to the fact that I got hit in the head with a baseball bat when I was young."

THIS 20-YEAR-OLD honey doesn't go for the idea of early marriage. She says that, "... people should try to see what they can do career-wise before getting tied down for life. You can always get married, but you can't stay young forever, so make it while you can."

Diane holds the subject of men in high esteem and summed it up by stating, "guys, yeah, I don't know what I'd do without them."

Expelled Priest Says Latin America Another Vietnam

Father Art Melville spoke on the possibility of another Vietnam occuring in Latin America, and the oppressive role the United States is playing in Guatemala, at College Hour last Tuesday in the Little Theater.

Melville was recently expelled from Guatemala for participating in a revolutionary movement against the United States. He was in Guatemala as a missionary for the Catholic Church. Melville has a pending death sentence on his head if he should return to Guatemala.

Melville says that, "The United States is in Latin America because the fundamental social change in Guatemala threatens the American way of life." He feels that the United States presence in Latin America is similar to that in Vietnam.

Melville has been excommunicated from the Catholic Church for marrying a nun.

The expelled priest is also active in the draft resistance and says that "... draft card burners are working for a good society."

Melville urges young men to throw away their draft cards in a national draft card turn-in on November 14.

Canne Film Sensation Shown Here Tomorrow

One Potato, Two Potato an American film starring Barbara Barrie and Bernie Hamilton, will be shown tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in the College Theater.

Director Larry Peerce's first film is a tender and tasteful handling of a very touchy theme. The story, quite simply, is about a woman divorced by her husband who is alone in the world attempting to raise her little girl. She meets, falls in love with and marries a young man, a social worker, who is a Negro.

According to Time Magazine, "At the Cannes Film Festival, One Potato, Two Potato scored the longest, loudest ovation."

There is no admission charge for students, faculty or their guests.

Labelled And Recorded

Reviews Of Current Album Releases

by Martin J. Arbunich

FOR WHAT IT'S WORTH:

THE CRAZY WORLD OF ARTHUR BROWN (Atlantic-SD 8198): This group can easily be mistaken for an absolutely absurd outfit, but what they're doing really deserves merit for its uniqueness and polished execution. The group may not produce the most important music in pop, but what they do constitutes a great novelty act that comes off as one of the most professional pieces of visual and audio entertainment around.

This album, however, fails to capture the total excitement and professionalism of their stage act. The visuals are missing (Brown's demonic dancing, his multi-colored costumes, a great deal of the visual mood), and what we are left with is an incomplete picture, one-half of an entity which really shouldn't be broken up.

The quality of the material of this record is inconsistent, and this is apparent at the flip of the record. The selections which comprise the nightmare sequence (side one) of the album are good and carry the single theme through very well. There are some exquisite arrangements here ("Fire" in particular), highlighted by a generous and quality display of organ and some clever horn arrangements that are very effective.

Side two is a letdown. It lacks the musicianship and tight and clever arrangements of side one, and it comes on like a series of fillers used to pad the album. It probably would have been better to extend the nightmare theme with a few more numbers of the same quality, and if padding was still necessary, some improvisation from their great keyboard player would have done nicely.

As a vocalist, Arthur Brown is quite a talent. It's amazing what he can do with his voice—one second he's a falsetto, screeching madly, the next he's a baritone vibrating, and without warning he breaks into a whisper and then back up again. When he plays it straight for aesthetics, which isn't too often, you hear an "Englebert Humperdinck," which used to be the bag Brown was in before he formed this group. His voice is well trained, and he has very little trouble shooting up and down the scale at will.

The group is worth much more than what went into this record, though the nightmare sequence saves this recording from getting bombed. While listening to this album, it should be kept in mind that the Crazy World Of Arthur Brown is a musical novelty act and nothing more. And only half the novelty is within the record jacket.

H. P. LOVECRAFT—H. P. Lovecraft II (Philips-PHS 600-279): Overall, the arrangements and studio effects used on this record were well thought out, and the band has become more confident in their instrumental capabilities since their last album.

The quality of H. P. Lovecraft that stands out above all others is their beautiful, timely vocal arrangements which can really knock you out on "Spin, Spin, Spin" and "At The Mountain Of Madness." In two-part harmony, their voices complement each other superbly, especially when singer George Edwards is at lead and backed by the others. His voice has more or less become the trademark of the group, and it's such a unique voice that it should even be featured more heavily than it is on this record.

The arrangement on "It's About Time" is probably the weakest on the album. It starts off clumsily but eventually works out all right. "High Flying Bird" is an odd choice for this record and really doesn't seem to tie in with the other material. It's an overworked number already, recorded by many artists, and though H. P.'s version is passable, it's more or less a waste.

DISPATCH

by Boku Kodama

BITCHING, stated an unknown writer, has come to play a large part of our lives. A man cannot go one day without griping, complaining or nagging, and yet he usually never does anything about his bitch.

We can look further into the word "bitch." In the Pocket Dictionary of American Slang, "bitch" is referred to as "a definite taboo connotation; during World War I, this connotation became acceptable in the speech of rough or socially unacceptable people, and during and since World War II many such formerly taboo words have become common in the speech of many, especially of young adults."

This columnist has come to know much "bitching" which has occurred in City College. Perhaps the most dominant complaint in this college is that it is just a higher form of high school. Are the students so blind that they can't see that it's not the college which is like high school but the students?

THE BUILDINGS on our campus are like those of San Francisco high schools, but it is possible to make the best of what you've got.

The education here is rated fairly high. If you can't make the best of what this campus has to offer, then either you've been spoiled rotten and shouldn't be attending City College, but rather one of the prestige schools; or you're too immature and college level thinking is just too much for you. Another reason could be that you were disappointed in the general appearance of this college.

Many times, students have referred to this college as a "dump" or "that hole on the hill," but the vast majority of students never talk about ways to improve the campus or ways to give the campus a more college-type atmosphere. If you believe City College does not have a high enough education, don't gripe about it. Do something to improve the standard of education.

• • •

ANOTHER MAJOR "BITCH" of this college is the two newspapers, the Free Critic and The Guardsman.

Last semester, The Guardsman did a survey to find the students' reactions to the two papers. The survey showed that students thought of the Critic as a left-wing paper while The Guardsman was considered to have policies leaning toward right-wing conservatives.

Students complained that The Guardsman had no opinions and found the paper to be too objective. What many people do not understand is that The Guardsman is run as a regular class with units. The foremost purpose of The Guardsman is to get practical training for professional work and to inform students of the events which happen at the college—and this work is done in an objective manner. The Guardsman does have its opinions and they are expressed in the editorials and columns.

The Guardsman has been said to please only the white students. This may be true to some extent but the purpose of The Guardsman is to report only the facts to the students. We have also seen that the Black students have shown little if any interest in the paper. The Orientals have also shown little interest in the paper.

THE FREE CRITIC was found to be too radical in its views by the survey, and many students spoke of the birth-control hangup of the Critic.

If students feel that the Critic and The Guardsman are bad papers, it's possible for the students to join the staff and try to improve it, because running a paper takes a lot of work, not just a bunch of words.

Sometimes people get tired of listening to other people bitch. As the old saying goes, "put up or shut up." How true, how true.

• • •

A look at the political scene shows that Republican vice-presidential candidate Spiro Agnew has done it again. Two weeks ago, Agnew referred to Gene Oishi, a reporter for the Baltimore Sun as a "fat Jap."

Seen on television occasionally is comedian David Frye, who does a great impersonation of Richard Nixon. Nixon speaks, "I lost the election in '60 and again in '62 but this year I have Spiro Agnew to lose it for me." And he could be right.

"I consider it a great homage to public opinion to find every scoundrel nowadays professing himself a liberal."—Benjamin Disraeli.

San Jose Upsets The Rams, 39-25

Rivalry Continues While Cindermen Change Uniforms

Competition and rivalry are two components which make sports interesting and exciting.

Vince Ansley and Greg Jackson are two athletes who devote themselves to competition, rivalry and team effort. Ansley has competed in track, football and basketball at City College. While competing on each team, Ansley participates in rivalries that have existed since his prep days at Polytechnic High.

ANSLEY'S first track season was enhanced by teammates Steve Jordan of Poly High and David Jones of Wilson. Jordan defeated Ansley in the 440 in high school, triple "A" finals, but was no match for Ansley in the '68 Golden Gate Conference season. Ansley took second in the 440, anchored the mile relay to a second, and briefly held the school record of 48.4 before it was broken by Larry Mosley.

JACKSON is also a great competition man. His first season at the college was highlighted by a continuation of an ancient rivalry between two hurdlers from Balboa High, Floyd Banks and Craig Johnson. In his last year at Galileo High, Jackson was harrassed by an undefeated burdle crew from Balboa High, consisting of James Loville, Banks and Johnson. Jackson's willingness to succeed was realized when he finally upset the combination in the Triple "A" in the 180 low burdles championship.

Jackson has also played varsity football two years for the college. Last year be was a second string defensive back, but this year he's an exceptional defensive back and kick-off return specialist.

In order to maintain a high standard of excellence in the sports, competition and rivalry are tantamount. Men like Ansely and Jackson maintain these virtues and are quite necessary for the upkeep of sports standards.—F. B.

RAM BACK DOYLE MILLER skirts left end in a running play against the American River Beavers. Miller has played a key role in ground play in the Rams two preseason victories over American River and San Joaquin. Miller will be carrying the ball in similar running plays at this Friday's game. —Guardsman photo by Glen Graham

Bayard, Pittman Standouts In Stunning Jaguar Victory

By Phil DiCarlo

San Jose City College, last year's dream breakers, did a good job of it again Friday night as they smashed the Rams 39 to 25 at Jaguar Stadium.

The Jags knocked CCSF out of the league championship last year in the final game of the season. With this convincing victory, they've dropped the Rams (like a battleship anchor) out of a national ranking, and cast serious doubts as to the future of the 1968 team.

DAVE ELLIS, Randy Washington, Blaine Owens, Sam Caruthers, plus a host of others, were more than enough to subdue the Ram efforts.

Following a fairly mild first half, which ended in a 13-13 tie, the game took a wild turn. The Rams took the kick-off and started to roll as Doyle Miller, who gained 60 yards in ten carries, churned 12 yards up the middle. Joe Bell fumbled on the next play though, setting up a Jag first down on the Ram 42. Owens scored from the two, seven plays later.

Never-say-die Mayfield came right back with a 31-yard touchdown strike to his favorite receiver, Ralph Bayard. These two bad hooked up on a two-yarder in the first quarter for the first Ram score.

Then San Jose came right back. On a third and six at the Ram 49, Ellis waved the magic arm and threw down the middle toward his big (6-5, 230) tight end, Steve Kinney. The pass bounced off Kinney's hands and right to the ever-present, but startled, Washington who was five yards away. The incomplete pass was turned into a touchdown as Washington fled down the field untouched, on one of the most exciting plays of the night.

THE MOST EXCITING? Washington had caught his first scoring pass in the second quarter to put the Jags ahead. Less than six seconds later, Willie Lewis, 230 pound Ram fullback, was standing in the San Jose end zone and the crowd of nearly 3,000 (150 were ours) were standing on their feet. Taking a short kick on his own 26, Lewis, from Memphis, Tennessee, took off for the Jaguar goal line. Pity the people who got in his way as he bulldozed 74 yards to tie the game, using his brutal "straight arm" as he ran.

Back to the second half — and disaster. After the Ellis to Kinney to Washington and an exchange of punts, Mayfield, Lewis and Miller were leading the Rams toward another score. On the Jag ten, Lewis fumbled while switching the ball from one hand to the other. San Jose marched 90 yards in only eight plays from there to score again, and the game was all but over.

With 2:32 left in the game and 20 points behind, Bell scored from the one. Mayfield's two point conversion pass was overthrown and the score stood at 39-25.

PENALTIES CANCELLED two big Ram plays. One was a 48-yard pass (from Mayfield) and run by Lewis. The other was a BEAUTIFUL 66-yard touchdown pass from Mayfield to, yep, Bayard. Bayard ran a "down, out and up" pattern on his "man" and had him beat by 10 yards when he took the pass over his shoulder.

Coach "Dutch" Elston wasn't too happy after the game, needless to say, but he didn't seem too sad either, just philosophical. "What the hell is there to say," remarked Elston, "we gave him (Ellis) all the time in the world to throw. We had enough offense to do the job, I thought, but the defense . . . well they weren't getting through to the passer. Of course their (SJCC) ends made some fantastic (blankety-blank) catches."

THERE WERE many bright spots in the Ram game. The offense still looks very good, the line has been better than expected. The running of Bell, Lewis and Miller continues to sparkle. The Mayfield to Bayard combination has been especially effective and fantastically exciting. Mayfield has completed 50 per cent of his passes including seven for touchdowns, four of those to Bayard. Punter Bill McDonough is averaging 40 yards per punt.

FRIDAY AFTERNOON the Vikings from Diablo Valley invade the campus. The green and white were ranked eighth in the nation last week on the same poll the Rams were on. It must be a jinx though, for the Vikes were knocked from the unbeaten ranks last weekend also. Laney of Oakland upset them 26-7 last Saturday night.

If the Rams are to regain their championship form, a win over the Vikings would certainly be a step in the right direction. They are no push-over though, and it should be a great game. Kick off is at 2:30.

Ram Soccer Team Shuts Out West Valley In First Game

City College's soccer supremacy looms menacingly on the Western Junior College Soccer Conference scene. The Rams, in their first league game, shut out a rough, tough West Valley team, 7-0, last Wednesday at Balboa High School Stadium.

WEST VALLEY is a new college that has not yet started building a big football team yet. Consequently, many football-types are on the soccer squad. What they lack in speed and finesse is more than made up with hard checking, strong tackling (using the feet to take the ball away from a player) and very aggressive tactics. Yet Coach Roy Diederichsen's Rams allowed them only one good shot at the goal.

The fine efforts of defenders Braulio Trugueros, Al Soares, Clive Butler and Vince Attard kept West Valley out all day. Attard has apparently taken the number one goalie spot from incumbent Arnie Harrott. Diederichsen praised Attard for his "exceptionally good hands" and long kick.

THE GREATNESS of the defense is actually a result of the tremendous forward line. Having only four men on the front line isn't too common but, "these guys are as good a front four as we have ever had" exclaimed Diederichsen. All-Americans Al Soares and Otey Cannon, at inside left and left wing respectively, lead the attack line. "Frenchy" Helmy and Jerry Tighe fill out the talented quartet. Against Valley, Cannon scored a "hat trick" (three goals) while Chu, Butler and top subs Jose Tovar and Harry Best scored one each.—P. D.

Klemmer Says Job Is 'Labor Of Love'

By Jack Ruiz

As he boarded the plane at New Orleans International Airport, all thoughts of the excitement, the spectacular play, the roaring of the 80,000 fans were completely divorced from his mind. Grover Klemmer, weekend National Football League referee, was returning to his real life—as a Physical Education instructor, and assistant football coach at City College.

Klemmer, defensive back coach under Dutch Elston, is extremely versatile. He also teaches golf, tennis, touch football, swimming, and in his spore time is a National Football League official.

KLEMMER first came to this college in 1946 and has put in 22 years since on campus.

Klemmer is very happy at City College as he claims there is a fine relationship between Coach Elston, the other coaches, and himself. He thinks that City College has an outstanding Physical Education Department. He believes this to be due in part to Jack Gaddy, who was instrumental in the hiring of personnel.

One very noticeable thing at the Men's Gym is the complete cooperation that you get from all the coaches, and the way they go out of their way to assist students and faculty members. Klemmer was no exception and was most helpful in explaining his duties and jobs on and off campus.

ON HIS DUTIES as an NFL official during the past five years, Klemmer has "worked" every team in the NFL, and also has officiated in the annual Pro Bowl Game in Los Angeles.

He "works" as a part of a six-man team selected at the start of the season, and they work as a unit throughout the season.

In 1970, the AFL and the NFL will merge and the rules will be the same. He says the only major difference will be the point after touchdown. In the AFL they have the option two-point run or pass, and in the NFL they have the one-point kick after a touchdown.

COACH GROVER KLEMMER

In commenting on the game today, and the old Frankie Albert days, he said that the main difference was the tremendous mobility of the big men of today. The size, speed and new techniques in coaching have made pro football a much tougher game, and more pleasing to the fans.

DEFENSIVE PLAYERS like Lamar Lundy (for whom he has a high regard), Deacon Jones, Merlin Olson, and Roger Brown of the LA Rams have made it necessary for opposing coaches to dream up new ideas to combat the "fearsome foursome." He believes that Kevin Hardy of the 49er's will be a "great one" when he gets the experience needed in the NFL.

As for the City College football team, Klemmer feels that quarterback Tom Mayfield is exceptional, both as a passer and as a field general. He gets fine running help from Willie Lewis, and Joe Bell.

According to Coach Klemmer, his job is a labor of love, as he enjoys working with young people, and that was his primary reason for returning to City College.

Fearsome Duo Invade The Clean Cut Courts

RAY (THE WOLFMAN) Moore adds a dash of color to the clean-cut set of the tennis courts.

"The Wolfman" acquired his fierce pseudonymn from his long fuzzy hippy locks, which really do give him a wolf-like appearance. Moore also acquired his unusual nickname from his glaring, narrow-eyed, wolfish stare-down of his tennis opponents.

Moore's partner in amateur doubles competition is Bob (The Madman) Hewitt. Hewitt was dubbed "The Madman" from his frequent tennis racket tossing displays on the court. A look at these two in doubles competition is enough to shake the cool of most challenging teams.

MOORE AND HEWITT, both of Johannesberg, South Africa, recently combined to play against the United States' Bobby Smith and Bob Lutz, for the U.S. Amateur Doubles title.

"The Wolfman" and "The Madman" have reputations as tough as their names imply, while Smith and Lutz are second and third seeded in US ratings. Moore has previously won the US doubles title twice, while Hewitt is rated as one of the all-time great veterans of the game.

Lutz and Smith had been foiled in four previous attempts to win the doubles title, while Moore and Hewitt had lost only one set in their impressive drive to this year's finals match.

"The Wolfman" and "The Madman" looked and sounded mean, but the Americans played meaner. Lutz and Smith won in three straight sets, 6-4, 6-4, 9-7.

RAMBLINGS

by Dave Albertson

MORAL: It's not how you look, it's how you do it.

THAT'S THE WAY, O. J.: Former City College football phenomen, O. J. Simpson, is already exhibiting his All-American fullback tactics.

Simpson led defending National Champion Southern Cal to a 29-20 victory over Minnesota. Simpson scored all but five of the Trojans 29 points, with four TD's. O. J. recently added three more TD's against Northwestern to run his total to seven in two games.

Simpson's picture and story appeared in last week's Post magazine. Post gives O. J. a good coverage in the story.

City College fan's will have their last chance to see O. J. perform in his last Bay Area performance at Stanford this Saturday.

BRINGING IN THE SHEAVES: Bill Russell, player-coach of the Boston Celtics, is reported to have signed a two-year basketball contract somewhere in the area of $400,000.

That's a lot of bananas just to bounce a ball around.

APOLOGY: Arlee Pittman, All-Conference defensive standout on the Ram Football squad, has been dealt many injustices in the last two seasons.

The San Francisco Examiner, as well as The Guardsman, has been incorrectly spelling Pittman's first name with an "0."

We'll try to spell it correctly from now on Orice.

STRATEGIC MOVE: Cagey Shootin' It columnist and Managing Editor Doug Boston has recently made a very controversial move.

His dubious move came after some pictures of former Ramette of the Week, Foxy Florine Gallegos, were mysteriously stolen by "someone" three weeks ago.

Boston had the Ramette column moved to his editorial page, so he could "legally" swoop down on all the future Ramette shots.

One can only ponder the fate of the future Ramette pictures in Boston's hands.

WHAT'S HAPPENING?: Are major league hitters getting worse or are pitchers getting better?

Carl Yatrzemski won this year's American League batting title with an unbelievably low average of .301. This was the lowest average to ever win a major league batting title.

Denny McLain can add to the argument that pitchers are improving, with the first 30-game win season in 34 years.

Apparently times change in baseball as well as politics. Now a great hitter strives to hit .300, instead of the old mark of .400.

OLD SPORT RETURNS: An exciting sport that was thought to have died out is reported on the rise, according to recent police reports.

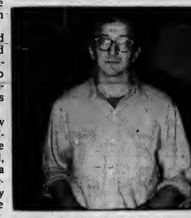
Streaking is said to be occuring in various areas again. For those unfamiliar with this old sport, it consists of walking into a public establishment in your bare necessity, and running out before anyone can catch you.

However, this sport is not recommended for people with weak hearts or happy families.

Spicy Sport Streaks Back Into Limelight

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the City College of San Francisco



VOLUME 67 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1968 NUMBER 5

Student March Brings Back Malcolm Brown To Campus As Drama Production Rolls

By Lynda Sandstrom

After all the controversy concerning the Malcolm Brown incident, Brown returned to his position as theater technician last week and, as a result, the production of Royal Hunt Of The Sun will be performed on schedule.

Brown, who resigned from his position earlier, was called back because City Hall couldn't find anyone who was more competent to fill the position than he was. He will remain on this campus through at least Spring 1969.

MALCOLM BROWN —photo courtesy Barbara Hamann

Brown was well represented and it was mainly through the efforts and hard work of the students who marched on City Hall, that he was able to return to his position as technical instructing assistant in performing arts for the drama department.

The drama department is now being rushed to meet the play deadline. Due to Brown's absence, the production of the play was halted, losing two weeks, and thirty drama students missed six classes of instruction. When production of the play resumed, students had to work double shifts to gain one week's lost work. As of now, the play is only behind schedule one week.

THE PLAY WAS delayed because of the part that Brown plays in the production. Paul Crowley, art and drama instructor, designs miniature models of what he wants to use for stage props and it is Brown's job to figure out what kinds of woods and beams to use and decides whether to use screws or nails for the bracing of these props. Brown makes sure that all props are safe and secure before drama students are allowed to work with props.

IN ADDITION TO securing stage props, Brown supervises work groups. He is in charge of the labor group which consists of hammering and sawing. In addition to this he also instructs them in building structure and electrical and carpentry work.

Crowley and Brown are working twice as fast now on the background settings which will be used both on stage and in the auditorium. They hope to meet the deadline of November 6, the opening night of the play.

Concert Pianist To Appear Tomorrow

Concert Pianist Bernhard Abramowitsch will appear tomorrow at 11 a.m. in The Little Theater in a program including selections from Schubert, Chopin and Beethoven.

Abramowitsch is highly regarded for his interpretation of Beethoven and Schubert. He is also currently regared as an outstanding pianist in the area of more contemporary works.

Abramowitsch has recorded a number of these contemporary themes as well as a few classical works.

One-time instructor of music and theory at the University of California, Abramowitsch presently teaches at Mills College and The College of Holy Names in Oakland.

Madeline Mueller of the Music Department, who has studied with Abramowitsch, said she regarded him as "one of the most interpretive artists" she had known. While technique and perfection are very much a part of his playing, the listener soon forgets these qualities in the presence of his tremendously moving musical expression.

Rice Organizes Class To Appraise Works Of Campus Writers

A Writers' Workshop has been organized this semester by student Tom Rice as one course in the Experimental College program. The workshop is designed to give writers an opportunity to hear criticism of their works by classmates and aid them in publication.

The workshop is open to anyone interested in writing poetry, short stories or novels. As a prerequisite for joining the class, students must be willing to submit their works for discussion and criticism by the entire group.

"The overall purpose of the workshop is to help participants start seeing themselves as writers and develop more art consciousness," Rice stated. He further remarked that though the college offers many worthwhile creative writing classes, the workshop has its own unique possibilities. Instead of the often inhibiting student-instructor relationship Rice believes the workshop will provide an atmosphere of artists working together.

"Response from students has been good. About 15 are already enrolled," Rice said. He remarked that some students have joined because they feel the need for an artist center where they can interchange ideas with other writers. However, some have enrolled who want to dabble in creative writing on an experimental basis without the concern of grades or credit.

Rice mentioned it is not too late to enroll in the Writers' Workshop and that interested writers may contact him through the Experimental College in B-5.

Evening Division Hampered By Lack Of Financial Aid

Convenience and success best describe the college's night school division as this semester's 3000 night owls walk the brightly lighted campus.

Since the majority of people work during the day, the evening courses offered at the college present many advantages for the day student who works part-time and the layman who works full time.

The most obvious advantage is that of time. Classes are held from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. A 3-unit course will meet once a week for three hours while a 4-unit course meets twice a week. The conscientious student, working during the day in able to carry from 12-13½ units at night school if he can prove by his previous class record that he can carry such a load.

Another advantage of the night school is that anyone may apply to the school with or without a transcript. Dean Warren White, explains: "Most students at the night school come with less complex forms and transcripts than the day students. Since there is a great dropout rate at the evening division, this one-course rule is to protect the conscientious student and enables the student who needs a course for his degree to get it."

The majority of the night school courses are college parallel. However, even though the evening division uses all the college facilities (the cafeteria serves a $1.00 plus beverage dinner at 6 p.m.), they are hampered by a budget which is separated from the day school.

Veterans seeking benefits are able to gain them at night school if they fulfill at least seven units a semester. The odd number of units sometimes proves to be a difficult number to fill but the advantages of the benefits impose the necessity of subscribing to the regulation.

Dean White also announced that William Richardson works as a part-time counselor once a week for the evening division. This is a pilot program and if sucessful a full time night counselor will be appointed. Richardson joins the evening division advisors Hal Miller, veteran faculty member and author of the school catalog, and George Stuart, Chairman of the Business Department.

Students interested in the evening division should consult their own counselors early in order to gain priority for registration.—J.B.

Vietnamese Writer Takes A Look At 'The Immoral War'

(Editor's note: The following story was written by Tran Van Dinh, a member of College Press Service, and is based on his own experiences, plus three books — The American Crisis by Senator Vance Hartke, Our Own Worst Enemy by William J. Lederer and We Won't Go by Alice Lund.)

In the last three years, I have been lecturing and traveling in all states of the United States. I visited big cities and small towns. I addressed campus radicals and Rotary Club members. I do not need Dr. Gallup to tell me how the American people feel about the war in Vietnam. I can say that at least 90 per cent of the people I met and talked to hated it.

Depending on why the people oppose this war, the solution I offer (unconditional cessation of the bombing of the territory of the Democratic Republic of Vietnam, withdrawal of the American troops from South Vietnam, acceptance of the prineiple that the affairs of South Vietnam must be left to the Vietnamese to decide, recognition of the National Liberation Front at least as a political reality and to deal with it) is received warmly or coldly.

The people who accept my solution are those (especially the youth) who are convinced that the war is immoral and that therefore it has to end. The people who receive my solution without enthusiasm are those who called themselves 'liberal' and who look at the war as a political and military blunder and who think the U.S. therefore has to extricate itself from the "mess" by negotiations.

Some practical souls think that the war in Vietnam is "bad business" and say that the U.S., being a country of good businessmen, should not continue a bankrupted venture. Some so-called "sophisticated students of human affairs" think that in principle the U.S. "can win the war" but "the people in Washington are so unintelligent that they have brought us to a quagmire from which the U.S. has to get out." A few say the U.S. government has not used its power and has a no-win policy, otherwise it could easily "defeat the little Vietnamese." They do not know that the U.S. has used its power, short of the A and H bombs. These are the frustrated hawks who now support George Wallace for President.

But all the hawks I met agree now that the negotiations in Paris must continue. They even agree that the fact that Johnson retires from office without a fight is evidence that even Johnson himself realizes the war is unpopular. But if Americans are to learn something from this disastrous war, they have to look more deeply in its moral aspects.

American people conclude that the war is immoral several ways, depending on their background, education, class and interests. The usual way which is widely accepted is the impassionate, reasoned way by Senator Hartke: "The extensive loss of civilian life in the South, the ruthlessness toward civilian possessions and ancestral property, the destruction of a way of life and the abysmal treatment of the refugees and the sick all belie the rationalization of the administration and reveal the disgraceful immorality of the American impact on Vietnam." Yet, he continues, "the common American soldier, like his civilian counterpart back home, honestly desires to do good for the South Vietnamese."

But I sense that at this stage, many Americans do not want to argue about the war. They want to retreat into the consolation that despite all blunders, maybe some good could be done and is being done with their money. This is only a natural feeling. Rare are those who can accept the fact that over 200,000 U.S. casualties are just a waste. To these people, William J. Lederer ("Our Own Worst Enemy") will be a source of shock and enlightenment.

This book is the most detailed exposé of the corruption in Saigon and the failures of the U.S. aid program in Vietnam. The reader will be shocked to know about the stealing and grafts. But these revelations do not surprise the Vietnamese, who knew about it all along and who told it to Lederer like it was.

Alice Lynd's "We Won't Go" is necessary reading for all truly patriotic and truly human Americans. To me, true patriotism and deep humanism are the basic essences of any authentic revolution.

"We Won't Go" is a collection of accounts by men "confronted with the dilemma of conscience which military service poses." These men have challenged the laws of their country, bearing the consequences of their decision in order to live with the higher law of their conscience. In addition to these accounts, the book contains all important documents for those who are faced with the problem of the draft. When I finished reading this book, I felt it easier for me, a Vietnamese who opposed the temporary living among Americans, to look straight in their eyes and to warmly shake their hands. Perhaps I should weep with them: a tear drop often cements the brotherhood of man more than speeches and rhetorics.

Without these war resisters, it would be difficult (if not impossible) for Americans to face the Vietnamese if and when peace returns to my tortured land. Without them it is only arrogance to talk now about the reconstruction of Vietnam.

$990,000 Student Union Plan For College May Be Dropped If Proposition 9 Is Passed

By Patrick Chan

Plans for the college's Student Union may have to be dropped if Proposition Nine is passed in the upcoming November election.

According to Dean Harry Buttimer, one section of the proposition states that any bonds sold before November 5 would be void and could not be sold.

As a result, the revenue bonds which are expected to be issued in either 1969 or 1970, will have to be dropped.

The college originally received finance for the Student Union by getting a fund reservation of $550,000 from the United States Department of Housing and Urban Development. Repaying the loan would take over a period of fifty years at an interest rate of 3 per cent per year.

IF THE PROPOSITION were to pass there would still be one way the Student Union could be saved. On the same ballot there is Proposition 1A. If this proposition passed by a greater percentage than Proposition Nine the Student Union would be saved.

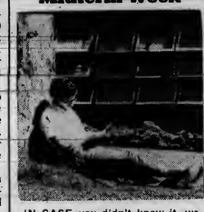
The Union will be broken down into four main areas: a lounge-auditorium, offices, recreational area and an outside terrace.

It is estimated that the cost of the Student Union will be somewhere in the neighborhood of $990,000. The actual construction of the building itself will be $700,000 while the landscaping will cost $100,000. External utilities, supervision and inspection plans, legal fees, and project contingency will cost $115,000 and consultants fees will add up to $75,000.

IN STUDENT COUNCIL action last week it was announced that the college will definitely be offering a Draft Counseling center similiar to the one offered at San Francisco State College. Cost of the center will be from $350 to $400 a month.

It will have three counselors, one full time and two part-time. One will be Freshman Councilman Gary Baton, who started and organized the center.

Student Council also allocated part of the old bookstore to the Chinese students of the college. All other space will be used to form a Tutorial center for students who need aid in their studies.



John Richards, the representative of the Speech 1 class in which Derrick Hill, AS President, and Fred Wilson, Councilman, were involved in, presented statements in behalf of his class.

He stated that Wilson and Hill were not kicked out of the class but that they dropped of their own accord, and that Wilson interrupted the class at the following meeting.

Wilson stated in rebuttal that Lucile Meredith, instructor of the speech class, would not talk to him after class and that he felt she personally disliked him.

In the election for the two vacant sophomore council seats, Jake Carter, representing the black students, and Don Ortez, representing the Latin American students were elected.

Midterm Week

IN CASE you didn't know it, we are now in the middle of the first midterm week; as apparently this student realizes as he studies under a tree near Cloud Hall. —photo by Calvin J. Wong

'Creative Bullshitting' Now Offered Through Experimental College

A course now offered through the Experimental College is called "Creative Bullshitting." According to Lawrenee Lazore, originator of the class, "Creative Bullshitting" is designed to allow classes of 15 to 20 people to converse honestly and intimately on group interests."

"Creative Bullshitting 1 hope will evolve into the type of rap session that most of us enjoy with very intimate friends," said Lazore. He thinks that many restrictive habits of communication are developed in the public schools and hopes to break down some of these inhibitions. Lazore remarked, "I've sat in class after class and watched fittered people who after 12 years of public school education haven't the ability to converse."

No outside lecturers will be included. Instructors may participate but only on an equal level with the students, Lazore pointed out.

Initially Lazore plans discussions of politics, student involvement at the college and sexual taboos. Partiepants will determine future topics.

Remarking on the purpose for the name of the course Lazore said that it was chosen to attract only those interested in frank and open communication. Lazore mentioned that interested students may contact him at the Experimental College.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of City College of San Francisco
MIKE DUGGAN, Editor

Vol. 67, No. 5 WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1968 Page 2

A Question Of Race

THE GUARDSMAN would like to quote a line from the first issue of the Free Critic: "The white racists who dominate the USA Party tried unsuccessfully to delay the newspaper by trying to refuse any money temporarily for its (The Chinese Voice) publication and the Free Critic's." We now say: Is it not true that one who calls another a racist, is one himself?

The Chinese populace of this college is estimated to be around 25 per cent or one-fourth of the school's total. Is it not also true that discrimination against all non-Chinese is being shown when a full page of a "student" newspaper is written in Chinese, and therefore is unreadable for about 75 per cent or three-fourths of City College's students?

Student Apathy Still Around

IN THE RECENT RALLY held at our football stadium to get interest and more student support in the Malcolm Brown incident, only a handful of students showed up (reliable estimates place the crowd at about 200).

Nobody seems to care—200 people out of a daytime enrollment of over 10,000 at City College! We hope more students will become involved in campus activities. Even two years ago when our O. J. Simpson-led City College football team was ranked number one, our stadium, small as it is, was never full.

Today's Rams Horn helps to emphasize student apathy. Whether or not one agrees with our present or past Student Councils, the point is, they were elected only by a small fraction of the student body.

For City College to become a better, closer-knit (student-faculty relations) college, there must be more student involvement.

Contact Lens

Should Eldridge Cleaver Be Allowed To Speak On Campus?

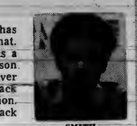
GOODWIN

Jim Goodwin, Sociology Major

Yes, I think it would be an asset. Most politicians have not spent time in San Quentin. It would be interesting as well as informative for all people. We don't need Senator Edward Brooks; he's a white-black Negro. We need a black man to tell us what's happening in the Black community. If students want to hear him, let them. Student demands should be met and students want Cleaver. He's taking out political time just to lecture.

LYON

Judith Lyon, Sociology Major



Yes, definitely. He's a true representative of blacks and he can speak in an honest way. As a speaker, he's dynamic. He knows where it's at. I would listen to anybody speak. Whether I agreed with what he said would not be the question. It's the principle. He would be an asset to education. To have an education is to have all points of view no matter how radical or conservative. He can broaden the scope of the racial problems for us.

LARSON

Bob Larson, Discovery Major

Yes, if students ask for him. His background has no bearing on whether or not he should be allowed to speak. If Cleaver is a human being then he's a part of humanity which is a part of education. People don't know what it's like to be black. I don't. There are kids who think that education is just sitting in a classroom listening to someone talk, but education is really discovering and Cleaver would help them discover.

SMITH

Asa Smith, Pre-Dentistry Major

Yes, because he's a qualified lecturer. All he has to know is his lecture material and he knows that. His approach is a real one. Governor Reagan is a racist because he couldn't offer any valid reason for censoring Cleaver. Rafferty is just using Cleaver as a stepping stone to his own goals. Being a Black Panther, he has to suffer from racist oppression. Cleaver is a black racist and it's time for black racism.

HALL

Richard Hall, Afro-American Studies Major

Yes, because a lecturer's purpose is to create dialogue and who's more qualified to express meanings than Eldridge Cleaver. He has experienced what he talks about. He should speak for as long as is necessary. Everyone knows his message so nothing will be changed except more people will listen. Cleaver's way of speaking is objective in his message. He's telling truths; in this sense he's objective. He's telling it the way it is.

HARDY

Mimi Hardy, General Education Major

Yes, because everyone has a right to lecture; it's part of free speech. He shouldn't be paid though; he should give it voluntarily. It would be a great educational experience to have him speak. It would help in the evaluation of Cleaver. Students are bright enough to discern. I would listen to him speak. There is racial prejudice against him on the UC Board of Regents simply because he is Negro.

—Compiled by Lavine Lee, photos by Kevin Shea

A Blind Challenge

By Randy Flynn

While the other students in his pottery class used their eyes to spot defects on the molded surfaces of their clay figures, Jim Macchi formed and smoothed his project with hands that see. Jim is "blind."

A freshman at City College and a Recreational Leadership major, he is an enthusiastic student who describes his lack of sight as "a challenge, not a handicap." Being born without the sense of sight, he went through public schools in San Francisco, proving himself along the way. His past is commendable indeed.

While attending Marina Junior High, he played first clarinet and went on record as the first sightless student to ever play in the band. At Polytechnic High, he took up the position of third clarinet in the school's band and was also a member of the student council.

When Jim came to City College, he memorized almost every step of the campus, which enabled him to move about with little need of help. There is one situation this semester, that is presenting quite a problem to him. He described it when he said, "I get around the campus with little trouble, but I am having a hard time finding my way around the new Educational Services Building!"

Roy Walker, an instructor in the ceramics department, is Jim's pottery instructor. He explained why pottery is an enjoyable and beneficial class for sightless students. "In pottery," he said, "the student is working on a rotating wheel, molding the clay as it turns. This offers the sightless students a sense of balance and a constant axis on which to build."

Walker has worked with sightless students for many years and has enjoyed his work very much. While completing his graduate work as an art major, Walker was appointed dean of the California State School for the Blind in Berkeley.

MACCHI FORMS clay on potters wheel.—photo by Glenn Graham

The omission of the word "blind" in this article is due to his definition of that term. He explained that blindness refers to a lack of sight but not necessarily lack of comprehension.

In closing Jim was asked what advice he would give his fellow students. After a moment of thought, he said, "I would tell everyone to look forward to their education in college and consider it a challenge."

Exclusive Interview With Hill, AS President, On Future Plans

By Len Ribeiro

Marines are traditionally proud and bent toward boisterousness, yet their record of success is one of considerable size.

Derrick Hill, president of the Associated Students, is a former Marine. He aspires to become a Sociologist after college. Right now he is geared to "action."

"I believe students are in college to learn, but since they are subject to the academic caste system, their learning quotient is less than it could be.

"Teachers have to become aware of the methods of communication. We are not here to fit a prescribed mold or form. Our purpose is to become learned so we can achieve our goals in America. My job at City College is to promote programs that will make this come true for students.

"Black Power and radicals show how absurd things are getting. They show a lack of creative solutions to problems. I don't believe in harsh measures to solve things. A creative approach to these conditions is needed and I intend to pursue it.

"Problems at City College are basically related to deficiencies of one type or another—usually academic inferiority. My goal is to aid as many problem cases as possible," says an involved Derrick Hill.

He listens to all proposals and quickly replies in directives. He is a mover, a doer and he is in a hurry. His office is open to everyone. In a 30 minute span, he reviewed Mission Rebels present action, conferred with Don Herring of BSA, commended and okayed Peace and Freedom proposals and counseled a cabinet member.

There is no grass growing under his feet. He says education is for students and that's what he wants. Ability, organization and foresight are all going his way.

Hill's ambitions are to achieve greater awareness amongst students and create better thougbt flow from student to instructor.

Hill won a boxing championship in the Marines and is currently chief counselor of the Mission Rebels. He plans on going to Cal. State College at Hayward after City.

"At City College conditions need change. Instructors should be more aware of their jobs. If we can come up with some creative proposals, then we can expect assistance, but not before we agree among ourselves.

"I intend to push for more student awareness, to help high school dropouts and the financially deprived."

Guardsman Staff — Fall 1968

EDITOR IN CHIEF ..... MIKE DUGGAN
Managing Editor ..... Doug Boston
Feature Editor ..... Tom Graham
Staff Editor ..... Boku Kodama
News Editor ..... Barbara Hamann
Sports Editor ..... Dave Albertson

Editorial Assistants: Martin J. Arbunich, Lani Brand, Rita Carroll, Lavine Lee, Lynda Sandstrom.

Reporters: Randy Flynn, Leonard Ribeiro.

Cub Reporters: Floyd Banks, Ralph Bayard, Jack Blake, Dan Castro, Joe Cefalu, Patrick Chan, Lynette Conklin, Jeff Deleuse, Phil Di Carlo, Kaye Gramps, Yvonne Lew, Marianne Lim, Dan McCarthy, Florence McCarthy, Ben Marinas, Diana Mahon, Alan Pelzner, James Poon, Elizabeth Ramos, Lester Rasterler, Jack Ruiz, Soonalote Schmidt, Kenneth Surface, Barbara Tyrrell, Val Vallandar, Wong Tse Yui.

Photographers: Merilyn Astaloch, Chief; Bert Flowers, Glenn Graham, Steven La Plant, Jerry Mishler, Oeller Osburg, Jens Protze, Roberto Guillen, Kevin Shea, Ulmer T. McKnight, Gavin Watt, Calvin Wong, Russell Wong, Sam Woo.

Advisor: Mary Blair

SHOOTIN' IT

by Dave Albertson

SUPER-FINE BROADS AND mighty mouthed, left wing blowhards seem to be occupying high levels of current interest on campus as well as other heated parts of the globe.

One can well argue the validity and justification of left wing movements past and present. Numerous history instructors hit us daily with facts about nations such as the United States which was founded by protesters like Thomas Jefferson, Sam Adams etc.

Another could reasonably argue that a number of protest groups have little if any reason to protest except to wreak havoc and corrupt the equilibrium of bona fide establishments.

Perhaps of a more significant topic that is more looked at than sbouted about is (most) men's favorite shapely, long-haired interest stimulators, better known as women.

Radical groups have yet to come up with any impressive stamp out sex movements although rumours have it that our local college protest bulletin appears to be advocating monkeys.

This weeks Ramette of the Week, Carol Andreychik (see page three) manages to combine provocative protests with the natural thing to produce an effective bitch about antagonistic type protest elements.

In an interview, Miss Andreychik stated, "I can't understand why people waste so much effort causing trouble and protesting when they could be enjoying the few basic advantages our country has, instead of trying to destroy them. People should try to keep their mind on the joy of life, like the opposite sex for example."

French writer, Romain Rolland whote, "Never tire of protesting." This column supports Rolands view even if you do have to protest protesters.

KNOW THYSELF: Did you ever have the feeling that you'd like to know yourself better?

Engene Alexander is offering group type meetings in self understanding, extra sensory perception, self analysis and a number of other neuroses eliminaters. "Emphasis is on developing and releasing greater emotional involvement in life."

Interested students can start exploring themselves by meeting Tuesday nights, 7:00 p.m. at number nine Scott Street.

FEARLESS FREETHY AND COMPANY: This column praises Bob Freethy and members of Lucile Meredith's Speech A1 class for making their gripes known to the administration.

PEACE NEWS: Recent Paris talks continue to creep along at a snail's pace of success.

The odds of any favorable peace settlement appear even more dubious as Will Rogers past statement reminds us, "The United States never lost a war or won a conference."

OUTSTANDING INSTRUCTOR: This column will begin with today's issue to mention an instructor worthy of such.

ROBERT STRUCKMAN is this week's outstanding instructor in the eye's of many students who have attended Struckman's philosophy and logic classes.

Students commend Struckman for his unique techniques and interesting teaching methods as well as holding a high point of class interest throughout the semester.

TOPLESS NEWS: Off-Broadway topless dancer and former Playboy Magazine babe, Yvonne D'Angers is getting a little more static from the immigration department on whether or not she can stay in the country.

Yvonne has previously warded off numerous deportation attempts from various frustrated importation do gooders. The battle to deport Yvonne has been receiving highly publicized press attention ever since she tried to introduce our west coast topless act to New York. Now our astronomically endowed figure is married and busy trying to lead a normal existence.

In protest, a half dozen scantly clad Yvonne supporters held a march in front of the Off-Broadway Nightclub recently. Observers at the scene didn't exactly know what the girls were protesting, but didn't much care due to the unintentional fine show put on.

TOILET TIPS: For those of you who are running short, there is numerous tissues of our local college protest bulletin on the newsstand in Science Hall.

Letters to the Editor

Ram's Horn

• The Time Has Come

Editor, The Guardsman:
To All Students:

The time has come for all the silent, serious minded students of City College to open their eyes and see that action is taken.

I recently sat in on one of Student Council's sessions. It sure is good to know that I am being represented by so-called students who I can't agree with on one single issue. It is not an hour of decisive business they gather for, but rather a period where they could sit around and decide who they should throw mud at next.

Two vacancies for Soph Council were to be filled the day I sat through the party. Each candidate was allowed to give his reason for why he felt he should be elected. One gentleman stood up and reported that he felt the need for older students to have representation was warranted.

It is true that all factions are to be represented in student government, but Student Council didn't see fit to appoint an honest representative from this group. The distinguished gentleman also declared that he felt the proper channels of attainment should be employed in the course of action; but sir, honesty and efficiency have no place in this Student Council.

When I asked for time to make my statement I was allowed to go on uninterrupted. However, I was accused, by AS President Derrick Hill, of be-

(Continued on Page 3, Column 1)

Ramette Of The Week

By Dave Albertson

A certain overrated, underwritten protest bulletin is rumored to be making a feeble attempt at writing a competitive "Ramette of the Week" column.

Appropriately enough, our "feeble competitor" prefers to laud monkeys in place of the normal trend. To each their own. However, due to the dedication of upholding a higher standard of ethical reasoning, this columnist feels that the above picture fits the normal tendency of the concerned male majority.

This columnist will continue to exhibit Ramettes such as this week's doll, until some other publication can convince us the apes really are the going thing.

—photo courtesy Dave Albertson

CAROL ANDREYCHIK IS much better than any type of malarkey this columnist could ever hope to write.

Standing a sleek 5-5 with shining platinum locks, Carol has to be one of the best babes this college has ever had the honor of experiencing.

This week's 26-year-old Ramette bas a slight touchy flaw in her super fine makeup. In reply to what she thought of long hair, she snarled, "... if half of those long-haired goons got their hair cut instead of protesting life, we might have half a nation of short-haired screw balls." Carol added, "I don't mind protesters, but there's a difference between protesting and pure agitation."

Carol is a fiery free-talking intellectual who likes to meet and talk with all kinds of good people except "pure agitators." She claims that, "pure agitators are usually so hopped up about shooting their mouths off, that I get dizzy watching their lips move so fast."

THIS WRITER must take credit for discovering Carol. She was loitering around the newsstand next to Cloud Hall reading the campus protest bulletin. Carol was picked to represent Ramette of the Week mainly for her original outspoken wit. She was overheard making a few choice colorful, unprintable cuts like, "... the nerve of these goons wasting good paper to print this pile of chicken scratch trash."

Carol is originally from the east and says that, "This town is so hurting for men that look real. I'm getting out of this land of the weirdos after this semester and find me a nice clean cut husband."

If you're one of those questionable few that prefer apes don't bother to monkey with this week's Ramette, who summed up the interview with some real food for thought. She said that, "I don't have any room for weirdos who waste their time flapping their traps, when they could be doing something heipful for the establishment."

Bravo, to this constructive, protesting Ramette. One leaves Carol knowing that she's twice as terrific as she looks if that's possible—no matter what any ape says.

Ram's Horn

(Continued from Page 2)

ing a racist—a mere tool employed by Mr. Hill when a white person does not agree with his outlandish tactics. As Mr. Hill and Councilman Fred Wilson rebuttled my testimony, I was assured I would bave the floor at their conclusion, to point out the lies and falsities they were versing.

However, as Mr. Hill got his last word in, the Council got up and walked out. I was representing the views of a majority concerned in the case which Mr. Hill and Mr. Wilson claimed they were infringed upon. But this Council does not care what the real students want or think, they just are having fun flinging mud and raising hell.

Are we going to sit back and let this tyranny represent a small faction? Derrick Hill has called members of USA Party-white facist pigs. But if there are any pigs on campus they occupy the seats of Student Council.

I encourage all students to no longer remain incognito and to find a qualified person and elect him president in the December elections. And also give him a Student Council composed of people who are interested in City College as an institution of higher education—not a tool for slanderous accusations against well qualified administrators and hard working students.

Find a sincere candidate and put him in office.

John Richards

• Let's Hear Eldridge

Editor, The Guardsman:

The recent article concerning the administration policy which prohibits convicted felons (e.g. Eldridge Cleaver) from speaking on campus was informative to say the least. It is evident that the administration does not agree that Eldridge Cleaver, as well as other ex-convicts, have "paid their debt to society" to use a trite cliche. Among other things, this attitude speaks of the utter failure of American Penology.

However, two points are immediately clear. It is not Eldridge Cleaver's past felony conviction that is bothering reactionary administrators but rather it is the area of political thought which Cleaver represents that sparks their opposition to his speaking on campus. It is further evident that the City College administration does not care about student interests and is dedicated to the preservation of bigotry, intolerance and ignorance.

Even if the administration is blind to the ills of society and the alienation throughout the nation and the world, the students have their eyes open and are trying to establish viable solutions. We do not need hinderance and obstacles from reactionary middle aged group whose policies are recognized failures. Let's hear what brother Eldridge has to say.

Howard D. Leighty

Disillusioned Intellectuals Topic Of O'Faolin's Lecture

After The Angry Young Men was the topic of author Sean O'Faolin's lecture in The Little Theater Tuesday, October 8.

In covering post World War II England with its restrictive austerity program, O'Faolin pointed out the rising disillusionment of English intellectuals. In literature, Colin, Wilson and John Osborne were singled out as a few of the disillusioned.

O'Faolin sighted an example, "In a letter to the British Prime Minister, Osborne had declared, 'In my heart there is a knife for you and your cohorts. Tell them England is dead. Dead and rotting, damn you, tell them.'"

"With this kind of feeling among most of the English authors they began to push for the demise of the ruling establishment.

"Contrary to what Hollywood would have you believe, said the author, when an empire collapses, it makes about as much noise as the tinkle of a spoon."

On protest, he said: "Many people object to protesters who do not pose solutions to the problems they are protesting against. By the very nature of the act it is not necessary to provide solutions only to show the problem, to show a pig sty and make it smelly, as it were."

As O'Faolin said of artists and change quoting D. H. Lawerence, "one's passion is always searching for some form that will express or hold it better, letting none of it leak away." And one is always searching for different forms since one's passion would have the same form from birth to death ... since not to change is to die though still apparently alive." —L.R.

ACT Stage Plays Soon To Expand With Matinees

The American Conservatory Theater (ACT) will present seven weeks of special matinees at the Geary Theater, beginning next week.

Offered throughout Northern California, the two outstanding plays to be presented are Shakespeare's Hamlet and Arthur Miller's The Crucible. The special presentation is titled Dramatic Literature on Stage and was formulated by ACT representatives and educational leaders from 13 Northern California counties. Students participating in the program will attend Monday thru Friday two o'clock matinee performances at the Geary Theater with the lowered admission price of two dollars. Both plays will be presented in rotation.

MARGARET OPSATA, ACT's Director of Student Development, stated that there were several objectives in mind for the program. First, she said, "No instructor in the world can recreate an entire production and the excitement of professional theater. Shakespeare, after all, didn't write Hamlet to puzzle literary experts. He wrote it to be performed."

One important aspect of the program is that students will be invited to stay in the theater after each performance to discuss the play and production with members of ACT casts.

Another value Miss Opsata sees in the program is that it intergrates disciplines usually cut off in school curriculum planning. "The Crucible," she said, "is a historically accurate study of Salem at the witch trials. Since it was written during the time of Senator Joseph McCarthy and his investigation of subversion in America, The Crucible can be viewed as a political document pertaining not only to Salem witch hunts but to the more refined witch hunts of the recent past and the presents."

BOTH HAMLET and The Crucible were chosen to be performed in the program because of their mass appeal to students and instructors. "We've chosen two plays," said Miss Opsata, "frequently studied in the English curriculum."

In addition to the seven week matinee performances, ACT will also offer Friday and Saturday beginning 8:30 evening performances of both plays. Students may also attend weekend performances on ACT's Student Rush Tickets for $3 per ticket.

Students interested in the program should consult with their English instructors or contact ACT at 450 Geary Street. Tickets are available now.

DISPATCH

by Boku Kodama

A FAIRY TALE...

On the beautiful island of Checkaboard Square, there once lived three monkeys, who resided in a quaint little shack standing on the edge of the jungle, along the yearly white beach.

It was about 8:00 a.m. when the monkeys woke up to a sunny morning and felt a warm breeze flow through the open windows.

The first to get out of bed was See, who went in search of breakfast.

Still lying in bed was Hear who exclaimed, "What a beautiful day!"

"Fantastic and not a cloud in sight", replied Speak who was gazing at the seagulls flying just above the ocean waves.

Ten minutes later, See returned with a handful of bananas taken from a nearby banana tree. "Bananas for banana porridge," said See.

A fire was set as Hear began to make porridge. In no time, the food was ready to be eaten.

"Wow, mine's too hot", complained Hear.

"Mine's too cold", added Speak.

SEE THEN SUGGESTED, "Hey, why don't we swing around for a while, then by the time we get back, the porridge should be just right."

"Great Idea!", said the other two, and away they went.

Climbing first upon a coconut tree, See, Hear and Speak were able to see the silent green lagoon where they frequently went swimming. Further ahead was the fresh water stream with its miniature waterfall. To the right were bread fruits, pineapples, bananas and more coconuts. "This island is a paradise", the monkeys would say to each other, and how true it was.

Meanwhile, on the other side of the island, where the monkeys lived, a luxurious yacht had just anchored off shore and a party of men, led by J. B. Goldilocks was headed for the beach.

Upon reacbing the beach, Goldilocks saw the shack and immediately smelled the banana porridge. Inside the shack, he spotted the food on the table and began tasting the porridge, "Delicious", he thought to bimself.

"Men", Goldilocks announced, "we're going to catch whoever lives here and ask questions later. It's the only civilized way."

AFTER SWINGING around the entire island, See, Hear and Speak came back to their shack, a little tired and very hungry. As they walked closer to the table, See said, "Somebody's been eating my porridge."

Hear stated, "You're right and somebody's been eating my porridge." "Somebody's also been eating my porridge," declared Speak, "and he's eatened it all up."

Suddenly the roof came off and the walls collapsed. "Let her go," someone commanded, and then a cage came screaming down upon the trio of monkeys. They were so frightened and confused that they couldn't do anything.

That night, aboard the luxurious yacht, See, Hear and Speak were locked in a smelly animal cellar with no windows or sleeping quarters.

"I guess this is what they call being surprssed," stated See.

In the stateroom however, Goldilocks was dining, having best of food with the best of wine; and as he ate, Goldilocks thought of the possibilities of making Checkaboard Square an all-year resort. He also decided to introduce banana porridge to the civilized people and then have it mass-produced and perhaps make millions in profit.

TWO YEARS LATER, See, Hear and Speak were sitting on top of a man-made rock in the monkey cage with no where to go and their lives at the mercy of the zoo keepers.

Analyzing their own experience, the monkeys realized that greed was the most logical answer as to why the humans had caged them.

Greed was something very new to See, Hear and Speak, and they had only come to know of it when they entered civilization of man. "This is all wrong", said the monkeys, and with that, they closed their eyes, covered their ears and shut their mouths.

Back on Checksaboard Square, Goldilocks had built a beautiful resort which proved to be very popular. His banana porridge was selling like hotcakes. As the money kept pouring in, Goldilocks would tell friends how glad he was to be alive. Amen.

Labelled And Recorded

Super Session Concept Has Selling Power

by Martin J. Arbunich

A GREAT NEW trend which is only in its seedling stage at the moment, but is due to blossom with some more beautiful results, is the "super session" recording idea.

Mike Bloomfield, Al Kooper, Steve Stills and a few other musicians were the first to put the idea over with remarkable success, and they showed the music industry that experienced musicians can get together for a single recording session and workout something worthwhile without being an established band.

Their Super Session album, which is well seated in Billboard's top-100 in sales and is rising, will soon be followed up by a second album by Kooper-Bloomfield and company, and their "Season of the Witch" is selling well as a single.

People are becoming more aware of the musicianship which goes into music these days, and recordings like the Super Session album, where only the best musicians of the field make the team, is an excellent example of where the sales are headed. The trend isn't to buy a album for a hit record anymore, but for its grade of instrumental and vocal quality.

Record buyers, particularly the college audience, are tending to buy recordings for what goes into them, and the whole commercial business of single recordings and weak bands with over-popularized hits is losing its grasp as the influence and basis for sales.

According to the latest issue of Rolling Stone, a batch of super session type LP's are in the works, including one featuring Steve Stills (Springfield) accompained by David Crosby (ex-Byrd), Graham Nash (Hollies) and—maybe—Eric Clapton (Cream).

Whatever the results, the combinations should be interesting and the musicianship supreme. Not only will this ingenious concept lend itself to some masterful recordings put together by the finest musicians from the large crop of bands around, but it will also allow loner instrumentalists the opportunity to workout with other people of the same caliber. Should be cool.

• • •

Before showtime, we feared that Jimi Hendrix's series of performances at Winterland last weekend would be a repeat of his concerts here last winter—all his big hits, otherwise a thin, repetitious repertoire performed with apathetic musicianship.

Things did work out nicely, however, and we never heard Hendrix sound better than last Friday night. He played his guitar with some great feeling and timely control, and his show has gone much farther than just the LP hits. The three musicians have given themselves more room for improvisation, and many of their numbers carried on to lengths of 15 minutes without getting tedious.

Jack Cassady, bass player for the Airplane, jammed with the Experience Thursday, and Herbie Rich (organ) and Virgil Gonzalves (flute) did the same Friday with some interesting results.

Hendrix's rendition of "Red House" was so beautiful that it caused us to re-evaluate his ability as a blues guiltarist.

• • •

This weekend the Iron Butterfly, the Sir Douglas Quintet & 2, and Seatrain plays Fillmore West. Charlie Musslewhite, the Velvet Underground, and the Initial Shock are at the Avalon.

JIMI HENDRIX ... revitalized show

Vikings Trample Gridders, 42-22

Numerous Costly Penalties, Interceptions Plague Rams

By Phil DiCarlo

Diablo Valley struck for 22 points in the third quarter to hand City College its second straight loss, 42-22, last Friday afternoon at the Ram's home field. The field might have been damp, but the Rams were all wet.

"We lost our poise," said Ram Head Coach (Dutch) Elston, summing up the debacle. "That's about it. We looked just like we did last week."

THE GAME started on an ominous note as Game Captain Jon Dyson fumbled on the first play from scrimmage. The Vikings recovered at the Ram 22 yard line and scored six plays later. Only two minutes 15 seconds had then elapsed on the scoreboard clock.

Dyson (12 carries for 83 yards), Doyle Miller (11-60), Willie Lewis (6-21), Tom Mayfield (12 completions in 24 attempts) and Mark Hensley led a Ram counter-attack. Two scoring jaunts by Miller, a Mayfield to Lewis touchdown pass plus Hensley's 38-yard field goal, put 22 counters on the board. Even though Viking halfback Carey Laine scored twice, the Rams carried a 22-20 lead into the locker room at halftime. They should have stayed in there.

IT WAS ALL Diablo Valley in the second half. Jess Maez, Jack LaDuke and Larry Merlini scored Viking touchdowns within ten and one half minutes of each other to pull away in the third quarter. Even though the Rams were only outgained by three yards total offense all day (352-355), they couldn't penetrate the Vike 34 yard line, much less score again, in the second half. Before the game, Viking Coach Sam DeVito was worried about his defensive unit. Earlier in the week Pete Lazarini, All-Conference Defensive End, broke his ankle and will be lost for the season. Losing their leader didn't seem to bother them.

Again it was the fumbles (5), the interceptions (2), the penalties (14 for 121 yards), and the overall weakness of the defense as a unit that wrecked the Rams. Injuries and inexperience tell the story. Starters Jim Farnham, Ed Johnson and Carlton (Big Black) Thomas are all injured and can't play. Craig Martin, the Ram's best defensive back, was carried from the field in the first quarter. Martin was held overnight at St. Mary's hospital with a slight concussion.

THE CONTINUED excellence of linebacker Arice Pittman is the outstanding feature of the defense. Pittman and first year man Gerry Dyson, a very pleasant surprise, are the best pair of linebackers in the league.

Line Coach Alex (Pops) Schwarz walked around the locker room after the game stunned, a glaze in his eyes. When I could get him to snap out of his trance and talk, he haltingly answered my questions, thinking deeply as he spoke. "Terrible, absolutely terrible." "Pops" had suffered a personal loss. "Terrible. The (defensive) line wasn't aggressive enough. We suffered another second half let down. Terrible." End Jim Tyree stopped on his way home, "See ya Monday."

Schwarz looked up defiantly, "I'll be here."

Gridders Hopeful Of Victory Over Foothill Friday

City College of San Francisco will continue conference play when it meets Foothill at Foothill this Friday.

The Rams will be looking for their first conference win. In their opening conference game, they were defeated by their rival junior college from San Jose. The final score was deceiving; San Jose came out ahead in points 39-22, but City College of San Francisco came out ahead in penalty yardage and called-back touchdowns. It could have been caused by the fact that the Rams were too keyed-up for revenge and couldn't manipulate on the turf properly.

The San Jose game saw regular standout veteran end Ralph Bayard catch two touchdown passes. One pass was called back because of a penalty and that saw Monte Consane push a San Jose lineman out of the play for the benefit of Ram offensive runners.

FOOTHILL would like to start conference play with a victory over the Rams. With an opening game loss against conference favorites Diablo Valley 35-13, Foothill should be quite ready. An unusually small junior college football squad comprising of only 34 men, Foothill turns out a considerable amount of talent. They have a defensive standout in Jack Hall (220). Hall, mainly a defensive linebacker, is filling up a spot in offensive guard left by injured Bob Enlow. Also returning from last year's All-Conference defense team is Dwayfie Williams, who plays defensive tackle. A returnee from last year's All-Conference offense team is Fred Morse (190) who occupies the position of halfback. Incidently, Rams Wayne McConico was the halfback that beat out Morse for All-Conference first team last year.

A victory over Foothill could bring the Rams a step closer to a conference championship. Diablo Valley also lost their first conference game to Laney. Laney was eliminated for illegal practice, this could give the Rams the necessary drive for a championship season.—A.P.

Vol. 67, No. 5 WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1968 Page 4

Gr-r-r-r

ED JOHNSON, Ram defensive back. —photo courtesy Bert Flowers

Ram Soccer Team Potential Champs In Upcoming Season

By Floyd Banks

Roy Diederichsen, City College of San Francisco soccer coach, is piloting a possible championship team this year.

Soccer is a rough, fast moving game, which is often more thrilling than football.

Diederichsen feels that the defense of the team determines it's strength. He feels that if the opposition can't score, they can't win.

GOALIE VINCE ATTARD is an inexperienced goalkeeper, who is doing a tremendous job in stopping scoring attempts.

The center half is the key to a great team, according to Diederichsen. Clive Butler, an All-City player from Washington High, is doing an exceptionally fine job at this position. Even though Butler is not in top physical shape at the present, and he performs exceptionally well at his post. The center half must set up the conditions beneficial for scoring.

When the ball is in a perferable situation, it's probably being handled by Otey Cannon or Al Chu, two All-American players. Cannon plays inside left and Chu plays inside right, and they get most of the offensive action. They fit into Diederichsen's plan of attack, which is the tightest defense possible with an explosive offense. Cannon and Chu are capable of taking the long shots at the goal.

UP UNTIL last year, the Rams had a record of 100 wins; one tie and no losses. They have never lost a conference championship in 19 years. The Rams still haven't lost one. However, they tied for the Championship last year with Merritt and San Mateo, who administered the only two defeats to the team in 19 years.

The team lost last week to USF by a score of 3-0. This is no bad reflection on the team, however, because USF were NCAA Champs in 1966, and National Champs in 1967.

Diederichson feels that the reason for the Ram's success in soccer is because the school is in a cosmopolitan district. Many of the Ram's players are from foreign families or are foreign themselves.

IN THE STARTING lineup will be goalie Attard, left fullback Braulio Triquiros, center fullback Al Soaros, right fullback Rigo Balanos, right half Bogatsky, center half Butler, left half Tom Silva, left wing Jose Tovar, inside left Cannon, inside right Chu and right wing Jerry Tighe.

These men, who compose the favorite team, are in for plenty of grueling action this year, especially when they meet San Mateo, the only team in the league capable of upsetting the Rams. The Ram Booters will face San Mateo this Friday at 3:15 p.m.

USF Dons Blank Ram Booters As Fists Fly

By Patrick Chan

In a game that was twice marred by fights, the University of San Francisco Dons shut out the Ram soccer team 3-0 last week.

The "incidents" occurred with less than five minutes left to go in the game. In both instances no punches were actually landed.

The first occurred when Al Chu tripped an unidentified Don. As a result, several of the USF players on the field wound up chasing Chu as he ran and ducked their swings.

THE SECOND occurred when Otey Cannon squared off with another unidenified Don. The USF player was tossed out of the game.

City College never really mounted any semblances of an attack in the first half as the Dons completely dominated this phase of the game. Only some great defensive work from Brolio Triqueros, Clive Bulter, Jose Tovar and Pete Bozotsky prevented the score from going higher than 1-0.

USF got its first goal by sucking Ram goalie Vince Attard to one side of the net and then passing the ball to another teammate who then kicked it in for an easy goal.

DURING THE FIRST half the Dons used a criss-crossing technique on offense, which had players crossing in each others way while moving upfield. In addition to confusing the Rams, it also tired them out.

At halftime Coach Roy Diederichsen instructed his players not to follow the Dons as they criss-cossed, but to switch the men they were guarding as in basketball.

During the second half, Harry Best and Jerry Tighe along with Bulter, Bozotsky, Tovar and Triqueros played some tough defense, but what the Rams really needed was some offense.

In the third quarter City College mounted their only serious threat of the day when Otey Cannon "stored" two goals.

THE FIRST OCCURED when Cannon had scored a goal. It was taken away when the referee ruled Cannon had been fouled while scoring. As a result he only received a penalty kick which failed.

Shortly afterwards, Cannon kicked the ball directly in the goalie's hands. An arguement followed that the motion of the ball (while in the goalie's bands) had carried it into the goal. Naturally, the referee won the argument.

The Dons scored twice using the same technique they bad used in the first half. They moved Attard to one side of the goal and then passed to another teammate who'd kicked it in.

IN THE LATTER part of the game, USF began to concentrate on Otey Cannon. Twice Cannon was dragged down to prevent him from scoring.

Cannon was the Rams' sole offensive threat of the game as no one else came to scoring as many times as he did. On the other hand USF always had players that were open for passes.

The Dons' victory marked their first win over City College in two years. They had been defeated and tied by the Rams in previous games.

IT WAS almost like a high school reunion in last week's game against the Dons, since many of the players on both teams went to George Washington High School. From the Rams are two time All-City Clive Bulter, Paul and Peter Bozotsky, Ken Berzin, Al Soares and Watler Subonos.

While at Washington they won two AAA championships in three years and in addition went undefeated in 1967.

In previous games the Rams have gone undefeated beating the College of Marin, San Francisco State, West Valley and Pacific.

Against local high school competition the booters crushed both Washington and Balboa High.

This Friday the Rams will take on San Mateo at Balboa stadium at 3:15.

Michigan, who averaged over 60 points a game in 1902, capped their undefeated, untied, unscored upon season with a 49-0 Rose Bowl win over Stanford.

'Real' Runners Combine Efforts To Score Victory

When a cross-country team has real runners, real runners, what's the end result? The answer is simple. You have a winning team.

George Haza, Bob Darling, Klaus Hoffman, Dave Power and Vic Cary combined their talents to achieve that end result by winning the Golden Gate Team race Saturday, October 5.

Veteran Haza, bettered the old mark of 22:15 set by Seaver of Chabot, with a new mark of 20:45. Seven seconds behind Haza was Mike Dailey of San Mateo. Dailey was a top runner for San Mateo last year. San Mateo was expected to be City College's toughest competition, but Saturday wasn't their day. Haza saw to that.

Placing fourth was Darling, with Hoffman taking a fifth. Power took an eleventh and Cary took a number twenty-nine to give that extra boost.

Ram Harriers will participate in the Sacramento State Invitational Saturday, October 12 at Sacramento.

Chi Rho Delta Dance Set For Friday Night

Chi Rho Delta fraternity will sponsor a dance this Friday night from 9 to 12 p.m. in Smith Hall.

Music will be provided by personal friends of the fraternity and decorations and arrangements of the hall will be covered by the brothers themselves. Refreshments will be provided by the Pepsi-Cola Company. Faculty and sponsors will be served with coffee.

Admission at the door will be $1.25 along with a Student Associated card and $1.50 without, per person. Attire will be dressy sport.

Diz, Medwick Add Thrills And Spills

RAMBLINGS

Detroit, St. Louis, 34 Years Later

by Doug Boston

A LONG TIME AGO, 34 years to be exact, the St. Louis Cardinals and the Detroit Tigers battled each other in the World Series. That series gave sports history some of its strangest thrills.

That was the era of the "Gashouse Gang", an expression used to deseribe the Cardinals and their brand of baseball. Paul and Dizzy Dean, Joe Medwick, Pepper Martin and Leo Durocher helped form one of the best teams in the history of the game.

IN THE 1934 series, the Cards and Tigers split the first six games. The final contest was scheduled for Detroit, and Dizzy Dean was on the mound for the Redbirds. There was some question as to whether or not Dean was in condition to pitch nine innings.

In the fourth game, in route from first to second on a ground ball, Dean caught the double play relay throw square in the forehead, knocking him unconscious.

Anyway, the final game turned into a rout, the Cardinals getting three quick runs and picking up additional insurance almost at will.

By the time the sixth inning ended, the Redbirds had built up a nine to nothing lead. During that inning, Joe Medwick slid into third base and a fight broke out between him and Detroit's third baseman Marv Owen. The umpires restored order, but when Medwick went to his position next inning in left field, all hell broke loose.

HE BECAME a target for the irate Tiger fans who thought Medwick tired to spike Owen. The fans began sprinkling Medwick and left field with oranges, tomatoes and a various assortment of fruits and vegetables.

Finally, in order to halt the pending riot, the umpires ordered Medwick out of the game. With the crowd threatening to attack any moment, police and body guards escorted a burned up Medwick from the arena.

Medwick was of course denied his last turn at bat, which if he had managed a base knock, would have given him the World Series record for the most basehits. Enough for the 1934 struggle.

THIS YEARS SERIES pretended to be unexciting momentarily. St. Louis, with Bullet Bob Gibson throwing seeds, and swift Lou Brock stealing everything but Bill Freehan's shorts, jumped to a three games to one lead.

But the Tigers came back, just like they had some forty times during the season. Al Kaline, playing in his first series after 16 years with Detroit, got the big hit in the fifth game, keeping the Tigers alive.

Two-time loser Denny McLain beat the Cards in the sixth game, aided by Jim Northrup slam.

Then, unlike 1934, Detroit won the seventh game behind Mickey Lolich's third victory, and the Tigers were undeniable Champions of the World.

Conlan Turns On Cable Television In Recent Official Ceremonies

By Jack Ruiz

City College became the first school in the San Francisco Unified School District to have Cable TV last Tuesday.

In an historic step toward the betterment of education, Louis G. Conlan, president of the college, James Keller of Television Signal Corporation, and Henry Leff, TV department head participated in the official acceptance ceremonies in the television control room, A-142.

Conlan said, "This is a very important development. We hope to make City College the focal point for TV in our unified school district, and make a contribution to the entire community in that way. We are deeply grateful to Keller for having arranged to have this service at the college."

When Keller was asked to comment on the part Cable TV would play in education, he said, "Cable TV or closed circuit TV, is an alternative that has not been explored before. This is a part of the overall picture of instructional TV, putting in this pilot project at the college."

Installation of cable closed circuit TV at City College was completed in two days at a cost between $3500-$5000. All costs were paid by TV Signal Corporation.

Ron Custer, Television Chief Engineer, his student lab assistants (Bill Hayward, Steve Thomas, and Rich Pascorolli) with the help of three technicians from TV Signal Corporation, and two underground construction workers from San Leandro installed the system.

In brief, a cable was run from the cable TV line at Judson and Gennessee to the Horticulture Building, where it was spliced and run underground 400 feet to the A-142 television control room and connected. Accordng to Custer, snaking the cable underground from the Horticulture Building to the TV control room, "was the most difficult part of the installation."

What will Cable TV do? Before installation, the TV facility incorporated closed circuit Channels 11 and 13. Over Master Antenna Television, stations 2, 4, 5, 7 and 9 were received. With Cable TV the college will now add stations 3, 6, 8, 10, 11, 12 and 13.

Classroom receivers will not be capable of receiving Cable TV, but if a specific program on Cable TV were desired for a special classroom showing, it could be done by remodulating to one of the closed circuit channels 11 or 13.

LOUIS CONLAN, president of the college and James Keller (right) of Television Signal Corp. observe newly installed cable closed circuit TV. —Guardsman photo by Jens Protze

President Conlan Pushes For Passage Of Proposition 'I' In Upcoming November Ballot

By Raymond Gin

A total college budget cutback, including reductions in present programs and services are inevitable if the Board of Education's highly touted Proposition I is not passed on the November 5 ballot, according to President Louis G. Conlan.

Proposition I provides for the increasing of the present school tax-limit of $2.25 for each $100 assessed valuation to $3.53. The demands made upon the public schools in San Francisco are such that the present school tax-rate for their support has reached maximum limit permitted by law although many urgent needs have not been met.

Programs such as the Black Curriculum, Chinese Studies Program, Reading Laboratories, Bilingual Instruction, and the three year program that employed a sufficient number of teachers to reduce class size will not receive proper allotments for their development or even maintenance. Without this passage, new programs and further development of existing programs will be impossible.

PROPOSITION I does not extract a tax-rate but provides for a limit on taxes which the schools cannot exceed. The present tax-limit has been utilized to its maximum. Also, the school tax is the only political subdivision in the city that still goes to the electorate for their approval.

The plaguing problems of inflation and the rapid changes in the city's populace during the past ten years have seen the influx of minority groups who have increased school responsibilities. Immigration from the Orient, inflow of Negro families from the South, growth of the native Spanish, Japanese, and Filipino population, and the migration of the middle-class families to the suburbs have increased the enrollment of students belonging to minority groups. The cost of additional educational programs for these groups are heavy. These are necessary programs because "everyone deserves the best education we can give them" emphasized Conlan.

THE PROPOSED 98 cents increase is needed to maintain the present approved level of education and 10 cents needed to permit the school district to initiate essential new programs.

There is no reason to expect additional financial aid from Federal or State sources since on the State level, the Legislature has adjourned without passing advocated bills for educational aid, and on the Federal level, funds for education will be reduced to meet the budget limits set by Congress.

If passed, the revenue will be utilized to reduce class size for bilingual instruction, for increasing instruction for the communication programs that include reading, writing and arithmetic, to improve occupational as well as academic educational programs, to support services and specialists in the schools such as counselors, psychologists, and tutors, and to provide for the proper maintenance of the school and equipment.

IF THE ELECTORATE denies the passage of Proposition I, the schools will have to nullify the three year program that employs teachers to reduce class size, limit purchases of necessary school supplies and equipment, abandon new school-library services, limit the scope of the summer-session programs, terminate the development of occupational training programs, and eliminate new preeedures and techniques for educational progress. The level of education might retrogress to the 1967 level.

Because of the importance of the increase in revenue to the college, Conlan hopes the students will campaign in the school efforts in passing Proposition I.

Composer Read To Use Tapes, Slides In Coming Lecture

By James Pope

Composer Gardner Read will lecture on The Dilemma Of Notation tomorrow at 11 a.m. in the Little Theater.

In his presentation, Dr. Read will deal with recent innovations and completely new forms in musical notation, including an experimental system of his own development, known as "graphics." In each of these new forms, emphasis is placed upon the coordinating of the eye and the ear with the notation, rather than on the translation from one to the other.

DR. READ will show this relationship in actual notation through the use of slides and tapes during the lecture.

While not at all new to the field of musical notation, Dr. Read is still very much involved in research in this area. He is currently compiling the results of some of this study in a book on the problems and shortcomings in the current musical notation forms. He is also attempting to show in this work possible means for expanding or re-molding the present forms.

While Dr. Read is not well known in this area, outside of those who are aware of his efforts in composition and theory, his background in music is long and impressive.

Evanston, Illinois, Dr. Read's home town, was the background for his early musical studies. More formal study came at the Northwestern University School of Music, where he studied piano and organ and first concentrated on composition.

LATER DR. READ studied with such notables at Vladimir Bakaleinkoff in this country, Jan Sibelius in Finland and Ildebrando Pizzetti of Italy.

During his career, Dr. Read has been honored by a number of awards and accolades, including a New York Philharmonic award for his First Symphony, and two Juilliard School of Music publication awards.

Dr. Read's outstanding compositions have earned him the recognition of the Cromwell Traveling Fellowship, as well as commissions from the Cleveland, Indianapolis and Louisville Orchestras. His Second Symphony took first honors in the Paderewski Fund Competition.

IN THE MIDST of such a range of activities, Dr. Read maintains a position as composer-in-residence and professor of composition at Boston University. He is also currently editor and contributor for the Birchard Boston University Contemporary Music Series.

In addition, Dr. Read makes frequent leuture tours throughout the United States and occasional visits to foreign countries. One such recent tour took him to Mexico, where he leetured on composition under the sponsorship of the International Educational Exchange Service.

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 67 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 23, 1968 NUMBER 6

Assemblywoman Lectures Here On Political Issues

Assemblywoman March Fong, from the 15th assembly district in Oakland, visited City College recently and gave a lecture on Politics in the Little Theater during college hour.

Miss Fong, gave her views on the political scene of today. She deplored the lack of communication between the public and their duly elected representatives. "Legislation is a slow process and cannot be hurried and the miles of red tape are very frustrating to the voting public. Social action is not social change," she reminded her audience.

MARCH FONG —Guardsman photo by Lyan Mills

Miss Rong said that public sentiment is the most important thing in politics today. "Voters are swayed by it and no issue can lose or fail in both the Senate and the Assembly if the public is behind it."

She believes that the public should work and take a greater part in the elections of today by actively working in a candidate's headquarters, participating in rallys, meetings, and strategy planning. "If they did, they would have a keener insight of the world of politics," she added.

On the question of voting for 18 year-olds, she said, "Most of the voters of the State of California do not want to give 18 year-olds the right to vote."

Asked how it felt to be one of just three women legislators, she answered "the men were quite suspicious at first, but they now treat me quite well."

Assemblywoman Fong has the second highest record for bills passed in the assembly.

Film Series Screens War Of The Buttons Here Tomorrow Night

The War of the Buttons, a film directed by Yves Robert and a product of the 1963 French cinema, will be shown toworrow night at 8 p.m. in the College Theater as the season's Film series continues.

The film, with anti-war overtones, argues that children imitate the ways of their elders and will instill in their offspring the same motives—thus, a vicious cycle.

This French comedy was based on a popular early 20th century novel by Louis Pergaud, which involved two rival gangs of schoolboys who go to war as a result of a contest over selling charity stamps. The two armies fight with fists, sticks and stones, statological name-calling and what they consider the ultimate defeat, the cutting off of their captives buttons.

The military machines become more inventive as the war intensifies. To erase the shame of losing one's buttons, the leader of one of the armies sends his fighters into battle nude. One boy mounts a farm horse and scatters the debris over the enemy. In vengeance a boy from the other side borrow's his father's tractor and runs over a cabin built by the opponents.

Councilman Proposes New Rule For AS Seats

Derrick Hill rebuts COO petition assertions that Student Council favored the half unit requirement for Student Council membership.

"It is a damn lie," said Hill, "and as far as I'm concerned this statement shows to me and the students the vindictiveness on the part of COO for not finding out the facts."

The proposal was not made by the Council; it was instead proposed by a single council member who felt students who have completed a half unit should be eligible to run for a council seat. It was, however, defeated in the council meeting held Monday.

A six unit minimum for council members was proposed at the meeting by Fred Wilson, a council member. Hill feels that 12 units is entirely too many units for an active member of the council to carry.

On the other hand, COO favors the 12 unit requirement.

Paul Slate Resigns, Quan Elected As Head Of Finance

Derrick Quan has been elected as the new head of the Finance Committee by the Student Council following the resignation of former chairman Paul Slate, who had to take a leave of absence from the college.

At the semester's beginning Quan was AS President Derrick Hill's original choice for the position of Finance chairman but a move by the Coalition party (which dominates the Student Council) replaced Quan with Paul Slate.

After Quan was elected at last week's meeting of the council there was some doubt as to whether he would return to this position after being rejected at the beginning of the semester.

IN AN INTERVIEW granted on the day of his election Quan slashed back bitterly at the Coalition party. "I am taking this position only because I want to help the Student Body. They (the Coalition party) have no fiscal responsibility. They don't know how to make money, they just know how to spend it.

"They accuse others of playing politics but they are doing the exact things they accuse others of doing."

Quan revealed that AS card sales have slowed to a trickle after climbing over the 3000 mark.

In regards to his plans for the semester Quan hopes to have more vending machines installed to raise money. He also wants the rates hiked on many activites which he states "should have been raised long ago."

QUAN SUMMED his job by saying "my job is just to make money. I don't care how it's spent."

In other Student Council action it was learned that The Tutorial Center located in the old Bookstore will shortly be opening up for business. At the present time sign ups for tutors and people who want to be tutored are being taken at the old Bookstore.

The subjects in which tutoring are offered are limited only by the number of people who offer to help in that course. The organizers of the Tutorial Center hope eventually to offer salaries to tutors.

The Student Council also announced that starting as of this Monday the fountain side of Smith Hall would be open for students to 4 p.m. for students wanting to study. It is not known whether the fountain would be open for service. The council also plans to post memos of when class rooms are not being used so students may use them for study purposes.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of City College of San Francisco

MIKE DUGGAN, Editor

Vol. 67, No. 6 | WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 23, 1968 | Page 2

Curriculum Expansion

W. E. B. DuBOIS, LeROI JONES AND MALCOLM X are being read along with William Faulkner, Erich Fromm and Paul Samuelson in classrooms across the country this fall, as colleges integrate their curriculum as well as their campuses.

Ever since last spring and the uproars in many schools, professors and administrators at countless institutions have organized courses and even departments in Afro-American Studies.

The feeling was that in presenting only white American history and sociology and literature, colleges were ignoring or downplaying an important facet of the nation's culture.

PREVIOUS STUDY OF BLACK CIVILIZATION had been limited almost entirely to the history or geography of Africa. Now, students wanted to learn about the Negro in American—his history and his contributions to their society.

City College is not sitting back, but rather has this spring come up with a well rounded program in Afro-American Studies, which can now be taken as a possible major.

Courses in Anthropology, Drama, English, History, Music, Political Science and Psychology are among those offered. According to Assistant Dean of Instruction Jack Aldridge, who was just one of the men who pushed this program through, most of these courses are new this term and the program will continue to grow in the future.

THE BROADENING CURRICULUM AT City College has also added courses for the interested Chinese students, including Chinese 39, a study of the major achievements of Chinese culture.

We feel that in adding and expanding these particular programs, the administrators of City College have shown once again that they do care for the interest of their students.

Guardsman Lauds Students

MALCOLM BROWN, theater technician, is back on his job and the upcoming play, Royal Hunt of the Sun, will go on as scheduled (beginning November 6). We applaud the work and time and effort spent by those students who were instrumental in bringing the importance of Brown to the attention of City Hall.

Contact Lens

Should College Newspapers Be Censored For Profanity?

HERMAN

Nan Herman, Science Major

No, because newspapers should print what they want. ..... up morals is the reason people censor things. If the Administration wants to say something, give them their own section. The Guardsman should be something like the Free Critic. They're more free in what they print and I dig it. Newspapers are hampered by censorship because if you can't write in the way you want you are not going to motivate anyone.

DAENZER

Frank Daenzer, Photography Major

No, it's pretty ..... if you can't say anything you want. The Administration shouldn't have anything to say about what should be printed. Life is more interesting when impressions are diverse. The language of the paper is in one class - middle. The way this system works it makes everyone a part of the middle class. An adviser is another word for censor. The articles should not be limited to only the campus.

VAZQUEZ

Jan Vazquez, Social Welfare Major

There should not be Administration censorship in the sense of having to protect the public from hearing things. There are some things that just aren't worth printing. If you're protecting someone from something, you're adding to their ignorance. There should be a type of censorship, a consensus judgement of good taste and common sense in the individual means of communication, that is, in each newspaper, each magazine, etc.

PESHKOFF

Nick Peshkoff, Pre-Med Major

No, but there should be discrimination in the articles put in. Censorship should come from within the paper itself. The reporter should do what he feels is right. The paper does more or less what the whole staff says not just what one person says. The paper should be opinionated but not just on one side. News should be presented factually, but it can be done in a biased way as long as the facts are not distorted.

AHTTY

Arlene Ahtty, General Education Major

No, there shouldn't. Students should be able to express opinions. I don't think there should be pictures of nudes. Pictures get out of hand. I don't think they're necessary. A little discretion should be used when pictures are involved. I'm for freedom of the press. Verbally, people should be quoted. If quotes are put into express an idea I think it's all right, but if it is put in for the ..... of it, then no.

Compiled by Lavine Lee, photos, Kevin Shea, Jim Pope

It's Sink Or Swim

ROY BURKHEAD'S WATER SAFETY CLASS demonstrates how nine people can use a submerged canoe to support themselves in a floating position. —Guardsman photo by Bert Flowers

Water Safety is being taught again this semester for those students interested in becoming swim instructors.

The course which has been offered at City College for 16 years, is taught at Balboa swimming pool on Fridays from 10:30 to 12 noon. Students receive one unit in physical education for water time and one unit in advanced first aid.

Students are permitted to take this course after being screened by Roy Burkhead, a physical education instructor, who said, "all the people in this course want to be there."

Burkhead teaches a class of 22 students this semester. A lighter course is offered for students who want to take Water Safety, but they must pass a qualifying swimmers test and have a senior life saving certificate.

Once students are in the Water Safety course their knowledge in swimming skills is broadened. Students develop their swimming skills and fundamental teaching techniques.

In the lighter course, students learn a minimal amount of life saving skills and how to use floatation devices, such as ring bouys, canoes, boats, paddle boards and surf boards.

Each student must teach one semester as an assistant teacher at Balboa swimming pool in the City College physical education swimming classes.

Water safety students teach at an instructors aid school the first week that school is out in June. This school is held at Fleishhackers swimming pool and is sponsored by the SF Recreation Department and the Golden Gate Chapter of the Red Cross.

To complete the course students must pass a formal examination, when they accomplish this they receive the highest swimming certificate awarded—which is a Water Safety Instructor Certificate.

Creative Writing Instructor Here Films Boxing Documentary

James Haran, a long time friend, refers to him as a "canvas ass;" his students know him as a professional television writer; for the students who do not have the privilege of having him as an instructor for Creative Writing here, the mysterious man is Terry Kilpatrick.

Kilpatrick, a fantastically busy and talented man, has just recently written, produced and directed a half hour documentary film entitled The Big Fight. The film traces the career of a fighter from an amateur to a world champion. Bobo Olson, world middle-weight champion from 1952 to 1955, has the top billing in the film.

"My reason for making the film," said Kilpatrick, "was because I thought people would be interested in it." Financially, Kilpatrick was backed by a group of businessmen in the venture. The film, shot in San Francisco, is still being bidded for by various television net works.

During his early years, Kilpatrick wrote for various theaters and television programs, among which were The Rebel, for which he has written at least seven shows; the Zen Grey Theatre, Studio One, and Kraft Theatre, over which his play Drop On The Devil was aired into millions of homes. In addition to all his accomplishments on division and writing, one of his plays was made into a film called The Big Block, starring Lee Remick.

Riordan Makes Reservoir Into Art Gallery

Slogans and various works of art demonstrating devotion to the Crusaders were painted on the south wall of the reservoir recently by high-spirited Riordan followers in preparation for the schools' "big game."

Riordan's yearly wall slogans used to be directed toward beating Bellarmine, the school's arch rival for 16 years. Then two years ago, after Riordan beat Bellarmine, the rivalry became less intense.

St. Ignatius is Riordan's number one enemy this year. So as the big game between the two schools was drawing near, Riordan followers climbed the slopes of the reservoir with paint buckets between their teeth and new slogans in their heads.

They came up with goodies like "KILL the KITIES," "Tringali (S.I.'s coach) is a big cry BABY" and equally great thoughts. The prize artwork was a hatchetman choking S.I.'s wild cat mascot.

One of the paintings on the wall looked like an apple. However, Brother Terrance Wong, the dean of student affairs at Riordan, said it was really "a cherry, one of Riordan's symbols for S.I." That cherry should be seen —it's a bomb.

On Saturday, October 12, S.I. beat Riordan by nine points.

The slogans and masterpieces are now outdated and peace reigns between the two rivals at least until next year.

Guardsman Staff — Fall 1968

EDITOR IN CHIEF ..... MIKE DUGGAN
Managing Editor ..... Doug Boston
Feature Editor ..... Tom Graham
Staff Editor ..... Boku Kodama
News Editor ..... Barbara Hamann
Sports Editor ..... Dave Albertson

Editorial Assistants: Martin J. Arbunich, Lani Brand, Rita Carroll, Lavina Lee, Lynda Sandstrom.

Reporters: Randy Flynn, Leonard Ribeiro.

Cub Reporters: Floyd Banks, Ralph Bayard, Jack Blake, Dan Castro, Joe Cefalu, Patrick Chan, Lynette Conklin, Jeff Delause, Phil Di Carlo, Kaye Gremps, Yvonne Law, Marianne Lim, Dan McCarthy, Florence McCarthy, Ben Marinas, Diana Matson, Alan Pelzner, James Pope, Elizabeth Ramos, Lester Rastarfar, Jack Ruiz, Soonalota Schmidt, Kenneth Surface, Barbara Tyrrell, Val Vallendar, Wong Tse Yui.

Photographers: Marilyn Astaloah, Chief; Bert Flowers, Glenn Graham, Steven La Plant, Jerry Metsker, Detlef Osburg, Jens Protze, Roberto Guillen, Kevin Shea, Ulmer T. McKnight, Gavin Watt, Calvin Wong, Russell Wong, Sam Woo.

Advisor: Mary Blair

SHOOTIN' IT

by Dave Albertson

HATE and it's constituent diseases appear to be winning a cancerous campaign against a seemingly diminishing opposition in various corners of our continent.

It's a sorry situation to see an even sorrier minority of hate prophets harping on, and rhetorically twisting unpleasant aspects of every known fact to fit their devious ends.

Fortunately, a number of people don't buy the sick garbage the hate merchants are selling for their own negative profits. However, a lot of these self professed liberals effectively spew out their hate doctrines due to distasteful political, economic and other uneasy conditions of the times. Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini were superb masters in appealing to the masses in this fashion.

A before and after look at the "love generation" is a prime example of how funky, subversive elements can transform a love avenue into a "Haight Street!"

The Haight was an uninhibited love playground until the hate magots moved in, and degraded the love generation's meeting place into a dangerous and disgusting "Haight" farm.

Hate and cancer are similar diseases in that they encompass the being in diversive and harmful forms. Both of these diseases are presently uncurable, but can be effectively hindered by positive action.

Jesse Owens blew away history's premier hate advocate at the 1936 Olympic Games, with a stunning upset of Hitler's so called "Aryan supremacy." Owens snuffed out the "Aryan supremacy," by winning three gold medals.

Giant steps like Owens took against hate doctrines, are admirable and worthy weapons with which to counterattack the hate maniacs.

A consoling note was struck by a great American scientist who said, "Arrows of hate have been shot at me too; but they never hit me, because somehow they belong to another world, with which I have no connection whatsoever."—Albert Einstein

Why, you may ask yourself, do people hate, when there is so much good stuff floating around? Forget it.

See you at the local love-in.

• • •

RAMETTE NEWS: Last issue's Ramette of the Week, Carol Andreychik was wondering why we didn't use one of the "good" pictures that were taken of her.

Sorry, baby, but the final decree was that the picture was too "good." Unfortunately, the dubious hand of censorship squelched it. It was so "hot," it probably would of melted the printing presses anyways.

"It's often said of mice and men, it's very nice what might of been" said an equally frustrated writer.

• • •

DRIP, DRIP drop plop go the tears shed for the television networks for getting so uptight over astronaut Wally Schirra not turning on their TV cameras.

Schirra received many unastronautical cuts from local TV commentators while still orbiting in outer space. Schirra was orbiting high above a world the news media snows daily, with their biased way of putting a sizable portion of the facts across.

• • •

REAL GAS: A recent party off campus turned into a real gaser when some yokel dropped some kind of tear gas bomb, and cleared the warehouse where the gig was being held. Other than the gas attack, the gathering has to rated high among the top ten busts of the decade. Many thanks to the numerous fruits who turned out to make the gas gig what it was.

All was not in vain as the future Ramette of the Week, (issue 9) was found floundering around on the floor looking for her keys.

• • •

MUCHAS GRACIAS for the many pro and con comments about this writer's other column (Ramette of the Week) on page three. The ramette column was initiated by Editor, Mike Duggan who thought the male populus would enjoy seeing a few of the better endowed babes that go to City College.

Duggan's move has been justified by the many comments received. However, a few people have described the column with that worn out adjective, "phoney." One could never convince this writer that a picture of any girl is "phoney"—they're for real.

DISPATCH

by Boku Kodama

DIRECT FROM OUR NEWSROOM in New York, it's the evening edition of the CBS News with Walter Cronkite. Brought to you tonight by Bayer Aspirin, the best pain reliever without a prescription and by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company serving the people since 1850. Here now the news.

CRONKITE: Good evening. Today in Iran, government officials have finally estimated that total damage from the earthquake one and a half months ago to be in the excess of three billion dollars and 30,000 casualties. From Iran, Roger Mudd.

MUDD: In this desert country of Iran, earthquake destroyed the few amounts of agricultural land available and killed a vast amount of inhabitants. One village alone lost 6,000 of its 7,000 people, but that was a month and a half ago and the Iranian government is trying to put the pieces back to together again. The people are still mourning over their dead and very little has been done so far except to destroy the ruins and prevent an epidemic. Food and building supplies are still badly needed and unless the people can get together and begin rebuilding, the desert will remain to rule the Iranian people. This is Roger Mudd from earthquake-torn Iran.

CRONKITE: Along the Soviet-Chinese border, the Russians have established several more missile bases bring the total to 17. The Red Chinese have retaliated with a huge mass of troops along their lines. The Soviets have stated that the bases are "only for defense purpose." The Chinese however, have called the act "an aggressive militiary move."

FAMINE HAS AGAIN struck the northern portions of India. We take you now to India and a report from Daniel Shore.

SHORE: As I stand here in this hot humid climate along the Ganges River, I've notice the increasing amount of people coming to worship in hope of a better tomorrow. In the building to my right, food and medical aid sent by the United States is being distributed, but still, a large number of people are too weak to even get off their beds to get the supplies they need so badly. So far, it looks as if it's every man for himself. This is Daniel Shore from the banks of the Ganges.

CRONKITE: Tension again mounted in Israel. We'll have a report on that in just a moment but first a word from our sponsor.

SPONSOR: In this complicated state we live in when problems arise day after day, the tension increases and your body can't always resist to these strains. Headaches are now a dime a dozen and nerves are always on edge. No one is invulnerable to headaches and body tension. The solution: Bayer Aspirin. Bayer is all aspirin and aspirin is the best non-prescriptive medicine man has known.

CRONKITE: Israel was invaded yesterday and has accused the United Arab Republic of open aggression. For the story, we take you to Elath, Israel and Mike Wallace.

WALLACE: Yesterday, six bombs exploded here in this commercial section of Elath killing 22 people and injuring another 37. How the bombs got there or who planted them has not been cleared up but the government of Israel has accused the Arabs of the act. Troops have been arriving to Elath, this southernmost town of Israel since this morning and the preparations for a battle seem to be in process. This is Mike Wallace.

CRONKITE: Curtis LeMay, vice-presidential candidate of the American Independent Party, stated in San Francisco today that victory must be achieved in Vietnam, even if this means involving the Red Chinese or perhaps the use of nuclear weapons. We'll be back in a moment.

SPONSOR: Did you know that a majority of people don't have enough life insurance and that some don't have any at all. Who will see your children through college or support your wife if you aren't around. Metropolitan Life Insurance can work a policy to fit your needs and your budget; we've been doing it for over a century. Life insurance through Metropolitan can provide a safe piece of mind, and if you're smart, you'll get some soon before it's too late.

CRONKITE (speaks and thinking): Well, this wraps it up for tonight. Good night (if that's possible). Join us again tomorrow (if there's going to be one).

Parking Permits Orbit; Reservoir To Be Tapped

Student parking permits at the college for the first month of the new fall semester have reached issuance number 2524 reports Campus Police Chief Richard DeRamon.

This is a sharp rise in comparsion to the spring semester's issuances of approximately 1900 permits.

DeRamon revealed that the current physical space limitations for student parking may force the Administration to open the south reservoir in the near future. The north reservoir has maximum capacity of 1500 cars while the remaining adjacent lots retain capacity at 1001.

The problem of total capacity is partially alleviated by the differences in student class hours. Plans for the shift of parking from the north reservoir, next to Riordan High, to the south reservoir were disclosed last December by Director of Educational Management Dr. Harry Buttimer.

Permits are necessary to distinguish the student automobile and provide him with parking privileges at one of the four available lots.

These spaces are located by the area bounded by Ocean Avenue and athletic field (B lot), area bounded by Men's Gym and east Cloud Hall (C lot), area bounded by Men's Gym and Horticulture Center (D lot), and area bounded by Phelan Avenue and Riordan High School (Reservoir).

The student is warned not to park in Cloud Circle (Faculty only). Faculty areas along side Smith Hall (H & R lot), along curb of D lot, the area surrounded by the west side of Arts Building and Phelan Avenue (E lot), area surrounded by north side of Arts Building and Judson Avenue (F & G lot), along rail of C lot, on the uphill grade of Educational Services Building, out of marked parking stalls, on dirt areas, and on paved roadways in any of these areas.

Parking permits are issued in C-119, with the driver presenting as AS card, automobile registration, and driver's license. All permits must be permanently attached to the lower right hand side of the car windsbield. Failure to properly display permit can result in a citation.

Student Survey

—Guardsman photo by Ulmer McKnight

Advanced students of the Survey 194 engineering class, under the direction of Eugene Slavoj, are presently putting their knowledge to actual use by mapping out the entire City College campus, a project that will continue through February.

This type of field training is done each semester by the Survey 194 class in order to update the present Engineering department's campus map similar to the one in the college catalogue.

There are four 4-men teams working in different areas of the campus each team being supervised by a foreman.

The Transit instrument, which is shown above, is used essentially in Civil Engineering for measuring angles. Other land surveying instruments are also used for the measuring of distances.

Slavoj's class endures an intensive 23-unit curriculm of Civil Engineering Technology which ineludes a course in Photogrammetry (aerial photography).

Upon completion of the survey course and a sufficient amount of field work, surveyors are eligible for the state board examination. A licensed engineer can earn in the neighborhood of $12,000 a year to start.

Labelled And Recorded

America Goes To Pot But Law Remains

by Martin J. Arbunich

THE Chronicle's music critic Ralph Gleason deserves a pat on the back for his straighforward and realistic account on marijuana in his column last Wednesday, where he "wholeheartedly" endorsed the flower's leagalization after some frightening supporting statements on its behalf.

Gleason's been fairly consistent at keeping a running report in print of the important drug busts in the past, but not until his article of Wednesday last did he unveil his personal policy on grass and openly join the campaign for marijuana's legalization. We're sure he doesn't stand alone.

His article was one of the best on marijuana we've seen in a long time, and it was very much to the point. It wasn't one-sided bullshit coming from a drug fiend; in fact, Gleason admits in his article that he does not smoke marijuana himself, but justifies its legalization because he firmly believes it is harmless and has become a way of life with more people than prison cells can hold.

"If they bust everybody who smokes grass in the country," he wrote, "the jails are not big enough to hold them."

His assertion is no exaggeration, because hundreds of thousands of people in this country smoke it, and not only those people who fall under the grouping of 'hippie' smoke it.

College students of all colors, not only the ones with long hair, engage in marijuana smoking. The degree of marijuana smoking is not determined by the amount of growth on one's head, and it is probably safe to add that most people who use it do not have long hair. What once was an accepted parallel is no longer valid because marijuana is even used by the straightest of individuals.

According to Gleason, "There are members of the California State Assembly who or still smoke grass and there are more policemen than Chief (Thomas) Cahill could dream of who also do and have.

"...lawyers, businessmen, artists, performers, poets, record company presidents, millionaires as well as welfare cases have acted upon the general knowledge that marijuana is not only harmless, but does not lead to either crime or addictive drug..." Even instructors—many City College instructors are no exception — have similar feelings about marijuana and we're sure some smoke it more frequently than their students, even if they'd rather not admit it.

He pointed out that there is an "astronomical" number of people who are "hooked" on sleeping pills and legally using speed, not to mention that alcohol and cigarette smoking are legal and unlike marijuana, have been proven dangerous to one's health. There really seems to be no logic within the law here, and the penalty for violating this illogicalness is more ridiculous than the inconsistency itself.

This column does not encourage anyone to take up smoking marijuana, but to those that smoke it, this writer feels that the freedom of indulgence should be theirs.

"We have got to come to grips with the fact that hundreds of thousands do smoke it," Gleason concluded, "and that the reality is the opposite of what Parkinson's police keep telling us."

We thank Mr. Gleason for his intelligent approach to the topic, and we applaud his confidence in what he believes and his courage for putting it in print. Surely he opened many minds.

Ramette Of The Week

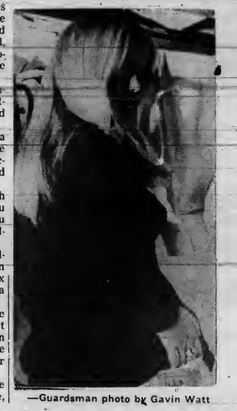
By Dave Albertson

YOU CAN pick your eyeballs off the ground and roll your lecherous tongue back into place; no use getting all upset about a mere picture. However, Stefanie Melvin is a lot to get upset over if seen in person.

Stefanie struck this provocative pose for the benefit of Guardsman readers who requested more pictures like that of last issue's Ramette of the Week Carol Andreychik. We try hard to please the male student demand, and feel a gratifying sense of accomplishment in coming up with Stefanie this week.

STEFANIE was selected to be Ramette of the Week because of the righteous person she is both inside and OUTSIDE.

You may of already developed a whiplash neck, if you've had the opportunity of seeing Stefanie frolicing by in the halls. If not, be prepared because Stef's a real head twister.



A few seconds conversation with this friendly ramette can make you forget that big "D" for dummy you just received on your history midterm.

STEFANIE has a real sharp wardrobe of bright mini-skirts to put on an even brighter figure. One sly fox said, "...she'd even look great in a potato sack."

This 19 year-old ramette says she plans to "...burn around different parts of the world after graduation from college." One could well imagine that it would hardly be a bummer bumming around with Stefanie.

Stefanie offers a blunt but concise type of philosophic outlook of life, "...everyone has their own thing; if that's their bag, fine. People shouldn't try to force their thing on other people."

SHE SUMMED up the world situation by saying, "...too many people get too carried away with their own thing; they get all uptight about everything that concerns them and forget to smile. I think people should try to smile a little more."

—Guardsman photo by Gavin Watt

SF Symphony Tickets Getting Good Sales As First Concert Nears

"Ticket sales for the San Francisco Symphony have gone very well here," said Merritt Beckerman, faculty adviser to the symphony forum, "and a new batch of season tickets which have been ordered, will hopefully be on sale this week."

Beckerman encourages all interested students to take advantage of the tremendous savings on season tickets for this season. He pointed out that the 22-concert season will open Wednesday, December 4, and the tickets should sell out before that date.

The on-campus sale of symphony tickets ends October 31, but Beckerman suggests that students purchase now in order to obtain choice seats.

Special discounted balcony and orchestra seats are available at $27.50 for the 22 concerts and $13.75 for either of the II series concerts.

Balcony seats are priced at $32.50; balcony circle seats are $35.00; dress circle seats are $39.50 and orchestra seats are $44.00 for the 22 concerts.

Either session of eleven concerts has balcony seats available at $16.25; balcony circle seats are $17.50; dress circle seats are $19.75 and orchestra seats are $22.00.

Individual concert tickets are available through Beckerman in A-204, Monday, Wednesday, and Friday between 9:00 a.m. and 10:00 a.m. Seasonal tickets may be bought in ES-207 daily between 8:30 a.m. and 3:00 p.m.

Campus Lineup:

Costume Dance

A Halloween dance sponsored by the Forensic, a campus debate club, is scheduled for Friday at 9 o'clock in Statler Wing. Costumes are a must to enter the dance. Admission is 75 cents with a Associated Student Card and $1.00 without. Passes are available for guests in ES-109.

KPIX Special

KPIX (Channel 5) will present a program entitled "An Afro-American Thing" next Tuesday night from 10:30 to 11 p.m. The program will compare and contrast the African and American Negro cultures through drama, poetry, music and dance. Featured in the special will be the "Soul Injection," a rhythm and blues band and "The Emotions."

CSA Skating Party

The Chinese Students have organized an ice skating party and scheduled it for Friday night at 8 p.m. Tickets are currently on sale in ES-109, $1 with an Associated Student Card and $1.25 without one.

College Hour

A Latin American Folk Show, organized by the Spanish Speaking Students Organization will be presented tomorrow during College Hour. Juan Martinez, a professor at San Francisco State, will speak on "Unity."

Hearing Problems

Miss Jo Kennedy, the College Speech Therapist on campus, would like to aid anyone interested in having their hearing tested. The Beltone Audiogram, the machine used for the tests, has been very successful in aiding students with poor hearing. Students should inquire in S-147.

College Bowl

Alpha Gamma Sigma, the college honor society, will sponsor College Bowl competition next Tuesday during College Hour in the LIttle Theater. There will be eight members from the honor society competing and answering questions from the audience.

Gridders Topple Foothill, 31-11

Bayard, Perkins, Mayfield Lead Balanced Team Effort

By Phil DiCarlo

Led by a balanced offense and a tough, ball stealing defense, the Ram football team put it all together to take a 31 to 11 decision Friday night against Foothill's Owls. It was the first conference win for the Rams in three attempts this year.

ON A CLEAR but chilly evening in Los Altos, City College of San Francisco got back on the winning track and in most impressive fashion at that. "We played TEAM DEFENSE," exclaimed an obviously happy "Dutch" Elston, the Ram head coach. "The big difference was that we were exerting pressure on the passer. We put together a complete game." The coach said a mouthful right there. There were so many fine performances by so many fine ball players, it's hard to single out individuals--they were all that good. Mayfield, Miller and Bayard, the familiar game heroes, were joined by a pair of Freshmen flashes and a group of stand-out defensive linemen.

Eddie Perkins and Mike Baines, the freshmen, stole a share of the limelight with a pair of interceptions each. "Fast Eddie" ran his first theft back 53 yards for a touchdown that looked so easy that he kept trotting and looking back to see what was wrong. Every thing WAS right though, as the other ten Rams knocked down every Owl in sight to pave Perkins' road to paydirt. No Owl "flew" within 15 yards of Perkins on the play. Baines did double duty, playing safety on defense and end on offense. "Mighty Mike" wound up with five pass receptions, three of ours and two of theirs. Baines scored the last Ram touchdown on an 11 yard pass.

THE DEFENSIVE CLUB harrassed Foothill's quarterbacks all night. Working from a "Gas 6" alignment, put in just for this game, John McKenna, Hilton Dillion, Roger Cassell, George Tinsley, Jim Tyree and Joesiah Bell played a terrific game. With help from linebackers Arice "The Tiger" Pittman and Gerry Dyson, the defense held the Owls to only SIX yards rushing in the second half--only 50 yards rushing in the entire game.

Mayfield had another great night at the Ram helm. He completed nine of 16 attempts for 174 yards and three touchdowns. He hit five of six in the second half for 140 yards! His favorite receiver, Ralph Bayard, put on still another tremendous show of determination and pass catching ability. Bayard caught two more touchdown passes to run his season's total to six. The running backs, led by Doyle Miller's 66 yards in 11 carries, gained 171 yards.

NURSING a 10 to 3 lead in a rather dull affair, the Rams blew the game wide open scoring twice during the last 46 seconds of the third quarter. First Mayfield and Bayard hooked up on a 61 yard lightin' bolt. Bayard faked his "man" inside, ran deep intensly concentrating on the pass, took it over his shoulder and was off to the races. Watching the play in the press box, we never thought Mayfield would see Bayard in time as he was rushed hard. But "Terrible Tom," with his magnificent arm and quick release, got the pass off. Two plays later Perkins scored with his first interception, crossing the goal line as the gun went off ending the third period.

Less than six minutes later Baines scored to make it 31-3. Foothill scored with 38 seconds left in the game as Elston got all of his troops into the fray.

MARK HENSLEY had started the scoring with a 35 yard field goal in the first quarter. Jim Volarvich tied the game in the next period with a ten yarder. Following the ensuing kick-off, the Rams marched 68 yards in only eight plays to go ahead. City College's Dyanmic Duo, Bayard and Mayfield, connected on a 15 yard aerial for the score.

Because of the concussion he suffered in the Diablo Valley game, Craig Martin, the Ram's best defensive back, can't play for a few weeks. Thus the showing of Baines, Perkins, Greg Jackson, Jim Anderson, Vince Anderson and the slowly recovering Jim Farnham (knee injury) was particularly pleasant to the eye. So were Jim Anderson's kick returns. Of course the offensive line; Bill McKenna, Andre Hicks, Ed Diaz, Monty Consani and Leo Lozada, filling in for Dan Parrish, continues to function well as a unit, especially when providing Mayfield excellent pass protection.

PENALTIES STILL PLAGUE the Rams though if one looks for a "minus" side to the game. Eleven were accessed against the Rams for 115 yards. Another Mayfield to Bayard bomb was erased, this one was good for 45 yards, when the Rams were caught offsides.

This Friday evening the team ventures to the east side of the Bay to battle last year's conference co-champs, the Chabot Gladiators. Kick-off is at eight o'clock at Chabot Stadium.

RAM QUARTER TOM MAYFIELD rolls out with Viking attacker hot in pursuit in a recent game against Diablo Valley.
—Guardsman photo by Glenn Graham

Maestro Marki Recalls Escape From Russians

Fencing master Maestro Ferenc Marki's thoughts flashed back to a Russian-run prison camp in Hungary, his native land, as he sat at his desk in the Women's Gym.

It was 1956, the Hungarian revolt was in full sway, and teaching the art of fencing to his Russian captors irked Marki. He maneuvered his way to Yugoslavia and from there from behind the iron curtain to Italy.

Upon his arrival in Torino, Italy he became Instructor at the Italian Scuola Magistrale di Scherma. From there he went to Sao Paolo, Brazil where he taught fencing at the Polostino Athletic Club. He subsequently left for the United States arriving in San Francisco in December of 1961.

Marki went to work at the Pannonia Club located at Turk and Polk streets just above Rathskeller's Restaurant, and remained there until the present time. He started teaching at City College this semester.

MAESTRO MARKI graduated from the Toldi Miklos Royal Hungarian Sports Institute with a Master's degree, and diploma as Maitre di Armes (Fencing Master) and Sports Instructor. He produced many outstanding students, one of them Magay, won an Olympic medal in Sabre competition in 1956.

MARKI SAYS, "Fencing instruction in the United States is behind that in European countries because in Europe students start fencing in High School at the age of 13 years. In the United States, they start in college which is too late. Another difference is that here we treat it as a Physical Education course where as in Europe there is a high degree of competition among the universities leading up to a climax at the Olympic games. Incidentally, Hungarians lead the world in Sabre instruction and competition.

Answering a few technical questions, Marki said "In competition today, an electrical registration apparatus is used, it is a metal jacket which fits over the conventional fencing jacket and has a cord which runs to a computer type machine. It registers all touches (hits), flashing red for one opponent, and green for the other. It also flashes yellow for all fouls or illegal blows."

In a final note, there will be an intercollegiate men and women's fencing competition at City College, Saturday, October 26, 1968 in the Men's Gym. It will open to the public with free admission, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.
—J.R.

Lungbusters Place Third In Sacramento Invitational Meet

Making a great showing for themselves, the Ram Lungbusters finished third in the Sacramento State Invitationals.

Although the team didn't fair as well as Coach Louis Vasquez feels they should have, they did manage a team effort of 1:61 to capture third behind Sacramento City College with a 1:59 and Santa Anna with a 1:31, the winners.

Robert Darling, a veteran, deserves special mention as the most improved runner on the squad. Last year Darling would have considered it lucky to take a fifth place, this year Darling is battling it out with George Haza for the leader of the pack. Darling attributes his phenominal improvement to hard work. Darling runs for one to two hours seven days a week; isn't that Darling.

GEORGE HAZA, who was picked as number one man by the Guardsman pre-season forecast, is still number one. Haza refuses to give up his position to his darling teammate, even though Darling beat him in the Sacramento Invitational.

So far the Guardsman's pre-season predictions have proven true, except for the unpredictable improvement of Darling and the position of Vic Cary.

Cary still hasn't loss the extra payload, and this could be the reason for his less than expected performance.

San Mateo, which is the team to beat for the Rams, has an uphill course along with Foothill, the Conference Meet, and the Northern California Relays.

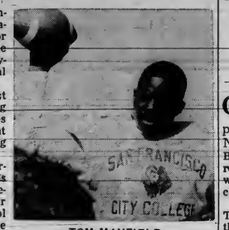
The Rams had their first meet last Thursday with Merritt. The next and most exciting meet will be with San Mateo this Friday.—F. B.

Freethy Paces G'man Past Slumping Delta

Bob Freethy's 37 points paced the 'new look' Guardsman to a stunning 64-62 upset win over defending champion Phi Delta last Thursday to highlight the first week of the AMS intramural basketball action.

Freethy's deadeye outside shooting was aided by Mike Duggan's 15 points and Tom "Big Red" Graham's six digits to help newly installed G'man pilot Chuck Bouey to his first coaching win.

Lightning Lenny Riberio, filling in for the retired Easy Ed Holmes, joined forces with veteran Bill Kays to help the G'man pull to within three at the half, 34-31. After intermission it was all G'man as Harm Fanfelle and speedy Floyd Banks pulled the G'man out to a nine point lead and then the journalists subs, led by Boku Kodama, held off a late Delta rally for the win.



The 'new look' Guardsman, with a new coach and complex offense seem to be a great improvement over past Guardsman teams, who were capably led by the likes of John LeTourneau.

Mayfield's Playmaking Ranks Third In Conference Offense

TOM MAYFIELD has put on a sensational aerial show so far this season in completing 43 of 83 passes for a total of 750 yards. According to the Junior College Athletic Bureau Mayfield is ranked as third in both total offense and passing.

Last season Mayfield in his first year at City College put on a passing circus as he hit on 38 of 91 passes for 798 yards as the Rams underwent a disappointing 5-4 season, finishing second in the conference.

Don't let Mayfield's passing percentage bother you though as he has never been one to hit for the completions. In fact, during his senior year at George Washington High School he led the AAA in passing despite a competition record of under 40%.

TOM MAYFIELD

Perhaps one of the reasons for Mayfield's success lies in the fact that he has always been blessed with good receivers. At Washington he had the league's top receiver in Ron Lanning while here at City College he has Ralph Bayard who has caught nine passes for 185 yards to rank among the top twenty receivers in Northern California.

ONE OF Tom's major drawbacks has always been his lack of speed. Because of this he has been racked up several times behind the line of scrimmage for losses amounting to 71 yards.

Another reason for Tom's success besides having fine recievers may be the fact that he has always had a good supporting cast of runners. At Washington he got help from Doyle Miller who ran for some 700 yards in his senior year and placed second in the AAA in rushing.

At City College Tom gets support from his ex-high school teammate Doyle Miller (31 for 193 yards) and Joe Bell (32 for 177).

Thus far, despite excellent passing, the Rams are only 3-2 this season. The Rams may have to depend more on Mayfield if they expect to stay on the winning track against Chabot.
—P.C.

Green Bay Misses Lombardi's Charm

RAM BLINGS

by Doug Boston

Haza Burns Dailey, Conference Record

GOD BLESS Vince Lombardi. His retirement has made the prospect of this season in the NFL much brighter for Green Bay opponents. And the Packers have responded in style, getting off to their worst start since Lombardi joined the club.

"Something has got to be wrong. This can't be happening to us." Thus the cries of Packer fans continue to fill the air as their boys have begun to lose just like everybody else, proving the Packers are human.

VEGAS ODDSMAKERS are dropping bundles now that sharp betters are putting their coins on Green Bay opponents. Fans say the recent Packer decline is the fault of new coach Phil Bengston.

The coach always gets the blame if things go badly. Bengston isn't Vince Lombardi, and doesn't expect to be. We can't think of a tougher assignment than taking over for Vince, who led the Packs to all those world championships.

Since we have hated watching the Packers win constantly, we have learned to respect them for being one of footballs greatest ever. We are aware that, even though they have lost games, they are in the Central Division with Minnesota, Detroit and Chicago. And this makes us wonder if this might happen at the end of the season.

"GOOD AFTERNOON everyone, and welcome to the NFL Championship Game, brought to you from Dallas, Texas. It sure is a surprise to see the Green Bay Packers playing the Cowboys today. Almost everybody had counted the Packers out, but Vince Lombardi came out of retirement and led them to eight straight wins.

Among those wins, of course, was the last game against Los Angeles, when Bart Starr crawled off the bench with a separated shoulder and threw a 95-yard touchdown pass to Carrol Dale, who fell across the goal line, dragging the Rams' Eddie Meador as the gun sounded."

"We're about set for Dallas kickoff. Travis Williams is deep for Green Bay, he takes it in on the 3-yard line, breaks to his left, spots some daylight." . . .

Of course, this couldn't happen. Could it?

FLEET George Haza of the colleges cross-country team sprinted to a new record in four mile cross-country run recently with a time of 20:45. Haza bested the old record of 21:15. Haza outraced last years Conference Champ Mike Dailey of College of San Mateo, who finished seven long seconds behind. Way to go, George.

SAN FRANCISCO will once again witness The Lucky International Golf Tournament beginning the end of next week at Harding. There's a good chance that Palmer and Nicklaus won't make the scene, both have expressed their dissatisfaction with Harding's condition and the rather poor locker room facilities.

Bay Area stars Bob Lunn and former champ George Archer, both of whom played Harding during their youth, will be looking toward the $20,000 first prize.

An added attraction will be the fact that we have paid $25 for the right to attempt at qualifying for the tourney. Who said golf was a cheap sport?

21 Vie For Coed Title

OUT OF THESE 21 coeds who are the semi-fialists for the Best Dressed Coed On Campus, 12 finalists will be chosen tomorrow. From these finalists one girl will be selected as the "Best Dressed Coed On Campus." Her name will be submitted to Glamour Magazine for the nation-wide competition for the "Best Dressed Coed of 1968-1969." One woman student is selected each year to represent City College in this contest.
— Photo by Eugene Wong

The Guardsman

Official Weekly Publication of the Students in the Journalism Department of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 67 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 30, 1968 NUMBER 7

Social Satirist To Lecture Here On Education Crisis

By James Pope

Author and social satirist, Professor C. Northcote Parkinson will lecture tomorrow on The Crisis in American Education in the Little Theater at 11 a.m.

Parkinson has made a number of extensive studies on the "laws" that have come to be established in large business operation, big government and education. These probes have extended into the areas of smaller social units, such as the school and the home.

Parkinson has recorded highlights of these investigations in several books, including one called In-Laws and Outlaws, which deals with getting ahead in business through such devious means as marrying the boss's daughter.

IN ANOTHER of his books, The Law and the Profits, Parkinson examines reasons why expenses come so quickly to meet and surpass available income, not only in business finances but in personal finances.

Parkinson's latest book, Mrs. Parkinson's Law is directed toward the ladies and proposes a scientific solution for those days when nothing seems to turn out right.

He recently was interviewed on the Merv Griffin Show about the contents of Mrs. Parkinson's Law.

While he is a noted humorist, Parkinson has also distinguished himself in the fields of history and education. He has lectured on tax problems in both England and Scandinavia and has taught history in this country and Europe.

FOR SEVERAL years, Parkinson also held the Raffles Chair of History at the University of Malaya in Singapore.

In addition to his books concerning his laws, the professor has also written several volumes on historical and political subjects, including The Evolution of Political Thought and East and West.

He has also been a contributor to such publications as Harper's, The Reporter, The New York Times Magazine, The National Review, Human Events and has done research for the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Applications Due Tomorrow For SAT Examination

The deadline for all undergraduate college students to file applications for the Scholastic Aptitude Test of December 7 is tomorrow. Qualifiers are eligible to compete for the 5800 new California State Scholarships.

State Scholarships are available for students here who plan to transfer to an accredited four-year college in California during 1969-70 and are in need of financial assistance for this endeavor.

Scholarships are used as tuition and fees at any accredited four-year college in California. The awards range from $300 to $2000 at independent colleges such as Stanford, and U.S.F., and approximately $120 at all California State Colleges.

To qualify, an applicant must be under 24 years of age, a high school graduate, resident of California and an American citizen. The actual competition on acquiring the scholarship will be dependent on the student's scores in the SAT test. Scores from previous SAT examinations may be submitted. Applications for the State Scholarships must be filed with the State Scholarship Commission by midnight, December 10, 1968.

If the student's score reveals his eligibility for the scholarship, a confidential financial statement on the applicant's family earnings must be submitted to determine the amount of the grant to be awarded. The scholarship will be awarded only if the student shows he is in financial need.

According to Dean Mary Gedding, the qualified students, especially of the lower income brackets and minority groups, are not alerted of the many ways of receiving available scholarships. Scholarship information, application forms, and SAT test applications are available in Dean Golding's office, ES-106, or by writing directly to State Scholarship and Loan Commission, 520 Capitol Mall, Sacramento, California 95814.

Finance Chairman Quan Predicts AS Revenue To Increase This Semester

The Associated Students may expect some $44,000 in revenue from this semester if all goes as predicated in the year's first financial report.

Newly appointed AS finance chairman Derrick Quan reported that the new Bookstore would be the largest contributor with an expected $25,000 along with AS cards sales adding another $15,000 and vending machine profits some $3500.

The report went on to state that all AS funds to organizations have been frozen temporarily until such a time that the clubs verify all their members hold AS cards. Deadline for the lists is today.

Failure to submit a list will result in the forfeiture of funds already allocated to the club or organization.

The report also stated that out of $5900 left at the beginning of the semester only $1581 remains.

The majority of the $4,000 budgeted went to the Free Critic ($2,900), ISSA week ($600) and the Experimental College ($400).

It was also mentioned in the report that budget requests for the spring semester have already been sent out to various organizations and that the deadline for such lists is tomorrow.

Soulusions To Play At Halloween Dance

There will be a dance held Friday night, November 1, in Smith Hall from 9-12. The dance is sponsored by the Inter-Fraternity Council.

Providing the music for the dance will be the Soulusions, which have proved very popular at the college in the past. Admission will be $1.50 without a student body card and $1.25 with a card.

Council Acts

Students, Administrators Agree On New Study Hall

Students wanting to study but who would like to escape the noise of Statler Wing can now find plenty of room in Smith Hall which is open as a study hall between one and four daily.

The student council originated the idea for the study hall. AS President, Derrick Hill brought the project to the attention of Dean Hillsman and after much discussion, the program was agreed upon.

Approximately 300 to 500 students can use the study hall at one time which will eliminate some of the crowded conditions of the library and, Statler Wing. The new study hall will also provide the peace and quite you need for serious studying.

According to Mr. David Borrelli, in charge of cafeteria services, at one o'clock the cafeteria area of Smith Hall becomes the responsibility of the students and purchasing of food will be limited to vending machine service only during one and four o'clock.

The study hall program had its kick-off day October 21 with a good number arriving to take advantage of the new program. Instead of the usual noisy atmosphere that characterizes Smith Hall, the cafeteria became a quiet study area with students eating up knowledge instead of food.

It is hoped that during the exam weeks the study hall can be opened earlier and remain open longer than just one to four o'clock, but no definite arrangements have been made yet.

For those students who need a quiet place to study before one o'clock, the college library located at the south end of the third floor in Cloud Hall is open from 7:30 a.m. to 9:00 p.m. Monday through Thursday and from 7:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on Friday.

Fire Department Lowers Age Limit On New Applicants

By Gerry Engler

The City and County of San Francisco has lowered its age limit to 19-year-olds for the position of Fireman.

The Fire Department launched a campaign to increase the number of firefighters coming from minority groups.

Its problem, it says, is that applications from the minority communities are too few. Presently there are only four members of the black community who are firemen.

The duty of a fireman under supervision is to respond to fire alarms and assist as directed in the control and extinguishment of fires, protect life and property; maintain fire department quarters and equipment; act as driver, tillerman, truckman, hoseman, or stoker; and perform related duties as required.

THE MINIMUM requirements set by the Civil Service Commission for the job of fireman are completion of a regular high school course of study approved by the Department of Education and two years of fulltime, paid, work experience. Work experience may include military service or college.

Under the new ruling, 19 and 20 year olds may now apply for firemen positions formerly reserved for those 21 or older. With salaries starting any where between $828 and $879 a month and working hours--24 hours on and 48 hours off with a bonus 72 hours off after every fourth watch.

AN APPLICANT must be no shorter than five feet seven inches and no taller than six feet six inches. The minimum weight is 145 pounds and the maximum weight is 236, but the weight must be in proportion to the applicant's height.

In order to become a fireman the candidate must pass a series of tests designed to judge the intelligence and physical and mental aptitude of the applicant.

Mental tests are given orally; these tests give appraisals of the personal traits of applicants making it possible to judge the applicant's competence and fitness to perform the duties of the position.

Applications can be obtained from the Civil Service Commission Office, Room 160, City Hall, and further information can be obtained by calling 861-8000, extension 295. Closing date for applications is November 8.

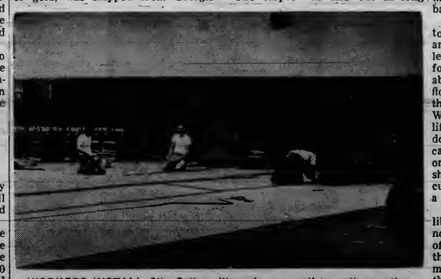
City Theater Offers Dylan Thomas Works

The San Francisco City Theater will present selections from Dylan Thomas, famous Welsh poet, at the San Francisco College for Women, 2400 Turk Street, tonight at 8 p.m.

The program, titled The World of Dylan Thomas, is being presented by Jack Aranson, director of the City Theater, and will contain selections from some of Dylan Thomas' most famous stories, poems, and commentaries.

The scope of the program will cover his childhood memories and take a look at the poet in his later years as a writer. Admission price for students is 50 cents and for the general public $1.00.

Last Day To Drop Class



Today is the last day for students to drop classes, Students interested in dropping should report to their counsellors to obtain the necessary forms. Completed forms should be officially processed through the Registrar's office. Failure to do so will result in a final grade of "F."

New Carpeting Enhances Appearance Of Library

After several weeks of delay, City College of San Francisco has followed the trend among colleges today by installing a wall-to-wall carpet in the library.

The carpet, which is a light shade of gold, was shipped from Georgia where it was then transferred across the country to City College by railroad. It was specially woven to give added body to withstand the wear and tear that it will receive from students.

The carpet was laid out in long strips replacing the old tiled floors and enchancing the appearance of the library.

WORKERS INSTALL City College library's new wall to wall carpeting.
—Guardsman photo by Lynn Mills

Due to the fact that there were notable defects throughout it when the carpet first arrived earlier this month, the carpet had to be sent back.

Carpeting libaries has been proven to be quite successful in colleges, and the maintanance for carpets is less costly. It is much easier to care for a carpet than to have to worry about bare floors. The upkeep on floors is very time consuming, and they are always in need of a wax job. With a carpet the care is more simplified. Regular vacuuming usually does the job. If not, then the carpet can be cleaned with soap and water or hosed off. If a section of carpeting should be damaged, it can easily be cut out and a new piece fitted in as a replacement.

Library users find that a carpeted library is much warmer and not as noisy. There isn't the endless sounds of chairs constantly scraping along the bare floors causing quite a commotion at times. Students find that the library is a nicer place to sit and read with the luxury of a carpet.

The Guardsman Editorial Page
Official Weekly Publication of the Students in the Journalism Department of City College of San Francisco
MIKE DUGGAN, Editor
Vol. 67, No. 7 WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 30, 1968 Page 2

A Sign Of Disunity

MANY PEOPLE are wondering whether the actions of Tommie Smith and John Carlos on the victory platform at the recent Olympic Games was a proper thing to do. Smith and Carlos, after finishing first and third respectively in the 200 meter sprint, raised clenched fists with black gloves and bowed their heads during the playing of the National Anthem.

For their actions, Smith and Carlos were suspended and sent home from Mexico City by the United States Olympic Committee. The two San Jose speedsters face also the possibility of being suspended by the Amateur Athletic Union (AAU).

We feel the Olympics represent unity. An example of this was having Russian and Czeck athletes competing against each other only months after the Russians invaded Czechoslovakia.

One thing Smith and Carlos did show by their actions to the countless millions of television viewers around the world was that there is indeed much disunity right here in the United States.

A Salute To Police Officer

WE SALUTE Rodney Williams, the San Francisco police officer who risked his life while taken hostage by an armed youth, and then overpowered the youth to make the arrest.

Sex Abstinence A Futile Plea

IN AN ATTEMPT to stop the over-population problem, officials of India have asked that all married and unmarried people of India abstain from sexual intercourse for one full year. We hope the officials of India can solve this problem, but we sincerely doubt that their request to the people will be a success.

Contact Lens

In Your Opinion, What Is The Real Meaning Of Love?

BOURBIN

Paul Joseph Bourbin, UC L & S Major

Love is not something you can put your finger on. Love is a wonderful and abstract ideal by which man bases his entire existence and social precepts. It is the art of giving one-self totally and unobtrusively to another without the thought of selfishness and receipt. It is the pure and total unmitigated affectional emotion of the highest mental order. Love is not sexual or physical; it's strictly mental and emotional, not rational.

CULLOTY

Sean Culloty, General Education Major

Love to me is a warm puppy. Love is seriously tolerating everything and everybody in the whole world. Love is also a fog horn and a dinosaur. Love is when the happiness of another person is essential to your own happiness. Love has to be both physical and mental. But of course it depends on who you love—your girl friend or your parents. Love is getting speechless when the inquiring photographer is coming around. Love is...

LEIMBACH

Mark Leimbach, Television and Radio Major

Love is a four letter word. It is a mutual understanding between two people. Love is both a mental and physical thing, but I think it is more important on the mental level. If you're going to live with one person for the rest of your life, there has to be some sort of a compromise. You have to give to each other. Sex can't last forever. When you meet a girl, you see her first on a physical level, then the mental level comes.

D. and D. McKenna, History Majors

Love is whatever you make it. You love different things in different ways. I love my mother, father, brothers, sister, and people I know. You don't have to be uptight about it. It's just nice to have a person you can see a lot. Love is the epitomy of affection. Love is a symbol for what you feel: It evolves out of your feelings. To me, love is sitting in front of my aquarium, and turning off the lights and putting up a beer sign.

McKENNA

Esther Hom, Advertising Art Major

Love is just a feeling. It's the way people express their feelings toward another person. I don't think of it as a physical thing; it's something that is internal. It's nothing concrete because there are so many different opinions about it. Love is an emotional thing. You can love anything; love is not limited. Without it, people would be cold and they would not be able to feel anything.

HOM

Aleta Friedman, Liberal Arts Major

It's something that comes without your knowing it. It is a product of giving. You don't realize it until you're away from the person. Love can be given to almost anything. Love is not sex. Love is the giving of one's hopes and desires to one person or a group of persons. Love is not the giving of one's body. Love is what I feel for my dog and my boy friend.

FRIEDMAN

—Compiled by Lavine Lee, photos by Kevin Shea

Emergency Care A Highlight Of Health 14—First Aid

Bandaged head, splinted limbs and stretchers weighted with bodies are a few sights that can be seen here in A-301 on Mondays and Fridays. No, it's not a riot treatment center for victims of Campus Police brutality! It's the meeting place for a very practical and interesting First Aid course—Health 14.

Sixteen years ago, Roy Burkhead, now head of the Health Department, began to analyze the old General Health course at City College in an effort to find out where the course was deficient. Burkhead talked with police and fire department personnel to find out what topics and first aid methods they believed should be included in the course.

"I couldn't do it all in one night, believe me," he said. In fast, it took him nearly two years, but after a lot of planning, the Department Head came up with an advanced first aid course that has been praised by firemen, policemen and Highway Patrolmen as a thorough and enjoyable class.

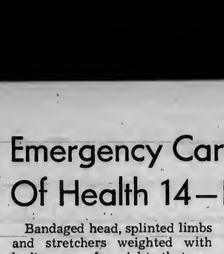
In addition to being a prerequisite for several civil service professions, the course is also required for paramedical students, water safety instructors and teaching assistants.

As far as the content of the course, Alan Eisan, the instructor, summed it all up when he commented, "it's a course in relevent education—with a capitol R." Almost as soon as the class begins each semester, students are busy working with splints, bandages, slings and other first aid equipment, simulating situations that commonly occur where emergency care is necessary.

Eisan told of an occasion where students in his class had learned how to handle certain emergencies that confronted them after they took the course. In one instance, a student was stung by a scorpion on a fishing trip the weekend after he had learned how to care for poisonous stings and bites. Had the student not been instructed in how to take care of the poisonous sting, serious illness could have resulted.

One interesting feature of the class is a good looking doll by the name of 'Resusy Anne' who shows up at many class meetings. She is a life size doll which is used to demonstrate and practice mouth-to-mouth respiration.

Eisan's class isn't for dummies, however. To receive an advanced first aid certificate students must get a letter grade of 'B' (or higher) for the semester.



According to Eisan's male students, there are quite a few good looking dolls in the class.

Sultry Authoress Talks About Her New Publication

Success is sweet, but it does not come easy. Such is the case for beautiful Jackie Collins, authoress of the current best seller, "The World is Full of Married Men." In a recent visit to San Francisco, and between radio interviews, personal appearances, TV shows, and caring for her two young daughters, Jackie told how it was to get to the top and also talked about her first publication.

Born in England, Jackie was kicked out of a London school at 14 for "smoking with my school dress on." Following in her sister Joan's footsteps, Jackie turned to films. Miss Collins openly reveals, "Acting is a draggy life for a girl, and I wasn't any good anyway." So at 24, and after 30 British films, Jackie tried her hand at writing.

Talking from her Fairmont suite, Jackie said, "My husband persuaded me to finish at least one thing I started." The result, her novel about the sexy, swinging London life reached the number one spot within weeks after its publication (World Publishing Co.).

The book is about a man who cheats on his wife for 10 years and then expects her to be waiting for him; but she isn't.

Pausing for a moment to claim that "San Francisco is the most beautiful city in the United States," Miss Collins then revealed that she has had a second book published, "The Stud."

Her hit novel, although banned in Australia and although she was banned from appearing in Cinceinnati, has received much encouragement from married women.

As for the male audience, the jacket of the book reveals that "If the title and the author's photo on the cover don't entice you, then the first page will."

The outspoken 26 year old beauty believes in complete sexual freedom until marriage, and could not believe that the drinking age in California was 21 (it's 16 in England).

The movie rights have been purchased by 20th Century-Fox and filming is scheduled to begin early next year. Jackie openly states that "censorship wouldn't have permitted the movie three years ago."

At the end of her two day San Francisco stay, Jackie headed for L.A. and more appearances, interviews, and shows which are all part of the daily life of someone who has made it big. From there she headed back to London, where she would continue her writing career in hopes of coming up with another success like "The World is Full of Married Men."—M.D.

Superstitions, Symbols Part Of Halloween

Contrary to childhood fantasy, Halloween, which will be celebrated tomorrow, wasn't originally meant to be a day of practical jokes, dressing up in costumes and candy collecting.

The name "Halloween" literally means "holy evening." It is the eve of All Saints Day. Many supersititions and symbols are connected with the day. The Irish have a tale about a man named Jack who was unable to enter Heaven or Hell after death because he was miserly and had played practical jokes on the Devil. As a punishment, Jack had to walk the earth with his lantern (Jack-o-Lantern) until judgement day.

The Druids, an order of priests in ancient Gaul and Britain, believed that on Halloween, ghosts, spirits, fairies, witches and elves exposed themselves and tried to harm people.

They also believed that cats were sacred, having once been humans who were reincarnated into cats as punishment for sins committed. From these beliefs that the present-day use of witch, ghost and cat costumes comes.

The Druids also had an autumn festival called Samhain or summer's end at which time feasts of all foods grown during that season were prepared. It is from this customary celebration that the use of leaves, pumpkins and cornstalks originated.

Guardsman Staff — Fall 1968

(The Guardsman is the official weekly publication of the students in the journalism department of City College of San Francisco. It is published each Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacations. The opinions expressed in the columns and editorials are those of the individual writers and not necessarily those of the Guardsman, the department or the college. Editorial office, 206, Science Hall; telephone 587-7272, extension 246.)

EDITOR IN CHIEF ..... MIKE DUGGAN
Managing Editor ..... Doug Boston
Feature Editor ..... Tom Graham
Staff Editor ..... Boku Kodama
News Editor ..... Barbara Hamann
Sports Editor ..... Dave Albertson
Editorial Assistants: Martin J. Arbunich, Lani Brand, Rita Carroll, Lavine Lee, Lynda Sandstrom.
Reporters: Randy Flynn, Leonard Ribeiro.
Cub Reporters: Floyd Banks, Ralph Bayard, Jack Blake, Dan Castro, Joe Cefalu, Patrick Chan, Lynette Conklin, Jeff Daleuse, Phil Di Carlo, Kaye Cramps, Donna Low, Marianne Lim, Dan McCarthy, Florence McCarthy, Ban Marinas, Diana Matson, Alan Palzner, James Pope, Elizabeth Ramos, Lester Rasberfer, Jack Ruiz, Soenatote Schmidt, Kenneth Surface, Barbara Tyrrell, Val Vallendar, Wong Tse Tui.
Photographers: Marilyn Astalosh, Chief; Bert Flowers, Glenn Graham, Steven La Plant, Jerry Mishler, Detlef Osburg, Jens Pratze, Roberto Quillen, Kevin Shea, Ulmer T. McKnight, Gavin Watt, Calvin Wong, Russell Wong, Sam Woo.
Advisor: Mary Blair

SHOOTIN' IT

by Dave Albertson

GRAB IT while you can" is a materialistic, but seemingly realistic brand of philosophy being put into effect by the wheeling and dealing pleasure seekers.

This basic approach to the complex maze of living seems to produce more workable results when basic decisions are required. The intellectual approach seems to be self defeating in many instances. For example, how many times have you let those "golden opportunities" slip from your grasp because you didn't apply a simple "grab it now" philosophy.

Intellectual reasoning can often find one talking to himself, while watching the "grab it now" philosophers making off with all those golden apples.

"Grab it now" people can be observed daily just grabbing it instead of standing around looking at all the numerous brain blitzing angles to different positions. However, the "grab it" philosopher has been known to experience devastating repercussions.

This basic approach could prove fatal, especially if the "grab it" philosopher attempts to push his simple philosophy on the opposite sex.

The next time you feel torn between the cruel crushes of anxiety; ponder the many intellectual possibilities or just simply reach out and grab it.

WHAT GOT INTO BOB: Bob Beamon, U.S. Olympic long jumper, turned in an uncanny performance in recent Olympic action.

Beamon's world record shattering jump of 29-2½ seemed incredible. No other long jumper has yet to jump into the magic 28 foot circle.

Skeptical disbelevers are beginning to spread rumours of a mismarked measuring tape.

HARD FACTS: The cold truth of the disasterous results of the first midterm can be observed etched across gloomy faces about campus.

Some students have already discovered that the "night before" super cram studying doesn't produce the best results. Others are heard laughing about the lucky results that their instant snow jobs have produced. Others still can be heard swearing oaths of studious allegience, soon to be broken in the forthcoming midterm.

Perhaps the least noticeable scholars are those who really are here to study. These students usually speak the loudest with their well earned grades.

K-CAR CRUSH: The automobile industry has been receiving a slight boost from a few of the more frustrated riders of the overpacked morning K-car.

A few disgusted K-car passengers have been forced to buy or borrow friend's or relatives' ears to combat the cramped and sometimes unbearable riding conditions. Many fed up students have been forced to find various other types of transportation to escape the sardine can K car squeeze.

Those who aren't able to borrow or steal a car will have to put up with the numerous squashed toes and smashed knuckles inflicted, until the system comes up with something better.

KPIX COMES THROUGH: Local television channel 5 KPIX is coming through with a much needed presentation of the various views of the three major presidential candidates.

Vice-presidential candidate, Hubert Humphrey and third party candidate George Wallace agreed to pre-tape their respective interviews especially for the benefit of the simulated debate. Republican candidate Richard Nixon's views were used from previous speeches.

CYCLE DISASTER: Political Science instructor, Patrick Butler had an unfortunate accident, while blitzing down the freeway, "... about 70 miles per hour." Butler had all his midterm grades and test papers in a booklet tied to the back of his motorcycle while tooling along the freeway. Fortunately for his poly sci students, a gust of wind blew away his grade book and all of the midterm tests.

What a shame.

THETA TAU GETTING SWEET: Members of the Theta Tau Sorority will be selling candy for the benefit of aiding handicapped children of the kidney foundation.

Sorority president, Ester Palun says, "Every bag of candy you buy is like buying medical service for disabled children."

DISPATCH

by Boku Kodama

LITTLE ERNEST ZINK was only seven years old when he said, "When I grow up, I want to be President of the United States," and he wasn't trying to be cute either.

Mrs. Zink, upon first hearing Ernest's intent, replied, "That's nice dear, but why do you want to be president?"

"Because Mommy," stated Ernest, "when you're president, you get to run everything."

Ernest already had become self-nominated, self-elected president of his treehouse club with "no girls allowed." He was also a big wheel in his cub scout pack because he could scream the loudest and make everyone give in.

ONE DAY IN CLASS, the teacher, Miss Abecrombie, gave a composition to be done on "What I Like to be When I Grow Up."

While all the boys in his class wanted to be fireman or baseball players, Ernest wrote on his plan of becoming President of the United States beeause "you get to run everything."

After reading the entire composition, Miss Abecrombie was at the least shocked, and she immediately phoned Mrs. Zink.

"HELLO, Mrs. Zink, this is Ernest's teacher, Miss Abecrombie," said the middle-aged woman. "I'm concerned over Ernest's abnormal attitude. Did you know he wants to be President of the United States?"

"Oh no, don't tell me he still has that notion in his head," replied Mrs. Zink.

"Well, I'm going to send Ernest to our school nurse toworrow and I'm sure she can tell us what action to take."

The next morning, young Ernest was sitting on a soft pillowy chair in the nurse's office answering questions.

"Ernest, why do you want to become President of the United States?" asked the nurse.

"BECAUSE I WANT TO BE a big shot," revealed Ernest.

"Do you hate your mother and father?" questioned the nurse.

"No! I love Mommy and Daddy and especially my dog, Zud."

"So, you like your dog Zud better than your parents, heh, Ernest?"

"Yes."

"Why Ernest? Tell me why."

"Because he listens to me and he obeys me and I'm the only one who feeds him. If Zud does something bad, I get mad at him and he begs for mercy. I love Zud."

"Now I see, Ernest," said the nurse.

"Ernest, I'm going to recommend that you be placed in a remedial class right away."

So for the rest of his grammar school days, little Ernest Zink attended remedial class.

SEVERAL YEARS LATER, Ernest entered high school and became interested in drama. He was a natural to portray Napolean Bonaparte in "Waterloo."

In his junior year, Ernest was given the lead in "Lady Bird" as Lyndon Johnson. But his greatest accomplishment was the characterization of Adolf Hitler in "Mein Kampf."

Ernest was so great in "Mein Kampf," especially in his ability to yell and scream like a maniac, that he won a scholarship; only to refuse it because he had "another, more important goal in life."

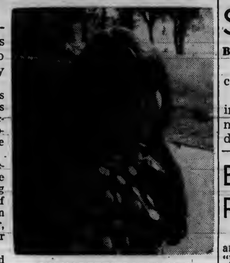
Ernest was also interested in speech. He gave dynamic lectures on his plan of becoming President of the United States and his platform as president. "I believe," began Ernest, "that a president who can control the people as well as control the Congress is a good one."

FINALLY AGAIN, ERNEST was sent to the school nurse by his speech teacher, Mr. Clarance.

"Ernest, why do you want to be president?" asked the nurse.

"Because I want to rule the country, and then perhaps the world!" screamed Ernest.

"Ernest — Ernest, settle down. You're not on a stage now," the nurse said calmly.



"Ernest, I'm going to recommend a nice psychiatrist for you."

So for the next year and a half, Ernest visited Dr. Offset once a month; however, he also began college and met Clarabelle Crump.

Will Ernest still seek to become President of the United States? Who is Clarabelle Crump? Next Issue.

Ramette Of The Week

By Dave Albertson

BERNADETTE RODRIGUEZ
"Ew, Foxey Lady"
—Photo by Dave Albertson

IF YOU ARE a half-way normal male student, it's obvious that Bernadette Rodiquez has to be one of the best sights at City College.

This Ramette of the Week supports a sparkling personality as well as being blessed with a few other delectable attributes. Her friendly approach to life tends to promote more than her share of good will.

Bernadette is presently a competing contestant for the City College Homecoming Queen contest along with 15 other aspirant queens. If you are interested in catching an eyeful of this all-around looker, make it to the judging at college hour next Thursday.

This Ramette originally appeared in a story in The Guardsman last semester called "Distractions On Campus." If you happen to spot her around, it's very easy to see why she's considered a distraction on campus.

Bernadette is 19 years old and anxious to get into the medical field as a medical assistant. Once the Dr. Kildares catch wind of Bernie's ambition, they will probably be more than anxious to get her in the medicine field. She is in her third semester at City College and is planning on going into the medical profession in "... about a year or so."

Bernadette has a well-developed Spanish background and is presently busy in the Spanish student functions on and off campus.

Perhaps the most proper and fitting description of Bernadette comes from the red-hot pen of one of England's top recording artists. Jimi Hendrix must of been thinking of our ramette when he wrote his tune appropriately titled "Foxey Lady."

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

● Who's Intellectual?

Editor, The Guardsman:

The title of intellectual has often been dubbed upon people who have not been worthy of being held in such high esteem. Carol Andreychik, crowned an intellectual in your column "Ramette of the Week" on October 16th, 1968, is just such a person, and by giving Carol Andreychik the title of intellectual, your paper has lowered itself to her name calling, her prejudices, and her hypocritical mannerisms as a basis for intelligence, and therefore, your Guardsman is no better off either.

I ask how can Carol Andereychik truly be intellectual when she refuses to seek both sides of a question?

"Carol is a fiery free-talking intellectual who likes to meet and talk with all kinds of good people except pure agitators." Who is a good person? Only those who agree with her point of view? Who is a pure agitator? Only those with long-hair like Socrates, Pocohontas, Karl Marx, or Jesus Christ? If Carol Andreychik is your idea of a person of intellect then why does she rely on name-calling ("long-haired goons," "weirdos," and agitators") rather than using a more dignified method of reference toward her fellow human beings?

I can not answer the above questions, but I do know this, if Carol Andreychik were truly an intellectual, she would be writing this letter and not me. She would be writing your paper, expressing her anger for the poor manner in which her particular article had been worded.

QUOTE: "In reply to what she thought of long hair, she snarled... If half of those long-haired goons..." The picture of Carol Andreychik clearly shows her hair to be long, and if the above is what she thinks of long hair, the way your paper has expressed it in essence means she is calling herself a goon. Whether this was intentional on her part or on your part I could not say. I don't think an intellectual person could make such a grave slip as to get trapped with the wording of a question and make a fool of themself. So maybe Carol Andreychik does think of herself as a goon, and you think of her as an intellectual.

And finally, I would like to say that it is too bad our paper has made fun of yours by our "APE." But didn't you deserve it with your 2-out-of-4 hate-long-hair Ramette girls? I think so. Why don't you ask questions of real importance instead of questions which are so minor as hair lengths? Aren't you above that yet? Pick all the Ramette girls that hate us as you like, but don't pawn them off on us as intellectual just because they hate long-haired goons. Instead crown them intellectual when they show you that they have broken the barriers of hate and prejudice. Carol Andreychik was your biggest mistake so far; you wanted to make her your intellect-in-shining armor only because she hates us long-haired goons, and so do you. You feel yourself to be intellectual too, but is obvious to us goons that you, "the Guardian" (sic), are not.

David Rossit

'Rebels' Cool Off Racial Tensions, School Problems

By Barbara Hamann

Robert Mantell of the Mission Rebels last week addressed an Experimental College group on "Operation Motivation," a new counselling program designed to assist the San Francisco school system with student's school problems.

Mantell who heads the program explained that Operation Motivation's goal is to encourage students to remain in school and helps to eliminate student unrest on both school campuses. "With this program we feel we've come up with a solution acceptable to students, teachers, administration and parents," said Mantell.

He said one major problem is communication.

"WHAT THE HELL are they teaching kids today? They teach them about yesterday and tomorrow, but never about today. They're not allowing students to think," he said. Out of 70 per cent of the drop outs, 82 per cent are minorities which by white standards are above normal intelligence."

He remarked that the good instructors are being pressured by the administration. "Let the teachers teach and let the administrators keep their noses out and go on shuffling papers," he said.

Recently, Mantell and Barbara Author, another head counsellor of the program, were called upon to cool off racial violence at Denman Junior High School. Their effectiveness was such that it eased the tension and astounded the school authorities. The cooling off period gave the principal time to analyse the cause of the outbreak.

"We're trying to keep the young people together," he said. "Hope for this country is the youth of today because they'll be running the country tomorrow."

OPERATION MOTIVATION provides the Mission Rebels Personnel with an opportunity to meet with teachers and principals and suggest new ways for handling student problems.

Tutorial Program To Help Students Help Themselves

By James Pope

Helping students to help themselves is the aim of the new on-campus Tutorial Program here at City College of San Francisco.

Designed to help those students who have serious problems in their studies, the tutorial service has a two-fold purpose: to make up basic shortcoming educational backgrounds of some students, and to help others with specific subjects.

Students here come from a wide range of educational backgrounds. In some cases, these students were unable to get enoguh basic education to allow them to pursue higher learning without great handicap.

SINCE THE PROGRAM is intended to help students with these basic problems, tutors working with these persons will be required to take the greatest responsibility in the program.

Through close contact between tutors and those tutored and it is expected that a constant dialog can be maintained permitting closest possible supervision of a student desiring help.

For those students who do not lack fundamentals but rather desire help with a specific subject, the program will act as a referral service giving information on qualified tutors for the desired subject, and then allowing students to set up their own meeting arrangements.

Brad Borel, Tutorial Program Coordinator, stated that the currently projected staff will consist of himself, Assistant Coordinator Lola Brums, and Administrative Secretary Pat Bright. Also, about six student employees will be needed to take care of secretarial work.

It was pointed out that while tutors may be paid for their services, it is desired that payments be limited to those tutors having financial need. In the meantime, a large number of volunteer tutors are still needed.

WITH 125 tutors and 90 students now registered, space is not yet at a premium but it is expected that these numbers will inerease once the program is underway. While most tutoring will be done in the Tutorial Center, extra classroom space will be provided if needed.

Although no starting date has been set, Borel said the program will begin to function in earnest as soon as administrative procedure is set and supplies can be made available.

Efforts Grow In Prop. 'I' Support

Students and faculty of the college are rallying in support of Proposition "I" as November 5 draws near.

Faculty members are participating in a post card campaign and in a house-to-house canvass scheduled for this Saturday. Student volunteers are distributing posters and bumper stickers.

The passage of the proposition, which provides for revising the present school tax limit of $2.25 for each $100 assessed valuation to $3.53, is vital if schools are to maintain their present level of education.

98 cents of the proposed increase will be needed to maintain the present approved level and 10 cents needed to permit the school district to initiate essential new programs.

The demands made upon the public schools in San Francisco are such that the present school tax rate for their support has reached maximum limit permitted by law although many urgent needs have not been met.

Homecoming Queen Gets Crowned Next Thursday

Homecoming Week will conclude next Thursday with the crowning of the Homecoming Queen during College Hour on the football field.

Each club or organization is allowed to enter two contestants to represent them. Contestants are not required to belong to the club they represent, but they must attend the college and currently have a 3.0 grade point average.

Judges for the contest will be selected by Student Counell. Additional information may be obtained by contacting Richard Shirley in ES-109.

Labelled And Recorded

Exploiting The Sound Of TV

by Martin J. Arbunich

EXPERIMENTATION with sound is one of the next projects to be undertaken by a local TV station. According to a reliable source, channel 44, the UHF TV station here which is closely affiliated with KSAN and KNEW radio locally, is planning an experience in stereophonic sound accompanied by a visual display of lights on the TV screen.

The plan is to synchronize the stereo sound of KSAN radio with the visuals of channel 44 to present a color light show with simultaneous audio accompaniement, something similar to the light-sound presentations at the ballrooms here.

The proposed program really isn't a new technique. Walt Disney brought stereophonic right into living rooms years ago by presenting one of his color programs on TV along with dual channel stereo sound. One channel was represented by the TV voice itself, the other was a local radio station which played at the same time.

Apparently his experiment didn't go over very well since he never followed it up with anything of the same nature on TV. Stereo sound was in its pioneer stage, and the project was undoubtedly premature. The audience for stereo was small and the system still needed more exposure to get accepted.

It's odd that almost all the visual possibilities of TV have been exploited, perfected and exhausted over the years, but the audio portion, which was conceived long before the video, has stayed almost untouched, despite all its apparent possibilities.

The industry has come up with such marvels as live broadcasting and color on the screen, yet it's hard to believe that the sound of a TV set hasn't exceeded a four inch speaker capable of performing only the essentials of sound communication. It's a lack of balance that certainly needs some attention.

Stereo TV would appear to be one of the next logical steps forward with the television, unless the industry thinks they can still squeeze some more juice out of the visuals. Actually it's surprising that stereo, which has won overwhelming acceptance on the radio-phonograph level, has not been put on the TV market long before this date.

It will be interesting to see if the KSAN-channel 44 project has any effect on the direction the TV industry will take in the near future.

• • •

The rock music class of the Experimental College here is hurting for more people who have something to say about the music.

Turnouts have been small for the last two meetings, and the class would like to see more students sign up and come to the weekly discussions.

Rosalie Wolf is the adviser and she requests that all interested students either get in touch with her in her office (C-332E) or drop in on the next class meeting, Tuesday at 7 p.m. The class has some excellent discussions plans set for future meetings, but they're a little short on people to keep the ball rolling.

• • •

There are some hot shows in town this weekend. While the goblins are stalking the city tomorrow night, the Family Dog people will have their own little freak show with fire-eaters and magicians—and music by John Mayall, Canned Heat and Sir Douglas Quintet & 2. It will take place at Winterland.

Fillmore (Th-F-S): Procol Harum, Santana and Saloom-Sinclair. Avalon (F-S-S): The Byrds, Taj Mahal and Genesis.

Rams Squeak By Gladiators, 24-20

Vol. 67, No. 7 WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 30, 1968 Page 4

Ram's Soccer Team Clipped By San Mateo

By Patrick Chan

In a hotly fought contest the San Mateo Bulldogs narrowly edged the faltering Ram soccer team, 2-1.

Otey Cannon showed off his All-American form in the first quarter by taking a pass from Ahmad "Frenchie" Helmy and booting it in for the Ram's only score of the day.

Cannon and Al Chu, last years All-American team members, have fared well although being held to a minimum amount of goal production. Their best scoring game this season came against Balboa High when Cannon scored four goals and Chu three.

SINCE THE 10-0 Balboa slaughter the Ram booters have played just as well except the competition is getting a little steeper. The University of San Francisco Dons and San Mateo have come up with very impressive attacks in defeating the Rams. The season ahead should prove to produce more victories as the Booters are now pass the tougher league competition.

Luck seemed to be on San Mateo's side that afternoon even though the Rams completey dominated offensive action in the first half.

During that half the Bulldogs had only one good shot at the goal and that was stopped by goalie Vince Attard, with a SPECTACULAR save.

SAN MATEO played the long kicking game in the first half as they tried to get some breaks but the brilliant defensive work of Al Soares, Ken Berzin, Pete Bogatsky and Bravilio Triqueros stopped them cold.

It was an entirely different story in the second half, however, as early in the third quarter San Mateo got onto the scoreboard after a wild scramble in front of the Ram goal which finally resulted in a Bulldog kicking the ball in over Attard's head.

SEVERAL MINUTES later San Mateo scored again, this time because of a ball that just barely managed to slip pass Attard's straining fingertips.

Later on the Bulldogs again scored but the goal was called because of an offside penalty.

It was during the third quarter that coach Roy Diederichsen lifted starting goalie Vince Attard for Bill Christensen. He provided good relief as there was no further scoring from the Bulldogs in the game.

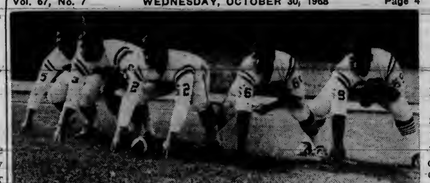
Christensen saved a possible goal during a wild mixup in front of his own goal. He barely managed to use his arm to push away the ball to another teammate who kicked it away.

WITH THE SCORE now 2-1 the Rams started playing the kind of game that makes City College the toast of Junior College soccer—but to no avail.

The Ram offensive wall of Jerry Tighe, Ahmad Helmy, Otey Cannon, Al Chu and Jose Tovar had several good chances to make goals—but was unsuccessful in its attempts.

For example, All-American Otey Cannon made a breath-taking run through open territory, running down two defenders, and then with only the goalie between him and the goal —his kick went wide of the net.

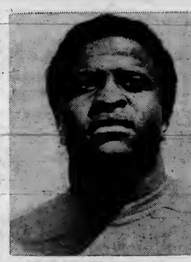
ANOTHER KICK ATTEMPTED by Cannon appeared to have tied the score but all it did was bounce off one of the goal posts.



Throughout the second half the Rams put up a great effort by putting forth a persistent offensive trust.

Harry (Super-Sub) Best put on a great performance on both offense and defense while a two time All-City Clive Butler showed flashes of brillance as a play maker.

The game ended deep within Ram territory after a long kick by San Mateo.



IN AN INTERLEAGUE game the next day the Rams edged the University of Pacific 2-1. Otey Cannon scored both goals, one of which came on a penalty kick.

Today the Rams play Diablo Valley in a game at Balboa Stadium. The game starts at 3:15 and there is no admission charge.

RAM OFFENSIVE TEAM from left to right; right tackle Andre Hicks, right guard Dan Parrish, center Bill McKenna, left guard Monty Consani, left tackle Ed Diaz.

All-Conference Linebacker Pittman Signifies Spirit Of '68 Ram Football Team

ARICE PITTMAN, The Rams returning All-Conference defensive ace.

ARICE PITTMAN signifies the spirit of the 1968 football team. Leadership, enthusiasm, hustle and knowhow are qualities that come natural to him. Being an All-Conference linebacker last year, has spurred him on to repeat and better this feat this year.

On the field whether during practice or a game, he sparks the team with his spirited yells, claps, and rally-ups. Pittman is a native of Tulsa, Oklahoma. He began his football career in the ninth grade as a fullback with a 4.2 ball carrying average. In the tenth grade he also played fullback acquiring a 5.0 average. During his junior and senior year in high school he played linebacker where he now plays and plays well.

During last season he earned the respect of many a running back on the opposing team as well as those on his own. His great agility, speed, and hard-hitting makes him stand out among the rest. Another quality that Pittman has is his hunger for victory; he hates to lose. But when he does he tries to accept it as a good athlete does, with honor and with good sportsmanship. Pittman's idea of a good linebacker is Dick Butkus of the Chicago Bears. He admires Butkus because he hits hard, and one thing that Pittman does is hit hard, on the field that is.

SINGING IS among many hobbies that Pittman enjoys, and like football he does it well. Pittman hopes to leave City College and continue his education and football career in a four-year college and possibly pro-ball. Knowing Pittman with all his ability and will power, he'll make it.

Pittman appears to be duplicating his All-Conference performance of last year. In the past victory over Foothill, he teamed with fellow linebacker Gerry Dyson and the defensive line in holding the Owls to 50 yards rushing in the entire game.

—R.B.

Bell, Miller Star While Defense Shines At Chabot

By Phil DiCarlo

Friday was a perfect evening in Hayward for outdoor entertainment. Featuring the dance team of Miller and Bell, magician Willie Lewis, the sweet sounds of the Arice Pittman's Band and a guest appearance by soloist Madame Luck, the City College of San Francisco Ram Players brought their current road show to Chabot College. At the end of the performance, the Rams had 24, the audience 20.

JOESIAH BELL and Doyle Miller, Ram halfbacks, could have danced all night through the holes ripped open by the great Ram offensive line. Bell rushed for 133 yards, (110 in the first half), Miller for 146, (119 gained in the second half), as the two backs split the duty with 20 carries apiece. Willie Lewis who personally wrecked a few teams last year with his power running, is being stalked relentlessly this year. Consequently, his running statistics aren't very impressive. He just scores touchdowns—like magic. Lewis scored two more Friday night and had another called back. "We don't worry about Lewis' yardage," remarked Coach Dutch Elston. "Oh it'd be nice for him to have it (yardage), but he makes the key block on all these runs—his yardage is Bell's and Miller's."

The Rams gained 503(!) yards in total offense (enough to win two games said Elston), but barely held on to win the game. If it weren't for Pittman's Rock and Rollers, the outcome might have been different. Linebacker and signal-caller Pittman and his defensive mates forced Chabot's Gladiators to fumble the ball three times in the second half, all in Ram territory. Jim Farnham, Hilton Dillion, and little Jim Anderson recovered Gladiator bobbles. Greg Jackson and Farnham got their first interceptions of the year, while Mike Baines got one to go with the two he got the week before. Those three fumbles and three interceptions tell us a lot about the progress of the defensive unit. The defense, which had been burned all year long by their opponent's passing, allowed Chabot to complete only 13 of 33 passes.

WITH ALL THEIR OFFENSE, penalties almost did the Rams in, again. Taking the opening kick-off, the Rams drove down the field to a second down on the Gladiator one-half yard line. On the next play the Rams were detected off-side which set them back to the five and a half. Bell got no place on a plunge into the line and then Tom Mayfield made his only mistake of the night, throwing an interception right into a swarm of defenders. With 4:09 left in the first period, end Paul Cutteridge took a 16 yard pass from Mike Salsedo for a Gladiator score. Nico Futterer added the extra point for a seven to nothing Chabot lead.

As the quarter ended, Jackson got his interception on the Ram 20. Eight plays later Bell swept over from the five to tie the game. In that drive Miller broke up the middle for an apparent 54 yard touchdown scamper. This was nullified by a very questionable clipping call at the Ram line of scrimmage. Two plays later, another 15 yard penalty was tacked on. The Rams faced a second and 40 and the situation was getting ridiculous. But Bell churned up the middle of the field for 18 yards and the Dynamic Duo (Mayfield and Bayard) got into action. Tom Mayfield lofted a long one downfield to Ralph Bayard who had beaten his man. The play was good for 58 yards.

With the score tied at seven, the second half got under way, along with the scoring. On the third play of the half, Farnham intercepted a Salsedo pass on the Ram one yard line. Only six plays were required for the Rams to cover the 99 yards for the go-ahead score. The drive, highlighted by Miller's weaving 60 yard dash, was climaxed by a 19 yard Mayfield to Lewis aerial for the touchdown.

CHABOT WAS NOT finished yet as they came right back with Salsedo throwing to John Mabray for the final three yards.

Chabot tried an on-side kick next and almost recovered it. City College of San Francisco was up to the challenge, scoring three minutes later as Lewis drove over from the four. Bell added the two point conversion on an end run to give the Rams the lead again, 21-14.

Paul Barry, Gladiator back, took Bill McDonough's short punt, minutes later, on the dead run and didn't stop until he reached the Ram end zone. The return covered 56 yards, but Futterer missed the extra point, and the tie. Hensley kicked a 31 yard field goal to add some insurance with 8:27 left in the game. From then on it was bite your nails and admire the Ram defense. It got pretty nervous out there.

Merritt's explosive Thunderbirds are here Friday for a two p.m. game.

Guardsman, Delts Teams To Beat As Intramurals Roll

Intramural Basketball action was highlighted by the Apaches' victory over Alpha Kappa Rho, 62-61, in an overtime battle last Tuesday. Other games saw Hotel and Restaurant trounce the Mission Rebels, 69-22, the Rookies slip by the Ball, 57-48, and Black Students Association gaining a victory over Alpha Sigma Delta through a forfeit.

TERRY SMITH'S hot shooting fell short in the closing seconds of the overtime game as he failed to pull his slumping AKR teammates out. Smith finished with 27 points, the night's high. Juan Warez, Rene Revel, and Vie Sproul balanced the Apaches' attack with 15 and ten points respectively.

High for the H&R's debacle was Davey Williams with 14. Len Kick led the losers valiant efforts with ten digits.

Greg Medearis, second leading scorer for the evening with 20, paced the Rookies smooth attack. Stan Hunt popped in 13 points for the losers.

AFTER SEVERAL practice games before last Tuesday's opening, The Guardsman led by Lightning Len Ribeiro and Phi Delta led by Dale Sutton looked like the teams to beat. Alpha Phi Epsilon also looks tough this season.

Tomorrow night sees AKR against the Rookies at 7 p.m. in the men's gym, and ASD playing the Apaches at the same time in the women's gym. These are followed at 8 p.m. by the Mission Rebels and BSA in the men's gym, and the Villagers and H&R in the women's gym.

RAMblings

Track In Olympics: Protests And Thrills

by Doug Boston

THE TRACK AND FIELD events in the XIX Olymiad will be remembered not only for the Tommie Smith-John Carlos incident but for the thrilling achievements of the most accomplished athletes in the world at sky-high Mexico City.

The most astounding performance of the games was the incredible feat of University of Texas at El Paso star Bob Beamon. He had qualified to participate in the finals of the long jump on his final attempt.

BEAMON WAS given little chance against the co-favorites Ralph Boston of the U.S. and Igor Ter-Ovanesyan of Russia, both of whom experts felt might break the 28-foot barrier.

On his first jump, Beamon hit the take off area and didn't make his landing until he had been airborn 29-2½ feet which broke the world record by almost two feet. Nobody does that kind of thing in the Olympics.

Teacher Bill Toomey brought the Decathlon title back to the U.S. with a super effort. It was obvious he had mastered all 10 track and field tests.

IN SETTING a new Olympic record for total points, the physically spent Toomey expressed his thoughts, "I had looked forward to the Decathlon and trained hard, but it was the worst time of my life." He credited his 45.6 time in the 400 meter run as his best effort.

Nobody will ever forget Oregon State's Dick Fosbury and the "Fosbury Flop." His unique style of going over the high jump bar backwards was frowned upon by many spectators.

So Fosbury went to the Olympics to prove his unorthodox method of jumping was as good or better than the conventional way. He "flopped" his way to a gold by clearing 7-4¼ and a new Olympic record.

The major disappointment in the track competition had to be Jim Ryun's failure to win the 1500 meter run. He had won the trial heat easily, starting slow and finishing fast.

In the final, he was beaten by a great long distance runner Kip Keino of Kenya. Keino took the lead in the second lap and forced Ryun to abandon his strategy of laying back. Ryun had to speed up to stay in the race and the famous kick was too little and too late.

Keino won by 30 yards, even though Ryun ran a 3:37.8. It was a heartbreaking loss for Ryun, who had trained four years in preparing for the Olympics.

FINALLY, THE U.S. relay teams were overwhelming in the 400 and 1600 meter runs. In the 400, Jim Hines ran the anchor leg, catching and passing Cuba's Enrique Figuerola to win in 38.2 for a world record. At the finish Hines tossed the baton into the stands a la the new John David Crow.

In the 1600, the team of Vince Mathews, Ron Freeman, Larry James and Lee Evans set a world record as James opened an unsurmountable lead in the third leg and Evans sprinted the entire last 400 meters in his rugged style to beat the team from Kenya.

City College's First Water Polo Squad Sinks In Initial Matches

City College's first water polo team "drowned" in their first two matches against Gold Gate Conference foes.

In the Ram's opening debut against Foothill (last year's state champs), City College went down quietly to the score of 35-4. It was not until the second match that the Rams scored their first goal.

John Hitchcock and Jeff Nelson led the onslaught for the Owls with six and five goals a piece. Dave Nelson and Rich Glass were the only players to score for the Rams. Nelson scored three, as Glass added one.

Two days later, against Diablo Valley, the results were exactly the same as City College got dumped 29-6.

Nelson again starred in a losing cause with four goals to his credit. Frank Achim gave added support with two more goals.

In their first two games the Rams have scored only ten goals while allowing 62. Nelson leads the club in scoring with a total of seven, followed by Achim with two and Glass with one.

Due to a lack of facilities, all games will have to be played away. The Rams will meet Chabot today with another game against Foothill tomorrow.—B.C.

Military Veterans Get New Benefits

Newly enacted legislation, passed on October 20, will expand education benefits to military veterans at the college who have 24 months or less of active service.

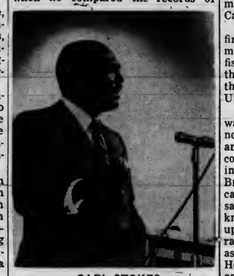
Until recently, the veteran has been receiving educational assistance on a month-for-a-month basis. Aid was given for 24-school months in return for 24 months of active duty.

The law now gives benefits for a month and a half of schooling for each month of military service with a maximum of 36 school months or an equivalent of 24 months of service. Thus, four years of college, where nine months constitute a school year, will be guaranteed by the measure.

The amount of the benefit is dependent upon the units a veteran is carrying. Seven units will provide half benefits. Ten units will entitle a veteran to three-quarter benefits, and 14 units will give full benefits.

Further information is available in ES-204.

Cleveland Mayor Stokes Backs HHH In BSA Sponsored Speech Here Last Thursday



By Phil DiCarlo and Floyd Banks

Carl Stokes, Mayor of Cleveland, stopped off at the college last Thursday afternoon during his whirlwind tour of the Bay Area and spoke to a gathering of about 1000 students and faculty at the athletic stadium.

It was a last minute idea, as the Black Student's Association, with help from Supervisor Terry Francois, didn't secure the Mayor's services until late Wednesday evening. The BSA did a great job of getting organized for the Major's arrival and everything went off smoothly. Dean Ralph Hillsman said "it's a great privilege for the college to have Mayor Stokes at our campus."

To the disappointment of many, Stokes, who wore a sharp-looking blue suit, spoke almost entirely about Hubert Humphrey and gave reasons why HHH should be President.

Stokes did draw numerous laughs and much applause during his speech. The biggest laugh of the day came when he compared the records of the Presidential candidates with a boy telling a girl that he loves her. "Examine what the fella said," remarked Stokes, "why did he say that tonight? What's on his mind? Did he really mean it? Is that the only way he..." (the laughter has steadily risen to a point where Stokes must pause) "well, you understand."

CARL STOKES —Guardsman photo by Ulmer T. McKnight

Another big laugh (and spontanous applause) was heard when Stokes said that if George Wallace hadn't been given all the national exposure, he'd be down on a farm in Alabama where he belongs. When he finished his speech, Stokes was whisked off to his shiny limousine to a huge ovation, with many people standing. Because of his tight secdule the proposed question and answer session was not held.

REACTION TO STOKES VISIT

Derrick Hill, Associated Students President — "Stokes came to push Humphrey and to see his black brothers. Stokes is something for all black people to strive for. We have got to get together."

James Billbury, Publisher of the Black Guard—"What ever Stokes does for Black people, is all right."

Don Herman, BSA President—"I have a lot of reservations about Humphrey, but none about Stokes. He is an honorable man."

Bob Tealer, Counseler — "Look at the records, there is no alternative (but Humphrey)."

Vern Henderson, security guard for Stokes and Chairman of Black Curriculum for the BSA — "Politicians have to talk politics. I don't support Humphrey, but I dig Stokes."

Ribeiro Appointed Chairman For Cultural Affairs

By Ben Marinas

Leonard Ribiero was appointed by Associated Students President Derrick Hill as the new chairman of the Cultural Affairs Committee last October 14.

The Cultural Affairs Committee, composed of three student representatives and three faculty members, function together along with the Student Council for the purpose of bringing noted local, national and international figures to the campus.

Al Wong, Councilman of Associated Students and Bob Frier are also members of the committee. The three faculty members of the committee are Ted Taylor, Political Science instructor, Raymond Early, English instructor and Dean Warren White.

THE COMMITTEE plans well in advance who they wish to appear on campus. Once a decision has been made, the request is sent to Dean White who either phones up a prospective speaker or asks a booking agent, such as the College Association for Public Events, to set up a date with the speaker.

Local speakers may receive from $50 to $200 and National and foreign speakers from $200 to $800. The committee receives funds from the Student Council budget each semester. Last semester, the Student Council allotted the committee about $4000 for the continuation of the program.

The program has now been running with student faculty relationship for the past three years. Ribeiro feels that the program has exceeded initial objectives and has added depth to the college as a major institution for higher learning.

RIBEIRO FEELS the Cultural Affairs Program is of great value since it exercises student control who should appear on campus to speak on controversial topics. Another valve he sees in the program is that "by having a Cultural Affairs Committee, you have one sole unit whose function is to provide the Associated Students with a concert-lecture series of the highest caliber." This week a poll will be taken by the committee to try and get the most popular personalities with the students.

In the future, the committee plans to have more local personalities to lecture on campus. The committee hopes to have enough funds from the Student Council to upgrade the program. The committee seeks suggestions from students whom they want to appear on campus. Anyone interested should contact Ribeiro in ES-107K or Dean White in ES-107A.

Disc Jockey To Present Queens

Ray Talefero, of KNEW in Oakland, will be master of ceremonies at the presentation ceremony of the homecoming queens tomorrow during College Hour at the football field.

This year's homecoming festivities will differ from all other's in the past. Instead of one queen, there will be at least 19 queens. According to Rich Shirley, chairman of the festivities, COO decided to do away with the traditional first, second, and third places and, instead will have all of the candidates from the various clubs be the queen for that club. In this way the committee hopes to avoid having friction between the clubs.

At the rally, the queens will receive bouquets of white carnations and small trophies.

The queens so far are Bernadette Rodriguez, Spanish Speaking Students Organization; Norine Davis, A Capella Choir; Lynn Scharfen, Phi Beta Rho; Sharon Bacon, Beta Tau; Norma Patrick, Ram Ski; Florine Gallegos, Intercollegiate Students for Social Action; Candy Ladrech, Newman; Dale Greenberg, Hillel; Charlotte De Loach; Collegiate Christian Science Fellowship; Chris Perry, Frosh; Darcell Price, Majorettes; Hattic Knox, Republicans; Charlotte Fifer, Masonic Club; and Patricia Plummer, Football team.

There will be a ten-minute powder puff game during half time of the Ram-Laney homecoming game on Friday, and at 9 p.m. there will be a dance at Smith Hall.

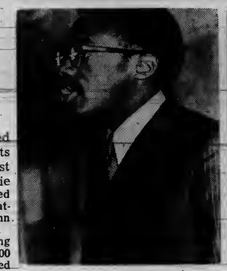
The Guardsman

Official Weekly Publication of the Students in the Journalism Department of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 67 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1968 NUMBER 8

Willie Brown Praises Smith, Carlos

Criticizes Other Black Athletes, Jenkins In Talk



By Jack Ruiz

Speaking before a packed house in the Black Students Association Bungalow 3 on last Tuesday, Assemblyman Willie Brown lashed out against the United States Olympic Committee's treatment of Tommie Smith and John Carlos.

Smith and Carlos, after finishing first and third respectively in the 200 meters, raised black gloved clenched fists on the victory platform. For their actions, they were kicked off the team and sent home by the United States Olympic Committee.

Brown stated that the real tragedy was that the other black athletes did not back their action, and that Smith and Carlos displayed a rare brand of courage in demonstrating the meaning of black power to the world. Brown referred to the "white press castigation" of the track stars and said with sarcasm, "They will be known forever as two niggers who upset the 1968 Olympic Games. I'd rather have them known for that than as two niggers who won two medals."

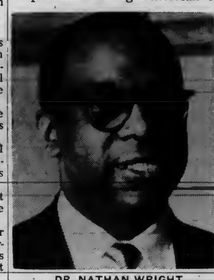
He said by this action, they gave up any chance of receiving lucerative contracts to endorse products or play professional football. He gave as an example, Jim Hines, who parleyed an Olympic gold medal into a generous contract with the Miami Dolphins of the American League.

ASSEMBLYMAN WILLIE BROWN (left) speaking to the Black Students Association last Tuesday in B-3. At right, Tommie Smith and John Carlos on the victory platform at the recent Olympics. Brown lashed out at the United States Olympic Committee for their treatment of Smith and Carlos. —Guardsman photo (left) by Ulmer T. McKnight

On another subject of grave importance, Brown spoke critically of Robert Jenkins, Superintendent of Schools who stated that his administration would crack down on demonstrations, marches, non-attendance, incitement or threats by non students or rudeness to teachers. Brown gave as an example, the Polytechnical school march, in which he participated, stating it brought positive results and was carried out in an orderly fashion.

Lashing out at the charges that Poly was a school composed of prostitutes, pimps, and drug addicts Brown said, that it was ridiculous to penalize an entire school for the actions of a few students. He said that it was the kind of thinking that surrounds black people as a unit.

On the subject of politics, Brown mentioned the trials and tribulations of passing legislature and the methods of gaining the needed vote for the bond or issues. He went into detail about the recent Democratic Convention, explaining how the different committees operate and the skullduggery they employ.



When asked how he would do in the November election, Brown, running again for assemblyman said that he was confident that he would be elected, and would defeat his opponent Kathleen Cleaver of the Peace and Freedom Party.

Dr. Nathan Wright To Speak On Black Power Tomorrow

By James Pope

Dr. Nathan Wright, Jr., Planning Committee Chairman of the 1968 National Conference on Black Power will speak on "Black Power—A Creative Force" in the College Theater tomorrow at 11 a.m.

Dr. Wright's work in the area of racial strife and his answers to problems facing American cities today have made him a respected figure among Negro leaders.

DR. NATHAN WRIGHT

AS DR. WRIGHT states in his book, Ready to Riot, current conditions of racial tension and unrest in cities are the inevitable results of a people trapped in and dehumanized by the ghetto. He believes also that the dilemma cannot be solved by control or further suppression.

Instead, he points out, there must be a devclopment of responsible leadership which will enable the Black people to shape their own role in Amercia. This, Dr. Wright feels, is the real nature of Black Power.

As Dr. Wright stated in March of this year in Newsweek magazine, "Negroes don't need white niceness. They need Black Power... Even if the concept of Black Power had been raised by the devil himself, it would not be less grace-laden for the nation and the world."

DEEPLY INVOLVED in the field of civil rights for more than two decades, Dr. Wright has served on the Massachusetts' Governor's Advisory Committee on Civil Rights, the Boston Mayor's Committee on Housing and the Executive Committee of the Massachusetts Civil Liberties Union.

Dr. Wright also organized the New England branch of CORE and served as its first field representative. In 1948, he took part in the first Freedom Ride held in the South.

A recognized author, Dr. Wright has six books to his credit, the most recent being Ready to Riot and Let's Get Together.

In his present position as Director of the Department of Urban Work for the Episcopal Dioeese of Newark, New Jersey, Dr. Wright has been able to combine his skills as an educator and expert on urban problems with his interest in his fellow man to offer new viewpoints and answers for the urban crises of that city.

Council Approves 'Beautification' Of AS Bungalows

A "beautification" project of painting the college's bunglows has been approved by Student Council and has received $125 in funds.

The exterior of three bunglows will be affected by this project. They are the Experimental College, the Black Students' Association and the new Tutorial Center.

Tentative colors for the bunglows are, according to Trenton Browne, Councilman, orange and yellow for the Experimental College, charteuse and royal blue for the Tutorial Center and black for the BSA.

Although the project has already received backing from Student Council, it still might be halted by opposition from the Administration.

Though paint for the project will be supplied by Council, the actual job of painting the bunglows will be left up to members of the various organizations involved.

Student Council also elected a new Sophomore Councilman last week in Van Nickerson, who has replaced Fred Wilson.

Council also allocated $600 and $300 to the BSA and Lettermen Society to hold their two banquets.

Departments Aid Work Study Plan

Forty separate departments on the City College campus are participating this semester in the Federal College Work Study program. (A 10 per cent increase over last semester.) 104 students are being utilized in the joint federal-city sponsored program, and include a balanced section of the ethnic composition of the college.

The 104 students perform essential tasks for the departments concerned involving basic skills such as typing and shorthand.

All applicants must meet basic requirements established by the Federal government. These include: American citizenship, 2.0 GPA, and a 12 unit academic load of study.

The Guardsman Editorial Page
Official Weekly Publication of the Students in the Journalism Department of City College of San Francisco
MIKE DUGGAN, Editor
Vol. 67, No. 8 | WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1968 | Page 2

College Press Viet Poll

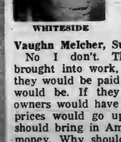
ACCORDING TO A POLL conducted by the Associated Collegiate Press during the second week of October, a majority of the nation's college newspaper editors favor stopping all bombing in Vietnam in order to further peace negotiations.

Editors were asked: Regarding the conflict in Vietnam and peace negotiations, I favor (a) stopping all bombing, (b) increased military effort to deal strength and (c) a middle course of military action.

RESULTS INDICATED 52 PER CENT FAVORED stopping all bombing, 24 per cent increased military action, 22 per cent a middle course and two per cent called for stopping all bombing and immediate withdrawal. Of those who voted, 65 per cent were males.

Our vote was for stopping all bombing, and we also agree with the two per cent who called for immediate withdrawal, although this did not appear on the ballot.

Support For Homecoming



THIS IS homecoming week at City College. Homecoming week in the past few years has not been played up as a big thing. Interest must be shown by the students if homecoming is to start rising and eventually become one of the big events of the school year.

Tomorrow at College Hour will be a homecoming rally where students have the opportunity of seeing the homecoming queen candidates. Friday is the homecoming football game with our Rams meeting Laney for the first time ever in a league game.

Friday night there will be a dance in Smith Hall to end the week's activities on campus. We urge the students to support our homecoming activities, for only in this way can City College's homecoming program improve in the years to come.

Contact Lens

Do You Support The Delano Grape Pickers Boycott?

WHITESIDE

Gloria Whiteside, Teacher Assisting Major
Yes, because something has to be done for those migrant workers. They're exploited, and their living conditions are rotten. Unions are the only way the little man will get anywhere. Boycotting is starting it off, but people want overnight solutions and they take time. Some sort of communication has to be established. I'm all for people getting together to try to solve their problems. People should live like human beings instead of animals.

MELCHER

Vaughn Melcher, Surveying Major
No I don't. These Mexican-Americans were brought into work, and they were told how much they would be paid and what their living condition would be. If they were paid higher wages, the owners would have to cut down on help and grape prices would go up. If the strike continues, they should bring in Americans who are poor and need money. Why should we bring in others when we have our own unemployment problems.

WINN

Pamela Winn, Advertising Art Major
Yes, because the conditions are terrible. I have a girl friend who lives in Delano and she told me that the living conditions were terrible. The farm owners are supposed to be real crappy people. I don't buy any more grapes now. I would pay more for grapes if the wage increase affected the price of grapes because I think the money will eventually go back to the pickers. People should refrain from buying grapes if they support it.

FLOWERS

Bert Flowers, Photography Major
I used to but because I'm anti-union I don't any more. I'm for the worker, but I'm against the union and its officials. Unions are the same as big business; it's establishment now. The whole thing started because they wanted to organize a union so the workers would have some kind of bargaining power. Since unions are establishment, union officials get their power with the help of the Democratic party, and thus become loyal to that party.

HAVERTY

Steve Haverty, Hotel & Restaurant Major
I support the boycott because I feel that the Mexican American grape pickers, primarily, are paid too little for the strenuous work that they are expected to do. Why should they break their backs all day long for peanuts? They're not asking for an exorbitant increase in pay. I think their demands are very reasonable. I hope they settle soon because I plan on having an orgy next weekend.

KARASS

Kathy Karass, Engineer Major
Yes, because they have a right to support their families. They're not getting minimum wage and if they don't get it others will try to get away with the same thing. It will precipitate mass wage decreasing. These are family men who are fighting for the right to support their families. The living conditions are sub-standard, and the children are condemned since they don't have a basic education.

—Compiled by Lavine Lee, photos by Jim Pope

Graduate Finds Hope

MARGARET STRAUB (left), a public health nurse from Montara, California, visits with youngsters in Trujillo, Peru. Accompanying her is a student nurse from the University of Trujillo School of Nursing.

Mrs. Straub is a graduate of City College of San Francisco and received her nursing education at Children's Hospital School of Nursing, San Francisco. She has served with Project HOPE in Peru for 18 months.

HOPE's teaching and treatment programs are designed to help raise the level of health in underdeveloped areas of the world. The hospital ship S.S. HOPE is now mid-way in a ten-month mission to Colombo, Ceylon. Other HOPE teaching programs continue in Colombia, Peru, Ecuador and Nicaragua.

Project HOPE is the activity of The People-to-People Health Foundation, Inc., a private, non-profit organization headquartered in Washington, D.C. Project HOPE was founded in 1958 by Dr. William B. Walsh, and is supported by contributions from American individuals and industry.

Congress To Cut Financial Aid From 'Agitators'

By Len Ribeiro

The United States Congress has just approved a bill that would cut off Federal Aid to "agitating" students. The bill will now go to President Johnson for approval before it becomes law.

Sources at the financial aids office here say the bill will not become effective until signed by the Chief Executive. In addition, they believe the wording of the bill has to be considered. Much of the provisions are worded ambiguously and would have to be defined in applicable terms, they feel.

Some members of the faculty feel that the Congress has made somewhat less than a creative approach to the current social problems.

Students currently enrolled at City College are not expected to be effected even if the bill is signed into law before January 19, 1969.

Should the measure pass, officials of the Health, Education and Welfare Department will issue a set of guidelines.

The Scholarship Awards committee will act as the definitive agency for City College.

The bill provides for a two year cut off period for students convicted in court of a crime involving "force, disruption or siezure of (university) property, or of having willfully refused to obey a lawful university regulation."

Under the existing law a student cannot draw Federal Aid unless he is in good standing with his college.

Loans under the National Defense Education Act fell $50 million short of universities requests this year, with an average loan of $626. Some 78 thousand students are either being turned down or referred to other sources for aid.

Arguments against the measure contend that cancelation of Federal Aid would only cause additional hardships on students, forcing them to leave school.

Senator Frank J. Lausche (Dem.-Ohio) was quoted as saying "Students ask us for help to go through college. We give them the help, then they proceed to destroy the institutions they are attending."

The appeal of National Defense Loans is diminishing as reflected in the current attitudes of banking spokesmen, who claim that the paper work is just too much and the profit margin so small that they are considering withdrawing from the program.

Present interest rates on such loans are 7%. Until just recently the Federal Government has picked up the tab on half the interest cost. Now students pay 4%, the government 3%.

SHOOTIN' IT

by Doug Boston

SINCE THE elections were yesterday, it seems to be our duty to say something abut them. It's very difficult to do so, since this is a weekly publication, and this column was conceived one week ago.

However, we are confident that the presidential nomination was given to either of the four major candidates, Richard Nixon, Hubert Humphrey, George Wallace or Pat Paulsen. Of the four aspirants, only Paulsen is a former City College student.

Paulsen hoped to have a stag party in the White House during the next four years. He failed to obtain his goal, but his presence on the political scene was the one bright spot in an otherwise disillusioning campaign. For those unfamiliar with Paulsen's wit, you might catch him on the Smothers Brothers this Sunday night from 9-10.

• • •

LOCK YOUR DOORS: "The Boston Strangler," to which we have no relation, is now playing at various S.F. theaters. The film is based on Gerold Frank's novel, which traces the path of deranged killer Albert DeSalvo.

Director Richard Fleischer has used the split-screen technique effectively, and not in excess as done by Andy Warhol in his Chelsea Girls. The movie is realistic, and the horrid details of the 13 murders are not hidden.

Tony Curtis portrays DeSalvo, and manages to perform admirably the actions of the schizophrene killer. Curtis is the major reason for the flicks success, although it seems he doesn't enter the picture until midway.

It should be mentioned that DeSalvo's defense attorney F. Lee Bailey admitted during the trail that his client was the strangler. However, DeSalvo's new attorney has denied it, and recently requested an injunction to block the release of the film, which was denied.

Shot mostly on location in Boston, the movie also stars George Kennedy, Paul Newman's big friend in Cool Hand Luke and ageless Henry Fonda.

• • •

The San Francisco newspapers have concerned themselves with the problems of violence in the city high schools. So has Superintendant Robert E. Jenkins, who last week explained the situation and laid down a few laws. His statement was directed toward the recent demonstration at Poly, where students marched to protest a teachers letter that was displayed in the Chronicle.

In the letter, the teacher spoke of various adverse conditions at Poly (dope pushers, prostitution and other goodies) and told of the other faults of the school.

Poly students were furious about the school's facilities and teaching methods. Jenkins stated that "student marches or demonstrations would not be tolerated and could result in expulsion." Concerning the student voiced attack on the poor conditions at the high school, Jenkins told everyone that "channels already exist whereby students can register such complaints."

He also reported that over $300,000 was spent on improving Poly this summer. Wonder where all the money goes?

• • •

$$$$$$. Is BART going to finish their job or just pack up and leave Market Street the disaster case it currently is? They're having problems, financial ones, which have halted construction.

Quincy Brooks, the cost engineer for Bart says that they need $146 million or all outer Market Street work, the Daly City and Fremont bart stations, about half of the stations including some areas in these three counties, parking lots and landscaping, track and TRAINS will be without financial support.

• • •

LUCKY: We failed horribly in our attempt to qualify for the Lucky International, putting together nines of 45-33 for a grand total of 78.

Figuring that we had enough of playing golf for a while, we decided to try our luck caddying. This writer ended up with young Tommy Aaron, who has earned his share of the big money on the professional tour. He is one of fortunate players who has been able to survive on the rugged golfing circuit.

Too many people think that playing golf is all fun and no work. You don't hear about the pros going broke.

Letters to the Editor

Ram's Horn

● More Representation

Editor, The Guardsman

Thirty-six per cent (36%) of the CCSF student body feel that they are not represented in the decision-making levels in college faculty and administration groups.

Despite our high enrollment percentage, we are a minority group.

We are the Chinese-American students. We see relatively few instructors and no deans or counselors of Chinese ancestry at CCSF. We do not say that a person of our own race added to the college faculty or staff would automatically or necessarily ensure a "happier" campus, but in terms of identity and understanding particular cultural needs, their addition would promote a greater feeling of integration here.

We feel we could assist the administration in finding capable, experienced and admired Chinese-Americans to perform in the roles suggested above. There are many qualified, credentialed professionals in the school district who could be transferred here. We understand some of these have applied for appointment at CCSF and "didn't make it."

We know these people and have a list of good prospects we could submit to the administration. Could we share our knowledge and desires in future hiring?

Our thanks to the Chinese Student Association (CSA) and to the Chinese Voice (CV) for their continuing support in attempting to meet these real needs of a certain minority and, in reflection, of the college at large.

Members and Officers
Intercollegiate Students for Social Action (ISSA)

Guardsman Staff — Fall 1968

(The Guardsman is the official weekly publication of the students in the journalism department of City College of San Francisco. It is published each Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacations. The opinions expressed in the columns and editorials are those of the individual writers and not necessarily those of the Guardsman, the department or the college. Editorial office, 304, Science Hall; telephone 587-7272, extension 246.)

EDITOR IN CHIEF ..... MIKE DUGGAN
Managing Editor ..... Doug Boston
Feature Editor ..... Tom Graham
Staff Editor ..... Boku Kodama
News Editor ..... Barbara Hamann
Sports Editor ..... Dave Albertson
Editorial Assistants: Martin J. Arbunich, Lani Brand, Rita Carroll, Lavine Lee, Lynda Sandstrom.
Reporters: Randy Flynn, Leonard Ribeiro.
Cub Reporters: Floyd Banks, Ralph Bayard, Jack Blake, Dan Castro, Joe Cefalu, Patrick Chan, Lynette Conklin, Jeff DeHaas, Phil Di Carlo, Kaye Grampa, Yvonne Lew, Marianne Lim, Dan McCarthy, Florence McCarthy, Ben Marinas, Diana Matson, Alan Peizner, James Pope, Elizabath Ramos, Lester Rastorfer, Jack Ruiz, Soonsalote Schmidt, Kenneth Surface, Barbara Tyrrell, Val Vallendar, Wong Tse Yui.
Photographers: Marilyn Astaloh, Chief; Bert Flowers, Glenn Graham, Steven La Plant, Jerry Mishler, Detlef Osburg, Jens Protze, Roberto Guillan, Kavin Shea, Elmar Schmidt, McKnight, Gavin Watt, Calvin Wong, Russell Wong, Sam Woo.
Advisor: Mary Blair

DISPATCH

by Boku Kodama

AS YOU may remember from last week, Ernest Zink, since the age of seven had wanted to become President of the United States.

In grammar school, Ernest was placed in a remedial class because of his abnormal attitude.

Upon entering high school, he became very interested in drama and beautifully portrayed Napolean Bonaparte, Lyndon Johnson and Adolf Hitler.

Still, he expressed his hope of one day becoming president and was then immediately ordered to get psychiatric help for the next year and a half. Shortly afterwards, Ernest entered college.

• • •

WHILE GIVING A lecture one day in his political science class on the influences of a president upon the American society, Ernest caught the eye of Clarabelle Crump, sitting dumbly in the second aisle.

As the weeks rolled by, Ernest became more fond of Clarabelle. "Gee, Clarabelle, I love you as much as my dog Zud," he told her one day.

"Duh, that's the nicest compliment I've ever got," she replied.

In his senior year, Ernest ran for student body president. Ernest made promises but in key issues of his campaign, he was uncommitted. He had learned the professional politician's methods well.

Ernest won the election with the majority of his support coming from the average students. Upon victory, Ernest said to Clarabelle, "With the power invested in me, I can rule the school and run it the way I want."

So Ernest ran the school like a typical politician would, unable to fulfill his promises and getting things his way.

Promptly, the next year, Ernest entered law school and soon married Clarabelle. "Gosh," exclaimed Ernest, "I'm as happy as when I got Zud."

• • •

FOUR YEARS LATER, Ernest was classified by his draft board as 1-A.

Recalling the story of an old politician, Dr. Macks Rafferty, Ernest faked a limp and walked into the draft board office.

"That's a pretty bad limp you've got there, Zink," declared the doctor.

"Yes sir," answered Ernest, "and it really hurts badly sometimes."

"Okay, Zink, you're not fit for duty, your leg wouldn't stand the strain," the doctor concluded.

"Oh boy," Ernest said to himself as he left the office, "I'm not going in and now I can start my law business and work for my beloved party, the Demopublican Demagogues."

For the next 18 years, Ernest worked in his successful law office for the Demagogue Party helping in the campaigns and paper work.

Later, Ernest became chairman of the Demogoues, and ran the party, yet never running for public office. "I've only one goal now in life, and that is to become the President of the United States," revealed Ernest one day to his fellow Demagogues.

His colleagues were astonished. "Ernest, we thought you were one of us. We only let show-off, abnormal politicians run for president.

"I wanna be president, I wanna be president!!" Ernest screamed, and so right there and then the Demagogues knew exactly who they would nomiate for the presidency the following year.

• • •

ERNEST EASILY WON the nomination at the national convention and immediately began his campaign. "I promise you a better future for America and respect from abroad," he announced.

Ernest made more promises; some publicly and some secretly. To the public, he stated that crime and taxes would be lowered but never said how. Secretly, Ernest promised important men favors if they would support him.

When the election came, Ernest edged out his opponent, Waldo Moose. Moose, upon hearing of his defeat, went biserk and was readmitted to the mental wards.

Ernest was overjoyed. "Clarabelle, I did it! Now I can rule the country and perhaps later, the world!!!" he screamed.

• • •

Moral: You've got to be awful nutty to run for the presidency, or that's why we should abolish the presidency.

Royal Hunt Of The Sun Now In Final Stage Of Preparation

Royal Hunt of the Sun, now in its final stage of preparation will be the most spectacular production ever performed by the Drama Department. Eight performances will be held in the College Theater Wednesdays through Saturdays, November 13-16 and November 20-23.

"The term 'total theater' would best describe Royal Hunt," commented Dr. Walter Krumm, head of the Drama Department and director of the play. "It surrounds the audience in time and space, making impact on both the eyes and ears of the spectators."

KRUMM EMPHASIZED THAT the production involves over 60 students and six faculty members from drama, physical education, journalism, photography and the radio and TV departments. The combined efforts of the costuming, make-up, and set design staffs are required for the realization of the drama.

Feathers, fur, and gold sequins amounting to two and a quarter pounds will adorn the elaborate costumes now being designed by Margrit Affolter and her 15 assistants. Mrs. Affolter remarked, "City College has never seen anything like this. The 75 costumes required in this play more than double our previous efforts."

MUCH EXPERIMENTATION is involved in creating the makeup effects necessary to portray 17th century Spaniards and Peruvian Indians according to Maria Schrano, makeup coordinator. She along with four assistants are working with 25 pounds of makeup plus fluid bases for the actors in the cast.

Sets, designed by drama instructor Paul Crowley, have proved to be a massive undertaking. A ten foot tower capable of holding eight actors has been constructed by drama technician Malcolm Brown, and his six part time workers. They have also built an artistic abstraction of the sun. Aside from these weighty tasks, the production staff is also making armour, helmets and crucifixes from wood and cardboard.

Lene Johnson, dancing instructor, and musician Robert Kuykendall are working together to produce the dancing and musical portions of 'Royal Hunt.'

"JOHNSON'S CHOREOGRAPHY brings performers into the auditorium," Krumm said. "They move and dance to an original sound tract composed by Kuy Kendall, ranging from bird cries in the jungle to rock music played on the organ and harp."

Two professional actors from the college faculty play the leading roles: James Haran and John Coehran. Haran, who was last seen in the Actors Workshop production of Death of a Salesman, has the largest part in Royal Hunt. He is Francisco Pizarro the Spanish conqueror of the Inca civilization.—D. & F. M.

Letters to the Editor

Ram's Horn

(Letters to the Editor may be left in The Guardsman office, S-304. Deadlines are 10 a.m. each Wednesday. The Guardsman reserves the right to edit letters in the interests of brevity and rhetoric. If so desired the writer's name will be withheld, but the identity of the writer must be known to the editor.)

● Time To Be Heard

Editor, The Guardsman:

As the forty-year old candidate for the Sophomore seat on the Student Council, I would like to take this opportunity to congratulate John Richards for his letter in the October 16th Guardsman. He expressed the situation very well.

I would like to add my thoughts to his. At the present time we have a Student Council which was elected by only 1400 students, a small tenth of the school population of 14,000. Therefore, we cannot call it a representative body. And surely if you have been following its action, or rather inaction, you would realize that it speaks, when it does say something, for the few.

This is not a Council of the students, by the students, and for the students. It is a small, vocal, almost noisy, but ineffectual minority allowed to get into office by the indifference of the 13,000 students who did not vote.

It is time that we learned, not only in school politics, but in national politics, that the silent voice of the non-voter gives assent to whatever may be perpetrated by the group allowed to represent the few. And we must learn that if we differ from the few who vote, we can do nothing if we fail to vote, we have no voice, and we deserve the leadership we get.

Silence gives assent, and it is time now for the serious student to be heard. Too long have we abdicated our role in school politics, feeling that our studies came first. They still do, but we must not allow our school to be degraded by a minority which has managed to gain control of our Council. It is still up to us, the serious students, and we can regain control of it in November or December, if we will but take a look at the elections, carefully select our candidate, and above all VOTE.

Walter H. Sundberg

Lost Sex Drive Subject Of Film Festival Movie

By Raymond Gin

Czechoslovakia's Jirl Menzel, who copped last year's Oscar for his "Closely Watched Trains," a tragic-comedy concerning a young railroad dispatcher's antics in Nazi occupied Czechoslovakia, has scored again with "Capricious Summer," a gentle and provoking comedy about the human condition.

The film, shown recently at the San Francisco Film Festival, is a period comedy set during the 1920's on a small lake in the Czech countryside. Three sardonically provincial gentlemen: a lakeside bathhouse owner, a village priest, and a retired army major are passing their summer at the lake carrying on philosophical conversations that reflect middle-age weariness.

THE ARRIVAL OF A second-rate acrobat-magician and his voluptous blonde assistant shatters the trio's calm. Each in his own comical way tries to reawaken his inert and capricious sex drive by trying his hand at seducing the blond assistant. Their bumbling, terminal attempts reveal their need to reaffirm their vitality and lost youth and at the same time awaken them to the truth of middle-age. The bathhouse owner concludes, "This has been a most unfortunate summer."

Menzel's humor is underlined with tragic undertones. As each man fails in his hilarious attempt at seduction, he loses his hope and dream of recapturing youthful mirth and spirit. One by one the members of the trio become sullen and frustrated old men who must retreat to their slowly decaying lives.

Menzel has made a biting, universal statement about the human condition that all men become vulncrable to the perilous hope and illusions of regenerating youth.

MENZEL'S TECHNIQUE OF intermingling tragedy and comedy as one is especially effective in a fight scene between the villagers and the priest.

The slow-paced photography emphasizes the serene and listless mood in which the men pass their uneventful summer. A sustained pastoral beauty sets the background and enhances the men's philosophical debates on poetry and man.

The actors underplay their roles effectively. One is given dull-witted, rural-type characterizations, and a combination of subtle dialogue and wry facial expressions that become immense assets to the overall production.

"Capricious Summer" is commendable on all counts. It's coming to local theaters soon, and this reviewer highly recommends it as a movie to see.

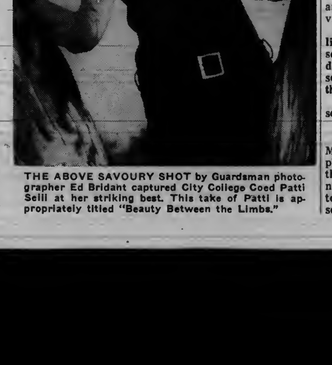
Ramette Of The Week

Unique Beauty Between The Limbs

By Dave Albertson

"Beauty Between the Limbs" by Ed Bridant is a unique caricature of an even more unique Patti Selli, who The Guardsman is pleased to present as Ramette of the Week.

This week's ramette possesses an unusual knack of getting herself into unfortunate situations. She was discovered in the midst of one of her unlucky situations by ramette scout, Mike Duggan. Duggan found her at an off campus party feverishly searching for her lost car keys. Her keys finally turned up in some guy's pocket, who undoubtedly was trying out a new girl meeting technique.



PATTI'S SENSUOUS TALENT of illustrating thoughts and feelings is a stirring feature of her captivating personality. Her constant flow of creative conversatoin combined with a magnetic charm, is enough to make the most determined male mind go bloto.

Patti offers a noteworthy and very admirable philosophical outlook. She feels that, "... people should put their own feelings aside once in awhile and try to put themselves in others. They should let down their barriers and defenses, and reach out and be able to feel what others are feeling." She added that, "People shouldn't be afraid of getting too involved and they shouldn't fear loving too much. We're capable of giving so much, yet we refuse so often. It's such a better way to understand yourself, which is so important to all of us. Getting all wrapped up in ourselves is an easy trap that many of us fall into."

WHEN ASKED ABOUT THE ANIMOSITY of certain individuals towards mini skirts and other "questionable" female fashions, she replied "...women should wear things such as mini skirts because that's what the normal male population likes. The purpose of a woman is to fulfill men's expectations in the best way she can."

A bunch of descriptive baloney would fall far short of telling the true caliber of this ramette.

Perhaps the best summation of this week's finely formed ramette was offered by an onlooking gawker at the scene of Patti's interview. Her male admirer simply spouted, "What a doll."

THE ABOVE SAVOURY SHOT by Guardsman photographer Ed Bridant captured City College Coed Patti Selli at her striking best. This take of Patti is appropriately titled "Beauty Between the Limbs."

Labelled And Recorded

Two Great Bands And Thin Crowd

by Martin J. Arbunich

IRONICALLY, one of the better programs offered at Fillmore West, with two of the world's finest bands on hand, had an amazingly thin crowd last Friday night—something which is extremely rare in these days of heavy bills and congested ballrooms.

Procol Harum is one of the best English units to come on in a long time, and they've improved remarkably since their last visit here a year ago in their precision and professionalism as a band and competence as individual musicians.

The group is unjustly underrated, and despite their important influence on people like The Band (in "Music From Big Pink") who were considered innovators immediately upon release of their record, recognition as a significant facet of pop music today is strictly an underground actuality for Procol Harum. Elsewhere, they're remembered only as a band who once had a top ten hit, which by far is only one of their many momentous accomplishments.

Pianist Gary Brooker has put together some exquisite arrangements, many of them in the classical vein, and Keith Reid pens sophisticated lyrics. ("Outside the Gates of Cerdes/ Sits the two-pronged unicorn/ Who plays at relaxation time/The rhinestone flugel horn/ Whilst mermaids lace carnations/Into wreaths for ailing whales/And Neptune dances hornpipes/Whilst Salome sheds her veils"), painting imaginative pictures that beautifully illustrate and complement the solemn mood of Procol Harum's music.

Santana, an Afro-blues outfit relatively unknown except in local circles, was far from being an anti-climax to Procol. They've the strongest rhythm section we've seen since the Grateful Dead, and their conga drummer plays like an undying pulse that keeps Santana moving continuously.

The group is still young, but this writer can see them as the biggest SF band before long. Their live performances are certainly of the same caliber as groups like Jefferson Airplane and the Dead, and their organist and guitarist (Carlos Santana) are among the best rock musicians this country has to offer.

If you haven't seen them, do so. They're a real knockout.

• • •

If you're planning to take in a flick for the weekend, this column advises all to keep away from "You Are What You Eat" playing at the Richeluie. Peter (of Paul and Mary) Yarrow's first film is a disaster—uninteresting child play hardly worth more than a few laughs from Tiny Tim.

For the most part, it is a very amateurish production turned professional only through the glorified publicity campaign headed by Warner Brothers. They deserve to go into debt.

The film is a presentation of a pseudo-hip culture portrayed by a fairly hip bunch that lacks the conscience not to betray their reality on the screen. The sex and drug mannerisms of hippiedom are all there, stretched and bent out of proportion in ways only the Hollywood film makers can.

There are no stars. In fact, the film has no central character, and, for the most part, the cast is a herd of tasteless personalities that perform, always self-conscious of the camera, rather than act.

The purpose of the film is not easy to perceive; and if this one has a purpose, it's lost. The events of the film are unrelated, the scenes are continuously changing, and there is little or nothing in any one scene, or any combination of scenes, for the viewer to grasp and evaluate.

There are some reasonably effective light displays in the ballroom dance sequences, however, but it's all been done before. And some of the other sequences are filmed so poorly that this one highlight is rather negligible.

"You Are What You Eat." A nauseating diet of corn.

• • •

The Grateful Dead, the Quicksilver Messenger Service, and Linn County play the Fillmore West tomorrow thru Sunday. Despite hassles to renew their lease, the Avalon still plans to run this weekend with Kaleidoscope and A. B. Skhy.

Rams Annihilate Merritt, 41-28

Offensive Line Leads Way For Savage Rushing Total

By Phil DiCarlo

All the superlatives in the English language seen inadequate to describe Friday's game here with the Merritt T-Birds. The Rams won 41-28 in the most.....(fill in your own) game of the year.

After a relatively mild first half, action picked up with all hell breaking loose in the last quarter. The sparse crowd (maybe crowd is too strong a word) was emotionally drained when the gun sounded mercifully ending the fireworks. In that fourth period 39 points were scored--five touchdowns, three two-point conversions and Mark Hensley's second field goal of the day. The scoreboard was lighting up like a defective pinball machine.

One couldn't say it was a defensive struggle as the Rams gained 511 yards in total offense and Merritt 462. But, believe it or not, the Ram defensive unit came up with big plays more than a few times. The Rams recovered three Thunderbird fumbles and came up with two very timely interceptions.

The game matched Merritt's occasional big plays against the Rams' slower, but surer, grind-em-out running machine. Ram ball carriers rushed for over 400 yards (no misprint).

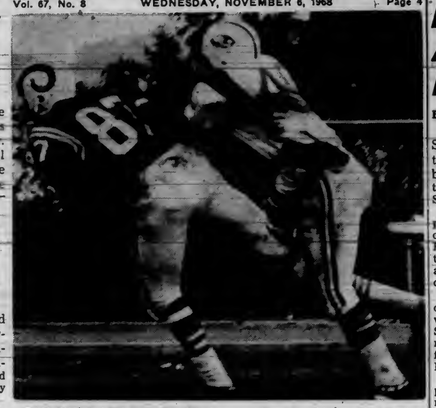
THE OFFENSIVE LINE was the story of this vital Ram victory. Monty Consani, Andre Hicks, Bill McKenna, Dan Parrish, Ed Diaz, plus top sub Dave Kuzarian, consistantly gouged holes in the T-Bird line big enough for your maiden Aunt Sally to run through, and gain a heap of yardage.

Willie Lewis (168 yards gained), Joesiah Bell (167) and Doyle Miller, Ram backs, gained 435 yards on the ground in 24, 23 and 23 carries respectively. Lewis also scored 22 points on three touchdowns and two, two point conversions. Miller scored one six-pointer and caught a Mayfield toss for eight yards. Bell averaged 7.3 yards a carry.

TALK ABOUT EXCITMENT, this game abounded with it. Three minutes elapsed in the game, when T-Bird Don Pharr intercepted Mayfield's first pass of the game. On the first down play, Bird quarterback Jim Kilmartin scrambled around before whipping a pass down the field to Don Jackson for a 50 yard score.

City College threw in a 59 yard kick-off return by the exciting Jim Anderson, a 39 yard touchdown aerial from Mayfield to Bayard, a 27 yard interception return by Gerry Dyson and a 71 yard run with an interception by Greg Jackson.

Bring on Laney.



Gridders Out For Revenge Against Laney Here Friday

Homecoming Game 1968! Arid what a game it will be, as powerful Laney College of Oakland invades City College of San Francisco this Friday afternoon. The word around the bay area is that "Laney is loaded."

A look at the latest Golden Gate Conference statistics bears out the fact that Laney is indeed "loaded." The Eagles possess the second and sixth best rushers in the league, fullback Leon Burns and halfback Earl Sherman. Burns, a 25 year old, 230 pound San Quentin grad, is carrying a 6.7 yard rushing average with 485 yards to rank second. Sherman a speedster, has 287 yards rushing (5.4 avg.) and three touchdowns to show as proof of his number six rating. Herman Bell, Eagle quarterback, is the third rated passer in GGC play with 53 completions in 118 attempts for 652 yards and five scores. He has the second best receiver in the league to throw to, end James Brown.

New Laney coach, Stan Peters, was a little over-anxious to get his spring practice going and was consequently sanctioned by the league for malpractice (pardon the pun). Even though Laney is now ineligible for the league title, they have only lost four games in the last years (one of those by a forfeit and two of the four this year). The Eagles still have pride in themselves as shown by their undefeated record against GGC opponents this year.

This will be the second meeting in history between the two junior colleges. The first was in 1966 when the O. J. Simpson--led Rams went down to an upset defeat at the Prune Bowl 35-13. The Rams will be out for revenge this time--P.D.

RAM END RALPH BAYARD (87) hauls in a Tom Mayfield pass and heads for a long Ram gain. Bayard's outstanding play is making him a possible All-Conference choice for this season. —Guardsman photo by Samuel Woo

Phi Epsilon, Rookies, Apaches On Top In Intramural Basketball

Intramural basketball sees three teams remaining undefeated after three nights of action. Alpha Phi Epsilon, the Rookies, and the Apaches reign atop the leagues with two wins and no losses apiece.

Last Tuesday's games were highlighted by A Phi E's 51-49 squeaker over the Guardsman. Two forfeits added victories to Black Student's and the Apaches' win columns, and Phi Delta came through with a 63-9 farce over Alpha Sigma Delta.

BOB FREETHY provided sparkle to the Guardsman's glittering first half offense, tanking most of his 16 points. The Guardsman fought back to within two points at the buzzer on the strength of Andy Kennedy's fine rebounding and defensive action. Tom "Big Red" Graham's seven points and timely interceptions, and John Francicevich's fine shooting aided the Guardsman's cause.

Complicated maneuvers and left passing by Tom Jones and Francicevich, who ended the evening with eight and 14 points respectively, drew many spontaneous applauds from the spectators. A Phi E contributed a very balanced scoring attack to the contest with Simmons ending the evening with 16 points, Bob Vernon with 12, Micha Brown with 10, and Ron Stewart with nine.

THE GAMES of Thursday, October 24, saw Phi Delta lose its second straight game, this time to A Phi E, 42-36, the Guardsman open up with a win, the Rookies lash BSA, 50-26, and the Ball bounce Hotel & Restuarant, 52-35.

Tomorrow's league action will enter their sixth night of exciting competition with Phi Delta facing BSA at 7 p.m. in the men's gym and AKR challenging H&R in the women's gym, also at 7 p.m. The Guardsman taking on the Rookies at 8 p.m. in the women's gym while a tough Ball takes on the weak AS Delta at 8 p.m. in the men's gym.—C.B.

Sports Protest Staged By Disgruntled Writer

By Floyd Banks

During the current semester, this college has been plagued or blessed with many protests, demands and other controversies.

One aspect of campus life which is noticeably lacking is "school spirit." School spirit is participation in school activites and knowing what's going on at school.

Recently this writer had the discouraging experience of observing City College's inadequate sports attendance. This poor showing is a good indicator of a lack of spirit at our school.

MANY STUDENTS are yelling their heads off for more leisure areas, more activities, etc., when they can't even attend one football game a year.

Have students the right to demand anything other than a straight education from school, when they don't participate in school activities? What right have these students to demand a better school, when they can't support one of the most fundamental aspects of a good school, school spirit? Outside of high educational standards, which we already have, isn't school spirit basically what constitutes a "good school"?

Sports help to create an "Espit de Corps" or "Gungho" atmospherc in a school, which could remedy the student alienation present on our campus.

IF THE POLARIZED factions pulled together sometimes for a common purpose such as school spirit, maybe they could really meet one another and find out what they're like.

Rooting for your school team isn't the answer to world problems, but it could create a tighter school, which by student interaction alone could create a better student understanding.

This school is surrounded in a "Shroud of Silence." Sports may be a way to crease that shroud. It's worth a try.

EVEN WHEN O. J. Simpson attended this fine institution, our student body wasn't interested enough to come to the home game to see a 'City College Phenomenon.' Even our small bleachers were only half full.

This same student body wants more leisure spaces. They demand a place to sit around and bitch, but they can't root for their school for one hour.

This article isn't directed at any radical, ethnic or political group on campus, it is directed at the entire student body.

The message is, "Ask what City College of San Francisco can do for you, then do what you can for City College of San Francisco."

SPORTS WRITER FLOYD BANKS (arrow) recently staged a sit down demonstration in protest of City College's subpar sports attendance. Banks feels that a better student turnout at our sports events could be a positive step towards building a greater school spirit.
—Guardsman photo by Pat Chan

It's Soccer Today Against San Mateo For Playoff Honors

By Patrick Chan

The Ram soccer team meets San Mateo on San Mateo's field today in a game that will probably decide who will represent the Golden Gate Conference in the State playoffs.

The Rams, who are now in second place with a 3-1 record, lost their only league game earlier to the same Bulldog team they will be facing today. In that game the Rams put on a great offensive effort in the second quarter, still losing 2-1.

ONE MAJOR FACTOR that will determine the outcome of this game will probably be the proformance of San Mateo's Richard Ayala, a highly rated defensive half-back. Ayala formerly played soccer for Balboa High School in the AAA.

A defeat by San Mateo today would probably put the Rams out of the running for another league title and end City College's streak of 19 straight titles and five state championships.

Over the last week, the Ram soccer stars defeated a local opponent and tied a visiting team from Canada.

IN THE LEAGUE game the Rams defeated West Valley, 4-1, strenghtening their hold on second place.

City College permitted West Valley only one goal in the first half and then shut them out for the rest of the game for the win. As usual, Otey Cannon led the Rams offensively with three goals. Jerry Tighe added the other goal.

In the exhibition game against the highly touted University of British Columbia, UBC scored with only ten seconds remaining to gain a 3-3 tie. The tie might be considered satisfying for the Rams, however, as UBC was the winner of the San Jose Invitational Tournament and had to beat such teams as San Jose State and University of San Francisco, who recently beat City College 3-0.

OTEY CANNON and Al Chu supplied the scoring for the Rams with two and one goals apiece.

In the ten games played thus far against local college competition, City College boasts a record of 7-2-1.

After today's game with San Mateo City College will next face Ohlone at Fremont this Friday. The Rams are favored not only because of their ranking in the standings but because it is Ohlone's first year of play.

City College will wrap up regular season play with a non-league game against Shasta College at Balboa Stadium this Saturday at 2:00.

Injuries Hamper Ram Cindermen

Ram cindermen hampered by injuries managed to come in second in a tri-meet against Foothill and San Mateo Colleges.

San Mateo took the meet, nipping City College by two points. However, the Rams managed to thrash Foothill by a score of 43-17. Although the Bulldogs were the team to beat, it was a let-down for the Rams who had beaten the Bulldogs in the Conference Meet and the Nor-Cal Invitationals.

ONE REASON for the Rams defeat was the loss of Dave Powers. Powers started the race, but pulled up with a pulled calf muscle, leaving the Rams with only four strong runners.

The hill course was definitely a disadvantage to the Rams who aren't trained for hill running. The hills made Powers run on his toes, which intensified his injuries. Powers might have finished the race if it was a level course.

The gap between fourth and fifth men on the team is too great, and Coach Vasquez is hoping that Jose Garcia, who has the potential, will come through and bid for a berth in the top four because the team really needs him now.

Tony Baccelli, one of the most sensational team men to come to the college in a long time, gave his all to finish sixth for the Rams. The coach feels Baccelli hasn't reached his peak yet, and could very well move up in the standings. Baccelli himselves feels confident, "I'll do better," he said.

Vic Cary has also improved impressively, but now is also on the injured list. Cary's absence may affect the harriers depth.—F.B.

Water Polo Team Goes Under Twice Again, Expects Another Today

City College's first water polo team extended their losing streak to four in a row last week by losing to San Mateo, 28-0, and San Jose, 35-6. Diablo Valley will be their opponents today at the Diablo pool.

According to coach Curt Decker, the Rams are rapidly gaining experience on offense as they are learning how to move in the water while also becoming more aggressive.

On defense Decker comments that the team "must learn to attack the ball."

The Rams current record of 0-4 is to be expected as it is the team's first time in the league.

Thus far in their first four games the Rams have allowed 125 goals to be scored against them while hitting on only 16 themselves.

Leading the club in scoring is Dave Nelson with seven goals, who retains the lead despite being shutout in the last two games. Behind Nelson is Frank Achim with five goals and Rich Glass with four goals.

After the game against Diablo Valley today, the Rams play San Jose on Friday. Diablo Valley will field a weaker team than they're accustomed to but they will be favored due to the Ram's inexperience. San Jose will provide far tougher competition than was witnessed by City College's last game against them, with the Southlanders winning 35-6.—P.C.

Royal Hunt Of Sun Opens

Long Awaited Play Will Be Staged Tonight

By Dan McCarthy

Tonight is the opening of Royal Hunt Of The Sun, the drama department's first play of the semester. The long awaited performance will begin at 8 p.m. in The College Theater.

Dr. Walter Krumm, head of the Drama Department, has directed two faculty members, John Cochran and James Haran, and a student cast of 35. Krumm said, "Tonight the curtain will rise on the most spectacular production the college has ever attempted."

Mayor Joseph Alioto was reported honored by Krumm's invitation to attend opening night. However, the mayor was forced to decline due to a previous commitment.

Royal Hunt is an historically accurate drama which depicts Pizzarro's conquering of the vast Inca civilization of Peru. Besides presenting an emotionally moving story of military conquest, Royal Hunt has an underlying existential theme. It concerns man's search for God and his own immortality.

Cochran, portraying the Inca king Atahuallpa and Haran, playing Pizzarro, are both professional actors. Cochran remarked that he felt identified with the character of the Indian king. He stated, "I think this play will be of interest to the college community because it deals with problems we are now facing: the suppression and exploitation of a non-white race, and man's need for religion."

Cochran expressed the hope that the total theater effect used in Royal Hunt will start a trend toward more unconventional plays for the college. In "total theater," actors and actions are not limited to the formal stage.

Krumm stated that a guild performance exclusively for high school dramatic classes was held last night.

Royal Hunt will run from tonight until Saturday, and next Wednesday through Saturday (November 20-23) for a total of eight performances. Tickets cost $1.25, but students presenting AS cards will be admitted free of charge.

MEMBERS OF THE CAST of Royal Hunt Of The Sun. From left to right—Oello played by Shari Richard, Young Martin played by Peter Kors, Pizzarro played by James Haran, Estete by James Labounty and Richard Wilpitz as DeNizza.
—Guardsman photo by Bert Flowers

The Guardsman

Official Weekly Publication of the Students in the Journalism Department of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 67 — SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 13, 1968 — NUMBER 9

Wright To Speak

It was erroneously reported in the last issue of the Guardsman that Dr. Nathan Wright would speak on "Black Power —A Creative Force" on Thursday, November 7.

Dr. Wright will speak on that topic tomorrow at 11 a.m. in the College Theater.

Prop. 'I' Passes; School Tax Increase To Provide Revenue

Proposition I, the measure that proposed to increase the school tax-limit to provide necessary revenue for the San Francisco Public Schools, was passed in the recent election by a margin of 124,316 yes votes to 103,723 no votes.

According to President Louis G. Conlan, the future effects of the bill will include the broadening of many of the college's programs and services. The three-year program that employs a sufficient number of teachers to lessen the class size for a more individualistic approach to education, will be continued and expanded. A probable 30 teachers may be added to the faculty. The campus Tutorial Program will also be broadened.

The San Francisco School District is expected to contribute more funds to the college's Financial Aid Program by matching Federal government funds. Because of the good enrollment and recommendations from various committees, the Black Studies Program and the Chinese Studies Program is expected to be expanded.

Dr. Conlan acknowledged the success of the bill to the immense contribution of campaign activites of the League of Woman Voters. Also notable were 900 parents and teachers who campaigning in Hunter's Point for the passage of the measure hopes that necessary action on the part of Mayor Alioto will help in acquiring the needed funds--R.G.

Student Government May Be Abolished In Junior College

All junior college students in California may soon be offered the choice of whether or not they want student government to remain on campuses.

This proposal stems from many others were among the subjects discussed at the recent meeting of the Area Six Conference held at Gavilan College. Representing City College at the conference were Alan DuBane, Derrick Quan, Janice Lum, Gary Siri, Rich Shirley and Maurice Parker.

The obvious reason behind the proposal to let students decide the fate of student government is the widespread apathy so apparent on many campuses today.

Under the proposal each college would hold its own election to decide what they want done with their student association.

This proposal next goes to the state-wide conference of the California Junior College Student Government Association for further action, in Fresno from December 5-7.

The Area Six Convention also passed a proposal that would place student representatives on the Board of Trustees of each college district.

The conference also urged the adoption of a single code system where students transferring to other colleges could receive credit for courses they had already taken but weren't offered at their new college.

In addition a resolution was passed urging that courses in Black and Latin American studies be incorporated in college curriculums.—P.C.

Council Begins Budget Hearings

Budget hearings for the Spring semester start today in Bungalow 5 at noon.

The Student Council will be judging over money requests made by some 17 different organizations.

The council will decide whether to add, subtract or drop some of the budgets turned in.

Altogether, the sum total of the requests add up to $27,680. This does not include requests for the proposed Student Draft Counseling Center scheduled to open in February or the semi-annual calendar of events published by the Journalism department. The calender of events is handed out every registration day to students. It contains a calender of the semester and a list of the college's events.

According to Freshman Councilman Gary Barton, who proposed the Draft Counseling Center, it will take $350-400 to run such an organization. Floyd Banks, spokesman for the Journalism department, announced it will require $1675 to publish the calender of events as now planned.

Requests for money varied from $4000 from the Drama department to hold their usual productions and movie series to $152.25 from the Campus Police.

Students who find themselves in need of a small emergency loan should look into the various funds granted to Dean Mary Golding and Ralph Hillsman.

Eldridge Cleaver Here To Discuss American Racism Tomorrow At Stadium

By Florence McCarthy

Eldridge Cleaver, Black Panther minister of information, will address the college tomorrow, at 1 p.m. in the football field. He was invited here by two of the Experimental College classes in cooperation with the Associated Students to discuss American racism.

Donald Peterson, faculty advisor to the Experimental College, stated that he had been in contact with Cleaver since early October in arranging for his visit. Peterson affirmed that the Experimental College had received Administration approval for Cleaver to speak. "The college administration readily agreed to allow Cleaver to come. They are supporting us," Peterson remarked.

DEAN RALPH HILLSMAN voiced the Administration's position, "As long as Cleaver is a free man under the law he is welcome to come on campus." Hillsman further commented, "I think there has been some misunderstanding on this point in the past. It is not our policy to prohibit convicted felons from speaking here. As long as these people have paid their debt to society and have the right of freedom they may speak at the college."

Cleaver was actually invited by two Experimental College classes, American Racism and Apathy, organized by Roger Cassell and Minority Group Membership, organized by Derrick Hill. Cassell stated that these two courses had recently combined due to lack of enrollment. They have invited Cleaver to speak as part of their program to interest more faculty and students in minority problems.

CASSELL HOPES that Cleaver's presence will arouse more concern in black problems on the part of non-involved white students on campus. "Thus far, some have attended our meetings out of curiosity, but few seem to have genuine interest in racial problems," Cassell explained.

Members of American Racism and Apathy and Minority Group Membership hope to attract more concerned individuals to their meetings in the future. The two courses meet at three on Wednesdays and at five on Fridays in A-213.

Job Program To Pay Students In Training

A job placement training program will be established within the next few weeks under the direction of Joseph Amori, head of job placements, in conjunction with the Experimental College.

Students interested in catering, gardening or tutoring will be able to receive a two week training which will result in a part time job in one of those specific fields. Students who want to earn anywhere from $2 to $6 an hour should sign out an application in Bungalow 5, according to Annette Aulborn, coordinator of the new program.

Students will be trained for jobs in the Hotel and Restaurant, and Floristry classrooms by faculty supervisors and experienced students. This program was initiated by the college Placement Center and the Division of Instruction.

Tutorial Program Secures Platform

The Student-Faculty Relationship Committee, an organization which evolved from the Malcolm Brown controversy and out of a need to promote better relations between teachers and students, has produced a sound platform for a Counseling Tutorial Program.

According to Steve Kass, organizer, the objective of this program is to provide students with counseling on future courses and present college problems. Tutors will be provided to assist students in acquiring the neccessary and fundamental knowledge for many courses which do not have specifically stated prerequisites.

The program will include a center for military-draft information. It will also provide counseling for students planning to transfer to another college.

There is a possibility of obtaining a resident staff psychiatrict to assist in counseling of student's emotional problems.

It must be stressed that the new Counseling Tutorial Program is a supplement rather than a replacement to the present campus Tutorial Program.

There is an urgent need for volunteer students and faculty members to participate in this essential program. For all those interested in the program, a meeting of the Student-Faculty Relationship Committee will be held tomorrow at 2 p.m. in C-330. —R.G.

Financial Aid Offers Food Stamp Program

A Food Stamp Program, designed to subsidize those of low income status, is now available through the Financial Aid's office in S-148, accordingto Ken Castellino, Financial Aid's Officer.

Any student, whether he be single, married or living with his family, may participate if he is eligible.

Although there are certain requirements, John Stallkamp, Food Stamps Supervisor, emphasizes the fact that because no two student or family situations are the same, a would-be applicant should not try to guess if he is eligible.

To be eligible, the applicant must be a resident of San Francisco, his place of residency must have cooking facilities with which to prepare meals, and his net income must be below the standards set by the United States Department of Agriculture.

For more complete and specific information, contact the Financial Aid's Office.

Associated Women's Fashion Show Tomorrow

The Associated Women Student's fashion show and tea, "Harvest Holiday", will be held tomorrow in Smith Hall from 3-5 p.m.

Lorraine Fong, President of the Associated Women Students, said that the show, which is a tribute to the graduating classes of San Francisco high school girls, will consist of a welcoming address, fashions by H. Liebes, and entertainment under the direction of Constance Henderson.

Campus models for the show will include: Eva Chan, Diane Cresci, Jill Ferguson, Florine Gallegos, Reiko Hara, Catherine Heggli, Esther Lue, Barbara Martin, Debra Materre, Patricia Plummer and Gundula Schmidt. Alternate models for the show include: Pam Cosgrove, Cynthia Finis, and Dale Greenberg.

Refreshments, provided by the Hotel and Restaurant division, will be available in the cafeteria and some of the delicacies offered will be: fruit punch, sandwiches, cream puffs, Danish pastries, petits fours, macaroons, and cookies. The floral decorations will be furnished by the Retail Floristry department.

THREE OF THE FINALISTS who will vie for "Best Dressed Coed" in tomorrow's AWS Fashion Show. Florine Gallegos, Barbara Martin and Reiko Haro.
—Guardsman photo by Samuel Woo

The Guardsman Editorial Page
Official Weekly Publication of the Students in the Journalism Department of City College of San Francisco
MIKE DUGGAN, Editor
Vol. 67, No. 9 WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 13, 1968 Page 2

Now That He's President

AFTER CHECKING out the election results which presented us with Richard Nixon as our 37th President of the United States, we can only now hope for what Nixon has based his whole campaign on—CHANGE.

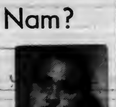
We feel that many Americans were not casting a vote for the man (Nixon), but were simply casting a vote against the Democrats for the problems which this country has faced over the past four years under the Johnson Administration.

The Guardsman, like millions of others, hopes Nixon meets his challenge, and does force some changes in our recent past policies, both at home and abroad. Nixon claimed this country needed change, and it definitely does, and we hope he will start right after his inaugration by coming up with a quick end to the war in Vietnam.

Not Enough Guardsman Copies

THE GUARDSMAN appreciates the interest of students coming to our office, S-304, on Wednesdays to ask for a copy of that day's paper. But, we are extremely busy on Wednesday's working toward the publication of the following week's issue, and due to the quick disappearance of our 3,000 copies, we usually never have a copy left over.

As we requested in our first editorial, anyone interested enough who can't find a copy of The Guardsman, should bring their suggestions to Student Council and maybe in the future some money can be alloted The Guardsman for more issues to be printed.

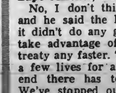


The 3,000 copies are delivered every Wednesday morning at about 8 a.m. and most are placed on the first floor of the Science Building, second floor of Arts Building and on the paper racks near the library entrance and Smith Hall.

Contact Lens

Will Any Good Come Out Of Bombing Halt In Viet Nam?

Jerry Ausano, Horticulture Major



It will bring us closer to the peace table, but I'm not in favor of it. We've stopped the bombing but no more bombing would mean that the bridges in North Vietnam will enable them to bring in more food and supplies. To end the war we should use all of our military might and give them everything we've got. There are two sides to this: it brings us closer to the peace table, but also the North Vietnamese are bringing in more troops and guns.

AUSANO

Lupe Jimenez, Dental Assisting Major

No, I don't think so. My brother's in Vietnam and he said the last time they stopped the firing it didn't do any good. The North Vietnamese just take advantage of it. It won't help us get a peace treaty any faster. The bombing halt might help save a few lives for a little while, but for the war to end there has to be agreement on both sides. We've stopped our bombing but the North Vietnamese haven't stopped any of their attacks.

JIMENEZ

WARD

Pete Ward, Photography Major

I doubt if it will effect a constructive move toward peace, but it is a good idea. Economically and to save face, it would be a good idea. The North Vietnamese have said they felt it was a victory for them but I'm sure they don't mean saving North Vietnam from destruction. I think if the South Vietnamese and the North Vietnamese were fighting as bitterly over their principals as we project them to be, the war would have been over long ago.

FREGIA

Darrell Fregia, History Major

I think it was a political move, but some good did come out of it. It might possibly end the war. If the war ends, all my brothers will be back here and we'll be able to fight our battles against oppressors at home. But if they stop the bombing, they should stop all of the fighting. If the fighting hasn't stopped, then there is no move toward peace. There's more of an effort to solve the problems there than here in the states.

Mrs. Hurtago, General Education Major

I don't think so because in the past we have stopped fighting and no good has come out of it. I don't think the Vietnamese want us in there; they don't want any country in there. They just want to be free and independent. Even if the bombing has stopped, the fighting still goes on. This was a political move on the part of President Johnson. Humphrey was losing and he thought this move would help him, and it did to a certain extent.

HURTAGO

Bob Segal, Business Major

It might move us closer to a peace treaty, but I think it's a political move on the part of President Johnson for the Democratic Party. The bombing halt will help. Johnson's not doing it for the good of the republic. He's doing it so the cows in Johnsonland will give good milk. Indirectly this move will benefit the people of Johnsonland, but it will also benefit the people of tomorrowland.

SEGAL

Compiled by Lavine Lee, photos by Glenn Graham

BSA Lauds Tealer As Black Man Of The Year

By Sonia Schmidt

On December 5, the Black Students Association here will sponsor a testimonial dinner honoring Robert Tealer as Black Man of the Year.

"This is just another step towards honoring the great Black Men of our times, while they are alive. We will present Tealer with a stone sculputre of himself made by Mike Thomas of the Black Man's Art Gallery," said Jake Carter, BSA vice-president. There will also be entertainment for the students and their guests.

Besides being a very popular man, on and off campus, with the students, Tealer is also the only Black counselor at the college; he is an advisor to the BSA, he was an advisor to the A Phi Epsilan fraternity, he helped to initiate the Afro-American program on campus, and he meets on weekends with students at his home to solve their problems.

In spite of busy schedules, he has also found time to inspire many young Black students to aim for higher goals in life. One such student is the already mentioned Jake Carter, who has known Tealer for two years. According to Carter, Tealer has kept him on the move with a demanding schedule. Unlike his former counselor, Carter said that Tealer has not given him the negative attitude of seeing whether or not he was ready for college by sticking him with lots of G courses. Instead he has given him a schedule of good college prep courses. "He is also going to help me get into Stanford University," said Carter happily.

As a teenager, Tealer had attended Mission High School. After graduation he attended City College where he received his Associated Arts degree. Leaving City College and the state of California, Tealer headed for the state of Iowa and Drake University where he got his B.S. in teaching. Returning to California, he decided to go to San Francisco State and get his M.A. degree. At the present time he is enrolled in a UC night class in Higher Education Administation. He hopes to receive his Ph.D. in the near future.

BOB TEALER
Black Man Of The Year

Prior to his coming to City College, Tealer had taught at Hunters Point and Golden Gate Elementary Schools. He had also been the principal of the Bernette Elementary School.

Although he is mostly interested in students and education, Tealer does have outside interests. He is an ardent sports fan besides being a great athelete himself, past and present. His past accomplishments in the sports field is enough to make a basketball fan sigh with wonder and amazement. In 1957, Tealer became a member of the All Conference Team, the All Star Team of Northern California, the All Star Team of the State of California, and while he was at Drake University he made the All American Team. In one of his many games, Tealer scored a total of 46 points; he is a member of the Hall of Fame of City College. Just as his career in basketball seemed to be blossoming into nation-wide fame, Tealer decided to give it all up and go into the service at Ford Ord. When his time in the service was over, Tealer decided to concentrate on the education line rather than going back to basketball.

Admiration for Tealer comes not only from the students, but also from former classmates and fraternity brothers. Gus Davis, a social science major, and a long time friend and admirer (15 years), says the following about Tealer. "Tealer and I went to City College together, played basketball and chess together, and studied together. He has been a tremendous assistant in getting my homework done, besides motivating me to further my studies. As far as the Black Man of the Year award is concerned, I feel that if there is any one person in the academic field of City College that deserves the award, it is Tealer."

His hobbies are ping pong, reading good books, chess, and basketball.

Tickets for the dinner will be sold to all interested students at the price of $2.50 for guests and $2.00 for students. Money made from the tickets will be returned to the Associated Students.

Martini's Alien Lingo Found Here

By Lani Brand

Foreign languages and mixing dry martini's were among the main interests found in a national research project taken at City College this semester.

Research questionaires supplied by the American Council on Education were given to the ineoming fulltime City College freshman last fall. The research questionaires were given to determine the opinions of the students in the college and to compare them nationally.

The results of the research questionaires here were very interesting. For example, it was discovered that 8 per cent of the women and 5 per cent of the men believed they would be married while attending City College.

Also, according to the questionaire's results, 70 per cent of the men and 54 per cent of the women thought the voting age should be lowered.

Upon entering City College, 21 per cent of the freshman women intended to join a sorority. However, there are not enough sororities in the college to accommodate that many women.

Of the male freshman who took the research questionaire, only 90 per cent thought they could do 15 pushups.

These research questionaires were also given to the students of 358 other colleges across the nation last year.

Many colleges and universities took part in this research for several years before City College was asked to participate in the survey. The American Council on Education wanted the college to participate in the research because City College is a big metropolitan college with a large oriental student population.

Compared nationally it was found that parochial school students drop out of college more often than other students.

When City College was compared with other colleges, it was discovered that our students are less confident than students of other colleges. Either that or our students are less willing to admit they can accomplish specific things.

The American Council of Education publishes the results of its study every year in a booklet which is sent to the participating colleges. New teachers to City College this year were given these booklets to help them understand the students better.

Guardsman Staff — Fall 1968

(The Guardsman is the official weekly publication of the students in the journalism department of City College of San Francisco. It is published each Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacations. The opinions expressed in the columns and editorials are those of the individual writers and not necessarily those of the Guardsman, the department or the college. Editorial office, 304, Science Hall; telephone 587-7272, extension 246.)

EDITOR IN CHIEF ..... MIKE DUGGAN
Managing Editor ..... Doug Boston
Feature Editor ..... Tom Graham
Staff Editor ..... Boku Kodama
News Editor ..... Barbara Hamann
Sports Editor ..... Dave Albertson
Editorial Assistants: Martin J. Arbunich, Lani Brand, Rita Carroll, Lavine Lee, Lynda Sandstrom.
Reporters: Randy Flynn, Leonard Ribalro.
Cub Reporters: Floyd Banks, Ralph Bayard, Jack Blake, Dan Castro, Joe Catalo, Patrick Chen, Lynette Conklin, Jeff Deleuse, Phil Di Carlo, Kaye Dranginis, Yvonne Lew, Marianne Lim, Dan McCarthy, Florence McCarthy, Dan Marinas, Diana Matson, Alan Pelzner, James Pope, Elizabeth Ramos, Lester Restarfar, Jack Rutz, Soonalota Schmidt, Kenneth Surface, Barbara Tyrrell, Val Vallandar, Wong Tze Yol.
Photographers: Marilyn Astalosh, Chief; Bert Flowers, Glenn Graham, Steven La Plant, Jerry Mishlar, Delisf Osborg, Jens Prutzo, Roberto Guillen, Kevin Shea, Ulmer T. McKnight, Gavin Watt, Calvin Wong, Russell Wong, Sam Woe.
Advisor: Mary Blair

SHOOTIN' IT

by Doug Boston

ATTENTION: Disenchanted students should take note of a new organization which organizor Dunbar Aikens labels as an "environmental college."

This new movement was first conceived when Aikens and a group of students decided to join their various feeling of discontent with educational practices in a group effort. The newly formed association has recruited a few teachers and welcomes any interested students to join.

Dunbar may be contacted at 409 Clayton Street or at a meeting of his organization this Sunday at the All Saints Church at 1350 Waller Street at 7 p.m.

CENSORSHIP: It appears that the Guardsman is not the only publication that uses initials and --- marks to delete the complete spelling of various words usually found in the underground press. This doesn't mean we disapprove of the underground press, for it is an important part of the "new journalism," but we do not think that the word F - - - should be sprinkled throughout a column like our Contact Lens.

Pardon us for getting a little sidetracked, since we intended this shot to be about the resignation of the editor of the Pelican, a humour magazine published at UC Berkeley. He was upset because the printer decided to leave out all of the naughty words, and instead insert the frequently used dashes.

Larry Tomasson, the man in question, was also outraged at the printers refusal to print his magazine's cover, which depicted the three Presidential candidates in a toilet bowl, with toilet paper covered with stars and stripes coming out of a holder which resembled President Johnson.

The printers good reason for not printing the words and the cover: "to leave them in wouldn't have been good taste." Touche!

LABELLED AND RECORDED REVISITED: There is a super new song currently being played on SF radio stations, even on KSFO. The title of the musical endeavor is Abraham, Martin and John, written and performed by Dion.

The record title didn't mean much to us at first, because who listens to the words of a song anymore. This one deserves some careful consideration by your eardrums.

The record hasn't started to make the big sales yet, but we will not hesitate to predict a gold record for Dion who tells the story of Abraham Lincoln, John F. Kennedy and Martin Luther King like this:

Has anybody here
Seen my old friend.....
Can you tell me where he's gone
He freed alot of people
Seems the good they die young
I just looked around... and he's gone...

Dion inserts the name of each great man in a separate verse for each, then hits the listener with these not-easy-to-forget words:

Has anybody here
Seen my old friend Bobby
Can you tell me where he's gone
Thought I saw him walking up over the hill
With Abraham, Martin and John.

Next time you hear the song, take some time and listen to the words; there is a whole lot being said.

PROGRESS: Sexually segregated colleges are slowly disappearing in the U.S. Colleges like Vassar, a completely female dominated school for over a century will admit men in 1970. So will Wesleyan University in Conneticut. Princeton and other all-male colleges will open their doors to women students soon.

One of the reasons for the breakaway from the standard single-sex schools is expressed by a faculty member at Vassar..."it is a more realistic reflection of a larger society ...and it will make it so you don't spend all week dying for the week to end so you can go home."

With the trends in society today, many women students are beginning to look for higher education and training. Some experts still claim that most women go to college just for the purpose of finding a man. Now isn't that ridiculous? Anyway, what normal guy worries about being hunted?

IN THE END... whether it blows and destroys your mind, or creates a warm feeling in your heart, nobody needs me to tell the world that NIXON'S THE ONE. And if he doesn't handle it—Spiro Agnew can do it all.

DISPATCH

by Boku Kodama

FIRST there was peace . . .

Our goal must be—not peace in our time—but peace for all time.—Harry Truman.

Peace is indivisible. — Maxim Litvinov.

. . . but peace forever is impossible.

Only a peace between equals can last: only a peace, the very principle of which is equality, and a common participation in a common benefit. —Woodrow Wilson.

Peace if possible, but the truth at any rate.—Martin Luther.

Since wars begin in the minds of men, it is in the minds of men that the defenses of peace must be constructed.—Constitution of UNESCO, United Nations.

Force always threatens peace . . .

Force is the grimmest and ugliest of gods that men have ever created for themselves out of the lusts of their hearts. You will find yourself hating and dreading all other men who differ from you; you will find yourself obliged by the law of the conflict into which you have plunged, to use every means in your power to crush them before they are able to crush you. You will find yourselves clinging to and welcoming Force, as the one and only form of protection left to you, when you have once destroyed the rule of the great principles.—Auberon Herbert.

A man becomes a leader of force . . .

In theory our government is based on a division of powers among three coordinate branches, but in practice it is and it always has been based on Presidential leadership. — Gerald W. Johnson.

The foremost principle of Nazism is the Fuehrerprinzip (leader). This means victory over the parliamentary system and over majority rule in all spheres of life and consolidation of all politically and productively superior forces of the nation.—Anonymous.

. . . and men, usually referred to as patriots, line behind him.

It is lamentable that to be a good patriot we must become the enemy of mankind.—Voltaire.

Let the people think of the (American) Federal Government instruct mankind that the masque of patriotism may be worn to conceal the foulest designs against the liberties of the people.—B. F. Bache.

You'll never have a quiet world till you knock the patriotism out of the human race. — George Bernard Shaw.

Patriotism unites force into an army . . .

Recruits! Before the altar and the servant of God you have given me the oath of allegiance . . . You have sworn fidelity to me, you are the children of my guard, you are my soldiers, you have surrendered yourself to me, body and soul.—Wilhelm II.

Man, not material, forms the decisive factor.—Mao Tse-Tung.

. . . and an army creates a war.

No soldier starts a war—they only give their lives to it. Wars are started by you and me, by bankers and politicians, excitable women, newspaper editors, clergymen who are ex-pacifists, and Congressmen with vertebrae of putty.—Francis P. Duffy.

War is nothing but a continuation of political intercourse with an admixture of other means.—Karl von Clausewitz.

War is much too serious a thing to be left to military men.—Charles Maurice De Talleyrand-Perigord.

I hate war as only a soldier who has lived it can, only as one who has seen its brutality, its futility, its stupidity.—Dwight D. Eisenhower.

And in the end, Death haunts the minds of men and the world again resides in peace . . .

Now I am about to take my last voyage, a frightful leap in the dark. —Thomas Hobbes.

A single death is a tragedy, a million deaths is a statistic.—Joseph Stalin.

Before the end of the present century, unless something quite unforeseeable occurs, one of three possibilities will have been realized. These three are: (1) The end of human life, perhaps of all life on our planet, (2) A reversion to barbarism after a catastrophic diminution of the population of the globe, or (3) A unification of the world under a single government, possessing a monopoly of all the major weapons of war.—Bertrand Russell.

Nineteen Queens At Homecoming

Nineteen queens were presented with bouquets and trophies at a homecoming rally held in the football stadium last Thursday.

A number of campus clubs and organizations were represented by their queens including Norma Patrick of the Ram Ski Club, Dale Greenberg of Hillel, Bonnie Staley of the Recreation Association, Florine Gallegos of the Intercollegiate Students for Social Action, Bernadette Rodriguez of the Spanish Students, Lynn Scharfen of Phi Beta Rho, Sharon Bacon of Beta Tau, Candy Ladrech of the Newman Club, Hattie Know of the Republicans, Charolette Fifer of the Masonic Club, Charolette De Loach of the Collegiate Christian Fellowship, Norine Davis of the A Capell Choir, Vera Matsuchenko of Chi Rho Delta, Barbara Barrish of Alpha Sigma Delta, Chris Perry of the Freshman Class, Patricia Plummer of the Football Team, Diane Williams of Alpha Phi Epsilon, Darcell Price of the Majorettes and Letrall Williams of the Black Students Association.

A car parade sponsored by the Intercollegiate Fellowship Council was held following the presentation. Three best decorated cars were chosen for trophies presented at the Homecoming Dance on Friday.

First place winner in the parade was a vintage car entered by the Newman Club with Alpha Sigma Delta getting second and Collegiate Christian Fellowship winning third.

Letters to the Editor

Ram's Horn

• Mistakes, Mistakes!!

Editor, The Guardsman

In reference to your article on "Students, Administrators Agree on New Study Hall." This article is full of the wrong information. God knows where it came from. (Line 3) The snack bar area is only open for study and lounge purposes from 1:45 to 4:00, not 1-4). (Line 4) The student council did not originate the idea. They had nothing to do with it. They did not even know it was open the first day.

The idea came from a conversation between Dr. Buttimer (Ed Mgr.) and myself the day of the rally for Mr. Brown. (Line 5) AS President Derrick Hill did not bring the project to the attention before Dean Hillsman—Hillsman learned of the idea later, but had nothing to do with the opening up the area for use—that is not his department. That is Harry Buttimier's (sic) bag.

You people are in the dark, you even had a representative come to a meeting and listen to the whole damn thing be told and still write it bassackwards. You made no mention of the fact that a committee of six students met with Hillsman, White and Buttimer to discuss other matters concerning the cafe and that it was those six interested students that pushed the idea of having fruit in the cafe. It was those six students that promoted the idea that Borrelli should be fired because his major job is to make himself important.

He was supposed to come to the meeting, but I guess he didn't have the guts. Even the cafe people agree that the managing staff just ain't got it. They are out for themselves. The things they are tought (sic) there will not work in the world outside.

In the fifth paragraph of your article you said that there were a lot of people in the area eating up knowledge, in fact there were two—myself and Gus Davis. So there was lots and lots of quiet to be gotten. Is that the quiet you were talking about in paragraph 5?

Yours truly, facturally
Richard B. Pharr

• SJS Likes Guardsman

Editor, The Guardsman:

As former students of CCSF and avid readers of the Guardsman, we must compliment the improvement shown in this term's paper over those when we attended. We enjoy immensely reading the Ramette of the Week and Contact Lens, in addition to some of the fine features that have appeared on the sports page, especially the recent one on CCSF's great football star linebacker, Arice Pittman. Once again, a fine job by the editor-in-chief and his staff.

John LeTourneau, Jay Yerman, Jim Hayley, Val Pierce, Ken Carlsen, (San Jose State)

Ramette Of The Week

By Dave Albertson

CAROL MARIE HENDERSON'S initial impression on casual observers speaks for itself in adjoining picture as this week's candidate for Ramette of the Week.

Carolyn was picked for ramette after being discovered while diligently working in her part time job as Dean Brady's secretary.

AFTER TRANSFERRING from The University of San Francisco, she is currently in her last semester at City College.

This 20-year-old ramette who originally hails from New Orleans, offers a notable viewpoint towards being selected as Ramette of the Week. When told she was nominated for ramette, she replied, "... Ramette of the Week just to be seen is meaningless to me. Therefore, I sought to define my exposure by expressing my views as Ramette of the Week.

"First, I perceive my physical appearance as indicative of my inner self. My selection of clothing, colors, etc. indicate various ways by which I express myself (as well as the particular weather of that San Francisco day). My hairdo symbolizes the pride I possess as a black American. Cleanliness and neatness signify the security with which I seek to express myself effectively."

SHE WENT ON to say, " . . . I strive to make my external expressions functional through my personality. If I can communicate, understand, accept, and be considerate of others (for what they are) then I am satisfied. And, if I am not willing to do these things, then my ability to express myself externally is meaningless. Therefore, as Ramette of the Week, I hope my recognition is meaningful."

CAROLYN MARIE HENDERSON
—Guardsman photo by Samuel Woo

Campus Lineup:

• Play Tickets

Attention all campus clubs and organizations: Plan an evening at the theater. Block reservations are available for Friday and Saturday performances of Royal Hunt Of The Sun, 8 p.m. in the College Theater.

• 'Fil-Am-Fling'

The Filipino-American Club will present "Fil-Am Fling!," an evening of dance and entertainment, this Friday night in Smith Hall at 9 p.m. Music and entertainment will be provided by the locally famed The Bold Rebels and the Maligayan Dance Troupe. Admission is $1.25 with AS cards and $1.50 without.

• New Headquarters

Both campus Chinese organizations, the ISSA and the CSA, have been granted the use of a section in the former campus Bookstore as their headquarters and a lounge-meeting place. The organizations are in urgent need of paint, furniture and volunteer workers to revitalize the bungalow. Volunteers may contact the Han (the Chinese news-weekly).

• CSA Newspaper

A 12-page private newspaper is being published by the Chinese Students Association in addition to the two pages in the Free Critic. The paper is mailed out to all CSA members and is devoted to news concerning the Chinese community of interest to CSA members. Students interested in contributing to the newsletter contact Derrick Quan in ES-109.

Soul Food To Be Served In Cafeteria Tomorrow

Soul food will be served as the main dish in the cafeteria section of Smith Hall tomorrow during lunch according to David Borrelli, head of the Hotel and Restaurant.

This will be a big change for the students and give them an opportunity to sample this unique food.

It also will aid in helping the Hotel and Restaurant majors by giving them a little experience in how to prepare and serve soul food. There is an all out effort by H&R to try and create the "real stuff."

The soul food on menu will be a choice between boiled ham hocks or southern fried chicken. There will also be a variety of vegetables to choose from, mustard greens, black-eyed peas, and candied yams. Cornbread will be included in each meal.

H&R Executive Chef Roy Hommerich is seeing to it that there are no flaws in preparing the food.

The soul dessert planned will probably be fruit cobbler. Pastry Chef George Muller will prepare the dessert for the luncheon.

Future meals of this type are also being considered. Latin, Italian and Oriental days may arrive soon, but on the long run the food will be generally basic American food.

Streisand Shines As Fanny Brice In Funny Girl

By Raymond Gin

Once in a long while, a star is born.

Barbra Streisand beeomes that living legend in her re-creation of Fanny Brice in William Wyler's Funny Girl, currently playing at the Coronet Theater.

"Funny Girl" is the fairy-tale story of Fanny Brice, who rose from the New York slums to beeome the top headliner of the Ziegfeld Follies. The film chose to center the story on Miss Brice's tragic love affair with well-known gambler, Nivky Arnstein, played by Omar Sharif.

The film rests entirely on the excellence of its star, Barbra Streisand. Without her, this vehicle might have been, at best, a mediocre translation of backstage trivialities during the days of vaudeville. But her personality beeomes so dynamic and dominant throughout, that the picture is saved from total obscurity.

MISS STREISAND'S authentic Jewish-Brooklyn accent is an asset to her witty cracks. Her changing facial expressions and tonal qualities of her voice make old-dreary dialogue seem humorous and delicate. The Roller Skate, Bridal, and Dying Swan numbers reflect her flawless deftness in comedy.

The photographic lens lovingly captures Miss Streisand's striking profile and her distinctive beauty that separates that onslaught of undistinguishable sex symbols in films today. Otherwise, the camera does nothing to add excitement to the show. The over-use of interior shots help slow the film's pace considerably.

THE FILM TAKES ON a look of nostalgia—something reminiscent of the 30's, the heyday of Busby Berkeley, the Broadway Golddiggers, pushcarts and horse-drawn trolleys. Henry Street, the back-alley of Fanny's house, looks entirely unprofessional and almost ruins one of the show-stopper tunes, "People."

Another serious problem inherent in "Funny Girl" is the miscasting of Omar Sharif as Fanny's husband-gambler, Nieky Arnstein. Sharif's romantic European flair and properness reduce his characterization to that of a sophisticated egotist, whose only real concern is a good card game. All we see is a flashy and mannerly gambler who cannot communicate to the audience.

THE SECOND HALF of the film must rest entirely on the accomplishments and excitement generated by the first half. It is terribly slow-paced and contains only one significant museial number, the Dying Swan parody of ballet-great Pavlova. The second half relies too heavily on words and not enough on music and comedy.

Barbra has achieved in her first film, what other actresses strive a lifetime for—perfection and stardom. "Funny Girl" received San Francisco's first Samuel Goldwyn Award for "the best picture made in America in 1968" at the latest San Francisco Film Festival. It's just the start of "Funny Girl's" success.

Labelled And Recorded

Beatles, Stones Getting Shaft

by Martin J. Arbunich

UP UNTIL recently, everything the Beatles and Rolling Stones have touched, has turned to gold almost immediately and the static and pressures from the industry over their products have been very minimal in the process. The axe now has begun to swing.

The Stones have had their bathroom wall graffitti cover turned away; the Beatles' proposed cover for a John Lennon-Yoko Onc LP has been placed in hot water over a cover featuring John and Yoko entirely nude, and the Beatles are having a time locating a sound company for its distribution since Capitol, their distributor since the beginning, has given them the thumbs-down indication.

Both the controversial new Stones' album "Beggar's Banquet" and the Lennon-Ono release "Two Virgins" are scheduled for release on Friday along with a new 27-song—2-record Beatle LP and a George Harrison soundtrack. According to late word, however, the Stones' LP may be delayed until January.

The latter two are free from any blue-pencilling, but the Stones were forced to come through with a substitute covcr for theirs (the new one will probably be of the Pope), and the "Virgin" LP will probably be delayed since the Beatles are still determined, despite the cover being all-skin-no-fig-leaf, to go around Capitol and push the cover to another label for distribution.

Of course, once they do secure a distributor, the Beatles may still have trouble getting jobbers to stock record shops with copies.

The demand for this record will probably be so great, though, that most jobbers probably won't allow the cover to bother their conscience, and we can see record stores being well stocked with the item. It's easy to predict a gold record just for the controversial cover.

Whether the "Virgin" cover is in poor taste or not is debatable. If one looks at it with a mature, adult attitude and realizes it's nature-beautiful and not pornographic, then you have justification for its publication.

Record companies, however, don't think that way. You gotta think of the kids and the little old ladies and, most of all, our reputation. (We're will they learn!) The cover is certainly unconventional and controversial but not immoral unless you consider your own body the same. We'd like to see it get through and straighten out some minds.

The graffitti-styled Stones' cover lacked the natural beauty of the Lennon creation, but its purpose, to directly symbolize the return to tough, unaesthetical music for the Stones, does the job nicely. Once again, its taste was questionable, but not objectionable, and it certainly was an appropriate wrapping for a hard, driving "street-fighting" music of the Rolling Stones.

Both covers were reproduced in recent issues of the Rolling Stones magazine in the event you wish to give a personal appraisal of each.

NOTES ON ROCK: Two of the hot new bands out of England we've been told to look out for are Joe Cocker (and his Grease Band) and Jethro Tull. The former, according to our English correspondent, has been "blowing up a storm in England"... his voice is real gutsy, very much like Ray Charles at times, and his band need fear no one." The latter is a four-piece band which knocked out crowds at the National Jazz and Blues Festival in London this year in much the same way Ten Years After did in 1967. Their version of "Cat Squirrel" brought better than 20,000 people to their feet.

Janis Joplin's new band will debut at the New Year's Eve bash at Winterland. John Mayall has completed another album. This one's to be called "Blues From Laurel Canyon," and as always, his lineup has made another shift over the last month, but lead guitarist Mick Taylor still remains.

Organist Dave Michaels has left H. P. Lovecraft, guitarist Don Stevenson has left Moby Grape and Pigpen and guitarist Bob Weir will be leaving the Grateful Dead soon. Fleetwood Mac has added a third guitarist to the group, Ten Years After is at the Fillmore (Th.-Sun.) and on Pow! this Sunday.

Eighth-Ranked Eagles Fall, 38-14

Ram Soccer Stars Cream Ohlone, Diablo In Shutouts

By Patrick Chan

The Ram soccer team picked up two easy wins and tightened their hold on second place in the Golden Gate Conference race by shuting out both Diablo Valley, 8-0 and Ohlone, 9-0, two weeks ago.

Ohlone, a new entry to the league, never stood a chance to the quickly improving Rams, who've now won three straight conference victories since losing to San Mateo on October 18.

OTEY CANNON was the big scorer of the day in a game that was played on a slippery field in the rain with four goals. Al Chu added another two and Harry Best, Jose Tovar, and Paul Bogatsky each got into the act with one goal apiece.

Against Diablo Valley earlier that week the Rams breezed past the Vikings with virtually no effort in the 8-0 win.

It became apparent early in the game that Diablo Valley was clearly outclassed and merciful head coach Roy Diederichsen arranged his strategy accordingly.

Diederichsen allowed Bill Christensen and Vince Attard to share the goalkeeping chores, alternating them each quarter.

City College got on the scoreboard in the first quarter after Chu slipped past two Viking defenders, and kicked it in beyond the reach of Diablo Valley's goalie.

In the second quarter Jerry Tigue took a pass and kicked it in over the goalie's head to increase the Ram's lead to 2-0.

All throughout the first half Diablo Valley never seriously threaten to score.

IN THE THIRD quarter play, Cannon started things off, by using his head to butt in a goal after taking a pass from Jose Tovar.

Jerry Tigue followed by kicking in another score after an attempt by Cannon had bounced off one of the goal posts.

Tigue again scored in the third period after taking a pass from Cannon.

With the game now in the bag, the Rams continued to pour it on in the fourth quarter despite substitutions made by Diederichsen to keep the score down.

Tigue turned out to be the game's top scorer with three goals, his best scoring performance since last year's state championship game in which he scored four goals.

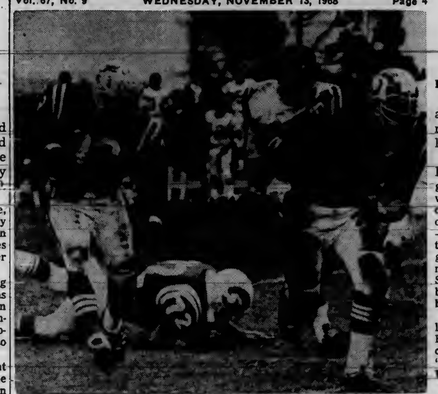
Cannon and Bogatsy each hit for two goals apiece while Chu scored one goal.

In addition to the scorers, Clive Butler with his playmaking, Tovar with his fine dribbling and Braulio Trigueros excellent defensive play also contributed to the Rams' victory.

Lungbusters Triumph As Haza Places First

Ram lungbusters overcame injuries to become victors in a Chabot, Laney tri-meet.

George Haza, leader of the pack refused to give up his hard gained position to the next best Ram, Robert Darling.



Haza took first in the four mile tri-meet with a clocking of 20:52; Darling edged in for third with a time of 21:43.

The team showed improved team depth from their last meet with Klaus Hoffman fireballing in the fifth place with a 21:43. David Powers who suffered severe injuries before the last meet unabling him to run, showed great courage in placing 10th with a clocking of 22:09.

Jose Garcia, sensing the team's need for a strong fifth man gave all he had to finish a respectable 15th in the running.

Tony Baccelli, the team spirit, didn't quite make his goal this outing; however, he says he won't give up until he knocks off that first place he's shooting for.

The next Ram outing will be in the Nor Cal. Championship at Foothill at 1 p.m.—F.B.

MONTY CONSANI (66), left guard on the Ram eleven's forward line, leads the way for halfback Joeslah Bell (33) during the Ram 41 to 28 victory over Merritt. Bell gained 167 yards in the game as the Rams got 511. —Photo by Russ Wong

O. J. Simpson Most Likely Choice To Receive Honor In Hall Of Fame Selections

As 1968 draws to a close, the thoughts of the Guardsman's editors flash ahead to the Hall of Fame selections in May of 1969, and quite naturally the image of O.J. (orange juice) Simpson looms into view. Although no one on the staff or the selection committee will comment, it would not seem far-fetched to assume that Simpson will be one of the two men to be honored by his former classmates and coaches.

IF HE is selected, Simpson will join a select group of names such as Ollie Matson, Gary Lewis, Louis Conlan, Ralph Hillsman, and Bob Tealer.

Unfortunately, many worthy candidates are not selected because only two men can be selected each year. Three years must pass after a candidate leaves City College before he can be selected.

In 1957, at the start of the Hall of Fame, 13 members were picked, but the number that could be selected annually was changed to two and remained that way until the present time.

Members of the committee to select the Hall of Famers are the Guardsman Staff, Dean Hillsman, Bill Fisher, and Jack Gaddy. Eight men are nominated annually.

HILLSMAN STATED that his biggest thrill of being chosen for the 35-36 basketball season, was the deep gratitude he felt toward his teammates and coaches and that receiving the honor would remain as one of the high points of his career.

Counselor Bob Tealer was picked for the 55-56 season when he broke the basketball scoring record.—J.R.

Intramurals Marred By Forfeits; G'man Fizzle At Hands Of Phi Delts

Intramural basketball saw its seventh forfeit of the season last Tuesday as the Mission Rebels failed to show for their game with Alpha Phi Epsilon. Intramural coordinator, Gary Siri, has eliminated the Rebels for the remainder of the season due to their forfeits, and has threatened similar action against other teams.

In other action Tuesday, a revitalized Phi Delta, behind the hot tipping of Bill Litchenberger with 16 points, trounced a tough Guardsman team, 47-35. The Guardsman, despite the return of veteran Mike Duggan, Andy Kennedy's 12 points, and John Franicevich's eight points, could not take the lid off the basket in the second half. A tough Black Students Association swarmed over the Ball 50-35, with Willie Turnate sinking 13 points for BSA and Tom Dettling 14 for the losers. The Apaches squeezed by H&R, 29-28.

Thursday, October 31, was dominated by three forfeits and a 42-29 victory by H&R over the Villagers. —C.B.

McGee, Line Lead Offense; Defense Stops Tough Laney

By Phil DiCarlo

The Rams danced unmercifully over the Laney Eagles Friday afternoon to the tune of 38-14. City College had whipped the eighth ranked team in the latest California poll, revenged the Prune Bowl loss of 1966 and made Homecoming 1968 a success.

"How did ya like that?" said an overjoyed Pops Schwarz, the line coach, upon reaching the wild and happy locker room after the game. "Everyone is as high as... wow what a game! Schwarz and head coach Dutch Elston had been carried off the field by their jubilant players —who looked like they were floating themselves. "The kids knew it was going to be a ball game and were mentally ready for it," remarked Schwarz. Someone had written on the blackboard, "We're No. 1 and everybody knows it."

The fans showed up this week to lend a hand in the victory. Diane Baker and the cheerleaders kept the crowd cheering the team onward. "We're gonna rock that Red and White, hey yamma yamma ..."

"Rock" they did as the defense came up with their best effort of the year. Laney was shut-out in the second half after scoring only twice in the first half. Not only didn't they score in that second half, they didn't even gain any yardage rushing! Even with big, bad Leon Burns, the second leading rusher in the league, the Eagles were held to MINUS one yard on the ground in the second half.

Laney didn't do too well passing either. Even though they threw for 303 yards, 193 in the second half, the Eagles had four passes intercepted and couldn't score once after halftime. Linebacker Gerald Dyson, the former Galileo star, swiped two Eagle passes, taking the second one 49 yards and setting up the last Ram score. The quick-to-smile Dyson, brother of halfback Jon, was hauled down one yard short of the Laney end zone.

"We're gonna roll that Red and White, hey yamma yamma."

The Rams rolled for 366 yards in total offense against a Laney defense that was considered the key to their winning season. Again the line play was the big factor. Doyle Miller, who Wood was the starting quarterback at the beginning of the season, but has given way recently to Costanzo. A former Player-of-the-Year and All-County star at Capuchino High School, Costanzo is leading a second half Bulldog surge. Wood has been moved to a halfback slot along with his threat to throw the ball. He joins the feisty Barr, who carried the ball 30 times against Chabot, and fullback Jim Teames. Teames' twin brother, Bob, is a starting guard in a fairly good offensive front five. The brothers Teames also team with punter Ward as linebackers on defense.

Costanzo throws to top receivers Dan English and Jim Mathwig.—P.D.

San Mateo Hosts Ram Gridders In Closing Encounter

Arch-rival San Mateo will host the Rams this Saturday afternoon in the season finale for both teams.

The 1:30 p.m. game pits the powerful offensive squad from City College against tough Bulldog defenders. San Mateo hasn't had a very successful year due to an inconsistent offense, but they've given many teams a rough go of it before finally succumbing. This was graphically illustrated two weeks ago as the Bulldogs gave the business to Laney's Eagles in an 18-17 heart-breaking loss. With 18 returning lettermen and a handful of prep stars, San Mateo looks good in many positions. There's just not enough to go around.

Featuring a top-notch defensive backfield and a 270 pound rock on the line, the Bulldog defense rates well in the league. Led by tough, little (5'9", 160 pounds) Mike Barr, a two way performer, and co-captain Dave Armstrong, the secondary picks off opponent's passes in bunches. Issac Law, from Lake Charles, Louisiana, is the anchor of the defensive line. Law is 6 feet 7 inches tall and weighs 271 pounds! Linebackers Dennis Ward is also the top punter in the league. Ward led the Golden Gate Conference last year with a 35.4 yard average, and is leading this year with over 41 yards per kick.

Bruce Wood, Mike Costanzo and Barr are the primary threats to the Ram's rugged front line. Co-captain averaged 12 yards a carry (!). Willie Lewis (6.8) and Joesiah Bell (5.7) followed great blocking by the offensive linemen to pick up 260 yards on the ground.

The scoring went this way. City College took the opening kickoff and drove for a score in only seven plays. Jim Anderson, the little speedster who just might be "the find" of the season, returned the kick 40 yards. Miller scored the touchdown from 20 yards out.

Just after the second quarter began, the Eagles tied the game on a 42 yard pass from Hobart Robinson to his very good end, James Brown. Three minutes later, big Willie Lewis pounded over from the three to put the Rams ahead to stay.

LEWIS SCORED again, minutes later, on three consecutive passes.

Following the kick-off, Laney was forced to punt once more and again City College put six points on the board. This 59-yard scoring drive took only four plays with McGee taking Mayfield's pitch the final 33 yards.

Burns scored the last Eagle touchdown a minute before the intermission.

THE RAMS scored twice more in the second half to put the icing on the cake. Right after the half started, Miller sprinted 40 yards for his second touchdown, on a play set up by Dyson's first interception. Miller took off around right end and with a simply fantastic block thrown by Bell, cut back to his left, hurdled a couple of fallen Eagles and churned for six. After Dyson's second theft and subsequent return to the Laney one, Mayfield scored on a quarterback sneak. Guards Monty Consani, Dan Parish and center Bill McKenna simply wedged the Eagles out of Mayfield's way.

Only one game left in the season—with San Mateo this Saturday. Diablo Valley has won the GGC championship, but with a win Saturday, the Rams could finish with five straight victories, a respectable seven and two record and hope for next year. And don't you think our guys wish they could play Diablo Valley and San Jose again. You bet your sweet bippy they do... hey yamma yamma.

Cagers Battle For Final Team Berths

Ram Cagers are in their final stages of preparation for the ensuing season.

The first five still haven't been picked yet, but Coach Sid Phelan feels he has a definite first eight who will be interchangeable, depending who's hot offensively and defensively that night.

Although Phelan isn't designating the starting positions, yet speculators are placing Telvis Jones, Tom Kuhn, Darrel Frigia, Jacob Hill, and Jessie Arterberry as the starters. However, these speculators will have no effect on the starting lineup, as it lies solely in the hands of Phelan and his able assistant, the Honorable Brad Dugan.

KEITH MILES, Tom Clyburn, and Jesse Arterberry are battling it out for the post position, giving Phelan a choice group of jumpers to pick from.

Miles, a rugged 6-4, will also be in line for a starting forward spot along with another newcomer, Tom McVea, a veteran, who starred at Poly before going into the service.

The team starts pre-season play at the end of this month (November 29) with a game against former league rival Contra Costa, and then will open Stanford's new pavilion with a battle against the Injun's Frosh on November 30.

PHELAN WILL also have a great bunch of shooters to pick from, Telvis Jones, Tom Kuhn, Darrell Fregia and Robert Phelan.

The team is overall stronger than last year's team, however, the speed and shooting isn't as good as last year, when the Rams had the services of Gary Bradford who is currently with the U.S. Air Force and Ray Hearn who is currently with the SF Municipal Railways.

The only opponent sized up so far is Laney, who have an excellent team.

The other teams haven't been sized so far, therefore pre-season predictions are impossible so far.—F.B.

Poloists Sink To Sixth Consecutive Loss

City College extended its season long losing streak to six in a row in water polo with two lopsided losses to Chabot and Foothill.

In their first meeting against Foothill, the Rams got whalloped 33-4 and then got exactly the same treatment the second time around losing 32-1. Rich Glass, the Rams' leading scorer knocked in the only goal for City College.

It was the same story earlier that week when the Rams faced Chabot and drowned in losing 24-4. Dave Nelson led the team in scoring with two goals while Brett Higdon and Glass each scored one apiece.

With a record of 0-6, the Rams have now allowed 181 goals or an average of 30 points per game, while scoring only 21 all together themselves. Retaining the club lead in scoring is Dave Nelson with nine goals scored.

With regular season competition now over, many of the water polo team members will be playing in the AAU league during the winter in preparation for next season. There are hopes of brighter days ahead next fall.

Former wrestler Happy Humphrey, who weighed over 700 pounds during his grappling days, recently retired from the ring and has since dieted down to 180 pounds.

World Renowned Jazz Musician John Handy Slated For Concerts Here, Riordan High Tuesday

By Gerry Engler

John Handy, world renowned jazz musician, will bring his band to the College Theater next Tuesday for a free concert during College Hour. Later that same night he will again appear at Riordan High School's Auditorium.

Tickets for Tuesday night's 8 p.m. performance will be $1.50.

Besides Handy on saxophone, his quintet is made up of Michael White, violin; Mike Nock, piano; Larry Hancock, drums; and James Leary, bass. They will be backed up by the City College Orchestra and Band for both performances. Handy's quintet will solo as will the City College groups during the course of the concerts.

Handy shies away from contemporary jazz and improvises in most of his music.

His professional career began while attending McClymonds High School in Oakland. Handy then enfered San Francisco State College as a music major, only to be drafted two years later during the Korean crisis.

UPON HIS RETURN, he entered City College, later transferring again to San Francisco State.

In 1958, Handy performed with Charly Mingus and his band in New York for eight months.

Because of the publicity he received from the press while with Mingus, he decided to start his own group. Soon after he recorded his first album with Roulette Records.

In 1961 Handy's quintet toured nine countries in Europe.

Returning to San Francisco, the following year, Handy concluded his studies at San Francisco State and received his degree in Music.

In 1965 and 1966, the noted musician appeared at the Monterey Jazz Festival. During this time, he enbarked on a 36 College Concert tour in four states.

APPEARING ON the Bell Telephone hour last year, Handy was praised by the United Press International for his performance which was unparalled by the other performers, which included electric rock groups and the San Francisco Symphony.

At the Antibes Jazz Festival in the town of Juan-les-Pins, on the French Riviera, Handy was the highlight of the four day event which included Louis Armstrong and Dave Brubeck.

AT STERN GROVE this summer, two more jazz concerts were produced by Handy.

Presently, the jazz musician is instructing a course called Development of Jazz Improvisation at San Francisco State College.

Regarding his new task of teaching, Handy said, "The faculty have a prescribed taste with what they want to hear, and hopefully I won't do this. I am open to all ideas from my class."

JOHN HANDY, the famed jazz musician, will be appearing with his group next Tuesday during College Hour as a preview of his benefit performance later that same night at Riordan Auditorium.

Important Budgets Await Fate Today

Budget hearings for the spring semester continue today in Bungalow 5 with the student council hearing three very important budget pleas from the Concert Lecture series, the Free Critic, and the Experimental College.

Of major importance to students is the fate of the Free Critic and the Experimental College.

The Free Critic received $3000 from the Student Council at the begining of this semester for the publication of 14 issues. After a two week delay at the begining of the semester, the first issue of the Critic came out. The delay was due to the refusal by some of the student council members to grant money to the paper.

The Critic is not in any trouble of being cut entirely however, as the majority of the council, being Coalition party members, favor the paper.

The Experimental College also is in little danger of being cut since the college is a pet favorite of the council.

The Experimental College is asking for $1300 next semester, much of whom will be allocated to individual groups at $15 apiece.

Funds for next semester's concert lecture series will also be decided at today's meeting. This semester the series brought 10 different speakers and musicians to the college, all of whom gave free performances to the public in the College Theater.

Presiding over today's meeting will

(Continued on Page 2, Column 3)

UC Berkeley Now Accepting ROTC Air Force Forms

Applications are now being accepted for the Air Force ROTC program at the University of California, Berkeley for those students transferring to the Berkeley campus for the 1968-69 academic year.

Male students, undergraduate or graduate, whose degree requirements will be completed in June of 1971, are eligible to apply.

Selections will be made in early 1969. Those chosen for the two-year program will attend summer training immediately while those that qualify as four-year applicants (those currently in an ROTC Program) will attend during the summer of 1970.

All selected applicants will attend ROTC classes during 1969-70 and 1970-71, earning three units per academic term.

During ROTC enrollment, cadets receive $50 per month and draft deferments. Those who successfully complete the program are commissioned a second lieutenant.

Students interested in the ROTC program at Berkeley should write or visit AFROTC Detachment 85, University of California, Berkeley. Processing can also be accomplished for other AFROTC Detachments.

Recruiting Continues By Spanish Students; Tutors Ready To Work

With an aim of furthering social action the Spanish Speaking Students Organization is now in the process of recruiting new members.

The organization's aims include obtaining a bungalow to be used for their tutorial programs and as a community meeting place for members. They also want to bring about an expanded Spanish curriculum.

In the past the club has sponsored social activities such as a rally at the football field, where they performed dances from the various Latin countries. They also featured guest speaker Juan Martinez who spoke on "Unity" and the "Brown Berets." The club is hoping to get Martinez as their official adviser to replace Counselor Joseph Jacobsen, who has been ill.

Should they ever receive a bungalow, the club has three student tutors already lined up for action. They are: Maurice Santos, who will teach botany, anatomy, physiology, and calculus; Jose Compos who will teach algebra, elementary math, biology and chemistry and Jesus Garcia who will teach geometry. Lessons will be carried on in either English or Spanish and will be open to all Latin students.

Interested students should contact either Fernando Cosio, president, Jorge Samayoa, vice-president or Dora Ojeda, treasurer. The sponsors of the club are Dr. Darwin Alonso, William Lopez, and Noel Tapia.

The Guardsman

Official Weekly Publication of the Students in the Journalism Department of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 67 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 20, 1968 NUMBER 10

Flu Brings Down Cleaver; Lecture Here Called Off

Black Panther Minister of Information Eldridge Cleaver was forced to cancel all of his scheduled speaking engagements last week, including the one slated here for last Thursday, due to a sudden flu.

The topic of his talk was to be American racism.

His secretary delivered the message to Roger Cassell, organizer of the American Racism class of the Experimental College, last Thursday morning just a couple hours prior to the time he was scheduled to talk.

"We'll try to reschedule his talk for another date," Cassell said. However, he did not have any definite information as to specific dates, but he said he will try for a date during this current semester.

Black People Need Black Power For Fulfillment—Dr. Wright

By Floyd Banks and Jeff Deleuse

Dr. Nathan Wright, noted Black author, urbanologist and lecturer, pronounced his views on cosmic existance last Thursday during College Hour in the College Theater.

The first half of his lecture was highly enunciated in difficult words and phrases. In fact if he was speaking of "Black Folks" most of them would not have known it.

About "Black Power," Wright used the term "Impower life to become;" meaning Black Power is the force which would allow Black people to become (people).

SPEAKING ON POWER (black, student, white etc.), Wright said in effect that any force that serves to promote human fullfillment is good. He also said "institutions work to negate human fullfillment."

About Black Power, he said, "Black people need Black Power" as a means of fullfillment. When asked about the good of the school integration at Berkeley, Wright related what a Minnesota school principal told him by saying that Blacks don't need integration but "Negroes" do.

When asked of the violent aspects of the Black Power movement, Wright said that he didn't hear the question because he didn't know of any cases of Black violence but only violence of Whites perpetrated on Blacks. About Student Power, Wright said "If colleges want power they must respect the lives of the students, because students are saying, 'Hear us and respects us.'"

"IF THE ADMINISTRATION is unable to hear and respect the students as adults, then the students will have to move against them in order to have human fullfillment," added Wright.

After the lecture got going, the only time it lost its momentum was when Wright used the term "Soul-Brother," which turned off the Black listeners. He used it only once however, thereafter using the term "My Brother" and "My Sister" when referring to Blacks in the audience.

At the end of his lecture he said "Peace and Power to one and all." This statement sort of resolved all the problems and conflicts of the cosmos into a capsule solution.

Inca Play Draws Four Full Houses

By Dan McCarthy

Royal Hunt of The Sun, produced by the college drama department, is now in its final week of performance. The play will be presented tonight through Saturday at 8 p.m. in the College Theater.

"Royal Hunt" played to full houses during its four performances last week. The play which is divided into two acts, runs about two and a half hours.

The months spent in preparation for "Royal Hunt" are evidenced in the quality of the production. Costumes are colorful while still retaining authenticity. Lighting and sound effects add interest and originality to the production.

AUDIENCES HAVE responded favorable to the play according it enthusiastic applause. Many favorable comments could be heard during intermissions. One student remarked, "It's the best nonprofessional performance I've seen."

Probably the single most spectacular scene of the play is the Inca procession which occurs at the end of the first act. The Inca tribe actually moves through the audience to ascend the stage. Jungle sounds accompany the rhythmic procession of Inca-god Athaullpa, Villac Umu, the high priest, and other members of the Inca court.

One of the most artistic scenes is the Dance of the Condors following the slaughter of the Incas. Two modern dancers artfully portray birds in this dance of death. During the dance a symbolic red scarf is draped over the bodies of the dead Incas.

IN ADDITION TO being a colorful spectacle, Royal Hunt embodies much philosophical thought about the meaning of man's existence. Its protagonist, Pizarro, is a disillusioned old man who scorns the conventions of church and state. In the Christ figure Atahuallpa, Pizarro finds his last hope of immortality. The relationship that develops between the two men creates the focal point of the play.

An admission price of $1.25 is being charged for the play, however

(Continued on Page 3, Column 5)

Demands Submitted By Spanish, Black, Chinese Students

The Black Students, the Chinese Students and the Spanish Speaking Students Organizations have each submitted separate lists of demands to the Administration.

At last week's Student Council meeting Van Nickerson, spokesman for the BSA, announced that Black Students were asking that at least 30 Black instructors be added to the faculty and that at least one Black Administrator be added to the Administration.

At the present time there is only one Black man on the Administration, Robert Tealer, a counselor.

The question was raised by Student Council on how room could be found to place Blacks without firing any of the present instructors.

AS President Derrick Hill replied that at the begining of each semester the college interviews about 100 people for instructor positions. An effort could be made by the Administration to hire the Blacks that apply for these jobs.

Included in the BSA list of demands was a request for a Black section to be set up in the college library.

Among the Chinese Students demands were for more Chinese instructors to teach at the college. Al Wong, spokesman for the CSA, emphasized "Chinese" instructors and not "Chinese-American."

Hill jokingly stated, "We don't want any Uncle Wongs!"

When asked what they would do if their demands were not met, Al Wong and Van Nickerson both replied "no comment."

The Spanish Speaking Students Organizations demands ran roughly in the same pattern as BSA and CSA. They asked for more Latin American studies and Spanish instructors.

New Graphic Arts Building Under Construction

Overcrowded conditions on campus will be eased somewhat by the new Graphic Arts Building which is now under construction and should be ready for use next fall.

Graphic Arts Hall, as it is being tentatively called, will be located just below the Arts Building on the eastern part of the campus. The hall will consist of regular class rooms, photography labs, graphic arts labs, reading labs and two large lecture halls.

The new building is being financed with $700,000 from the State, $300,000 from the San Francisco Unified School District and $500,000 from the Federal Government. The total construction costs will run in excess of $1,500,000.

According to Dr. Harry Buttimer, the new hall "will ease overcrowded conditions somewhat but will not solve the problem entirely." College enrollment has soared to an all-time high of 14,000 students—over 10,000 attending day classes and 3,500 enrolled at night.

Graphic Arts Hall will be the seventh building added to the College since its beginning in 1935, when Science Hall was the only structure.

The construction of two large lecture halls will balance the insufficiency of seating space in the two lecture halls presently situated in Science Hall. With the addition of the labs, an increase of student enrollment in photography, graphic arts and reading courses is expected.

THE EXPANDING CAMPUS of City College continues to grow as workers go about their daily job of setting the foundation for the new Graphic Arts Hall. —Guardsman photo by Steven LaPiant

The Guardsman Editorial Page
Official Weekly Publication of the Students in the Journalism Department of City College of San Francisco
MIKE DUGGAN, EDITOR
Vol. 67, No. 10 WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 20, 1968 Page 2

The Nude Revolution

AMONG THE MANY SOCIAL REVOLUTIONS erupting in this generation, the newest movement looming into focus seems to be taking the form of a nude revolution.

The question of public human nudity seems to be creating a cluster of diversified opinions and heated arguments. Some say that the subject of public nudity is the epitomy of obscenity. Others climb a mystic platform and view public nudity as a sort of spiritual separation from a clothed society. Philosopher's will most likely bat this question around as long as language exists.

A San Francisco rock magazine, "Rolling Stone," recently came out with a completely nude pose of Beatle John Lennon and his fiance, Yoko Ono. They reportedly are releasing it on the cover of a future record album. Lennon's step into the nude revolution could well be ranked as the boldest move since Lady Godiva rode the haughty steed of public exposure.

The Guardsman feels that present public opinion will naturally be opposed to the nude revolution, just as public opinion is opposed to everything else that eventually changes.

It is relatively easy to predict the eventual thread by thread conquest of the nude revolution (if the world lasts that long). Our historical trend towards complete liberalism is an obvious factor in foreseeing a clotheless society.

The paradox of the nude situation is: When the majority of the public does go nude, won't the clothed minority inherit the nude phenomenon, which would result in the clothed being the actual nudes?

For a solution to this puzzle, we urge you to keep your clothes on in public, and leave public nudity to the revolutionists and your private affairs.

Contact Lens

Does Richard Nixon Really Represent Majority Of People?

SANTIAGO

Ben Santiago, General Education Major
It was too close. Nixon had some of the news media behind him and this could have helped him. They should modify the electoral votes. A candidate should have at least a percentage of the electoral votes he receives in a state. If Nixon's popularity is not clear cut, it will be reflected in the mass media. The people's opinion will determine what his policies will be. If enough people speak out against him, he will do what they want.

BATCHELOR

Karen Batchelor, English Major
I think he just squeeked by. He was the lesser of three evils. If more people had voted I don't think he would have won. This points up a number of shortcomings in the electoral system. Besides Nixon doesn't have the support of Congress. This came about because a number of voters split their ballots. Something should be done with the electoral system; it is an outdated hangover from our early history.

WHITE

Austin White, History Instructor
Yes if you add the votes that Wallace got to the ones that Nixon got. If Wallace had not been in the campaign, his votes would have gone to Nixon as they had to Goldwater in 1964. However, the groups that are discontented in the country are not represented by him; these being the poor, the young, the minority groups and the conservative people who voted for Wallace. This indicates that Nixon will have to move carefully.

NAMKUNG

Gloria Namkung, Oriental Language Major
He represents the choice of the 43 per cent who elected him, but 43 per cent is not a majority of the voting public. The election represents the fact that the entire electoral process is obsolete and undemocratic and that some very drastic revisions will be necessary. Nixon only got 43 per cent of the votes and that is not taking into consideration the vast number of Americans under 21 who are not enchanted with his brand of politics.

CHIESA

Pat Chiesa, Nursing Major
Not really. He seemed to be a last resort—an alternative, and the people will tend to be critical of him. The election should be based more on the popular vote. As it is, the big states decide the election. The fact that the people split their votes shows that they thought about the voting. Judging from the past, the Democrats in Congress might just tend to go against Nixon because he is a Republican.

ALBANO

Russ Albano, Pre-Dental Major
It seems to me that Nixon is worried about having popular opinion of the people behind him. His campaign motto shows that he wants to unite the people, so he may want to keep a tab on public polls to make sure he's doing what the people want. Electoral system should be changed so that it clearly shows popular sentiment. It should be conducted in proportion to the popular vote in a state.

—Compiled by Lavine Lee, photo by Jim Pope

Pledges Pie-Faced

THIS IS ONE OF THE TYPICAL SITUATIONS that the pledges are expected to do for the initiations during "hellweek."

Fraternities Are Silent Do Gooders

City College of San Francisco expressly prohibits fraternities and sororities from hazing their pledges. Officers of its seven fraternities vehemetly deny dazing is practiced.

However, you need to only look around during "hellweek," and for some reason a rash of freshly scrubbed young men appear to be a bit "off." For example, carrying a potato sack over extended arms through Smith Hall bellowing, "tolerance, understanding and brotherhood will be my reward from the Golden Goose of Empathy" is not unusual during hellweek.

Standing rigidly next to a student eating his lunch and serenading him with "Never will I Leave You," is likewise not uncommon.

Coeds have reportedly been approached by beanied men and asked to donate a piece of their first layer clothing to the women in the Woolbarang tribe in the Australian bush, who cannot afford bare necessities.

Public appearances are frequent. Stunts like standing atop a library table and announcing, "My name is Julius Ceasar and I want to cross this stream. Can anyone loan me a life jacket because I can't swim," are also common occurances.

These antics and more are the results of laborious planning by the fraternities. And reports of paddling, humiliating dress and weird food served during meals are common to fraternity initiations.

The Greek letter societies are secret organizations in the United States and Canadian Colleges. Their main purpose is the promotion of good fellowship.

The membership is restricted and new members are selected by the old members, instead of by petition of the candidate himself.

Out of this sinister-like image comes acts of direct contradiction. For more than ten years City College fraternities have participated in such activities as the Irwin memorial blood drive and have over 5000 pints of plasma credited to their efforts.

Turning to children crippled from birth defects, the secret society members have turned in over $4000 to aid the conquest of this disease. From the hands and minds of these apparent characters flows money for Student Activity Scholarships to deserving men and women.

Showing the range of their concern, they promote a book drive to supply less fortunate people on the other side of the globe with an opportunity to read.

A fraternity member does not fit into any pat category. If anything he is a combination of many things, of which compassion and brotherhood are only a few.

Sigma Delta Frat Good Therapy For Ailing Student

By Rita Carroll

Ken Knight, a student at City College and a member of Alpha Sigma Delta fraternity, has been ill for approximately four months with a rather serious kidney infection.

While Ken has been out of school his fraternity brothers have spent many hours visiting him and occupying his time, which is the best type of therapy.

The actions of the Alpha Delta Sigma Fraternity brothers was called to the attention of Ralph Hillsman, dean of students, by a letter from Ken's mother, Irene Knight, which noted their actions as "very admirable."

Mrs. Knight was especially impressed when 12 fraternity brothers paid a surprise visit to Ken on his birthday last month.

In the letter to Dean Hillsman, Mrs. Knight wrote, "I thought you should be apprised of these facts—when I told this display of loyalty to a friend, she said, 'I can't believe it,' but it's quite concrete and goes back to the age old saying, 'actions speak louder than words'."

The actions of the fraternity brothers, while noteworthy, did not surprise many City College administrators. In a letter he wrote to Mrs. Knight, Dean Hillsman said, "I am not surprised by their (Alpha Delta Sigma fraternity) good samaritan behavior. The Alpha Sigs, as long as I've known them, have always been concerned for their brothers in need . . . City College is fortunate in having outstanding students and student groups who quietly go about doing their 'things' without recognition."

Last semester Alpha Delta Sigma sponsored a blood drive and this semester a very successful book drive was sponsored by the fraternity. This drive, the Asian Book Drive, collected both money and books to be sent to Asia. The fraternity also sponsored a dance, the Asian Benefit Book dance, charging an admission of five books or the usual amount of money.

The actions of the Alpha Sigs, are not unusual and the rare form of therapy given in a large dosage to Ken by his brothers may help him return to school shortly.

Guardsman Staff — Fall 1968
(The Guardsman is the official weekly publication of the students in the journalism department of City College of San Francisco. It is published each Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacations. The opinions expressed in the columns and editorials are those of the individual writers and not necessarily those of the Guardsman, the department or the college. Editorial office, 304, Science Hall; telephone 587-7272, extension 240.)

EDITOR IN CHIEF ..... MIKE DUGGAN
Managing Editor ..... Doug Boston
Feature Editor ..... Tom Graham
Staff Editor ..... Boku Kodama
News Editor ..... Barbara Namann
Sports Editor ..... Dave Albertson
Editorial Assistants: Martin J. Arbunich, Lani Brand, Rita Carroll, Lavine Lee, Lynda Sandstrom.
Reporters: Floyd Bandy, Pat Chan, Phil DiCarlo, Randy Flynn, Dan McCarthy, Florence McCarthy, James Pope, Lea Ribeiro, Jack Ruiz, Sonia Schmidt, Ray Gin.
Cub Reporters: Dan Angelo, Dan Castro, Lynetta Conklin, Jaff Delauza, Garry Engler, Ban Marines, Diane Metson, Elizabath Ramon, Greg Stueve, Kenneth Surface, Barbara Tyrrell, Vel Vellador, T. Y. Wong.
Photographers: Merilyn Astaloah, Chief; Bert Flowers, Glenn Graham, Steven La Frent, Jerry Mishler, DeDef Osburg, Jens Protze, Roberto Guillen, Kevin Shea, Elmar T. McKnight, Gevin Watt, Calvin Wong, Russell Wong, Sam Woo.
Advisor: Mary Blair.

Budget Items Await Fate

(Continued from Page 1)

be AS Finance Chairman Derrick Quan. Earlier this semester Quan was fired by the Student Council because of the Coalition party members found him too conservative for their taste.

After Paul Slate, who was appointed in Quan's place, resigned from the Finance chairmanship, Derrick Quan returned to take back his old job.

SHOOTIN' IT

by Doug Boston

THOSE dirty rotten reporters. They printed all kinds of lies about me. They took my quotes in the wrong context. They created false statements in order to fill up a hole. And the worst trick of all, they put the story on the first page.

"You should never mind what they say about you as long as it's something good and it's on the front page."—Horace Greeley.

Apparently, someone at East Los Angeles Junior College didn't like what was printed, or didn't heed the words of Horace Greeley. Last week, a fire started by a Molotox cocktail burned up the student newspaper offices and caused $25,000 damage to the building.

• • •

THROW THE BALL GEORGE: We attended The Paper Lion recently, and found it to be a very humorous and informative picture. Based on George Plimpton's book of the same name, the movie traces Plimpton's adventures in trying out for the Detroit Lion football team as a third-string quarterback from Harvard. The film has many tense moments as the audience waits for Plimpton to get his crack at directing the team in a game. He finally gets his chance with 1:36 to play against the St. Louis Cardinals. Much of the film's rib-tickling is created during the huddle where, to the amusement of all the fans, Plimpton sees his big chance at football immortality go down the drain. On his first two plays, Plimpton is tackled for losses mounting to 30 yards. Then Plimpton calls a pass play from his own 15-yard line. One of the Lions in the huddle speaks up, "George, that's a pass play, do you know where we are." And George comes back, "Of couse I do, I got us here didn't I." Another player tells Plimpton, "If we keep moving backward like this, were going to end up in the stands."

The last play of the game is something everyone must see. All we can say is that its a real knockout for Plimpton. Proof of the flicks ability to provoke laughter was displayed the night we were there, as Guardsman editor Mike Duggan was seen rolling in the isles, doubled up with a kingsize side-ache.

• • •

SALESMENSHIP: Kathy Gerber and Barbara Bommerschein, representing the Campus Police, topped all AS Card sales with a record 657 sold. Other outstanding performances were recorded by Mary Phelan (352) Shirley Brown (300) Brendel Kreighbaum (294) Fred Wilson (187) Pat Plummer (134) Derrick Quan (123) Tim Lee (106). Many other hard-working students sold AS Cards including Mike Shafer and Ling Huey, who managed to sell a grand total of four cards. Congratulations to these students and all the others who contributed their time and energy.

• • •

VITALS-INFORMATION: The Taj of India at 825 Pacific Avenue in San Francisco offers a super bargain to its student customers. The restaurant has started a program where a delux dinner is reduced to half-price to students presenting their associated student card. The Taj is open from 5:30 p.m. on every day except Monday. Anyone caught using a phony ID will be tied to the ground and stampeded upon by a herd of elephants.

• • •

GOINGS-ON: An assortment of daring daylight burglaries in the Buena Vista Park area were solved recently by police from the Mission Station. The gang's procedure: One of the gang would ring the doorbell of a house, and if nobody answered, they would climb through a window. If someone answered, the crook would apologize after asking for a phoney name. One of the officers said that the gang was really shrewd." Members of the gang were arrested carrying a .20 gauge shotgun and shells. The oddity of the gang: The oldest member was 13 years old.

• • •

RAM'S HORN: The Guardsman staff requests that students and instructors who write letters to the editor take some time in composing them and making them reasonably literate. We got one two weeks ago that was very difficult to translate into the English language. If the staff has the courtesy to print the letter we would appreciate the same consideration by those who write them.

DISPATCH

by Boku Kodama

CASEY-LIVED in the ghettos from the time he was born until he was 13 years old. He is attending college at this moment and getting along well as are his parents and younger sister, but life in the slums is filled with nothing but bitterness.

Here now, Casey recreates most of those years in the Fifties and tells how life was for him.

WHEN I WAS REAL SMALL, I remember my old man working from seven in the morning until eleven at night, six days a week, and making about 75 cents an hour.

My mother couldn't work because she had a weak back, but she couldn't get it fixed because we had no money.

We use to live in a dump. It was a three-room bit in a basement with steel bars on the windows.

My room was about six feet wide and six feet long, and that's no bullshit. I had a cot for a bed that my parents picked up in a surplus store.

Our kitchen was also our living room, family room and dining room.

There weren't any rugs on the concrete floor, and during the winter, you had to wear your shoes or your toes would freeze off. I remember my mother saying to me, "Don't you get your shoes dirty or you aren't wearing 'em in the house tonight."

We couudn't afford a heater or warm clothing, so we huddled around the old oven. It got so cold in that basement during the winter that every morning there was ice in the sink.

My parents gave me one shirt and one pair of pants a year. I had a jacket for about three years and one pair of shoes for about two years. If I ripped up any of my clothes, it was just too bad for me, and I had to wait.

During those years, we always had a light breakfast, no lunch and a small dinner. It was always coffee in the morning since it was cheap. We never had any milk because milk was 20 cents a quart and that was 20 cents too much for something which only I would use.

Lunch was just a word in the dictionary for me, and in school when the rest of the kids were eating during the noontime break, me and some other kids would just sit there and watch.

Dinner was usually sparse and only at Christmas and Easter did we eat until we were full. Thanksgiving was no big thing at our house as my father saw it. "We've got no thanks for being in this rut."

WHEN I WAS eight years old, my father moved us to an apartment on the second floor of a run-down, three-story building.

The apartment was an improvement over our old home though. It had a stove in one bedroom and lighting in every room.

Our new home had a really long hall with a floor made of wood and a bedroom on each end of it. My sister, who was about two years old at the time, and I shared one bedroom.

Our room was always bare since I had only one set of clothes and very few toys as did my sister, but it did have a rug on the floor, even though it was shot-up, which made the room a little warmer.

One Christmas, I think it was in 1958, my father had saved up twenty dollars and had gone to a used appliance shop and brought a second-hand television. Man, were we surprised! But my mother was a little angry at my old man for going out and blowing so much money.

I remember watching the television one night and feeling chilly. Two days later, I was in bed with pneumonia with a fever of a 106 degrees Fahrenheit. I could hardly open my eyes and had trouble breathing. We could not pay for a doctor, so I had to sweat it out for two weeks, and when it was over, I was skinnier than I had even been before.

When I was thirteen, my father found himself a decent job, and we moved to better things.

I'm glad I'm out of that rat hole, but I can't forget how many millions of people are still trapped in the slums. It's a real bad situation.

Poverty is a great enemy of human happiness; it certainly destroys liberty and it makes some virtues impracticable . . .—Samuel Johnson

A "Newlywed Game" couple won five points by each agreeing on the measurements of the wife's mother, 40-40-40.

Ramette Of The Week

By Mike Duggan

WE PROUDLY PRESENT, Lauren Joachim, Sweden's gift to City College, as our latest Ramette of the Week. This 18 year old beauty and her properly proportioned 5-9 frame was discovered near the flagpole in Cloud Hall Square by The Guardsman's always alert staff editor, Boku Kodama.

This fiery redhead has a well varied background that includes numerous speech awards in high school and even a few attempts at singing, at which she announces, "I'm no Barbra Streisand, but I do try very very hard."

Commenting on the recent presidential election, Lauren, who was a McCarthy supporter, says "I hope Nixon will take over on January 20 and start off his four years on the right foot by bringing back all our guys from Vietnam."

In response to a question concerning recent trouble at San Francisco State and other campuses in the area and across the nation, Lauren replied, "The people behind the strikes, violence, etc. want everything handed to them on a silver platter. The 'real' students, those who go to college to learn and be educated, don't have enough time or any reason to cause trouble."

Our lovely Ramette plans on transferring to Cal Poly (SLO) in the near future where she hopes to find the "right guy" to eventually marry. "I love children," states Lauren, "and hope to someday have my own large family."

LAUREN
—Guardsman photo by Dave Albertson

Lauren, one of three children of former Ohioians Charles and Marian Joachim, has a 20 year old brother, Chuck, who was a former All-City basketball player (who Lauren says didn't come to City College because he didn't think he could make the team here), and a possible future Ramette in nine year old sister, Kimmy.

As a closing word to City College males—better keep an eye out for this "not too hard to spot" ramette, for she plans on leaving San Francisco soon, and we wouldn't want that to happen, would we?

Underwater Odyssey

Yellow Sub: Kaleidoscope Of Sight And Sound For Beatles

By Raymond Gin

The Beatle's first animated cartoon, "Yellow Submarine" is a colossal kaleidoscope of sight and sound.

In all of animated cinema, there has never been a more effervescent, magical, and visual feature. In 1940, Walt Disney's "Fantasia" awed audiences by its phenomenal mixture of music and animated imagery, but "Yellow Submarine" advances the art of animation one giant step further.

PAUL, JOHN, GEORGE, RINGO minus their yellow sub, exploring the world of animated cinema and doing their big hits from the Revolver Album.

"Yellow Submarine" is an 80 minute underwater odyssey of pop-art caricatures of the Beatles, their impersonated voices, and a repertoire of their music ranging from their "Revolver" album to some as-yet-unreleased tunes.

One's immediatc impression is the imaginative outlay of the graphic art. Reputedly the result of over a half-a-million separately drawn frames done over a three year period, the film takes on a look of highly polished art nouveau.

YELLOW SUB'S journey through the eight seas is an optical, mind-expanding experience. The Sea of Consumer Products (prices marked down because of water damage), Sea of Music (Warning: treble ahead), and the Sea of Holes (where Boob, the sub's mechanic is lost) are the most notable of the waters travelled.

The film becomes visually breathtaking because of the color variations that extend from full color, partial color and tints to plain blacks and white. Also, the use of etchings, conventional animation, old film clips, and the appearance of the Beatles themselves in the finale makes the film pleasing to the eye. Mixed with these visual images are play-on-words satiric puns, and the characteristic speech and accents of the Beatles.

The music of the Beatles becomes an audio-sensation. Sometimes staged graphically as in the "All You Need is Love" number, the songs are generated with genuine vibrancy.

THE SOUNDTRACK includes the entire "Revolver" album and songs such as "Eleanor Rigby," "Lucy in the Sky with Diamonds," "Nowhere Man," "Baby Your a Rich Man," "A Little Help from My Friends," "Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band," and of course, "Yellow Submarine."

All these staggering elements and events lead to the triumphant climax, the recolorific of Pepperland and the exile of the Blue-Meanies.

Yellow Submarine is not submerged in a cauldron of childhood fantasy but is a very sophisticated and intelligent piece of animated celluloid. "Yellow Sub" emerges as an unforgettable cartoon masterpiece.

It opens its city-wide enagagement on November 27 at the New Royal and Empire Theaters.

Campus Committees Lauded By Conlan As Communication Aids

Faculty-student committee's on campus have been meeting, "... with increasing frequency and success" according to a recently issued newsletter from the office of City College president, Louis G. Conlan.

Conlan spoke of the academic necessity, "... of meaningful conferences that have produced results or are in the process of exploring and recommending courses of action that will help to define, to meet, and to anticipate the needs of the college."

He went on to illustrate the need for academic committees by referring to Richard Keans' "Dialogue on Education." He pointed out the need of "Achieving a context in which meaningful communication can take place is a must."

The newly formed committee on "Student Discipline, Student Activities and Use of Facilities is presently reviewing administration policies.

This committee meets twice a week and is open to suggestions from the student body.—D.A.

Finance Office Sells Tokens For Muni Fares

Bus tokens are now available to students on this campus who use any of the Municipal Railway services through the Finance Office, ES-207, according to Carl Anderson, accountant.

Each token will cost 15 cents, but a student may not buy more than ten tokens at one time. Registration cards will be needed to obtain these tokens which can be purchased in the Finance Office everyday from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

City College is providing the necessary funds to operate this non-profit public service to the students.

Originally, this was to be an Associated Students sponsored project, but because of the long period of time which was necessary to have the funds ($200) approved by Student Council, the Finance Office turned to the Administration who provided it.

The bus token program is, in the words of Anderson, "A service unequaled in the annals of student accommodations. It makes City College the only school in the city which offers them to its students."—L.L.

Campus Lineup:

• CSA Dance

The Chinese Student's Association will hold a dance this Saturday from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. at the Fugazi Hall, on Green Street at Powell. Music will be provided by "The Enchanters" and "The Illusions." Admission is $2.00 with a CSA membership card and $2.25 without.

• Dental Deadline

Anyone who desires to become a dental technician should file an application with the college Registrar by December 1, 1968, according to Frank Szehner, Instructor-coordinator of the Dental Laboratory Technology Curriculum.

• Up, Up And Away

Charter Flights will have five special jet flights at special student rates during the upcoming Christmas season. The flights, all evening takeoffs will depart from Oakland Airport and arrive in New York's Kennedy Airport. Meals and refreshments will be included in the $140 round trip fare. For further information, contact Charter Flights at 995 Market Street or phone 832-2902.

• Cotillion

Theta Tau and Phi Beta Rho sororities will present their pledges at their Cotillion to be held in the Crystal Room of the Thunderbolt Hotel in Millbrae December 6 from 9 p.m. to 12. This main event of the semester is to introduce the sorority pledges to the members of the sororities and fraternities. Tickets are $5 per couple and is open to the public. Dress will be both semiformal and formal. Theta Tau pledges will wear red and white dresses, which are the colors of their sorority. Phi Beta Rho pledges will wear pastel dresses.

Labelled And Recorded

New Rock Music Outlet Emerges

by Martin J. Arbunich

AT A TIME when The Establishment has the shotgun in their hands and has fired away a number of unsubstantial charges to eliminate an outlet for rock bands to perform in San Francisco by revoking the Avalon's license, a new ballroom emerges that could prove important if it lives long enough to take a long, deep breath.

A new outfit calling itself Thunderpig Productions has taken over the premises of the New Committee Theater on Montgomery Street and has turned it into a ballrdom where "we put on anything you can dig," as its head Joe Bailey told us.

Bailey, who has had no previous experience at running a house of entertainment, has a motive of operation which is both unique and commendable. "We're not trying to make money on this thing. Our aim is to establish a home where the upcoming bands of San Francisco can do their thing as they feel they are ready."

He explained that he didn't want to see his place turn commercial by bringing in big name bands like Jefferson Airplane. "Eventually we'd like to feature six or eight regular SF bands which are good but not big," he said. "There are still many SF groups around which are great and need the exposure which they deserve, and these will be the people we'll be running each week."

According to Bailey, he is currently running almost any band which feels qualified to perform. "We usually get around four bands each night along with two or three folksingers. And they keep playing until everyone runs out of gas, which is sometimes three or four in the morning."

He is also experimenting with other contemporary art forms by screening experimental films and performing modern dances on Monday thru Wednesday evenings. But he stressed that the weekend involvement with the new bands here is the artistic area he plans to concentrate on the most.

"I even have some taping equipment," Bailey added, "that the bands are using to record. The equipment isn't the greatest, but it gives the bands the opportunity to hear what kind of music they're making. We then feed the tapes to KSAN and KMPX and they air them."

Like all good people who have meritable goals but little money to put them over, Thunderpig Productions has started out with almost nothing and are presently just making ends meet. As Bailey put it, "We're in such a position that we may be here one week and gone the next."

Even as a large two-ballroom city with the Fillmore and Avalon, San Francisco is ill-equipped to accommodate the incredible number of bands and the large audience which inhabit the area. There are more good bands than San Francisco can presently take on, even if the two ballrooms were open every night and made an attempt to handle all of them. The few places in Sausalito and the small joints like Deno and Carlos' here are helpful to the cause but are still unable to take on the load alone.

This is why the Thunderpig people should be an important outlet for the music of this city if they can hack the financial overhead involved.

• • •

Music buffs who passed up the powerful Ten Years After quartet last weekend really missed quite a performance.

The fingers of guitarist Alvin Lee alone are enough to daze you; he's lightning fast and a great musician as well. Lee and his band have picked up a following here in the U.S., surprisingly a much more receptive following than in their own native country. If you'd like to get a taste of their musicianship, their "Undead" LP should knock you out.

Inca Production Big Hit

(Continued from Page 1)

students presenting AS cards are admitted free. Dr. Walter Krumm, play director, stated that due to the expense of the play, which ran over $3,000, admission was being charged.

Krumm added that the eight performances of the production mark the longest run of any play ever presented at the college. He remarked, "I hope no students will fail to attend Royal Hunt. We feel it has been well worth the diligent preparation."

Rams Finish With 28-15 Victory

Bell Leads Team; San Mateo Fifth Straight Victim

By Phil DiCarlo

Joesiah Bell ran for 212 yards in only 11 carries as City College closed out the 1968 season with a 28-15 victory over the College of San Mateo Bulldogs. Saturday's win made it five in a row for the Rams, who finished the season with seven triumphs and two defeats.

Bell splashed for 146 yards as the Rams gained 240 yards on the ground, to take a 21-7 halftime lead. The burly halfback, who would like to play at Purdue next year, included gallops of 25, 28, 31, 40, and 49 yards during his fantastic effort against the Bulldogs. Doyle Miller, with 81 yards. Jon Dyson and Willie Lewis (53 yards each) helped the Rams roll up 392 net yards via the grind-em-out land route.

SINCE the field was wet and the going rather sloppy, quarterback Tom Mayfield stuck to his powerful ground game almost exclusively. Mayfield did throw occasionally—to keep the defense honest, as they say,—managing to throw a touchdown pass in the process. Even with the potent running game tearing the opposition apart, Mayfield has thrown a scoring pass in every game this season.

The defense played one of their finest games of the year. With a muddy field to hinder them, the defense still held the Bulldogs to minus six yards rushing in the first half. Steve Sanchez, John McKenna, Hilton Dillon, Ed Johnson, Jim Tyree and many others constantly were stopping the 'Dogs before they could get started. Tyree twice batted passes away as they left the quarterback's hand. Sanchez, playing only his second game of the season as he has been injured all year, led the way in dropping CSM passers seven times for losses. Mike Baines and Craig Martin intercepted crucial passes.

ARICE PITTMAN and Gerald Dyson continued to demonstrate how men should play linebacker. These two, certainly the best pair of backers in the league, are all over the field during the game. Stopping runs or back on pass defense, numbers 50 and 37 can always be seen in the midst of the action.

On the first play of the game, Bulldog quarterback Mike Costanzo was thrown for a four yard loss by middle guard Sanchez. After forcing a punt, the Rams drove 80 yards for a touchdown the first time they got their hands on the ball. Twelve running plays took the Rams to the San Mateo two yard line. After Mayfield tried his first pass of the game, a move to cross up the defense and keep them from digging in, Lewis dove over.

Following another Dog punt—they punted eight times — in the second quarter, the Rams again drove 80 yards for a score.

THE OFFENSIVE LINE pushed defenders all over the field again. While the team has some fine runners, they will be the first to tell you that they couldn't go anyplace if the line didn't open a hole or throw some blocks to get them started. The line; Andre Hicks, Ed Diaz (tackles), Dan Parrish, Monty Consani (guards) and Bill McKenna (center), gets praise from all the opposing teams. CSM Head Coach Bill Dickey called Parrish and Consani the best guards in the league. He should know, he's a former guard. Ends Ralph and Don McGee certainly help out on the blocking assignments too.

THE THIRD Ram touchdown was a beaut. Jim Anderson, that little kick returner that we keep mentioning, finally went all the way on one of his regular long runs. Taking Dennis Ward's 38 yard punt on his own 44 yard line, Anderson faked to his right, cut in between two potential tacklers, ran into a mob at the Bulldog 40, cut to his right and with a couple of tremendous blocks, cut down the right sideline. At the 20, Anderson cut back to his left and scooted past the last defenders and into the left corner of the end zone.

The last score of the season, the Mayfield pass, was a fitting gesture. Mayfield got his touchdown pass for the game, and it was thrown to the leading scorer, Willie Lewis, who was all alone in the flat.

RAM HALFBACK DOYLE MILLER going for 40 yard score against Laney. (1) Miller (arrow) cuts behind Ed Diaz' block and breaks into Laney's secondary; (2) Ralph Bayard (87), at left, and Joe Bell (33) rush up to aid Miller (center); (3) Doyle cuts behind Bayard block and reverses his field; (4) Five Eagles pursue the sprinting Miller; (5) Doyle wins the footrace as (6) referee gives the signal that the Rams have scored. It was a habit they had all day.—the final score was 28-14. —Guardsmap photo by Samuel Woo

Ram Cindermen Prepare For Upcoming Conference Meet

Ram cindermen are making every possible effort to get their teams in peak condition for the upcoming Golden Gate Conference meet.

A tremendous battle is shaping up between the San Mateo Bulldog's number one runner, and the Ram's number one man.

Yes, my friends, hometown hero George Haza is out to lay famine on the wicked Sir Mike Dailey of San Mateo, who was last year's conference champ.

In three out of four confrontations, the good George Haza has bested the Bulldog Knight.

HAZA'S TRUSTY sidekicks, Dave Powers and Vic Cary aren't in the best physical condition from previous bouts and things aren't looking so good for the Rams as far as taking the conference meet.

Powers and Cary are both out with leg injuries. Without the strong first five (Bob Darling, Klaus Hoffman, Jose Garcia, Powers, Cary and Haza) in healthy shape, the best the Rams can hope for is a fourth place finish.

Garcia, the man picked to chase the first four across the finish line, is looking great for the conference. He has been putting himself through the mill in order to give a good showing in the race.

Darling is giving his all to oust Haza from his throne. Haza refuses to relinquish to Darling and the ensuing battle should be a great one.

THE SANTA CLAUS cinderman Cary is still overweight, but has improved tremendously. In fact, if it wasn't for his injury, he would be breathing down Haza's and Darling's necks at the finish line.

Hoffman, the freshman wonder is holding up his end by coming through with respectable places every meet.

Pile driving Powers is the giant killer on the team. He's itching for action, and he's just waiting for his injuries to heal, then look out!

George Haza isn't listening to rumors however, and sees the first place within his grasp. His consistant performances make him the favorite. —F.B.

Polo Team Push Hard, Still Lose

City College's water polo team played their finest game of the year against Diablo Valley, but still lost 11-6, increasing their losing streak to eight in a row.

The Rams, who weren't expected to come even close in any of their games, actually played the Vikings to a 4-4 tie in the first half! For the first time this season goalie Bill Carter got the help from the defense (who jokingly call themselves the "sieve").

In the second half however, the Rams lapsed back into making some of their old mistakes thereby losing the only game of the year they ever really had a chance to win.

Dave Nelson and Rich Glass, as usual, provided all the offense for the team hitting for four and two goals respectively.

Earlier this season Diablo Valley dumped City College 29-6.

In the only other game played that week San Jose again torpedoed the Rams 22-6 much in the same manner they had done several weeks earlier, 35-6.

In eight games played so far, the Ram water poloists have allowed 214 goals for an average of almost 27 a game.—P.C.

Alpha Phi Epsilon, Black Students Bop Foes; Guardsman Tie

Intramural basketball has a strongly emerging team in the Black Students Association, as they ripped through H&R, 53-24, for their fifth straight impressive victory.

Alpha Phi Epsilon continued their unbeaten skein by nosing out the Ball in an overtime, 50-49. The Rookies beat Alpha Sigma Delta in a forfeit. Alpha Kappa Rho slipped by the Villagers, 40-32.

The highlight of Thursday, November 7, was a 50-50 deadlock between the ever-illustrious Guardsman and the Rookies. In other games that evening, Phi Delta dropped another game; this one by a score of 33-29 to the Black Students Association. And the Ball shot by the Delts 54-43.

The Guardsman lost the services of high-scoring Bob Freethy at the start as referee Craig Martin chose to throw him out. But it was not before he had scored two points. Frank Castanelli's well-coached Rookies took advantage of the Guards-man and steadily built up a 24-8 lead. Before the half had ended, the Guardsman, behind Tom Jones and Mike Duggan's fine shooting, had whittled the lead to 26-20.

A check of the scorebook after the game turned up additional points for both the Guardsman and the Rookies. The final score was then 50-50. High scorer for the evening was Jones of the Guardsman with 19.

Tomorrow evening's feature game pits the two unbeaten powerhouses, A Phi E and the Rookies, against each other at 7 p.m. in the women's gym and the Villagers fighting for survival with the BSA in the men's gym.—C.B.

20-Year Title Domination Runs Out For Soccer Team

By Patrick Chan

It's going to be a long winter for Coach Roy Diederichsen and the Ram soccer team. This is the first time in twenty years City College lost the Golden Gate Conference soccer title.

San Mateo tied the Ram booters 0-0 Thursday, November 7. This gave the Bulldogs a 6-0-2 mark in league play and the conference championship. City College had a record of 5-1-1 in conference play after the tie.

THE RAMS only other loss came at the hands of this same Bulldog team, 2-1, several weeks ago.

San Mateo played a planned defensive game.

As a result the Rams never really had an opportunity to score from the field. City College's only real chance to score came when San Mateo fouled a Ram thus giving the team a penalty kick. The kick failed to score.

The scoreless tie not only ended the Ram's string of 19 straight league titles, but also its six consecutive state championships.

THE NEXT DAY, an obviously flat and depressed band of Rams barely edged out Ohlone, the league's newest member, 2-1. Jerry Tighe and Otey Cannon each scored one goal in their finale as City College players.

Just six days before, the Rams went on a wild scoring spree to defeat this same team 9-0 as Otey Cannon scored four goals in one of his finest games of the year.

One factor that caused City College's low scoring performance was the poor condition of Ohone's field which had many chuck holes.

THE VICTORY over Ohlone boosted the Rams' conference record to 6-1-1 in the final league standings, a mere half game from San Mateo.

The team was scheduled to end their season against Shasta College the next day, but the game was called when the Northerners didn't show up.

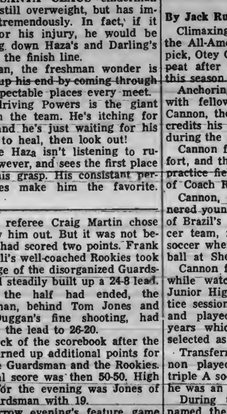
Graduation will take a big toll from the team this year as All-Americans Otey Cannon and Al Chu graduate. They formed the two major scoring threats on this year's team.

All-American Hopeful Cannon Kicks Way To Soccer Stardom

By Jack Ruiz

Climaxing another brilliant season, the All-American and All-Conference pick, Otey Cannon, seems likely to repeat after another fine performance this season.

Anchoring the Rams forward line with fellow All-American Al Chu, Cannon, the leading offensive scorer, credits his teammates for his success during the season.



Cannon felt that it was a team effort, and the long hours spent on the practice field under the fine tutelage of Coach Roy Diederichsen paid off.

Cannon, a slightly-built, mild-mannered young man whose idol is Pele, of Brazil's Santos Championship Soccer team, first became interested in soccer when he started playing kickball at Sheraton Elementary School.

Cannon fell in love with the game while watching the James Denman Junior High School team at a practice session. He enrolled at Denman, and played his early years, three years which resulted in his being selected as the most valuable player.

Transferring to Balboa High, Cannon played on their championship triple A soccer team in 1965. In 1966 he was an All-City pick.

During this period, Cannon was named the Police Athletic League's most valuable player in 1966 and 1967. In addition he won the Pete Gardiner special Police Award in 1967, and played on the PAL team that won The United States Soccer Football Association Junior Cup.

OTEY CANNON —Photo by Ulmert McKnight

They cinched the Western Division, but lost out in the semi-finals.

The services of Cannon will definitely be sorely missed next fall.

'Tom Negro' Buried During Black Students Rally Held In Stadium Last Thursday

By James Pope

"Tom Negro" was symbolically buried here last Thursday during a rally staged by the Black Students Union in the football stadium.

Central theme of the rally was a call for Black students to become aware of the power of their unity. The symbolic burial of "Tom Negro" showed that Blacks are no longer Negroes: they are Afro-Americans.

Following the rally, Anna Barry, Vice President of the BSA, said that new officers have been chosen in that organization.

THESE NEW OFFICERS feel that "now" is the time to show that Blacks are tired of having the establishment breathing down their necks and telling them what to do.

Miss Barry said that Black people are striving for certain goals and the white establishment has no right to tell the Black people that they cannot reach those levels in society for which they are qualified.

According to Miss Barry, there is a feeling among Blacks that there is more than one way to accomplish these goals, and they intend to meet the white establishment on an equal level.

"In the past," she said, "white education has whitewashed the Black student, and if the white establishment will not inform the Black student of his blackness, the white establishment should not accept the Black parents' tax money."

DEMANDS PROPOSED by the BSA include a request for a department of Afro-American Studies at City College. Courses in this department may include: anthropology, arts, drama, criminology, humanities, linguistics, philosophy, and others.

It is also requested that these courses be accreditable toward an Associate in Arts degree.

Larry Pinkney of the BSA said that Black students must prepare to act. He went on to say that Black students are determined to accomplish their goals.

'State' Students Bring Problem To City College

By Phil DiCarlo

Eight San Francisco State students, with nowhere to go, staged a Mime-troupe mini-rally at the flagpole last Tuesday to illustrate the problems that had closed their campus.

A slowly gathering crowd of City College students watched in fascination as the action unraveled. No scenery was used and the few props were quite simple. The eight drama majors were just some of about 100 San Francisco State drama students traveling around the area, putting on such shows.

The last of their three skits was probably the most graphic. A narrator related the story of two students, black and white, and a white instructor who protest the treatment of blacks and are beaten up.

INSTEAD of leaving, having made their point rather well, a member of the group stepped out, lectured for a few minutes, then read the demands (some weren't mentioned, though) of the State students to the administration.

Discussions broke out between City College students and members of the troupe, some quite heated. Sides were taken and debates became shouting matches, but some laughs were heard.

One such laugh came when a State student, trying to give an example, mentioned, "How about if this man started a fire?" Before he could finish, someone from the back yelled, "That only happens at State!"

Undaunted, he went on to how Blacks, Mexican-Americans, Chinese-Americans, etc., were getting a raw deal (not his words). When interrupted and asked why his group did not have any members of these groups in his road show, he stammered a bit. "Because," spoke up a fellow member, "we only have about two black students in our drama department."

SINCE ACTORS from The Royal Hunt Of The Sun had paraded by in costume, plugging their play, the mob had broken up, leaving an isolated group standing around. Dean Hillsman walked up at this time and wondered what was going on. When directed to the State group, he asked if they had been given permission to stage their show.

When given a negative answer, he asked if they might not please go down to the Ram, as that was where they should hold such a rally. The State group went quietly.

Several City College students spoke up during the show and subsequent discussions.

"School is a place to learn from the teachers," said Karen Allsman, a student here. "They're (the State enrollment) trying to help get better jobs. What kind of a job can one get with a degree in Afro-American studies? Sure it helps to learn these things, but a B. degree?"

Another student, Vince Sancimino, stated, "Some of the ideas are good; they're honorable. But the means is wrong. Force and destruction don't do any good. Everything gets blown way out of proportion—by everybody. Shouting, cops, throwing things; nothing meaningful gets done."

RETRACTION

It has been brought to our attention by La Raza Unila (a Spanish organization on campus) that two of our front page articles regarding the activities of the Spanish Speaking Organization were misinformative. It was later discovered that the activities that we accredited the Spanish Speaking Students Organization with were actually the work of La Raza Unida. In the interests of truth we print this retraction.

Reiko Hara Presented As Best-Dressed Coed

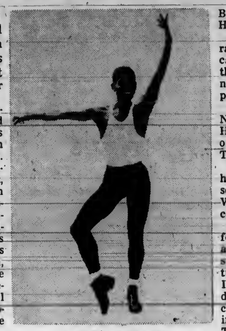
Reiko Hara, a secretarial training major, was named Best-Dressed Coed on Campus at the traditional Associated Women's Fashion Show and Tea, held before a near-capacity crowd at Smith Hall, November 14.

The 19-year-old coed is a fourth-semester student. She was one of 12 semifinalists competing for the title. All were judged on poise, grooming and general appearance.

As Best-Dressed Coed, Miss Hara will represent City College in the Glamour Magazine Best-Dressed Coed contest.

Also presented at the tea was the winner of the Inter-Sorority Council award for the highest grade-point average maintained by a woman graduate from a San Francisco high school for June 1968. The winner this semester was Margaret Loftus, a graduate of Saint John Ursuline.

World-Famous Dancer Joins Faculty



By Ben Marinas

World renowned dancer and choreographer Zack Thompson will join the college faculty this Spring Semester to instruct Primitive Dance, which has never been taught before at City College.

The course, P. E. 88, will offer Primitive Dance, Afro-Primitive Dance and Indian-Primitive Dance. The course is co-educational and will be taught in three different sections by Thompson.

Thompson has had extensive training in modern dance, modern jazz, primitive dance and ballet. He has an outstanding background as a professional instructor, dancer and choreographer. He has taught at the University of Toronto in Canada and has choreographed in various nightclubs for singers and dancers. In addition, he has been responsible for dance numbers seen on several of the television programs, including the Bell Telephone Hour. He has also choreographed for shows sponsored by the Ford and DuPont industries.

THOMPSON HAS coached singers such as Barbara McNair in graceful movement and proper delivery. He has also coached performer Fran Jeffries.

ZACK THOMPSON

He is currently the choreographer for the San Francisco Opera. Thompson is also presently the manager of his own dance company, called the Ballet-Afro-Haiti, located at 457 Haight Street.

Several years ago Ebony Magazine ran an article on Zack Thompson, calling him a "22-year-old dancer with the grace of his vocation and an innocence born of singleness of purpose."

Ten years ago Thompson ran a North Beach dance studio with David Hamilton, now a successful night club operator in Australia, called the Zack Thompson Studio.

ONE OF HIS students said, "He has the rare ability to isolate the separate movements of the dance. With this isolation comes marvelous control."

Thompson said that he was looking forward to coming to the college. He added that, "the instruction will aid students to learn about different cultures involved with primitive dances. I also hope that a number of the students who will have attended the course will be interested in performing with a professional company." Thompson is interested in starting a professional group at the college.

Thompson will perform at the college on December 6 at 2:30 p.m. at the dance studio in the Women's Gym.

The Guardsman

Official Weekly Publication of the Students in the Journalism Department of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 67 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 27, 1968 NUMBER 11

Library Aide Dies At 65

Mrs. Katherine Greenleaf Pedley, former catalogue librarian at the college, died of natural causes in her home at 795 Eighth Ave. last Wednesday (Novemebr 20).

Mrs. Pedley was 65 years old. She had been an experienced librarian with a long career in public work before she joined the library staff. In addition to having been a librarian, Mrs. Pedley was also an accomplished lecturer and writer.

She authored three books: The Library At Quran, The Nefarious Adventures Of Thomas J. Wise, and a translation from the French of a scholarly work on the Dead Sea Scrolls by the Abbe Jean Carmignac under the title of Christ and the Teacher of Righteousness.

Mrs. Pedley transferred from Samuel Gompers High School in 1956 to serve in the college library before retiring last June. In 1965 she coordinated the Library Technical Training Program.

She was instructor of library science at the University of San Francisco at the time of her demise. She is survived by her son and daughter, both living in California.

Coaches Phelan, Duggan Pull $6100 Out Of Council 'Fire'

By Pat Chan

Student Council allocated $6100 to four of the college's athletic teams last week in spite of the efforts of Counciliman Trenton Browne to have all sports funds cut.

At the meeting, Browne stated that "all athletes were being used by their coaches to keep up the status quo."

He continued by saying that if AS funds were cut, then City Hall would step in and provide money for sports at the college.

Browne suggested that by following this plan, one day AS cards might be abolished. Money would instead be raised by charging for parking permits.

Rising to the defense of the athletes were the college's two basketball coaches, Sid Phelan and Brad Duggan.

Phelan stated that the money they were asking for in itself was insufficient and that players would have to supply most of their own equipment.

Duggan lashed out at Browne's charges that athletes were being used.

"I have never seen you (Browne) around the gym talking about this to anyone. If you think I'm using my players, then you should try to get me fired."

As one by one the basketball, JV basketball, baseball and JV baseball budgets each passed, one of the athletes in the back of the room shouted at Browne, "Taking ALL your money, baby!"

After the meeting Telvis Jones, a starter on this year's basketball team, spoke out on Browne's proposal.

"I only got two years to play here and what happens if our funds are cut? Then I won't get to play.

"He wants us to get our money from City Hall but what if City Hall doesn't give us money? Or if they don't give it until next year?"

Darrell Fregia, another starter on this year's team, agreed with Jones.

"I'm no genius, but after I finish practicing I feel better. It's easier to study," commented Fregia.

After the meeting one of the athletes got into an argument with a student over why funds shouldn't have been cut. As the athlete walked away, the student turned around and disappointingly stated "there's never going to be a revolution in this college!"

Students Receive Statewide Recognition

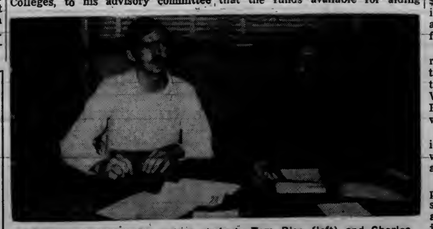
By Lavine Lee

Statewide recognition was recently given to two City College students, Charles Harding and Thomas Rice, for the parts they played in aiding the academically and financially disadvantaged student. The two are currently working in the Financial Aid Office in S-148.

Harding, a Navy veteran in his second semester at this college, was named by Sidney Brossman, Chancellor of the California Community Colleges, to his advisory committee on the disadvantaged student in junior colleges. He was the first student in this state to receive such an honor.

Rice, who is in his fourth semester, aided a student, faculty, and administrative committee last semester in making possible the appointment of a Financial Aid's Officer (Ken Castellino).

The Financial Aid Office was established after Harding and Rice prepared a study of student financial needs on this campus. They found that the funds available for aiding the student and his needs had not been used, and that over 80 per cent of these funds were being returned to the Federal Government each year.



Even with the establishment of this office, Rice states that only "half the battle has been won" because the office and its programs are in need of funds.

Since money will not begin coming in until next fall, Financial Aid has gone to other possible sources. Student Council has agreed to allocate $10,000 to aid this office. They also intend to go to the state, faculty, Academic Senate, and the community for support.

The money the Financial Aid Office receives will also go to Tutorial, National Defense Student Loan, Educational Opportunities Grants, College Work-Study, and Emergency Loan Programs. These are all connected with Financial Aid.

Rice is concerned mainly with building a flexible Financial Aid Program with funds that can be made available when a need for them arises.

The success of this office and its programs will not only benefit the students on this campus, but it will also bring to the attention of other junior colleges the fact that there are funds available to help students.

RECENTLY HONORED college students Tom Rice (left) and Charles Harding. —Guardsmap photo by Randy Flynn

Otto Preminger To Back Cinema

Otto Preminger, famed movie producer-director, will visit City College on Tuesday at 1:15 p.m. in the College Theater. His visit concerns the promotion of his new comedy release, Skiddoo.

Preminger is expected to hold an informal, seminar type meeting at the college, answering questions on a variety of subjects ranging from acting to politics.

Students are invited to attend a preview showing of Skiddoo at the Parkside Theater at 8 p.m. on Monday. Complimentary tickets may be obtained from Dr. Walter Krumm of the drama department for admission.

Skiddoo is a comic spoof staring such well-known figures as Jackie Gleason, Carol Channing, Groucho Marx, Mickey Rooney, Peter Lawford and Burgess Meredith. At least half of the movie was shot in and around San Francisco.

Th comedy is a confrontation between the Hippie Movement and the Establishment, represented by reformed gangster Jackie Gleason. A mass LSD trip, humorously done in a prison, is one of the highlights.

Preminger is interested in getting student reaction to the film.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Students in the Journalism Department of City College of San Francisco
MIKE DUGGAN, Editor

Vol. 67, No. 11 | WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 27, 1968 | Page 2

Elections Drawing Near

IT IS NOT TOO EARLY for City College students to start thinking about the upcoming student body elections. Elections are scheduled for two weeks from now, on December 11 and 12.

The Guardsman does not come out next week, so this is an advance word of warning, for in our next issue (December 11), we will present the candidates for Associated Student offices and their platforms.

Judging from recent elections, one thing is certain, and that is that not enough students here care to take five minutes out and cast a vote.

Last semester, only 1669 voters turned out, a poor show for a college of over 10,000 day time students. One year ago brought about the lowest turnout in this school's history, as only 112 voted.

Being a student newspaper, we are in close touch with the activities of student council and its members—something which the average student seems not to worry too much about.

To help those who do care about our elected officers (the Administration, Guardsman, COO etc. . . .), we ask all students to learn about the candidates, and cast a well thought out vote.

A Reason To Be Grateful

A GROUP of San Francisco State students appeared at the flagpole last Tuesday at noon and tried to express their views about the recent problems at State.

They said it was impossible to reach or talk to the Administration at State and for that reason the strike was needed.

If this be the case at State, City College should be grateful for members of our Administration have always been willing in the past to meet, discuss, and help solve student problems.

Contact Lens

What Do You Think Of Nudes Who Have Appeared In Free Critic?

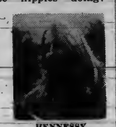
BANTA

Edward Banta, Photography Major

I think that it is a very vivid form of expression that the students should not forget. I don't feel that it should be censored from existence. The situation in society today with regard to nudity takes into consideration the taste of the majority. I see nudity, but I can't find anything wrong with it. I feel strongly for keeping this type of expression, but people should make their own judgements; I'm speaking only for myself.

JENSEN

Gert Jensen, Art/Photography Major



I'm all for it. If a person wants to go nude, let him. There's nothing ugly about a nude body; the human body is actually very beautiful and to hide it is a shame. For somebody to sit in a little dark room and say, 'no, you can't see a nude body' should be against the law. The Critic is doing it to break the rules against nudity, and they are succeeding to a degree. But with the ban on it now, I think there will be a change.

BAILEY

Ed Bailey, Social Welfare Major

I don't think the pictures were used in good taste. It isn't the sort of thing I expect in a newspaper. When I pick up a newspaper I expect to read news. I get more kicks out of reading a comic book than looking at nudes in the Critic. I think the paper is a failure. The money they are getting could be used for more constructive things. Black people are getting together and doing something constructive, but what are these "hippies" doing?

HENNESSY

Tia Hennessy, General Education Major

I'm in favor of them. On a nice sunny day when there's a soft wind, I love to shed my clothes and feel with my whole body. Maybe someday I will be able to without people freaking on it. I wasn't brought up with the usual wierd idea that sex is muddy. Maybe I have other wierd ideas—I don't know. People are sometimes tied up by having to judge everything. If it doesn't mess up anyone else, why mark it with right or wrongness.

BEAUREGARD

Earl J. Beauregard, Art Major

They were beautiful from an aesthetic point of view. I really can't see why certain individuals are making such a fuss over the pictures. They are only pictures, and none of them were "obscene" in that no "lurid" or "indecent" acts were occuring. If people are attending institutions of higher learning to enlighten themselves, they are really defeating the purpose of their own education by reacting so negatively to a nude picture.

PARDINI

Carolyn Pardini, General Education Major

If people want to read it and look at the pictures they can. But I don't think nudity belongs in a newspaper. The Free Critic's not benefitting the school in any way, and it's a waste of the student's money. All they do is cut down the school and the Administration. It's true that the human body is a thing of beauty and pictures of nudes have artistic value, but it just does not belong in a newspaper.

—Compiled by Lavine Lee, photos by Jim Pope

Turmoil On Campuses Throughout U.S. Spearheaded At SF State

By James Pope

ACCORDING to an old Chinese proverb, learning is like rowing upstream: not to advance is to drop back.

The situation becomes even more hopeless when those rowing can no longer see the banks of their river and so do not know if they are moving upsteam or drifting with the current.

In weeks past, this has been, as many students and faculty members there admit, much the situation at San Francisco State College.

Final outcome can not be predicted but several sources have attested that the effects of the events in these first weeks of November will be far reaching.

While the campus boycott movement apparently began with the ousting of instructor George Murray from State College's English Department and later gained momentum with the appearance of San Francisco police on the campus in response to incidents in the opening days of the protest, there is a general sentiment among students and faculty that the roots of the problems lie far deeper than these events indicate.

FURTHER EVIDENCE SUPPORTING a widespread realization among instructors that the time bas come for definite change lies in the faculty's censure of Chancellor Glenn Dumke for ordering college president Robert R. Smith to suspend Murray.

This same incident is also widely regarded by both faculty and students as some indication of a breakdown in relations between Dumke, the State College Board of Trustees and the San Francisco State College Administration and faculty.

Similar sentiment was again demonstrated at a day long faculty meeting last week when a suggestion by President Smith that some sort of rapport between the college and the Board of Trustees could be established met with jeers and catcalls from his own faculty.

DESPITE THE OUTWARD appearance of a unified front among instructors and students, there is widespread evidence of factionalism in both groups.

While the boycott is heavily favored on the campus, reasons for the support given varies practically from one individual to another. Similarly, suggestions for breaking the impasse between students, administrators and the Trustees were as widely varied.

Representatives of the Students for a Democratic Society felt that while Smith's efforts at reconciliation indicated a willingness to bargain, they were not definite solutions nor did they indicate any firm action.

Meanwhile, members of the Black Students Union refuse to speculate on these efforts and continue to maintain that their position is no longer a negotiable one. For them, it is a matter of their demands being met or not being met.

Members of several student organizations, including the BSU, stated that the time has come for making the needs and interests of the minorities beard and felt, and that any compromise of these positions would be a compromise of integrity.

One SDS representative stated that the minorities have been held down for so long by society that now, as they begin to realize the burden that society has placed upon them can be lifted, they seek to rise up in a single swift motion and claim a place in that society.

FOR THE MAN IN THE MIDDLE—President Smith—the problems remain seemingly unanswerable. He must face both the college students and the Board of Trustees and at the same time maintain an open avenue of communication with his faculty.

In the eyes of many, his position is an impossible one. Nearly all his attempts at mediation have met with refusal by one or more of the groups involved.

His offer to consider the establishment of a Department of Black Studies met on one side with a reminder that the Black Students could not bargain on their request and on the other side by the indication that the Trustees would not soften their stand.

Although it was cooly received, Smith's only suggestion which was acceptable to most of the groups concerned was a request for a 90 day "cooling off" period during which some of the more complex issues could be examined in depth.

It was to Smith's regret that college campuses and his campus in particular are chosen as sites for the struggle for control in society, but he went on to express the idea that even in the midst of such a struggle, the educational process should not cease.

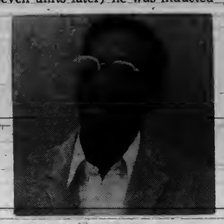
Vietnam War Veteran Returns To City College

By Floyd Banks

Howard Cameron has returned to City College of San Francisco. There is nothing exceptional about this student—other than the fact that he was drafted.

Howard graduated from Balboa High School in the Spring Semester of 1965. He attended City College upon graduation.

After one year (and twenty-seven units later) he was inducted into the United States Army.



He took his basic training at Fort Ord, and his advanced infantry training at Fort Polk in Louisiana.

From Fort Polk, he was shipped to the 25th Infantry, 40 miles north of Saigon. As a M-60 machine gunner on an armored personnel carrier he was exposed to constant fire.

Although he was only 40 miles north of Saigon, he never got into town until he was shot, three months after his arrival to Vietnam.

After a Saigon "R and R" (rest and relaxation) for his wounds, Howard was sent back to the 25th Infantry, who were now very close to the Cambodian border. After a month in the field, he was wounded again, this time by "grapnel."

After a second "R and R" in Saigon, he was transferred to the 52nd Infantry (a M.P. unit in Saigon) for the rest of his tour of duty. This was considered an easy job for men who had been wounded.

HOWARD CAMERON returns to City College after one year in Vietnam.

After two years of the military (one year in combat) and baving been wounded twice, Howard returns to City College of San Francisco.

He looks like the average student, but he isn't. He's a man matured by war, and the things war bring.

Concerning the war in Vietnam, he said, "I don't think we should be over there. There's too much U.S. and Hanoi in the current peace talks. Saigon should play a more predominate role in the talks and the war."

Howard Cameron isn't any special being, he is an example of what could happen to any college student who doesn't take the required amount of units each semester.

He feels the counseling at the college is inadequate, that there should be more counselors and counselors that minority students can relate to.

He feels, however, that the social structure at the school is okay.

In order to finish his college education, Howard is working at the Hall of Justice at night. Slowly but surely, Howard is re-adjusting to civilian life.

Guardsman Staff — Fall 1968

EDITOR IN CHIEF ..... MIKE DUGGAN
Managing Editor ..... Doug Boston
Feature Editor ..... Tom Graham
Staff Editor ..... Boku Kodama
News Editor ..... Barbara Hamann
Sports Editor ..... Dave Albertson
Editorial Assistants: Martin J. Arbunich, Lani Brand, Rita Carroll, Lavina Lee, Lynda Sandstrom.
Reporters: Floyd Banks, Pat Chan, Phil DiCarlo, Randy Flynn, Dan McCarthy, Florence McCarthy, James Pope, Lan Ribeiro, Jack Ruiz, Sonia Schmidt, Ray Gin.
Cub Reporters: Dan Angelo, Dan Castro, Lynette Conklin, Jeff Delauss, Gerry Engler, Ben Marinas, Diana Matson, Elizabeth Ramos, Greg Steven, Kenneth Surface, Barbara Tyrrell, Val Valledor, T. Y. Wong.
Photographers: Marilyn Astalosh, Chief; Bert Flowers, Glenn Graham, Steven La Plant, Jerry Mishler, Detlef Osburg, Jens Pratze, Roberto Quitiles, Kevin Shea, Ulmer T. McKnight, Gavin Watt, Calvin Wong, Russell Wong, Sam Woo.
Advisor: Mary Blair.

SHOOTIN' IT

by Doug Boston

CHIP ON MY SHOULDER.

THANKSGIVING: Students love the four-day holiday which begins tomorrow, but how do turkeys feel about it?

We had planned on asking several turkeys about their feelings concerning Thanksgiving, but failed to find any one who answered anything except, "no comment." So we asked the turkeys' best friend—the squirrel. This one's name was Chip. We sat in Golden Gate Park and discussed the problems and traumas which each gobbler gets every Thanksgiving.

As one can see from the picture, Chip did most of the talking. He told us that some of his best friends were scheduled for the dinner table this holiday, and that he was very upset. "Anyway," he told us, "Soon as Thanksgiving's over, Christmas comes and more of my friends get the axe."

After listening to Chip churp away about his goal in life (to abolish turkey dinners in favor of hamburger) we started to feel sorry for all the turkeys. Then a thought rushed into my brain. We were too fast for him. Chip didn't have a chance. Guess who's coming to Thanksgiving dinner?

ON RAISING CANES: Scene in front of Mr. D's recently. An elderly man acting as barker for Carol Doda's place is standing outside holding a brown cane. Three kids walk by and toss firecrackers at his feet. The bang scares the hell out of him. Now the kids attack again, man grabs one kid and hits him viciously across the rump. Kid talk back, "You old bastard." Man grabs kid, hits him again, hurting him. Parking attendant rushed to the spot, tells barker, "If your going to hit somebody, hit me." Man thinks better of it. Kid goes away yelling obscenities, but probably won't every throw another firecraker.

WHEN IN ROME . . .

Since we live almost across the street from San Francisco State, it was no surprise to come home two weeks ago and find the SF Tac Squad camped in our backyard. SF State student walking down the street takes one look at their size and that big club and prepares for the confrontation. Paused to comb the hair out of the eyes, stripped the bandanna from around the neck and stuffed it into his back pocket, unhooked his beads and hid them in a coat pocket, grabbed a coke bottle, broke it and shaved off mustache and long sideburns, threw away copy of the Berkeley Barb and scrounged a copy of Shopping News, replaced "Get our of Viet Nam" button with a "Support Your Local Police" sticker, then walked towards 10 squad cars, almost 30 hikes and loads of cops, singing the Star Spangled Banner.

FLOWER POWER: Two years ago, about this time, the Ram football team and O.J. were turned down in their bid for a trip to the Rose Bowl. Since that time, O.J. decided that he wanted to take that trip to Pasadena.

Last year, the USC Trojans were national champs and went, beating Indiana for the title. This year, Troy did it again by beating Oregon State and clinching their second straight trip.

Simpson has set all those records you already know about and will be drafted by a professional team after the bowl game.

Sports writers have second guessed each other trying to figure out which team will get him. Philidelphia, Cincinnati, Denver or Atlanta? The Rams have three first draft choices which migbt be useful to one of these teams.

We hope O.J. goes to a team that has an established passing game and another good running back, tbousands of fans, and is often on TV Sunday afternoon. Sounds like LA is where its at. Now somebody convince George Allen.

DISPATCH

by Boku Kodama

THE YEAR is 1975, and the world is divided among three rulers.

In a luxurious castle located in Washington D.C., King Richard, ruler of the Western World, is conferring with his top aides.

King: (angrily) Goddamit Spearo, if you badn't called Emperor Hao, an old, bald-headed duck or Iron Alex, Czar of Eastern Europe, a fat Commie pig, we wouldn't be in this mess!

Spearo: (sadly, with head down and crying) Oh, woe is me. When am I going to learn to keep my big mouth shut.

First Aide: Why, don't we make a public apology.

King: (getting more angry) What! And lose face in the world. Nobody's going to kick me around anymore!

An army general enters the room with a message in his hand.

General: (removes cap and bows before speaking) Your Highness, Iron Alex congratulates Spearo on his remark of Emperor Hao. However, Iron Alex resents being called a fat Commie pig and wishes an apology. If we don't he'll announce to the world that you are a tricky overgrown elephant and declare war.

King: Bah, he'll get no apology from me, and if Iron Alex declares war, we'll declare it right back. No one's going to push us around!

General: Emperor Hao also send us greetings and hopes we will print more "truths" about the czar, but he bas declared war on us for calling him an old, bald-headed duck.

King: Oh yeah! Send Emperor Hao our declaration of war and tell the old duck to soak his bald head in the water!

First, Second and Third Aides: No, no, we must reason with Iron Alex and Emperor Hao. A war now will destroy all of mankind.

King: What? Treason in my court. Have you no honor; no pride? Guards, take these pussy-footing traitors to the dungeon and hang them at sunrise.

Three days have passed. King Richard has just received word that Emperor Hao's huge fleet of troop transports has been spotted near Hawaii carrying about three hundred million soldiers.

King: (to his remaining aides) Have twenty of our B-52's drop atom bombs on Hao's fleet. . . (Suddenly, the windows begin to shatter and the entire castle begins to vibrate.)

General: (rushing into the room, panting) Your Highness, the city of Denver reports that the entire West has been sunk under the Pacific by East European atomic weapons. At least seventy million are presumed dead and the blasts from their weapons have vibrated the entire world. Denver has just become our main West Coast port! (He hesitates for a moment.) Highness, I also have good news. The Asians have lost a third of their fleet due to the blast, and the rest of them are stranded in the middle of the ocean. Emperor Hao has now declared war on the Europeans.

King: Change those orders for the bombers and tell them to use every last atomic weapon to destroy Moscow, Leningrad, Scvastopol, Vladivostok, Warsaw, Bucharest, Prague, Berlin, Peking, Canton, Shanghai, Chungking, Tokyo and Bombay.

The next morning King Richard is told of the outcomes.

Fourth Aide: Your Highness, before we were able to crush the enemy, they wiped out the British Isle from the map and flattened Paris. Good news though, Highness, our bombers have created a tremendously huge crater in East Europe and Asia. Two continents are below the sea level! The enemy has estimated that their lost of lives was close to a billion.

General: (rushes into the room) Highness, both Iron Alex and Emperor Hao have sued for peace.

King: Well gentlemen, we've blasted the hell out of the enemy, and we've shown the world that we're not chicken-livered. The world is ours and we've taken it in record time.

Fifth Aide: Hurray for King Richard, hurray for King Richard!!

King: We have restored Peace in the world. How foolish it was for those idiots to believe that mankind would become extinct if a nuclear war occurred. Don't they know that only Might makes Right.

Entire Cast: Long live King Richard!

Mobile Cable Car To Serve Snacks Near Cloud Circle

By Lynda Sandstrom

Congested areas in Statler Wing and in the cafeteria will be allieviated by the use of a cable car food center to be placed in the vicinity of Cloud Circle. The cable car will be operated by the Associated Best Catering Company, and will begin its services to this campus next Monday.

Larry Wong and Dave Borelli, of the Hotel and Restaurant Department, helieve that the crowds of students at the snack bars in Statler Wing and the cafe could be reduced with the aid of a satellite food service at the other end of campus.

It was impossible for the H&R department to furnish a mobile snack bar in such a short period of time. In order to give students this kind of service, and to get a satellite in operation as quickly as possible, bids were solicited from various catering companies.

KENNETH INGALLS of ABC presented the H&R department with a favorable arrangement. A nine month contract with ABC was signed by college president Dr. Louis Conlan.

The cahle car unit will move into Cloud Hall north of the Experimental College and near the construction for the new Graphic Arts Hall.

The snack bar which will be open six hours a day, will feature coffee, soft drinks, fresh fruit in season, assorted sandwiches, hotdog, hamburgers and yogurt. The menu will be changed according to student desires and the location of the mobile will vary to accommodate the conveniences of students and the college as traffic indicates.

A percentage of the profits from the cable car will be awarded to the foundation of City College for scholarships and other worth while purposes.

THE H&R DEPARTMENTS will study the success of the cahle car venture and will eventually consider making mobile feed a part of their curriculum and offer such services themselves, according to Dean Warren White.

With the aid of the mobile cable car, students will no longer have to make the tedious journey from the Arts Hall to Statler Wing.

Turkey Menu

Keeping up with their traditional Thanksgiving Day spread, the Hotel and Restaurant department will serve a meal today fit for a king. The tempting aroma of tom turkey, stuffing, giblet gravy, candied yams, mashed potatoes and pumpkin or minced pie will fill Smith Hall from 11 a.m. to 1:15 p.m.

The cost is a mere 70 cents for the frugal minded. Regular meals and snacks will be served as usual.

Tonight's evening meal menu will feature delicious baked ham with pineapple sauce, duchess potatoes, green beans, salad, dessert and beverage. Evening meals are served every Monday through Thursday from 5:45 p.m. to 7 p.m. for the price of $1. However, tomorrow being Thanksgiving the campus will be closed.

Short Stories, Poems Wanted For Publication

The Magazine Production Class of the Experimental College is currently accepting contributions for its forthcoming publication. Short stories, poems and other creative works which represent originality and experimentation are desired.

Richard F. Bruns, organizer of the magazine class stated the purpose of the magazine is to give two-year college students an opportunity to have their works published.

The final deadline for literary submissions is December 1. Each submision must have a self addressed stamped envelope so that unaccepted submissions can be returned.

"Since we cannot afford to pay for the contributions, each contributor will receive a copy of the magazine." The magazine will be copyrighted with all subsequent publishing rights returned to the writers," according to Burns.

The magazine is soliciting short stories of not more than 2000 words and poems of at least four lines.

Contributions should be mailed to: Magazine Production Class, Experimental College in care of the college.

Thanksgiving Service

Editor, The Guardsman:

All faculty, students and staff are cordially invited to an ecumenical Thanksgiving Eve Service led hy Reverend Zeke Hahersham and Reverend Harry Washburn tonight at 8 p.m. The location is Ingleside Preshyterian Church, just three blocks west of the campus on Ocean Avenue at Granada.

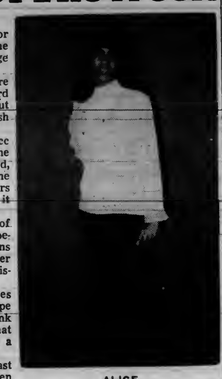
Art Evans, President
Faculty Association

Ramette Of The Week

By Dave Albertson

This week's beauty candidate for The Guardsman's Ramette of the Week is third semester City College Coed Alice Grijalva.

Alice's ramette potentialities were realized when she was overheard making some choice comments about Hamlet in Mr. Cunningham's English 1b class.



In the midst of the interview Alice interjected a view of the way she sees it on this campus. She said, "City College is excellent for the educational opportunities it offers and for the pressures and efforts it makes in furthering these goals."

"However, I feel there is a lack of community among the students because the clubs and organizations seem to emphasize differences rather than similarities by their very existence as exclusive entities."

Alice goes in for creative activities like making jewelry and ceramic type things. She said, "... Yes, I think people should do creative things that takes in working with their hands a lot."

Editor's Note: The furor over last week's Ramette of the Week, Lauren Joachim was overwhelming to say the least. We are glad to hear general comments from the student body on any article, as constructive criticism always helps us in putting out a more effective publication than we already have.

Numerous classmates, friends, admirers, enemies and even the universal guru on The Free Critic informed us that our last Ramette didn't go to City College. To clarify our Ramette policy, it is this: to exhihit an exceptional type worthy of recognition, who is associated or goes to City College. Our last ramette (Lauren) was discovered on campus and participates in a few City College activities. We felt Lauren was one of the best representatives thus far, and judging from the response, the majority agrees.

ALICE
Guardsman photo by Samuel Woo

English Program Initiated To Help Foreign Students

By Ben Marinas

In keeping up with the growing student population of foreign speaking students at the college, the English Department has initiated a program entitled "English As A Second Language" (ESL) this semester.

The program, known nationally as Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages (TESOL) was added to the college curriculum to assist foreign born students at the college adequately express themselves in English.

THE PURPOSE of the program is to give these students the adequate training and control of the English language.

The six courses being offered this semester in the ESL Program are ESL 1, 3, 26, 28, 40 and 43. There are at present between 300 and 400 students involved in the program.

According to Kenneth Sutherland, ESL instructor, students in the ESL Program make mistakes which are uncommon with native English speakers.

THERE IS ANTICIPATION that the program will be expanded next year to meet the rising tide of foreign speaking students entering the college. Donald F. Snepp, chairman of the English department, stated, "I am most pleased with this expansion of the ESL program."

The program was initiated here so that qualified instructors who specialize in teaching in this specific field would be able to help students with their English difficulties.

An instructor with a class of mixed nationalities can almost he sure of not being able to reach a number of them because the students have not been properly trained in English.

In college about 80 per cent of all study involves reading, and greater emphasis is being placed upon tests which require thoughtful writing in English. With the initiation of the ESL Program, the English Department has finally incorporated in its curriculum a program that will aid, significantly, the problems in these two areas of study which have plagued a majority of foreign speaking students.

Students Invited To Exhibit Art Work In 'Critique Gallery'

By Florence McCarthy

The "Critique Gallery," the college's first art gallery, will exhibit students works from December 4-12 in the college library. A wide variety of art creations from painting to pottery are being accepted for the showing.

The "Critique Gallery" will give students an opportunity to exhibit their art work. Professional artists are being invited to evaluate the art works that are displayed by John T. O'Brien, initiator of the gallery. "We hope students will gain recognition for their art and perhaps a chance to display their work at some of the larger downtown galleries," he said.

"SALE OF THE exhibits will certainly be encouraged," O'Brien remarked. He mentioned that the gallery would try to keep prices at a minimum so more students can afford to purchase an original art work.

All students of the college are invited to submit their creations. "Competence and creative endeavor will be the basis for acceptance," O'Brien explained. He said that since space is limited and only high calibre works are desired, a maximum of two works per artist will be accepted.

"We want students to profit from the sale of their creations," O'Brien emphasized. He explained that a 40 per cent handling fee will be asked from the sale of each piece. Proceeds will go to the Art Associates Students Welfare and Scholarship Fund.

Students who sell works from departments other than Advertising Art and Design will have 30 per cent of the proceeds forwarded to their department, while 10 per cent will be retained by the Art Associates. Thus contributors will receive 60 per cent of the proceeds from the sale of their works.

O'BRIEN ADDED that, "The Art department has been planning the "Critique Gallery" since the beginning of the semester. We hope that students and faculty alike will frequent the "Critique Gallery" and huy a painting, sculpture or other art craft."

Labelled And Recorded

Beau Brummels Better Than Ever

by Martin J. Arbunich

SAN FRANCISCO'S answer to England's Beatles came long before this city established itself as a music center—even before there were ballrooms and Jefferson Airplane and the cataclysmic wave of rock bands that activated SF and transformed it into a massive musical family.

The Beau Brummels were that answer—a crude, young quintet then, hardly worth comparing to the Beatles, but they were without question the finest and most talented band San Francisco had to offer in those days of 1964-65.

Musically the Brummels were solid and had a crisp-sounding singer and a prolific songwriter with an inventive mind. At that time their qualifications were more than enough to meet the grade, but it was unfortunate their arrival was early, prior to the big SF wave. If they had arrived

ELLIOTT, VALENTINO
Unrecognized genius

a year later, there is no doubt that the ballroom exposure and publicity, coupled with their blooming genius, would have put them near the top of today's local bands.

As it went, their original record label fell apart, their live and recorded exposure was limited, and hit songs which were a necessity for survival then didn't last. The Brummels' entrance was unquestionably premature; and by the time the now-existing scene started to move, their exit from the ranks of popularity was underway, and they were soon to become only a memory of the past.

Better than two years after their so-called exit, the cream of the original Beau Brummels, guitarist-writer Ron Elliott and vocalist Sal Valentino, still remain together as the BB's, and what they're recording now is excellent and rates as some of the most important contributions to rock today. Their direction has matured to a soft, mellow approach to rock, and they glisten with professionalism in all aspects, particularly in Elliott's superb arrangements and choice, metaphoric lyrics.

The rich talents of Valentino and Elliott really shouldn't go unrecognized as they have. Their "Triangle" album (Warner-1692) was issued over a year ago, and it really was a shame that the puhlicity and promotion that followed it was so thin. "Triangle" was surely one of the best records of 1967.

The Beau Brummels' new aihum, which has been out for a couple weeks, is titled "Bradley's Barn" (Warner-1760), and the genius which went without recognition in "Triangle" is here again. Some arrangements are flavored with Nashville influences, and despite the experimentation, the voice of city boy Valentino is still strong and secure. He sings with richness throughout, and his drive and excitement on "Cherokee Girl" and the crescendo "I'm A Sleeper" is beautiful.

The Brummels' two Warner Bros. recordings reserve some close attention. What was once San Francisco's original "crude" rock and roll hand is now a dynamo of rich talent, considerably more mature and valuahle than many others in the SF pack.

Beneath today's din of electric guitars and the magnitude of amplification is buried the soft-spoken Beau Brummels. It's time they were uncovered.

• Exam Orientation

All students interested in the forthcoming SF Fire Department Exam and who have completed pre-application forms for such are invited to attend orientation meetings on Dec. 2nd and 3rd in the Fire Science Bungalow (E-1) at 12 noon. This meeting is to enable students to get some knowledge of Fire Department exams.

Third Place Finish For City College In GGC

Beleaguered Ram Distance Spikers Finish Poor Third

By Floyd Banks

Finishing a discouraging third, the beleaguered Ram Distance Spikers ended this year's conference season and conference race.

The main reason for the disappointment was the inability of Vic Cary and Dave Powers to finish in the Ram first five.

Mike Daily, the Comet from San Mateo, beat the home favorite George Haza on sheer guts. Haza and Daily were neck to neck until the half-way point in the race, then came the hills! !

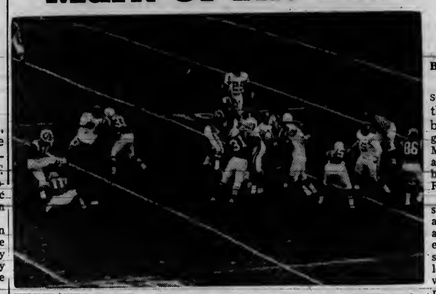
THE HILLS were a definite advantage to the San Mateo speedster, who showed Haza "elbow and spikes" the remainder of the race to ripoff the crown.

Haza finished a great second showing off his great ability and style.

Klaus Hoffman, Freshman superstar, came in a dazzling sixth in the race, second man for the Rams.Hoffman's potential has never been questioned. However, his performances didn't owe up to his confefence finale.

BOB DARLING was aced out by Hoffman but managed to take a respectable seventh place. Darling is obviously the most improved runner on the team; it's runners like him with guts and courage that make cross-country the sport it is.

The dynamic duo Garcia and Baccelli mustered all their available resources to finish 30th and 40th.



Jose Garcia moved his early season standings up so as not to let his teammates down.

BACCELLI IS NOT satisfied with his final meet standings and is determined to knock off that number one spot in the Nor/Cal Championship. Baccelli can be seen daily in his bright red uniform with his "Red Baron Muffler" running around the school (with a flock of sighing girls looking on).

The Nor/Cal Championship will be held on the hilly Foothill course this Friday at one o'clock.

The lungbusters are praying for the return of Vic Cary and Dave Powers to their first five, so they can capture the crown. The teams to beat are: San Mateo, Sacramento and American River (in that order).

Mark Of The Toe

MARK (GOGOLATZ) HENSLEY puts the toe into a 27-yard field goal against Merritt. Hensley, a soccer-style kicker, was the fourth leading scorer on the team this year. He booted 12 out of 12 extra points and added five field goals. Chuck Ferrera (11) holds the ball in the 41-28 win.
—Guardsman photo by Samuel Woo

Seven Victories Highlight Exciting Ram Grid Season

By Phil DiCarlo

From the first game of the season, when Tom Mayfield tore up the opposing team's sign, 'til the bus ride back from the final game in San Mateo, when Ed "Wild Man" Johnson was leading cheers and mimicking Moms Mabley, it's been quite a football season for the Rams.

Maybe it sounds trite, but the season had everything. There were high and low points, close games and runaway games. The team scored in every possible manner (except by safety), threw long passes, featured long, twisting runs, and most of all, were very exciting to watch. Too bad more people didn't come out to enjoy the fun.

The first four games, two non-conference contests and two league games, were against the four teams that had beaten the Rams last year. The first opponent, American River, had been the number one team in Northern California in 1967. Their fans brought a sign along with them that read, "1968—The Beavers Are Still No. 1." Toward the end of the 32-14 Ram victory, Ram quarterback Mayfield tore up the sign. Then he motioned to the stands while holding up one finger, saying, "We're Number One."

JON DYSON scored the first touchdown of the season, taking a 16 yard pass from Mayfield. Defensive end Ed Johnson scored next when he grabbed up a blocked punt and rambled nine yards for the score.

Joesiah Bell ran for 113 yards and scored twice while the Rams dismantled San Joaquin Delta, 38-22, as they ran their record to two and one. Mayfield completed 9 of 15 passes for 240 yards and three touchdowns.

The first league game was played at San Jose. After battling to a tie in the first half, which featured a 74 yard kick-off return by Willie Lewis, the breaks turned toward San Jose. A pass bounced off one Jaguar receiver right into another's for a touchdown. Penalties cancelled a couple of Ram scoring passes (one was a tremendous 66 yarder to end Ralph Bayard), and the game was lost 39-25. Bayard caught two good payoff passes.

Diablo Valley visited the campus for the Ram's fourth game. The Rams led at halftime, 22-20, but the second half belong to the Vikes. Mayfield made good on half of his 24 throws, and Doyle Miller scored a pair of six pointers, but the Viking defense was too much for the Rams to handle. The final score stood at 42-22.

THE SITUATION indeed looked bad. The Rams had a two and two record, but were yet to win in conference play. Displaying fantastic recuperative powers, courage, a never-say-die spirit, and fine coaching, the team came back to win their final five games. The team not only regained their confidence, but they achieved respectibility throughout the league.

The long way back began in Los Altos on a chilly Friday night. Led by three Mayfield scoring tosses, two to Bayard, and four big pass interception, two each by Eddie Perkins and Mike Baines, the Rams swamped Foothill's Owls 41-11. The redoubtable Bayard caught 15 and 61 yard touchdowns passes, as Mayfield threw for three more scores. Still another Mayfield to Bayard bomb, this one good for 45 yards, was nullified by a penalty. Perkins returned his first interception, untouched, 53 yards for six points. The defense limited Foothill to only 50 yards on the ground.

Chabot was the next stop, and the Gladiators put up a good fight losing 24-20. The Rams rolled up 503 yards in the victory with penalties, an interception and three (!) called-back touchdowns kept the game close. Mark Hensley's 31 yard field goal actually was the deciding factor. Three interceptions and three fumble recoveries, along with the running of Bell and Miller, kept the Rams in the game. With the offensive line consistently blasting holes in the Chabot defense, Bell gained 133 yards, Miller 146.

Next week: The big Laney Victory; a look at the final statistics; next year's prospects; and the ALL-CONFERENCE TEAM.

Editor's Note: This is Part One of a two part analysis by football reporter, Phil DiCarlo, on the 1968 season.

Ten Times Under For Local Water Boys In Cellar Season

City College lost its final two games of the year in water polo by getting dumped by San Mateo, 20-1, and Chabot, 27-5. The loses extended the team's losing streak to ten straight to close out the season.

Against Chabot, Dave Nelson, the team's leading scorer, led the attack, hitting with three goals while Frank Achim and Jim Carter each hit one apiece.

Against a strong San Mateo team, second only to Foothill in the Golden Gate Conference, Rich Glass scored the only goal of the game.

When practice first started back in September, no one seriouly expected the Rams to win a game, and this prediction came true. However, in their second game against Diablo Valley the team surprised everybody in the pool including themselves, when they actually tied the Vikings 4-4 in the first half.

Things turned, however, and Diablo Valley came back strong in the second half to beat the water poloists 11-6. Still the fact that the team actually held a foe to a tie in the first half gives great encouragement for brighter days in the 1969 season.

One other fact that gives Coach Curt Decker hope for next year is that almost everyone on the team will be returning next season. Only guard Frank Achim, who scored six goals, and possibly Lee McCollum will be leaving.

The two top scorers, Nelson (17 goals) and Glass (13 goals), will return along with Jim Carter, the goalie, who hopefully will recover from the emotional shock of having allowed 261 goals scored against him in ten games. Altogether the Rams scored 30 goals all season.

During the off-season many of the water poloists will keep in training by playing for the Park Recreation team and the Olympic Club.—P.C.

Booters Finish Second In League

The Ram soccer team wound up their worst season in 20 years this fall by finishing in second place in the Golden Gate Conference. In past years the Rams have always won the league title and then went on to take the state championship.

The cause for the team's downfall this season has been the San Mateo Bulldogs, who shutout and tied the Rams, 3-0 and 0-0.

These two games gave city college a record of 5-1-1 in contrast to San Mateo's 6-0-2. As a result the Bulldogs will go onto represent the GGC in the state playoffs.—P.C.

RAMBLINGS

Mayor Sets December Date As 'O. J. Day'

By Phil DiCarlo

O. J. SIMPSON, a familiar name around this campus, the city, and more recently, the United States, is having a day set aside in his honor. San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto has designated Wednesday, December 11, 1968 as city-wide "O. J. Simpson Day."

Speaking of O.J., a special show will be aired on KNEW-TV, channel 32 on the UHF dial, entitled No. 32, Simpson's jersey number. Produced by the Metromedia Network, the show will endeavor to influence anybody who is voting for this year's winner of the Heisman Trophy. Anybody that is, who doesn't already know that O. J. is the finest football player in the country this year. We could go on to say that Simpson is probably one of the finest runners of all time, but we wouldn't.

BUT BACK TO the TV special. It will be shown December 7, 1968, a Saturday, from 9:30 to 10:30 in the evening.

We had the privilege to observe part of the filming for the O. J. special. In early October, a crew from Los Angeles' Metromedia station, KTTV, was on campus to interview Ram football coach, Dutch Elston. Bob Hiestand, producer of the show, borrowed old game films and photos of O. J. from Elston to include in this program. Old issues of the Guardsman, featuring banner headlines of Simpson's exploits, also were used to jazz up the documentary. We were even allowed to help hold up the copies in front of the camera. That might seem like nothing at all to you no-nothings, but we received press box tickets to USC-Stanford game played that week-end. So there.

A dinner in Simpson's honor will be held that night at the Jack Tar Hotel. Tickets, at $12.50 a shot, are available in Joseph Amori's Placement Office, S-132.

SCOUTS AND COACHES from four-year colleges have started making appearances on campus lately, now that the Ram football season is over. This college has always had a good reputation, among scouts, for putting out top-notch football talent. With the impotence of O. J. though (we can't seem to get away from his name), City College is really on the map. Coach Elston has set aside Mondays for team meetings with the various college and university representatives.

Coach Elston and his staff really put themselves out to accommodate these talent-hunters. Movies are shown, interviews (with the different Ram coaches and the players themselves) given and statistics bounced around. Elston feels that placing his players in four-year schools is just as important as fielding a good team.

EVEN THOUGH the Rams finished in third place in the final Golden Gate Conference standing, there are many people who think the team is the best in the league. Diablo Valley and San Jose, who both beat the Rams, were ahead in the standings. City College, however, was the only team to defeat Laney. Laney, ineligible for the league crown, whipped DVC 26-7 and clobbered San Jose 41-26. How 'bout that?

Marki Captures Nor-Cal Fencing Title; Bauer, Tam Take Tennis Honors

City College Recreation Association is in full swing by recently participating in fencing and tennis competition along with a host of other team sports.

The Ram's fencing team took first place in The Northern California Intercollegiate Fencing Competition. The Rams were led by Ferenc Marki and Ken Stroughter. Marki ran off with the first place title while Stroughter copped second place fencing honors. In addition City College also placed Jan Lenzini and Sylvia Tooth in the finals, but they failed to place. Candy Mizera and James Morales rounded out the City College fencing representation at the matches.

In other activites Recreation Association ran away with a bagful of titles in tennis competition.

Kathy Bauer and David Tam took first place tennis honors in the mixed doubles, while Nancy Dito took a second in the women's singles.

City College was also well represented in bowling, swimming, golf, weightlifting and volleyball.—G.S.

Signups Accepted Now For Swimming Team

Coach Curt Decker is looking for a large turnout for next Spring's swimming team.

City College openings on the swimming team are plentiful, and anyone who wants to participate is urged to try out for this year's squad.

Last year's dismal swimming performance was due largely to the poor turnout for the team. The Ram aqua attack did have a few outstanding features in the form of Ram swimming standouts Rich Glass and Dave Nelson. Glass and Nelson teamed for the majority of the few points the Ram swimmers managed to salvage last season. In addition Glass and Nelson have been the top scorers on this season's water polo team.

Signups for this year's team are now being accepted in the men's gym.—G.S.

Cagers In Opener At Contra Costa

Basketball season starts with a bang this week-end as the Ram cagers meet an old rival and open a new sports palace.

The Ram hoopsters journey across the bay, Friday night, to battle Contra Costa with an 8 p.m. tip-off. The Comets fought City College for the conference championship last year, before dropping a thriller to the Rams during the last week of play. Lanley has replaced Contra Costa in the Golden Gate Conference this year, but the game will be significant for both teams.

Saturday night Palo Alto is the destination as the Stanford Frosh host the Rams' tall men starting at 6 p.m. The game will be the first sporting event ever held in Stanford's multi-million dollar sports pavillion. Stanford's varsity will play in the night cap.—P.D.

Ball Bounces Past Delts, 47-39; Ailing G'man Turn Blue In Defeat

Intramural basketball saw The Guardsman succumb to a devastating Rookies team, 52-38; the Ball destroy Phi Delta, 47-39; Alpha Kappa Rho overpower the Villagers, 58-54; and Hotel and Restaurant gain a forfeit victory over Alpha Sigma Delta.

The Guardsman's once glittering offense lost all of its sparkle as usually high scoring John Franicevich, Tom Jones, and Andy Kennedy could only come through with four points apiece. High scorers for the losers were Mike Duggan with 13 and Big Red Graham with ten points. The Rookies' attack was well-balanced with Ralph Gomez tanking 12 points, and "King" Kline and Zach Zouzouins scoring ten apiece.

HALL ORK, AND Jim Marshall led the Ball's victory over Phi Delta with nine points apiece. Jim O'Malley pumped in 16 digits for AKP's win while Hank Howard of the Villagers led all scorers with 17.

Action on Thursday, November 14, saw Alpha Phi Epsilon slip by Black Students Association, 45-42, the ball hand the Apaches their first defeat, 59-53, and AKP squeeze by H&R, 56-52.

Tomorrow being Thanksgiving, intramual besketball is taking the night off. It will return next Tuesday evening with the 7 p.m. games pitting the once-illustrious Guardsman against AKP in the men's gym, and a thriller with Alpha Phi Epsilon taking on Black Students Associations in the women's gym. The only game at 8 p.m. is in the women's gym with the Apaches attacking the Villagers.—C.B.

Elections Delayed Until January

AS Constitution Revision Reschedules Fall Elections

By Raymond Gin

The Fall 1968 Associated Students Elections has been postponed until January 6 and 7 by Student Council in an effort to legally put a newly revised Constitution on the upcoming election ballot.

Rescheduling of the election became necessary last Wednesday when Al R. Wong, Don Ortez and Trenton Browne, Council members and co-ordinators of this new Constitution, failed to follow proper parliamentary procedures in prescnting their proposed Constitution.

For editorial comment on the elections postponement see page 2

THE CONSTITUTION had to be proposed either by bearing the signatures of ten per cent of the active members of the association or by having been passed by a two-thirds majority of the voting membership of Student Council. The election commissioner would then officially place it on the election ballot.

The final steps required would be the publishing of the new Constitution in the Guardsman and/or the posting of it in a public place one week before the voting.

The bulk of these requirements were not met by the deadline, December 4, 10 a.m., and it was then necessary to delay the elections to allow more time for these correct procedures to be followed.

ONE PURPOSE of the new Constitution is to adopt the name of Student Union of City College in the place of Associated Students. The major argument for the new Constitution is that the present AS Constitution is outdated, outmoded, and a hindrance to progressive programs for students.

Earlier in the meeting, The Free Critic was alloted $4278, The Experimental College was given $1300 and KCSF received $2260. A cut of $1000 on AS Student Loans was also initiated. The expected income for the semester is $42,000 while budget requests will reach $61,000.

The meeting was convened by George Masson who was acting for Associated Students President Derrick Hill. Finance chairman Derrick Quan presided over the session.

Council Supports Reading Program

A reading clinic, suported by funds from the Student Council and outside sources, has been established by the Tutorial program.

The program consists of ten reading improvement sessions which present methods of improvement for students with low reading vocabularies, poor language backgrounds or those who have trouble understanding and remembering reading material.

Classes are held one hour a day for two weeks. So far, two clinics are being held, the first from 11-12 in the morning, and the second from 1-2 in the afternoon.

The sessions include demonstrations of techniques, an informal test to analyze reading skills, slides and charts presenting suggestions. Heading the sessions is Jeannae Etter, a graduate of the University of Oregon. Miss Etter has had three years of experience teaching reading skills in various high schools.

The Tutorial Center hopes to make the reading program a permanent part of the center. Presently, the clinic plan is to close at the end of the semester when their funds run out.

Enthusiastic Response Reduces Prices Of Exhibits In Gallery

The Critique Gallery located in the library is reducing the price of its exhibits by 40 per cent. John T. O'Brien, initiator of the gallery stated the reduction was made due to the enthusiastic response of students to the exhibits.

"Already, many paintings have been sold," O'Brien stated. The gallery, which opened last Wednesday will continue through December 18. Exhibits of pottery, a mobile, and photographs and various kinds of paintings are included.

O'Brien explained that refunds of 40 per cent will be given to those who have already bought exhibits at the regular price. Originally this 40 per cent was to be subtracted from the price and donated to an art scholarship fund. "We have decided to suspend this fund in order to give buyers a more reasonable price. It is the gallery's Christmas gifts to the college," stated O'Brien.

The Critique Gallery represents a student endeavor without the assistance of faculty or faculty funds.

For three years, art students have worked to raise money for the gallery. The Art Associates are the official sponsors of the show.

O'Brien remarked that response to the Critique Gallery exhibits has been very favorable. "I only wish these artists could stand beside their works and hear the various comments of viewers. It would really raise their self esteem and confidence," stated O'Brien.

TWO ENTHUSIASTIC STUDENTS check out a few of the paintings now on exhibit at the Critique Gallery in the library. It will remain open for interested students until December 18.
—Guardsman photo by Bert Flowers

Student-Faculty Committee Proposals Await Approval

The recommendations defining student-faculty-administration relations, printed below, are the results of three months' work by a student-faculty committee.

Ed Glazer, appointed by AS President Derrick Hill, headed the student delegation which formulated the document.

Faculty representatives who participated in drawing up the recommendations included Dr. Alfred Tapson, chairman of the Academic Senate and instructors Victor Graff, Charles Ohman, Richard Packham, Roy Thomas, Donald Greene and Richard Bloomer.

The recommendations approved by the Student Council and the Executive Council of the Academic Senate are currently waiting the approval of the entire senate. If the recommendations are passed, they will go before the student body in the forthcoming election, and then to the administration.

Glazer summed up the recommendations by saying, "I consider this document to be only the first step in defining the students relationship with the faculty and administration on an equal basis."

OBJECTIVES OF THE COLLEGE

The following statement shall be added to the official statement of the objectives of the college:

"These objectives can be achieved only if the instructors have the freedom to teach, the students have the freedom to learn, and all members of the college community are committed to the idcals of academic freedom and to the excercise of their rights of others. None of these objectives can be achieved unless all components of the college community actively participate in the decisions affecting the welfare of the college."

FREEDOM OF SPEECH AND PRESS

Neither the student government, the faculty, nor the administration shall make any rule or regulation which conflicts with the rights of free speech, free press, or freedom of assembly or association as guaranteed under the United States Constitution.

Students shall assume full responsibility for their excercise of these rights. The administration shall take appropriate steps to free the administration and faculty from any legal responsibility or liabilty for the results of the student exercise of these rights.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT

The student body shall have the right to establish a government for student affairs. This legally constituted student government shall have the right to legislate rules and regulations which relate to non-academic student affairs such as student organizations and student publications. The student government shall have the right to establish the amount of any student activity fees. This government shall be responsible for the appropriation and expenditure of these fees or any other income allotted to the student body.

The student government shall have the right to voting participation with faculty and administration in the formulation of educational policies. This voting participation shall be on the basis of administration, faculty, and students each having an equal vote.

STUDENT ORGANIZATIONS

Except when prohibited by law, students shall be free to organize or to join any organization of their choice. Student organizations shall have the right to use college facilities when not already scheduled for instructional or administrative activities and when sufficient, prior notice is given to permit physical planning of such facilities. Student organizations shall be responsible for any college facility provided to them and shall insure that use of such facility does not disturb classes.

To be recognized as a part of the college community, each student organization must submit to the student government (1) a copy of its constitution or statement of purpose, (2) a list of its officers, and (3) a statement that membership in the organization is not restricted by race, color, creed, or national origin, and that attendance at its meetings is not restricted by race, color, creed national origin, or position in the college community.

REVIEW BOARD

A board shall be established called the Review Board, composed of three students, three members of the Academic Senate, and three administrators. The student members shall be appointed by the Student Council, the Academic Senate members shall be appointed by the Executive Counell of the Academic Senate, and the administrative members shall be ap-

(Continued on Page 3, Column 4)

The Guardsman

Official Weekly Publication of the Students in the Journalism Department of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 67 — SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 11, 1968 — NUMBER 12

Student Unrest Develops Here

By Phil DiCarlo

The troubles at San Francisco State College finally reached this campus last Thursday morning. The tensions and anxieties, built up by City College students, manifested themselves during several hours of emotional debate, frenzied activity, hastily called meetings and even in a bit of violence.

The recent trouble at State, led to the appeal for support by State students to those at City College.

Several Students for Democratic Society members spoke to a curious crowd that had gathered near The Ram. LeRoy Goodwin, a Black striker from State, outlined the problems on his campus then appealed for help and/or support from his Black brothers. Pointing toward Science Hall, Goodwin shouted, "There's a building and there's one over there. Go take them over."

None of the students wavered.

ANA BARRY, acting president of the local BSU, related how she was supporting the strikers but that violence was not the answer. Applause ringing in her ears, Miss Barry led the Black students to their bungalow to discuss the situation.

Goodwin and his Black strikers weren't too happy. City's Blacks had not followed their pleas for action.

Much activity did develop though. The library was disrupted and books knocked off the shelves. A group of State Blacks, with Associated Students President Derrick Hill among them, began upsetting tables, throwing chairs and generally terrorizing people eating their lunches in Smith Hall. Hill went to the faculty dining room next asking that the faculty support the demands of his Black brothers at State. The instructors continued to eat their lunch.

BLACK AND WHITE athletes displayed a City College solidarity when, after the Black athletes were called "niggers" for not joining a Black rally, the whites moved in and sat among them on the grass. Others (male and female) joined the throng. Soon hot debates and question and answer sessions sprang up all over the southern end of campus.

Dean Ralph Hillsman had been circulating around campus. "Our Black and Oriental students have shown great strength today in their unwillingness to be led by a few outside agitators," he commented. When Black students were meeting in Statler Wing to plan a course of action, Hillsman standing outside, remarked, "Our Black students are performing beautifully."

The Black Students Union later prepared a statement of their intentions to boycott classes in support of the Blacks at State. Don Herman of the BSU had urged that all students stay home those days.

In a Faculty-Student Relations meeting late Thursday afternoon, teachers Merritt Beckerman and Barbara Bell spoke out in support of the

(Continued on Page 3, Column 3)

Preminger Visits College To Discuss His Latest Film

Otto Preminger, world famous motion picture producer-director visited City College recently. He held an informal discussion talking on a wide variety of subjects including his latest film "Skidoo."

Skidoo depicts the generation gap between a middle aged reformed gangster and his hippie daughter. Preminger stated that his purpose in making the film was "to show that the distance between young and old is not really so great." In order to gain insight for the LSD sequences in Skidoo, Preminger told his audience that he had taken the controversial drug himself.

OTTO PREMINGER
—Guardsman photo by Ed Bridant

On the San Francisco State College crisis he said, "Any kind of dissent or disagreement concerning young people should be encouraged. They should stand up for what they believe in. There is never any progress without conflict, often violent conflict."

Preminger offered advice to aspiring young actors and directors. He said, "They can gain valuable knowledge and experience through college theatrical programs."

SF Dedicates This Day To Our O. J.

See Page 4

The Guardsman Editorial Page
Official Weekly Publication of the Students in the Journalism Department of City College of San Francisco
MIKE DUGGAN, Editor
ACP Associated Collegiate Press
Vol. 67, No. 12 WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 11, 1968 Page 2

Elections Off Schedule

LAST WEDNESDAY Student Council announced the postponement of the student government elections here which were scheduled for today.

The cause of this postponement was due to Resolution 21, introduced last week at council, which proposed a new constitution for the Associated Students.

Resolution 21 was to be placed on the election ballot, but because it was introduced too late and was not posted for publication one week prior to the actual election date (a provision in the present constitution), it brought the election to a standstill until those requirements were met.

It is interesting to note that the proponents of this resolution did not take into consideration the necessary measures required to place it on the ballot as stated in Article V, Section 1. If they had, we would be voting today.

The Guardsman feels that those who consider themselves qualified to revise a document as complex as a constitution should also be aware of the present constitution and its provisions.

The irony of the present situation is that the leading proponent of Resolution 21 is also a candidate for a major office. Surely one who seeks a responsible position in student government cannot hope to gain strong community support if he fails to observe even the simple governmental regulations.

The Guardsman admires a government that strives for new changes that will benefit the college community, but only when they come about in an organized manner.

If a new constitution is so urgent, it should have been introduced in ample time to keep from disrupting the scheduled elections.

We hope that this type of oversight will not recur in the future. It could be embarrassing.

Contact Lens

Do You Support BSU Strike And Demands At City College?

DOE

John Doe, Sociology Major

To a certain extent. This is a sick society and it's up to people our age to do something about it. Most parents are just sitting on their asses. We have to do something before the city burns; Berkeley's burning now because of what's happening. This is a corrupt world. We have people like Humphrey, Wallace and Nixon running for president. Look what happened at the Democratic convention; the youth wanted to say something and were beaten.

JIMISON

Ed Jimison, Systems Analysis Major

In view of the Black man's history in this country, what white man can criticize Blaek demands as "unjustified"? White men will serve justiee best if they put themselves in the other man's sandals. We must keep our ears open and our mouths shut. Student Government at State could have been more effective in helping the administration reach a more flexible position by putting pressure on the regents, and Dumke in particular.

CHIN

Danny Chin, General Education Major

Yes, but they're asking for too much. They deserve it, but when it starts hurting other students I really can't suport them. People want to support them but we're born with white conservative thoughts; the Negroes are trying to break this. I support them but not their demands. However, the majority of the students there don't support it. The strikers are stepping on other peoples toes and this is going to lose support for them.

SHAFER

Mike Shafer, Political Science Major

The strike is a good thing and some of their demands are reasonable, but they are using undemocratic means in some instances. But if a government machine of getting student programs through fails, then the only way to accomplish things is through violence, and this is what the black students are doing. There should be more Negro instructors, but the college should hire and fire them. Student government should be more interested.

BATTLE

Wilbert K. Battle, Criminology Major

I support the strike and some of the demands. Concerning the demand that all black students who apply be admitted, I feel they should be admitted if they have the grade-point average. The strike is hampering education because the school was closed. The strikers felt that they shouldn't go to school if their demands were not answered. President Hayakawa has come up with poliee rule on campus which won't solve any problems.

SKELLEY

Marie Skelley, General Education Major

If the Black Student Union and other student groups don't make some amendments to their demands they will never make any progress. Some of the demands are worthwhile, but the majority are outrageous. For example, the demand that all Blaek students apply for next fall be accepted is completely out of the question. The student groups know how irrational some of their demands are.

—Compiled by Lavine Lee, photos by Jim Pope

Catalyst For Change

Arriba Juntos—A Program For Breaking Poverty Cycle

By Jack Ruiz

Arriba Juntos is a non-profit organization which sponsors a direct action program designed to serve as a catalyst for social change.

Arriba Juntos means "up together." The organization is dedicated to helping people—especially Latin Americans—to help themselves through developing affirmative social, political and economic programs which try to break down the poverty cycle and dynasty of dependency by providing jobs with promotion potential and salary increase.

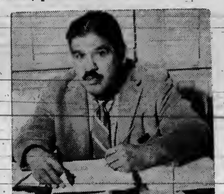
It is an offspring of OBECA (Organization for Business, Education, and Community Advancement).

ARRIBA JUNTOS, under the direction of Leandro P. Soto, executive director, is privately funded by the Catholic Charities of San Francisco, and is located at 1249 Alabama Street. St. Peter's Parish under the guidance of Father T. Hennessy provides space at the former St. Peter's High School for the Arriba Juntos operations. It is divided into three basic sections.

The first section is the Community Development Center which is the heart of Arriba Juntos. This is where future guidelines are laid out and carried to their completion.

Ben Martinez, Project Director, is currently involved which the help of the Mission Coalition in a drive to bring the Model Cities Program to the Mission District, and is also associated with the program on the Community Design Center.

The Horizons Unlimited, the second section, is a dropout prevention and leadership development program.



Under the direction of Project Director Jack Sandoval, the program's three general purposes are to provide high school dropouts and potential dropouts in the Mission Area of San Francisco to remain in school, to make the young people aware of the community problems that led them to drop out of school, and to develop leadership qualities in these youths so that they understand the meaning and values of self-help for individual growth and development so that they may have a positive influence upon other disadvantaged youths.

They accomplish this by giving them first-hand work experience in various organizations throughout the city, working with the parents at home and encouraging them to participate and involve themselves in program and community problems, and finally by working actively with local school officials.

THE NEW CAREERS Program is the third section. It is a broadly conceived, multi-goaled program which attempts to develop new approaches for attacking the problem of poverty in the United States. The New Careers concept is an attempt to motivate and enable new careerists to obtain education and work skills necessary to control their future.

Although the majority of the new careerists are Latin-Americans, the program is multi-racial. American Blacks, American Indians, Orientals, Filipinos, Chinese and Caucasians are in the three year program.

Next issue The Guardsman takes a close look at the New Careers Program and some of the people involved in it and how it will affect City College.

LEANDRO P. SOTO, executive director of Arriba Juntos, behind his office desk.
—Photo by Ulmer T. McKnight

Letters to the Editor

Ram's Horn

● Angry Chinese

Editor, The Guardsman:

It is with surprise and anger that we write to you on behalf of our Chinese Students Association (CSA).

According to your article published on page one of the Guardsman November 20, 1968, it stated that "Among the Chinese Students demands were for more Chinese instructors to teach at the college. Al Wong, spokesman for the CSA, emphasized "Chinese" instructors and not "Chinese-American." Your artiele also went on to state that CSA had made "demands" upon others.

First, let us state that Al Wong, a candidate for AS President, is NOT, I repeat, NOT a spokesman for CSA. This individual is not even a member. At most, his associations with our organization are null and void. Perhaps it should be noted that there are two Chinese organizations on campus. Wong must belong to the other.

Second, CSA recently endorsed a resolution for more Chinese instructors on campus. We DID NOT "demand" it, but merely suggested it. Your article mentioned a list of demands. If such a list of demands from Chinese students exists, then it must be from the other Chinese organization on campus.

Our organization believes that the Chinese students should not impose their standards and beliefs on others. Demanding that things be done in our favor is as characteristic of our Chinese people as Lipton Tea Bags. We have always earned our respect by constructive diplomacy. It is through cooperation and taet that constructive changes can be brought about.

America is composed of many races

(Continued on Page 3, Column 4)

SHOOTIN' IT

by Doug Boston

WE were kind of down when we wrote this column, with all those whirlybirds and cops and clubs and blood around. But we had elections coming up that would bring better times. Then they got cancelled.

Al Wong and Don Ortiz are the two presidential candidates. The elections were reduced to a two-man race when a mysterious third candidate withdrew. Needless to say, the cancelled elections made for havoc in the Guardsman office, where editors fought to make up their pages. Hell.

• • •

POW. Bridget Bardot and Elvis Presley each doing specials back-to-back last week was a real trip. Elvis, with his tight pants and hair-dressing commercial hair sang and brought the house down with his version of Little Egypt, complete with belly dancer. Presley is always fun to watch, since he is the only performer who sings songs in a helicopter accompanied by electric guitars. Bardot started her show with some trick photography and off-note tunes, and, with her sexy outfits and wiggle, forced this writer into early submission. It was too much for one night.

• • •

REVENGE IS SWEET. When Bill Tucker hauled in John Brodie's winning touchdown pass against Green Bay two weeks ago, it reminded us of another incident a few years back. Herb Adderly, the Packers all-pro defensive halfback, who has a typical Green Bay players attitude (kill the opposition) intercepted a Brodie aerial and romped into the end zone, holding the ball high and laughingly displaying it to unimpressed Forty-Niner fans.

What sweet revenge for the local Niners in the last one. Adderly, after watching Tucker score the winning TD, cracked Tucker across the neck with a solid forearm smash. Cool Tuck jumped up and with a gloating grin and a gleam in his eye, and flung the football at Herb's feet. That paid the fans back. Big Herb was burned.

• • •

HOT LINE. Here is a timely tip from the Guardsman's Gerry Engler. It seems that Joseph Alessi, Band Director here at the college is listed in the new pink faculty phone list Room A219—a funny thing since that room is the faculty women's bathroom. We wonder if Gerry found out the hard way?

• • •

TOPLESS. Every time you open one of those pastry packages (twinkies or cupcakes) have you noticed that the frosting always sticks to the wrapper and whats left over looks pretty sick.

• • •

OUCH. What's this about Alcatraz being turned into a recreation spot. Can you picture a group of children playing tag in the gas chamber. Or playing musical chairs in the kind that plug in.

• • •

OH-JAY. The shot heard round the world wasn't the one which started the Revolutionary War, it was the sound of OJ hitting a defensive back. We like USC in a hard-earned seven point win over OSU Rose Bowl day.

Writer's Dream Now Reality

By Tom Graham

A "long awaited opportunity" came to Tse Yiu Wong, a newspaper reporter from Hong Kong, when his dream of coming to the United States one day to further his education became a reality not too long ago.

Wong arrived in San Francisco in September of 1966. That year he didn't attend school but instead worked for Mikado Eleetronies, a Hi-Fi corporation that his brother-in-law owns.

In 1967 he enrolled at City College and discovered that his self taught English needed a little polishing, so he took a couple of Communieations courses.

HE ENROLLED IN the journalism department this semester but he hasn't met with much success in getting his articles published in The Guardsman beeause he's still finding difficulties mastering the English language. That doesn't seem to slow him down, however. His interest in learning overpowers any feelings of dejection that he may have concerning these difficulties.

The 28 year old, former reporter for Sin Poh Amalgamated Ltd. a Hong Kong newspaper organization with busy ties throughout Asia and North America, was their youngest staff member.

ON ONE of his assignments for the Sin Poh, before he came to the U.S. for further education, Wong visited St. Peter's Square in Rome.

T.Y., as his friends call him, has traveled widely throughout Asia, the Middle East, Europe and America. As a representative of his paper, he joined the Milan-Hamburg Inaugural Flight, offered by Alitalia Airlines, with other famous correspondants from all over the world. The purpose of the trip was to promote good relations and understanding between the major news agencies of the world.

After traveling from country to country for almost a year, he decided that he was no longer satisified with just being a local news correspondant. His permanent resident papers were finally okayed by the United States General Consolate in Hong Kong and T.Y. wasted no time in packing.

AMONG HIS OTHER interests, he is a professional singer and he enjoys swimming, basketball and ping pong.

T.Y. is interested in getting a job with an international news agency, "like UPI, AP, UP or the New York Times." He is confident that through experience he will achieve his goal.

DISPATCH

by Boku Kodama

WE, as students are not educated but rather programmed. Since the first day of school, we have come to realize and accept the fact, that our academic life was to be handled by a computer technician—the instructor, and that we were the tape within the computer.

Our role as students in the educational institution is one of being trained who's authority, what is right, what is wrong, what to do and how to do it.

Gerald Farber, an English instructor at Cal State, Los Angeles, in his essay, The Student As A Nigger, (which appeared in the Free Critic last semester) states that students are "slaves"; that they are treated as separate and unequal human beings.

In elementary school, junior high school, high school and college, we are fed one thing over and over, and that is to respect the authority and follow orders. It's as if education were a part of the army.

We never question orders. We take orders expecting them to already make sense because the instructor tells us so. But the important thing as Farber points out is that we have learn to please the instructor. "Back in kindergarten, you found out that teachers only love children who stand in straight lines. And that's where it's been ever since."

• • •

FOR TWELVE YEARS, white, yellow and black students are trained to be slaves and upon entering college, nothing has changed and the entire routine is repeated.

We call an instructor "Sir," "Mister," "Doctor," "Professor," "Miss" or "Mrs.". Never do we address him by his first name, thus proving again that we have been taught well to know our place.

Instructors expect their students to obey their every word and damnit, if we don't we get screwed by the grading system.

The grade to an instructor is like a gun to a cop. It is the one most powerful possession he owns.

As slaves, we are expected not to socialize with the upper class; in other words, the faculty or administrators.

As tapes, we are not expected to know much, only what we have been fed, which makes the instructors or computer technicians, our owners.

Farber states that seldom does an instructor take a coffee break or eat lunch with a student and if it does occur, the instructor is branded as an "educational equivalent of a nigger lover" as of the old South.

We and the faculty have different cafeterias and rest rooms. "If I take them into the faculty room, my colleagues get uncomfortable, as though there were a bad smell," states Farber.

As students, we have no power to decide on matters affecting our academic careers even though it is ours, and it is for not us to say which courses will be offered but rather for the faculty and administration to decide. Sure, we have a student government but it is basically concerned with minor items; that is, items which are not especially important to the administrators or instructors.

• • •

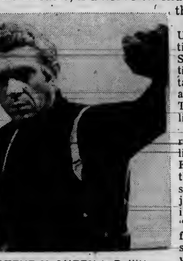
JUST WHY HAS the instructor molded us into niggers, slaves and tapes of the educational institution?

Farber believes that a teaching job attracts timid persons, and like police work, "pulls in persons who are unsure of themselves and need weapons and other external trappings of authority."

He went on to say that general timidity of the instructors usually includes a special fear of students. "(The instructor) stands exposed in front of them, knowing their interest, their values and their language are different. What then can protect (the instructor) from their ridicule and scorn? Respect for authority. That's what."

Our instructors were once slaves themselves in the same type of educational system and they are passing this slave tradition along to us.

When we view the entire situation in our schools as a whole, we realize that very little eduecation takes place and, Farber has worded it so well is his essay, "You can't educate slaves; you can only train them. Or, to use an even uglier word, you can only program them."



McQueen In A 'Sewer'

Hot Bullitt' Exposes Inner Turmoil Of Detective Life

By Raymond Gin

Steve McQueen as "Bullitt" outranks both Paul Newman's "Harper" and Frank Sinatra's "Tony Rome" as the most courageous and colorful detective of the year.

The film, which opens its regular run on December 20 at the Baronet Theatre, is a nerve-on-end roller coaster ride of crime and thrills.

STEVE McQUEEN is Bullitt

Robert Vaughn plays an ambitious U.S. Senator who is bent on presenting an important star witness at a Senate hearing on crime. As Detective Lt. Bullitt, McQueen is given the task of guarding the key witness in a cheap hotel on Embarcadero Row. The prisoner is shotgunned and Bullitt is in hot pursuit of the killers.

"BULLITT" RISES far above the routine crime-detective films the public has been accustomed to seeing. For once, the audience is aware of the inner turmoil of a detective; the stench and filth of crime he must objectively cope with. Bullitt resides in a world that is an undeniable "sewer." He's become totally indifferent to human death because it is so recurrent in his duties. It is only when he is with his girlfriend, Jacqueline Bisset, who speaks out against his obvlous disregard for death, that he realizes his amorality. Yet he must do the job at hand.

Director Peter Yates has paid close and profitable attention to city-police detail and state-of-consciousness of the policeman.

The film boasts a breathtaking car chase that takes the audience through the streets and hills of San Francisco with nerve-shattering speed. McQueen, shunning any stuntmen, was behind the wheel traveling at speeds up to 115 mph. Bullitt ends on an engrossing note as he and the criminal dodge the big whining jets and each other at the SF Airport.

THE ACTION IS top-notch but not so the script by Alan R. Trustman and Harry Kleiner (of "Thomas Crown Affair" and "Robbery" respectively). Logic and motives are dreadfully misplaced in this film.

McQueen gives a wonderfully restrained and tightlipped performance. He retains his stylistic cool while also lending himself to that X-factor of believeability, a sense of human warmth and awareness. Vaughn as the corrupt Senator, Jacqueline Bisset as Bullitt's girlfriend, and Simon Oakland as the Police Captain are fine in their co-starring roles.

In the final sequence, Vaughn seurries off in a car with an ironic bumper stieker that reads: "Support Your Local Police." In the easp of "Bullitt," this reviewer supports him.

Contino To Speak On Photography Here Tomorrow

By James Pope

Victor Hugo Contino, one of Italy's foremost photographers, will lecture tomorrow on "The Eye of Excitement" during College Hour in the College Theater.

Contino is slated to spend an entire day on eampus. He will begin with a discussion on photography as an artistic medium with art and photography students at 8 a.m. Later, he will conduct an impromptu workshop in the Photography Department.

According to Warren R. White, Assistant Dean of Instruetion, Contino will deal in his lecture with the works as the photographer sees it, and with the ways and means by which a photographer can increase his range of sensitivity and awareness in that world.

HE IS CURRENTLY president of the National Movie Photographers Association and has been a member of the American Society of Magazine Photographers since 1964.

He has published in numerous Italian publications, as well as in Life, Holiday, Paris Match, Isvestia, Stern and a number of other internationally known magazines.

In 1966, Contino was director of photography for "Viet-Nam, Guerra Senza Fronte," a De Laurentis production devoted to the study of the many sides of the Viet- Nam Conflict. For his work on this film, Contino received the "Maschera D' Argento" and "Capitolino" Awards.

Contino has also worked with such noted directors as Roberto Rosellini, Antonioni, Autant-Lara, Pontecorvo, William Wyler and Robert Wise. His talents as a cinematographer have enhaneed such films as "War and Peace," "Ben Hur," and "Helen of Troy."

Middle-eastern conflicts have provided backdrops for some of Contino's extensive still photography of combat operations. His most notable efforts are those concerning the war in Algeria and the Suez incident.

CONTINO'S OWN published works include "Encyclopedia de Los Toros" and another, simply entitled "Toros." He is currently working on several more publications ineluding "Immagine in Fotografia" (Image in Photography), "G. & D." (Girl and Dog), and "Italia di Pound."

Guardsman Staff — Fall 1968

EDITOR IN CHIEF ..... MIKE DUGGAN
Managing Editor ..... Doug Boston
Feature Editor ..... Tom Graham
Staff Editor ..... Boku Kodama
News Editor ..... Barbara Hamann
Sports Editor ..... Dave Albertson
Editorial Assistants: Marlin J. Arbunich, Lani Brand, Rita Carroll, Lavine Lee, Lynda Sandstrom.
Reporters: Floyd Banks, Pat Chan, Phil DiCarlo, Randy Flynn, Dan McCarthy, Florence McCarthy, James Pope, Len Ribeiro, Jack Ruiz, Sonia Schmidt, Ray Gin.
Cub Reporters: Dan Angelo, Dan Castro, Lynette Conklin, Jeff Deleuse, Gerry Engler, Ben Marinas, Diane Matson, Elizabeth Ramos, Greg Stuesa, Kenneth Surface, Barbara Tyrrell, Val Valledor, T. Y. Wong.
Photographers: Marilyn Astalosh, Chief; Bert Flowers, Glenn Graham, Steven La Plant, Jerry Mishler, Detlef Osburg, Jean Pretzer, Roberto Guillen, Kevin Shea, Ulmer T. McKnight, Gavin Watt, Calvin Wong, Russell Wong, Sam Woo.
Advisor: Mary Blair.

Student-Faculty Proposals Vote Due

(Continued from Page 1)

pointed by the college president.

The Review Board shall have the following functions:

1. Grade Appeal. Every instructor is responsible for the evaluation of the work of his students. The assignment of a grade is the sole responsibility of the instructor involved, but the student shall have the right to appeal a grade he considers unjust to the Review Board. No appeal will be considered unless the student has had prior consultation with the instructor concerned or has been refused such consultation.

2. File Review. Any files maintained by the college that pertain to an individual student shall be open to inspection by that student or to any person he disignates. A student's records shall not be made available to any person without that student's permission except to authorized staff personnel of City College of San Francisco. The Board shall hear the appeal of a student who feels that material contained in his files at the college is improper.

3. Student Misconduct Appeal. The Board shall hear and pass judgment upon the appeal of a student who has been accused of misconduct related to any college activity.

CONDUCT OF INDIVIDUAL CLASSES

The instructor in each class is ultimately responsible, with the advice and assistance of his chairman and dean, for the organization, content, method and direction of his course. In courses where the subject matter lends itself to discussion, students shall be free to take relevant and reasoned exception to the data, or to the views expressed by the instructor, and to reserve judgment on matters of opinion. The instructor shall provide the opportunity for such discussion.

COURSE DESCRIPTIONS

A detailed and accurate description of the content of and the methods used in all courses and classes shall be available to students.

ATTENDANCE REGULATIONS

Students are expected to attend classes regularly. Present attendance regulations shall be modified to eliminate exeessive absenees as a sole basis for disqualifieation. If scholastic defieiences result from exeessive absenees, the instruetor at his discretion may disqualify the student.

Ram's Horn

(Continued from Page 2)

with an equal desire—to live in peace. We are proud to be called "Chinese," but we are equally proud to be called "Chinese-Americans." For those who don't know it, we are Chinese living in a land called America.

Many self-righteous individuals will term us as "pigs" and "Uncle Wongs" because we are not offended by the term "Chinese-American." Our only answer to such an unsophisticated conclusion is "some people are above name calling."

The Chinese Students Association is not a racist organization. Only those individuals who follow our philosophy can be termed "our" spokesmen. The contrast is easily seen.

Officers and Members
CSA

Student Unrest Here

(Continued from Page 1)

State strike.

Miss Bell also questioned the demand concerning hiring and firing of teachers. "We would be reduced to entertainers, with our personalities deciding our fate. Do we please you or not? Some of my best teachers were the ones I disliked."

On the question of campus attendence, she wondered, "How many faculty members will go around checking classes and taking names? How many teachers will let their classes go, knowing their names might be turned in to the administration?"

Ramette Of The Week

BERNADETTE NOVELOZOS

Bernadette Novelozos swings in flashly fashion as The Guardsman's Ramette of the Week as the fall semester at City College swings out of it, with finals approaching at a rapid pace.

Bernadette accepted this week's ramette honors with a, "...great, I just take it as it comes, just like most everything else. I guess that's as good as any other way to accept things like this."

This ramette is in her last semester here, and plans on ensuing her dramatic interests after graduation.

Bernadette summed up this semester's Ramette selections which ineluded Florine Gallegos, Chrissy Perry, Venneta Denney, Diane Baker, Carol Andreychik, Stefanie Melvin, Bernadette Rodriquez, Patti Selli, Carolyn Henderson, Lauren Joachim and Aliee Grijalva.

The Guardsman editors have put there heads together to solve the difficult task of selecting "The Ramette of the Year," which will appear in the next issue coming out after the Christmas holidays. Tune in then to view the unanimous choice.—D.A.

Labelled And Recorded

Christmas Time Is Here Again

by Martin J. Arbunich

CHRISTMAS TIME is here again, which means every one with a heart has a weighty list of purchases for relatives and friends to complete. If you're in the market for buying records as gifts, presumably the route cowards take to detour the traditional plights of Christmas shopping, maybe we ean offer some suggestions as to where and what to buy.

The number of record shops currently operating in San Francisco is phenomenal. To those who are always on the lookout for bargain prices, most of the shops here are not helpful, though the price war over the last year has forced some of the larger businesses to axe their rates.

After a fairly thorough investigation of the SF record shops, we've discovered that one of the area's smallest shops offers a better bargain then even the big ones who are in the thick of the price war. The store is the AC Doughty shop (on Geary near 14th Avenue), and their year-round standard price is $2.98 per LP, which is quite reasonable.

Your next best bet is the Gramophone shops (there's three of them) which have a very wide selection and sell most of their albums for $2.99 each. The experience we've had with Tower Records, billed as the largest record store around, has been disheartening. Most of their prices are well over $3, with a dozen or so salepriced at $2.99 and an occasional small number of $2.66 offers. What is disheartening, however, is that Tower has so many records in stock that they're forced to merchandise many of them horizontally to make accommodations, and (from personal experience) these records become warped very easily and fast just setting in the store. The purchaser is often the owner of a "skipping" disc, which ain't worth it, even at $2.66.

As for phonograph equipment, we've found Audio Village on Market St. a very fine place to visit. The people who run the place are extremely helpful in trying to get you a good deal. Really! If you're looking for a good stereo component set at a very moderate priee ($129), eheckout their Encore model which, according to three friends who bought it, has excellent stereo fidelity for the price.

The new two-record Beatles album "The Beatles" was released with precision timing, just in time for Christmas. This is probably the most ideal record gift now on the market. There's something in it for everyone, and it's a great starter for those who are generally not attracted to rock.

Though the Beatles will be stealing most of the record sales this Christmas, there are still many other releases which would make good gifts, and among the softer sounds of rock we recommend strongly "Child Is Father To The Man" by Blood, Sweat and Tears (one of the finest American albums of 1968), "Last Time Around" by Buffalo Springfield, "Bookends" by Simon and Garfunkel, "Triangle" and "Bradley's Barn" by the Beau Brummels, "Days Of Future Passed" by the Moody Blues, and "The Yard Went On Forever" by Richard Harris.

Other albums, a little heavier instrumentally which pack a great sound are "Beggar's Banquet" by the Rolling Stones, "Music From Big Pink" by The Band, "Children Of The Future" by the Steve Miller Band, "Shine On Brightly" by Procol Harum, "Cheap Thrills" by Big Brother, Ten Years After "Undead," "Wheels Of Fire" by Cream, and "In Search Of The Lost Chord" by the Moody Blues.

• • •

After a lengthy absenee from this locale, Country Joe and the Fish will play the Fillmore West this weekend along with the impressive new band, Sea Train, and Terry Reid from England. During vacation time, Santana, PG&E and the Grassroots will be featured December 19-22; and the new Steve Miller Band, Sly and the Family Stone, and Pogo (a new one with two members of the old Buffalo Springfield in the lineup) are there December 26-29. The New Year's Eve bash will see the Dead, Quicksilver, Santana, and It's A Beautiful Day at Winterland, while Vanilla Fudge, Richie Havens and others will be at Fillmore West. Since the Avalon's life is hanging by a weak thread, they haven't a schedule set, but they're still throwing shows each week.

San Francisco Honors Ex-Ram Star

Special Award For Simpson; Hall Of Fame Fete Caps Day

By Phil DiCarlo

Mayor Joseph L. Alioto has declared today, December 11, 1968, as O. J. Simpson Day in San Francisco. (See accompanying story)

The "Day" will be highlighted by a formal dinner at the Jack Tar Hotel tonight. This dinner is held annually by the Northern California Chapter of the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame to honor scholar-athletes from Northern California high schools. The organization always selects an outstanding sports figure who has been the product of San Francisco schools to make the presentations. Simpson will award the scholarships to 50 outstanding high school winners, who have excelled in both the brains and brawn departments.

THE GALILEO grad and All-City selection was an overnight sensation after joining City College's football team. Simpson led the Rams to the top spot in the National Junior College Grid Ratings, two Golden Gate Conference Championships, two post season bowl game appearances and an overall 18-1-1 record.

Personally, O. J., accounted for 54 touchdowns and 2562 yards gained running in his 20 games with City College. He appeared on the All-Conference team twice and was Player-of-the-Year both seasons.

In addition, he also topped the league in yardage gained and points scored during those two years. Simpson's rushing average was over 11 (111) yards per carry. He also caught numerous passes, made key blocks and was used as a decoy enabling other runners to get away for big yardage. As a matter of fact, O. J.'s chief running mate in 1966, Ron Passler, was second in the league in both rushing and scoring and was named Back-of-the-Year.

MOVING ON to the University of Southern California (much to the dismay of many a drooling football coach—and the Canadian Football League), O. J. quickly won national acclaim. A two-time All-American back, recent Heisman Trophy winner (he finished second in the voting last year), and re-writer of collegiate record books, he has been the vital cog in his team's great surge (only one loss) the past two years. USC has been the Pacific Eight's representative to the Rose Bowl both years, was the National Champion in 1967 and could repeat again this year.

Today Orenthal James Simpson is the proud father of a baby girl, his first born. He has a day set aside in his honor in San Francisco. He also has a bright future.

THE PHOTO on the right depicts O. J. Simpson as a City College Ram. The action photo on the left shows O. J. in his present days at USC running over every attacker in sight.

SF Mayor Alioto Praises Simpson In Proclamation

The following is a reprint of Mayor Alioto's proclamation honoring Orenthal James Simpson, a football player from San Francisco. We know him as O. J.

WHEREAS, The Northern California Chapter of the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame will honor O. J. Simpson at its annual Scholar-Athlete Awards Dinner in San Francisco, Wednesday, December 11, 1968; and

WHEREAS, Mr. Simpson has provided outstanding leadership qualities in the field of athletics and academics in one of our finer collegiate institutions in these United States; and

WHEREAS, Mr. Simpson has gained great respect and admiration in receiving the greatest public acclaim ever offered a collegiate athlete, and has brought honor upon himself, his family, teachers, and coaches and the City of San Francisco; and

WHEREAS, Mr. Simpson, born, raised and educated in San Francisco, not only represents the excellent citizenship of the youth of America but has contributed greatly to serve, promote and influence the young athlete in this society to the benefit of this country, the City and County of San Francisco, his neighborhood and his family:

NOW THEREFORE, I, Joseph L. Alioto, Mayor of the City and County of San Francisco, do hereby proclaim Wednesday, December 11, 1968, as O. J. Simpson Day and urge San Franciscans to give fitting recognition to a young man who has contributed so much to the ideals of our community and our America. I extend my sincere greetings and congratulations to Mr. Simpson's continued success in all his endeavors.

Joseph L. Alioto
Mayor

Rams Honored—Doyle, Arice??

By Phil DiCarlo

Doyle Miller is a myth. The swift halfback with the great balance must be a figment of our imagination. The ghost who carried the pigskin 93 times, gained 604 yards in league play (a 6.5 yard average) and scored six touchdowns was completely ignored by the coaches who voted for the All-Conference teams. Not to mention Arice Pittman.

City College did manage to land seven football team members on the All-Conference teams, six on the first team. The entire left side of the Ram offensive line, center Bill McKenna, guard Monty Consani, tackle Ed Diaz and end Ralph Bayard (second team) were named to the 1968 Golden Gate Conference dream team. League rushing champion Joesiah Bell and fullback Willie Lewis were listed in the backfield.

Freshman linebacker Gerald Dyson was the only Ram defensive player selected.

RAM HEAD FOOTBALL COACH Arthur "Dutch" Elston kneels in front of his All-Conference players. The six sophomores and one freshman are: front row (l to r), Bill McKenna, Monty Consani, Ed Diaz and Ralph Bayard; back row, Gerald Dyson (fr.), Willie Lewis and Joesiah Bell.
—Photo by Glenn Graham

Glass, Nelson Take Honorable Mention

Dave Nelson and Rich Glass capped City College's perfect record 0-10 in water polo by receiving honorable mention honors in the All-Conference selections.

Nelson and Glass led the Rams in scoring this year with 17 and 13 goals apiece which constituted the major part of the team's offense as the Rams only scored 39 goals altogether.

Both Nelson and Glass along with nearly everybody else on this season's team will return next fall.

Grid Season Windup

Crushing Victory Over Laney Highpoint Of Football Year

(This is the final segment of a two-part recap of the 1968 Ram football season.)

By Phil DiCarlo

Three games remained in the 1968 football season. The Rams had a 4-2 record, 2-2 in conference play, with some tough opponents yet to play.

Merritt's explosive Thunderbirds invaded the campus on the first day of November, a gray, overcast afternoon. Four Merritt touchdowns should have been enough to win it for them, had it not been for the Ram offensive line. Ram attackers scored 41 points, gained 416 yards on the ground (with 95 more through the air) and tore the T-Birds apart while running 99 plays.

THE HIGH POINT of every coach's and player's season was the big, BIG victory against powerful Laney. Scoring in every quarter, City College won, 38-14, going away.

This was every player's best game of the year as the team was magnificent. Laney was shutout in the second half, gaining minus one yard on the ground. There were no real stand-outs in the game; all the players did their job, offensively and defensively, for the gratifying win.

The post-game locker room scene was one of sheer bedlam. Head Coach Dutch Elston was this high off the ground. Who could blame him? His team had done what no other team in the league could do, beat rugged Laney. Revenge for 1965's Prune Bowl was very sweet indeed.

SAN MATEO was the fifth straight victim, 28-15, as the Rams closed out the season. Jim Anderson, diminutive kick return specialist, dashed 56 yards with a Bulldog punt for the third Ram sixpointer. Halfback Joesiah Bell splashed for 212 yards in only 11 carries during the contest. Mud or not, the Ram offensive did it again, blasting huge holes in the flimsy San Mateo forward wall.

Bell's fantastic afternoon pushed him ahead of Laney's Leon Burns to win the league rushing title. Bell gained 696 yards in conference play —only seven games—while carrying the ball a measly 91 times. To avoid the math work, that's 7.7 yards a carry.

MILLER AND LEWIS gained over a 1000 yards between them as the team averaged 260 yards a game on the ground in the seven league games. Miller finished with a 6.5 average, Lewis with a 5.2 and speedster Jon Dyson (215 yards) a fine 5.1 mark.

Taking a look at other team statistics in conference action, we note that Lewis was the top scorer on the team this year. Fullback Lewis, a Memphis, Tennessee product, tallied 11 touchdowns (three on passes from Tom Mayfield) plus the two point conversions for 70 points or ten points a game. Miller, with six touchdowns (all on runs) and end Ralph Bayard with five (all on pass receptions) were ranked second and third in the scoring. Kicker Mark Hensley accumulated 27 points on the basis of his five field goals and 12 (out of 12 kicked) extra points.

BAYARD WAS the leading pass receiver on the club this year, snagging 20 aerials for 382 yards — a whopping 19 yards per catch. Don McGee, 12 receptions, and Lewis with 11 were behind Bayard. Mayfield completed 62 of 136 passes for 943 yards and ten scores. He had eight passes intercepted.

In team stats, City College outscored its league opponents 209-169. The Rams scored more than anybody else in the league. Champ Diablo Valley had 162 and runner-up San Jose, with state total offense leader, Dave Ellis, 199. The team garnered 2769 total yards with the defense allowing 2361. The mighty Rams stole twice as many enemy passes (16-8), made more first downs (137-118) and lost less yardage attempting to pass (22 times for 171 yards—28 for 229) than their opposition. Bill McDonough punted for a nice 36.8 yard average against other teams' 31.7 per punt. But the Rams were penalized 75 (!) times for 634 yards; their opponents only 49 times for 366.

The top three Ram interceptors, Mike Baines (5), Eddie Perkins and linebacker Gerry Dyson (3 apiece), will be returning next year. Baines also caught seven passes on offense, one for a score. Other returning pass catchers are Paul Bolton and two-way end Jim Tyree.

ANOTHER GREAT offensive line is possible next year, especially if three key players return in the fall. All-League lineman Monty Consani, Dan Parrish (All-Conference in our book) and Gerald Vanger, who missed the season due to injuries, could go on to four-year colleges. If they do go on, returning veterans Ken Despotakis, Ev Hammond, Gordon Canapa and Hilton Dillion, among others, will have to shoulder the load. Defensive linemen coming back include Carlton Thomas, Craytan Cassell, George Tinsley and Dillion.

The return of All-Conference selection Gerald Dyson, at linebacker, and the experienced Perkins, Jim Anderson and Vince Anderson at defensive backs, certainly bolsters the outlook on next season's defense. There's a different story, though, in the offensive backfield. Quarterbacks Dan Martin and Chuck Perrera return with only three runners, Ronnie Jones, Steve Jordan and little Jim McFadden. All five are terribly inexperienced.

Tight Contests Prevail As Intra Season Closes

By Charles Bouey

Intramural basketball was highlighted before and after the Thanksgiving break by surprising victors, tight games and new heroes. On the November 21 and 22 games are: The Guardsman play host to Hotel and Restuarant, outserving them 64-53; Phi Delta destroy the Ball, 56-35; the Rookies trounce Alpha Phi Epsilon, 52-40; the Black Students Association scalp the Apaches, 44-38; and the Rookies nip Alpha Kappa Rho, 39-37.

THE G'MAN—H&R game signaled the return of the Guardsman's complex offensive patterns as they were led by a healthy Mike Duggan with 22 points and John Franicevich with 14. The return of aging vet John LeTourneau, after a long bout with mononucleosis, greatly helped The Guardsman cause as he tanked ten points. Strong and timely contributions were made by Andy Kennedy, Tom Jones and Coach Chuck Bouey, both offensively and defensively, scoring seven, six and five points respectively. The losers' high scorers were Willie White with 19 and Al Alexander with 17 points.

In the Phi Delta massacre, Phi Delta's Bill Litchenberger led all scorers with 19 points and Jeff Barker finally came through to avenge their previous week's loss to the Ball. Dave Kline paced the Rookies in their two victories with 15 points against A Phi E and 12 against AKP.

On December 3 there were a pair of tightly contested games. The Guardsman nipped AKP, 62-58, and BSA squeezed past A Phi E, 36-34.

BSA was led by Al Rodrigues' ten points in handing Alpha Phi Epsilon their second straight loss. Willie Brem's nine points and Ron Stewart's eight were not enough to pull the contest in Epsilon's direction.

THE GUARDSMAN'S second consecutive offensive explosion has reinstated them as a contender. Kennedy and Duggan's clutch passing and shooting netted them 21 and 17 points respectively. Franicevich, despite choking a couple of clutch lay-ups, had 11 points and kept The Guardsman's defense moving as he and Coach Bouey, who contributed four points to the effort, stymied hard hitting AKP's fast break. Jones became The Guardsman's big man on the boards, tanking seven points and plucking off numerous rebounds. First semester man Paul Bouey provided The Guardsman with a much needed offensive and defensive spark-plug, scoring two points and made many assists and steals. SKP gave the game a well-balanced scoring attack as Tom Smith, Jack O'Malley and Jim Range finished the evening with 16, 14 and 13 points respectively.

League play ends tomorrow evening with three thrillers. Phi Delta battles the Rookies at 7 p.m. in the Men's Gym; Alpha Sigma Delta and the unpredictable Guardsman trade blows at 8 p.m. in the Men's Gym; and league-leading A Phi E fights for its life against the fast rising AKP at 7 p.m. in the Women's Gym.

Cagers Open With Split

Basketball season is underway again. Ram cagers started their 28 game schedule with back to back contests on the week-end of November 29 and 30.

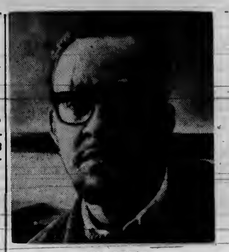
On Friday evening of the Thanksgiving vacation, the hoopsters journeyed to Contra Costa. Displaying first game jitters, the Rams fell 68-57. Newcomer Keith Miles was high man for the Rams with 14 points.

The trip back from Palo Alto Saturday night was much more pleasant. The Rams put a fine team effort together to whip the Stanford Frosh 70-61. Jacob Augustus Hill tallied 16 points to pace the evenly divided Ram scoring column.

Baseball Signups Now

All Students interested in trying out for the Frosh and Varsity Baseball teams should consult Coach Ernie Domecus before the Christmas vacation. Tryouts will be conducted in January.

AS Elections Slated For Tomorrow



AL WONG
—Guardsman photo by Jim Pope

The Guardsman

Official Weekly Publication of the Students in the Journalism Department of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 67 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—MONDAY, JANUARY 6, 1969 NUMBER 13

DON ORTIZ
—Guardsman photo by Jim Pope

RAM Party Supports Progressive Changes

By Raymond Gin

The Revolutionary Activists Movement (RAM) Party is an interracial party consisting of members from the Black Students Union, Chinese Voice Party, Intercollegiate Students for Social Action, and Students for a Democratic Society.

RAM is comprised of concerned students who support progressive changes on campus. The RAM's platform is one of unity and service and where all the party's resources will be employed to insure student's rights and academic opportunities to their fullest potential. RAM is indorsed by Chinatown's Leway, Inc. With these goals in mind RAM will:

a. Support the Experimental College.
b. Support the Free Critic and Han.
c. Re-evaluate the role of Campus Police.
d. Demand a student voice and vote in the hiring and firing of faculty members.
e. Create a Free Speech Platform.
f. Create a Student Union.
g. Fight for Afro-American, Latin-American and Chinese-American Programs.
h. Fight for credit/no credit status for all remedial courses.
i. Get more interesting speakers and groups on campus.
j. Investigate the AS Bookstore (some of the financial reports have been inconsistent).
k. Expansion off and on campus tutorial programs.
l. Get more Black, Chinese and Latin teachers.
m. Create a Draft Counseling Center.
n. Form a Free Bulletin Board (no administrative control).

'Positive Change' On Alliance's Platform

The Alliance Party, composed of students of diversified segments of the college community, is a party that strives for positive and progressive change.

The party came into being because concerned students wanted a Student Council to be run by students for students. It proposes to implement better understanding and communication among students themselves and between students, faculty, and administration.

The Alliance Student Council, if elected, will be goal oriented and progressive. The party pledges to achieve:

a. Establishment of a Department of Ethnic Studies.
b. Additional funds to augment financial assistance and Student Enterprises.
c. Further expansion of the Tutorial Program and the Experimental College.
d. Support for all athletic programs and will seek supplementary funds so as to improve and expand programs.
e. Expand teacher and course evaluaton to include all instructors and courses.
f. Redefinition of the role of Campus Police in the lives of the students of this college.
g. The establishment of a bulletin board, free of administrative control, where students can advertise and post notices without hindrance.
h. Establishment of a draft counseling center to advise students in matters concerning the selective service.
i. The demand of our rights as enumerated in the Student Bill of Rights.
j. An active and equal participation on a voting basis in the replacement of Dean of Women, Mary Golding.

RAM's Al Wong Presidential Pick

Albert R. Wong, presently a member of Student Council and RAM's candidate for Associated Students president, seeks change in proposing a Student Union that is able to negotiate with the administration on an equal status.

Wong feels that the administrative control of choosing teachers and counselors creates an unnecessary alienation between the students and the instructors, especially the foreign scholars who are unable to relate to these occidentals.

"The students should have the voice and vote on what teachers and counselors they want," he believes.

WONG EXPRESSED concern over the financial aspects of both the AS Bookstore and the campus cafeteria. He says there is a need in hiring a certified public accountant to look into the Bookstore's financial books because he feels the students are unnecessarily overcharged for academic supplies and the collected money is put away, unexplained.

To combat this, Wong recommends the hiring of a lawyer to sue the administration for withholding funds. Examples of withheld funds cited by Wong were the $50,000 reserve Bookstore fund and the $12,000 student injury insurance fund.

If elected, Wong will fight for the complete student ownership of the AS Bookstore. He feels that the student should receive a certain percentage of the profit from the cafeteria although it has claims of being a non-profit organization.

In addition, "The foreign meals are served so badly, that it is an insult to all the ethnic groups."

Wong also recommends "boycotting the cafeteria so that the cafeteria can then be called a non-profit business."

HE ENDORSES the Third World Student's implementation of a "College Preparedness Program" where a non-white can receive credit towards a BA degree for taking any remedial courses. This would "offset the minorities handicap somewhat."

He also pledged to work actively and progressively for Third World tutors and a Draft Information Center that "would inform students that they don't have to die in Vietnam for a racist society."

RAM has come out directly in support of the Black Students Union and the Third World Liberation Party's strike at the college in sympathy with the turmoil at SF State.—R. G.

Three Offices Unopposed

Rodney Fung (Ind.) candidate for Soph President (left). Maurice Parker (All.) candidate for Soph President not pictured. Rosa Perez (center) unopposed candidate for AS Vice President. At right, unopposed candidate for AWS President, Hattie Knox

Photos by Ray Gin

RAM, Alliance Parties Rise As Old Ones Die

By Raymond Gin

With the sudden demise of last semester's two reigning campus political parties, USA and Coalition, two new political parties, RAM and Alliance have arisen in their place.

Donald Ortiz of the Alliance Party and Albert R. Wong of the RAM Party are both vieing for the office of AS President. Both candidates are pledging progressive change.

In the election to be held tomorrow and Wednesday, three precincts have been established. The first floor of the Science Building, the main floor of the cafeteria in Smith Hall and the ground floor of the Men's Gym will be used as the election centers. Two tabulating, voting machines will be at each precinct. The hours will be from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

ROSA PEREZ of the Alliance Party meets no competition in her bid for AS Vice President. RAM's candidate, Anna Lee dropped from the race earlier due to her tight time schedule that would not allow her to devote full time efforts to the office.

Hattie Knox, also of the Alliance Party, is making her bid for AWS President with no opponent. In the race for the office of Sophomore President, Freshman President Maurice Parker of the Alliance Party is opposing Student Councilman Rodney Fung, who is running independent. Marco Ortiz makes a bid for Freshman President on the Alliance ticket uncontested.

The Alliance Party has submitted seven candidates for the Sophomore Council. They are Edward Glazer, Joi Greig, Lorrie Loy, Janice Lum, Carlos MacLean, William Turner and Fern Way.

RAM has also submitted seven candidates for the same seats. They include Van Dickerson, R. A. Gaerlan (Vic), Tom Gee, Jerry King, Albert Mar, A. Simmons and Kailey Wong.

Independents in the same contest include Darrell Fregia, Edward Jimison, Mike Shafer and Walter Sundberg.

FRESHMAN COUNCIL nominees from the Alliance Party reads six in number. Annette Aalborg, Nicki Leuter, Marco Ortiz, Sharon Quon, Sonia Schmidt and Ruben Valencia. RAM has offered Mike Basker, Richard Hall, Martin Poon, Robert Smith,

(Continued on Page 3, Column 5)

Hey, You, Get Out And Vote!

ELECTION FOR STUDENT OFFICES will be held tomorrow and Wednesday, and no matter what candidates and party meet your taste, The Guardsman recommends that everyone follow through and get a ballot counted.

Students who will be returning next semester have reason to be concerned with this election. The candidates chosen now will represent next semester's student body. Student government is an important facet of campus life, and in order to get a truly representative crew in the political driver's seat, everyone must vote.

"In past semesters more emphasis has been placed on promoting and publicizing the candidates involved in the election than on the importance of getting everyone to the polls. Since the statistics show that less than 10 per cent of the students visit the polls each semester, The Guardsman feels there is a need to make an appeal to the entire student body.

Your vote is needed.

Students Presented Scottish Rite Awards

The four students chosen this semester for the California Scottish Rite Foundation scholarships of $175 each were Karen Carlson-White, William Schroder, James Wong and Phillip Witkower.

The California Scottish Rite Foundation scholarships are given each semester to worthy and able students who have graduated from San Francisco public high schools. The students must show potential in obtaining a bachelor's degree.

A student chosen for the scholarship is judged according to the percentile on his entrance exams, activities in which he takes part, work experience, and high school grades.

Those interested in applying for the California Scottish Rite Foundation scholarship may obtain information from Dean Mary Golding.

Don Ortiz Heads Alliance Slate

Donald Ortiz, chairman of La Raza Unida, selected spokesman for the University of San Francisco's Minority Workshop, and presently Sophomore Councilman, is the Alliance Party's candidate for Associated Students president.

Ortiz feels he and his affiliated party is much more capable of representing the diversified interests of the student body because of the different ideologies and groups respresented by the individuals who are within the party.

There is a stress within the party to think and voice questions independently for a greater representation of students on campus without the danger of not having a voice in Student Council, said Ortiz. He definitely wants to avoid a party that is caught in "tunnel vision," where a party is composed of people who think the same way. "More constructive and less tearing down is achieved by having different views aired," Ortiz feels.

ORTIZ rejected violence in achieving goals by saying, "We will have to work with the administration. We must sit down and talk with them. Communication is definitely an important factor here."

He expressed a need for an effective and meaningful student government where students can participate on an equal voting basis on all affairs that pertain to the college community. Ortiz also supports the Tutorial Program, the Experimental College, Student Placement and Financial Aid in the student interest.

Ortiz also said, "Students should be aware of their rights in the Student Bill of Rights, co-ordinated by fellow party member and Council candidate Ed Glazer."

"There is a definite need for a change in the budget hearing procedure," he said. The present procedure involves a budget request submitted to treasurer, Derrick Quan, his compilation of these requests, and a limited-time review by the Council members of these requests.

ORTIZ STRESSED THAT Council members need more time to give a closer examination and to review in depth the finances that do affect the students.

Ortiz believes in the creation and development of an Ethnic Studies Department because of a need to understand the different segments of the entire college community. As a member of a minority group, Ortiz feels he is an able spokesman for the problems of the minorities on campus.

—R. G.

Contino Speaks Here

In the last presentation of the 1968 Concert and Lecture Series, Victor Hugo Contino, noted European photographer and cinematographer, presented a program entitled "The Eye of Excitement."

Contino's presentation focused upon the idea that a photograph is the presentation of an image not only as it actually appears, but as the photographer sees it through the lens of his camera. It is this image, coupled with the imagination of the photographer in his treatment of that image that goes into the make-up of a photo.

To Contino, the most important factor in this link between the photographer and his public is the honesty of the artist in his presentation. It is not enough that he simply shows what was in front of his lens at the moment the shutter clicked, but what he felt and his subjects felt.

The Guardsman Editorial Page
Official Weekly Publication of the Students in the Journalism Department of City College of San Francisco
MIKE DUGGAN, Editor
ACP Associated Collegiate Press
Vol. 67, No. 13 MONDAY, JANUARY 6, 1969 Page 2

Our Stand On Elections

WHEN ONE PARTY has a monopoly of council seats in student Government, there is always the tendency, as manifested in the past, to band together and act as a single body rather than as free-thinking individuals.

Therefore, The Guardsman does not support either of the parties.

An example of poor legislation passed by a one-party-dominated council is the recent move made by our council to allocate an overdose of funds to the Free Critic for next semester's budget.

This allocation ($4278) is $1282 more than this semester's budget which was sufficient for publication maintenance. This obviously was a ridiculous example of party block voting since it left other organizations with insufficient funds to operate comfortably.

Taking all precautions to prevent a one-sided council for next semester, The Guardsman strongly encourages all students to vote for the four independent candidates running for Soph Council and the five independents running for Frosh Council. Hopefully, they will think independently.

The two presidential hopefuls, Al R. Wong (RAM) and Don Ortiz (Alliance) leave much to be desired.

Both of their platforms (see page one) are merely outlines and the specific plans for action are not included. Also, judging from the known facts, we feel that neither candidate represents the entire student body but a minority.

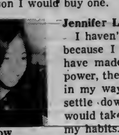
We regret that a truly representative aspirant did not petition for the AS Presidency. After all, there are 10,000 students here—and all need to be represented.

However, one of the two candidates will inevitably be the winner once the votes are tabulated. Since we are concerned with the future of City College, we feel that Don Ortiz is the students' better choice.

Contact Lens

What Resolutions Have You Made For The New Year?

HARVEY



Emily L. Harvey, Science Major

My resolution is not to worry or study so much. I used to find that when I was going to have an exam I began to worry, but now I just relax and let my subconscious retain the material I've read; too often people try to memorize everything when the subconscious could do the work. I've also decided to carry fewer units next semester and concentrate on just a few courses. I'm interested in an education —not just getting through school.

FERRYMAN

Lynn Perryman, Radiologic Technology Major

My resolution is for my wife not to have any more kids. We just had twins about a month ago, and if I have any more, it will be a biologic phenomenon. Another resolution I'd like to make is not to participate in any student riots here; I doubt if there will be any though. I'm also planning to continue my boycott on AS cards. Why? I can't afford one. I park my motorcycle off campus and parking is the only reason I would buy one.

LOW

Jennifer Low, Office Training Major

I haven't made any resolutions for the new year because I always break them. In previous years, I have made resolutions, but because I had no will power, they were always broken. I guess I'm too set in my ways to change. I have made resolutions to settle down and study, but I've broken them. It would take me more than just a resolution to change my habits. Anyway, I always forget about them.

JONAS

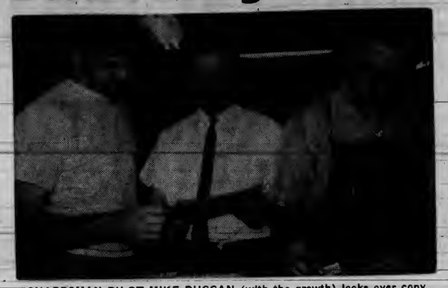
Tom Jonas, English Major

I've decided to give up marijuana for a week. But my major resolution is I'm going to try to convert people to my way of thinking because there is a social revolution going on, and it's my job to help it move. I would also like to try to better the teaching standards here at City Cllege. Most instructors feel that students can't think when in reality students sometimes think more than the instructor.

MELVIN

Stefanie Melvin, Letters and Science Major

I don't make New Year's resolutions any more because they're hard to keep. Last year I made a resolution not to make any more resolutions; and it will probably be the only one I'll ever keep. I used to make some ultra-impossible resolutions (like promising myself that I'd come home after class and study) just so I could break them. I only did it before because everyone else was doing it. Well anyway, here's to a smashing New Year!



LEE

Jack Lee, German Major

As a New Year's resolution, I would hope for an end to the war and conscription. I would like to see the demands of the Third World Liberation Front and Black students met. I would like to be a more concerned student and take more of an active interest in what's going on. I would like to re-educate the age group of 30 to 60 and remind them that they were exactly like us when they were young people.

—Compiled by L. L. & D. M., photos by Jim Pope

Before Going To Press

GUARDSMAN PILOT MIKE DUGGAN (with the growth) looks over copy with printer Len Thoelecke (center) and sidekick Carl.
—Guardsman photo by Harm Fanfelle.

Guardsman Staff, Typesetter, Take Pride In Job Well Done

Exceptional service and cooperation coupled with quality has been the key in printing The Guardsman over a 20-year span. Len Thoelecke has been associated with the newspaper business since his high school days. This experience, and that of his associates, has proved invaluable in the appearance of the newspaper and helped considerably in gaining the many awards and honors bestowed upon The Guardsman over the years.

"I really enjoy working with the student editors and hope the relationship is mutual . . . and, too, without the new ideas they bring, I'd probably get kind of stale," says Len.

The service given is not readily discernible. Slight changes made here and there in the makeup of the papers, in the heads, and in setting the news matter eliminate expense and delay in the complicated process of "getting out" an issue of The Guardsman. None of these changes are made, however, without consulting the editor for his okay.

As for quality, "... we try our best to give you quality. For instance, the four-page Guardsman has as much news matter as an eight-page paper published by another college. It's like a housewife buying a box of cereal at the grocer's. She might "save" in purchasing the biggest box but when she opens the package it's far from full," added Thoelecke.

Len, speaking from his location at 140 Second Street, between Mission and Market, stated, "Working on newspapers since my high school days gave me the feeling of what students expected in their newspapers. Mechanically, I've always tried to keep The Guardsman on a college level and not let it drop to the high school level, like some college publications do. We have available all the methods of printing a newspaper and, of course, use the one best suited to The Guardsman. I believe we take as much pride in each issue as the editors and staff."

The Guardsman staff appreciates Len's and his sidekick, Carl's valuable service. It makes our work that much less hectic.

Dolson's Survey To End Dropouts?

Second-year students here average two hours of study per day according to the Dolson Survey, a questionnaire taken a short time ago by Dr. Lee Dolson in the college's physical education classes.

The questionnaire was taken by 6000 second-year students and 1000 dropouts, and its purpose was to view the complaints dropouts and students had about the college in order to help make improvements.

The Academic Senate encouraged Dolson to give the questionnaire since the present dropout rate, 1000 per year, needs some investigation.

Most of the answers in Dolson's questionnaire proved to be more interesting than the questions. For example, most of the second-year students expressed a high rate of idealism and said it was more important to help other people than to become rich.

Less than six per cent of these students prefer large classes of over 35 students.

According to Dr. Dolson, his study won't be completed fully for another six months. More questions and an additional sampling of students must be interviewed in order to make the conclusions reliable, he said.

'Faces'—An Improvised Film Epic

By Raymond Gin

John Cassavetes, the actor-director who founded the "American New Wave" ten years ago with his first film "Shadows," has returned with "Faces," a social epic of gigantic proportions.

Cassavetes introduced the idea of improvised film, where the actors decide the action from a plot outline and the camera is merely a mirror of the improvisations. The obvious drawbaek is that such a plan can test the viewer's patience. But if it is successful, as "Faces" is, improvised film can be highly rewarding.

"Faces" was conceived in 1963 when Cassavetes was involved in creating a new type of film narrative that took a close look at the lives of a group of Los Angeles night people. It was shot entirely in 16mm and with little-known professional actors. The actors donated their time and met periodically for three years to edit the film.

THE FILM FOCUSED on a day in the life of a bored businessman who takes the services of a "heart-of-gold" call-girl and his frustrated wife who seeks diversion with a young hustler. "Faces," with its savage and abrasive language, has made a lacerating statement on American middle-class morality. These "faces" are scarred with horrifying banality.

The photographic technique gives the film a look of a newsreel. The boudoir becomes the landmark and the camera becomes the historian. The lens is always microscopically upclose to catch that hap-chance grin, tear and maneuver that exposes the sadness of these people's plight.

The acting becomes demanding because improvising requires no script and the actors must be ready to counteract the unexpected lines thrown at them. The performers are put into a battleground of words where the best "mind" wins. Gena Rowlands, John Marley, Lynn Carlin and Seymour Cassel are all notable for their skill in engaging each other in the pulsating emotional wars.

WHILE THE FILM IS most engaging, it is sometimes dull.

"Faces" becomes so "true-to-life," that a foreigner may feel he is watching an American educational exchange film on the American way of life. The film becomes a monumental display of the inter-relations of life and art. It can hardly fail to shatter the senses.

Thomas P. Smith, 20, a student here and a member of the Alpha Kappa Rho fraternity, was killed December 11 when he was struck by an automobile. He was the son of the late SFFD Captain Charles Smith. He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Barbara Smith, and five brothers.

SHOOTIN' IT

by Doug Boston

NINETEEN SIXTY-EIGHT is gone and won't return. The problem is that nineteen sixty-nine is right behind it.

1968 was a pretty funky year. Every year has its great moments and its tragic ones. Last year was no exception. The scars left by the assassination of both Martin Luther King and Robert F. Kennedy will take a long time healing. So perhaps will the fact that George Wallace was able to get so many votes. Not great in relation to Nixon and Humphrey, but the amount proved how many Americans were disillusioned.

What else happened in '68: We lost Lyndon Johnson and gained Richard Nixon. Results of that trade aren't apparent yet. Alan Cranston defeated Max Rafferty, proving that some Californians still think.

There was the Olympics with the Black athletes protest. And the war dragged on. Both home and abroad. There was massive draft protest and refusal. Canada became a favorite spot for American soldiers.

1968 saw the Green Bay Packers lose the football championship for the first time in three years. The Detroit Tigers came back to beat the Cardinals in the World Series. The Trojans of USC went to the Rose Bowl for the second straight year. O. J. Simpson's name filled column inch after column inch of newspaper space across the country.

This new year will bring its share of great achievements and unwarranted tragedy. Let's hope for a majority of good things. They're out there somewhere.

• • •

OUT TO PASTURE. As does everything eventually, The Guardsman will undergo drastic changes next semester. For this writer, it is sad to see a good newspaper and a pleasant-to-be-on format bite the dust. Apparently, the change will improve the time element involved and make it possible for the paper to carry more up-to-date news. It will also provide room for more stories. To Tom Graham, the current feature editor who is recovering from mono, and Barbara Hamann (who had nothing to do with it) we would like to wish them success next semester. It should be a busy one.

• • •

45 SHOTS. If you thought that the bearded guy who came down your chimmney looked a little unfamiliar, you were probably right. Rumor has it that George Plimpton was up to his tricks again. This time he went too far.

If any moviegoers have the chance, try and catch Clint Eastwood's latest endeavor, "Coogans Bluff." Eastwood plays an Arizona deputy sheriff who is caught in the perils of New York City. The motorcycle chase in the flick is a lesser but effective parallel to Steve McQueens trip in "Bullitt," which also is a good bet.

This writer suggests "Rabbit, Run" by John Updike as the book to read if you haven't already. Updike's a down-to-earth writer who hits hard. You've heard it before, but this one's difficult to put down once you get rolling. The book traces his relationship with his wife and with a friendly prostitute named Ruth. Better than "Catcher in the Rye."

• • •

FAREWELL TO ARMS. I was just standing there with a rifle in my hands. There were some targets out there which we suppose we should have aimed at. But we didn't care. Targets can often fool you. So we were just standing there with this rifle in our hands. But the aim was unimportant. We putted back the trigger of the rifle and just started SHOOTIN' IT. And we enjoyed it. Then we dropped that rifle and ran like hell. Later.

Guardsman Staff — Fall 1968

EDITOR IN CHIEF ..... MIKE DUGGAN
Managing Editor ..... Doug Bonton
Feature Editor ..... Tom Graham
Staff Editor ..... Boku Kodama
News Editor ..... Barbara Hamann
Sports Editor ..... Dave Albertson
Editorial Assistants: Marlin J. Arbunich, Lani Brand, Rita Carroll, Lavina Lee, Lynda Sandstrom.
Reporters: Floyd Banks, Pat Chan, Phil DiCarlo, Randy Flynn, Dan McCarthy, Florence McCarthy, James Pope, Len Ribeiro, Jack Ruiz, Sonia Schmidt, Ray Gin.
Cub Reporters: Dan Angelo, Dan Castro, Lynette Cooklin, Jeff Delseuse, Garry Engler, Dan Marinas, Diana Matson, Elizabeth Ramos, Greg Stueve, Kenneth Surface, Barbara Tyrrell, Val Vallejo, T. Y. Wong.
Photographers: Marilyn Astalouh, Chief; Bert Flowers, Glenn Graham, Steven La Piant, Jerry Mishler, Detlef Osburg, Jens Protze, Roberto Guillen, Kevin Shea, Ulmer T. McKnight, Gavin Watt, Calvin Wong, Russell Wong, Sam Woo.
Advisor: Mary Blair.

DISPATCH

by Boku Kodama

ON APRIL 18, 1906, early in the morning, the ground shook, and the San Andreas fault shifted as much as fifteen and a half feet along it's 200-odd miles. An earthquake resulted in San Francisco, killing 452 persons and causing about five hundred million dollars damage.

The shaking of the ground lasted about a minute, and then fires broke out. Water mains were destroyed, letting the fires run their paths.

This earthquake was neither the first nor the last to occur as the result of movement along the Pacific Coast faults: major quakes shook California in 1857, 1922 and 1940, and others can be expected from time to time before the rearrangement of the earth in this restless region is complete.

• • •

MANY PEOPLE BELIEVE that 1969 will be the most likely year that an earthquake will hit San Francisco.

No doubt that an earthquake will bring about the biggest change in this city since the beginning of World War II. The hardest struck by the tremor will be the majority of people; in other words, the middle-class.

Sections of the Richmond, Sunset, Parkside and Ingleside Districts, plus Daly City will be wiped out.

Middle-class families who had all their money invested in their homes will be financially ruined.

The downtown area which maintains that their skyscrapers are earthquake-proof might find that they are wrong. If these buildings are destroyed, many people will be out of business and out of work.

The old buildings in the Mission District and the area around it will have fallen into the streets.

An estimate of the loss of lives cannot be stated since it depends on how the people behave and how well the buildings react to the quake. But perhaps several billion dollars damage will occur.

How will the average, the majority, the middle-class people act when they find all their possessions have vanished?

If fires again rage in the aftermath, will the majority of people volunteer to help control the blaze or will they flee with whatever possessions they have left?

For the average person, his style of living is set and unchangable, but after the disaster, will he be able to work smoothly to reconstruct San Francisco with the poor man, who has lost everything but which was not much or with the rich man, whose money is invested in other parts of the United States and has lost nothing but his comfort?

A poor man may best be able to adjust to life and make the best of what he's got and what he is given. On the other hand, the rich man will be able to buy comfort. Most likely, the middle-class man will feel cheated when the relief supplies are handed out.

The average man will condemn the poor man, saying more benefits were given to the latter when they actually weren't. He will perhaps form a vigilance committee to get the rich man's money. Soon the situation may look like a survival for life in the jungle.

• • •

RIOTS and conflicts with police and national guards will take place with the middle-class man leading the way. His reason? None other than to try and make living conditions as close as possible to what it once was by using force.

Possibly, some radical middle-class group will go so far as to state that only white people should be given relief supplies. This type of feeling was evident in some parts of the country during the depression in the 1930's.

The average man may protest and riot against the educational institution, saying that all money should be used to reconstruct the city, not the schools. Nevertheless, schools will, for a while, have to close down, but protest against its opening will longer delay the schools' openings.

City College, for one, will also stop functioning for a longer time than first expected. The middle-class man has now put the male students in a 1-A catagory at their draft board.

So now the shoe is on the other foot. The middle-class man is doing something they once preached against —protest, but then how will the young people act?

SF State Unrest Topic Of TV-Radio Panel Discussion

In light of news coverage afforded by the television, radio, and newspaper media during the student rebellion at San Francisco State College, the TV-Radio Department held a video-tape discussion in A-145 in the Arts Building recently.

The TV-Radio Department invited Mark Leff, news rewriteman for Channel 44 and Richard Riley, producer of KRON's six o'clock news program to appear with Mary Blair, adviser for The Guardsman in a panel-audience discussion concerning the technical and reporting aspects of television journalism. Both men play key roles in news broadcasting.

A majority of the discussion time was spent in a question-answer session between the panelists and the audience. Both men were asked what determined the presentation of news. Both agreed that "important news" is broadcasted first and given more time in coverage. When a day is "bland" in the newsroom—when no earth-shaking events happen, both channels turn to the human interest or feature story.

One student raised the question of TV cameramen not showing both sides of the picture in a controversy —specifically during the unrest at State. Both men were hesitant in giving a direct answer to the question but did imply that value judgement cannot be completely left out in some of the news coverage on film.

On the subject of quoting an individual, Leff commented, "If he doesn't want to be quoted, don't quote him—but there are ways to get around this."

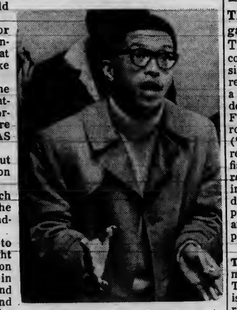
Leff formerly attended City College, from '62 to '63 before working for the television department at Ohio State University. He later worked briefly for NBC during the 1964 Republican Convention in San Francisco, and presently is one of two news writers for Channel 44 news in San Francisco.

Concerning the veracity of news broadcasted on the air, Leff said, "It's up to us to verify the obvious deletions by contacting the reporter or going straight to the news source."

Hill Takes Sudden Leave; Brown New AS President

Associated Student President Derrick Hill's sudden decision to take a leave of absence shortly before the Christmas vacation, placed former AS Vice President Shirley Brown in the office of president.

Since there is only a short time left before the end of the semester, Miss Brown has no current plans for student activities or the appointment of a successor to her old office.



At the present time, Hill's plans for the future are unknown. He was involved in the sympathy movement at this college in support of the strike at San Francisco State.

Hill was formerly the leader of the Coalition Party, which ran on a platform of equal job and housing opportunities for all people, obtaining more minority instructors, and "putting AS funds into better funds."

With the highest election turnout in three years, Hill and Coalition completely swept the election.

One of the major programs which Hill passed this semester was the Tutorial Program, now with headquarters in the old bookstore.

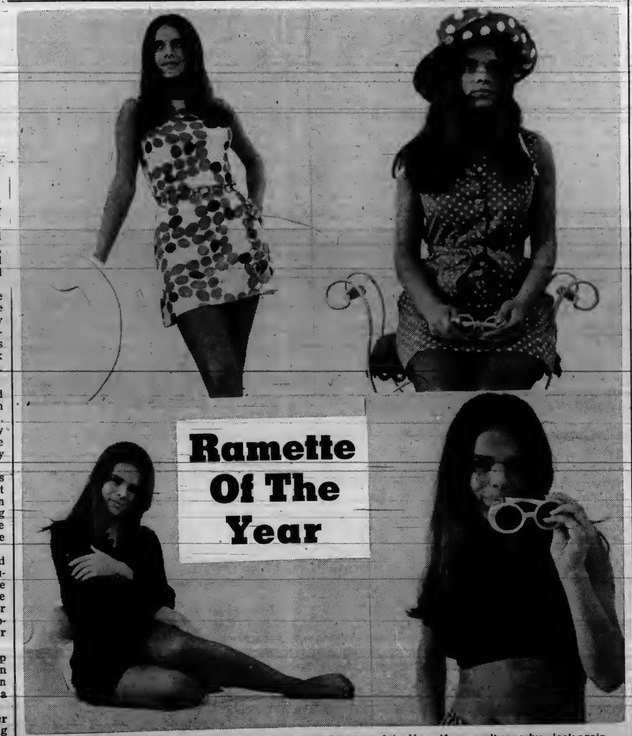
There was some speculation as to Hill's sudden leave. Some thought perhaps the decision was in relation to his involvement in the episode in the college cafeteria, where Hill and several blacks upset a few tables and chairs in showing their support for the State strike.

DERRICK HILL—Drops out.
—Guardsman photo by Samuel Woo

Race Union Formed

A group of concerned City College students have formed the Union of All Races organization with a goal to strive for the promotion of unity and understanding among students and faculty of all races on campus, according to Joel Panzer, spokesman.

The spark that led to the forming of this group was a letter written by sociology student John Hensley to Eugene Mead, sociology instructor. In his letter Hensley suggested that Mead, "immediately organize an intergrated students' union with an open invitation to all races."



He further stated, "The primary function of this union would be the open promulgation of integrated brotherhood and cultural exchanges."

During the initial Union of All Races meeting, the group, led by Panzer, discussed the goals they will aim for. The primary goal is for City College to act an example by providing an opportunity for all races to associate and communicate with one another in a non-alien atmosphere.

"We want all people here to join no matter what present organization they belong to," said Panzer. He emphasized that by joining, individuals would not lose their identity.

The next meeting will be held Thursday during College Hour in S-346, and all interested students and faculty are urged to attend.—B. H.

Ramette Of The Year

FLORINE GALLEGOS has unanimously been elected Ramette of the Year. If you can't see why—look again.
—Guardsman photos by Samuel Woo

Labelled And Recorded

Appraisals Of New Rock LPs

by Martin J. Arbunich

Dedication: to Tina and Michelle who've been burgin' the hell out of me!

FOR WHAT IT'S WORTH:

THE ROLLING STONES—Beggar's Banquet (London - 4152): This is the Stones' greatest accomplishment and their most impressive piece since "Aftermath." It's the return to rugged rock and roll with a more emphatic lyrical/instrumental delivery than ever before. "Street Fighting Man" is S.F. State (etc.) rolled into three minutes of dynamite ("Think the time is right to fight this revolution"). It's power, clenched fists, flying rocks—and is frighteningly realistic. The Stones hold back nothing. They represent the unrest of today's youth, and in this LP they express themselves honestly, explicitly and vehemently. This shouldn't be passed by.

DEEP PURPLE—The Book of Taliesyn (Tetragrammaton-107): The music of Deep Purple has problems. The potential tightness of the band is lost in their lax, spread-out arrangements (in "River Deep, Mountain High" and "We Can Work It Out" for instance) which are overly dramatized and weakly support a central theme. "Hard Road," an instrumental original and the best number on the record, shows what they really can do when they grasp a theme. This can not be called a good album, at least not on today's market. D.P. is a good band, though, and they'd produce some good music as well if they'd tighten up and stop slopping the syrup on everything.

LEE MICHAELS—Recital (A&M-4152): This record really surprised us. Lee Michaels has come a long way since his last LP, and this record can really knock you out if your taste leans towards the dynamics of rock. Michaels' keyboard exhibition (as on "Basic Knowledge") is masterful and the drumming is like thunder. The engineering job was well done and the instruments and vocals come through clearly. This album suffers very little—maybe only in the lack of variety in the arrangements. It is a solid and tough rock and roll performed quite competently.

HARVEY MANDEL—Cristo Redentor (Philips-600-281): Mandel, the guitarist, is not a super star on this album as the title might suggest. He is merely one of many members of an "everyone's welcome" studio orchestra who contributed to this record, and his performance doesn't compare to his earlier work with Charlie Musslewhite's band. This LP comes on like a hodge-podge. The lineup of musicians is impressive but, except for a few instances, their instrumentation is spiritless, largely due to the many dull, tedious arrangements which were sloppily assembled. "Cristo Redentor" (Musslewhite's version is better) and "Wade in the Water," two well-executed versions of old numbers, save this album from the fires. Mandel's really better off with the "real" blues, not this jumbled counterpart, and the sales on this record should convince him of that.

RICHIE HAVENS—Richard P. Havens, 1983 (Verve-3047-2): Another good Havens' record, a little thin on original numbers, but his renditions of four Beatle songs were well done. "Strawberry Fields" is more natural than the original and his live humming (no singing) on "A Little Help From My Friends" is a type of thing only Havens can pull off with success.

RA Banquet Thursday

Recreation Association is holding a banquet Thursday at 6 p.m. Reservations at $1.50 can be made by contacting Phyllis Vasquez in the Womens Gym. All students in RA are welcome to attend the banquet.

RAM, Alliance Slates

(Continued from Page 1)

John Starlong, Willy Williams, and Becky Woo for the same race. Independent in the opposition are James Anderson, Albert Cabellon, James Cronander, Hilton Dillon and Philip Van Dyke.

Also notable is the newly revised Constitution that is included on the ballot for student approval. The proper parliamentary procedures in proposing this Constitution were not followed last December and this was the reason for the election delay.

Ram Cagers Finish Preseason, 10-4

Second Place At Modesto Highlights Practice Slate

By Mike Duggan

The City College Ram cagers wound up the 1968 preseason cage play with a mark of 10-4, highlighted by a second place finish in the tough Modesto Tournament and a third place finish in the Stockton Tourney.

STOCKTON TOURNEY

CCSF 86, CHAFFEY 68

With center Jesse Arterberry hitting 22 points, the Ram cagers put on the second half blitz to capture third place in the Stockton Tourney by beating Chaffey, 86-68. Host San Joaquin Delta won the tournament championship by nipping Sacramento, 76-72, to cap the three-day affair held December 26-28 in Delta's gym.

The Rams trailed at the half, 37-36, but with Arterberry and his teammates controlling both boards, they pulled away steadily in the second half. Guard Telvis Jones backed Arterberry with 18 points while Gus Hill hit for 15 and Darrell Fregia added 10 to bolster the winners' scoring attack.

CCSF 62, SACRAMENTO 61

The second round of the tournament proved the downfall for the Rams as Sacramento City College held on to win, 64-62. The Rams had four chances to tie the score in the final seconds, but failed. Telvis Jones, playing another fine game, hit for 23 to pace the losers' attack. Gus Hill had 13, Darrell Fregia 12, and Jesse Arterberry 10 to aid the Rams cause.

CCSF 81, WEST VALLEY 68

Sid Phelan's Rams opened in the Stockton Tourney with an easy, 81-68, win over West Valley, as five Rams hit double figures. The game was close for a half, standing 36-36 at intermission, before the Rams pulled away for the win. Gus Hill had 18 to pace the winners' scoring, with Telvis Jones adding 16, Darrell Fregia 13, Jesse Arterberry 11 and Tom Clyburn 10.

CCSF 60, AMERICAN RIVER 47

Tom Kuhn's 13 points paced the host Rams to a practice game win over American River, 60-47, in a game held December 23.

MODESTO TOURNAMENT

With 16 of California's finest junior college squads gathering for the four-day Modesto Tourney, December 18-21, City College finished seeond to Fresno for the championship. Two Rams, Telvis Jones and Bob Phelan, were named to the All-Tournament team.

CCSF 61, FRESNO 62

The title game of the tourney went to the Fresno Rams, 62-61, as Telvis Jones missed a free throw with 14 seconds remaining. Fresno star Yale Burke, most valuable player of the tourney, paced the champs with 20 points. City College had led, 33-31, at the half. Jones played probably his best game of the season, finishing with 27 points, and it was his long jumper that moved the Rams to within a point with less than a minute remaining. Gus Hill and Jesse Arterberry backed Jones with eight points each.

CCSF 60, SANTA ANA 51

While Fresno was edging San Mateo, 40-39, to make it into the finals, City College converted 22 free throws to five for Santa Ana to win their third straight tourney game, 60-51.

The balanced Ram attack was headed by Keith Miles, with 17 points, while Bob Phelan and Telvis Jones had 12 apiece, Tom Clyburn added 10 and Gus Hill finished with eight.

CCSF 68, LACC 60

The second round of the tourney saw the Rams pull out to a 35-24 halftime lead over Los Angeles City College and hold on for a 68-60 win.

Again Telvis Jones led the winners with 25 points while Bob Phelan hit for 14, all in the first half. Jesse Arterberry added 12 points for the Ram cause, and Tom Kuhn chipped in with seven.

CCSF 54, BAKERSFIELD 40

Opening up the tournament at 9 o'clock in the morning, the Rams found the Bakersfield team was half asleep and coasted to a 54-40 win, despite trailing at the half, 28-26. Bob Phelan with 13 points, Telvis Jones with 12 and Darrell Fregia with 10 paced the scoring attack.

CCSF 58, SJS FROSH 43

Getting a well balanced scoring effort, the Rams coasted past the Spartan Frosh, 58-43, at the Ram gym, December 14. The Rams, who were led in scoring by Telvis Jones and Tom Kuhn with 10 apiece, pretty well iced the game by building a 30-18 halftime lead.

State's Dave Dockery led the losers with 23 digits while the winners' attack was aided by Jesse Arterberry with nine, Gus Hill with eight, Keith Miles and Bob Phelan with six each, and Tom Clyburn with five.

CCSF 69, WEST VALLEY 60

Center Jesse Arterberry's 28 points proved too much for West Valley as the Ram cagers held on to win, 69-60, in a December 7 game at Campbell High. Arterberry got scoring support from Telvis Jones, with 14, and Keith Miles with 12, while Gary Anderson and Steve Gera led the losers with 19 and 17 points respectively.

CCSF 69, HAFB 57

Sid Phelan's cagers put together their best effort in four starts by beating Hamilton Air Force Base for the first time in three years, 69-57, December 4 at the winners' gym. After leading, 31-27, at half, Telvis Jones got hot to pace a strong second half team effort. Jones, Gus Hill and Tom Kuhn had 13 points each, while Jesse Arterberry got 12 and Keith Miles added 10 to the well balanced effort.

RAM CAGERS — top row, left to right. Tom McVey, Keith Miles, Jesse Arterberry, Tom Clyburn and Bob Luke. Middle row — Phil London, Mike Duggan, Tom Kuhn, Bob Phelan, John Casey, Coach Sid Phelan. Bottom row — Coach Brad Duggan, Mike Mims, Gus Hill, Telvis Jones, Darrell Fregia and Louie Cupp. —Guardsman photo by Jens Protze

AMS Sports Night Caps End Of Fall Ram Sports Season

By Pat Chan

What is happening to athletics at City College? City College, formerly known as the terror of the Golden Gate Conference in virtually every sport, has fallen from the heights of Mount Olympus to the position of a mere mortal in conference athletics.

For years, the Ram soccer team used to win the Western Junior College Soccer title, like clockwork, season after season for 19 straight autumns. Even this tradition has been shattered.

This year, the San Mateo Bulldogs destroyed Coach Roy Diederichsen's dream of a 20th consecutive championship by finishing a half game in front of the Rams in the final standings.

In other sports, City College fielded the first water polo team in the college's history. To no one's surprise, the water poloists sank straight to the bottom of the league standings and remained there all season, finishing with a 0-10 record.

Retribution will come, though, as almost everyone will be returning for next season's salvage mission.

As in every other sport this fall, the cross country team also failed to bring home the bacon. Hampered by injuries all season, the cindermen could manage no better than third in the all-conference race. The Rams were handicapped by leg injuries to Vic Cary and Dave Powers.

Capping over the fall semester's sports calender will be AMS Sports Night to be held on Thursday night, January 9, in the men's gym. The festivities will start at 6:30 p.m. and end at 11 p.m. Highlighting the evening will be the championship intramural basketball game along with six boxing matches.

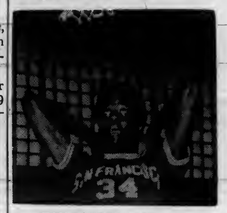
Intramural Cagers Enter Final Stage

By Charles Bouey

Intramural basketball comes to a close Thursday evening at Sports Night. Semifinals occur tomorrow at 7 p.m. and 8 p.m. in the men's gym to determine Thursday's partieipants for the finale.

In pre-Christmas cage aetion, the Apaches came up on the losing end in two close games, losing 38-34 to the Rookies and 56-55 to Alpha Phi Epsilon. The Guardsman were punctured by the Ball, 61-46. High-scorers were Klaus Hoffman (Ap.) with 11, Ed Revel (Ap.) with 21, Earl Wilson (A Phi E) with 19, John Marshall and Tim Conroy of the Ball with 17 apiece, and The Guardsman's Mike Duggan with 22 points.

The Rookies, the Ball, the Black Students Association, the Apaches, A Phi E, Phi Delta, The Guardsman, and Hotel and Restaurant all have made the playoffs whieh began last Thursday. Winners of those games play tomorrow night.



Ram Five Opens Play Tomorrow Against Chabot

By Mike Duggan

The City College Ram cagers will open its bid for their fourth straight Golden Gate Conference basketball crown tomorrow night against Chabot at 8 o'clock in the Rams' gym. Ironically, it was Chabot that the Rams beat in a playoff one year ago to win that third consecutive title.

Sid Phelan's Rams are paced by lettermen Telvis Jones and Gus Hill in addition to the return of 6-6 Jesse Arterberry (from 1961 team) at center. With help from veterans Tom Kuhn, Darrell Fregia and Tom Clyburn to go with newcomers Keith Miles, Tom McVey and Bob Phelan, the team is basically stronger and more experienced than the one that coaches Phelan and Brad Duggan sent into league play last year.

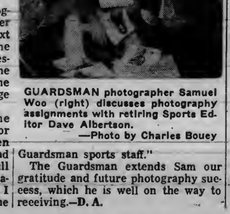
CHABOT, which lost the conference's Player of the Year Don Crenshaw via graduation, will have to come a long way to near the 12-2 mark they established last season. Also gone from that club is All-Conference guard Rich Gailbraith. The Gladiators do, however, boast a 6-5 average front line.

TOM CLYBURN—A stuff ? —Guardsman photo by Jens Protze

The Rams hit the road Friday for an encounter with rival San Mateo, with tipoff at 8 p.m. in the Bulldogs gym and then return home for a battle with Merritt next Tuesday, also beginning at 8 p.m.

San Mateo could be tough, with 6-5 letterman Mark Wilson leading the way, and Merritt has definite title possibilities with nine men returning from last year's 6-8 won-lost effort. High scoring guards Wayne Kendrieks and Tom Scott pace the T-Bird's attack.

The Rams must get off to a quick start in these three games, for league favorite Laney comes to town January 17 for the first league battle between the two powerhouses. Laney's top stars are 5-9 Sam Hill, the top scorer in the Coast Conference last year, and 6-5 forward Mike Douglas along with freshman Bernard Delaney, a 6-6, 220 pounder.



Sam Woo, Ace Sports Photographer, Leaves Behind Illustrious Career

SAMUEL WOO'S services as The Guardsman's ace photographer will be sorely missed after three semesters of valuable photography service to The Guardsman Sports staff.

Sam's outstanding sports and feature pieture shots have contributed immensely to The Guardsman's cause during his stay at City College. His carticatures have made up a big part of this semester's newspaper.

Sam plans to further his photography interests professionally after his graduation from City College next semester. He has already had some of his pictures accepted by professional publieation. In addition, he recently had one of his photos of the student unrest here at City College printed in the Examiner.

Commenting on his departure, he said, "... sure will miss working for The Guardsman. I've always taken pride in the pictures that I've had printed in The Guardsman, and will look forward to finding the cooperation in my future profession that I found while working with The Guardsman sports staff."

GUARDSMAN photographer Samuel Woo (right) discusses photography assignments with retiring Sports Editor Dave Albertson. —Photo by Charles Bouey

The Guardsman extends Sam our gratitude and future photography success, which he is well on the way to receiving.—D. A.

Brief Look At Sports Events Of Last Year

RAMBLINGS

by Phil DiCarlo

Looks Like Simpson Is Bound For Buffalo

HOPE you had a joyous holiday vacation. Happy New Year—It should be a good one for sports fans. 1968 certainly was.

Last year a Bay Area football team made it to the Super Bowl. Unfortunately it wasn't the 49ers—their fans will have to wait until another year.

New 49er coach Dick Nolan has shown San Franeiscans that their dream might become reality soon.

1968 WAS an Olympic year. February in Franee was delightful. Jean Claude Killy and American's vivacious Peggy Flemming captured the hearts of millions throughout the world with their spectaeular performances.

The summer Olympies in Mexico City brought the United States even greater glory. Outstanding individual performanees by U.S. athletes are almost too numerous to mention. Bob Beamon's fantastie record breaking long jump still seems ineredible. Al Oerter's fourth consecutive Olympic gold medal has to rank high in the annals of athletic achievement.

The Kenyans were the surprise of the summer games. Their high altitude environment certainly helped their performanee. And unlucky Jim Ryun was bothered by the altitude. One U.S. group that performed extremely well, altitude or not, was the swimming team. Led by Debbie Meyer the well balanced water babies won more medals than ever before. The basketball team kept America's string alive—never having lost a basketball game.

• • •

O. J. NEWS

It looks as if the Buffalo Bills of the AFL will get Mr. Simpson. This might not be too bad for O. J. The Bills have consistently fielded a sound defensive eleven. Injuries to key offensive players (quarterback especially) have hurt the club in recent years. The addition of O. J. and the return of those key players could quite easily put the Bills back on top in the weak Eastern Division.

In a recent survey by Sports Illustrated magazine, O. J. was acclaimed the premier runner of all times. Simpson, with all his daring exploits, has practically stolen the limelight from the rest of football. Million dollar offers, a TV series, new record-breaking feats, everybody's All-American choice and this year's Heisman Trophy winner has kept America interested all season.

1968 was a big year for controversy in the sports world. It was brand names on skiing equipment at the winter Olympies. The Tommie Smith/John Carlos protest in Mexico City. The long undecided Kentucky Derby winner. The recent suspension of six NFL officials (on that basis, all AFL referees should be suspended).

And what Giant fan could forget the decision by umpire Harry Wendelstadt during a big Dodger series this past summer.

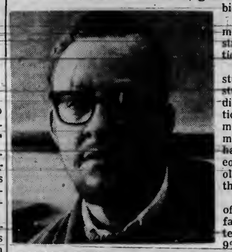
The Guardsman

Official Weekly Publication of the Students in the Journalism Department of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 67 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA — WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 15, 1969 NUMBER 14

Alliance Party's Don Ortiz Elected

Leave Of Absence By Wong Provides Uncontested Bid; Voter Turnout 9%



Alliance Party's Donald Ortiz, with a vote accumulation of 593, was elected AS President during the campus elections held last Tuesday and Wednesday.

It became a last-minute uncontested bid when RAM Party's candidate Albert R. Wong took an unexpected leave of absence. Rosa Perez, also of Alliance, gained 568 votes for her unopposed bid for the AS Vice-President offices.

DISCUSSING his election Ortiz remarked, "I wish Wong would have stayed long enough to see the election through."

Ortiz expressed confidence in the student council saying, "We can use student government to mediate any disputes between student-administration, student-faculty, or faculty-administration." He hopes that the new members of the Student Counell will have enough foresight to see the consequences of rushed through resolutions and be more deliberate in the future.

With a total studênt voter turnout of 89%, this semester's elections fall far behind the previous Fall semester's coming out of 1699 voters. This 9% turnout was a disappointment to Dean of Student Activities, Larry Lawsen's expectance of 25%.

DONALD ORTIZ, the newly elected Associated Student Body president. — photo by James Pope

Alliance's Hattie Knox won voter approval for her bid for the office of AWS President. Marco Ortiz, also of Alliance, becomes the Spring semester's new Freshman President.

STUDENT COUNCILMAN Rodney Fung, who ran independent, defeated Freshman President Maurice Parker of Alliance in the race for the office of Sophomore President. However, Parker managed to gain a seat on Sophomore Counell.

Of the seven seats available in Sophomore and Freshman Counell, RAM candidates failed to capture one vacancy. The Sophomore Counell seats were won by Darrell Fregia (Ind.), Konstantin Grab (Ind.), Edward Jimison (Ind.), Mike Shafer (Ind.), Edward Glazer (All.), Janice Lum (All.), and Mauriee Parker of Alliance.

Elected to Freshman Counell were James Anderson (Ind.), Albert Cabellon (Ind.), Hilton Dillon (Ind.), Philip Van Dyke (Ind.), Lorrie Loy (All.), Sharon Quon (All.) and a surprising tie between Sonia Schmidt (All.) and James Cronander (Ind.).

PROPOSITION A, which called for the amendment of the old Constitution, failed to gather the two-thirds majority for it's passage. The passage would have renamed Associated Students to Student Union.

More Ethnic Studies To Be Offered In Spring Semester

Seven courses are being added to the Ethnic Studies Program at City College for the Spring semester.

In addition to a beginning conversational Spanish course to be offered by the Experimental College, three new Latin-American courses will be initiated, and there will be additions to the Afro-American and Chinese Studies Programs. This will bring the total to 18 ethnic-oriented courses.

The new courses reflect the interest and the efforts of many students who pushed for them. According to Barbara Brackett, chairwoman of the Curriculum Committee of the Academic Senate, "The present Afro-American studies at City College are as extensive as they are at any community college in California."

New Latin-American courses offered include: Spanish 39B—Modern Spanish Literature; Spanish 29B—same as 39B except that eligibility for English 1A is not required, and Sociology 5—Latin-American Community Organization. Andrew Biggi will teach the literature course; Patriek Westbrook de Lujan, the community course.

Afro-American classes added: Swahili—Two sections, one at night and one during the day; Music 23—Musical Traditions of the Afro-American, and PE 88 — Primitive Dance. Renowned classical musician, Wilbert Baraneo, will teach Music 23. The Louisiana-born Baraneo is familiar with many of the jazz greats. Zack Thompson, featured in an earlier Guardsman article, is the dance class instruetor.

Chinese 2 will be offered this Spring by Instruetor Timothy Yang. Yang taught Chinese 1 this past semester.

With the expansion of these programs, it is now possible to major in ethnic study areas.

Dean Of Women Retires

Dr. Mary F. Golding announced her retirement from City College recently. The Dean of Women will, with this move, terminate an association with City College that has spanned two decades.

In a memorandum to the faculty, Dr. Golding expressed her sincere appreciation for the excellent cooperation and loyal support given her as dean of women and counselor by the members of the college during the past 20 years.

PRIOR TO joining the counselling staff here in 1949 she served as the Chairman of the English Department and Education Counsellor at the old Commerce High school in San Franeiseo. In 1953 Dr. Golding succeeded Margaret Dougherty as dean of women here.

A keen interest in educational organizations had led Dr. Golding to appointments to the executive boards of the California Association of Women Deans and Vice Prineipals and the National Association of Women Deans. She has also been affiliated with other educational organizations such as the California Teachers Association and the National Educational Association.

DR. GOLDING also serves as adviser to the Associated Women Students here and is directly responsible for the orientation, adjustment and activities of all women students. Due to her efforts the scholarship program has been largely expanded.

Her academic degrees include a B.A. and M.A. from the University of California, Berkeley and a Ph.D. from the University of Ottawa, Canada.

Dr. Golding will serve as dean of women on the University of the Seven Seas, Chapman College, Orange, California. — B. H.

Aid Programs Need Support

Applications for financial aid for the Spring Semester are now being processed.

STUDENTS desiring financial aid under the Federal Insurance Student Loan or the College Work Study Loan should see Tom Rice in the Financial Aid room, located in 549 in the Science Building. Due to lack of funds, the National Defense Student Loan will not be awarded. Aid to students previously awarded will continue as usual.

Applieations for the short term loan are processed throughout the semester.

A FUND raising drive is now being organized within the college and the community to raise funds to supplement all financial aid programs. This drive will be conducted through Student Enterprises coordinated with a public relations firm.

The drive will start with a $45-a-plate kickoff dinner with University of Southern California and the college's former football star O. J. Simpson as guest of honor. — G. E.

Campus Lineup:

• Sweetheart Ball

MAKE YOUR dreams come true girls and enter the Sweetheart Ball Queen contest before January 31. You may be the lueky one to be crowned at the War Memorial Auditorium, and receive a cash prize, red roses, and a trophy. You will only be competing against fellow students from City College.

• Experimental College

THE EXPERIMENTAL College is now forming new groups for the Spring Semester. Anyone interested in starting a group can do so by contacting the Experimental College in Bungalow Five.

• State Mediation

SHIRLEY BROWN, President of the Associated Students has been appointed, along with Dr. Conlan to the Citizens Committee Concerned with San Franciseo State. Presently the committee is studying the various faetions and problems involved in the State crisis. It has made no speeific proposels but is funetioning as a forum where the issues can be defined and discussed.

STAR Accepted As New CCSF Organization

By Ben Marinas

An organization with a goal to "promote unity and understanding among all races on campus," and to "create an energetic political oragnization that will work for constructive changes" on campus was accepted by the Counell of Organizations (COO) as a campus organization, recently.

The new organization called Students and Teachers of All Races (STAR) was accepted by aeclamation along with another new organization, Students for a Demoeratic Society (SDS), as an aetive campus organization.

JOEL PANZER, spokesman for STAR and voted by its members as temporary vice-president of the budding organization, stated that the two-fold purpose of the organization is to help in the understanding between students of different races and between students and faculty of different races.

Panzer feels that the present cultural groups on campus are alienated from each other and that there is a virtual communication barrier between the different clubs. Panzer feels that a better understanding between races can be achieved by having an organization large enough and strong enough to make constructive social and political changes on the campus that will benefit both the students, the faculty and administration.

JIM HENSLEY, the student who sparked the idea for STAR in a letter written to sociology instructor Gene Mead, stated that rather than hide the Identity Group or Cultural Group, they should be brought out into the open.

The new organization is not without problems. Still in its rudimentary stage, it is experieneing problems encountered by most newly formed organizations. One of the problems it faces is recruitment of members, though it now has on its list 54 names. The aim they are shooting for is at least 1000 members including both faculty and students. To help increase its member-ship STAR has set up a committee in charge of recruitment.

ANOTHER PROBLEM is getting a representative number from the different racial groups. Said Hensley, "We're not getting enough Orientals, Spanish and Black students to join the organization." There is also the problem of finding a permanent meeting place on campus for the new organization. Since it plans to become a very large organiztion, there is definitely the problem of space. Thus far, the organization has been meeting in room S346 each Thursday. "We hope to have aceess to the Little Theater for the Spring Semester," said Hensley. The organization is also wrestling with the problem of finance. To help STAR get started it has set up a one dollar registration fee. The organization plans to drop the fee as soon as it gets on its way.

AS TO THE structure of STAR, there will be five offiees: the senate, composed of two representatives from each identity group; the president, vice-president, secretary, and treasurer—all of whom will be chosen by the senate. Faeulty members to the organization will not hold office, but will act as mediators and advisers.

One point Hensley wanted known was this: "We're not going to oppose any oraginiation but will try to bring together those cultural differences and to strike against racial alienation."

Students interested in joining STAR may contact Gene Mead in C334C or can sign up during the Spring Semester registration period.

Student Rights Bill Approved By Senate

By Jim Pope

A revised form of the recommendations of the Academic Senate regarding student rights, or "Student Bill of Rights" as it has come to be more widely known, has been approved by the Senate and forwarded to Student Counell for approval.

ACCORDING to instructor and Senate member Richard L. Bloomer, this is but the first step in the long road toward approval and acceptance of the "Student Bill of Rights" by students, faculty, administration and the S. F. Board of Education.

Bloomer also pointed out that terming the document a "Student Bill of Rights" was misleading. He said it would be more correct to label it a statement of policy by the Academic Senate with regard to changes in the student-faculty-administration relationship.

THROUGH these proposed changes and through negotiation between students, faculty, administration and the Board of Eduеation, it is hoped that a meaningful set of student rights can be developed in a form agreeable to all concerned.

While the Senate's recommendations are slated to go before Student Council for examination, Bloomer said that it is difficult to predict exactly what course of negotiation will be taken on the issues.

STUDENT Ed Glazer, who was instrumental in the formulation of the "Student Bill of Rights," admitted that "it is a significant beginning, but is only a start.

Glazer went on to say that there are many areas in which there is room for change. He was dissatisfied with the wording of some of the points in the recommendations endorsed by the Academic Senate.

He also objected to the insertion of the phrase "except as required by law" into the recommendation concerning the student file review which states in part, "A student's records shall not be made available to any person, except as required by law, without that student's permission except to authorized staff personnel of City College of San Franeiseo."

GLAZER felt that the insertion of "except as required by law" allows for too much interpretation on the part of the administration as to what may constitute legal necessity.

In pointing out that in some cases this wording had weakened the content of the recommendations, Glazer said that he believed these points could be negotiated and if necessary, revised.

DESPITE these shortcomings, Glazer was satisfied with the basic content of the "Student Bill of Rights" in the present form. He went on to say that "student rights have been lacking on campus. This (Bill of Rights) will put into writing where a student stands in relation to the faculty and administration."

Student Welfare Re-Organization

Changes have been proposed in the organization of offiees of the Student Welfare Office effective with the opening of Spring Semester, 1969.

IN THE PRESIDENT'S letter to faculty and administration members, Ralph Hillsman, Dean of Students, will be given the aid of three assistants: A Direetor of Student Activities in existing position; an assistant dean dealing with men students primarily and a new position that has not yet been identified.

New Stanford Council Of Student Regulations

In a move similar to the recommendations made by the Academie Senate of City College of San Franeiseo for a "Student Bill of Rights," Stanford University has organized a Student Conduct Legislative Council which will play a major role in the establishment of campus diseiplinary rules and regulations.

PROFESSOR Hubert Marshall of Stanford, who headed the committee which proposed the establishment of the new committee, said, "It is no longer feasible or desirable to exclude students from particiapating in drafting the regulations under which they are to live."

What Professor Marshall termed "One of the most significant shifts in power in the history of Stanford University" took place last Monday when the newly organized Legislative Counell sat to its first meeting.

THE COUNCIL consists of five students and six faeulty members, each having one vote.

Guardsman, Critic Editors Air Views

By Dan McCarthy

In the interest of journalistic cooperation and fair mindedness we present candid, word for word interviews with the editors of the rival campus publications. Mike Duggan, editor of our own Guardsman, and Larry Lazore of the Free Critic have answered our questions as follows:

Q: What is your objective as editor?

Duggan: My objective is to put out a paper each week that expresses the work of the journalism students here and follows such rules of journalism as being objective, factual, and yet remain interesting.

Lazore: City College is a vacuum full of rhetoric and rationalization. There is a need for various avenues of expression and controversy and the Critic supplies this.

Q: What do you think is the nature of campus response to The Guardsman/Free Critic as compared with the response to your paper?

Duggan: I feel that the average student looks at The Guardsman as what it is, a newspaper. He checks out the section he enjoys. I also feel that the average student checks out the Critic to see if any nudies are there and, if so, has a good laugh and throws it away. That's what I do; there's usually no news in the Critic to read.

Lazore: I hope the average student dislikes the Critic because it isn't written for him. I would hate to be loved by mediocrity. The Critic would flop if it were liked by most students.

Q: What affect do you think your paper has on students?

Duggan: The Guardsman hasn't had any great affect on students in the five semesters I've been connected with it. After all, even the Examiner and Chronicle don't really affect anyone. No one died over the fact that there was a newspaper strike last year.

Lazore: I don't think anything has any affect on the students. Students who are alienated find the Critic a friend and those who are conformists find it shallow and vulgar. It's important to me that the right people get irritated and the right people like the Critic.

Q: If you could take over the Guardsman/Free Critic what changes would you make in it?

Duggan: I'd never waste my time being editor of a college newspaper that doesn't give credit in the form of transferable units. If I were in the embarrassing position as editor of the Free Critic, I would start by putting a sports page in it. After all, sports has helped to put CCSF on the map.

Lazore: I would let the students do their thing and stress ideas and creativity rather than mimicing what they believe is happening on the Chronicle scene.

Q: Do you feel the so-called "obscene" language and the nudity in the Critic has helped or hurt it?

Duggan: Definitely hurt it. How many people enjoy reading obscene words and looking at nudies? College age males love to see nudies but not the likes of Larry Lazore, John Lennon or Yoko Ono. The Critic is just a pile of junk and the obscene language and nudies just help contribute to that pile of junk.

Lazore: I don't know whether it has helped or hurt the Critic but I think it has helped a lot of students. Not one f....ing word the Critic has printed was obscene. I don't believe in obscenity, censorship or pornography. I don't see the world in these terms but rather in terms of coherence and absurdity. The Critic parodies situations it sees as absurd.

Q: What would be the view of your paper toward a general strike or boycott at the college as an expression of sympathy with State?

Duggan: My personal opinion is that I am against anything that interrupts classes. We're here to be educated and we can't do that marching around and throwing rocks at school windows.

Lazore: If there was a general strike the Critic would have recommended it before it happened. However, fighting for anything is an alien concept to students here. It would take a situation like students being machine gunned down for littering to get students to realize the enormity of the injustice. Anything more subtile than this would pass them by.

Contact Lens

Do You Believe In Interracial Marriages?

QUESTION: Would you marry someone not of your own race?

LAY

Marty Lay, Engineering Major

Yes. If I dug the person enough, her race would not matter. If we could teach each other things, the relationship would work out. Social pressures can cause problems. If a girl married outside of her own race, both could be ousted from their families. When one sees someone of a mixed race, they could say, "there goes a good thing or a bad thing." It depends upon their social prejudices.

SEGAR

Max Segar, English Major

I did. There have been no problems as far as I'm concerned. I don't think it makes any difference if a couple is of the same race or different races. If they are compatible, it shouldn't make any difference. If the couple's interests are the same, there is no reason why a marriage can't work.

YOUNG

Grant Young, Math Major

No. I think that I could always find a black woman that would be better for me than a woman of another race. I am proud to be a black person. For me, marrying someone of another race is stepping down. Children of mixed marriages are looked upon as not being of either race. The farther apart the races, the more prejudiced people are.

KALISZ

Theresa Kalisz, Physical Therapy Major

Yes. When I see people, I don't see colors. I just see what they are and if they are good. There are good and bad people in every race. If they're black and beautiful or white and beautiful, that's great. Prejudices originate at home. Children don't see colors either; and, if a child is prejudiced, it's because of his upbringing.

CHAN

Michael Chan, Journalism Major

Yes. I don't think it's stepping down from one's own race. I have two Caucasian uncles. I'm used to it so it doesn't bother me. The children of mixed marriages might cause complications. It depends upon where you live. In some sections of the country, people are more prejudiced. As for being accepted by a race, I don't care which race accepts me.

—Compiled by Diana Matson, photos by Jim Pope

Dr. Tarnopol, An Instructor Here, Authors 42d Book

With 41 distinguished research and educational publications to his credit, Dr. Lester Tarnopol, of the Social Sciences Department of City College has made known the release of another research publication, entitled "INTRODUCTION TO LEARNING DISABILITIES: Educational and Medical Management."

TENTATIVELY scheduled for publication in February, 1969, by Charles C. Thomas Publications, the 400 page book will contain references to over 300 different authors and sources and will have over 125 tables and illustrations.

Some of the findings presented in the publication are the results of Dr. Tarnopol's own three years of extensive research and conclusions drawn from his experiences as Research Director for the Youth Leadership Project, a $360,000 research program jointly funded by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and the California Department of Social Services.

WHILE MANY of Dr. Tarnopol's recent publications deal with psychology and social science, he is also noted for his research into the areas of industrial engineering and metallurgy.

IN ADDITION to serving as Research Director for the Youth Leadership Training Project, Dr. Tarnopol is a former vice-chairman of the Budget Panel, United Bay Area Crusade.

He is currently a member of the San Francisco Unified School District sub-committee on the Program for Educationally Handicapped Children and is also president-elect of the California Association for Neurologically Handicapped Children.

ASIDE FROM these activities, Dr. Tarnopol manages to serve on the Advisory Committee to the Special Education Division of the San Francisco Unified School District and on the Board of Trustees, Youth for Service.

While receiving his D.Sc. from Harvard University, Dr. Tarnopol served as Assistant in Metallurgy and Research Associate in Geo-Physics.

LATER, he joined the faculty of the University of Kentucky as associate professor of metallurgy. For a time during World War II, Dr. Tarnopol served as Chief Metallurgist for the Raytheon Production Company.

Dr. Tarnopol was professor of mathematics for a time at Loyola University in Los Angeles and later in physics, metallurgy and mechanical engineering at the University of Southern California.

He joined the faculty of City College in 1947.

IN RECENT YEARS, Dr. Tarnopol has made a number of lecture tours abroad.

A lecture tour during this past summer took him to the University of Auckland and Victoria University, both in New Zealand.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Students in the Journalism Department of City College of San Francisco

CUB EDITION

Vol. 67, No. 14 WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 15, 1969 Page 2

Cub Edition

TODAY'S edition of The Guardsman, the last issue of the semester, was completely produced by first-semester journalism students.

This "Cub Edition" is a first for City College, and we hope not a last. We Cubs fancy ourselves as pretty good stock and take this opportunity to show our ability by putting out our own issue.

While we believe a great deal of talent is represented among our number, we most gratefully thank the regular staff for their assistance, their time and, most of all, their patience. We also wish to thank Miss Mary Blair, our instructor and advisor for allowing us to undertake such a venture. We wish to express a special thanks to Mike Duggan, the regular Editor, for turning over the reins to us and to Barbara Hamann for her help and faith in our efforts.

Learning Breeds Discovery

LEARNING is a process in which individual discoveries are made relevant to one's existance. In order to learn, one must have access to new horizons and an open mind.

In order to have an open mind, one must be continually aware of his surroundings. It is not good enough for college students to take verbal stands on issues. The present college process is producing computerized humanoids devoid of the ability to speak out against any injustices or act on their own initiative.

No one advocates spontaneous insurrections by college students against any or all established institutions, for the establishments are supposed to be tools of people to attain peace and happiness.

It is advocated, however, that college students work with and within establishments to try to attain the desired goals of peace and happiness for everyone.

For a college student to declare his tranquility with the present state of affairs and to feel secure about it, is pure hippocracy.

Education is a learning process—a tool to cope with practical problems. College students must use their educational tools to combat the many wrongs in our present society.

Our society at present is an unstable one; our education tells us that. We must use our tools to make this society a stable one for the peace and happiness of everyone.

We must get involved in America, we must act and make decisions for America to become a part of America.

Rats Invade Campus

RATS! Big, fat, mangy, filthy, disease-ridden rats are roaming our campus right now. The same rodents that plague the ghettos of our cities are a menace at City College too. Maybe President Johnson's Rat Control Bill can help the cities, but—the college?

Cleanliness on campus is the primary solution. The garbage and litter on some portions of the campus is deplorable.

We're talking about the parking lot below Statler Wing and the area between there and the Men's Gym. And how about that area next to the lower athletic field where garbage and refuse is being dumped?

We've got enough problems on campus without adding rats to the number.

G'man Staff A Heterogeneous Cross Section Of Characters

How would you like to arrive in a new country and fall into the harbor while walking off the ship? One of today's staff members had that happen to him.

HOW ABOUT SPENDING a year traveling all over the free world visiting such exotic places as Nepal, New Zealand and Iceland? Sound great? A Samoan lass from Twin Peaks accomplished that feat not very long ago.

The "Cubs" who put out today's issue are quite a varied group made up of exservicemen, a married couple, Chinese and Filipino Americans, and a nomad Hong Kong reporter.

CUB EDITION Editor-in-Chief Phil DiCarlo and Jim Pope, Managing Editor, have much in common. Both are sons of career Army officers, both are married and were both in the military themselves before entering City College.

DiCarlo founded and edited a newspaper in the Aleutian Islands during part of his four and one-half years with the Air Force. Pope, after spending two years with Uncle Sam's Army, works for the post office and bought a new house recently.

Floyd Banks, our Sports Editor, is a former All-City Track star and a budding doctor. One of eight children, Floyd will be attending University of California Medical School. Not bad for a former traffic boy at San Miguel Grammar School.

SOONALOTE SCHMIDT, our Feature Editor, is one of six adopted daughters of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Schmidt. Sonia, from Samoa, spent a year traveling around the world before starting here at City College.

Diminutive Philippine beauty, Elizabeth Ramos, is one of 11 children. A library assistant during her free hours, Elizabeth has traveled quite extensively with her father, a member of the Air Force.

BEN SANTANAS, another staffer who hails from the Philippines, had an auspicious arrival in San Francisco—he missed the pier getting off the ship.

A husband and wife team graced The Guardsman office this year. Dan and Florence McCarthy are from St. Louis. A federal loan is keeping them in school until they graduate, which might be soon, judging from the course loads they're carrying.

Perhaps our most unique staffer is News Editor Jack Ruiz. "Smiling Jack," who happens to be 47 years young, is constantly running here and there looking for stories. Ruiz saw action during World War II while in the Merchant Marine. He has been a professional boxer and is now a waiter at Venetos' Restaurant.

The excitable Assistant Sports Editor, Pat Chan, is a former Sports Editor at Washington High School.

CAMARO DRIVER Lynette Conklin was at expected to live after contacting a rare disease at birth. After a miraculous recovery, the attractive Miss Conklin has not been seriously ill since.

Guitar player and folk singer Barbara Tyrrell is a former literary magazine editor at St. Paul's High School.

A former reporter of a Hong Kong newspaper, the Sin Pok, Tse Yui Wong would be a welcome addition to any paper's staff.

RAY GIN, our erstwhile movie reviewer, gets into preview screenings of latest movies for free. A former Forestry major, Ray spent last summer in a forest station near Eureka. Now he says that "Smokey the Bear can have it."—Ed.

Guardsman Staff — Fall 1968

EDITOR IN CHIEF ..... PHIL DICARLO
Managing Editor ..... James Pope
Feature Editor ..... Sonia Schmidt
News Editor ..... Jack Ruiz
Sports Editor ..... Floyd Banks
Editorial Assistants: Florence McCarthy, Pat Chan, Ray Gin.
Reporters: Dan Angelo, Dan Castro, Lynette Conklin, Jeff Dekeuss, Gerry Engler, Ben Marinas, Diane Matson, Dan McCarthy, Elizabeth Ramos, Greg Stueve, Kenneth Surface, Barbere Tyrrell, Vel Velledor, T. Y. Wong.
Advisor: Mary Blair.

ASTRONADT KEIR DULLEA defies an electronic computer named HAL in one of 1968's better film offerings, Stanley Kubrick's "2001—A Space Odyssey."

A Year In The Life, Or How I Learned To Stop Worrying

By Dan McCarthy

Before we sigh with relief at the end of 1968, let us devote a moment to its contemplation, painful though it may be. Return with us now to the thrilling days of yesteryear, ie., violence rides again.

The year's events paralleled a Greek tragedy; one by one we murdered our heroes. The year was marked with student unrest and black-white polarization. Perhaps Chicago is a nice place to visit, but we wouldn't want to picket there. Outside beautiful America, Biafrans found the ultimate solution to population control, the Holy Land grows holier with each shelling, and defense contractors continue to make a killing on the war in Vietnam. (Oops—did we say WAR? We meant to say "Involvement.") Even a flight around the moon on Christmas day could not salvage the sinking ship of '68.

SERIOUSLY, focus a moment on Christmas 1968 and the paradox becomes apparent. We are a nation at war celebrating the birth of one who is called Prince of Peace. When the spirit of Christmas arrives armies stop fighting and guns are silent. We lay down our arms long enough to exchange gifts and eat fruitcake. Though the truce lasts only for a moment, we proclaim that that moment is the reality and war is only a distortion.

In short, we reaffirm ourselves as a peace loving "Christian" people. But how can the peace of Christmas ever be realized while Arabs hate the Jews, Greeks hate the Turks, Siagon hates the Viet Cong, Whites hate the Blacks, the balding old hate the hairy young, ad infinitum?

THE SADDEST paradox of Christmas is not in war alone. It is the contrast in the message of hope and good will Christmas brings, and the relative lack of hope or good will that infects the impoverished masses of our globe.

The fact of starvation in the Land of Plenty can no longer be denied. It can, however, be effectively ignored. Seemingly no amount of CBS Special Reports can prompt the American people to alleviate the swollen bellies and sunken eyes. How easy to flip the channel to Gunsmoke or to Peyton Place; how easy to forget the harsh realities on your second helping of strawberry shortcake.

WHAT CAN we, or more appropriately, what will we do to bring the ideals of peace, good will toward men, closer to practical reality? Probably nothing. Alas, Mankind's history of social progress has been slower than the slowest sailboat on a windless sea. Ironic is the truth that our advancements in the fields of human relations lag far behind our scientific and technological progress.

IF MAN'S IDEAL of peace on earth is ever to come to pass, our hope rests not in politicians and diplomats; centuries have witnessed their failure. Instead we must turn to the men who study man's nature and behavior, ie., scientists, sociologists and psychiatrists.

Only the men who study man's behavior can someday teach us to replace fear with security, aggression with pacifism and, in the words of St. Francis, "hate with love."

Until then, all our New Year's resolutions are futile. The holiday season will continue to be an ironic reminder of man's failure to live up to his own image.

As we travel one more year down the proverbial road of life, let us temper hope with realism and say, in the immortal words of Paul Simon, "Laugh about it, shout about it, when you got to choose. Any way you look at it you lose."

School With A New Twist

Dislike the public school system? If so, you aren't the only one. Last year, a group of San Francisco mothers and fathers put their heads together and decided the public school system wasn't for their children. The outcome of their negative attitude toward the public school system is a positive new institution called Shire-School.

SHIRE SCHOOL is different. Where normal schools stress disciplinary rules (such as not chewing gum) and over-emphasized verbal or physical reprimands for "bad" children, Shire stresses creativity. "Normal" public schools tend to stem in students' creativeness. With such emphasis on discipline, Shire asks, "How can a child feel out his emotion creatively?"

Students in the public schools are made to do things they don't want or are reluctant to do. They are not encouraged to say what they feel, but rather what they "should" feel.

AT SHIRE, when a child or a teacher has something to say, that child or teacher says it. If a child isn't allowed to express himself verbally the way he wants to, that child may find physical means, such as smashing people in the face, to express himself.

Shire isn't a large organization. It has an enrollment of 60 students between the ages of 7 and 16. Shire operates on little money each month. It is supported entirely by parents' donations.

THIS WRITER asked the children how they felt about Shire, and what they thought of going back to public school. All their reactions can be summarized by one youngster's response, "Shire is where it's at."

At Shire, the children also do exactly what they want. When Shire students are in class, however, they are expected to be at least quiet.

THE USUAL subjects one expects to find in the elementary schools are reading, writing and arithmetic. Very few children are intrinsically interested in such basic subjects, but they do take interest in subjects calling for sensitive exercise. Shire offers classes in poetry, candlemaking, and other creative endeavors. In addition, there are teachers at Shire who offer classes in sensory awareness.

Most of the boys who attend Shire have shoulder length or unconventional haircut.

ANOTHER INOVATION found at Shire is that there is no separation of the children by sexes such as prudish earlier generations interjected into the public school system.

It is felt by the Shire officials that the best cure for the sexual problems created by our socially inhibited society can be achieved by children being indoctrinated to the free and uninhibited sexual ways inherent in the Shire system. "If we are all human beings," Shire asks, "Why does this separation of the sexes come about?" Shire supporters want to find out why.

Perhaps we will all live to see a Shire-type system some day. —G. S.

Faces Rates Best Of Ten Top Flicks

By Ray Gin

The 1968 roster of fine films was the most impressive line-up of distinguished motion pictures in a decade.

The film industry's recent experimentation in new themes and techniques has given the "movie-going" public a good run for their money, in respect to variety and quality. With so many outstanding films on hand, the selection of the top ten pictures of the year was extremely difficult. The list could easily have accommodated two dozen or more other brilliant features.

1. "Faces," actor-director John Cassavetes's penetrating excursion into the American scene by way of suburbia becomes, by virtue of its originality and impact, the best picture of the year.

2. "2001-A Space Odyssey," Stanley Kubrick's outer-space epic, is a film of unprecedented theoretical and technical brilliance. It becomes more of an experience than a viewing.

3. "Belle De Jour," Luis Bunuel's erotic and bizarre sexual chronicle of a frigid Frenchwoman who voluntarily takes a job in a bordello to eliminate her inhibitions, is a unique experience in deciphering fantasy and reality.

4. "The Lion in Winter," the James Goldman play, is an exceptionally literate and magnificently acted battleground of wits between the lioness, Katharine Hepburn's Eleanor of Aquitane and the lion, Peter O'Toole's Henry II.

5. "The Yellow Submarine," the Beatle's now-classic journey into the world of animation art. All this is credited to "a little help from" artist Heinz Edelmann.

6. "Bullitt," Steve McQueen's involvement in cop art, becomes the year's most exciting action caper on film. The unforgettable chase sequence still lingers in my memory.

7. "Romeo and Juliet," Franco Zeffirelli's second venture into Shakespeare is a highly rich adaptation of the Bard's play of tragic love.

8. "The Boston Strangler," screen version of Gerold Frank's non-fiction bestseller, becomes an extremely subtle yet revealing drama about Albert DeSalvo, the infamous schizophrenic who blungeoned 13 women before his apprehension. Tony Curtis climbs into and inhabits the body and soul of DeSalvo and his split personality with surprising expertise.

9. "Rachael, Rachel" is the film in which Paul Newman asks the provocative question, "Who cares about a 35-year-old virgin?" I did and hope you will too in Newman's triumphant directorial debut that also boasts the best female performance of the year, Joanne Woodward's poignant portrayal of the deceived spinster-schoolteacher.

10. "Elvira Madigan," a Swedish import, is Bo Widerberg's version of a Scandanavian folk-tale which concerns an ill-fated lové between a famous tight-rope artist and a deserter-member of the Swedish Army told in ultra-simplicity.

Other outstanding films of the year included "Funny Girl" with Barbra Streisand's phenomenal ability to transcend faulty material, "Pretty Poison" the sleeper of the year with Tony Perkins and Tuesday Weld as the modern day counterparts of Bonnie and Clyde, Jean Luc-Godard's "Weekend" with it's unforgettable traffic jam sequence, "The Producers," with Mel Brook's savagely satiric comment of "high camp" and "bad taste," and Mia Farrow's bearing of "a cute little devil" in "Rosemary's Baby."

THE YEAR also had its toll of worthless duds. Julie Andrew's tremendous "put-on" as stage-great Gertrude Lawrence in "Star!" only confirms our suspicions that her career is in fast descendance. The Burtons were in pretentious play in two of the all time worst, Tennessee William's "Boom!" and the limp screen version of Graham Greene's "The Comedians."

But the distinction of being the most tasteless and dull movie of the year goes to Terry Southern's film, "Candy." Important stars such as Marlon Brando, Richard Burton and Walter Matthau become victims of infantile play with their sweet tooth for the virgin played by Ewa Aulin, who seems to have taken Raquel Welch's method of acting (the school of the grunt and empty look).

GRINDL THE GURU (Marlon Brando) helps Candy (Ewa Aulin) achieve a higher level of education in 1968's winner in the worst picture sweepstakes, "Candy."

Entertainment

What's Happenin'

By Barbara Tyrrell

It may be dead week around this campus, but it is certainly not dead around San Francisco. To help you relax after the tensions of exams, this column offers a variety of day and evening fillers, including art, plays, music, and miscellaneous entertainment.

Friday night, if you can hitch a ride to Berkeley, Richie Havens will be performing in the UC Berkeley Auditorium Theater. Havens believes that "music allows a person to look at the person inside of him." If you want to look inside of yourself or just enjoy an evening of good folk rock, catch Havens January 17 at 8:30 p.m.

FOR THE people who don't mind going great distances for comedy, Harrahs in Tahoe is presenting Bill Cosby nightly through the 21st of January.

Weekend rock concerts are being presented throughout the winter months at TNT (located one mile south of Squaw Valley in the Powder Bowl-Alpine Meadows area). Among the groups playing there are Country Weather and Cold Blood.

THROUGH the 19th of January, the M. H. DeYoung Museum is presenting "The Black Panthers—A Photographic Essay" by Ruth-Marion Baruch and Pirkle James. "Here Today—Historical Sites of San Francisco" will be shown through March 2. There are daily tours of the museum at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m.

The Cory art collection is on display at two locations: 335 Stockton and 360 Jefferson Streets. There are group showings daily.

Paintings by Walter, Margaret, and Susan Keane will really open your eyes. The Keane collection is on display at 494 Broadway.

IF YOU get excited with the curtain going up on a good play, then you won't want to miss the fifth year of musical comedy with the Fantastiks nightly at Ghiradelli Square.

Neil Simon's "Barefoot in the Park!" is being offered at the Curran Theater (Geary at Mason) from January 13 through February 1. The show stars Vrginia Mayo, Lyle Talbot, and Gigi Perreau with John McCook and Don McArt.

AMERICAN Conservatory Theater has a wonderful lineup of plays. At the Geary Theater January 16 and 18 is the showing of George Feydeau's "A Flea in Her Ear." On January 15 and 17, "The Devil's Disciple" will be shown. Shakespere's "Hamlet" will be staged January 21 and 29 and in a matinee January 30.

The Marine's Memorial Theater also hosts ACT, and on January 14, 15 and 19 it will offer "Little Murders" by Jules Feiffer. On January 16, 17, and 18, Charles Dyer's comedy "Staircase" will be shown. Student rush tickets are available for two and three dollars fifteen minutes before the curtain rises.

You might start getting hungry after reading a good book or seeing a play, and if you are tired of hotdogs, you could try the El Sombrero for Mexican food. It is located in the Cannery at Fisherman's Wharf and is open from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m.

PARLEZ-VOUS FRANCAIS? You don't have to speak French to enjoy the food at Chez Leon at 124 Ellis. Dinner is served from 5 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. If you are strictly a meat and potatoes man you can join the "Home of the Steak King" at Alfred's, located at 888 Broadway, which serves dinners from 4 p.m. to 12:30 a.m.

The Performing Arts Workshop, located at 1530 Buchanan Street, is beginning dancing lessons in modern, jazz, and primitive dance. For details call 931-9228.

THE BALLET Forklorico of Mexico, directed and choreographed by Amalia Hernandez, will be shown February 5 through 9 at the Masonic Auditorium. Performances are scheduled for Wednesday through Saturday evenings at 8:30 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday matinees at 2:30.

For those persons who would rather enjoy a quiet evening, you might just enjoy the belly dancers at the Greek Taverna, located at 256 Columbus Avenue, which offers Greek music and dancing. But then, it all depends on what you like to do.

Final Examination Schedule

Class Hour & Day	Exam Time
Thursday 16, January, 1969
Chemistry 1A*
3-4 Daily	1-5
3-4 M-W-F	1-3
3-4 T-Th	3:30-5:30
3:45-5 T-Th	3:30-5:30
3-4:25 T-Th	3:30-5:30
Friday 17, January, 1969
9-10 Daily	8-12
9-10 M-W-F	8-10
9-11 Daily	8-12
9-10 T-Th	10:30-12:30
9-10:25 T-Th	10:30-12:30
9:45-11 T-Th	10:30-12:30
2-3 Daily	1-5
2-3 M-W-F	1-3
1-3 Daily	1-5
2-3 T-Th	3:30-5:30
2-3:25 T-Th	3:30-5:30
2:45-4 T-Th	3:30-5:30
Monday 20, January, 1969
12-1 Daily	8-12
12-1 M-W-F	8-10
12-1 T-Th	10:30-12:30
12-1:25 T-Th	10:30-12:30
12:45-2 T-Th	10:30-12:30
Friday only classes	1-3
Bus. Ad. 1A*	3:15-6

Class Hour & Day	Exam Time
Tuesday 21, January, 1969
11-12 Daily	8-12
11-12 M-W-F	8-10
11T, 11TF	10:30-12:30
4-5 Daily	1-5
4-5 M-W-F	1-3
4-5 T-Th	3:30-5:30
4-5:25 T-Th	3:30-5:30
4:45-6 T-Th	3:30-5:30
Wednesday 22, January, 1969
10-11 Daily	8-12
10-11 M-W-F	8-10
10-11 T-Th	10:30-12:30
10-11T-Th, 11T	10:30-12:30
5-6 Daily	8-12
5-6 M-W-F	8-10
Thursday 23, January, 1969
8-9 Daily	8-12
8-9 M-W-F	8-10
8-9 T-Th	10:30-12:30
8-9:25 T-Th	10:30-12:30
8:45-10TT T-Th	10:30-12:30
1-2 Daily	1-5
1-2 M-W-F	1-3
1-2 T-Th	3:30-5:30
1-2:25 T-Th	3:30-5:30
1:45-3 T-Th	3:30-5:30
Friday 24, January, 1969
7-8 Daily	8-12
7-8 M-W-F	8-10
7-8 T-Th	10:30-12:30
7-8:25 T-Th	10:30-12:30
7:45-9 T-Th	10:30-12:30

*Rooms to be arranged with instructor

Our Tribute To The Black Athletes

City College — Factory For The Black Sportsman

Vol. 67, No. 14 WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 15, 1969 Page 4

By Floyd Banks and Dan Castro

As far back as 1948 a not-so-small group of Blacks have been exhibiting a form of Black Power on this College Campus. No disturbance has been caused because it was going on unnoticed.

This semester's third place football team exhibited this Black power quite readily by maintaining 15 Blacks out of the 22 starters.

MANY A TIME the crowds were left standing on end by the plays of Tom Mayfield to Ralph Bayard, a terrific black combination of passer and receiver.

Arice Pittman, one of the most fantastic linemen to reach the college, showed his power in smashing many an opponent's line. Some say Arice is a miniature Al Cowlings, the massive Black lineman who spent this football season destroying opposing lines for U.S.C.

ALONG WITH ex-Ram Cowlings was the greatest running back of all time, O. J. Simpson.

Simpson, who established five all-time records, was All-American football player at the college. Simpson was not only an outstanding football player, but also in track. O. J., along with Black athletes Robert Prince, Adam Banks and Dwight Tucker, set the national J. C. record in the 440-yard relay.

THIS PRACTICALLY ALL Black scoring team also dominated the conference championship.

In 1948, a Black athlete was causing as much of a stir as Simpson is now. Ollie Matson, a phenomenal grid player, scored two touchdowns in the National Collegiate Junior College Championship in 1948. In 1955, Matson was elected along with Black athlete Willie Hudson to the Hall of Fame.

HUDSON led Ram cagers to a successful '54 season.

One of the all time great Black Athletes is Clint Redus. Redus led the '56 track team to the Northern California Junior College track championship and the Big 8 (now defunct) championship.

Redus was one of the few athletes in history who could win four individual events in one track meet. Redus had the distinction of being best in his league in the 100 yard dash, high hurdles, low hurdles and 220 yard dash.

OTHER GREAT BLACK Athletes who have brought fame to the Ram campus are men like Van Parish. Parish was a one-man scoring team for the defunct, Big Seven Track and Field Championship Meet. Parish was also star end for the football team, where he was a receiver. He also was undefeated in the 100 yard dash in 1953.

Bob Tealer, who is now a counselor at the college and advisor of the BSU, led the Ram basketball team to a third place in the State Junior College Tournament of Champions in 1957. Tealer also set the tournament game scoring record of 46 points.

THERE HAVE been many black athletes who have performed great deeds for this school. However, because good deeds are not recorded according to race, these Rams gain little if any acknowledgement. Perhaps if they were all O. J. Simpsons, then they would gain the credit they deserve. All Black Athletes are not as talented as O. J., however, but they have been bringing many championships to the college.

This article is necessary to bring important, indivisible men into the light on campus, such as Bill Cosby's "Of Black America" television show accomplished with many types of Blacks in America.

OUT OF the five starters on this year's basketball team, four are Black. Men like Telvis Jones, Darrel Fregia, Gus Hill, Jesse Arteberry, Tom Clyburn and Keith Miles are not O. J. Simpsons in their sports. However, they are the kind of men who bring second place in the tough Modesto Tournament, and a third place finish in the Stockton Tourney, and a 10-4 preseason average. Black athletes deserve a vote of thanks from the college.

BLACK ATHLETES on campus, doing their thing

Hapless Chabot Falls Prey To Rams' Second Half Rally

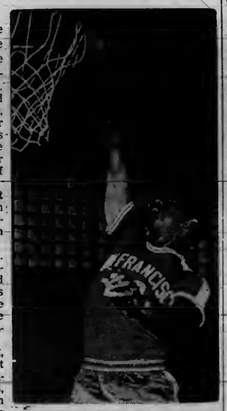
By Val Valledor

What looked to be a close game in the first half turned out to be completely the opposite as the City College basketball team walloped a hapless Chabot squad, 75-51.

In the first half the game appeared to be a close battle. Chabot, however, was able to lead the Rams by six or seven points most of the half. This was due mainly to the fine outside shooting of Chabot center Dan Heiser and the all-around ball handling of the guards.

RAM CENTER Jesse Arteberry just couldn't seem to break loose from the guards, and Darrell Fregia replaced him early in the half, with Tom Clyburn moving to center.

Chabot couldn't miss from the field. With the half two-thirds over, Chabot's fine guard, Jerry Dohling, held the Rams at bay, canning two shots from the corner. The battle for the rebounds was about even but the Rams just couldn't win on the offensive boards.



WITH A FEW minutes remaining, and Chabot leading, 30-25, two great defensive plays were witnessed. Chabot, while working a play to shoot, got the ball stolen from guard Robin Hood by Telvis Jones, who broke down court to can a basket and cut Chabot's lead to three points. Moments later, Gus Hill stole a hurried pass to get the last two points of the half, leaving the score 30-29 with Chabot out in front.

THE SECOND HALF was a completely different story, however. With coach Sid Phelan starting the same players with the exception of Clyburn, the Ram cagers controlled the ball as well as the game. Fregia and Jones were not to be denied points, as they hit buckets right and left to push City College's lead out to 43-34.

In six minutes Chabot was held to a mere four points. Chabot simply couldn't get unglued as they couldn't retain the momentum they had going for them in the first half.

WITH THE GAME almost over, the Ram cagers took a commanding lead with the score set at 51-36. Tom Clyburn entered the game to give Darrell Fregia a well deserved rest. By now Chabot seemed tired, and could not make their shots count.

Leading the scoring for the Rams was Gus Hill with 17 points, Telvis Jones with 13 and Darrell with 12.

KEITH MILES, Wilt Chamberlain of City College. —photo by Jens Protze

Sports Day Ends Fall Season For Rec. Association

By Lynette Conklin

The Recreation Association has wound up its hectic fall semester with its annual intercollegiate Sports Day competition, held at Foothill College.

All of the Association's 135 active members were on hand for the occasion as Joe Padua, of the college, took first place in men's handball competition, easily surpassing all contenders in a brilliant display.

DAVID NG gave his closest rival the bird in the men's singles badminton competition. Receiving top honors in mixed doubles badminton competition were Richard Ng and Sundra Grayson. Bringing home second place honors in women's badminton competition was Geneva Lowe.

The City College's representative volleyball team, named Sparks, captured first place title in its field. Providing the necessary team work were Angelus Chan, Robert Toy, Beverly Gin, David Huey, Deanna Pong, George Brown, and Mary Wambeke.

ON THE more serious bent, Davc Lonie took first place honors in the chess competition.

Fencing contenders who were not foiled in their attempts, were Frene Marki and Ken Stroughter as they brought home first and second place fencing honors, respectively.

MRS. PHYLLIS VASQUEZ, who is in charge of the Recreation Association was pleased with the turn out of the Sports Day. She said that membership has doubled this semester, and proof of the increased enthusiasm is witnessed by the fact that City College took second place.

The Recreation Association has not limited its interests to the purely physical side of sports. The artistic dance forms are also given consideration. All dance students were invited to attend a modern dance performance by Merz Cunningham, on November 19 at Berkeley. Also, Margaret Haynes, noted modern dancer who has performed for Expo '67, as well as throughout South America, gave a special performance to the dance classes at the college.

Zac Thompson, noted modern dancer and choreographer, will soon be spending his talents and energies as an instructor at the college, teaching primitive dance. He will feature the dances of African and Indian tribes in an attempt to promote better understanding between cultures.

THE ACTIVITIES of the Recreation Association were brought to an end in the grand finale of an awards dinner which was held at Smith Hall on last Thursday.

Awesome Laney Here Friday

City College's basketball team will have a big assignment when they face the Laney College Eagles this Friday night.

With four players towering at 6-5 and two more at 6-4, Laney boasts one of the tallest teams in the conference if not in the state.

HOWEVER, even in spite of their height advantage, the Eagles have managed to compile only a measly 8-6 record in preseason play.

During the Christmas vacation, Laney took a second place in the Merced Invitational, losing out to Merced in the championship game, 102-79. In the JC National Invitational, the Eagles took a fourth place.

WITH A GROUP of tall men dominating the team, offense seems to be Laney's first love as the Eagles averaged 92 points a game over their first 14 games while allowing 87.

Laney opened up conference play in the GGC by getting rocked with a 62-59 defeat from Diablo Valley.

IN SPITE of being dominated by a group of tall men, Laney is led by a short 5-10 guard named Sam Hill. Last season Hill was named to the All-Coast Conference team.

ELSEWHERE on the court you can look for Mike Douglas (43), Mickey Johnson (45), Bernard Dulaney (51) and Henry Anderson (53) to be in the thick of the action, on the backboards, as they comprise Laney's awesome forward wall, who are each 6-5. At 6-4, Chris Oakes (13) and Odis Allison (31) also will probably see action on Friday night.

Game time is 8 p.m., and if you're one of those lucky souls with an AS card it'll cost you nothing for admission. However, if you can't make it out to the game, tune in Channel 38 KUDO on UHF and watch it on TV. (Course if you can't get UHF, you're out of luck.)—P. C.

RAMBLINGS

City College Fans Hungry For A Title

By Val Valledor and Patrick Chan

CITY COLLEGE SPORTS fans are hoping for a more profitable spring after having gone through the fall semester without a single team bringing home a conference title. A survey of the college's coaches shows different however, as at best, most of the teams are only slated for the upper divisions of the conference, and not first place.

In baseball, coach Ernie Domecus hopes to field a contending team this year after last season's 8-13 club, which was the worst record a Ram baseball squad had completed since 1962 when City College was 3-11.

AMONG some of the top returnees this year will be John Portoni, last year's No. 1 pitcher for the Rams. Portoni, a former Sacred Heart star, throws exceptionally well with good speed. In addition he is a fine batter.

Contending for the catcher spot will be Hans Vigil and Tom Mayfield. Mayfield, a former two time All-City selection from Washington High, makes a good target for pitchers as he packs 200 pounds on his 5'-10" frame. He is hampered by a lack of speed however.

THE INFIELD will probably have Andy Fracchia at second and Jim Smith at third. Smith, a former Mission star, is the top hitter among the returnees as he batted a cool .338 last season along with knocking in 15 runs to lead the Rams in RBIs. Smith also lead the club in homers (3), triples (2), doubles (3) and in total bases (39).

Filling out the lineup in the outfield will be Dave Kline and Manny Berrios.

BATTLING for the vacant parts on the first string will be some fine incoming talent from the high schools. Domecus has high hopes for help from Rich Escalambre, a good glove man from Poly and Tom Boyd from Lowell and John True from Washington.

In track, it's still too early to tell how the runners will do but with three top lettermen coming back to help out in Tom Clyburn (high jump), Vic Cary (880 and mile) and Vince Ainsley (440 and mile relay) the Rams should still prove to be tough in track, which by tradition is one of the college's strongest sports.

INCOMING FRESHMEN from the CAL and AAA should help out in addition. From St. Ignatius comes Clyde Sadler and Paul Conroy while Jim Brooks from Washington and Jim Tyrée are expected to help out in the 220.

Last year the Rams barely missed out on taking the Northern California track meet losing to Sacramento by one point 55-54.

IN SWIMMING Coach Curt Decker hopes to improve on last spring's last place finish.

Tops among the returnees are Rich Glass, Frank Johnson and Dave Nelson. All three swam for last fall's water polo team.

Glass will swim in the butterfly and 1000 yd. freestyle while Johnson will swim in the 500 yd. freestyle. Nelson will be in the 100 and 200 yd. freestyle events

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Journalism Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 68 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 19, 1969 NUMBER 1

Enrollment Up For Spring

NOW SEE HERE young feller, I don't care if you do have your lunch with you, it say here that . . . A lovely lady from Moscow, Russia, Nina Kotelay, joins the throng vying for classes during registration day.

The Registrar's office of City College reported a spring term enrollment of 13,531 students—1364 more than a year ago.

When the daytime classes began Wednesday, Feb. 5, the attendance totaled 10,306. The evening division, which began Monday, Feb. 10, has signed up 3225 students.

President Louis G. Conlan said the growth figures for the two year college indicates it is attaining more "holding power."

He also stated the mid-term transfers to other schools, including San Francisco State were below normal.

Student Council To Look Into Operations Of AS Bookstore

By Ray Gin

A student committee to investigate the Associated Students' Bookstore was appointed by AS President Don Ortiz at a Student Council meeting last Monday.

This committee will work in conjunction with a similarly appointed group within the Academic Senate to improve bookstore service to both faculty and students.

These two groups will meet together and check hiring procedures, service, and anything that yields a return in the bookstore. Definite steps on the actual investigation have not been completely worked out as yet. Committee members include councilmen Konstantin Grab, Mike Shaefer, Jim Anderson and Derrick Quan.

Two Spring 1969 student budgets were also submitted later in the meeting. Finance Chairman Derrick Quan submitted a budget that required $36,243.21 while former AS Vice President Shirley Brown gave $37,916.75 as her submitted budget. The two budget differences came about because Quan felt additional cuts on the budget could be made. Quan initiated cuts on the requested budgets of the Controller (a subtraction of $640 from a request of $3950), Tutorial Center (a cut of $340 from a request for $720) and the Forum (granted no funds).

Ortiz gave $41,000 as the predicted income of the Spring semester in which the budget must work. The first budget was finalized by Quan, Ortiz and Miss Brown in early January. The second budget is an individual endeavor by Miss Brown. The choice between the two budgets will be made in the upcoming Monday Student Council meeting.

Ortiz is carefully studying the financial conditions of the college. He is working closely with Quan in drawing up a new code of Budget Review Procedures. The present procedure involves a budget request submitted to the treasurer, his compilation of these requests, and a limited-time review by the council members of these requests.

A review of several budget requests a week, instead of all at one meeting, will insure justifiable cuts and grants.

In previous years, council members did not have complete knowledge of previous semester's budget actions. This semester Ortiz hopes that "the council members will acquaint themselves with past budgets and persons involved with the spending so as to give a more in-depth review of this semester's budget."

Ortiz is also meeting with Dr. Harry Buttimer, Co-ordinator of Educational Management to

(Continued on Page 3)

Student Loan Crisis Causes Controversy

By Jack Reiz

City College student book and short term loans were abruptly halted last week due to the lack of funds, but prompt action by the Student Council which borrowed $5000 from the Athletic Insurance Fund saved the day.

The trouble began when a student notified the Financial Aid Office that his short term book loan could not be honored by the book store because of insufficient funds. Tom Rice and Charles Harding of the Financial Aid staff immediately contacted Don Ortiz, A.S. President to ascertain the cause, and to see what could be done.

At the Council meeting the next day, the Council voted to borrow $5000 from the inactive Athletic Insurance Fund, which is an insurance to cover athletes in areas that present insurance does not cover. The money was transfrred to the Financial Aid Office short term loan account and shortly thereafter the loans to students were resumed.

Why did this incident ocur? The Guardsman went to four sources involved: 1. Financial Aid Office; 2. Student Bank; 3. Student Council, and 4. the Administration.

Rice, at Financial Aid, stated that the entire situation was avoidable and came as a result of inaction by the Administration. He claimed that they were aware of the great need for funds for the short term book loans in January. He also contended that the Adminstration was dragging its feet in signing up with a Public Relations Firm which will, in effect, raise funds for Student Enterprises and make situations like these unnecessary.

Carl Anderson, accountant at the Student Bank had a different version. He claimed the real reason for the fund shortage was the students' failure to repay their loans. The bank records showed over 200 unpaid accounts amounting to thousands of dollars. For example, a common thing is for a student to take out a loan, drop out of school, and if he doesn't return to City College, it is almost impossible to retrieve the money. Anderson has tried with little success to collect the delinquent accounts.

Don Ortiz's reaction to the situation was one of action as he quickly moved the council into action to aid the stricken students and invited Dr. Batmale to the SC meeting last Monday to discuss the entire affair. He was appalled at the students' lack of responsibility regarding their obligation to repay their loans.

Ortiz said that placing the Athletic Insurance Fund in

(Continued on page 3)

A. S. President Don Ortiz Voices Opinions, Plans

By Lavine Lee

He's hated school for a long time and he rode a bicycle to make a living, but Don Ortiz, AS president, is determined to improve City College and hopes to return as a teacher.

"I ran for the office of AS president because there were many organizational changes that were needed, and I felt I could do the job," said Ortiz.

Plans for the future include setting up committees to study and improve the service of the AS bookstore and to draw up a new student constitution.

Ortiz also plans to give the tutorial program a good swift kick by actively encouraging student participation.

The new president encourages all students to participate in any affairs concerning Student Council. "If students want to voice their opinions, they should come to the meetings. If they don't, they shouldn't complain."

When asked how he felt about the turmoil on college campuses, the 28-year-old AS president replied: "Instead of creating a crisis or disturbance on campus, I hope the students here will come to the AS, as well as to me with their grievances."

A member of the Puerto Rican race, this semester's president was raised in the Potrero Hill District. After graduating from Polytechnic High School, he "pumped a bicycle for $1 an hour for two years before entering the Air Force."

DON ORTIZ
Photo by Eugene Wong

Because of his negative attitude toward "school, scholars, and people in ties," Ortiz did not continue his education until two years ago. Even then, he returned because of his need for a better job and, most of all, money.

Ortiz claims that his negative attitude has changed for the better because he now sees school and instructors in a more positive light. He stated that City College was responsible for this change since he has come to know many of the instructors here.

A general education major, he plans to transfer to either Stanford University or the University of California at Santa Cruz where he will major in either Sociology or Anthropology.

When he receives his degree in one of these fields, he hopes to return to City College as an instructor.

4 Months Later— Student Succumbs

STEVEN HUDAK

Critical injuries resulting from a motorcycle collision last September claimed the life of a City College student two weeks ago following a coma that lasted more than four months.

The victim, Steven Hudak Jr., passed away February 6, without regaining consciousness. The accident occurred on the afternoon of September 30, when Steve's motorcycle was apparently hit broadside by a fast-moving auto.

Steve was a member of the Spring '68 graduating class at Abraham Lincoln High School and was a "quiet but well-liked student." He was interested in electronics and had enrolled in that department at CCSF only two weeks before the accident.

City College mourns the death of a responsible student and friend.

New Pilot Program For Mental Health Started at College

A pilot project for mental health services will be offered on an optional basis by the Student Health Service of City College this semester.

This project will be headed by Dr. Vernon Collins, Jr., a third year resident Psychiatrist with the San Francisco Mental Health program. He will be available on campus for direct consultation with students and aid them, through assistance and advice where it is desired.

The information that a student divulges will be held in the strictest of confidence within the Health Service and will not be used to penalize a student. In most cases there will be no need for parental endorsement. The service is structured to meet the individual's needs and will be as informal as possible.

The doctor's office hours will be Monday 8-12, 1-4; Wednesday 8-12 Friday 8-12 in S190. the Student Health Services room. If necessary, hours might possibly be arranged to meet a student's schedule.

New Look For Guardsman

See Editorial on Page Two

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Students in the Journalism Department of City College of San Francisco

Thomas O. Graham, Editor

184

Vol. 68, No. 1 WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 19, 1969 Page 2

The New Look Guardsman

THE GUARDSMAN weekly newspaper, written by the journalism students of City College of San Francisco, has a new look now that we have changed printers.

The printing is now done in offset instead of letterpress, which makes newspaper production much faster and more efficient for our purposes.

Under this system, news will be kept more up-to-date because articles can be written right up to the final deadline, which is the day before the papers reach the newsstands. This we feel will not only improve the quality of the coverage but also make the news more informative and meaningful.

You'll probably also notice that the pages are a different size and that there will be more pictures to brighten up the pages.

The space in the Guardsman will be slightly smaller than before but the cost for printing has likewise diminished.

The San Francisco Unified School District has appropriated the money for our budget. This, along with a less expensive printer, enables our circulation to expand from 3,000 to 6,000 copies per issue. There will be 14 issues of the Guardsman this semester, three of which will be eight page special editions.

The Guardsman is published every Wednesday during the school year with the exceptions of vacations and holidays.

Voice Your Views

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR should be brought to S304 or sent to the Guardsman department c/o City College of San Francisco, 50 Phelan Avenue.

We welcome letters and reserve the right to edit and censor for brevity, rhetoric and good taste. Letters may be published anonymously by request, but the author's identity must be known by the editor. The deadline for letters is 10 a.m. Wednesday, the week preceding the actual publication date.

Since students make the news, we would appreciate any assistance in the way of visits and phone calls concerning events that might be of interest to other students.

We sincerely hope that this semester will bring good news for all.

'Wet And Wild'

The rain which has been abundant lately, almost turned the reservoir into what it had originally been built for.

With so many cars cramming for space in the parking lot, a good number of students were forced to jam into the west end of the reservoir which on some days is six inches under water.

This student braved the rapids, waded to his car and rode the waves to safety. His car turned into a hydroplane and splashed through this puddle while the lifeguard was evidently looking the other way.

Incidentally, campus parking regulations will be enforced by issuance of citations beginning next Monday.

Guardsman Staff

SPRING 1969

EDITOR IN CHIEF ... TOM GRAHAM

Managing Editor .... Barbara Hamann

Feature Editor ..... Boku Kodama

News Editor ..... Randy Flynn

Sports Editor ..... Phil DiCarlo

Editorial Assistants: Rita Carroll, Levine Lee, Lynda Sandstrom.

Reporters: Patrick Chan, Gerry Engler, Ray Gin, Marc Kovacs, Jack Ruiz, T. Y. Wong.

Photographers: Gavin Watt, Chief, Sam Alvarado, Jules Classens, Bert Flowers, Jerry Jan, David Kalman, Wayne Leong, Antony Rogadio, Jerry Warren, Earl Williams, Joseph Wilson, Russell Wong

New Building Seen In Future Of Campus

VISUAL ARTS BUILDING—should be ready by 1970. Guardsman Photo by Bert Flowers

By Lavine Lee

New buildings, landscaping and other improvements are scheduled for City College.

The Visual Arts Building, which is currently under construction, should be finished by the end of the year and ready for occupancy in the Spring of 1970, according to Victor Vaio, assistant coordinator of construction on campus.

This building will house the Photography, Printing Technology, Advertising Art, and Reading Departments. It will also contain two lecture halls, a conference room, and vending machines. The money for this building is coming from the Federal Government, the State, and the City. The estimated cost is $1,300,000.

Vaio also stated that construction of the new Student Union, which will help relieve the congestion in Statler Wing by providing more room for students, should begin in June of this year (provided there are no problems). It should be completed within eight months.

The Student Union will be financed by a $50,000 loan made to this college by the Federal Government. It will be paid off over a period of 50 years.

Also in the future is a plan for another building, the Arts Extension. This building will extend from the Arts Building out to Phelan Avenue and it will serve the Radio-TV and Music Departments. It will also be used as classrooms. The estimated cost of this building is $1,600,000. It will be financed by the City, the State, and, hopefully, the Federal Government. Construction should begin in 1970.

The eight bungalows located in back of the Arts Building were finished at the end of last year, but they will not be ready for use until an electrical system is installed.

Vaio also informed the Guardsman of the Utility Plan which will update the electrical alarm system to service this campus better.

There are also plans for the lamps which once adorned the walkway up to the Science Building. They were brutally smashed six weeks after they were put up last year. To prevent them from being broken again the assistant to Dr. Buttimer has suggested putting wires or braces around them.

Phase II, the landscaping and beautification program for the area around the Educational Services Building, has been in the works for almost a year now, but the plans have been delayed.

Originally the landscaping plans would have taken up the parking area in front of the Educational Services Building, but because other parking facilities were not available, these plans had to be dropped.

Letters to the Editor

Rams Horn

(Letters to the Editor may be left in the switchboard office, S-169, in Science Hall or in The Guardsman office, S-304. Deadlines are 10 a.m. each Wednesday. The Guardsman reserves the right to edit letters in the interests of brevity and rhetoric. If so desired the writer's name will be withheld, but the identity of the writer must be known to the editor.)

Editor's Note: The following letter was received by this semester's Feature Editor, Boku Kodama.

» Slow Change

Dear Boku,

FANTASTIC, you're one of the Guardsman editors!

Now what do you intend to do with your position? What will you add to our bank of information of our so - called collegiate high school?

I would first call to your notice that CCSF is one among three colleges in a system of about 80 institutions that gives an A.A. in Black Studies.

Still, in other areas, we are slow to change.

Are we always to demand and never negotiate? What is "to demand?" This, I think, students are going to want to know. Must you be the picture the Administration wishes it could look like?

Two months ago, the free speech platform near the Ram was used. It was used for Free Speech. It is still there for that purpose — if only you could work at it.

Your Friend,
Kevin Shea
Editor, Free Critic

» Reply

Kevin,

Change only comes about slowly and though I've seen the Guardsman change for the better in recent years to a more involved paper, we will again basically report the news objectively. This is our purpose. Your purpose on the Free Critic is to serve as the voice of the students and to make aware of the many social problems we face in our society, not to mention world crisis.

Last semester, the Guardsman and Critic were deprived of communication. I hope we can work together and inform the students in a more meaningful way.

Boku Kodama
Feature Editor

'Joanna' Emerges As Top Banana Of Under 30 Group

By Ray Gin

In the beginning, "Joanna" appears to be like the two dozen or more soulless and vacuous mod film essays we've been accustomed to of late. But upon the film's ending it's clear that the screen has throbbed with vibrant originality and genuine thoughtfulness that has alluded all the other films.

JOANNA is the typical British bird, mini-skirted, simple-minded and free - going. She leaves her magistrate Daddy in the country for London town to pursue her own set of directions because the provincial standards she grew up with are unacceptable to her now. She becomes an art student and intermingles with that London crowd of hedonists who repeatedly observe that she is living "an aimless and rather pointless life" and that she "must be committed to something." One of these, a beautiful black sister named Beryl, takes Joanna under her wings and takes her on a spree of sleeping around, merchandise hoisting and endless rounds of parties.

Genevieve Waite as Joanna

After an uneasy game of musical beds with an interesting assortment of partners, Joanna abandons herself to a love affair with Beryl's handsome nightclub owner/racketeer brother. In the end, he is sentenced to 10 years imprisonment for manslaughter and Joanna returns to the country to give birth to their illegitimate baby. Her resignation in having the child is the first real sign of dedication and commitment she has ever known.

GENEVIEVE WAITE is remarkable as Joanna. Her overall mannerisms become so natural that it is difficult to separate the actress from the role. Maybe she cannot act at all and that she really is Joanna! Then there is the ideal cast with Glenna Forster-Jones as Beryl, the epitome of "Black is Beautiful", Calvin Lockhart as the nightclub owner, and Donald Sutherland as Beryl's devoted Lord Peter. Sutherland gives an achingly beautiful soliloquy on life and death during the quartet's adventures in Morocco. His love of the Beautiful People and artists and his contribution to their enjoyment becomes a moving portrait of a modern-day saint.

Director, Michael Sarne, a 28-year-old former pop singer composer, journalist, and photographer, has succeeded in giving a somewhat familiar tale of a wispy girl of a transfusion of vitality. His jarring dream sequences are stunningly effective as are his "off-on" flashbacks. Many scenes are derivitives of other films but because Sarne handles them so craftily they come off. Sarne is to be commended for the naturalness of the inter-racial love affairs that appear on the screen sans self-consciousness. It provides a more plausible mixing of the races. The final sequence is such a delicious bit of wit that it would be a bad mistake to give it away.

Openings In Dental Technology

By Jack Ruiz

The Dental Technology Department is looking for more students, Frank Szehner, its director, said there is room for four or five additions. The shortage, he noted, is the result of student's ignorance of the fact that for the first time in the College's history, the program is being offered in the Spring.

All applicants must pass a special manual dexterity and mechanical ability test before they can be accepted into the two-year course because of the highly skilled and rigid standards imposed on the technicians by the dentists.

The curriculum in Dental Laboratory Technology is designed to train students to do the different types of dental work not performed directly on patients. This includes making full and partial dentures, gold inlays, crowns, bridges. It is supplemented with a study of related science and with practical training in a commercial dental laboratory.

The dental technician works from a written prescription and an impression of the patient's mouth supplied by the dentist, and if the occasion demands it he consults the dentist by phone, or at times in person. Szebner describes the technician as "a creator of a masterpiece that is not only aesthetically pleasing but functional as well."

The technician has to have a good manual and finger dexterity. He must be able to discern fine shadings of color and do precise work adhering closely to specifications. Patience, dependability, even temperament and artistic ability rank high on the list of the personal characteristics of the skilled technician.

The Bay Area need for these technicians is great.

Anyone who is interested may contact Mr. Szehner in S-222 for any additional information needed, and to file their applications.

Concerned Students At Home In Experimental College

By Boku Kodama

Sitting cross - legged on a worn - out couch in Bungalow Five one afternoon last week, Joi Grieg began rapping about this semester's Experimental College. "We have an unstructured learning environment," she said, "and the type of people who participate in Experimental College are those who care about education and not just about getting trained."

Two hundred people cared about education last semester and about five hundred are expected to actively participate this semester.

The Experimental College is beginning its second year with a financial assessment of $900. This figure is substantially lower than the original amount of $1,400. The funds were cut last semester by acting AS President Shirley Brown.

Don Peterson, English instructor, faculty advisor and originator of the Experimental College on campus, believes that the purpose of the program is to have students get involved with their personal interest and work with other students, administrators and faculty members to produce the finest education possible.

No units, grades, fees or formalities are required. Those interested in this revolutionary approach to education can receive information and register for classes in B-5 from 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Loan Crisis

(Continued from page 1)

jeopardy has brought into sharp focus, the need to supplement student activities, loans, and enterprises with new type fund raising activities. By signing up with the public relations firm he believed The College would go a long way in alleviating future financial hang-ups.

Dr. Batmale's reaction was that it was his idea to borrow the money from the fund, and that he had notified the council to that effect. He stated that it was regrettable that this situation had occurred, but that it was unavoidable as the funds had run out and could not be replaced except by borrowing from a reserve fund. When asked by the Guardsman to reply to Rice's statement that the Administration delayed in signing up with the public relations firm, Batmale stated that the contract was in the process of being drawn up by a lawyer. It was not being hurried because even if the contract were signed today, it would be some time before the fund-raising by the public relations firm could get under way.

Student Council

(Continued from Page 1)

check the over-all finances of the college. He expressed a possibility in working for more funds for next semester's Student Council.

On Tuesday, February 11 an emergency Student Council meeting was called by Ortiz to discuss and decide on the College President's, Louis G. Conlan, request of a $5000 loan for a renewal of a now-defunct student's aid program.

A new community-wide drive for funds for needy students who otherwise would not be able to remain at the college will be initiated and sponsored by the Foundation of City College of San Francisco. The Foundation has signed a contract with Saunders and Keifer, a public relations firm to conduct the drive.

Optometry for Minorities Here

Opportunities are available for minority students, particularly Afro-American and Mexican-American students, in the field of optometry.

In the near future the University representative from the University of California will visit City College in order to confer with students interested in this field.

Students interested in the field of optometry should contact their counselors immediately.

Campus Police Try To Create New Image

By Marc Kovacs

Cloud Hall, named in honor of the late Dr. Archibald J. Cloud, first president of the College, is one of the principal units of the College. It is also headquarters for the Campus Police.

There are 35 patrolmen this term. A year ago there were 20.

Its members have been tendered the "Special Police oath" which empowers them to demand identification or "stop and frisk" anybody on campus. Special Police can make arrests, too. But the main function of Campus Police, however, is not criminal investigation. That is the domain of the Ingleside Police Station.

The ostensible duties of Special Police are more oriented toward "service" than prevention. For example, they devote more man-hours to traffic than to suspected marijuana violations. But to picture the force as being primarily involved with parking and night watch is incorrect.

To determine the objectives of the force, the Guardsman interviewed Chief Kenneth Cottura. The probe shows that his office is involved in four areas of general interest: parking, smoking, demonstrating and public relations.

Chief Cottura "cautions" parking code offenders against "tearing up the tag," explaining that tickets are issued in quadruple. One copy goes to the operator, two are sent "downtown," and the fourth is filed at Campus Police headquarters. Those who disregard the summons, he noted, will get warrants.

Cottura was vague on the question of demonstrations. He revealed that "confidential" steps will be taken if trouble occurs. But he refused to elaborate, remarking that to disclose such information is tantamount to "giving away plans formulated for your own protection." At the same time Cottura disavowed any link with the Tactical Police Squad. There are, however, frequent contacts with Ingleside Station.

With reference to students who call policemen "pigs," Cottura said, "If they want to think that way, it's their opinion." Just the same, he intends to engage a public relations consultant. The task: create a "good" image of the Campus Police Department.

If a conclusion is to be drawn from Chief Cottura's projects for 1969 it is this one: "Law and Order" has arrived at Cloud Hall.

State College Looks To New Semester With Mixed Emotions

THIS PICTURE, taken during semester break, may be an indication of what effect the strike will have upon enrollment this term. Registration was difficult because students didn't know if their instructors would be teaching.

LAST SEMESTER the San Francisco Police Department was called in time and again to quell campus violence at strike torn State College, as this pictures depicts.

Fourth Straight Hoop Title Near

Color Telecast, Overtime Win Highlight Ram Season

City College of San Francisco has another winner this year on the basketball courts. The Rams are undefeated in Golden Gate Conference action this season and have only lost two league contests in the past four years. They have a 16 game winning streak in league play.

This year's State Finals will be hosted by Fresno City College early in March. For the fourth consecutive year, and the tenth time in the past thirteen years, the Rams appear to be headed to the hardwood tourney.

Much has happened since our last issue. Working backwards, we'll bring you up to date starting with the Chabot game of February 7.

CCSF 75 Chabot 68

In one of the most exciting games of the season, the Rams overcame a determined band of Chabot Gladiators in a 75-68 overtime victory.

Down by two points with 12 seconds left in regulation game, City College guard Bob Phelan dribbled down court and calmly sunk a 10 foot jumper. Chabot quickly called time out with four seconds left. A last second desperate shot by Gladiator Mike Treat hit the rim and bounced away.

Lefty Darrell Fregia paced the Ram offense with 22 points while Gus Hill added 16 and Phelan 15.

CCSF 58 San Jose 50

Paced by a 23 point outburst from center Jesse Arterberry, City College raced to its seventh straight Golden Gate Conference victory, without a defeat, against second-place San Jose, 58-50.

Darrell Fregia and Telvis Jones contributed 15 and 12 points respectively to the Ram cause, as San Jose fell two games behind City College in the league standings.

CCSF 66 Diablo Valley 54

City College scored 13 straight points in the opening moments of the second half to blast the hapless Vikings in a laugher, 66-54.

Though leading by only three points at halftime, it was quite apparent that the Rams possessed the better ball club. The rebounding strength of Jesse Arterberry seemed to be the biggest difference.

Guard Telvis Jones led the scoring with 16 points.

CCSF 62 Foothill 46

Traveling to Los Altos during the semester break, the Rams proved to be most ungracious guests, as they walloped Foothill, 62-46.

Forward Darrell Fregia led the Rams in scoring with 14 points while Bob Phelan hit in double figures, for the first time in GGC play, with 11 points.

Fregia consistently bewildered his opponents with his left-handed style of play.

CCSF 60 San Mateo 49

San Mateo, then ranked 15th in the State ratings, fell prey to a Ram squad that was not to be denied. In spite of a three point Bulldog lead at halftime, City College rallied to win, 60-49.

Telvis Jones again was high point man with 17 points backed by Gus Hill's 12. Jesse Arterberry and Darrell Fregia each knocked in 10 counters.

CCSF 81 Laney 75

In a game televised from our campus, the Rams beat a gutty flock of Laney Eagles, 81-75, before a packed house of screaming spectators.

A 15-point Ram halftime lead almost wasn't enough as the Eagles staged rally after rally. Ram forward Darrell Fregia scored 23 big points in the game aired to Bay Area viewers over KUDO, Channel 38. In living color no less.

CCSF 64 Merritt 58

City College's Big Three (Jones, Arterberry and Fregia) paved the way for a 64-58 victory over the T-Birds.

A 10-point halftime lead provided a cushion for the Rams in the second half.

Telvis Jones was the big scorer of the night with 19 points while Jesse Arterberry and Darrell Fregia scored nine each.

Babe Ruth hit 60 home runs in 1927.

Roger Maris hit 61 in 1961.

OUT OF SIGHT SHOT — Ram forward Keith Miles leaps a two pointer over the out-stretched arm of San Mateo's Steve Connolly. Bulldogs Mark Wilson (15) and Roger Carmine look on while the Rams' Gus Hill comes up to help.
Photo by Sam Woo

Baseball Begins

City College starts out on the long road back to baseball respectability today as the Rams open pre-season play against Galileo at Balboa Park.

Strengthened by the return of 17 sophomores and some fine talent from the high schools, the diamond men don't expect to repeat last season's disastrous 8-13 record. Last year's campaign was the college's worst since 1962.

Tops among the returning pitchers is John Portoni, one of the finest hurlers in the Golden Gate Conference last season. Backing up Portoni will be righthander Irv Jones and two southpaws, Rich Heinz and Dave Lopez.

Coach Ernie Domecus also expects two stars from Poly, last season's AAA champion, to help out. They are Rick Cole and Mike Morris.

At the backstop position will probably be roly-poly Tom Mayfield, a two-time All-City choice and returnee from last season. Backing Mayfield is Pete Edwards an ex-Galileo catcher.

A look at the infield reveals that sophomores have apparently sewed up all four spots with Han Vigil at first, Andy Fracchia at second, Tim Callen at shortstop and hard-hitting Jim Smith at third. Smith, a .338 hitter, led the Rams in homeruns and RBI last spring.

Domecus also possesses a good glove man in Rich Escalambre to back up the starters.

Filling out the lineup in the outfield will be Manny Berrios and Dave Kline with Fred Wilson, having a good chance to nail down the third spot.

Competition in the always tough GGC will be rugged as usual with Chabot, San Mateo and Laney being rated as the teams to beat. P. C.

GOLF CANCELLED

Friday's proposed golf match at Sonoma Country Club was postponed due to heavy rains. CCSF was to play against Merritt, Santa Rosa and Contra Costa Junior Colleges.

Coming Events

Today, (Feb. 19)
BASEBALL—CCSF vs. Galileo High School, Balboa Field, 3 p.m.

Friday (Feb. 21)
BASKETBALL — CCSF vs. Foothill Junior College, Men's Gym, 8 p.m.
BASEBALL — CCSF vs. Ohlone College, Balboa Field, 2:30 p.m.
GOLF—CCSF vs. Merritt College, Harding Golf Course, 1 p.m.

Saturday (Feb. 22)
BASEBALL—CCSF vs. Sacramento City College, Balboa Field, 12 noon.

Tuesday (Feb. 25)
BASKETBALL — CCSF vs. Diablo Valley College, Men's Gym, 8 p.m.

Tennis Anyone?

The cliche "Anyone for Tennis?" is very apropos this spring at City College. Roy Diederichsen, who coached his team to a league title last year, is badly in need of more tennis players—no experience necessary.

Those interested in this invigorating sport please contact Coach Diederichsen in the Men's Gym.

San Mateo Falls As Rams Remain Undefeated In GGC

By Phil DiCarlo

It looks as if the City College Ram basketball team has done it again. With their 53 to 47 victory over a tough College of San Mateo club last Tuesday night, the Rams have virtually locked up another Golden Gate Conference Championship.

An appreciative crowd of 250 spectators were on hand to watch the home team stay undefeated in league play. City College, the state's third ranked team, apparently has captured its fourth consecutive league crown.

Keith Miles, a 6'4" hot shot from Indiana, came off the bench with three and one half minutes left in the first half to spark the team to victory. Miles, who came in for starter Darrell Fregia (who was having an infrequent off-night), hit on all five of his shots from the floor. He wound up with ten points for the night.

Big Jesse Arterbery again led the Ram attack with 11 counters. Jacob Augustus (Gus) Hill tied Miles for second honors with ten. Telvis Jones finished with nine, Fregia had eight and Bob Phelan, who missed his three shots from the field, five.

Top-notch Bulldog guard, Lou Carbo (who stands 5'7"), got into early foul trouble and left with the game only eight minutes old. Ram coach Sid Phelan's game plan called for Telvis Jones, the man Carbo was to guard, to play under the backboard. The shorter Carbo couldn't play Jones well there and quickly drew three personals.

With Carbo out of the game and the Rams beginning to get warmed up, the one-time Bulldog seven to nothing lead soon vanished. City College led by two at halftime, 30-28.

Even with Carbo back in the line-up in the second half, the Bulldogs couldn't close in. Good performances by forwards Mark Wilson and Roger Carmine kept CSM in the game.

The Ram JV squad whipped Lincoln High, 85-54, in the preliminary game.

CCSF—53

Name	fg	ft	pf	tp
Fregia	4-9	0-1	1	8
Hill	4-10	2-4	4	10
Arterbery	3-9	5-5	2	11
Phelan	0-3	5-6	2	5
Jones	3-7	3-7	3	9
Miles	5-5	0-2	0	10
Casey	0-1	0-0	0	0
Cupp	0-0	0-0	0	0
TOTALS	19-44	15-25	12	53

Shooting percent—43.2 per cent.

CSM—47

Name	fg	ft	pf	tp
Wilson	5-11	1-3	4	11
Carmine	6-17	1-2	2	13
Connolly	5-13	1-1	3	11
Carbo	1-3	0-1	4	2
Murphy	1-5	1-1	1	3
Sherman	1-3	1-1	5	3
Christensen	2-3	0-1	0	4
Dolezal	0-0	0-0	1	0
TOTALS	21-54	5-10	20	47

Shooting—38.9 per cent FO—Sherman.
Technical Foul—CSM Bench.

Weekend scores

BASKETBALL

In a dull game at the Oakland Auditorium Friday night, the Rams rolled over a hapless Merritt team 59-50, to remain undefeated in league play.

If the Rams won last night's game with Laney, they've clinched a tie for the title.

SWIMMING

Curt Decker's team dropped a tough match to Monterey Peninsula College last Friday, 66-45. Frank Johnson and Dave Nelson won the 200 yard Butterfly and 200 yard Backstroke respectively. The 400 yard relay team, composed of Rich Glass, Jeff Tsu, Len Lynch and Johnson, also won. Diver George Smith fared well, taking a second and a third.

Potpourri

Swimming

City College's swimming team is hoping to start the spring on an improved note, to make up for last fall's disastrous water polo season.

Coach Curt Decker has three top veterans returning this spring; Rich Glass, Frank Johnson and Dave Nelson. All three swam on that water polo team. Glass will swim in the butterfly and the 1000 yard freestyle while Johnson is entered in the 500 yard freestyle. Nelson swims both the 100 and 200 yard freestyle events.

Golf

Golf Coach Grover Klemmer faces tough competition this season but thinks he has the golfers to take it all.

Ken Kendert, Donn Paulson, Greg Corvi, Duane Cosper and Mike Geverts are just a few of ready to take to the links this year. San Jose's Forrest Fezler and Ed Morris, who finished one-two in the State last year, are back to accept all challenges.

Intramurals

Petitions are now being handed out to all of those who wish to form a team for the Spring Basketball program.

Gary Siri is in charge of the project down in the AS office. Sign-ups must be completed by Feb. 27.

Track

City College always seems to turn out a good track team and this year's is no exception.

Coach Lou Vasquez returns with Vic Cary, Jim Baldocchi, Steve Jordan, Vince Ansley, August Berry and high jumper Tom Clyburn just to name a few.

State Strike Unresolved

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Journalism Students of City College of San Francisco

Volume 68 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 26, 1969 NUMBER 2

State Demands Uncompromised Result: chaos

By Marc Kovacs

It's easy to see why professors are striking at San Francisco State College. The reasons are everywhere on campus.

There's the bombed-out Administration Building. There's the 48-foot long, 25-foot deep hole being dug in what was once the Green. There's the Daily Gater which ceased publication after the California Attorney General seized its funds. There's the Hayakawa supporter passing out blue buttons on Holloway Avenue. And there are the helmeted, club-wielding policemen stationed at every entrance and in every hallway of every building.

What happened at State? This question is not as easy to answer. For one thing, everybody has a different interpretation. Ask the policemen guarding the main approach what they're doing. They will say, "protecting the students from each other." Ask the same question at a side entrance and the reply is, "watching the girls go by." Confusion, in short, reigns supreme.

The faculty, needless to say, is aware of the situation. To the American Federation of Teachers, conditions are "intolerable." Hence the walk-out.

"When the Labor Council found out just what our conditions were, they were appalled," said Henry McGuckin, a long-time AFT member, in a recent Gater article. According to McGuckin, three of these "appalling" conditions were:

- "Lack of anything resembling a contract;
- "A grievance procedure in which management has the last word; and

(Continued on Page 3)

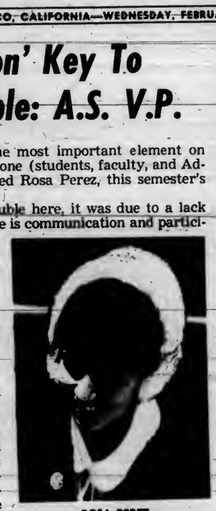
John Cochran Resigns for Movie Career

By Jack Ruiz

In a surprise move John Cochran, drama instructor, resigned last week to play the leading role in the movie "Plastic Gold." His resignation took both students and faculty by surprise as no pre-notice or inkling was given to ease the shock it caused on campus.

Cochran, who came to the College last fall as a drama instructor, had gained a multitude of friends, both black and white, on campus with his quiet and unassuming manner. His obvious talent was vividly displayed in his roles in "Slow Dance on a Killing Ground" and "Royal Hunt of the Sun."

When questioned about his plans after the movie was finished, Cochran said, "I hope to return to City College if my position has not been filled as I have many ideas that I would like to try out. I would like to build an awareness of Black



(Continued on Page 3)

'Communication' Key To Campus Trouble: A.S. V.P.

By Lavise Lee

"Communication, that's the most important element on any campus in bringing everyone (students, faculty, and Administration) together," stated Rosa Perez, this semester's AS vice-president.

"If there has been any trouble here, it was due to a lack of communication, but if there is communication and participation by everyone, then we really have something that is worthwhile," she continued.

ROSA PEREZ
AS Vice-President
photo by Eugene Wong

As a member of a minority race, the Latin Americans, Miss Perez sees a vast need for encouraging potential dropouts and all students to continue with their educations.

"I was a very naive person when I first came to City College, but then I met people like Don (Don Ortiz, AS president) and I started to see how the minority student was being let down and shoved around in his education, I wanted to do something for these students so I became involved," stated the former vice president of Balboa High School.

The AS vice president credits La Raza Unida, a Latin American organization on campus, for providing her with the initiative and interest to become involved.

Since many students are dropping out because of lack of money and poor grades, Miss Perez has suggested such constructive things as expanding the Financial Aid and Tutorial Programs. But she also pointed out that there are various student committees which will now assist the student in many beneficial ways. "Here again, communication and involvement are the key words," emphasized the vice president.

The 19 year old vice president encourages students to bring their problems to the AS and Administration to make them heard.

She stated, "If people don't care enough to get involved and have a say in their education, they're not worth much. If they want something, they have to get it themselves."

The former sophomore president believes that students are now becoming involved in their educational destinies and that the turmoil on college campuses is partly responsible for this.

"People used to be too scared to do anything, but now they are beginning to come out of their shells to become involved," stated Miss Perez.

This semester's vice president thinks City College is "groovy." "I love all the people here," she stated. "The idea that this college is an extension of high school is a big farce. Students have to realize that this college provides so many opportunities for them. They have to come in feeling that they are adults and not kids," she continued.

When asked to comment on her job and duties as vice president, Miss Perez replied, "Up to now, I have been involved mainly in social activities, but I hope and want to do more things for students. The job of vice president is generally thought of as being mediocre, but it isn't; it is a very important one."

Gung Hay Fat Choy!

If by chance you're on the third floor of the Science Building and an unrelentless crow is heard, No!, you're not in Sunnybrook Farm territory.

The honorable crowing belongs to George San-Sung, a strong winded harbinger that the Life Science Department is exhibiting in honor of the Chinese's Year of the Rooster.

The display window is decorated with Chinese characters and two firecrackers to ward off evil spirits. George was brought to the college by Mr. Frank Szehner, Dental Lab Technician Director from his home where the rooster, named Sir George, was the children's pet.

George is a Banty Rooster and they are notorious for their cock-fights. In direct contradiction, the rooster is a gentle pet who eats from the hand that feeds it and perches on any friendly shoulder. It eats chicken scratch and is housed on the weekend in the fourth floor Animal Room of the Science Building. The rooster will remain in display for three weeks and may go on an extended trip to Counselor Howard Schoon's Castro Valley Ranch.

Anyone born under the sign of the rooster — the years 1897, 1909, 1921, 1933, 1945 and 1957— is credited with being industrious, a deep thinker, and aggressive. The cock's comb symbolizes literary success and scholarship and thus, the bird is favorable for writers and serious students.

Budget, Delano Grape Strike Topics Of Council Meeting

By Roy Gin

The Spring 1969 budget and a resolution stating support for the striking Delano grape growers were both passed at the Student Council meeting last Monday.

The passed budget, an individual endeavor by former A.S. President Shirley Brown, was the overriding choice over the collaborated budget of Finance Chairman Derrick Quan, AS President Don Ortiz and Miss Brown.

The granted sum was $37,916.75 and the projected income for the coming semester is expected to be approximately $41,000. The budget for the Spring is slightly lower than the Fall semester because of its lack of a major sport event such as football, which accounts for a considerable amount of revenue.

Although the budget has been passed, future cuts are forthcoming due to the lack of funds at the present time according to Quan. Some of the grants made were, Drama ($3200), Experimental College ($950), KCSF ($1708), culmination of sport grants, which includes Varsity and JV Basketball, Golf, Swimming, Tennis and Track ($9195.53), Physical Education ($290), Executive Council ($2452), Tutorial Center ($480), Concert/Lecture series ($4000), Campus Police ($152.25), General Loans ($500), Public Relations Workshop ($1470), Controller ($3950), and Free Critic ($1000).

A resolution to boycott the Safeway grocery chains on behalf of the striking Delano

(Continued on Page 3)

Strike Sticks Amid Growing Restlessness

By Randy Flynn/Rita Carroll

As the educational process continues so do the various strikes.

Between the student strikers and the AFT strikers there still remain many who are not on strike.

It is probably safe to state that there is only a minority of faculty members on strike. The faculty strikers are mainly young teaching assistants or part time professors who have no long term interest in the school or no interest in continuing with the school in the future. In general they have nothing to lose.

On strike or not on strike, almost every faculty member realizes that the California State College system does not have the benefits of other schools.

The 12 hour teaching load is an enormous load and this is only the actual classroom work. This does not include preparation for the class.

The dedicated teacher has to keep up his knowledge and this requires still more time and there is a definite need for more time for counseling the students.

There are some very justifiable reasons to strike although many believe this is not the professional thing to do. The AFT have some legitimate fundamental demands. They do not like the tactics of the establishment or the tightness of funds.

On the campus there is evidence of a pulling together of forces to end the strike.

A Committee for Academic Environment, a student group with many teachers' approval is now in action to try and see that the problems are settled without violence.

This committee is organizing a recall election to recall the present student government because of unfair money distribution and discrimination in the way it is given. They want to see new student body officers who are more representative of the students and prove that there can be a responsible student body government. Student body government is legitimate, they state.

Faculty Renaissance, another group, is an informal association of faculty members who are dedicated to the improvement of San Francisco State College as an academic institution.

All of its activities are aimed at a renaissance or revival of reliance upon thorough study, peaceful discussion and debate, the use of reason, and properly established procedures to resolve problems rather than reliance on the use of force, or the threat of force, to achieve one's goals.

Time goes on, with the strikes, classes and unmet demands and an undetermined future for State.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Students in the Journalism Department of City College of San Francisco

Thomas O. Graham, Editor

184

Vol. 68, No. 2 WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 26, 1969 Page 2

Student Loans Resurrected

THE GUARDSMAN SALUTES Dr. Louis F. Batmale, vice-president of the college, AS President Don Ortiz and Student Council for involving themselves in a project recently that has benefited our students.

It was through their efforts that the threatened halt on student book and short term loans never became reality.

Due to a lack of funds the loans were to be cut. It was Tom Rice and Charles Harding of the Financial Aid staff that deserve credit for bringing it to the attention of Dr. Batmale, Ortiz and Student Council. Together they quickly researched the situation and discovered that they could borrow $5000 from an inactive Athletic Insurance Fund.

Thanks to them the money was transferred to the Financial Aid Office short term loan account and student loans were again resumed.

Gentlemen, keep up the good work.

Whose Side Are You On?

WITH VARIOUS CAMPUSES (not only in the Bay Area, but across the nation) being disrupted by student strikes, protests and demonstrations, a number of questions arise.

The question of paramount importance is why can't administrators communicate with students or vice versa.

Another question which comes to mind is does the news media (radio, television, newspapers, magazines, etc.) make a field day out of events that otherwise might have been resolved without much difficulty.

And my final question is how does violence further anyone's goals.

One element that I believe definitely acts as a thorn in the side of communication is the extremists on both sides, for how can people who have already made up their minds be of any assistance in solving a situation that requires understanding more than one point of view.

How the news media handle news is another area which deserves investigation. It seems as though controversial subjects are always covered with a shade of personal prejudice. Although objectivity is the goal of good reporters, nowadays it is nearly impossible to pick up a paper or listen to the news without detecting some sign of bias reporting.

Being able to keep an open mind is essential in today's society—unfortunately not many people can. It's fashionable to take sides instead of evaluating the merits of certain aspects of a situation.

What's Wrong With City College?

George March, Art major.

From what I've seen of City College I don't think I'm going to dig it. It's too much in the lock step tradition of school, and this is not my game. Everything is like organized in such a way that it's just a drag—you know—you do the same thing over and over again. It's like an Army camp.

Reginald Burton, Liberal Arts major.

Well, as I see it they're kind of strict on absences. I think that as long as you do your work and know what's going on in the class that they shouldn't drop you out 'cause you've been absent a few days. It seems that the social atmosphere out here is limited and I'm a very social person who likes to talk a lot of people. As far as the academic thing goes—I dig it.

Jon Lovett, General Education major

The lack of student determination in academic policies in the school. In other words the student has no say of what subjects in the curriculum are taught in the college. Students should have more of a voice in what is taught here. I'm really interested in writing, but you can't come here and get a degree in writing.

Deanne Stavrof, Airline Stewardess major

The bookstore! They never have enough books available for each department's need. I mean they didn't have my political science book. Now they make you show a receipt when you drop a class even though they know the book is from their store. I think books are over-priced a littie too. (Compiled by Barbara Hamann, photos by Sam Woo)

Police Brutality?

Campus parking regulations were enforced by issuance of citations last Monday when Officer Clint Locy proved there was no exception to the rules.

Parking permits are necessary to distinguish the student automobile and provide him with parking privileges at one of the four available lots on campus.

Permits are available in C-119 between the hours of 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. daily. Drivers must present their AS card, automobile registration, and driver's license. All permits must be attached tothe lower right hand side of the windshield.

Guardsman Photo by Jules Claessens

Draft Counselling Program Developed To Help Students

By Marc Kovacs

The United States is a nation at war. As such, all able-bodied males between the ages of 18 and 26 are confronted with the possibility of induction into the Armed Forces. Students are no exceptions.

At City College, draft information is processed by two persons: an administrator and a student. The former supplies the Selective Service with pertinent data. The latter offers legal alternatives to interested pupils.

John J. Brady, co-ordinator of student welfare, maintains offices in ES-103. There, students wanting draft classifications or deferments can obtain SS Form 109—a yellow punch card with space for the following information: "Last name, First name; Selective Service Number; S.S. Status and Student Number." Two copies are made. One is forwarded to Selective Service headquarters at 100 McAllister Street. The carbon is filed in the Administration Building.

The only thing Brady does is determine whether the student is attending school on a "full or part-time basis."

As Dean Brady observes, "we wouldn't do it if nobody asked."

Stuart Dicker, in Bungalow 5, is in the business of advising students of their rights under the draft. "We're here," he said, "to inform people on what they can or cannot do." He suggests that the best thing a student can do is register as a Conscientious Objector. At the same time, however, he points out that there are 18 draft classifications, ranging from 1-A to 4-F. Many students, it seems, are only aware of the 2-S exemption.

Who the student seeks for help is a question of choice. "Dealing with the draft," noted Dicker, "is a matter of conscience; a personal decision."

Garbage, Garbage!!

Guardsmen Photo by Bert Flowers

It is agreed that City College is not the most beautiful campus in the area, but why should its students contribute to this situation by dropping junk all over the campus?

Both Statler Wing and Smith Hall are kept somewhat clean because there are enough cans to serve the students. It is quite uncomfortable, though, to sit down on a chair that has recently had a cup of coke spilled on it.

A student should try to get his mess cleaned up before leaving the scene.

But what else is there to do; if one finds himself sitting on the lawn with his lunch, there are no cans within 30 feet. Of course one is not expected to get up and walk a whole 30 feet just to throw one lousy wrapper away. Besides, what difference would one more wrapper make? The answer is up to you.

"Every litter bit hurts" the appearance of the campus and even you. So do yourself a favor, before you lie down on one of the lawns check the immediate area so you don't lay on anything you wouldn't want to lay on. The odds are not on your side.

DISPATCH

By Boku Kodama

On October 14, 1968, 27 soldiers sat down in the stockade yard in the Presidio and began singing, "We Shall Overcome" to protest the killing of a prisoner, Private Richard Bunch, 19 years old.

Bunch was trying to escape the stockade when a military policeman saw him. Instead of firing over the prisoner's head or even at his legs, the MP shot Bunch squarely in the back.

Three men have already stood trial and been convicted of mutiny.

Army Private Nesrey Dean Sood, 28, of Oakland, was the first to be sentenced on February 13. He will serve 15 years at hard labor in the U.S. Army Disciplinary Barracks at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas. Sood will receive forfeiture of all pay and a dishonorabie discharge.

Two days later, Private Larry Reidal and Private Louis Oszczepinski were convicted and sentenced to 14 and 16 years respectively at Leavenworth. They have also lost all pay and will be discharged dishonorably.

• • •

HOW CAN A MODERN society such as ours let men be punished so cruelly? We have transplanted hearts in humans, circled the moon and created VISTA. We have advanced in our knowledge of this world and the beyond, and yet been too blind not to see the barbaric and medieval ways of one institution, the army.

A man in the army is no longer a human being; he is a thing which does what it is told. He loses all concepts of freedom and rights, as granted by the American Constitution.

The men who run the army generally can be thought of as having authoritarian personalities. They reason that the only way to settle a conflict is to violently destroy the opposition.

In the case of the mutiny of the ship, the H.M.S. Bounty in the 18th Century, the mutineers were hanged or put into life imprisonment. These men had taken control of the ship and cast aside its captain in a small row boat. Now this is mutiny, but how can mutiny be considered when a group of men protest as individuals against the senseless slaying of one of their fellow men?

We must not allow such a ruthless and mindless institution as the army to get away with controlling the lives of men so drastically.

We can change the backward ways of the army and no doubt this must be done. Can one imagine if our society was run by the Army. Sieg Heil! !

Guardsman Staff

SPRING 1969

EDITOR IN CHIEF ..... TOM GRAHAM
Managing Editor ..... Barbara Hamann
Feature Editor ..... Boku Kodama
News Editor ..... Randy Flynn
Sports Editor ..... Phil DiCarlo
Editorial Assistants: Rita Carroll, Lavina Lee, Lynda Sandstrom.
Reporters: Patrick Chan, Gerry Engler, Ray Gin, Marc Kovacs, Jack Ruiz, T. Y. Wong.
Photographers: Gavin Watt, Chief; Sam Alvarado, Jules Claesens, Bert Flowers, Jerry Jan, David Kalman, Wayne Leong, Antony Repudio, Jerry Warren, Earl Williams, Joseph Wilson, Russell Wong.

Campus Lineup This Week

Draft Counseling is available five days a week in Bungalow 5. Hours of operation are Monday, Wednesday, and Friday from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., and Tuesday and Thursday, 9 a.m. through 12 noon. For further information call Stuart or Mike at the Experimental College, extension 464 . . . Veterans who plan to receive educational subsistence must check in with Robin Dunn, Veterans' Counselor, E-202 immediately. . . . "The Captain From Kopenick" will be shown at the College Theatre tomorrow evening at 8 p.m. Tickets are free and may be obtained from members of the English Department . . . Phi Beta Delta fraternity's dance will be held at Smith Hall Friday from 9-12 midnight. Tickets will be on sale at the door . . . Verification of Absence Due to Illness forms from the Student Welfare Division are no longer required as of this semester. Attendance accounting will be directly between the student and the instructor . . . The Gallery, sponsored by the Student League of San Francisco, a non-profit organization, is presently displaying the works of three City College artists, Hilarion Ayalin, Noly Paat, and Kirk Roberts . . . Muni bus tokens are sold daily at the Student Bank, E-207 . . . Opera auditions are being held at the Opera Variety Theatre of San Francisco for their production of Flotow's opera "Martha." For details call Violette Dale, director, at 566-5806 . . . Tour Europe this summer for seven weeks (including the Mediterranean to North Africa). Those interested should contact Richard Noble, C-331D . . . Drugs and the Law, a new publication, has been published by UCLA and is available in limited quantities (up to 10) without cost to the member colleges of the California Junior College Association. Requests should be addressed directly to: Dr. Byron H. Atkinson, Dean of Students, UC, Los Angeles, California.

Tutorial Moves Ahead As Changes Are Contemplated

By Jack Ruiz

City College's tutorial program will move ahead according to Brad Borel, Chairman of the tutorial program as many new changes are contemplated for the Spring semester.

A different approach is being used this term in a drive to involve more faculty in the program and eventually develop a student-faculty link in all phases of the program.

John Mass, English instructor, is currently instructing a new group of prospective tutors so that they will be able to bridge the gap from student to teacher. Mass' job is threefold: to instill confidence, to develop a sense of pride in what they are doing, and to give them a few tips picked up through years of experience.

Many students probably wonder about the value of the program; Borel stated that the present tutorial program had approximately 375 student and 195 tutors involved during the fall semester and hoped to double that this semester.

Borel had some strong gripes however, such as making the students aware of the service, taking advantage of the help that is available, and failing to interest and involve teachers in the program. Another deterrent was the irresponsible attitude of some of the people involved in the program itself.

Another important development is the use, for the first time by the service, of films and other types of visual aids implemented by the use of tape recorders and other advanced technical equipment.

How does one appiy for tutorial help? First, the student fills out an application card stating name, subjects desired and other pertinent facts. Second, the student meets the tutor assigned to him, and the tutor attempts to find out the areas in which the student needs assistance. Tutor and student are then paired off one to one for the semester, or as long as deemed necessary.

Tutors are picked first for their interest, knowledge of the subject to be taught, academic background, and ability to get along with people.

Another aspect is that many students aspire to be teachers and the program is a place where they can begin. It gives invaluable training and understanding of the problems involved in the teaching profession.

Council Meeting

(Continued from Page 1)

grape growers was also passed by a vote of three to two, with the rest of the Council abstaining. Ortiz feels a definite humanitarian need in supporting the ill-treated grape growers rather than a strictly ethnic attachment.

Earlier in the meeting, Quan presented a new Associated Students Financial Policies and Code booklet. This booklet was established to provide room for new policies, to create new operating procedures and to redefine the Finance Committee.

Important highlights of the booklet include 100 per cent AS card holders in all budgeted organizations, a more minute redefinition of the Finance Affairs Commission so as to give a more in-depth review of requested expenditures, and the requirement of AS card holder for all contributing writers and photographers to the Free Critic. Quan hopes that this code will eliminate many of the budget procedure problems of last semester.

Questions were also directed to Dr. Harry Buttimer, Co-ordinator of Educational Management, and Dean Louis Batmale on the recent book loan controversy in which Student Council had to appropriate a $5000 loan.

Gung Hay Fat Choy!

George Sam-Sue is in a Chinese New Year display on the third floor of the Science Building.

Cochran Resigns

(Continued from Page 1)

Drama at the College. My relation with both the faculty and students has been good and I would like to thank them for the success I have enjoyed here and the esprit de corps which developed during our productions."

Among Cochran's many plans is to put on the dramatic version of "Big Time Buck White" and organize a black drama troupe which would tour other campuses in putting on productions.

On Black Culture he said that he would like to present it from a dramatic viewpoint and show to people of all races its beauty and varied touches of humor, sadness, and love from within.

In the words of drama instructor Dr. Walter Krumm, "Cochran was not seen as a black man, but as a man who commanded respect from everyone with whom he came in contact. His love for his fellow man was his greatest virtue. We shall miss this man who walked and spoke softly but left his impression in the hearts of us all."

Negro History Week Hosts Black Authors And Illustrator Here

Four Black authors and a black illustrator were the featured guests and participants in this year's Negro History Week, which ran from Sunday, February 9 to Sunday, February 16.

The five visiting artists met with groups of school children from all over the Bay Area throughout the week in various branch libraries in San Francisco.

All five dealt mainiy with poetry and prose for children. They came here from New York to take part in the week's activity.

Invitations were sent to selected teachers, librarians, and writers, but all interested citizens were free to come.

Negro History Week was directed by Miss Effie Lee Morris, coordinator of children's services at the Public Library, and it was co-sponsored by the San Francisco Negro Historical and Cultural Society and the Children's Book Council.

The artists were Elsie Archer, Lorenz Graham, Virginia Hamilton, Edyth Haskell, and Alvin Smith.

Stalking Moon A Modern 'Oldie'

By Ray Gin

Recently, three films attempted to revitalize three classic American cinematic forms: the classic western, the infamous gangster film and the notorious prison-riot film.

Of the three, Robert Mulligan's "The Stalking Moon" is the only one that succeeeds.

The year is 1881 and the place is the Arizona plains. Sam Varner (Gregory Peck), a scout retiring from the U.S. Cavalry, suddenly finds himself befriended to a blonde woman, Sarah Carver (Eva Marie Saint), a captive of an Apache tribe for ten years, and her half-breed, no-name son (Noland Clay). The trio fled to New Mexico when the woman's psychotic Apache husband, Salvaje, pursuing them for his son, leaves a bloody trail of corpses.

The classic confrontation between good and evil is put in a taut and breathholding suspense that never once lets down. It is a tension that when we look at each frame we are searching nervously for a visual clue or a hap-chance sound that may indicate Salvaje's whereabouts. Although he is hardly ever seen, Salvaje's presence is always felt and keeps us suspecting him of lurking behind the fog-capped mountains, hiding in the barbwire like forest, or creeping up to the cabin door or window. The success of the film lies in director Mulligan's resourcefulness. Keeping the number of characters to a minimum, economizing on dialogue, and simplifying the story line, Mulligan has crafted a solid, old-fashioned thriller.

But none of that classical charm rubs off on either Martin Ritt's "The Brotherhood", an attempt at the old-gangster film or William Castle's "Riot!", an updated version of that old American favorite, the prison-break film.

"The Brotherhood" is a flimsy excuse for defining the new Mafia in America and in Sicily. What we really get is a double-dosage of old-time cliches and worn-out sympathetic ties with that old band of Italians who resemble the likes of Little Caesar. And it's pretty difficult to be sympathetic with the Mafia nowadays! The use of such shop-worn situations as the closely knit Italian family, the wailing of onlookers at an Italian funeral, the secret underground meetings of the syndicate, and the old-fashion "hit" remove the film from the contemporeity it needs to succeed today.

The only novelty apparent in "Riot!" is the fact that the film was made within the confines of the Arizona State Prison. The "sit-in" premise of the inmates for better prison conditions is so improbable that the film suffers from piausibility and not authenticity. With a film like this, one yearns for past pictures such as Paul Muni's "I Am a Fugitive from a Chain Gang", when prison films were logical and intriguing. The only question that comes to my mind is why did the Arizona State officials pledge their cooperation for such a superficial and laughable account of today's prison Life?

Swahili, Afro Dance At College

World renowned dancer and choreographer Zack Thompson jointed the college faculty last semester to instruct Primitive Dance, which has never been taught before at City College.

This course has been offered because Lena Johnson,a physical education instructor, felt this type of a class was needed in the physical education program. It took one year, with the help of Dean Jack Aldridge, assistant dean of instruction, to set up the class which Mrs. Johnson said, "everyone is grateful for."

Thompson has had extensive training in modern dance, modern jazz, primitive dance and ballet; and has an outstanding background as a professional instructor, dancer and choreographer. He has taught at the University of Toronto in Canada and has choreographed in various nightclubs for singers and dancers. In addition, he has been responsible for dance numbers seen on several of the television programs, including the Bell Telephone Hour.

Another class, Swahili 1, has been added to the present Black studies program at the college.

The two sections of Swahili are taught by Elizabeth Wangari. Miss Wangari, who came from Kenya, received her degree from Hayward State College.

"The curriculum for the black man has taken a secondary position," Bob Tealer, a former counselor, said, especially from the cultural and literary standpoint. "No one thinks it strange for Russian, German or French to be offered and spoken and there is nothing at the college."

Approximately 40 students are enrolled in the classes and most of the students think the class is "very stimulating."

State Demands Uncompromised

(Continued from Page 1)

• "A heavy work-load."

There are other considerations, including, "ethics, minority students, quality education and trustee responsibility." These points are explained in literature distributed by pickets. One "fact sheet", printed by Local 1352, not only lists 21 "strike issues"; it attempts to answer the question, "why we strike."

"Teachers," it holds, "owe their students the obligation to insist on good schools for their eddcation."

Further, the paper said, the teaching load at State is 50 per cent higher than at comparable colleges; salaries lag 30-40 per cent behind those of other universities, and "most important, absentee political control of S.F. State's destiny has made it impossible to adapt to the unique urban conditions and needs of minority students."

"Our strike," concludes the statement, "comes after ten years of effort to improve conditions.

Such intransigence points to only one thing: more turmoil at San Francisco State College.

Winning basketball coaches, Sid Phelan (lt) and Brad Duggan (also JV coach). Photo Credit—Bert Flowers

Basketball Coach Phelan Ranked Tops By 'In' Crowd

By Phil DiCarlo

When discussing outstanding basketball coaches in California, the "in" people speak of John Wooten, Jerry Tarkarian and Sid Phelan.

These three are some of the most successful basketball mentors in California, if not the United States.

Wooten is, of course, the highly acclaimed coach of the UCLA Bruins. Tarkarian, after many successful years at Pasadena City College, is now at Long Beach State. Sid Phelan is at the helm of City College's team.

Phelan played basketball at St. Mary's High School in Berkeley and at Marin Junior College. He didn't play at Cal and very little while in the Navy.

In 1946, Phelan began his coaching career at Napa High School. In 1956, after eight years at George Washington High, he came to City College. Now his opposing coaches wish he would have stayed at Washington.

Phelan - coached teams have dominated the Golden Gate Conference. With this year's title just about in the bag, his record is a fantastic 10 Championships in 14 seasons. This will be the fourth one in a row.

Last summer, Phelan was an assistant coach for the Junior College team entered in the Olympic try-outs. He thoroughly enjoyed the experience, especially since he got a chance to see the amazing Spencer Haywood in action. He believes Haywood, now a star at Detroit University, to be a superior ballplayer.

Brad Duggan, assistant coach and chief scout, was a former top player for Phelan. The rugged, young coach starred for the Rams during the 1960-61 and 61-62 seasons. Duggan, a 6'4" forward, was named to the All-Conference both seasons and was named Most Valuable Player at the 1962 State Tournament.

His next stop was at San Francisco State where he made the All - Northern California Team in addition to being All-Conference and his team's MVP. Since his playing days, Duggan has been the able lieutenant in this college's basketball program.

The brand of basketball these two teach is highly complex. As a matter of fact, it's probably the most complicated system taught in the state—at any level. Phelan and Duggan are both tough coaches. They demand a lot from their players. Their results certainly justify the means.

Phelan, one of the most sought-after speakers for the basketball clinics and banquets around the state, seems to get the very best from his players. Team-work is their most valuable asset. Nobody really shines on a Phelan team, even though he's had some fine ballplayers.

"They (the players) always react well to Phelan's pressure," remarked ex - player Duggan recently. "He has a good rapport with the kids. Most of them understand his methods. The good ones stay and play tough."

Since their offense is so complex, the Rams have always played for the best shots. The defense is hard pressed to cope with them. Consequently, the hoopsters have shot over 50 per cent from the floor, during the last four years. They hold records in the State Tournament for the highest field goal percentage and also for the lowest number of fouls committed.

Another plus under Phelan's system is that the scoring is well balanced among the players. This makes for very good morale on the team.

Weekend Sports

Golf Team Win

Hail, rain and determined golfers set the scene for Monday's golf match at Harding Park. The Ram duffers trounced Merritt 32-3 as Ken Kunert's 73 led the way. Paul Rea, Greg Corvi and Duane Cosper checked in with 74, 75 and 76 respectively. Donn Paulson and Merritt's Charles Greer wound up with 18 hole totals of 80.

Rains Postpone Two Games

Two baseball games were cancelled last weekend due to the heavy rains in the area. The pre - season contests, against Ohlone College and Sacramento City College, were scheduled to be played at Balboa Field, the Ram's home park.

Because of the long rainy spell, Coach Ernie Domecus' players have had to practice in the gym exclusively.

Cagers Finally Lose

Cagers Back On Track; Clubber Foothill, 73-46

By Phil DiCarlo

Rebounding from their loss to Laney, the Ram basetballers ripped Foothill's Owls, 73-46, here at City College last Friday night.

Superior defense was the difference as the Owls were held to only 16 first half points. The Rams tallied 32 in the first stanza while committing only TWO personal fouls!

In the second half, Telvis Jones' hot hand (6 of 7 from the floor) ept the Ram point machine functioning in good order. Jones left the contest with 19 counters to his credit.

The entire bench got into action, generating some excitement of their own. Tom Clyburn's fantastic leaping and a couple of long Louie Cupp jump shots had the half-filled gym resounding with its approval.

Only one game remains in regular season play — against San Jose Setate College here Friday night. The scholastic-ineligibility of high scorer Everett Breaux has certainly been a blow to the Jaguars lately, but they're still a bunch of talented players. Every team gets "un" for the Champs, and they will be no exception. A win over the Rams would make their season. Game time is 8 p.m. in the Men's Gym.

The big question now, is whether or not Contra Costa will challenge the Rams for the right to go to the State Championships in Fresno. Winners of the Camino Del Norte League crown, the Comets must challenge a northern California team if they want a chance at the State Tourney. The winner would then go to Fresno.

The Rams have never lost a playoff game under the tutelage of Coach Sid Phelan (they're five for five), but would probably rather save a top effort for the State Tournament.

Laney Eagles Snap Cagers' Win Streak At 17 Straight

Another string is broken. After 17 straight league victories, the Ram basketballers lost a game.

Last week's loss to Laney's Eagles, 79-68, snapped an undefeated streak that began last February. It was only the third loss, for Coach Sid Phelan's charges, in the last four years of conference play.

The Eagles came soaring back in the second half after being down by six at intermission. Sparkplug guard Sam Hill, a 5'8" sharp-shooter, and forward Otis Allison headed the Laney resurgence. Allison, with 25 points, and Hill's 22 topped the Laney attack.

Probably the biggest factor in turning the tide was when Ram center Jess Arterberry fouled out of the game. With the Rams up by four and 4:04 left in the game, Arterberry drew his fifth personal foul and had to leave the fray. City College never scored again.

Intramural Petitions Out

Gary Siri, AMS President, has made further announcements concerning this semester's Intramural Basetball Program.

After the petitions are submitted on Feb. 27, a meeting will be called with all team captains joining Siri to discuss league procedures. A book of league rules and regulations will be handed out to "try and uplift the competition."

Both the Club and Independent division leaders will be awarded one point at the end of the season. These two teams will have to be beaten twice for another team to make it to the championship game. That final game will be played on Sports Night, May 22.

Anyone interested in entering a team into the league should see Mary Phelan in E-205 for petitions. Only City College students with student body cards may participate.

April Date Marked For R.A. Sports Day

City College of San Francisco will host a Recreation Association Sports Day this Spring for neighboring junior colleges.

According to Jessica Waidler, R.A. President, the April 19 (Sat.) event will be quite an occasion for all concerned.

Volleyball, archery, tennis, three dance categories, badminton, bowling and golf are just a few of the events open to both male and female students. Monterey Peninsula College will also host a Sports Day, but not until sometime in May.

Track Meet At Modesto Today

By Pat Chan

City College, a traditional powerhouse in Golden Gate Conference track, opens up preseason play today with a meet against Modesto Junior College at Modesto.

This year's edition of the Ram track squad is still of an unknown quality thanks to one of the rainiest winters in recent memory.

However, an informal check of the roster reveals that the squad possesses some strength in the distance and relay events while being very weak in the field events (shotput, discus and pole vault).

Coach Lou Vasquez has a few top veterans returning from last season. Among the best are August Berry, who took second place in the triple jump at the GGC meet and Noel Mosely, winner of the NorCal meet's 440.

Vince Ansley (440), Steve Jordan (relays), Vic Cary (880), Tom Clyburn (jumps), and Jim Baldocchi (discus) are among those also expected to be top assets in the team's drive for a GGC title.

Frosh talent includes All-City sprinter Jim Brooks (100,220), Don Bruce (hurdles), Jim Tyree (440) and Marty Hogan (hurdles).

The Catholic Athletic League also supplied City College with some good rookie material. Klaus Hoffman finished in third place for St. Ignatius at the State meet and was a mainstay for the Ram cross country team last fall.

Also from SI is Clyde Saddler, a third place finisher at the State meet in the high jump event.

This season the conference grapevine reports that Merritt might field a powerhouse. San Jose and San Mateo also expect to be in strong contention for the league title.

SISSIES? Former Ram footballer (now Pittsburgh Steeler) Mike Taylor (rt) talks with his former line coach, Pops Schwarz, during a recent visit. Photo Credit—Bert Flowers

Deans' Positions Now Filled

—Photo by Eugene Wang

By Rita Carroll

Appointments were approved February 25 for two new assistant deans to work with the Dean of Students, Dr. Louis Conlan, President of the College, reported.

Assistant to the Dean of Students for women is Edna L. Pope, formerly a member of the Physical Education Department at the college. Robert J. Tealer, a former counselor, was appointed Assistant to the Dean of Students for men.

These assistants, chosen by two committees after the positions were made known to all of the college faculty members and advertised in the Superintendents Bulletin, which goes to all public schools.

On February 1, the 23 applicants were interviewed by a screening committee. Each of the two screening committees were composed of three members of the administrative staff and two students who acted in an advisory capacity.

The four students serving on these committees were the President of the Associated Students and the President of the Men Students on one committee and the Associated Students Vice President and President of the Women Students on the other.

This was the first time students were able to participate in administrative selection and they played an important part in presenting the students' point of view. Dr. Conlan felt this was necessary since the people filling these positions are closely related to the students.

Three candidates were selected by each committee and presented to the President and four members of the Administrative staff for final interviewing.

The two candidates were approved by the Superintendent

(Continued on Page 4)

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Journalism Students of City College of San Francisco

Volume 68 | SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—WEDNESDAY, MARCH 5, 1969 | NUMBER 3

Council, Faculty Continue Bookstore Investigation

By Jack Raiz

Student and Faculty committees reviewing the Associated Students Bookstore are hoping to complete their fact-finding operation this week.

The review of the book store was touched off when a twelve page memorandum was submitted by Edwin Duckworth, Astronomy Instructor, to the Executive Council of the Academic Senate. It was supported by a petition signed by thirty-six faculty members.

Duckworth's allegations deal with three main categories. First, hiring and staffing policies; second, pricing policies; and third, business practices and quality of service.

Richard Main, Associated Students Bookstore Manager, when interviewed by the Guardsman and shown the Duckworth memorandum, was highly incensed that nobody in the Administration, Academic Senate, Faculty, or Student Council had bothered to show him a copy of the memorandum containing the allegations.

Main went on to say that the charges were untrue, and that he would be glad to open his auditing books to the Student Council and Academic Senate's committees and would answer any questions concerning the store's operation.

When asked if Duckworth had contacted him regarding these allegations, Main stated that he had not seen Duckworth since the fall semester. He went on to say that if the review revealed new methods or ideas that would improve service, both to students and faculty, he would be glad to accept and use the suggestions.

According to Main the book store is maing money, but most of it is going to pay off a Federal Loan for the new Student Union Building.

Dr. Harry Buttimer, Co-ordinator of Educational Management, told The Guardsman he was waiting for the report from the Academic Senate, before any actions would be taken. He said that no where in any report received by his office has the integrity of Main been questioned. Buttimer stated that it was quite possible new ideas could help in the operation of the store, but that he had complete confidence in Main.

A Study of Latin Peoples Culture Now Offered In Sociology

Sociology 5—Latin-American Community Organization — a new class offered this semester, is unique in a number of ways.

The class, under the direction of Patric Westbrook, was initiated by the students. The students most responsible for the class are the members of La Raza Unida, a Latin American club.

Sociology 5 is a study of the Latin people and their role in the community. This study is unlike most classes. Students sit around the class and discuss any idea brought up; there is no assigned text.

Teachers from the University of California and State College have viewed the class and are now trying to start similar classes in their respective schools.

According to Westbrook the goal of the class is to make first class citizens out of all the students.

Westbrook pointed out that City College is a vanguard college, meaning City College is ahead of most of all the colleges in the area.

Any interested student can view the class, Monday, Wednesday or Friday between 2-3 p.m. in A 316.

4667 Has Arrived

Amidst exploding firecrackers, this dragon danced to celebrate the arrival of the Chinese New Year. Guardsmen Photo by Samuel Woo

Music Department Boasts Fine Tenor Instructor

Lauritz Melchior retired from the Opera 19 years ago as the world's finest tenor and is still searching for a successor. That successor may come from the City College faculty.

James Gettys is the newly appointed instructor of voice in the College's Music Department with a repertoire of operatic performances that would impress Bach or Beethoven.

Gettys will be competing with famed heldon (heroic) tenors from all over the world in the "Lauritz Melchior Competition for Heroic Tenors."

To enlighten those of us who are not music majors, a heldon tenor "must have the projection of a diesel horn and the stamina of a channel swimmer," according to Melchior.

These rare vocalists are not made, they are born. Their talents enable them to sing with the power, clarity and resonance usually achieved only with top quality amplification equipment.

In a special performance at the College last month, Gettys performed "Dichterliebe," a German poet's love song. Students attending the performance were stunned by the singer's abilities and most found it hard to believe that any human voice could be so powerful.

Gettys will leave for New York soon to perform in the competition and City College's best wishes for success go with him.

It is seldom that a college has the honor of welcoming such a talented performer and instructor to its staff.

James Gettys, City College voice instructor

Court Upholds Free Speech For Students

By Ray Gin

In the current wave of student discontent the United States Supreme Court has ruled that school officials may not interefere with student rights to express political opinions in a non-disruptive way during school hours.

In a 7-2 decision, school officials in Des Moines, Iowa, were called by the Court violators of the First Amendment rights of three students. The students, 13 to 16 years old, were suspended for wearing black armbands protesting the war in VietNam.

Justice Abe Fortas emphasized the court's opinion that school children's free speech rights are limited to conduct that does not disrupt discipline or interfere with the rights of others. This only applied to political expressions and not to include the disputes over mini-skirts and hair-length.

Fortas added, "In our system, students may not be regarded as closed circuit recipients of only that which the state chooses to communicate. In absence of a specific showing of constitutionality valid reasons to regulate their speech, students are entitled to freedom of expression for their views."

Lower Federal courts have extended the ruling that permitted students to wear political or civil rights insignia in previous years. The new Supreme Court ruling is the Court's first on the question of free speech rights.

In California, legislation that would exclude junior college students from all restrictions or distributing partisan, sectarian or denominational literature was introduced by Assemblyman John Vasconcellos to last week's State Legislature.

The governing board of each junior college will establish reasonable rules and regula

(Continued on Page 4)

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Students in the Journalism Department of City College of San Francisco
Thomas O. Graham, Editor
184

Vol. 68, No. 3 | WEDNESDAY, MARCH 5, 1969 | Page 2

'Day of Concern'

IT'S IRONIC how man has conquered the problem of surviving away from his earthly environment yet can't seem to live with himself.

The astronauts, for instance, must view the earth as a microcosm of insignificance compared to the vastness of the universe when they're floating through space.

With man's advancements in the field of science and technicology literally skyrocketing toward an unbelievable lunar landing in a few months, one wonders why similar such feats in the area of social advancement can't be met.

With a growing concern for these and other problems, scientists and engineers decided to hold a series of public discussions on campuses in the Bay Area yesterday. They called it 'A Day of Concern.'

They asked these fundamental questions:

- To what degree are American basic research and machines of modern technology being geared to war and weaponry?
- Can researchers in the physical, biological and behavioral sciences contribute significantly to the solution of pressing peacetime problems such as racism, urban crisis, educational reform and broader health care services?
- And how can scientists and engineers help attack the global menaces of pollution, hunger and exploding populations?

Their purpose—to emphasize the need for increasing humanism in the life sciences.

Their concern and attempt to solve these pressing problems is welcomed.

Who knows, maybe solutions to our social and political problems can be made through mathematical computation. Regardless, the Guardsman commends their efforts.

CCSF, Past and Present

By Levine Lee

Thirty-four years ago in the Fall of 1935, City College began instructions for the first time at the University of California Extension Division Building and Galileo High School. The enrollment was 1,470.

Because of the rapid increase in enrollment, from 1,470 to approximately 3,000 in 1939, more facilities were needed since classes met in 22 different locations, many widely separated through the city.

Difficulties

These difficulties led the San Francisco Board of Education to approve a building plan to meet the growing demands of the College. By 1940, Science Hall, and the Men's and Women's Gyms were ready for use.

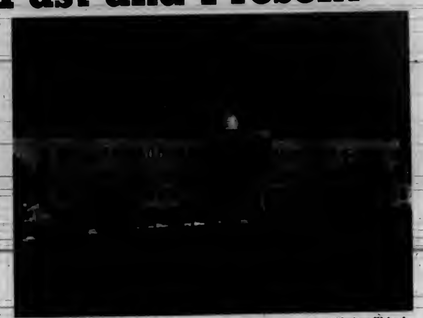
World War II caused a decline in enrollment. From an enrollment of 3,227 in 1940, the enrollment dropped to 2,285. But by the Fall of 1950, it had climbed up to 4,535.

Cloud Hall

In 1954, Cloud Hall, named after Dr. Archibald J. Cloud, first president of the College, was ready for occupation, the faculty and administrative offices, the library, language labs, and many other rooms. By the Fall of 1955, the enrollment had reached 5,281.

Smith Hall, named after George D. Smith, chairman of the Hotel and Restaurant Advisory Committee, was serving the campus by 1955 and Statler Wing by 1964.

Arts Building



In 1960 the enrollment had increased to 6,102, so in 1961 the Arts Building, which contains classrooms, faculty offices, the College Theater, and the TV-Radio Department, was built.

In 1964, the Horticulture Center joined the campus. This center contains facilities for teaching ornamental horticulture and retail floristry.

Educ. Services Building

The College's newest building is the Educational Services Building, which includes the Registrar, Student Government, Administrative, and Student Welfare offices. It was completed last year and was ready for service in the Fall of 1968.

Today, with the campus spread out over 65 acres of land, the enrollment is well over the 11,000 mark with approximately 3,000 attending night classes.

Science Hall — the first building to be ready on campus in 1940. It still looks the same. Bleah!
Guardsman Photo by Samuel Woo

Peace Corps Will Help You "Leave the Country," Okay?

By Marc Kovacs

The advertisement on the last page of the current issue of the Architectural Record proclaims "Make America a Better Place. Leave the Country." Below this command is a photograph of the Statue of Liberty pointing eastward with the hand that once held a torch. What's the massage? Very simple: join the Peace Corps.

Volunteers in Service to America (VISTA), on the other hand, hasn't received any publicity lately, which no doubt explains the City College Administration's recommendation to interested students: "write to Washington for details."

The Guardsman, however, checked the White Pages first. Stateside Peace Corps, it turns out, has a San Francisco division. Its offices are at 100 McAllister Street, which also happens to be Selective Service headquarters. But a VISTA volunteer assured this newspaper that there is no connection.

What is VISTA? In the words of its organ, Voice, "VISTA is one of the major anti-poverty programs established by the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964. We offer an opportunity for men and women from all economic, geographic, social and age groups to join the nation's War on Poverty."

"Volunteers," the paper continued, "work to provide new hope, dignity and skills that can help lift people out of poverty. The specific fields in which we work include: education, health, agriculture conservation and sanitation — the list, like the problems that poverty itself creates, is practically inexhaustible."

VISTA members serve for one year where they are "requested and needed—in the 50 states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, and the Trust Territories of the Pacific Islands. They offer their services and skills wherever poverty exists; in cities, small towns and rural areas, in tenements and shacks, on Indian Reservations or in migrant labor camps, among the sick and disabled, the young and the old."

Fighting the war against poverty in America does not exempt volunteers from military duty. "The decision concerning draft status," declares the Voice, "is entirely up to the local draft board."

Any way you look at it, though, a visit to 100 McAllister Street gets you involved in war: the one in Asia or the one in America.

Anti-War

The contest is open to those students who believe they can produce an effective anti-war theme. Judging is not based on how grisly the presentation is. Awards are—first, $50; second, $20; third, $10. A certain number of winners will be published in the Free Critic after Easter Vacation. I hope this relieves some doubts as to the goal of the contest.—Kevin Shea

Students wishing to drop courses have until April 9 to withdraw without penalty. Afterwards they will only be able to drop a class by taking a leave of absence. Deadline for leaves of absence are May 14. Students should see their counselors for further information and necessary forms.

Guardsman Staff
SPRING 1969

EDITOR IN CHIEF ..... TOM GRAHAM
Managing Editor ..... Barbara Hamann
Feature Editor ..... Boku Kodama
News Editor ..... Randy Flynn
Sports Editor ..... Phil DiCarlo
Editorial Assistants: Rita Carroll, Levine Lee, Lynda Sandstrom.
Reporters: Patrick Chan, Gerry Engler, Ray Gin, Marc Kovacs, Jack Ruiz.
Photographers: Gavin Watt, Chief; Sam Alvarado, Jules Classeis, Bert Flowers.
Photographers: Eugene Wong, Chief; Sam David Kalman, Antony Ragudo, Jerry Warren, Earl Williams, Russell Wong.

'Where Do We Go When There's No San Francisco?'

By Gerry Engler

If all the predictors prove correct, San Francisco will be rocked by an earthquake in 1969.

The cause of the quake will be a sudden disturbance of natural origin within the earth. The vibrations are elastic waves traveling at high speed through the earth.

It was estimated that there are over 1,000 quakes every day, but only a few are felt.

In the great San Francisco earthquake of 1906, the San Andreas Fault broke for a distance of 270 miles on the surface and the maximum displacement was 21 feet in a horizontal direction.

The intensity of an earthquake is measured in terms of the damage done to man-made structures and the changes wrought in the earth's surface.

There is an instrumental magnitude scale that has come into general use, sometimes known as the Richter Magnitude scale.

This scale may be summarized as follows:

1. Magnitude 2: Smallest shocks normally reported felt.
Magnitude 4½: Smallest shocks causing slight damage.
Magnitude 6: Moderately destructive
Magnitude 8½: Largest known, and destructive.

That massive earthquake which psychics say is going to hurl California into the ocean need never happen, according to latest reports from the fourth dimension.

A local metaphysical counselor Russell Thomas explained that hate, greed and warfare are creating an abundance of destructive energy. Those who have extra-sensory perceptions are picking up these hostile waves and have interpreted them as a sign of on - coming disaster.

Positive thoughts, however, also generate energy, according to Thomas, and if enough people change their consciousness, they can change the energy patterns which influence the earth.

In short, men can actually help precipitate a quake by becoming too fearful one may occur, or men can minimize the destructive forces by harmonious thoughts.

GGC Champs Meet Challenge

GOLDEN GATE CHAMPS — The City College Basketball Team for 1968-69. Front row (left to right): Telvis Jones, Gus Hill, Darrell Fregia, and Lou Cupp. Second row (l-r): Vince Ainsley, Bob Phelan, John Casey, and Tom McVey. Third row (l-r): Keith Miles, Jesse Arterberry, and Tom Clyburn.
Photo Courtesy of Bert Flowers

Rams Crush DVC; Take Conference

Champs Aim at State Title Tomorrow; Contra Costa Defeated in Thriller, 68-56

Saturday, March 1

Playing their best "team game" of the season, the Ram hoop stars thoroughly defeated Contra Costa Saturday night at Foothill, 68-56.

In turning back the Comets' challenge, the cagers earned the right to participate in the 18th Annual Junior College Basketball Tournament.

A noisy crowd of 1500 was on hand in Los Altos for the classic match-up. Contra Costa was ranked second in the State Ratings, the Rams fourth. Harry Brown, all 6'4", 240 pounds of him, and Jim Anderson 6'7" were the big guns for the Comets. But Ram Coach Sid Phelan had some special defenses devised for them.

Even though Brown scored 20 points, he made good on only 8 of 21 attempts from the floor. Credit Gus Hill, and a big assist from Jess Arterberry and the rest of his teammates, with keeping Brown in check.

Arterberry tallied 14 points, grabbed 12 rebounds and didn't draw even one personal foul. Darrell Fregia chipped in 13 while taking seven caroms off the boards. Guard Bob Phelan hit on 5 of 7 shots and 4 of 6 from the foul line to add 14.

But the biggest offensive excitement was generated by Telvis Jones. Big T constantly kept the Rams in the lead with his deadly 15 to 20 foot jump shots. Jones finished with 18 counters to his credit.

After a tight first half struggle, which saw the Rams leave the floor with a four point lead (34-30), the San Franciscans blew the game wide open. Hitting on five of the first six shots they took to start the second half, the Rams quickly built their lead to 44-30. At the same time the Comets began to press and throw the ball away.

The championships begin tomorrow at Fresno's new Selland Auditorium. City College takes on tough Los Angeles City College (22-8) at five o'clock in the evening.

Other colleges in the tourney are Imperial Valley, Siskiyous, Fresno CC, Fullerton, Merced and Pasadena CC, the top-rated team in the state.

Tuesday, Feb. 25.

Impressing everyone who watched, except LeRoy Mims, City College swept to their fourth straight Golden Gate Conference Championship last Tuesday night.

Playing Diablo Valley Junior College in Concord, the Rams rode the hot shooting of guard Bob Phelan to their twelfth victory in thirteen conference appearances this season. The final score was 64-43.

Phelan, a freshman, hit on seven of his nine shots from the floor and made good on his only two attempts from the line. Pivot man Jesse Arterberry, who canned four of his five shots, added 12 points to the cause backed by Telvis Jones' 11.

With the score tied seven all, early in the first half, the Rams went on a scoring spree.

They meshed 22 points to only 6 by the Vikings.

For the second consecutive game, the Rams rarely committed any fouls. The new champs were guilty four times in each half.

LeRoy Mims, the Contra Costa Junior College basketball coach, had been scouting at the last four or five Ram games. Since only four of the six conference winners from Northern California are allowed to compete in the State Tournament, two teams must challenge two others with the winners of their games going on to Fresno (where the tourney is to be played this year).

Mims seems to think that City College is ripe for the picking. He must THINK he knows something anyway. For what other reason would his team, ranked fourth in the last State ratings, want to play against the team that was tied for second (our own Rams).

Led by high scoring Harry Brown, the Comets whipped the Rams by 11 points last November 29. Of course it was the first game of the year for the Rams and a lot has happened since then. But that can't be the only basis for their disregard for the City College five.

See the story to the right for the results.

The Guardsman SPORTS

Freshmen Make Up Tennis Team

Graduation, the curse of all coaches, has left its mark on Ram tennis coach Roy Diederichsen.

At the present time Diederichsen isn't even worried about the strength of his team, but rather if he'll have one at all.

According to Diederichsen, the squad is badly in need of players. He may even be forced to draft people from his tennis classes, ala General Hershey, to be able to field a team.

Not one veteran returns from the team that won both the GGC and NorCal titles last year. Thus, freshmen will have to carry the load during this reconstruction era.

Some of the frosh players include Steve Lucchesi, a semi-finalist at the All-City matches and Mike Battle, Wilson's number two man last year. John Hannum and Dave Locke are also counted on.

Conference play begins April 4 against Foothill.

P. C.

Weekend Sports Scores

GGC TRACK MEET

Getting outdoors for the first time in a while, the Ram cindermen made a fair showing at San Mateo Saturday, at the Golden aGte Conference Relays.

Despite the fact the team was rusty and missing some key members, Coach Lou Vasquez's charges finished fifth in a field of eight teams, missing fourth place by a single point.

At least four of his top performers missed the competition though. High jumper Tom Clyburn and middle distance star Vince Ainsley were with the basketball team, NorCal 440 champ Neal Mosely is injured and probably out for the season, and distance man Vic Cary was taking a test.

DUFFERS WIN TWO

Ram golfers had two matches this past weekend, Friday against Merritt and Sunday at the Olympic Club with the Olympic Juniors.

Playing only the front nine because of the miserable rain and cold, City's team won 29-6. Donn Paulson had a 36 while Duane Cosper and Ken Kundert came in aat 37.

Sunday wast a better day as the swingers took on the Lake course and defeated the Olympic Juniors, 24-4. Paul Rea shot a 73, John Susko and Duane Cosper had 76s.

Hotel and Restaurant receives lesson in cutting side of beef.

Coming Events

Thursday (March 6)
BASEBALL — CCSF vs. Diablo Valley, Concord, 3 p.m.
BASKETBALL — State JC Tournament starts at Fresno.

Friday (March 7)
TENNIS — CCSF vs. Diablo Valley, San Jose, 2:30 p.m.
SWIMMING — CCSF vs. San Jose, San Jose, 3:30 p.m.
TRACK — CCSF vs. Diablo Valley, Concord, 3:00 p.m.

Tuesday (March 12)
BASEBALL — CCSF vs. Foothill, Balboa Park, 3:00 p.m.
TENNIS — CCSF vs. UC at Santa Cruz, Santa Cruz, 2:30 p.m.

SKIING CONDITIONS GOOD — Since first reports of excellent skiing were released in January, skiers of all classes have been flocking to the Sierras to enjoy conditions unmatched during past 33 years. Slopes are blanketed with up to 50 feet of snow and Mother Nature is expected to host the "Supersport" up until the middle of May.

This Week

Campus Lineup

THURSDAY, March 6 —
La Raza Unida Rally Football Field, 11 a.m.

FRIDAY, March 7 —
Vince Guaraldi Trio, performing in U.C. Cabaret, U.C. Campus, 8:30 and 11 p.m.

SATURDAY, March 8 —
"Mission Impossible" Carnival, College of Notre Dame, Belmont. Carnival — noon-6 p.m.; Dinner 4-6 p.m.; Dance—9 p.m.-1 a.m. Dance sponsored by La Raza Unida, Smith Hall, 9-12 p.m.

TUESDAY, March 11 —
Alpha Gamma Sigma, first meeting of semester, S-256, 11 a.m.

Three New Councelors Here This Semester

By Phil DiCarlo

A jazz drummer, an avid hiker and a lawn bowler have joined the counseling staff at City College this semester.

The three, Beverly Eigner, Willis Kirk and William Shepard, join the faculty with solid backgrounds both in San Francisco and around the United States.

Mrs. Eigner is originally from the state of Washington. She graduated from the University of Washington and taught on the high school level in the Seattle area for five years.

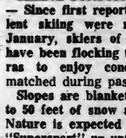
After moving to the City and obtaining her M.A. from San Francisco State, Mrs. Eigner went to Poly High School. During her stay at Poly, she became very active in the Federal Government's Educational Program (EOP) which helps minority students gain acceptance through financial aid and tutorial programs.

Mrs. Eigner and her husband, an attorney, enjoy playing tennis in addition to hiking around the countryside.

Willis Kirk was born, raised and educated in Indiana. He received his Bachelor and Masters Degrees from Butler University. Kirk taught in Indianapolis elementary and junior highs for 12 years and helped to write the course of music study for Indiana University.

A drummer, Kirk has traveled all over the country playing with the likes of Wes Montgomery and J. J. Johnson.

Kirk joins the growing number of black counselors striving to make the counseling department more meaningful to the students.



William Shepard, the third new counselor, has been teaching in San Francisco for years, mainly on the junior high level. He graduated from San Francisco State and received his counseling credentials from USF.

Shephard enjoys lawn bowling, golf and bridge.

Students wishing to drop courses have until April 9 to withdraw without penalty. Afterwards they will only be able to drop a class by taking a leave of absence. Deadline for leaves of absence are May 14. Students should see their counselors for further information and necessary forms.

Contact Lens

Faculty Strike Settled; Are Students Affected?

Rich Shirley, History and Political Theory Major

No, for two reasons. First, the teachers' strike is a professional grievance. That is, it involves working conditions. The second reason is that the student strike is a non-professional grievance, and it has nothing to do with labor conditions, but rather curriculum and programs. Their strike is not affected by the teachers as a whole, but rather by the Administration at State. Contrary to what people say, there are two separate strikes.

Dan St. John, Physics Instructor

I feel that the student strike will continue at State even though the faculty strike appears to be settled. The student demands haven't been acted upon at all; in fact the ethnic studies program is not going to start this semester as promised. Nathan Hare is no longer on speaking terms with the college president, and I feel that this will cause enough unrest and discontent to keep the militant students active throughout the semester.

Pam Manick, Psychology Major

I don't think the teachers' settlement will affect the student strike. With the teachers back on the job there will be more students going to school; thus, there will be more students striking. The students have a valid reason to strike, but the only thing I don't like is the method they are using. The students' strike was a valid one whereas the faculty strike was just a minority one.

Dennis Bogdan, General Education Major

The only way the settlement will affect the student strike is that more students will be attending class. The students are there for an education, so they should not strike by staying away from classes. Since taxpayers are paying for their education, the attendance should be enforced. There shouldn't be any picketing unless it's peaceful. Students should picket only during their free hours; if they don't they should be either suspended or expelled.

(Compiled by Levine Lee, photos by Sam Woo.)

Ingmar Bergmen's "Shame" Haunting Anti-War Vision

By Ray Gin

Ingmar Bergman is a deeply personal director.

Many of his films, as in "Persona" and "Hour of the Wolf", are so disordered and stubborn in its retaining of links with his past pictures that they require too much of the audience in piecing together the puzzle.

That may well be the reason I was so easily "put-off" when I read another Bergman picture was in town. But my Bergmen in "Shame" (Skammen) has thrown off his choking reins of abstraction and the human condition to tackle with a more volatile vision of a universal realitly-war.

The year is 1971 and the place is Bergmen's personal recurring setting: Sheep Island off the coast of Sweden. Jan Rosenberg (Max Von Sydow) and his wife Eva (Liv Ullman) are two musician-artists who have abandoned their respective orchestras and retreated to live uneventfully on the island.

The island becomes the object of a cancerous civil war that has raged for a decade and has finally spread from the mainland. The invaders attack and the couple is subjected to humiliation and undergo a vigorous metamorphosis in which the once weakling husband and the once strong-willed wife reverse their roles.

War is hell. But living through that war is even more of a molten hell. Bergmen is merciless, almost to the point of sadism, in letting his protagonists slowly disintegrate in their humanity to finally grope at amorality.

The destruction of human elements is a slow process. The husband, who once couldn't even kill a chicken, is willing to empty his revolver into an army friend and an army-deserter youth. The wife's pride and faithfulness is lost when she gives herself to an army official to insure her survival.

Pride, dignity, loyalty, and ultimately, compassion are all lost when the animal instincts for survival motivates human action.

Bergmen's favorite acting troupe, Max Von Sydow, Liv Ullman, and Gunnar Bjornstrand, all bring skill to their respective roles.

A film that is such a searing indictment against war could only be made by a non-warring country. Sweden, after all, remained neutral through two massive World Wars and could objectively see the truisms of the effects of war. "Shame" is Bergmen's heeding of the world's people to the fatal holocaust of war.

In Bergmen, the Swedes have their modern-day prophet. In "Shame", they have their death notice for the world.

Radio Dept. Receives Grant

City College's Broadcasting Department recently received a grant-in-aid for 1969 from the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists (AFTRA).

The $250 grant is to "assist promising students of Broadcasting in helping to defray the cost of books, supplies or similar needs for a semester," according to a bulletin put out by Henry Leff, department chief.

Student John Hayward is "On the Air," broadcasting on KALW-91.7 on your FM dial. (Photo—Earl Williams)

There will be two $50 sums issued this semester and three in the Fall.

Leff's bulletin went on to say that "Broadcasting students of merit and need will be chosen by the department faculty." It added that AFTRA indicated they would continue to finance the grants in the future. P. D.

Free Speech

(Continued from Page 1)

tions regarding such activities. Vasconcellos saw a need to provide youth with a peaceful means of self-expression and to increase recognition of the status of the college community and of the students.

He feels the present regulations are unrealistic and irrelevent to today's junior college campuses. A recent survey of California junior colleges indicated that a great diversity of material had been prohibited; examples include Youth for Christ, the John Birch Society, Young Republicans and Young Democrats, the Peace and Freedom Party, and Wesleyan and Newman Clubs.

Removing these restrictions, he feels, will allow interested, knowledgeable and concerned junior college students a chance to participate peacefully and meaningfully.

New Deans

(Continued from Page 1)

and submitted to the Board of Education for final approval.

Both Tealer and Miss Pope have been doing "outstanding work in their present capacity," Dr. Conlan stated, and he is looking forward to working with them in their new job which will be principally working with the students.

While being very surprised and excited, Miss Pope was also awesome about how large this job may be. "This is a very demanding job," she said, and she hopes to discover through the women students how they feel about different things and get their suggestions. She will be using the women organizations as her main medium to reach the masses.

After teaching at the college for 5½ years and for two years previously at Balboa, Miss Pope mentioned that she will miss teaching.

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Journalism Students of City College of San Francisco

Volume 68 — SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—WEDNESDAY, MARCH 12, 1969 — NUMBER 4

A Study in Contrast-- Fillmore / Pacific Heights

By Boku Kodama
Compiled by Gerry Engler, Marc Kovacs

FILLMORE

As we walked up to the corner, every Black man stared. The message in their eyes read, "What the hell you doing down here?"

In front of a pool hall just a ways down, groups of young people were standing around, some with beer, some with whiskey tucked inside brown paper bags. One husky man kept looking at us. "Say, man," he said slowly and softly, "give me a dollar and I'll give you any information you want."

"We're from the press," replied Marc, "we're just observing, but thanks anyway."

The man mumbled, "Sure," and he gave us a look of being a thousand miles away and a smell of a ten gallon jug of Kentucky brew.

We turned away and cautiously entered the dark pool hall. There were ten tables situated in various angles on on the concrete floor.

"You guys want to play?" asked a man in overalls.

"No, we're just watching." Marc said and the man turned away with an unappreciative look on his face.

We stayed for only five minutes. I then suggested walking down Fillmore in the opposite direction. On the other side of the street rows of abandoned buildings, houses with boarded-up windows, drugstores with corroded walls, and hot dog stands with "out-of-business" signs. Each of these buildings were plastered with "Black Power" slogans and revolutionary pictures of Vietnam and Communist leaders. It was unavoidable to step on broken glass, weather-worn newspapers and bent-up aluminum cans. Every type of filth hugged against the curb while the dust glided along in the direction of the moving cars.

At every bus stop stood a woman with heavy makeup, dyed hair in a bundle, wearing a tight sweater and short skirt. Her pair of black high heels would shine like crystal. Perhaps she was a street-walker trying to make a fast buck so she wouldn't starve.

We walked on until we came to a sign in the middle of the sidewalk in front of an entrance of a building which looked like it had once been a clothing store. The sign asked for donations to feed lunch to elementary school children.

A table was placed at the entrance with copies of the most recent issue of the "Black Panther," small pocket books on Mao Tse-tung, pamphlets on the Black Panther Party and buttons with slogans of revolution. A young man, no more than twenty years old was sitting next to the table.

"Good afternoon," he smiled, "would you like to buy the latest copy of the "Black Panther?"

"No thanks," I replied.

We were allowed to enter their office. Immediately to the left was a desk with a fifteen year old boy behind it wearing a black jacket. "Can I help you?" he said.

"Yes, we'd like some information on the Black Panthers. We're from the press," Marc revealed.

From behind, a thin man in pants too short for his legs asked us to talk to him. We told him we were from City College, and then he began rapping. We discussed the teaching of Mao Tse-tung and I noticed the walls covered with slogans from the Chairman. He talked of the masses of young people who have realized that there is corruption in our society. Students at San Francisco State and in Berkeley are taking actions, he declared, but "City College is funky!"

The thin man took us upstairs. He showed us posters, and one which stuck in my mind was one of a young black woman handing a rifle to her naked son standing by his mother's bed.

Our next stop was down Kimball Street, a block from Geary. A large sign with the letters C.O.R.E. hovered over the sidewalk.

There was a small dark room, filled with smoke and a juke box blasting the music so loud that the tunes were distorted. It was a depressing sight so we walked toward the door, only to be stopped by a man who claimed we owned him 75 cents a piece for coming in. He was drunk as hell as we told him we had no money, but he refused to let us pass. However, from the back came several big men who had overheard the conversation. They helped us out by holding the man, and one of them said to me, "I hope you don't think we're all like him."

I simply said, "No" and shook his hand.

PACIFIC HEIGHTS

We walked for two blocks on Green Street without seeing anyone, so we decided to ring doorbells. Everyone was "out" even though their shiny new Cadillacs were sitting in their garages. They were probably riding around in their Jaguar sedans.

The day was sunny and Pacific Heights glowed with beauty. Finally, we encountered three students, one of whom lived on Vallejo Street. We approached him as reporters. "Are you familiar with the Fillmore District?" I asked.

He replied, "I've only gone through the Fillmore once. I'm afraid I don't know the district that well, but if I had a reason to go there, I would."

His two girlfriends giggled as they turned and walked away.

We had to walk another block before another human being appeared. "I'm a stock broker, and I wouldn't mind having more Black customers," he replied to our question.

"I think it would be great to have a Black man move next door to us, but other people would blow their tops," the broker continued.

On the corner of Broderick and Vallejo Streets, a young insurance consultant was varnishing a table. Marc asked, "Do you have contact with the Fillmore?"

"I ride the bus through there every work day," the consultant answered.

Disheartened, we headed for Union Street, the business section of Pacific Heights. The stores were busy, and crowds of people were loaded with packages.

"Why do you come here?" I questioned one girl who was wearing an expensive blue suit. She said, "To spend money." She then got into her '68 Volkswagon and drove away grinning about her clever line.

—photos by Jules Classens and Bert Flowers

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Official Weekly Publication of the Students in the Journalism Department of City College of San Francisco

Thomas O. Graham, Editor

184

Vol. 68, No. 4 WEDNESDAY, MARCH 12, 1969 Page 2

Busing Plan Absurd

One of the greater lessons in absurdity is the prospect of integration through busing.

The problem that had been looming in front of San Francisco's United School District has finally come out into the open for public consideration. Now the question is will the busing of school children help to alleviate segregation in San Francisco or will it compound racial problems.

The busing plan, which has aroused much controversy, has many obstacles yet to face it. Those who are in the middle and upper income bracket feel that they themselves stand nothing to gain and everything to lose. Why should someone who works hard for a living spend money on sending his child across town when there is a school just down the street?

Doesn't it make sense to spend the money elsewhere, for instance, on better schools and housing in the areas that need it.

Think of the time and money that will be wasted by busing school children all over the city. It's impractical. The time wasted on travelling to and from school could be spent studying. And the money wasted on busing could go for improvements upon existing schools or badly needed housing.

Education should come first. The only way that true integration is going to be achieved is through thought and understanding and not by forcing an issue like busing down peoples throats.

Contact Lens

Is U. S. Spending Too Much On The Space Program?

John Rossiter, Electrical Engineering Major

Yes, if you consider the recent Congressional investigation in South Carolina where poverty and starvation of the under-privileged was enormous. The State found people who could not afford electricity and had no sanitary facilities. Hell, why are we spending billions for the race to the moon when we have to face this horrible reality here on earth. We have to concentrate on human beings; this is much more important than a trip to the moon.

Marcia Aron, Sociology Instructor

I think more money should be spent on education, the Social Sciences and Humanities. We are already limited in funds, and taxes are high enough. We have to fulfill our basic needs at home. The educational systems have to be overhauled, and there should be more equality for more people on earth before an attempt is made to go to the moon.

Warren George, Business Administration Major

Definitely. It's a useless program. What can we use it for. The money should be spent at home. Poverty is the number one problem we have to solve. American scientists are caught up in this superiority game. We have an illogical concept that we have to be better than the Russians. There are too many unanswered problems about space. There might be, for instance, a disease on the moon which we would be unable to cure. We must curtail the space program. Education and poverty are the foremost concern.

John Connelly, English Major

Yes they are. They should be spending the money that's being used on the space program on the people. They could use the money to expand the poverty and housing programs and help the minority races, for instance. I think they'll make it to the moon; that's inevitable. But don't get me wrong, I think the space program is very worthwhile; however, the needs of the people should come first.

Joan Yee, General Education Major

Yes, I think they are. They should put the money into more important and constructive discoveries. I'm not interested in what's going on up on the moon, or any other part of space for that matter; I'm interested in what's happening here at home. I feel that they should spend more money on kidney machines, and other scientific things. The space program is not worth it.

CINEMA-SCOPE

'Hell In The Pacific'--The Lost Odd Couple

Producer Selig J. Seligman told me, during his recent publicity tour in the city, how he had previewed his latest film, "Hell in the Pacific," before a group of deaf mutes and met with the same perceptive and emotional responses when a regular audience saw it.

To have made a film universally accessible without the cumbersome barriers of language is a major achievement that is evident in "Hell in the Pacific."

The film begins in the latter days of World War II. Toshiro Mifune is seen as a Japanese naval officer who is unable to speak or understand any English. Lee Marvin portrays an American pilot who is incapable of speaking or understanding any Japanese. Together, they are marooned on an obscure emerald isle somewhere in the Pacific.

This is a moving tale of how two national types go from their patriotic enmity to human brotherhood and instinctively revert back to their original, conflicting status as men at war. Director John Boorman is saying that the septum between human communication is national identity and ethno-centricism.

Toshiro Mifune, the man in the yoke of subjugation, and Lee Marvin, his sullen captor, meet in an echoing clash in "Hell in the Pacific."

"Hell in the Pacific" is a welcomed departure from the recent onslaught of overly talkative pictures. The two principals combined speak a scant 40 lines of dialogue of which most are inane animal grunts and nonsensical ethnic utterings.

Thus, the success of the film in conveying it's boldest intentions relies heavily on the emotional and physical reactions on the topography of the antagonists faces. Mifune is the consumate actor with his phenomenal ability to control every body and facial contortion.

Boorman has wisely eliminated the maudlin trap of making his two characters enjoined in a warm friendship. They both enter as bigoted giants, who only develop a relationship of sorts to insure survival, and both exit the same.

Lalo Schfrin's score is sometimes unbearably deafening and extraneous. As an example, high pitched organ music during Mifune's discovery of Marvin's escape from his yoke reduces the peak suspense of that sequence considerably.

"Hell in the Pacific," with an unfortunate John Wayne, shoot-em-up title, is an explosive modern fable that succeeds on both an intellectual and adventure level. Without reservation, it is one of the finest two-character films ever made. It's a swift kick in the guts. An emphatic "must-see"!.

Test Your Psychic Powers

Did you ever think you might have the power to predict the future? Do you think you might have ESP? To find out, try this simple test of your psychic powers.

Guess whether the events listed below will come true or not by January 1, 1970.

Then clip this article out and check your answers out on New Year's day.

From 12-9 means you should become an astrology major. From 8-9 means an average score.

1. The Paris Peace talks will end with the complete withdrawal of American and North Vietnamese Troops.
True—— False——

2. Cliff Robertson will win an oscar for his performance in "Charley."
True—— False——

3. City College's enrollment will soar to an all time high of 15,000 by September.
True—— False——

4. S. I. Hayakawa will be appointed permanent president of San Francisco State College.
True—— False——

5. Vince Lombardi will lead the Washington Redskins to a superbowl victory over the Oakland Raiders.
True—— False——

6. The AS President for the fall semester will be Chinese.
True—— False——

7. America will successfully land two manned expeditions on the moon.
True—— False——

8. Black students at City College will go on strike.
True—— False——

9. Vice President Spiro Agnew will drop out of public view.
True—— False——

10. San Francisco will be shaken by an earthquake.
True—— False——

11. San Francisco State will have a strike-free fall semester.
True—— False——

12. President Nixon will force the integration of southern schools.
True—— False——

Open Letter

Last spring semester, a number of faculty and students expressed the need for a lounge in which both could meet informally together to discuss matters of mutual concern.

This fall, Cloud Hall 330, the former Mimeograph Room, became the first room designated for this "bold experiment." The room is small and the furnishings are meager but several important open-ended discussions were held there during the semester. Gradually, however, the room has become solely an additional place for informal student lounges, it would seem, however, that the more important priority for some place for faculty and students to gather together is not being met.

A number of faculty and staff have spoken to me expressing their concern about the status of the room. Suggestions have ranged the entire gamut of possibilities.

In my opinion the following steps should be taken:

1. A reassessment of the type of need that exists for student faculty lounges. (How many? For what specific purpose? With what atmosphere?)

2. The development of a complete detailed plan, including cost estimates, for furnishing and decorating Cloud 330 in order to obtain the desired environment.

3. The creation of a joint student-faculty board to develop procedures for the use of the room and to assess the success of the lounge in meeting the desired objectives.

Faculty and students who feel the need for a genuine student faculty lounge are urged to convey to me your opinions. Please call me (Ext. 273), or give me your thoughts in writing (Box C-18), or drop by my office (C339E).

I believe this is a matter of utmost concern to City College. Please lend us a hand!

Sincerely,
Arthur H. Evans, Jr.
President
Faculty Association

What's Up?

The Guardsman is looking for creative new approaches for stories. If you have any ideas don't hesitate to visit The Guardsman office located in S304.

Guardsman Staff

SPRING 1969

EDITOR IN CHIEF.... TOM GRAHAM
Managing Editor Barbara Hamann
Feature Editor Boku Kodama
News Editor Randy Flynn
Sports Editor Phil DiCarlo
Editorial Assistants: Rita Carroll, Levine Lee, Lynda Sandstrom.
Reporters: Patrick Chan, Gerry Engler, Roy Gin, Marc Kovacs, Jack Ruiz.
Photographers: Gavin Watt, Chief; Sam Alvarado, Jules Claissens, Bert Flowers.
Photographers: Eugene Wong, Chief; Sam David Kalman, Antony Ragadio, Jerry Warren, Earl Williams, Russell Wong.

Bungalow Classes To Begin

Additional Bungalows May Be Added In Summer

Double story bungalows use up half the space of an ordinary bungalow, and provide more classrooms. The contemporary term that replaces the old fashion word bungalows is relocatable buildings since they are moveable. The buildings provide temporary classroom space —which is adequate. They also supply plenty of light and a good heating system. They are attached together in three separate sections and are fastened to concrete case-moldings. Hopefully, the buildings will allow some of the classes that are using projection rooms to move into a suitable classroom.

These buildings are leased at $2,000 per classroom per year. The overall cost is approximately $16,000 per year. The buildings come as standard units from the factory.

They were erected in the parking lot close to Arts Hall for easy access to gas and electricity. This area was the easiest spot to erect the buildings because of the level ground area and the buildings take up relatively little parking space.

The project which was started two years ago, has gone through a lot of turmoil and has been halted several times.

The eight bungalows that were installed last term to alliviate classroom conjestion will be ready for use within two to three weeks.

The reason that they weren't used sooner was the fact that they didn't meet with the city electrical requirements. The process of changing the electrical wiring is being carried on now.

City College is negotiating for 18 additional bungalows which will come up at the board meeting. If they are approved, they will be put in during the summer months.

They will be located west of the women's gym. It is possible that to conserve space, the 18 bungalows will have a double story. The problem, though, of meeting the city code arises once again.

The eight new bungalows, located in the parking lot next to Arts Hall, will soon be used for additional classroom space. Unmet electrical requirements caused the bungalows to remain empty for many months.

Reagan Offers Statutes For Campus Calm

Due to the current disorder on many of the college campuses, Governor Ronald Reagan has urged the passage of legislation to maintain an educational atmosphere and permit the educational process to continue.

Reagan stated, to achieve these goals the following legislation should be passed:

1. Provide that any student who is suspended or expelled from a state school and who thereafter enters the property of a public educational institution without permission is guilty of criminal trespass.

2. Provide that any student of a public educational institution who is convicted of a criminal offense arising out of a campus disturbance shall be dismissed from that institution for at least one year.

3. Provide that any faculty member or other employee of a public educational institution who is convicted of an offense arising out of a campus disturbance shall be dismissed and shall be ineligible for further employment in a state school or college without specific review.

4. Provide that no person may bring or possess a loud-speaker system or voice amplifier on the premises of an educational institution without permission.

Speaker To Discuss Middle East

The crisis between the Israel and Arab nations in the Middle East will be examined by Farouk Mawlawi, a former Director of the Arab Information Center, in the College Theater during College Hour next Tuesday.

He will lecture on "Prospects For Peace in the Middle East." Basic to the prospect for peace is the improvement of relations between these nations.

There is speculation on whether the policies of the late Israel Prime Minister Levi Eshkol will be continued since a new leader, either Golda Meir or Moshe Dayan, will soon be appearing on the scene.

Mawlawi was born in Lebanon, and he received his education at Tripoli College and the University of Chicago. He has taught courses in Arab history at the University of Pacific.

Farouk Mawlawi
Former Director of the Arab Information Center

His appearance on campus is being sponsored by the Associated Students and is a part of the Spring lecture series.

Report Submitted To Senate On A.S. Bookstore

The faculty fact-finding committee which reviewed the operations of the Associated Students bookstore has submitted its report to the Executive Council of the Academic Senate. It was accepted and will be acted upon at next Wednesday's Academic Senate meeting.

This committee evolved when charges were made against the bookstore by Edwin Duckworth, Astronomy Instructor. The charges dealt with three main categories: the hiring and staffing policies, the pricing policies, and the business practices and quality of service.

Duckworth had compiled a twelve page memorandum and turned it in to the Academic Senate for action on this issue. It was supported by a petition signed by 36 faculty members.

Richard Main, AS Bookstore Manager, denied all the charges. He also said that he had nothing to hide, and that he would be glad to open his auditing books to the reviewing committees.

Despite the investigation by students and faculty members, the Bookstore still continues to serve this campus. —Guardsman photo by Jerry Warren

Dr. Harry Buttimer, Co-ordinator of Educational Management stated that he had complete confidence in Main, and that Main's integrity has not been questioned in any of the reports received by Buttimer's office.

The review is expected to continue as the Academic Senate and the Associated Students committee are still obtaining information.

BSU Interview

'Ronald Reagan Is Racist Pig, Puppet of Society'

By MARC KOVACS

The Black Student Union is perhaps the most controversial organization on campus. In the following interview, George A. Perkins, a BSU spokesman and Business Administration major, reveals why:

Q. How many students are members of the BSU?

A. Approximately 1,000.

Q. Out of how many enrolled blacks?

A. 1,500.

Q. What is the BSU doing?

A. Our projects are concerned with the educational welfare of black people. We want benefits that will coincide both at City College and in the black community.

Q. What are your plans this term?

A. Well, the semester just started. We just had our Black History Cultural Week.

Q. What were some of the activities?

A. A cultural dance and show at the Harding Theatre. We had a festival, a feast; a number of African things.

Q. How are you financed?

A. Like most of the organizations on campus. We get a certain portion from the school itself.

Q. What do you think of California's governor?

A. Ronald Reagan is a racist pig, a puppet of society to hold down any minority so that the upper society might stay on top.

Q. What's happening at City College?

A. City College is controlled by the government. This has got to cease. The students at City are at an adult level. They should administer themselves. The students should be able to do their thing.

Q. City College is one of three institutions in the 80 California college system that has already implemented a Black Studies program. Is this a significant accomplishment and are you seeking more of the same?

A. This is an accomplishment. But there has to be more because progress is slow. There has to be a pick-up.

Q. Why are publications like The Movement and Black Panther unavailable in the library? Is the question is, will they accept them in the library?

Q. How do you relate to black students who want no part of the BSU?

A. There's no such person. There are probably a few persons who can't get in touch with us because of their environment, because they're always oppressed. Persons who have to make it in life, night students.

(Continued on page 8)

Orthopaedics To Be Offered

A course in orthopaedic assisting will be offered next semester under the direction of Samuel Carpenter of the Life Science department.

Orthopaedics is the branch of medicine concerned with the correction of deformities and fractures of the skeletal system (bones).

The orthopaedic assistant is a member of the allied health professions who works closely with and under the direction of the orthopaedic surgeon.

The trained orthopaedic assistant will be placed in hospitals, clinics and private orthopaedic surgeons' offices.

There are no tuition fees However, a student must be prepared to spend approximately $100 a semester for books and supplies.

Students will spend a considerable portion of his training time in hospitals, observing and learning the techniques required.

All students who complete the program will receive an Associate in Arts (AA) degree.

Students who are interested in entering this program must have permission of the City College department advisor, or Samuel Carpenter S 340.

Participants in the Experimental College attempt to explore, doubt and discover.

"Tutoring is a special personal thing that breaks down barriers between people . . ", according to Judy Kay, Executive Secretary and tutor at the Tutorial Center.

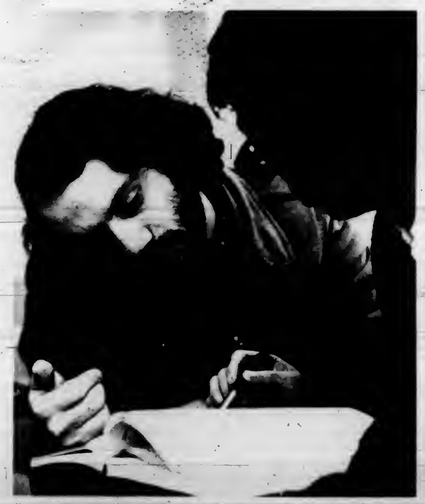
" . . . a student feels more comfortable with another student. He is more relaxed, and since it is on a person to person basis he gets more personalized attention."

Campus Life

Experimental music.

Student population is getting younger.

The ever present spectre of the draft.



Day is done.

"Hello down there."

Photos by Earle Williams, Tony Ragadio and Sam Woo.

" . . . many students are very conscious of the need to communicate with teachers, but they are seldom able to bridge the artificial gap between them and are forced to seek help elsewhere."

The Faces Of Tutorial Program; New Drive To Enlist Teachers

An evident communication gap between teacher and student in the classroom has given the college's Tutorial Program the initiative to start a campus drive aimed at enlisting additional faculty support.

The lack of qualified tutors and faculty participants has held back the training of many interested students on campus. Brad Borel, chairman of the program, was emphatic when he expressed that there is "an urgent and definite need for increased faculty participation."

He added further that "teachers can help in two ways: by training student tutors and giving instruction in the highly specialized courses such as chemistry, business, mathematics, English, social sciences and physics."

A provision for a Tutor Clinic, where teachers can meet with tutors and help them by relaying their own past experiences as guides to their present tutoring, should be set, according to Borel.

Borel also wonders why teachers can't spend more time at the Tutorial Center aside from their office hours. At the present time a faculty-student tutorial clinic is being organized so that teachers can assist in alleviating personal problems of the tutors.

Supplies such as large-type English and Math workbooks are desperately needed at the present time. Typewriters, pencils, paper, and other contributions can be brought to the Old Bookstore between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. daily.

But above all tutors are needed.

JOHN MASS, English instructor (pictured above) pinpointed that "failure to post tutorial services was the lack of communication between faculty and students, responsible leadership, and not enough time was spent training tutors for their duties. The students recognize the need for older people in this program and many teachers will come forth to assist if they are approached."

TWO HEADS ARE BETTER THAN ONE at the Tutorial Center. Tutors work closely with their students and it seems to pay off. As one student at the center puts it, "The program will help me reach the goals necessary to achieve my future academic career. It has given me more confidence and the realization that without its help I would not develop the potential necessary to succeed both on and off campus.

Jess Arterberry draws a crowd. Photo—Samuel Woo

The Guardsman
SPORTS

Fresno Diary

Phil Di Carlo, SPORTS EDITOR, follows the team to the State Tournament

We're off! City College fades in the distance as we weave toward the Bayshore.

Weave is right. Jess Arterberry was supposed to use his car, but blew the clutch on the way to the gym. Bob Phelan is driving his father's car which has just had the wheels rotated — and they haven't been balanced or aligned. With the big load in the trunk, the car is swaying left and right.

Right away an altercation arises. Tom Clyburn wants to listen to KDIA, Phelan KFRC. They compromised and kept switching the dial back and forth.

Got to Fesno just in time for a short workout on the portable floor of the beautiful new Selland Auditorium. The Americana Motel was the next stop. Rooms were assigned, meal money distributed and everybody went off to explore the city.

I had to go to Tournament Headquarters at the Hacienda Motel to pick up my special press credentials as instructed. The press room was closed up so I headed to get something in my growling pit of a stomach . . . after I stopped for a short drink. After four or five "short" drinks I staggered to the coffee shop.

Had to hitchhike back to town. Not much luck though. Then this luscious redhead, who said she was a strip-teaser at one of the local Doggie-Diners stopped and asked me if I wanted to go back to her place and. . . . Actually I had to call a cab to get back to the Americana.

Thursday, March 6

A beautiful day in Fresno. At 11 we went over to the Hacienda for a coaches and players luncheon. They served a wonderful buffet featuring beef stroganoff, my favorite. I thought I could eat, but Darrell Fregia sits down to TCB. Fregia would be a bad choice for a partner on a deserted island.

Ram game time was seven o'clock. The band, cheerleaders, song girls, drill team and various boosters were great. The music and cheering they produced nearly raised the rafters in the auditorium.

Friday, March 7

Too much time with nothing to do. Game time wasn't until seven. Everyone was growing listless and unfortunately it carried over to that evening's game. Well, no chance now for the State Title.

Ram rooters shuffled out to find a place for a late dinner. Some parties were going on but nobody was really joyous.

Saturday, March 8

Another nice day. The band came to our motel to serenade the team and other motel guests with some lively tunes. The pressure is off now and everyone seems relaxed. Fullerton is our opponent tonight and many believe them to be the best team at the tourney. Not a happy prospect.

It was exciting tonight at the arena. The Rams lost to Fullerton in a thriller and the championship finale had the place in an uproar.

Most of the many City College supporters were disappointed, not because we didn't win, but that not one Ram was selected for the all-Tournament team. The band bus left for the City but many people stayed for a night of parties and merriment.

Sunday, March 9

All concerned straggled back to San Francisco. Basketball is over for another season.

Rams 4th In State Tourney

Making their seventh appearance in eight years, the Ram basketball team finished fourth in the California championships for two-year colleges.

The 18th Annual Junior College Basketball Tournament was hosted last week by Fresno City College. The three day tourney featured eight of the teams in the state. All games were played in the new Selland Auditorium, a beautiful structure reminiscent of the Oakland Coliseum.

On Thursday afternoon the Rams met high scoring Los Angeles City College. The matchup was a natural — the City Colleges from the two largest cities in California. LACC had averaged 105 points a game in their conference while CCSF has been called the best defensive team in the state.

Telvis Jones got the Rams off to a fast start netting 10 points in the first half, while Jess Arterberry snatched nine rebounds. But the Rams 11 point halftime edge (36-25) almost wasn't enough as the Cubs came roaring in the final stanza.

Since the Rams had hit on 65 percent of their shots in the first half, LA came out with a full court press. Their strategy worked well as they closed the gap quickly. Led by Western State Conference Player-of-the-Year, Mike Washington, LA closed within three points with less than two minutes remaining.

When Arterberry fouled out, all looked lost for the San Franciscans. But Bob Phelan made the first of two free throws with 56 seconds left and Gus Hill iced the game 40 seconds later when he made two charity tosses. Final score: 68-65.

Jones led all scorers with 20 points closely followed by Phelan's 15. Hill clicked for 12, Darrell Fregia for 10 and Arterberry nine. Washington was high man for LA with 16.

In other games played Thursday; Fresno City dropped an 82-68 decision to Fullerton, Pasadena raced by Merced and Sisikyous was crushed by IVC.

Friday was another day. Playing Imperial Valley College proved too great a task. In a stunning upset, the Rams lost 68-59.

Leading the Arab attack was 6'7" James Speed, a freshman who leads his team in scoring and rebounding. A darkhorse candidate for the State Title, IVC had won 16 straight coming into the game.

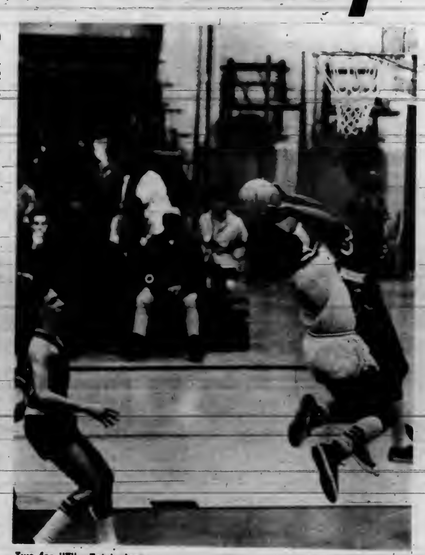
It was nip and tuck in the first half as the Arabs tried a tight zone defense in an effort to curb the Rams. Though their shooting percentage was lower than usual the Rams still held a four point halftime lead. Down by three with 4:34 left in the first half, the Rams had hit on four straight to outscore the Arabs 8 to 1.

It was all over in the second half. IVC came with a pressing man-to-man defense and the Rams caught a dreadful cold. Eight minutes, 15 seconds had elapsed before the Rams made their first basket of the second half. By then they were trailing 45-38.

The Rams closed to within seven points a couple of times, but the steady shooting of Speed, Joe Lavender and James Watson kept the Arabs in the lead.

When the debacle was over, IVC earned the right to play for the Championship. All of their starters had hit for double figures with Speed's 19 tops.

City College made only 10 of 39 shots in the second half (25.6 percent) but did get a magnificent performance from Jess Arterberry. The 6'6" center scored 17 points and came down with TWENTY-ONE rebounds in the game. Telvis Jones finished with 18 points.



Pasadena overcame a poor-shooting first half to whip IVC in the championship match-up, 58-52.

Fullerton's giants took third place from CCSF in an 81 to 71 decision earlier in the evening. After being down by 17, 40-23, at the half, the Rams played their best ball of the tourney in the second half. Unfortunately, they were no match for the taller, stronger Hornets.

Fullerton center Jerry Brucks, who stands 6-9, made good on all eight of his shots from the field to lead the Hornets to victory. Aided by 6'6" forward Ted Harper and sharpshooter Chris Smith, Brucks and company could not be stopped.

Jess Arterberry checked in with 13 rebounds while Telvis Jones poured in 19 points. Jones totaled 57 points for the three day tourney to rank second in scoring. Padadena's great George Trapp had 66. Arterberry had a fantastic 48 rebounds to outdistance his nearest rival, Howard Nickolson of Pasadena (35).

As fate would have it (or better still — as the judges would vote it) neither Arterberry nor Jones made the All-Tournament team. Such injustices are commonplace, however, in the sports world. But it's hard to figure out, especially in Arterberry's case. Here is a man, only 6'6" tall, who plays on a small team. Since he is the only "big" man on the Rams, opponents can concentrate on blocking him out and keeping him away from the boards. Yet, Arterberry out-rebounded everyone he played against. Perhaps we're prejudiced, but he deserved the Most Valuable Player Award.

Two for "T"—Telvis Jones. Photo—Samuel Woo

ALL-TOURNAMENT TEAM

Chris Smith, Fullerton guard. Had 17 vs. Rams. Steve Rostker, Pasadena guard. Fine playmaker and passer. Quarterbacked Lancers to title. James Speed, Imperial center. 46 tourney points. Joe Lavender, IVC forward. Scored 47 points with (only) 24 rebounds(!) for tourney. Ted Harper, Fullerton forward. Great all-arounder. Husky, great shooter, driver, etc.

MOST VALUABLE PLAYER

Pasadena's multi-talented George Trapp was awarded the MVP Trophy for the 18th Annual Tournament. Judges thought the six foot nine inch forward to be the finest player during the three day session.

Trapp, whose brother won the same award two years ago, scored 66 points in the three games and dragged down 32 rebounds. Of course his team won the championship which certainly helps.

Swimmers Bill Carter and Rich Glass take third and first places respectively (upper row left and right) in the 200 yard medley event as the Rams swept past USF and San Francisco State in a double dual meet on March 4. Jill Severs (upper row, center) is shown working out at State's pool with the team. Bottom row depicts diver, George Smith, enroute to his dual wins on the one and three meter boards. Photos by Samuel Woo

Swimmers Sink SF State, USF

The City College swimming team surprised everybody in the pool (not to mention themselves) on March 4 as the Ram swimmers took a pair of unexpected victories from San Francisco State and USF in a double dual meet held on State's campus.

The aqualads, who ambushed the USF Dons, 57-44, took in a bushel of first place winners.

Dave Nelson, Jeff Tsu, Rich Glass and Mike McElligott splashed to a first place victory in the 400-yd. medly relay in 4:13.9.

Frank Johnson, Tsu, Glass and McElligott took another victory in the 400-yd. medley relay by taking still another first in the 400-yd. free style relay.

The AAA's No. 1 diver last spring, George Smith, showed off his All-City form by taking firsts in the one and three meter diving events.

Waterpoloists' Rich Glass and Bill Carter took a first and third place in the 200-yd. medly, while Frank Johnson grabbed still another first with a win in the 50-yd. freestyle.

Dave Nelson capped off his twin victories in the relay events by taking in another win in the 200-yd. backstroke. Teammate Lee McCollum rounded out the scoring with his first place in the 500-yd. freestyle.

City College had a far more difficult time against State, but wound up on the long side of the scoreboard anyway as the Rams took their second win of the year, 53-51.

Coach Curt Decker was greatly pleased with his team's performance and it's no wonder since in the past few seasons wins have become as scarce as three dollar bills because of unbelievably low turnouts. Last year's team was almost disbanded because of this fact.

City College runs up against Foothill College, the traditional powerhouse of the Golden Gate Conference on Friday, March 14. Though their squad consists of only three divers and nine swimmers, the Owls are again expected to be the No. 1 team in Northern California.

Rams Set Record Relay Time At All-GGC Meet

Jose Garcia, Klaus Hoffman, Bob Darling and Jim Tracy set a new meet and stadium record in the four mile relay at the Golden Gate Conference Relay held on March 1. It didn't prove to be of any difference, however, as City College finished in fifth place with 52 points.

The awesome Merritt College T-Birds took the meet, racking up 95 points to second place Laney's 82.

City College took but one other first place, that being in the distance medley as Jim Tyree, Klaus Hoffman, Bob Darling and Jim Tracy edged out Laney with a time of 10:18.2 to the Eagles' 10:20.4.

In the high jump event, Clude Saddler managed a tie for first place as he cleared 6-6.

In the long jump, Dave Robinson leaped 21-7 to take a third place in the event enroute to leading the Rams to a second place in the long jump relay.

Robinson also took fourth place in the triple jump with a mark of 43-10½ as City College finished in third place in the triple jump relay.

Elsewhere that day however, there was very little for Ram track fans to cheer about.

Coming Events

Thursday (March 13)
BASEBALL — CCSF vs. Merritt, Balboa Field, 3 p.m.

Friday (March 14)
TRACK — CCSF vs. UC Frosh Laney, Cal, 4 p.m.
SWIMMING — CCSF vs. Foothill, Los Altos, 3 p.m.
GOLF — CCSF vs. Foothill, Harding Park, 1 p.m.
TENNIS — CCSF vs. Chabot, Golden Gate Park, 2:30 p.m.

Saturday (March 15)
BASEBALL — CCSF vs. Chabot, Hayward, 11 p.m.

Monday (March 17)
GOLF — CCSF vs. USF Frosh, Sharp Park, 1 p.m.

Tuesday (March 18)
BASEBALL — CCSF vs. San Mateo, Balboa Field, 3 p.m.

Kundert Leads Way For Win Over Foothill

Ken Kundert, the Rams' No. 1 golfer in 1967, is well on his way to regaining his top-ranked position after leading the Rams to a 24½-6 victory over Foothill on March 4.

Kundert shot an 80 at Sharon park, Foothill's home course. The park itself consists of very long fairways and since the match was played on wet grounds, the ball wouldn't roll very far thus resulting in higher than normal scores for the golfers.

Donn Paulson backed up Kundert with a round of 81, while Duane Cosper finished up at 84. Paul Rea and John Susko ended up with scores of 86 and 87 respectively.

With a victory against the Olympic Club juniors already under their belts and three of last year's top five golfers returning (Paulson, Cosper and Rea), not to mention Ken Kundert, the Ram golfers appear to be headed for another successful season.

Last spring City College compiled an 11-3 record to take a second place in the conference. Two of their losses came at the hands of San Jose.

Sports Scene

By Patrick Chon

It was another typically exciting weekend for City College athletes, starting with a thrilling track meet against Diablo Valley and ending with a four hour baseball game against Ohlone College.

Sport by sport, here's the rundown on how the Ram sports teams did last weekend, starting last Friday afternoon.

Track

City College bounced back from a fifth place finish at the Golden Gate Conference Relays to smash a hapless Diablo Valley team, 99-37, last Friday afternoon on our campus.

The 440 relay team of Steve Jordan, Jim Chisolm, Andy Watkins and Glen Austin opened things up by winning the event in 44.4, finishing thirty yards in front of Diablo Valley.

It was exactly the same story in the sprints as Jim Brooks, Andy Watkins and Glen Austin finished 1-2-3 in the 100 yd. dash with times of 10.2, 10.3 and 10.4.

In the 220, ex-Poly gridder, Steve Jordan took another win in 23 flat.

Mark Ernst provided two of Diablo Valley's few high moments with his twin victories in the 120 yd. high hurdles (15.1) and the 440 yd. hurdles (60.0).

Otherwise, however, there was very little for the Vikings to console themselves with as the Rams took first places in every other event except the shotput.

Long distance man, Bob Darling turned in an excellent mark of 9:37.6 in the two mile which makes him a possibility to break the college's record.

The Ram middle distance runners also had a pleasant afternoon, entertaining the two dozen assorted fans who had braved the twenty to thirty knot winds to witness the track home opener. Jim Tyree took the 440 in 52.6 while Klaus Hoffman, cross country vet, took the 880 in 2:06.0.

The Rams also dominated in the field events as Clyde Saddler took the high jump and Ron VanPool won the long jump.

Paul Conroy took the pole-vault with a mark of 13-6 while August Berry took the triple jump with a leap of 40-5 and Jim Baldocchi won in the discus event.

Demetrice Ledbetter, Steve Jordan, Mathews and Vic Gary took the mile relay in 3:35.7.

Swimming

The swimmers slumped off their fine showing against USF and San Francisco State by bowing to San Jose, 81-31, last Friday.

Diver George Smith and butterfly man Rich Glass took the only first places for the Rams with Smith winning on the one meter board and Glass winning in the 200 yd. butterfly.

Tennis

In tennis City College dropped a narrow 4-3 decision to Diablo Valley as Steve Lucchesi and Mike Welden won both their matches, 6-2, 6-1 and 6-3, 8-6.

Dave Locke, Greg Heggle and "Frenchie" Helmy lost in their matches.

In the doubles, Steve Lucchesi combined with Dave Lock to take their match along with the No. 2 doubles pair, Mike Welden and "Frenchie" Helmy.

Baseball

The Ram horsehiders played the longest game in City College history last Saturday — three hours and forty-five minutes, to defeat visiting Ohlone College, 10-9, in the first half of a doubleheader. The game, which started at 11:00, was only in the third inning at 12:45 and only in the sixth at 2:00!

Irv Jones picked up the win after taking over for starter Mike Morris in the fourth inning

The Rams won the game with two outs in the ninth when Hans Vigil belted a clutch hit single to drive in Jim Smith to break a 9-9 tie. City College also won the second game, 7-1.

In other games last weekend City College lost to San Jose, 4-1, and defeated Diablo Valley, 10-2 and Contra Costa, 7-2. John Lawhorn won the Contra Costa game while John Portoni won the Diablo Valley game.

Recent action at the All-GGC Relays shows Winfield Scott blasting away in the hurdles (left) and Jim Tracy setting a new meet and stadium record in the four-mile relay (see track story for further details). Photos by S — Woo.

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Journalism Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 68 — SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—WEDNESDAY, MARCH 19, 1969 — NUMBER 5

Check Cashing System Started At The College

By RAY GIN

In an effort to render an additional service to Associated Student cardholders at the college, Finance Chairman Derrick Quan introduced a "revolving check cashing service" that was passed at Student Council Meeting last Monday.

Personalized checks not exceeding ten dollars will be cashed only if the person has 1) an A.S. card, 2) Registration card, and 3) either a draft card, social security card, driver's license, or an identification card from a counselor.

If checks are bounced, a person's records (grades and transcripts) will be withheld until the fine is paid.

Questions arose on the possibility of attaching a handling fee in the cashing of checks. But this suggestion was unacceptable to the council because the purpose of this new system was not to make money but to give students an added service, according to Quan.

Checks will be cashed at the Student Finance Bank and will take 1 day to go through the check clearinghouse.

A resolution calling for mandatory A.S. cards for all students was passed later in the meeting. This endorsement will be in effect only if the State Legislature decided to rule that Junior colleges in the state can legally impose this measure. Even at that, a general student body election must be held to decide whether or not to adopt this new rule.

Quan emphasized that since the opening of the college in 1935 the price of the A.S. card has remained at five dollars while elsewhere in the state the price range is between $7.50 and $22.50.

English Author to Speak On World of the Modern Novel

Anthony Burgess is an English author known internationally for his many novels, his satirical wit and his great knowledge of linguistics and literature. He will speak at City College tomorrow.

Anthony Burgess
Noted Satirist

Burgess has been described as the "ablest satirist to appear since Evelyn Waugh" and that's a compliment in anyone's book.

In 1956, the author's first publication appeared, kicking off a book-a-year schedule that earned him quick recognition from the reading public and the critics alike.

His latest, Urgent Call, marks publication of 17 novels and five non-fiction works to date.

Burgess insists that linguistics in his field and indeed it should be—he speaks nine languages fluently. His career also includes however, service with the British Army and a variety of artistic pursuits.

Tomorrow at 11 a.m., Burgess will speak in the Little Theatre. Appropriately, the topic of his lecture will be "Wild World of the Modern Novel."

Hall Put To Good Use

New Lecture Hall — This new lecture hall, which is located in E-101 of the Educational Service Building, seems to be in constant use. With a seating capacity of approximately 250 seats, it houses classes in art, business, photography, and engineering. Student Council meetings are held there on occasion as well as lectures from guest speakers. Even with its excellent automatic ventilation and its cork board floors, over half the population on campus has never set foot inside. (Photo by Bert Flowers)

H&R Executive Chef To Retire

Chef Coste, Dean Batmale, Chef Nyland, and President Conlen with Junior Culinary Olympics Award—September, 1965.

Hotel and Restaurant Executive Chef Instructor Pierre Coste, who has been associated with City College since 1947, will retire in June.

Tony Achermann, Chef Instructor at City College and President of the Gastronome Club, announced that a dinner honoring Coste will be held at the college in May. The Gastronome Club members are chefs working, and retired, of various hotels, restaurants, and clubs in downtown San Francisco.

Coste, born in France, served his apprenticeship in Grenoble, France and worked at hotels in Monte Carlo, Lyon, and Paris. He came to the United States in 1926 and his first job was with the Colony Restaurant in New York and later he worked at the Park Lane, Sherry, Commodore, and The Waldorf Astoria Hotels.

Leaving New York Coste travelled to Boston, Chicago, Springfield, Massachusetts winding up at San Francisco at the St. Francis Hotel. He began as a second cook, was promoted to Sous Chef and later became Executive Chef and Steward holding that position for seventeen years.

Coste accepted an offer to be catering manager and purchasing agent for the Curtola Company in Oakland which operated twelve restaurants plus the Tahoe and Rainbow taverns in the Sierras. After two years, Coste left to be Executive Chef and Steward at the Mark Hopkins and came to City College as a part-time instructor in 1947. He joined the Hotel and Restaurant Department as a full-time instructor in 1948 and has been at the college ever since.

When asked about his twenty-one years working with students, Coste said, "I have enjoyed working with young people because their fresh outlook on life and enthusiasm has inspired me to many new ideas involving work and plans for future operations." He also stated that the wonderful cooperation received from the Hotel and Restaurant Staff was invaluable and by working together as a unit they have made the Hotel and Restaurant department known throughout the United States as the finest school of its kind in the country.

'An Oldie But Goodie'

A hit on radio across the country is Red Skelton reciting a version of the Pledge of Allegeance.

His version has been read into the Congressional Record and his production company in Hollywood has been envaded by 200,000 requests for copies of this printed on a scroll.

Skelton learned this version from a teacher in Vincennes, Ind., when he was a schoolboy.

This pledge, Skelton felt, would be appropriate to recite on the program nearest the inauguration of Richard M. Nixon as President.

Here is the pledge:

"I remember this one teacher, a real sage of my time. He had such wisdom. We were all reciting the Pledge of Allegiance, and he walked over. Mr. Lasswell was his name . . . He said:

" 'I've been listening to you boys and girls recite the Pledge of Allegiance all semester and it seems as though it is becoming monotonous to you. If I may, may I recite it and try to explain to you the meaning of each word:

" 'I-me, an individual, a committee of one.

" 'PLEDGE—dedicate all of my worldly goods to give without self-pity.

" 'ALLEGIANCE—my love and my devotion.

" 'TO THE FLAG—our standard, Old Glory, a symbol of freedom. Wherever she waves, there is respect because your loyalty has given her a dignity that shouts freedom is everybody's job.

" 'Of the United—that means that we have all come together.

" 'States—individual communities that have united into 48 great states. Forty eight individual communities with pride and dignity and purpose, all divided with imaginary boundaries, yet united to a common purpose, and tha's love for country.

" 'Of America.

" 'And to the Republic—a state in which sovereign power is invested in representatives chosen by the people to govern. And government is the people and it's from the people to the leaders, not from the leaders to the people.

" 'For which it stands.

" 'One nation—meaning, so blessed by God.

" 'Indivisible—incapable of being divided.

" 'With liberty—which is freedom and the right of power to live one's own life without threats or fear or some sort of retaliation.

" 'And Justice—the principle of quality of dealing fairly with others.

" 'For all—which means it's as much your country as it is mine.' Since I was a small boy, two states have been added to our country and two words have been added to the Pledge of Allegiance—'under God.'

"Wouldn't it be a pity if someone said, 'That's a prayer; and that would be eliminated from schools, too?"

This Week Campus Lineup

Thursday, March 13

Lecture by noted author Anthony Burgess — "The Wild World of the Modern Novel" —at 11 a.m., College Theater.

Movie — "Forbidden Games" —at 8 p.m., College Theater; tickets available from English Department.

Friday, March 14

Newman Dance from 9-12, Smith Hall; $1.25 with AS card and $2.00 without.

Sunday, March 16

Amigos Anonymous meeting at 6:30 p.m. at 2700 Dwight Way (Newman Hall) in Berkeley. If interested contact Nancy Swanson (992-0961) or Marty Schwartz (826-3054).

Tuesday, March 18

Lecture by Farouk Mawlawi — "The Arab Position in the Mid-East" — at 11 a.m., College Theater. AWS Luncheon for new women instructors at 11 a.m., Ornamental Horticulture Building.

BSU Interview

(Continued from page 3)

Q. Is there any possibility of all-out war between blacks and the white elements who would deny the blacks their rights?

A. The revolution's now!

Q. What would be the ideal situation?

A. An ideal situation would be everybody having an equal chance in everything.

Q. Does the BSU have any rivals here at CCSF?

A. There's no rival here and everybody's happy. Everybody's together. No problems.

Q. How do you see Robert J. Tealer, Assistant to the Dean of Students for men?

A. I think he's up to par. Tealer has the know-how. He knows the ins and outs of things. I feel he is best qualified for his position.

Q. How long have you been involved with the BSU?

A. Three semesters.

Q. What are your post-graduation plans?

A. I will continue to work for the black community.

Q. Do you have anything else to say?

A. Down with the Pigs!

Astronomy instructor Ed Duckworth moved his Astronomy 10 class out under the heavens to discuss the structure and the evolution of the stars and galaxies. Other classes were held outdoors during the good weather also.

Crim Major Aids Police In Capturing Gunman

In the early days of September last year, Arnold Salinas watched a man wave a gun at his boss. The gunman demanded money and narcotics.

Salinas was working at a neighborhood pharmacy as a stockboy when the robbery occurred.

The gunman walked into the pharmacy waving a gun at the employees.

After demanding the money and narcotics, the robber forced the store's safe open and fled with $100 worth of narcotics and an undetermined amount of money.

When the thief left the pharmacy and got into a waiting car, Salinas ran to his car and began to follow the robber.

Salinas followed him for two blocks, and then decided to give what information he had to the police department.

Salinas phoned the police from a booth at a gas station.

The information was directly relayed as Salinas described the make and color of the getaway vehicle and gave its license number.

Within ten minutes the police caught the gunman.

Because of his aid, and his courage, Police Chief Thomas Cahill sent Salinas a letter of gratitude.

Cahill will also present Salinas with a citation at the annual Public Recognition Awards on April 3.

Salinas' boss was also grateful, as he gave him a raise in pay.

Salinas is in his first semester at City College and is majoring in criminology. His ambition is to be connected with a branch of law enforcement.

He also received a letter from Dean Hillsman commending him for his bravery.

Arnold Salinas
Police Chief Thomas Cahill sent letter of gratitude

Draft Refusals Up, 255 Men On Trial

More men are refusing to be inducted into the army, according to the San Francisco Chronicle.

Two hundred fifty five men were ordered before Federal Judge Robert F. Peckham last Thursday for draft refusal.

Emergency Funds Passed By Council

A resolution calling for additional considerations in the planning of future campus activities was passed by the Student Council during a hectic and emotion filled meeting last week.

The resolution was introduced by Council member Maurice Parker after a series of incidents at the state basketball tournament in Fresno in which a group of 40 City College students were evicted from their motel eight hours before the final game.

Their bus broke down on three occasions, forcing students to wait in the cold while it was being repaired. The group arrived back in the city Sunday morning.

The resolution, as passed by the Council, calls for the setting up of an emergency fund for motel rooms if plans for staying are longer than anticipated, and for repairs on the bus, should it break down.

In other business, the Council voted unanimously to accept the appointive officers of AS President Don Ortez for the spring semester, and to loan the "Free Critic" $150 for its next edition.

The appointed officers for spring are: Corresponding Secretary, Barbara Martin; State Information Chairman, Shirley Brown; AS Card Sales Commissioner, Ed Lew; Election Commissioner, George Kwan; Finance Committee Chairman, Raphael Valentine, Derrick Quan, Bill Turner; Cultural Affairs Commissioner, Frank Alvarado; High School Liaison Commissioner, Fernando Cosio, Gabriel Castillo; Student-Faculty Relations Chairman, Mike Shafer, Ed Glazer; Recording Secretary, Fern Way; Rally Commissioner, Georgia Newsome; Social Calendar Chairman, Rosa Perez, Hattie Knox; and Teacher Evaluation Chairman, Ed Jimison, Rodney

H&R Students To Take Trip

The annual Spring trip for eight hotel and restaurant students and two instructors will take place April 15 - 21, Lawrence B. Wong, head of the H&R Department reported.

This trip will be sponsored and hosted by hotels and restaurants in the state of California. All meals and rooms for the participants will be complimentary.

City College representatives will travel from here to Monterey, Santa Barbara and Los Angeles and return by way of Bakersfield and Fresno.

Wong said that the purpose of this trip, aside from it being an annual and traditional event, is to provide the students with an insight of first class hotel and restaurant opportunities in California.

Student and faculty members of the H&R Department will vote to select the eight top men or women for this event. To be selected students must have a proper grade point average, a six unit load, be six units away from graduation and be doing practice work in the field.

Area VI Conference: Grape Strike Support, Help For J.C. Transfers

By Barbara Homann

A number of resolutions were unanimously passed at the Area VI Conference held at Foothill College earlier this month.

These passed resolutions included the establishment of draft counseling services on campuses to inform the student and registrants in general, of their rights and duties in relation to the Selective Service System.

A resolution was accepted that supports the current State Senate bill which states that all transferring junior college students be given first priority for acceptance into State Colleges. Another was the support of the United Farm Workers strike by withholding the purchase of California table grapes in all participating colleges.

Also highlighting the conference was a resolution favoring the dissolving of the tactical squad and any similar organizations. Arguments were that the tactical squad is a brutal and inhuman organization and is detrimental to the basic human freedom and is not necessary on campus for any type of student unrest.

These resolutions plus many more will be forwarded to the State Conference to be held later this year.

This year's conference aimed at ways in which to "force" junior college students to involve themselves in "what's going on." As councilman Ed Glazer puts it, " . . . he has to stop thinking of the junior college as the mother high school, but where he can feel a part of yet remain an individual."

Glazer was one of the 16 delegates representing City College at the conference.

The Area VI Conference is more like an open forum where junior college delegates meet and air-out differences and pass resolutions pertaining to individual campuses. Here, representatives are able to "zero-in" on the activities of neighboring colleges.

Approximately 12 colleges participate in this Area VI conference each semester with delegates representing areas from San Francisco to Monterey.

Pornography Subject Of Noted Author

"Because love and anger are almost inseparable, all roads lead to the inevitable fantasies of the Marquis de Sade", declared English novelist and foremost satirist, Anthony Burgess.

Speaking to a throng of students at the college last week, Burgess expounded on the new literary tradition and the effects of censorship upon words marked as "obscene" and "pornographic."

In saying that the elements of love and aggression go together, the new literature of flagellation has its roots in the works of de Sade. Because of his repressed sexual desires, de Sade categorized violence and provided present-day authors the standards on which they extract their written violence. He gave examples of horrendous murders committed by criminals under the influence of several books. But he expressed, "We can't protect the lives of our children from rape and bestial murders by killing the whole of Western literature; we can't put restrictions or censorship on literature to protect society's people."

Thus, his resolution is to condemn pornography and obscenity esthetically and categorically rather than an outright repression of a work.

To him, obscenity has a very vague and fluorescent meaning. One aspect of obscenity he related was that "Too bad the anal and urinary tracts are associated with propagation;

(Continued on Page 2)

Bufano's Visit Here Greeted With Large Turnout

The living legend, sculptor Benny Bufano, speaks on art and other diversions at the college.

World famous sculptor, Beniaminò (Benny) Bufano was the guest speaker for the college's Advertising Art and Design Dept. last Thursday.

The San Francisco resident of over 30 years has created and donated statues and pieces of sculpture throughout the world.

Local residents have seen his Madonna statue at the S.F. Airport. Bufano revealed that he had kept the statue in storage for 20 years and finally, sold it to the city for a mere one dollar.

Another local remnant of Bufano's is the St. Francis of Assisi statue in front of the Longshoremen's Hall. The statue was removed from the steps of St. Peter and Paul's cathedral when the neighborhood Italian women complained that the statue was a gross misrepresentation of St. Francis.

Leaving art for a moment, Bufano told the audience of the not-so innocent goings-on within the Vatican. He states fearlessly that Pope John's death was a result of poisoning from some of the other cardinals he had fired.

The poetic sculpture pieces of this fiery little artist are on display now at the Alcoa Building and at the Continental Gallery. Bufano invites all students to visit these exhibitions.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Weekly Publication of the Students in the Journalism Department of City College of San Francisco

Thomas O. Graham, Editor

184

Vol. 68, No. 4 WEDNESDAY, MARCH 19, 1969 Page 2

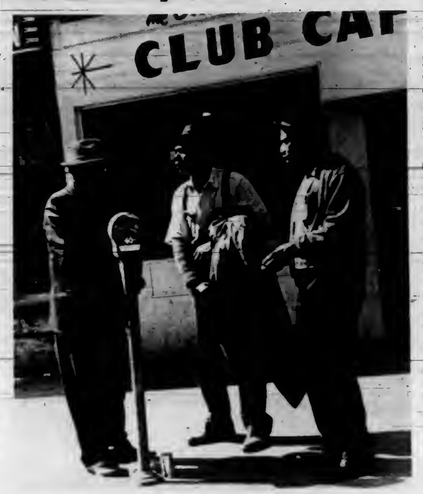
Pet Peeve: Parking

The following are some questions that have arisen in my mind concerning the parking situation at City College.

1. Why aren't parking permits sold independently of Associated Student Body Cards?

It's rather ridiculous for a student to spend $5.00 on a student body card when all he uses it for is to register his car with the campus police in order to get a parking sticker and keep from being tagged. Many students (primarily the older, married students) aren't interested in the activities that this college offers. Unfortunate, but true. Student discount cards should be made separate.

2. Why does the money from student parking citations go downtown? If the campus police fine students that are illegally parked in the reservoir or faculty parking area then the money should go back to the school. This would help bolster the AS funds. And I'm sure that the City and County of San Francisco can get along alright without our money.



3. Why don't they open up the other reservoir for student parking? I know that there would be less complaints from the neighbors about students parked in their driveways if the students could park in the south reservoir.

These are just a few observations concerning the problem—they are by no means solutions.

To the left — wasted parking area, to the right — City and County money maker.
—photo by Sam Alvarado

Prosperity Versus Poverty In S.F.

By Marc Kovacs

It's hard to believe that Union Street and Fillmore Street are both in San Francisco. Each is in a distinct condition. There's construction and prosperity on one street; demolition and poverty on the other.

Strangely enough the thoroughfares intersect. But this crossing can be seen only from the Marina side of Pacific Heights. That is, the side that overlooks the St. Francis Yacht Club and Golden Gate Bridge. And the difference between this part of the hill and the other is the difference between black and white. The Bay is at the foot of the northern slope. The Harlem of the West Coast is at the foot of the southern slope.

The contrasts are incalculable: prostitutes on Ellis Street and "insurance consultants" on Steiner; antique shops on Union and Eldridge Cleaver posters on Fillmore.

Other comparisons are striking. For example, on Fillmore, people shoot dice or discuss Martin Luther King in front of the Historical Society. Others just stand around the corners and talk about life in general as these three gents are doing. By contrast, there are few pedestrians on Union. Everybody is either buying something or selling something and then driving away.

To say that communication between sections is negative would be an understatement. The 22 Fillmore bus circulates on both halves of Pacific Heights. But the passengers on Union are white and the riders on Fillmore are black.

The irony of the situation, however, is that the blacks know what's happening on Union Street and want no part of it. The whites, on the other hand, are not even allowed inside Muslim Mosque Number 5. The white community of Pacific Heights can't know what's going on even if it wanted. It appears to be too late.

Funny Joke: L.B.J. Needs Your Money

Dear Friends,

We have the distinguished honor of being members of a committee to raise 50 million dollars to be used for the placing of a statue of L.B.J., the former chief, in the Hall of Fame, Washington, D.C.

The committee was in quite a quandry about selecting a proper location for the statue. It was thought not wise to place it beside George Washington, who never told a lie; nor beside that of F.D.R. who never told the truth; nor beside Harry Truman, who couldn't tell the difference.

After careful consideration, we think it should be placed beside the statue of Christopher Columbus, the greatest "New Dealer" of them all, in that he started out not knowing where he was going; and on arriving, did not know where he was; and on returning, did not know where he had been; and did it all on borrowed money.

The inscription on the statue will read:

I pledge to L.B.J. and to the National Debt, for which he stands; One expenditure

with graft and corruption for all.

If you're one of those citizens who has money left over after paying your taxes, we will expect a generous contribution from you for this worthwhile project.

—Mike Colgan

Speech On Pornography

(Continued from Page 1)

Beauty is mistaken for degradation. We will never escape our genitalia."

On the definition of pornography, Burgess says, "it is a drawing or a desired sexual partner or anything that excites." And he added wryly, "How much more pornographic is a real woman?"

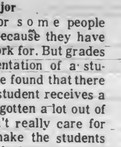
Burgess finally provided an additional insight, "There are two types of literature: pornography and didactic. Pornography is used as an instrument to procure an unsocial act and to release the stimulation. Didacticism is to teach an act that is a social impulse and that is acceptable. Purely esthetic and didactic books hardly ever have commercial successes, while the financial laurels are on the books of pornography."

Guardsman Staff

(The Guardsman is the weekly publication of the students in the journalism department of City College of San Francisco. It is published each Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacations. The opinions expressed in the columns and editorials are those of the individual writers and not necessarily those of the Guardsman, the department or the college. Editorial office, 304, Science Hall; telephone 587-7272, ext. 246.)

SPRING 1969

EDITOR IN CHIEF ... TOM GRAHAM
Managing Editor ... Barbara Hemann
Feature Editor ... Boku Kodama
News Editor ... Randy Flynn
Sports Editor ... Phil DiCarlo
Editorial Assistants: Rita Carroll, Lavina Lee, Lynda Sandstrom.
Reporters: Patrick Chan, Gerry Engler, Ray Gin, Marc Kavacs, Jack Ruiz.
Photographers: Eugene Wong, Chief; Jules Claessens, Bert Flowers, Antony Ragadio, Jerry Warren, Earl Williams, Samuel Woo.



Contact Lens

Do You Favor the Present Grading System?

Donna Shields, P.E. Major

In some respects. For some people grades are necessary because they have to have something to work for. But grades are not a real representation of a student's work because I've found that there are classes in which a student receives a poor grade, but he has gotten a lot out of the course itself. I don't really care for the pass-fail system because it doesn't make the students work. In a way it's good, but in a way it's bad too.

Mauricio Flores, Business Major

I do not think that it is necessary to grade the students. The only thing that grades prove is that you have studied the material given to you by an instructor in a course. I'm from El Salvador, and in my country the pass-fail system is used. Maybe this is the system that is needed for grading systems in all schools.

Julia Sugiyama, Medical Technology Major

I think we should do away with them. With the pass-fail system the student will concentrate more on learning than on grades. But because this system may tend somewhat to decrease motivation, it is in some respects bad. I think the pass-fail system is good for courses like P.E., Communications, and other remedial courses. The thing that's wrong with the present grading system is that the grades don't really tell how well or how bad a student is doing.

Peter Seidma, English Major

I'm against grades in general. Sometimes they tend to be arbitrary on the part of the teacher. It puts too much pressure on the student's knowledge when a student should be learning new ideas. I'm in favor of independent studies. For some people, grades provide the motivation. The pass-fail system is very good in that it provides a motivation to the students who would ordinarily be to frightened to take a course for fear of getting a bad grade.

Note: The same question will be asked of instructors in the next issue of the Guardsman.

The AGONY

Tom Clyburn sits in the Rom locker room in Fresno after the 68 to 59 semi-final loss to Imperial Volley. Experts had picked the Rams to be in the finals and robbed the game on "upset." After taking a four point halftime lead, the Rams fell apart, hitting only 10 of 39 shots in the second half. Most of the team, including Clyburn, were playing their last games for CCSF.

The Guardsman SPORTS

J.C. Cage Tournament In Fresno

Darrell Fregia (2nd team All-GGC) guns one over an Imperial Arob.

and the ECSTASY

Tournament MVP George Tropp of Pasadena takes net as souvenir after championship game. Lancers whipped Imperial for crown.

STEAL AND SCORE—Guard Bob Phelon, mysteriously left off the league all-stars, gets two versus IVC.

Telvis Jones drives for a score as Fullerton's Chris Smith vainly attempts to block the shot. Jones, a first-team All-Golden Gate Conference selection, scored 57 points during the tournament to rank behind Tropp's high of 66. Even so, the stocky "T" was left out of the All-Tourney team.

UNFRIENDLY TERRITORY — All-GGC center Jess Atterberry is surrounded by four Fullerton players who respect the best rebounder in California junior colleges. Too bad the judges don't share that opinion.

Players selected for the ALL - TOURNAMENT team receive their awards. They are (left to right): Ted Harper, 6-6 Fullerton forward, Steve Rostker, 6-2 guard from Pasadena, Joe Lavender, Imperial's 6-4 forward, Chris Smith, the 6' guard from Fullerton and James Speed, IVC's 6-7 center.

LET'ER RIP, GUS—Rom forward Jacob Augustus Hill lets fly with a ten footer against Fullerton. An All-League choice (second team), Hill had to battle much taller forwards throughout the three day tournament.

IT'S OVER

On behalf of the basketball team, coach Sid Phelan, the loyal fans and the GUARDSMAN, I wish to express our sincere gratitude to SAMUEL WOO, the CCSF photographer who took all the pictures shown on this page.
—Phil DiCarlo, Sports Ed.

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Journalism Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 68 — SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—WEDNESDAY, MARCH 26, 1969 — NUMBER 6

Globe Hopper Edna Pope Is New Dean

By Ray Gin

An enticing world vagabond was recently appointed the college's new Dean of Women.

Dean Edna Pope of the Physical Education Department was given the vacant role when Dr. Mary Golding retired last semester.

Miss Pope hails from Oregon and attended Los Angeles State College where she received her Bachelor's Degree in P.E. with a minor in Social Science. Her education resumed at San Francisco State where she acquired her Master's Degree and her Administrative, Pupil Personnel, Counseling, and Junior College credentials.

She became active in the National American Red Cross in the early 1950's and spent two years in the Far East. During the latter days of the Korean War, when North Koreans were making their last heavy pushes, Miss Pope was stationed and worked feverishly in an Evacuation Hospital.

On a note of nostaigia, she recalls a special assignment that required her and her coworkers to produce an United Nations show at the request of the U.S. Embassy in Korea. With a stadium built for the Olympics, 50,000 troops were entertained.

She then spent time as a coordinator of Recreational Activities at Osaka University in Osaka, Japan. Upon her return to the States, she became a Girl Scout Field Director for three years. Teaching P.E. for two years at Balboa High School was next.

Resigning from that teaching post, Miss Pope, under the auspices of the Army for NATO, went onto the Paris American High School in Paris, France, and was a dormitory advisor there. During her free time she traveled extensively into such places as Taiwan, Hong Kong, Russia, Poland and Czechoslovakia.

Arriving back in the City, Miss Pope joined the college faculty in the Physical Education Department and here she has remained for six years.

The new Dean of Women is interested in getting in touch with all women students at the college. She wants to be able to know the needs and interests of all women here and invite them to come in with ideas and suggestions for achieving that goal. Seminars in problem areas of the women college students is one of Dean Pope's hopeful plans.

She stresses a need for better communication between women students and faculty. At the same time, she does not want to create a communication gap between the sexes and believes many of the problems stem from this co-educational distance. Thus, her goal is for a broader participation in communication among both men and women students.

Former world traveler Edna Pope settles down to her new job as City College's Dean of Women. Photo—Tony Ragadio

Senate Okays Biology Class

The Curriculum Committee of the Academic Senate approved a new course called Ethnic Biology and heard of expansion plans for COIL (Center of Individual Learning) program at a meeting held on March 11.

The committee unanimously approved the fall implementation of Ethnic Biology.

According to its sponsor, Miss Shirley Hoskins, Ethnic Biology will mainly cover man's relationship to his environment, the characteristics of the Ethnic Group, the behavior of animals, and a sociological awareness of the races of man.

The Curriculum Committee termed the new course "a pioneering effort on the college's part."

The committee also approved expansion of COIL in the form of additional equipment and tutors. The tutors will be students from the college and will be paid $1.61 an hour. The tutoring system will be full time—that is, three tutors will be available eight hours a day.

This semester 600 students are making use of programs offered through the center. COIL is located in C306.

Also discussed at the meeting was a proposed course on the Latin-American family. The course would have dual status in the Ethnic Studies Program and the Sociology Department.

Cash Awards For 'Silver' Contest

Ten cash scholarships are available this semester to City College girls who can combine crystal, silver and china to the satisfaction of three national magazines.

Reed & Barton's 1969 "Silver Opinion" Competition is opened to all girls at the College. The contest is sponsored by House Beautiful, Seventeen and Brides Magazines.

The first grand scholarship award is $500 in cash; the second award is $300 in cash, and the third award is $250 in cash. Fourth, fifth and sixth awards are $200 and the seventh through tenth awards are $100 each.

This is a great opportunity for every woman student.

All entries must be in by March 31, 1969 at room E-106, or the Campus Representative Linda Wong.

Midterms week brings people closer together.

CINEMA SCOPE

Jacques Demy's 'Model Shop' A True Sign of Bankruptcy

By Ray Gin

Regretfully, French Director Jacques Demy (Umbrellas of Cherbourg) has taken temporary residence in that often visited town of Filmdom, Grade B.

His "Young Girls of Rochefort" gave hint to his loss of inspiration in making any more diverting films but "The Model Shop" is concrete evidence in confirming that suspicion.

His latest film might have worked in France, where a certain eroticism and mystery about America still pervades, but on the American scene the film is overwhelmingly predictable and is therefore, a total disaster.

The central figure is George Matthews (Gary Lockwood), a drifting draftee-to-be who leads a rather aimless life. On the verge of splitting with his girl (Alexandra Hay), he encounters Lola, a seductive Frenchwoman, in a Sunset Strip Model Shop, where sweaty - palmed voyeurs pay to take snapshots of semi - nude women. A one night love affair ensues and later, both separate; she, back to France and he, to the Army.

The film fails mainly because Demy wants to create an uneasy balance between romantic lyricism and stark reality, but ends up teetering on the edge of banality. The two are difficult to blend. His references to relevant subjects such as Vietnam and the draft are too casual and treated sophomorically to have any serious impact at all. The romantic angle treated in pretty pastel hues makes for an all-too obvious grapple for lyrical mood that never comes.

The dialogue sounds like bad translation. Demy is also guilty of using cliches I thought were buried in a vault beneath an Egyptian pyramid. The mysterious woman in white and her white cadillac are antique objects belonging to the 40's.

The characters are unbelievably wooden and one-dimensional. Gary Lockwood brings not a shred of personality into his role and has the disturbing distinction of lighting a cigarette in every major scene in the film. Anouk Aimee, the enchantress in "A Man and a Woman," becomes so entangled in her aloofness that her character escapes the screen much like the vapors of Lockwood's cigarette.

French director Jacques Demy, here at the college recently, tells of the trials in making his "Model Shop".

Demy's romantic idealism on how Los Angeles should look is revealed by his poetic camerawork. But this depiction is a fraud to the native American because we are familiar with the creaky facade and pretentious milieu that is so much a part of tinsel town, that making it over to appear like a lovely seashore town removes it from enchantment to sheer disbelief. He has molded a breathtaking background that doesn't fit the place he is trying to portray.

Demy, speaking here at the college recently, stated that he detests the restricting shackles of bad taste. He has taken himself literally and "The Model Shop" ends up with no taste at all, for there isn't a single sustaining mood or style that lingers throughout the entire picture.

Students wishing to drop courses have until April 9 to withdraw without penalty. Afterwards they will only be able to drop a class by taking a leave of absence. Deadline for leaves of absence are May 14. Students should see their counselors for further information and necessary forms.

Campus Lineup

FRIDAY, MARCH 21

Alpha Sigma Delta Dance from 9-12, Smith Hall; $1.25 with AS card and $2 without.

SUNDAY, MARCH 23

Amigos Anonymous meeting at 6:30 p.m. at 2700 Dwight Way (Newman Hall) in Berkeley. If interested, contact Nancy Swanson (992-0961) or Marty Schwartz (826-3054).

MONDAY, MARCH 24

Student Council meeting from 12-1, ES-101.

TUESDAY, MARCH 25

Optometry lecture by Dr. Milton Delany, a professor at University of California, at 11 a.m., College Theater.

World Campus Afloat--Travel Abroad And Study

Carol A. Keeler will be on campus again today discussing the Chapman College World Campus Afloat, a program for traveling abroad and studying at the same time.

As a representative for Chapman College World Campus Afloat, Miss Keeler has been at City College since Monday with displays and slides and holding interviews on this program.

Any student with a 2.0 college average in all subjects and who is in "good college standing" is eligible to transfer into the Chapman College program, to study for a semester on board a ship.

Approximately 80 liberals arts courses are offered from which one can choose.

Each semester 500 students are accepted from 200 colleges and universities across the country.

For the Spring Semester the ship is scheduled to leave October 10 from New York. It will cover North Europe, the Mediterranean countries, Western Africa, the Eastern Coast, Southern and Western South America and Mexico. The tour will end on January 29, 1970 in Los Angeles.

While traveling students will attend classes and have free time for various activities while in port.

The cost for the semester is $3250. Scholarships, grants and a loan program are also available for interested students.

Former Dean of Women, Mary Golding, brought this program to the campus. Dean Golding is presently traveling abroad with the World Campus Afloat.

Edna Pope, Dean of Women, is the City College representative for the program.

T. Y. Wong Ousted As Editor Of Chinese-Han

The Free Critic's Editorial Board voted unanimously last week to oust T. Y. Wong as editor of its Chinese supplement, HAN. No replacement has been named.

Wong was removed after submitting an editorial entitled, "Paper's Policy."

"This paper," wrote Wong, "is an independent newspaper. Its policy is to help Chinese-emigrants to have better knowledge about their cultural background and environment, to take a more active part in the American Way of Life, and to promote our relationship with other ethnic groups."

T. Y. Wong
Ex-Editor of Han

Wong's article was scheduled for publication in issue number three of HAN. The Free Critic's six-man editorial board, however, disagreed with Wong. "The paper's policy," they said, "is made up by the editorial board—not by T. Y. Wong."

Prophetically, the ex-Hong Kong newsman had hinted at the latest developments in an earlier editorial. "In all questions of policy," noted Wong on March 10, "it is possible for the policy to be popular with the majority and still be undemocratic." The remark was a reference to opponents of expanded Ethnic Studies. Wong believed that such programs are still far behind and "need to be expanded."

HAN was not opposed to Ethnic Studies per se. The issue was Wong's objectivity. The governing board decided to pursue a radical course. Wong elected to adhere to traditional, professional and typically journalistic methods.

Full Time Aid For Students Through COIL

On March 11, during a meeting of the Curriculum Committee of the Academic Senate, Gene Roberts presented the COIL (Center Of Individual Learning) program.

COIL is designed to aid the student with any academic problem which may arise during the course of a semester.

When all plans have been completed, COIL will contain almost all that a student will need to help himself in his studies. Currently, there are materials and lessons in Math, Chemistry, Physics, Algebra, Business Arithmetic, Statistics, Physiology, Biology, Economics, ESL, English 5A and Calculus.

If next year's budget is passed, there will be tutors available eight hours a day to assist students with their academic problems.

The mode of operation is two-fold: 1. an individual seeks instruction to overcome a deficiency; 2. An instructor may assign a unit to a student if he uses the facilities of COIL as part of his studies.

According to Roberts "The purpose of COIL is to provide material for students to independently augment their background in a particular course to sharpen their academic skills.

"It is also to provide experience in a field in which they may be interested. No external help is needed because the material is programmed for independent study.

"It may prove helpful in a difficult course."

Four performances of this wild comedy are scheduled for the Little Theatre. Drama Department runs through a dress rehearsal of "The Three Cuckolds". The play starts tonight at eight.

Recommendations Made To Check Bookstore Operation

Due to the numerous discussions concerning the campus bookstore policies this semester, the Academic Senate recommends that a governing board consisting of students, faculty and administrators be established to oversee the bookstore operations.

Some recommendations have been drawn up thus far and will be submitted to the Administration for action. One recommendation states that the bookstore should take immediate actions to implement a system of employing students. This policy would be in accordance with fair employment practices and would be established in Dr. Bittimer's office.

Another recommendation is concerned with changing the procedures for obtaining desk copies for instructors. Desk copies are books used by the instructors until they receive a copy from the publisher. It is recommended that instructors desiring desk copies purchase the copy from the bookstore; when the replacement text has been received from the publisher, the instructor sell the replacement copy to the bookstore for the price of the desk copy.

Richard Main
CCSF Bookstore Manager
photo by Tony Ragadio

Richard Main, bookstore manager, indicated that $1,000 is lost each semester through providing desk copies to instructors.

A third recommendation states that the bookstore should be provided with information regarding expected enrollment in classes as soon as possible. The bookstore must then assure every instructor that texts and supplementary materials will be ordered in sufficient numbers for every student enrolled.

The instructor must be notified if there is to be a shortage as soon as this information is obtained.

Operation Minerva To Help High School Dropouts

Operation Minerva (Godess of Wisdom), is a college program dedicated to help high school dropouts escape the ghettos.

The program developed by Youth For Service removes the stigma of a dropout by placing the youth in college where he becomes qualified for educational opportunities and employment.

Linda Himelfarb, of Youth For Service, is the co-ordinator of the program and works actively with Howard Schoon New Careers Director at City College. "Minerva" has been in operation in conjunction with the college since June of 1967.

Minerva participants have academic and personal problems which are not typical of the average student. In order to tailor this program to meet their needs, supportive services are extended to them by City College and Youth For Service.

The requirements are, he must be between the ages of 18 to 21, a high school dropout or from a foreign country, where his secondary diploma is not recognized by the Board of Education. No racial preference is made in the selection procedure of applicants, but because Y.F.S. works with the so-called "culturally disadvantaged" youth, most applicants are Black, Latin American, or Chinese.

Candidates are mainly sought through the Neighborhood Youth Corps Program, a program which provides work experience for youths between the ages of 16 to 21. Since one of the goals of N.Y.C. is to return these youths to school, Operation Minerva is the next logical step.

Minerva does not have all the answers to the problems of the youths it serves but is an investment which will pay dividends as the program participants re-enter society in a new role which is socially and economically productive.

Evaluation Of Courses Here Next Semester

By Barbara Hamann

The "Constructive Program on Course Evaluation" (CPCE), initiated by the Associated Student Council, will provide instructors with extensive "feedback" for increasing the effectiveness of courses, according to Ed Jimison, Chairman of the CPCE Committee.

In addition to aiding instructors, this evaluation program will be a major factor in guiding students in the selection of instructors and classes that best match their individual needs.

The CPCE Committee, established by the Student Council, is spearheading the "program" at a steady pace. Several weeks of research and planning have produced favorable results, but more work is inveived before the actual "Course Evaluation" takes place this semester.

A proposed course evaluation form has been drafted and various methods in which to conduct the survey have been discussed. Letters were sent to all instructors requesting their cooperation and they were encouraged to submit suggestions and comments applicable to the evaluation survey.

To date, all but one of the respondents has agreed to cooperate by giving up class time so students might participate in the survey from the classroom.

Jimison submitted a sample evaluation questionaire before the Academic Senate for approval and recommendation last Wednesday. Official approval and the actual date of the "Course Evaluation Week" will be announced when the Senate reconvenes on Wednesday, April 9.

Jimison pointed out that "extra precautions are being taken to make certain the program is conducted in a responsible, positive and valid manner. Compiled results will be triple-checked for accuracy by members of his committee including faculty."

Members serving on the CPCE Committee include student council members, Experimental College administrators, staff members of the Free Critic and Guards man, and also cooperating faculty.

Because the effectiveness of this program depends on the faculty, instructors have been urged to mail all comments and-or suggestions to Ed Jimison, Chairman of the CPCE Committee, care of A.S. President Don Orte as soon as possible:

Students wishing to drop courses have until April 9 to withdraw without penalty. Afterwards they will only be able to drop by taking a leave of absence. Deadline for leaves of absence is May

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Weekly Publication of the Students in the Journalism Department of City College of San Francisco

Thomas O. Graham, Editor

184

Vol. 68, No. 6 WEDNESDAY, MARCH 26, 1969 Page 2

Course Evaluation

The proposed "Constructive Program on Course Evaluation" (CPCE) is something that City College students have waited a long time for—a chance to grade their instructors.

The program did not originate here, however. Various colleges across the nation have adopted the program and discovered that it not only helps to illuminate the courses, it also offers a good insight into what students demand of their education.

Student Council initiated CPCE at City College for the purpose of providing instructors with "feed-back" from the students. Designed with the intention of increasing the effectiveness of courses—it is certainly greeted with an enthusiastic welcome.

Students will be happy to know that it will help them choose the instructors that best meet their individual tastes and needs.

Concerned students await the Academic Senate's official approval and the announcement of the actual date of the "Course Evaluation Week."

The Guardsman salutes the members on the CPCE Committee for serving the best interests of all those concerned with education here at City College.

Contact Lens

Are You In Favor Of Present Grading System

Barbara Combs, Health Education Instructor

Grades are the things that make it possible for both the students and the instructors to improve their learning-instructional approaches. Therefore, I think that grades should not be abandoned, though there are certain situations in which the pass-fail system would be adequate and sufficient.

Paul Hewitt, Physics Instructor

I believe a student's achievement in his major field should be measured and graded. But I think he should have the option of "pass or no credit" for many courses outside his major. Under the present grading system, the selection of elective courses is influenced largely by anticipated grade possibilities rather than by course content. An optional grading system would bring about a healthier climate by reducing grade-point anxiety and increasing concern for personal educational value.

Ganelle Griffin, Nursing Instructor

Yes, but I'm in nursing where grades are necessary. This not only includes grades in theory but also in practice. Nursing is quite a vital profession where the nurses are responsible for human life. We have to produce competent people. Grades, however, are necessary in every class since this is the only way we have of evaluating the student.

Richard Innerst, English Instructor

It depends on the course. I recognize the problems (pressures) put on students. I'm in favor of the pass-fail system in elective courses because I think this will encourage students to take courses outside of their major field. Grades are a necessary evil in courses in a student's major. There is no other workable way to evaluate a student's work.

Don Liles, English Instructor

I'm in favor of them for two reasons. First, I think a majority of the students would be frustrated if they didn't have some estimation of themselves, and second, the outside world needs some kind of external measurement of evaluating a prospective employee. But I disaprove of grades because I think they become the goal of the student, and they foster an overly-competitive atmosphere.

Hand carved alter in old Mission Dolores.
Guardsman photo by Jules Claessens

The House That Junipero Built

Mission San Francisco de Asis, better known as Mission Dolores, was founded June 29, 1776 and opened October 8, 1776 by Father Junipero Serra.

The original Mission Dolores dwindles next to a large modern Mission Dolores built in 1913. The entrance of the Mission was covered with souvenirs: Mission Dolores letter openers, Mission Dolores key chains, Mission Dolores photographs, Mission Dolores etc., while the price to see the church was 25 cents.

The interior of the Mission itself is beautiful. A pamphlet which came along with the admission fee stated that the church is 114 feet long, 22 feet wide and protected by an adobe wall four feet thick. Old wooden seats lined both sides of the walls. A yellow-stained glass window divided the sunrays and colored the interior. "The roof," said the pamphlet, is of the "original timbers and tiles," and the "ceiling remains as decorated by the Indians, with vegetable colors" as when first constructed.

Other points of interest within Mission Dolores as stated by the pamphlet include the "hand carved altars and statues from Mexico in 1780, pascal candles made by Indians, original confessional doors, revolving tabernacle from Manila and original bells from Mexico."

At the entrance of the cemetery, a red garbage can shone against the old original fence. The redwood door was adorned with a "Please Stay On Paths" sign. An elegant little fountain was kept company by a sign reading "Please Do Not Pick Flowers."

The Cemetery is called the "Grotto of Lourdes and dedicated to the forgotten dead." Some of the more famous monuments and graves include those of Don Luis Antonio Arguello, James P. Casey, Charles Cora and James (Yankee) Sullivan, both victims of a vigilante in 1856, and Don Francisco de Haro, First Alcalde (mayor) of San Francisco, and some of California's early pioneers.

The grave yard could be a picture of beauty if not for the black water hose wrapped around the iron fence guarding the tombs of John McPherson and Avalino Carle. The hoses along the south fence or those on the grass and graves do not pretty the picture, nor do the Polaroid negatives on the paths nor the paper bags on the ground covering the grave of Mary Church Ellis, who died in 1882.

Father Serra would probably roll over in his grave if he saw the condition of Mission Dolores today, but then again perhaps he does know, for he lies at rest in Carmel Mission, a larger, more beautiful mission.

NEW YORK'S WORST

on broadway
in front of the new yorker theatre there's a character juggling a sawed-off mop-stick he's wearing a navy-blue costume wonder if he's a clown who cares . . . gotta go . . . can't stay there's a taxi
it has a shatter-proof partition to shield the passenger from wild clubs and the driver of this cab is an off-duty cop he'll protect the passenger from clowns where to?
la guardia please
on the double

—Marc Kovacs
new york city
november 1967

Psychiatrist Available to Students Here

By Lynda Sandstrom

It used to be that people had to put up a fight or were forced to see a psychiatrist against their own wishes, but this isn't the case with the campus mental health program under the guidance of Dr. Vernon Collins, Jr.

Dr. Collins, a third-year resident psychiatrist, is providing the campus with a mental health service this term and is willing and happy to see anyone. Nobody is forced to see him against their own wills. People come to him because they are seeking his advice.

The program focuses on personal problems that are bothering the individual. Most of the problems of students deal with school, study, and drug problems. The problems however, are not limited to these fields.

Due to the numbers in terms of cases and problems that have arisen this term, it is hopeful that the mental health program will continue next term and be expanded.

Dr. Collins has gone through med-school, internship, and three years of residency. He is interested in community health programs and has worked in this area to some capacity.

The doctor is happy with the mental health set-up on campus this term. He has received excellent cooperation from faculty members and from Judith Carey, the school nurse.

Dr. Collins finds that students are quite willing to talk. He offers non-judgmental solutions and alternatives. The information that a student divulges is confidential, and parents and instructors are not informed of what goes on in a session with the doctor without a student's permission.

The doctor's hours are flexible. He is available all day Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings 8-12 and two hours on Thursday. In case of an emergency, the doctor can be reached at the San Francisco General Hospital and can arrange to see a patient there.

How many traffic violations on campus do the campus police report? The average amount reported is sixty. However, the number of violations can fluctuate at any time from 30 to 130 violations.

Guardsman Staff

(The Guardsman is the weekly publication of the students in the journalism department of City College of San Francisco. It is published each Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacations. The opinions expressed in the columns and editorials are those of the individual writers and not necessarily those of the Guardsman, the department or the college. Editorial office, 304, Science Hall; telephone 587-7277, ext. 346.)

SPRING 1969

EDITOR IN CHIEF .... TOM GRAHAM
Managing Editor .... Barbara Hamann
Feature Editor ..... Boku Kodama
News Editors ..... Jack Ruiz.
..... Randy Flynn
Sports Editor ..... Phil DiCarlo
Editorial Assistants: Rita Carroll, Lavina Lee, Lynda Sandstrom.
Reporters: Patrick Chan, Gerry Engler, Roy Gin, Marc Kovacs, Jack Ruiz.
Photographers: Eugene Wong, Chief, Jules Claesens, Bert Flowers, Antony Ragadio, Jerry Warren, Earl Williams, Samuel Woo.

TRACK STANDOUTS: (L-R) Distance men Bob Darling, Vic Cury, Jim Tracy and Humberto Hernandez; Pole Vaulter Paul Conroy; High Jumper Clyde Sadler; Weight Man Jim Baldocchi and Long Jumper Tom Clyburn. Photos—Bert Flowers

Ram Thinclads Meet the Best

Laney Beaten

City College pulled off the biggest upset of the young track season by stunning highly rated Laney College, 81-53, on March 14.

Strengthened by the return of Vince Ainsely and Tom Clyburn from the basketball wars, the Rams showed a great improvement over their performance at the Diablo Valley meet.

Ainsely grabbed a first in the 440 at 49.5 and Clyburn won the triple jump with a leap of 44' 10", showing that the two weren't hurt by their long layoff from active competition.

Laney managed to dominate in the sprints but just couldn't overcome the Rams' overall team strength in the distance and field events. One example of this came in the two-mile as Bob Darling, Jim Tracy and Humberto Hernandez placed 1-2-3.

Overall the day's most outstanding performance had to come from Don Bruce, who had twin wins in the 120 and 440 hurdles along with a second place in the triple jump.

Bruce made a great improvement from the season opener against Diablo Valley by knocking two-tenths of a second off his time in the 120 hurdles and 2.2 seconds off in the 440 hurdles. Bruce also added 3' 1¼" to his leap in the triple jump.

It seemed as though every Ram on the field was improving his marks. Jim Tracy knocked off 12.2 seconds to clock in at 4:16.7 in the mile while August Berry also got in the act improving 4' 4¼" for a leap of 44' 10" in the triple jump.

Ram jumpers completely dominated in the triple jump as Tom Clyburn, Dave Robinson and Ron Van Pool placed 1-2-3.

Clyde Sadler (6' 8") took the high jump while Klaus Hoffman improved 12 seconds in the 880 to clock in at 1:54.6 for a third. Paul Conroy went over 12' 6" for a second in the pole vault.

Merritt Next

Powerful Merritt College, picked by many to win the Golden Gate Conference track crown, will provide the opposition for the Rams this Friday in a dual meet at Hayward.

The red-hot T-Birds, currently streaking on a seven game win binge, opened the season by winning the GGC Relays and haven't been stopped since.

In league competition, Merritt has easily whalloped Laney, 83-52, and San Jose, 89-47.

T-Bird head coach Roy Caldwell has some pretty flashy talent in the sprint and hurdle events. Led by freshman sensation Warren Edmonson, a consistent 9.6 man in the 100, the T-Birds have an excellent chance of sweeping the Rams in the sprints.

Backing Edmonson up will be three consistent sub-.10 men, Nobert Payton, Bob Wilson and Henry Stuckey.

Things look just as good (for Merritt not the Rams) in the hurdles. Eric Barfield has run 14.6 in the 120 hurdles and Roy Turner has turned in a 56.1 in the 440. Don Bruce, the Rams' top hurdler, has turned in times of 15.1 and 57.7.

In the middle distances the T-Birds are just as powerful with Lamont Jackson, a two-time ex-all OAL champion, who has turned in a 1:57.5 in the half mile. Henry Stuckey, another top middle distance man has turned in a 48.9 in the 440.

Merritt has some strength in the jumps with ex-OAL champ, Mike Lusk, who has leaped 45' 8" in the triple jump and 22' 10½" in the long jump.

Ex-GI, Dan Mosley, led the T-Birds in the shotput and discus events, having thrown the shot 51' 10" and discus 160' 7½". Merritt is weak only in the pole vault, with the team best effort just 12' 6".

WEEKEND SCORES

SWIMMING

Diver George Smith won both the one and three-meter diving events but it didn't prove to be enough as Diablo Valley sunk City's swimmers 69-37 last Friday afternoon.

The Rams took only two other first places during the meet. Roddy Rodriguez won the 200-yard breaststroke in 2:50.2 minutes. Water Polo standout Dave Nelson took a first in the 200-yard backstroke event. Nelson's time was 2:30.6.

GOLF

Looking better with every match, the Ram golf team swept past Chabot, last Friday, to remain unbeaten.

Playing under blue skies at Harding Park, Grover Klemmer's duffers took a 23½ to 11½ victory. All five Ram golfers shot in the 70s. Ken Kundert and Greg Corvi had 75s, John Susko tallied a 76, Mike Geverty shot a 78 and Paul Rea came in with a 79.

BASEBALL

The Ram nine had a one-run lead, 3 to 2, going into the bottom of the ninth at Laney last Thursday. But the Eagles staged a rally and doubled their game output to win 4-3.

In league play, the Rams have only one win as opposed to six losses.

NBA MVP

The Baltimore Bullets were losers until they drafted Wes Unseld last year. Today the Bullets are the champs of the tough Eastern Division and Unseld is the league's Most Valuable Player. Wonder what Lew Alcindor will do?

Coming Events

Thursday (March 27)
BASEBALL—CCSF vs. Diablo Valley College, here at 3 p.m.

Friday (March 28)
SWIMMING—CCSF vs. San Mateo, there at 3:30 p.m.
TRACK—CCSF vs. Merritt at Cal State Hayward at 3 p.m.
GOLF—CCSF vs. Chabot at Castlewood, 1 p.m.

March 31-April 2
GOLF — Western Junior College Tournament at Fresno.

Saturday (April 5)
TRACK—Easter Relays at Chabot, 10 a.m.

Monday (April 7)
GOLF—CCSF vs. Laney College at Tilden Park, 1 p.m.

Tuesday (April 8)
BASEBALL — CCSF vs. Foothill College at Foothill, 3 p.m.

City College Swordsman Captures Top Fencer Award at Stanford

At the recent Western Inter-Collegiate Fencing Competition, held at Stanford, Heik Hambarzumian was representing City College. After 63 six-minute bouts, Heik walked off with the Outstanding Fencing Award.

In addition, the amazing swordsman took first place with the epee, a third with the foil and fourth in the sabre competition.

"He did a fantastic job," enthused Maestro Ferenc Marki, the City College Fencing coach. "He's an excellent fencer; technically very good, smart, skilled, possessing remarkable concentration and in fastastic physical condition," continued Marki in his thick Hungarian accent.

Heik Hambarzumian zaps Maestro Marki. Photo—Bert Flowers

Was super-sword jubliant?

"I was disappointed," said the 19-year-old German-born fencer. "I wanted to win the sabre event also."

A serious look showed on his dark, rugged features. "I worked on the foil a lot but two more weeks of practice on the sabre and I might have . . ." his voice trailed off.

Hambarzumian, Ken Stroughter and Nick Sardy were the three City College fencers who faced stiff competition from the likes of UCLA, Stanford and the Air Force Academy, who won the team competition.

Next month, five attractive gals journey to Los Angeles for the women's portion of the Fencing Tournament.

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Journalism Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 68 — SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—WEDNESDAY, APRIL 16, 1969 — NUMBER 7

Drama Dept. Production Opens Tonight

The Drama Department's production of The Three Cuckolds opens a four-night run in the Little Theater of City College at 8 p.m. tonight.

This racy farce modernized from a rare commedia dell' Arte scenario abounds in the slapstick intrigues and contrivances of three deceived husbands and the adventures of Arlecchino as a wandering lover. The City College Theater will be transformed into a village square in which the strolling troupe of players set up their improvised stage.

Ray Cicerone plays the role of the irrepressible Arlecchino, ably supported by Richard Ryan, Peter Stein, and Peter Kors as the unlucky old men. Fred Colorado as a lover helps to lead astray the lusty young wives played by Camille Lopez, Susie Swearingen and Pat Vaughan. Paula Levine makes a surprise appearance as a devil from hell. The village square and the portable stage have been designed by Harry Rossit.

The play is the sort of thing performed by the S.F. Mime Troupe.

General admission is one dollar without an AS card and free admission with an AS card.

Campus Lineup

TODAY, MARCH 26

Play: "The Three Cuckolds" at 8 p.m. in College Theatre.

THURSDAY, MARCH 27

Play: 8 p.m. College Theatre.

FRIDAY, MARCH 28

"Earth's New Perspective" at International Center, 50 Oak Street, S.F. at 8 p.m. Admission Free.

Play: 8 p.m. in College Theatre.

CSA Dance, 8 p.m. in Smith Hall. $2.00 without AS card and $1.25 with. Attire is dressy sport.

SATURDAY, MARCH 29

Play: 8 p.m. in College Theatre.

TUESDAY, APRIL 8

Juan Serrano, guitar concert in College Theatre at 11 a.m.

Curriculum Committee of the Academic Senate meets in S-316 at 11 a.m.

At the cross. The Birth, the Crucifixion, and the Resurrection. Symbols inherent in this "Great White Hope." The memorial remnant of Easter.
(photo by Earle Williams)

No Justice or Love in US Says Former Missionary

"It is said that all people in Latin America know of three people: The Virgin Mary, Fidel Castro and Che Guevarra. Well, not everybody in Latin America knows about the Virgin Mary!"

Thus ended another engaging talk by Arthur Melville, a defrocked priest who was thrown out of Guatemala last year. Melville, who married his nun assistant, has been lecturing at campuses across the United States telling of the U.S. involvement in Latin America.

A Maryknoll Missionary priest, Melville was sent to Guatemala in 1960. He found that the United States wasn't what he had always thought it to be.

"The United States doesn't have what LBJ says it has. We don't have greatness, justice, love, humility . . ." the clean-cut, informally dressed young man intimated in a slow, yet forceful tone.

Speaking of unrest in the U.S., the Boston-bred ex-communicated priest said that people (in the US) who don't talk about it are themselves participating in an unjust revolution in this country.

"If Nixon can't do the job, we can legally elect somcone else. Well, his successor can't do the job and neither can the next or the next. We must act; as patriots and humanitarians.

Guatamala might be saved and we might even save our own nation."

Applause rang out from the crowd of Latinos, the curious and members of the Peace and Freedom Party, the group that sponsored the lecture. Following his talk, Melville answered questions.

Juan Serrano, world famous flamenco guitarist, will appear in the College Theatre during College Hour next Tuesday.

Recently returning from a European tour, Serrano is known for his "all flamenco rhythm" on the guitar.

After leaving City College, his next stop will be Stanford University.

AWS Honors New Women Faculty

New women faculty members were honored at a luncheon last Tuesday, March 18, sponsored by the Associated Women Students.

All women instructors were invited to the luncheon so that the new instructors would get a chance to talk informally and meet new faces.

The 10 new women instructors this Spring are Kathryn Aparicio, Pauline Bruno, Katherine Dannemann, Beverly Eigner, Helen Lum, Charlotte Lynch, Jo Ann McCue, Maybelle Smith, Florence Swicegood and Lucy Yang.

Hotel and Restaurant Department prepared the lunch which consisted of potato salad, tuna fish spread, jello salad, rolls, punch and coffee and a sheet cake which read "Welcome Dean Pope and New Teachers."

AWS Board members, who had previously interviewed the new instructors, introduced them to the other women instructors. Among the AWS Board members who were present at the luncheon were Norma Wonacott, vice president, Connie Henderson, corresponding secretary, Helen Yee, treasurer, Sandra Black, Gladys Cooks and Janice Reed.

Jayne Nelson from the Intra Sorority Council awarded the Theta Thu Sorority a trophy, the Dorerthy, for the outstanding schoiarship.

"H&R, Ornamental Horticulture and the Custodial service should all be commended," Dean Edna Pope said, "for doing excellent work."

"This luncheon," Dean Pope stated, "was a very nice affair. Students and faculty members were together and this is necessary to get the women instructors behind the women organizations."

H&R Students To Tour State

HAPPY TRAVELERS TO BE. Eight H&R students were selected (along with two instructors) to go on the annual spring trip to observe the operation of prominent restaurants and hotels throughout the state. The lucky people are (L - R): Bill Lavens, Leslie Porter, Steve Diener, Phyllis Beck, Peter Briggs and Clifford Replogle. Bruno Leuzinger and Michael Roesch are also going. (photo by Samuel Woo)

The cigarette machine in Statler Wing sells about 200 packs a week to its patrons. The machine takes in approximaately $80 a week.

Out of the 20 brands offered the top three favorites are repectively Newport, Winston and Marlboro.

CINEMA SCOPE

'Sister George' and 'Miss Brodie'; Belles On Their Toes

By Ray Gin

IN THE CINEMA'S CONCEPT ON SEXUAL ABERRATION, the lesbian, more than anyone else, has received the film-makers wrath that stigmatic phrase, "There's no such thing as a happy lesbian."

Indeed, with films like "Les Biches" and "The Fox," they've become a cursedly sad and sorrowful lot inevitably meeting with a tragic and violent ending. In this way, the filmmakers have created a grossly misrepresented milieu of "freakishness" in their attempts at defining the role of the lesbian.

Although commercialism is inherent in Robert Aldrich's "The Killing of Sister George," it is the first study of homosexuality that has treated the subject with any kind of compassion. The monde of the lesbian here is as natural as the man-woman relationship. It is a way of life that is compietely alien to "normalcy" but nevertheless it is still within the boundaries of human experience.

The film is not to be misread that "dykes are bundles of joys" because they suffer the identical pangs of human love and hate.

Many protestations have been raised about the explicit oral-mammary act in the final ten minutes of the film. These are highly miscalculated moral analyses for it would be fraudulent to deny that the heart of a lesbian relationship is the physical aspects of it.

Beryl Reid, is the lovable BBC t.v. nurse who dines on an unceasing supply of cigars, booze, and a 32-yr.-old drollike lover, Childie, is masterful in avoiding the mawkish snares of caricature to bring the character of George out of stereotype to a level of humanism.

The film is free from any naive moralistic or sociological apologetics, and therein lies its success.

"The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie" is a compelling film that has as much impact with words and ideas as "Sister George" has with the graphic and the visual. Jean Brodie is a fearsome reactionary-type teacher at a deeply conservative Scottish girl's school. "Give me any girl of the impressionable age and she's mine forever," is her perennial invocation to her students.

The "Brodie" girls outgrow the pretensions and ear-catching prose of their benefactress and inevitably, one of them "assassinates" her by exposing her radicalism to the school's headmistress.

It is a frightful nightmare to see such a self-delusive character infringe on budding, innocent minds, personal prejudices that have resulted from delusions and insecurity.

Maggie Smith brings the character of Miss Brodie up to such a broad human scale that we can actually sense the self-deceptions and compulsiveness that goes in turning a supposedly good-natured woman to a venom-spitting monster. "Miss Brodie" is a deeply engrossing depiction of a bizarre schoolyard shenanigan.

"The Killing of Sister George" is the newest and the most sensational of the recent films with the lesbian theme.

Birth of Christ Topic Of Planetary Shows

Planetarium shows, in which the birth of Christ and the Star of Bethlehem will be the topics of discussion, will be given today by Ed Duckworth, Astronomy instructor at 12 noon and tomorrow at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. in the College observatory, S-401.

The historical and anatomical evidence available on these subjects will be examined during this discussion to try to determine what year Christ was born in. Astronomers have narrowed down the time to somewhere between the years 8 and 4 B.C.

The many confusing aspects on these subjects (such as where the Star of Bethlehem actually appeared, the errors in the dates, the different versions in the King James and Revised Editions of the Bible) have made it difficult to pinpoint he exact date.

Recruitment For Business-Engineering

By Rita Carroll

The Fourteenth Annual Engineering-Business Recruitment Day will be held Wednesday, May 14, and will bring together 250 City College graduates from 26 training programs and 65 employer recruitment teams from California, Nevada, New Mexico, Idaho and Washington, according to Joseph Amori, director of placement here.

Employer recruitment teams will represent nearly every major business and industrial area and will coincide with the various training programs on the campus. Each recruitment team will consist of both personnel and scientific manpower specialists.

The major fields will include the basic areas in engineering, finance, insurance, merchandising, construction, electronics, medical, research and development, public service, health sciences, manufacturing, transportation, petroleum and chemical, and related occupational fields.

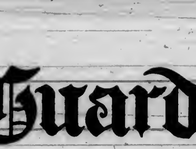
Each graduate will be scheduled for personal interviews with employers of his own choosing. The employer will be given a personal interview jacket which will include 1. resume, 2. rating forms, and 3. previous employment references and-or recommendations. The graduates will have the opportunity of talking with outstanding representatives from business, industry and government — a rare opportunity and privilege seldom offered a college student in the current employment climate.

While the vast majority of students will have completed the two-year programs offered by the college, the recruitment screening committee will consider other students on the campus who can qualify with skills and-or experience in an occupational area. Any student who desires consideration for a personal interview for a full-time career position is requested to report to Amori, coordinator for the Recruitment Day program, in Room S132.

(Continued on Page 5)

The Retail Floristry Department here will hold its 11th annual open house today from nine in the morning to one in the afternoon in the Ornamental Horticulture Building. For further information concerning the displays turn to page eight, column one.

James Baldwin Raps About Black and White Studies



The Men's Gym, normally the scene of physical exercise, was used for intellectual push-ups last Tuesday by James Baldwin. The author of "Nobody Knows My Name" lectured on "Studies in Black and White" before a throng of several hundred members of the City College academic community.

According to "Current Biography 1964," the American Negro Revolution "claims as perhaps its most articulate spokesman the writer James Baldwin whose essays, novels and plays have insisted over the past dozen years that 'Negroes want to be treated like men' and that the 'civil rights issue is not a Negro problem' but a white man's illness." Baldwin talked about this Tuesday. He told the gathering that whites in this country do not know what it means to be a black man in America in 1969. He suggested that the present generation of students can and must work for understanding.

The world-famous writer later went to the Little Theatre where he fielded questions from the standing-room-only crowd. He also shook hands and autographed books.

Baldwin's visit was sponsored by the Associated Students and by the English Department.

Some of Baldwin's books are, "The Fire Next Time," "Giovanni's Room," "Notes of a Native Son" and "Go Tell It on the Mountain." Many of these works are currently on exhibit in the main lobby of the Library.

James Baldwin
Noted Black Author

Guardsman Now 8 Pages
(See Editorial)

Course Evaluation Week Underway Next Monday

Course evaluation week officially gets under way here at City College next Monday through Friday, according to the "Constructive Program in Course Evaluation" committee (CPCE).

This evaluation will attempt to provide instructors with extensive "feedback" for increasing the effectiveness of courses and to guide students in selecting instructors and classes that best suit their individual needs.

There will be two course evaluation hours at which time instructors and CPCE members will distribute questionaires and IBM answer sheets to students in classes being held Monday at 10 a.m. and on Tuesday at 2 p.m. These two designated hours will start the first wave of returns. Students planning to participate are asked to bring dark lead pencils with them.

Those students not scheduled for classes either of these two hours will still have an opportunity to participate as CPCE tables will be set up in various areas on campus. These tables will be available throughout the remainder of the week.

The course evaluation forms will not only aid students and instructors, but will also be used to answer some questions for the administration such as, would you enroll in a Saturday class?

The administration has volunteered to subsidize the evaluation project by covering the cost of materials and President Louis Conlan has been considering setting up a permanent program.

The faculty Association has proven equally responsive and according to Steve Kass, liason commissioner can probably be counted upon to help foot the bill.

The Academic Senate endorsed the program last Wednesday and has asked that all instructors participate.

Students who might like to take part in some of the CPCE club recreational activities can apply by calling Mike Shafer at 346-8859.

IFC Calls For Red Blooded Men, Women

By Barbara Hamann

Tape decks, movie and theatre tickets, records and many other prizes will be given away to blood donors in City College's annual Inter-Fraternity Council (IFC) Blood Drive April 24 and 25, 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Statler Wing.

Donors will receive one of a wide variety of valuable prizes ranging from those mentioned above to hot dog roasters and even golf balls.

Each year the IFC works in conjunction with the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank, San Francisco in efforts to acquire enough blood to meet the ever-growing emergency needs in the Bay Area.

Any person between the ages of 18 and 60 is eligible to help save a life by donating one pint of blood to the college blood bank. Donors under 21 need not have parental consent as was the case in years past.

Donors unable to donate during the Blood Drive may contribute to the college blood bank any time during the year by giving at the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank.

It is essential that donors eat regular meals on the day they donate, avoiding fatty foods.

A donor is privileged to withdraw, from the college blood bank, an unlimited supply of blood for himself, his immediate family, or a maximum of eight pints of blood for any person of his choosing who is in need of blood.

The annual balance of each blood fund is contributed equally to the Veterans' Hospitals and to the San Francisco Disaster Fund.

City College has been commended a number of times by the city, county and state for its outstanding record in blood donating. The IFC hopes to far surpass last year's record.

Five Candidates Vie For Sweetheart Ball Queen

Chinese Sweetheart Ball Queen candidates pose with S.F. supervisorial candidate George Lau.

On April 9, 1969, the Chinese Students Association of City College will present the 24th annual Sweetheart Coronation Dance.

This semi-formal affair will be presented at the Veterans War Memorial Building located on the corners of Van Ness and McAllister Streets.

Radio KYA's disc jockey Johnny Holiday will be the Master of Ceremonies.

Miss Chinatown U.S.A., Carole Young will make a guest appearance.

Entertainment will be provided by The Bold Rebels and Marvin Holmes and the Uptights.

There are five candidates vying the honor of Sweetheart Queen.

Evelyn Lee is a graduate of Galileo High School.

Miss Lee's hobbies include shooting pool, reading and writing poetry.

Veronica Lee is a graduate of Balboa High School. Miss Lee's hobbies include sewing, baking and photography.

Shirley Louie is a graduate of Galileo High School. Miss Louie's hobbies include reading, writing, and talking.

Chris Wong is a graduate of Wilson High School. Miss Wong's hobbies include music, singing, and walking in the rain.

Elaine Wong is a graduate of George Washington High School. Miss Wong's hobbies include swimming, tennis, and getting lots of sun.

Bids for the Ball cost $5 a couple, or $3 stag.

The candidates have been selling raffle tickets during their entire campaign. The accumulation of the winning votes is reflected by the number of tickets sold. Prizes include a weekend, all-expense paid vacation to Disneyland, $100 Savings bond, exclusive key to Playboy Club, stereo tape deck, and many more prizes.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Weekly Publication of the Students in the in C Journalism Department of City College of San Francisco

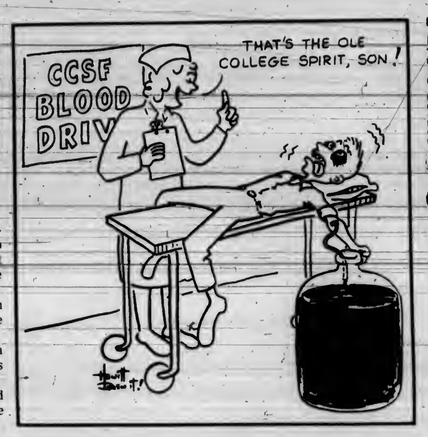
Thomas O. Graham, Editor

184

Vol. 68, No. 7 WEDNESDAY, APRIL 16, 1969 Page 2

Give Life--Give Blood

BLOOD is a gift that only you can give.



City College's annual Blood Drive, sponsored by the Inter-Fraternity Council, begins next week. Students are encouraged to visit the blood bank in Statler Wing between the hours of eight and four next Thursday and Friday (April 24 and 25) to donate blood.

The IFC has been working in conjunction with the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank in recent years in an attempt to meet the ever-growing need for blood.

Any person between the ages of 18 and 60 may help save a life by donating a pint of blood to the college blood bank. Donors under 21 need not have parental consent.

Those interested in donating blood during the year are reminded that they may contribute to the college blood bank by giving at the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank.

Save a life--share a pint.

Guardsman Now 8 Pages

The Guardsman has expanded to an eight-page weekly newspaper. The decision was made recently during an editorial board meeting where it was brought to our attention that we have enough funds left over for four extra pages per edition for the remaining issues. It is our hope that next semester the Guardsman will be able to continue printing an eight-page weekly paper. We feel that a campus the size of ours deserves a larger campus newspaper.

Contact Lens

Which Person(s) Influence Our Society Most Today?

Ernest Prochnow, Anatomy Major

Given the major assumption of the influence of conscious attitudes within our society, the most influential people should be the major capitalist thinkers, e.g. beginning with Adam Smith, J. P. Morgan, Vanderbuilt and and onward to the relatively minor Public Relations man.

Jan Caniff, Liberal Arts Major

Martin Luther King because of the racial things that are going on now. The black people are rallying around him. But predominently, it is the young people who have the most influence in that they are taking an active interest in the many aspects of society (politics, economics, etc.).

Charlie Bouey, Physical Science Major

I don't think any one person does, but youth, particularly those in their teens and early twenties, has a great impact on society. The younger look to them for guidance and example. The older adopt their dress and social habits to be "younger" again or to bridge the generation gap.

Karin Carlson, Sociology Major

Madison Avenue Advertisers do. They formulate the commercials and advertisements, and they brainwash people into buying products they don't really need. They make the luxuries in life appear to be the necessities of life. I think that they are perhaps more influential than anyone else.

Tony Klemens, General Education Major

The one individual who influences our society the most is yourself. You are the one and only person who decides who or what is important, and to what extent that importance goes. The individual is what makes the most important people in our society, and this is what people have to realize.

An Indepth Look--Student Council

By Lavine Lee

What is Student Council and what does it do for the students? For answers to these puzzling questions, the Guardsman "took a trip" down to the AS offices.

There, we were given a copy of the Constitution of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco. You look in it and it states, "the Student Council is the legislative body of the AS and shall be responsible for and shall have the final authority in the supervision of the affairs, policies, properties, and conduct of this association."

About as vague as Richard Nixon's views during his 1968 presidential campaign, right? Wrong!! Just read on.

Student Council consists of 15 voting members. This includes the AS vice president, and the 14 Council members.

According to the Constitution, Council's specific powers and duties include "allocating the funds of the AS budgets for the semester succeeding its term in office" (in other words, making up a budget for the next semester), settling any questions or disputes arising over the interpretation of any article or section of the AS Constitution, and passing legislation in the form of recommendations, allocations, and resolutions.

Perhaps Council's greatest specified power comes from the clause which states, "(Council may) pass all legislation deemed necessary and proper for carrying out the functions of the AS" since Council decides whether or not a piece of legislation is "necessary or proper," and it has final authority in all its policies.

Next week, in another attempt to determine how Student Council affects the students, faculty, and Administration, the Guardsman will talk to various officers of the AS to get a more concise answer to what Student Council really is.

The Name of the Game Is the Game of Names

By Gerry 'Jelly' Engler

If people's last name decided what their role in life would be, City College would be abound with one of the strangest assortment of "students" ever to be found on any campus.

Instead of the Science Hall, Arts Hall etc., the campus would be made up of four Banks, three Barrs, and seven Mills.

Outside in the parking lot one would find four Fords, four Hudsons, eight Morgans, four Nashes, nine Pierces, four Harlys and three Davidsons.

There are three Farmers, whose job would be to hire the ten Hicks and tend the Berrys, Beans, Lemons, and Roses.

The job placement office would have no problem finding jobs for the Bakers, Butlers, Carpenters, Marshells, Masons, Plummers, Porters, Potters, and Taylors. But I think the twenty Kings, two Princess, four Finks, the Poet, and the Crook will have to change their name in order to get somewhere in this world.

Being a liberal College, the six Bishops, three Popes, six Parsons, ninetween Jews, and three Pagans are attending school unnoticed.

The water from the eleven Brooks, six Lakes, and two Rivers will quench the thirst for two Bulls, six Lyons, twelve Wolves, two Lambs, a Bear and a Wurm.

There are 98 Chins but only two Beards; five Harts but only one Lapp.

There are two Keys for four Locks, no Pings but there is one Pong. 186 Wongs do not make eleven Wrights.

And finally there are fifteen Hongs and four Kongs.

Anyone knowing the whereabouts of Anne Rosenthal and Sandy Hansen, please contact the Guardsman office. There will be a reward of a jar of peanut butter.

Letters to the Editor

Rams Horn

(Letters to the Editor may be left in the switchboard office, S-149, in Science Hall, or in The Guardsman office, S-360. Deadlines are 10 a.m. each Wednesday. The Guardsman reserves the right to edit letters in the interests of brevity and rhetoric. It so desired the writer's name will be withheld, but the identity of the writer must be known to the editor.)

Outsider

Normally an outsider especially a non-student does not bother to write the student editor. However, being a taxpayer I feel it my obligation to project something I know that would be of great interest to all City College students. It is for this reason that I dug up some statistical realities which could be of educational value to all students and faculty members as well.

In my digging, so to say, I found out that City College of San Francisco has over 13,000 daytime students. Out of the total enrollment as of the first semester of '68, there were 7,100 whites, 1,140 blacks, 3,350 orientals (consisting of Japanese, Chinese and Koreans), 760 Latin Americans, 300 Filipinos and others of ethnic groups.

Out of some 460 instructors, and probably a dozen or so added since September 1968, there are only 23 blacks, 13 Chinese, seven Latinos, four Japanese and no Filipinos. So for every 70 blacks, there is one black instructor hired by the administration. Prior to September 1967, there were only two blacks. So within a year's period 20 black instructors were hired. For every 200 Chinese, Japanese and Koreans combined, there is one oriental instructor. For Latinos it means for every 100 Spanish Americans there is one Latino instructor. Even though there are 300 Filipino students at the college, there has not been one single Filipino instructor hired from the time the college was established in 1935. Why?

Prior to September 1967, out of some 450 instructors there were only two blacks, two Chinese, one Japanese and no Latino or Filipino instructors.

Why was the number of black instructors increased from two prior to 1967, to 22 or 23 up to the present? Why are there now seven Latin instructors while over a year ago there were none? At the same period there were only two Chinese instructors and presently there are 13. Only one Japanese was teaching prior to 1967 and now there are four. What is the answer? It all adds to the strong vocalization of the blacks, Chinese and Latin Americans to get more representation in the teaching staff. The Filipinos

Continued on Page 3, Col. 1

Guardsman Staff

(The Guardsman is the weekly publication of the students in the journalism department of City College of San Francisco. It is published each Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacations. The opinions expressed in the columns and editorials are those of the individual writers and not necessarily those of the Guardsman, the department or the college. Editorial office, 304, Science Hall; telephone 587-7277, ext. 244.)

SPRING 1969

EDITOR IN CHIEF .... TOM GRAHAM
Managing Editor .... Barbara Hamann
Feature Editor ..... Boku Kodama
News Editors ..... Jack Ruiz, Randy Flynn
Sports Editor ..... Phil DiCarlo
Editorial Assistants: Rita Carroll, Lavine Lee, Lynda Sandstrom.
Reporters: Patrick Chan, Gerry Engler, Ray Gin, Marc Kevacs, Jack Ruiz.
Photographers: Eugene Wong, Chief; Jules Clemens, Bert Flowers, Antony Ragadio, Jerry Warren, Earl Williams, Samuel Wee.

City College to Collapse April 18?

By Pat Crippen

Later this month City College is scheduled to either disappear completely from the face of the earth, or merely to collapse in ruins . . . or both. The '69 rerun of the '06 spectacle is predicted for April 18 (the anniversary of the 1906 quake), and-or 19; and City College's "Contemporary Kremlin" architecture apparently can expect the same fate as "Market Street Modern" downtown.

This rather drastic approach to urban renewal likely as not won't happen just yet however. Geologists and other faceless scientists, who are supposed to know about these things, maintain that the "April Super-Quake Theory" is, at best, on shaky ground. It may happen within 30 years or so, but not just yet.

The question still rears its ugly head though: What do you do when you're on the top floor of the Science Building and it suddenly tips over? Aside from the old time-tested quick prayer, you might attempt that fantastic swan-dive you've always wanted to try. But since it is common knowledge that there will always be a Science Building, here is what to do in the event of a good old-fashioned earth tremor:

Panic Not, for you'll likely make a complete clod out of yourself . . . not to mention getting yourself killed;

Flee Not, as you will undoubtedly spot 8000- familiar faces holding an unscheduled class reunion at the exit. Hide yourself away, preferably under desks, tables, or obese fellow students.

If you happen to be outside, cutting class or whatever, avoid buildings like they had goat's breath, and casually stroll to some conveniently-placed open area.

If you are in a car, ignore the gaping crevices in the pavement and stop. (Parking under power lines however is a definite no-no.)

And finally, if you're on the Muni "K" Car in the middle of the Twin Peaks Tunnel, have the band strike up a patriotic number.

To help pacify citizen concern, the Federal Government has released a fun free pamphlet, "Safety & Survival in an Earthquake." Drop a card to "Earthquake," Federal Office of Emergency Preparedness, Santa Rosa 95403, for a copy. Pay no mind to the fact that the Emergency Preparedness office decided not to locate its office in San Francisco.

Letters to the Editor

Justifiable Suicide

As it is the obligation of the elected members of the Student Council of City College of San Francisco to serve the Associated Student Body as effectively and efficiently as possible. As it is also the function of this Student Council to serve as a speedy liason between the administration, faculty and students and to promote and provide an accessible level of communications for interest groups on the City College campus; as its actions should be totally student oriented without commitment to any other social, moral or political group or philosophy; as the only political organization that should be recognized at formal session of Student Council (other than duly budgeted student organizations) is Student Council itself; as actions voted on by Council should only be those pertaining directly to the welfare of the whole of the Associated Student Body; as meetings of Student Council should be conducted as a formal governmental action and conduct of the Councilmen at these meetings should be reflective of the obligation that said Councilmen have to the Student Body. As it must also be considered that Student Council should be an organization of constant evolution and reform in benefit of the Associated Student Body and its actions should point out and provide the necessary channels of communication between the students and the representatives of said students as it must also be acknowledged that Student Council must be aware of the wishes of the majority of the Associated Students and conform to these wishes without reservation as all power is delegated to the Councilmen from the Student Body. As Council should be flexible enough to reorganize, restructure and reevaluate itself according to the wishes of the Associated Student Body and conform and coordinate all of its actions for the sole benefit of said Student Body.

As the present Council is not (in essence) capable of performing actions that would promote the trends and ideas of the whole of the Associated Student Body. As the present Council is incapable of providing the much-needed level of communications between the students, administrators and faculty. As present Council is not an effective, efficient or respected form of student government; as it is an organization of reaction rather than action. As the Constitution of the Associated Student Body is not a document indicative of the present trends in City College campus affairs and its tedious regulation of Student Council hinders progressive action on the part of Council. As the present Constitution is a burdensome wordy and inefficient piece of political structuring making Student Council as outdated as the Constitution. As the aforementioned adjectives could easily be used to describe the actions of Council as well as Council itself, I do hereby recommend that Student Council, its structure and Constitution be dissolved as of the termination of the present semester (Spring 1969) and that a new form of government be adopted that is better suited in structure to comply itself to the changing trends in the affairs of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco.

Respectfully submitted for action on the part of Student Council by Konstantin Grab.

The Campus Planning Committee of the Academic Senate, meets from 12 to 1 every Wednesday.

Anyone interested in the future problems of City College, may do so by attending the meetings in C207.

Busing

Dear Editor:

You refer in your editorial of March 12 to the absurdity of busing plans in San Francisco. However, the proposal for the establishment of a Richmond complex of 11 elementary schools makes sense to me as a parent with four small children living in this area.

The decentralization of the administration of 101 elementary schools from a single central office to community groupings within the city is a welcome change especially if it brings more participation by the community in making decisions affecting its schools.

The busing in the Richmond complex (which is optional) could be more properly described as a four-mile shuttle along several major corridors such as California, Geary and Fulton Streets.

Innovations of this kind have a much better chance of drawing financial support from outside federal and foundation sources than innovations in separatism.

I agree with your last paragraph that true interpretation is going to be achieved through thought and understanding. I want this to start now with my kids in elementary schools.

Yours very truly,
Edward Dierauf,
Instructor, Engineering Dept.

Outsider

Continued from Page 2, Col. 5

who are meek and non-vocal are still without one teacher at City College even though they are represented by 30,000 Filipino taxpaycrs in the City and County of San Francisco.

Now since the enrollment as represented in the enrollment ratio of 7,000 whites and 6,000 plus non-white while teaching staff ratio is 410 whites and 50 non-whites it can be deduced that the need to increase recruitment of more ethnic teachers is not only desirable but a must for the administration in order to get more equitable representation of the student body composition.

George R. Pena

CINEMA SCOPE

Film's Youth Bag; 'Changes' and 'Goodbye, Columbus'

By Ray Gin

Films with a focal point on youth have become so abundant that they've, unknowingly, succumb to being a contemporary cliche.

But two recent films, "Changes" and "Goodbye, Columbus," surprisingly brings fresh and disunctive garbs to cover the other shameful youth potboilers.

Hall Bartlett's "Changes," with its stronghold on the last outpost of honesty and sincerity, emerges in the recent battlefields of youth exploitation films as a mighty buttress against commercialism. The film traces the path of an alienated youth (Kent Lane) who, in his copping out of college, his provincial parents, and burdening girlfriend, meanders through the highways and by-ways of California to find a meaning to his existence.

Why "Changes" is so endearing and enduring to the heart is because of its identifiable closeness to a common youth experience. The parent confrontation, detestable shackles of responsibility, and the problem of communication are common experiences to us all.

The film is shadowed by a mood of melancholia that has become a standard setting for these soul-searching films. The film in its attempt to do away with the increasing bag of pscudo-intellectual malarkey, has utilized a minimal amount of dialogue and relies heavily on the "now" music of Judy Collins, Tim Buckley, and Kim Weston. "Changes" is the synthesis of all the truly meaningful things ever said about youth.

Amidst the furor over Philip Roth's racy and frank best-seller of 1969, "Portnoy's Complaint," Paramount Pictures has mounted a spirited film version of Roth's 1959 award-winning novella, "Goodbye, Columbus." It is interesting to see Roth's heightened sardonic wit and increased frankness during this short ten-year interval.

In brief, the plot involves a lower - class, Jewish - bred, librarian from the Bronx named Neil Klugman (Richard Behjamin) and his one-summer romance with an upper-middle class, Jewish-bred, coed from Westchester named Brenda Patimkin (Ali McGraw). Integrated into this romantic idyll is an unending ribbing of the Jewish noveau riche and frank discussions on the comparative advantages of the diaphragm over the Pill.

There's no doubt that "Columbus," as a film, suffers much in comparison to Mike Nichol's film of Charles Webb's novel, "The Graduate." But it must be fairly noted that Roth wrote his novella way before Webb wrote his. It was a mixture of fate, director Nichols' sense of originality, and his expedience in making the film that gave "The Graduate" the notoriety it now wears.

Roth's book and director Larry Peerce's film contain sharper wit than the latter book and production because the characters in "Columbus" have a definable humanness about them whereas "Graduate's" characters are deep-rooted caricatures that are obvious targets for the satiric darts.

The chicken soup can set here in "Columbus" are ridiculed to death by the vulgar displays of their human foibles, especially in the spectacular Jewish wedding.

With the hero's constant shunning of the never-never land riches of the well-to-do Jewish conglomerate the film could very well be retitled "Klugman's Complaint."

Student Musical Talent Sought

This is an entertainment-starved campus, but one bursting with student talent. Countless students are budding musical artists who groove on what they create and are accomplished enough for others to groove on them, but, alas, there's no place to get together regularly.

In response to this heart-felt dilemma, a musical talent show is being established. The show, a cooperative effort among music faculty and students, will be presented twice a month on campus. Its aim is to bring performer and audience together, thereby providing fresh entertainment for the school and enriching experience for the musical artist. The music show caters to all students, not just music majors.

Whether one excels in classical piano, folk singing, congo drums, Gregorian chants or musical saws, he is welcome to join.

Performances will be every other Tuesday in the choral room, A133, capacity 100. Two sessions are planned, from 11-12 and from 2-3, the second allowing to reach more people and to give the performer a chance to outdo himself.

The premiere performance is set for Tuesday, April 29. Signups are now taken in the music dept. by Richard Fenner and Madeline Mueller, and through Stu Ward, student co-ordinator, in the Free Critic office, B-5. Students should have a good idea how long the performance is. The choral room is available for rehearsal and getting a feel for the place on Mondays, 6-10 p.m.

—Stu Ward

Women's News

Recipe For Single Girls

You're single and you're not getting any younger. You're not doing anything Saturday night, but then you haven't been doing anything on Saturday night for the past few years.

Want to get out of that rut and get a little romance into your life? All you have to do is follow this simple recipe for kisses. They may only be cornflake kisses, and you may only get about 36 of them, but you're desperate, right?

2 egg whites
¼ teaspoon salt
2/3 cup sugar
½ cup chopped peanuts or walnuts
1½ cup crisp cornflakes

Beat egg whites and salt until just stiff enough to hold moist peaks; then add sugar gradually, about one heaping tablespoon at a time, continuing to beat after addition until whites are very stiff. Mix in peanuts, using a fork) then fold in the cornfalkes. Drop by teaspoonsful onto ungreased, unglazed brown paper on a cookie sheet. Bake in a slow oven (300 degrees F.) 30 minutes. Remove from paper to cake racks immediately. Makes about three dozen cookies. (The Modern Family Cook'Cook) —L.L.

Marriage Vs. Careers--Major Concern Today

By Lynda Sandstrom

There is a lot of conflict today as to whether a woman should have both a professional career and at the same time carry out the functions of a housewife and mother.

The following is an account of how some women students and instructors on this campus feel about marriage vs. careers.

Linda Fontana, a teaching assistance major stated she would put a career before marriage because she wanted to receive a good education. "Every woman should have some education before she gets married." She plans on becoming an elementary school teacher. "When I do marry I want to be an educated wife and mother."

Flora Chew, an education major, had this to say, "I think that a career is more important. After your children are grown up and have left home a woman usually goes back to work. If a woman has a profession such as teaching she can always go back to her job." She feels that if her husband gets sick she can always help out in family matters if she has some profession to rely on. "When I do have children I want to be able to help them with the new math."

Joan Allen, a science instructor, took a different approach when asked her feelings about this conflict. "Ideally it is not to put one before the other." She feels that there is quite a possibility to having both. "It is a double system, men dominate systems sustained by men."

Joan Wilson, an English instructor, stated that "I think that if a person is going to devote all one's time to a career then they should postpone marriage."

Cat Got Your Tongue? See Speech Therapist

By Rita Carroll

A former City College general education major has returned to the college, now doing very special and fulfilling work.

Josephine Kennedy, a City College and Stanford graduate, is presently the speech therapist at the college.

The role she fills is not that of an instruetor but that of an assistant, helping students with their speech as well as their hang-ups, as one of her former students described her work. One "hang up" that many students have is lack of self-confidence which hinders their ability to communicate.

In her work, Miss Kennedy is able to work more closely with the students helping them communicate with daily life and express themselves so they can be understood.

Approximately 20 students meet with her in groups of two to ten.

Within these groups students "discover their own problems and are able to help themselves without any great pressures being exerted," she said. "They come here because they want to. It is a non-pressured way of finding one's way out of communicating."

Speech therapy is a service offered by the school much the same as the counseling and psychiatric services. Miss Kennedy's office (S147) is soundproof and she "can't say enough about the administration" for letting her have it, especially Dean Billwiller and Dr. Louis Batmale.

Most of the students who come to the speech therapist have a difficulty in communicating. Some have dialect problems, others pathological problems, cleft palate, cerebral palsy, hard of hearing, lisps.

A person who works long hours, she enjoys the personal contact in her position and she practices the "open door policy" by leaving her door always opened and welcoming anyone who comes by.

When asked about her goals she simply said, "my goals are what the students' goals are."

One of Miss Kennedy's former students, who came to her with a lisp problem, which she conquered in three weeks, is now a stewardess on Pan American Moscow to New York run. Par Am previously would not hire her because of her lisp.

Speech therapist, Jo Kennedy, at work. (Photo by Frank Chun)

Afro Fashion Show Tomorrow

"Afro-American Fashions of Today" will be the theme of the AWS fashion show to be held tomorrow from 3-5 p.m. in Smith Hall. All women students are invited to attend.

The fashion show is a new unique show that will have male models as well as 15 female models, one of which will be chosen as best dressed.

All decorations will be authentic and there will be on hand authentic African artifacts such as masks, jugs, spearheads, shawls, and a map of Africa.

The three stores that will provide the fashions will be Casual Aire, New Breed West, and Mozambique. The fashions range from casual to formal.

Entertainment will be provided by a primitive dance class, Linda Bess and two combos.

There will be three cakes. One cake will have Africa spelled out. The second cake will spell out AWS Presents Afro '69, and the third cake will have Bi Bi Hujumbo spelled out which means hello ladies.

QUAKE 'n' BAKE—When the earthquake shook the San Francisco area on April 18, 1906, the women rose to their toes immediately and mended the city back together. This photo shows three of the local gals baking over an early stove in the middle of a resident street. (Photo courtesy of California Historical Society)

Gals 'Clean House' As the City Burns

By Barbara Hamann and Ray Gin

During the 1906 quake that plagued San Francisco with death and destruction, women played a major role in stopping the holocaust and rebuilding the shattered city.

In time of crisis, women often react in a helpless, frightened and downright hysterical manner. Or at least that's what most men claim.

Contrary to this opinion, women kept their "cools" during the quake and contributed far more to the city's restoration than they've been given credit.

Lillie Hitchcock Coit was the celebrated darling of the volunteer firemen and ultimately contributed Coit Tower, which is in the shape of a fire nozzle, in remembrance of firefighters' heroism. She, along with many of her kind, valiantly fought to subdue the treacherous fires that swept through the city nicknamed "Baghdad by the Bay."

Feminine hands composed much of the Red Cross forces in giving hospital care to the injured. Later, when the city was struck with bubonic plague, those same hands nursed the sick, and in many cases helped to comfort the loved ones of the deac. The women also built tents to insure shelter for the many homeless refugees.

An outstanding feminine contribution to the mania of the quake was made by Alice Eastwood, then curator of botany for the California Academy of Sciences. Boldly entering the burning Academy, she carried plants from the damaged building. She rented a wagon and, with a friend, proceeded to Fort Mason taking the country's finest and rarest botanical collection to safety.

Many relief stations were set up throughout the ruined city where the rich and the poor women were satisfied to stand side by side in line for their rations of bread, canned meat, coffee, potatoes and other staples. Some ate in eleganee with salvaged tables and chairs, but for the most part, the meals were the same for all.

It was not an uncommon sight to see the woman of the house waiting on the porch (where there were porches) to catch loaves of bread thrown to them from the bread wagons passing by.

Many women cooked their meals over outdoor kitchens. In many cases these street ranges were improvised from nothing but bricks, scraps of sheet metal, or a salvaged grill from a kitchen stove.

Outdoor cooking continued for several weeks because insurance companies refused to pay for damages from indoor cooking. Perhaps today's outdoor cooking mania stemmed from this example.

Today, 63 years later, San Franciscans are told by noted prophets and mysties that a quake, even more destructive than the 1906 shakedown, is on its way.

If it happens again will the women of today be able to stand alongside these "heroines of yesteryear" and measure up to their mighty stamina?

SPRING THING — Peggy De Pauw of City College and a friend Art Hotchkiss are getting ready for a "Spring Thing" and invite single City College girls between 18 and 26 to attend. "Spring Thing," set for this Saturday at the Armed Services YMCA, 166 Embarcadero, will salute the return of the USS Coral Sea. In addition to men, men, men . . attractions will include the Air Force Key Notes Rock Band, door prizes, and free refreshments.

Attention Journalists—

Summer Workshop

June 16—July 8

See Miss Blair, S160F

Recruitment Day

(Continued from Page 1)

A huge demand exists in the labor market, Amori stated, for qualified graduates with skills in engineering, accounting, secretarial, typing, data processing, sales and merchandising, banking, insurance, transportation, graphic arts, stocks and bonds, marketing, chemistry, office machines, management training, medical services, and allied fields.

Entrance salaries have increased approximately 5 percent over last year, both in the private and public sector. A two-year college graduate in engineering and chemistry can expect an initial offering of $500-$700. A junior accountant will find starting salary of $450-$550. Sales personnel are being offered from $385-$550, depending on industry and training in special areas. Data processing personnel can expect entrance salaries of from $400-$500 per month.

The Recruitment Day will commence at 8 a.m. with a traditional breakfast in Statler Wing during which the program procedures will be outlined. Personal interviews will begin at 9 a.m. in Cloud Hall and continue until 4:30 p.m.

Editor Explains 'T. Y. Wong Mixup'

It has been brought to our attention that an error was made in the last issue of the Guardsman concerning the story about T. Y. Wong's dismissal as editor of Han, the Chinese campus newspaper.

Bill Strehlow, editor of the Free Critic, informed us that Han is separate from the Free Critic even though it shares space on the same paper.

In this light, it is understandable to see why our reporter became a little mixed up when he went to report on the story.

In order to clear up the situation we write the following retraction: It was Han's editorial board and not the Free Critic's (which doesn't have an editorial board) who dismissed T. Y. Wong. George Quan was selected by the board to replace Wong. According to Jim Morrison and Herb Gunther, members of Han's staff, it was T.Y.'s "incompetence" and not his editorial that caused his dismissal.

The severe tongue lashing that they administer to the Guardsman, the reporter and T. Y. Wong in their letter to the editor was totally uncalled for.

We remind Han that our reporters are human and that humans do occasionally make mistakes. To use a worn out but applicable cliche—"that's why they put erasers on lead pencils."

We also remind Han that regardless of what their personal feelings are about T. Y. Wong, he was a professional reporter for a number of noted news organizations in Hong Kong.

Although he has a little bit of trouble expressing himself in English, we feel that he deserved a better break than Han gave him.

—Editor

For those who have been missing the Free Critic and wondering what has happened to it, don't despair, it's coming out next Monday. So look for it at your favorite newsstand.

Governor Reagan Issues Statement —Hiring Teachers

Governor Ronald Reagan issued a statement recently concerning the criteria for the hiring of professors at state university and college campuses.

He stated that "I have not nor have I ever considered recommending a so-called 'political test' to determine who should or should not be hired as teachers.

"I have long expressed my concern—as have many chief administrators and faculty members—that there is a lack of philosophical balance at some of our state institutions in regard to what is being taught. I have felt, as have many others in the academic community, that students are not always being given a variety of points of view and that if we are to maintain quality institutions of higher education, students can be trusted to make their own decisions so long as they are allowed to hear all sides.

"Proper balance in teaching can be achieved by having on our faculties those who represent a broad spectrum of philosophical and ideological views. In this way, students can pursue the truth without being subjected to indoctrination or a particular advocacy of one philosophy or ideology."

GUARDSMAN

NOW

8 PAGES

(SEE EDITORIAL)

Letter to the Editor

Dear Sir:

The Guardsman does it again. To vehemently denounce the Guardsman for printing the March 26 article concerning the Han would be useless. The effect intended by the misleading article, to be restrained in my choice of words, has been adequately achieved. We, at the Han, haye been portrayed quite nicely as the villains and Mr. T. Y. Wong as the bleeding martyr.

But as it is, the Guardsman has apllogized and has figuratively bent itself backwards to insure us of their sincere sorrow over the clumsy blunderings of their cub reporters. So now we can only slap their wrists and caution them as we would some errant child to be a little more careful in the future with the truth. The Guardsman realizes the false and misleading statements they have printed and they have promised us an adequate retraction. To pay them further lip service at this time would be futile. However, in order to clear up the situation that has inadvertently been muddled by the Guardsman, we would like to present the actual situation.

To begin, it was the Han editorial board and not the Free Critic that ousted Mr. T. Y. Wong. The reason for Mr. Wong's dismissal is not as glamorous and heroic as the Guardsman, and possibly even Mr. Wong, would have us believe. Very simply stated, Mr. Wong was fired because of his incompetence, and not over an issue of policy. T. Y. Wong was so busy playing God, he lost touch with the members of the Han Staff. To paraphrase him, we were all too "Simple" to understand him. This being the case, we felt that Mr. Wong would be better off using something else to feed his ego. As to the allegations that no replacement has been made, George Kwan, one of the original founders of the Han, was selected to fill the position of Editor-in-Chief. We, at the Han, in order not to cause Mr. Wong any further bruising of his already tender ego, did not publicize his dismissal. However, as the Guardsman decided to lionize him, we regretfully have been forced to show what a lack-luster character Mr. Wong really is.

Journalism is a profession built on trust and competence. With this in mind, the Guardsman has failed in its half-hearted attempts at Journalism. We realize that Tom Graham is not to blame for the antics of his junior reporter, therefore we will not pursue any further the failings of the Guardsman.

We sincerely hope in the future the Guardsman will lift itself up from its present gutter-level and live up to its projected image of objectivity.

Han

Paws in the Sun

This campus is going to the dogs. (Photo by Tony Ragadio)

New Student Union Building To Provide Ample Room

On April 1, 1965, the Associated Students of City College passed a recommendation calling on the San Francisco School Board to authorize the A.S. to take the necessary actions enabling the financing of a Student Union Building for the City College campus.

An application was submitted to the United States Department of Housing and Urban Development for a loan in the amount of $550,000 at three per cent interest per annum.

Last Tuesday the Board of Education accepted conditions of the HUD loan and authorized the President of the Board of Education's signature.

Dr. Buttimer, coordinator of construction on campus, will then hand deliver the loan agreement to HUD. It is expected that this should take place within several days.

The Student Union will help in relieving the already congested Statler Wing by providing more room for students. It will consist of four areas: lounge-auditorium, Student Government offices, recreational area and an outside terrace.

The building site of the Student Union will be on the slope of the old book store (Rampo-rium). Construction, Dr. Buttimer said, should begin this summer.

The cost of the Student Union will be in the area of $600,000. This sum will be made up by the combination of the HUD loan and $50,000 from the City College of San Francisco Student Store account.

The loan is to be repaid over a period of fifty years, in accordance with the terms specified in the loan agreement, from profits derived from the City College of San Francisco Student Store.

The architect employed by the Associated Students has been Milton Pflueger, the architect for City College of San Francisco.

Writer Tells Of 'Han' Error

I must apologize to HAN if some clumsiness of my own expression had led them to misinterpret my story. I now see that The Free Critic did not oust T. Y. Wong. But that was the only error.

I suggested, correctly I still hold, that Wong was fired because he tried to establish an editorial policy. I must emphasize again, as I did in the article, that HAN's attitude was, "the editorial board sets the policy—not T. Y. Wong." That comment is no figment of my imagination. It is spelled out on the original draft of Wong's editorial, "Paper's Policy," which was not published and is in my hands.

On quite another point, however, I believe HAN has read more vehemence into my article than I actually expressed. Nowhere did I suggest that Wong should be "lionized."

I suspect that both The Free Critic and HAN find it difficult to believe that they are alone in their defiance of society. If they were a bit less dizzy they might have recognized that I am on their side in seeing journalism as "a profession built on trust and competence." The point being: Wong's removal, as I saw it, was not in that spirit.

—Marc Kovaes

'Save the Bay' Theme for May Picnic in City

The Stanford Population and Environmental Forum, a student-faculty group designed as a model for community education on environmental problems, will initiate a "Save the Bay Day," Sunday afternoon on May 18 in many of the local parks and recreation areas throughout the Bay Area.

A coordinated series of picnics, with entertainment, political leaders and exhibits illustrating the importance of the Bay, will be presented in cosponsorship with many of the Bay Area's community groups concerned with environmental problems: churches, colleges, conservation groups, labor unions, service groups, and sportsmen.

The problem of protecting the Bay from an overload of fill and deadly chemical infiltration is of utmost importance to this forum. The reasons given for the new action taken were: The Bay is vital to the climate of the city (cooling the city in the summer and warming the city in the winter); onshore breezes from the Bay are necessary for smog dissipation (fill the Bay and there will be more smog sources and less dissipation capacity); earthquake fills on the Bay are exceptionally dangerous, and the Bay is the most important stopping-place for the migratory birds of the Pacific Flyway (birds protect our forests and agriculture).

The forum has also circulated some interesting facts on the developments of the Bay. One hundred years ago the area of the Bay was 700 square miles and today it's 400 square miles. Another 300 square miles is easily fillable now.

For further information on how to get reservations for the picnic or becoming a worker for the forum write Joe Selliken, Box 6508, Stanford, California 94305.

Extension of Poster Contest

An extension of the Anti-War Poster Contest until April 23 was announced by the Experimental College.

Insufficient time and the midterms were the reasons given by Lola Bruns, Chairman of the Poster Committee.

Sixty dollars in awards will be given: $30 for first place, $20 for second place and $10 for third.

No size limit was a change made in requirements. All two-dimensional art forms are acceptable. Entrants must be students of the College.

Posters will be judged on originality, communicative effectiveness, relevance to anti-war theme, and aesthetic appeal.

Four art critics will judge the contest. Three of them will be from off-campus art departments, and the other will be from this campus.

Entries should be submitted to the Free Critic office located in Bungalow 5. More than one poster may be entered by a student, but there will be only one prize per contestant.

Winners will be announced on April 24.

SPORTS DESK

By Sports Editor, Phil DiCarlo

A FAN'S DELIGHT

Or is it a dilemma? This is one of those times of the year when every sports fan is on the verge of a nervous breakdown.

What with the baseball season just getting underway, the sports world is nearly bursting at the seams with all the activity. The hockey and basketball play-offs are still in progress (and will remain so for the next couple of weeks); college track meets occupy much of our attention; tennis, swimming and crew are in the news; the big golf tournaments are starting; soccer and rugby get plenty of play in this area; the draft war between the National and American Basketball Associations is reaching full strength and our own O. J. Simpson still hasn't signed a contract.

Fast, rugged excitment highlight hockey games.

NEW SET-UP

And then there's baseball. Dying rapidly, the National Pastime has embarked on a scheme to stimulate a much-needed interest back into the game. After adding still more teams to major league status, the hierarcy has decided on a two-divisional system for both leagues. Play-offs between the two division champs will decide World Series opponents.

We're afraid to say that we don't think the new system will do the trick. Pro football has grabbed the imagination of the American sports fan (especially after Super Bowl game). Baseball isn't as exciting anymore. Maybe we're wrong, but only time will tell.

HILLTOP SCENE

The horn of plenty overflows onto this campus as baseball, track, golf, tennis and swimming are reaching the zenith of their respective seasons. Grover Klemmer's duffers have the best chance for a conference championship. Led by Ken Kundert, the golf team is solid from end to end.

Without a pool they can call their own, the Ram aqualads don't really have a fighting chance. This is a rebuilding year for the tennis team and the baseballers never seemed to get started after the seige of bad weather shot down their practice sessions. After the big meet with Merritt, the Ram spikers let down and suffered another defeat at the hands of Foothill. There is a lot of talent on the squad, so don't count them out yet.

Excitement is in the air concerning the Sports Day scheduled for Saturday. City College is hosting the extravanganza in which 15 nearby junior colleges will also participate. A huge slate of activities are planned, and all Associated Student Body card holders may join in the fun.

YOU HAD IT COMING TO YA

Elvin Hayes, the fabulous "Big E" from the University of Houston, made it "Big" in pro basketball this past season. Hayes is a Big Scorer, a Big Mouth and a Big Gun.

Three weeks ago Wes Unseld, the other top-notch rookie in the NBA, was selected as the Most Valuable Player in the league. Many people had predicted that Hayes would be the Rookie-of-the-Year, but that Unseld should be the MVP. That seemed to be a great way to honor two very fine newcomers.

Humbleness was found to be another trait Hayes didn't possess. Big E stated that he deserved the MVP award, but that the Eastern sports writers were against him. Then in, a wonderful display of friendliness and team play, Hayes mentioned that he had won the league's scoring crown, and that was all that really mattered.

When the Rookie-of-the-Year

Jess Arterberry to Cal State, LA? Samuel Woo photo

award was announced last week, Hayes was not the grateful recipient. Wes Unseld had claimed that honor also.

If Hayes needs a trophy, we're sure his team will be glad to give him one. Titled "Greatest Gunner and Personal Glory Player," it would be signed by "The other guys on the team—remember us."

THE BIG BLUNDER

Sticking with basketball for a minute, Unseld's team, the Baltimore Bullets, really pulled a "rock" recently. With the regular season nearly ended, the New York Knicks and Philadelphia 76ers were battling for second place in the NBA's Eastern Division.

Baltimore fooled around in their last few games allowing Philly to finish second.

Now, what we can't figure out is: "Why did the Bullets want to face the Knicks in the first round of the Play-offs."

Many feel as though the Knicks were the best team in the NBA at the end of the season. Knowing that they would

(Continued on Page 7)

Distance Men Rank Among Tops in U.S.

Not only do City College's crack corps of distance men rate high in California, but their marks rank with the best in the entire United States.

According to the latest issue of the JC Track and Field News, the Ram lungbusters merely have the nation's SECOND best time in the four-mile relay. Their time of 18:22.2 is second only to San Diego Mesa's 18:14.8.

Individually speaking, the distance men have been equally as potent. Jim Tracy's 4:16.7 in the mile is the fourth best JC mark in the U.S., while his two-mile, 9:16.0, performance is the sixth best.

Halfmiler Klaus Hoffman's 1:54.6 in the 880 in the third best in the nation.

In the field, freshman sensation Clyde Sadler has high jumped over 6'8" to rank as No. 6, while Tom Clyburn has long jumped 22-11½ for 13th place.

The Guardsman
SPORTS

Weak Chabot Is Final Home Victim For Rams

Distance star Jim Tracy warms up for Chabot. It will be last home meet of the year for the Rams. Photo by Bert Flowers

City College will close out its 1969 home track season this Friday afternoon with a dual meet against Chabot.

The Rams could have a field day against the Gladiators, one of the weaker teams in the Golden Gate Conference.

For the first time since the DVC meet, the relay teams will have a chance to win the 440 and mile events.

In addition, the spikers hope to gain some points in the sprints. Chabot is strong only in the 100 with Mike Clarke, a 9.9 man.

The Gladiators also have a pretty good group out distance men in Doug Gibbons, Frank Bautista and Bill Seaver. But they aren't considered any great threat though.

Gibbons had turned in a 1:57.5 in the 880, while Bautista had run the one and two mile events in 4:23.5 and 9:37.0 respectively.

In the field events, the cindermen should be all but overwhelming. Here Chabot has only two top performers: triple jumper Larry Forest, who has leaped 44-11, and pole vaulter Roger Witt, who has gone over the 14-1½" mark.

The dual meet will be held in the CCSF Stadium starting at three o'clock.

—P. Chan

Sports Quiz

BASEBALL OPENER

1. What are the nicknames of the four new major league teams. (10 pts.)
2. Below are the names of five managers. Name their teams. (10 pts. each)
   Alvin Dark, Joe Gordon, Earl Weaver, Lum Harris and Preston Gomez.
3. What were the former homes of these teams? (15 ea.)
   a. Atlanta Braves (before they moved to Milwaukee)
   b. Baltimore Orioles
   c. Minnesota Twins
4. Who was the Most Valuable Player in the American League last year? (10 pts.)
5. Carl Yastrzemski won the Triple Crown to lead the Red Sox into the World Series in 1967. Before Yas did the trick, who had been the last player to accomplish that feat, and when did he do it? (10 pts.)
6. The legendary Bob Feller pitched three no-hitters during his career. Has anyone done better? (15 pts.)

(Answers on Next Page)

Loss and Upset

Merritt, Foothill Defeats Dash Track Crown Hopes

By Pat Chan

Ramland's dream of a league track crown this spring turned into a nightmare over Easter vacation as a disappointing 78-58 loss to Merritt and a stunning 72-64 upset by Foothill crushed title hopes for this spring.

The two defeats evened the tracksters' season record at 2-2.

The nation's No. 1 Junior College sprinter, flashy Warren Edmonson, led Merritt to their closest victory of the spring by winning the 220 and 440. Edmonson also ran a leg on the winning 440 relay team.

In addition, T-Bird Eric Barfield won his duel, in the hurdles, against Don Bruce, as he took firsts in both the 120HH and 440IH. Bruce finished second in both events with times of 15.7 and 56.5.

The highpoint of the day, for City College fans, was the dazzling show put on by the distancemen in the 880, mile and two mile. Merritt scored only ONE point in these events, getting clobbered 26-1.

Jim Tracy paved the way for the Rams with his dual wins in the mile (4:21.1) and two mile (9:36.0) while Kiaus Hoffman won the 880 (1:54.7). Dave Power and Bob Darling took a second and a third in the mile while Darling and Humberto Hernandez placed second and third in the two mile. Hernandez also took a second in the 880.

The Ram sprinters wish they could say as much as they choked on Merritt dust most of the afternoon. City College lost the sprint events (100, 220, 440) by a lopsided 23-4 as Andy Watkins' third in the 100 (10.1) and Vince Ainsley's second in the 440 (49.2) were the best the tracksters could manage.

The thinclads also lost both the 440 and mile relays.

The main turning point of the meet didn't come in the sprints however, but in the field events, where Merritt rocked the Rams, 36-20. City College took only two of a possible six first places. Paul Conroy won the pole vault at 13-0, while Clyde Saddler and Tom Clyburn tied for first in the high jump at 6-4. Clyburn also took a second in the long jump with a leap of 22-6¼.

Upset By Owls

Rebounding off their narrow Merritt defeat the Rams continued their losing ways by dropping a meet to Foothill on April 3.

Hurdler Don Bruce got back on the winning track, however, as he took his usual two wins in the 120HH (15.6) and 440IH (56.4).

The distancemen had another good day as Vic Cary paved the way for a complete sweep in the two mile event with a 9:20.4. Bob Darling and Humberto Hernandez placed second and third.

Klaus Hoffman won the mile in 4:14.5 while Hernandez took a second. Jim Tracy and Vic Cary took second and third in the 880, respectively.

Tom Clyburn led the way for a complete sweep in the long jump with a leap of 21-7¾ while being backed by Ron Van Pool and Dave Robinson.

The Ram weightmen also suffered a loss, losing 13-5. Brian Kennedy's 46-3½ was good enough for a second place in the shot while Andre Hicks took a third. Hicks also placed third in the discus.

Paul Conroy tied for second in the pole vault with a leap of 13' even.

Baseballers Face Long Season

Busy Duffers Still in League Lead

Laney Loses To Link Lads

The once-beaten Ram golfers easily defeated Laney 24½ to 10½ last week. The match was held at the Galbarth course in Alameda.

Top men for the Rams were Ken Kundert with a 75 and low medalist Greg Corvi, who shot a 73. John Susko and Paul Rea both had 76s. Duane Casper finished with 82.

Though the golfers had to cope with high grass and the strong winds on the course, Coach Grover Klemmer stated that his five-man team played especially well considering the conditions.

This Friday the Rams travel down the Peninsula to take on powerful San Jose. The Spartans, with aces Forrest Fezler and Ed Morris, hope to repeat as Golden Gate Conference Champions.

Fezler captured the recent Alameda Commuters Tourney for the second year in a row. He won this year's title by a fantastic 13 strokes. Morris finished ninth in that tournament, while the Rams' Ken Kundert came in sixth.

Fourth, Fifth For City Duo

On the two weekends before and after the tourney in Fresno, the annual Alameda Commuters Golf Classic was held. Playing great golf throughout, City College of San Francisco students Jim O'Kane and Ken Klundert finished in the top five.

Kundert, the number one golfer on the college team, averaged just 72½ swings per round on the par 71 Alameda Municipal Course. The CCSF sophomore came in with a four-round total of 290 to tie for fifth place.

O'Kane tied for fourth with a 72-hole total of 291. Though not playing on the college team, O'Kane has been helping Coach Grover Klemmer with the instruction of young golfers.

Forrest Fezler, the San Jose City College whiz, breezed to his second successive Alameda championship, by putting together four, sub-par rounds. His 66-69-70-70—275 enabled the 20-year-old Fezler to win by an unbelievable 13 strokes.

—Ed.

Fresno Wins WJC Tourney

While most students relaxed during the Easter Vacation, there were those who didn't.

Golf mentor Glover Klemmer took his team down to sunny Fresno for Western Junior College Tournament over the holidays. Playing against the top 23 golf teams in the state, the Ram swingers fared pretty well, finishing tenth.

Host Fresno City College won the tournament, barely edging out last year's state champ San Jose. The margin of victory was only three strokes, as FCC took the team competition 905 to 908.

City College of San Francisco's duffers finished forty swings behind the Rams of Fresno CC, with an aggregate total of 945.

Sportsday This Saturday

Dear Students:

The Recreation Association of City College invites all A.S. card holders to attend our Sportsday here, this Saturday (April 19).

We will be offering the following activities:

Archery
Badminton
Bowling
Fencing
Folk Dance Master Class
Golf (hole-in-one)
Riflery
Tennis
Volleyball
and recreational games such as:
Chess
Checkers Bridge and Softball

NOTE: All equipment will be supplied.

The schedule of events will be as follows:

8:30-9:30 registration
9:30-12:00 competition
12:00-2:00 lunch (bring your own, milk will be supplied)

Entertainment and awards ceremony.

There have been 15 junior colleges invited and in past Sportsdays City College has made it a habit to be either first, second or third.

There will be three team trophies and individual awards.

—John Blick, RA Historian

Sports Desk

(Continued from Page 6)

have to play against the third place team, the Bullets practically set it up so that the Knicks would be their foes.

Since they were swept off the courts in four straight games, one can only hope that Baltimore will learn not to take New York teams too lightly.

Isn't that right Colts?

BITS AND PIECES

Cal State at Los Angeles is going out of its mind trying to get Ram basketball mainstay, Jess Arterberry, for their team. The 6-6 Arterberry isn't too receptive about going on to a four-year school since he has a family to feed . . . Washington, D.C., is going all out in an effort to field a winning sports team, with Vince Lombardi on hand to lead the Redskins and Ted Williams at the helm of the hapless Senators. Washington is a notoriously poor sports town, but these two guys can spark the interest if anybody can . . . We take our hats off to Fred Glover and the Oakland Seals hockey team. If you like plenty of action, hockey should be your thing. The talented, fast-skating Seals personify the true spirit of the tough, exhausting game. Led by rookie winger Norm Ferguson, the East Bay skaters can provide a thoroughly enjoyable evening for you.

JUST THINKING aloud: 49er head coach Dick Nolan has more seniority than any other coach in the Bay Area—and he just finished his first season!!! Both baseball managers, Hank Bauer and Clyde King are starting their first year, as are hockey mentor Glover and Raider Chief John Madden . . . Does the American Basketball Association really take itself seriously? It seems to us if they would get their own organization straightened up first, then they could take swipes at others. A red, white and blue striped ball, referees (poor ones at that) in sweat shirts and a constant change in the rules and other such shenanigans do not tender fan appeal. We vividly remember the long struggle of the American Football League and feel prideful when we remember we followed their progress toward equality. Take your time ABA, and maybe the public will be won over to you.

WEEKEND SCORES

BASEBALL

The Ram nine split in two recent games. Thursday, the hitters went wild, smacking 15 hits, to beat Merritt 10 to 4.

Soph centerfielder Manny Berrios contributed a three run homer and four RBI. Andy Fracchia, the Ram second sacker, smashed four safeties.

Second-ranked Chabot played errorless ball to defeat CCSF 7-3 on Saturday.

TENNIS

Roy Diederichsen's racketeers fell to Foothill Friday, seven love.

TRACK

Humberto Hernandez led the Ram tracksters to their first win in three meets as they whipped San Jose City College 81 to 54.

SWIMMING

In Friday's battle for the cellar, the mermen of CCSF lost to previously winless Chabot, 71-40.

Rich Glass broke his own record in the 200 yd. butterfly, clocking the course in 2:18.5. Other winners were Frank Johnson (100 yd. freestyle) and the 400 yd. medley relay team.

GOLF

Reliable Ken Kundert again led the golf team to victory. This was an especially big one though as the victim was San Jose City College, last year's defending State Champs.

Kundert shot a one over par 73 as the Rams swept to a rousing 28-7 win.

Vince Anderson tags one! Photo by Tony Ragadio

Recent Surge Brings Faint Hope

With the baseball season half over, the Ram nine can only look forward to better days.

This has not been the best of seasons for the men in flannel. After bad weather ruined their spring training, Coach Ernie Domecus' squad really can't get started. A recent surge has provided hope of the better days not being too far away.

Here's a quick glance at recent games:

CCSF—9 San Jose—3

Ram hurler Rich Heintz struck-out nine and gave San Jose only three hits and three runs. Irv Jones relieved Heintz when trouble developed in the seventh.

The Rams collected nine runs on eleven hits. They exploded for five of the runs in the seventh inning when Jones singled, Andy Fracchia and Tom Mayfield each followed with singles. Manny Berrios doubled and Hans Vigil continued the rally with a single.

CCSF—11 DVC—0

Freshman Rick Cole pitched all nine innings, yielding only three hits, as the Rams shut-out Diablo Valley. It was the Rams' second victory over the Vikings this year.

YUBA—4 CSF—3

Yuba broke a tie in the top of the 12th inning to win the practice game played by mostly Ram second-stringers.

CCSF—3 SCC—1

Starting pitcher John Portoni went the distance as the Rams won the first game of a double-header against visiting Sacramento City College.

The three runs needed for the victory came in the fourth inning. Following a walk to Manny Berrios, Hans Vigil, Vince Anderson and Tim Callen all singled to ice the game.

SCC—5 CCSF—2

Pitcher Jerry Lagomarsino started the second game against Sacramento and was relieved in the fifth by John Lawhorn.

The Rams collected only three hits, a single by Dave Kline, a triple by Manny Berrios, and a single by Pete Edwards.

Sacramento collected six hits and won the game 5-2.

Foothill—2 CCSF—1

Ram pitcher John Portoni gave Foothill sluggers only four hits, but the two runs they picked up in the first inning was enough to hand Portoni his fourth loss.

A perfect game was in sight for Foothill's starting pitcher Wihtol as the Rams failed to reach first base until the sixth inning when Portoni singled with two men out.

Hope came in the ninth when Jim Smith led off with a single. Tom Mayfield followed with his second single of the day, and Manny Berrios doubled off the right-center fence scoring Smith. With no outs and runners at second and third, the Rams were unable to bring the tying run across.

A Richard Sandino photo

Such is the frustration of the Rams' season.

—P.E.

Coming Events

Thursday (April 17)
BASEBALL — CCSF vs. Laney, Balboa Field, 3 p.m.
Friday (April 18)
TRACK — CCSF vs. Chabot, Here, 3 p.m.
SWIMMING — Conference Championships
GOLF — CCSF vs. San Jose, Almaden, 1 p.m.
Saturday (April 19)
SWIMMING — Conference Championships.
Tuesday (April 22)
BASEBALL — CCSF vs. San Jose, San Jose, 3 p.m.
TRACK — CCSF vs. San Mateo, CSM, 3 p.m.
GOLF — CCSF vs. San Mateo, Peninsula, 1 p.m.

ANSWERS TO SPORTS QUIZ

1. Montreal Expos, San Diego Padres (NL), Kansas City Royals and Seattle Pilots.
2. Cleveland, Kansas City, Baltimore, Atlanta and San Diego.
3. Boston, St. Louis (Browns) and Washington (Senators).
4. Ken "Hawk" Harrelson.
5. Frank Robinson did the same for Baltimore in 1966.
6. Sandy Koufax had four.

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Journalism Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 68 — SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—WEDNESDAY, APRIL 23, 1969 — NUMBER 8

Open House For Floristry Displays Here

By Jim Browning

The Retail Floristry Department will hold it's 11th annual open house today from 9 to 1 in the Ornamental Horticulture Building.

The theme for this year's event is "The Wonderful World of Color."

Floral arrangements, each utilizing a different color, by 13 Floristry students will be on display.

According to Mrs. Maryhope Jacks, Instructor and Coordinator of the Retail Floristry program, "The purpose of this event will be primarily to educate the students in the planning and execution of weddings and party decorations, and to encourage the student's imagination in the use of flowers. It will also bring the members of the floral industry together and show them what the students are learning."

The 13 students who will have Floral designs on exhibit are Helga Albright, Elaine Banchieri, Don Card, Marilee Heucert, John Lucia, Adele Mailta, Donna McDonald, Shimi Ogaiwa, Isolda Riveralainez, Sue Roualdes, Danny Thomas, Kay Wafford, Yvonne Yadao, and Karen Wakeman.

This Week's Campus Lineup

Today, April 16

Campus Planning Committee of the Academic Senate, meets 12-1 p.m. in C-207.

Thursday, April 17

College Hour features Dr. Joel Fort speaking on "The Drug Culture," College Theatre at 11 a.m.

BSU Membership Rally at Football field 11 a.m. Special guests are "Granny Goose and the Soul Chips."

Afro - American Curriculum Dept. film series at 11 a.m. in C-246. Topics range from "Slavery" to "The Black Man in America Today."

Fashion Show in Smith Hall, 3-5 p.m. All women students invited to view Afro-American fashions and entertainment.

Movie "Woman of the Dunes" (Japanese) in College Theatre at 8 p.m. Tickets free from English dept.

Friday, April 18

Inter-Fraternity Dance at Smith Hall, 9-12M. Tickets $1.25 with AS cards and $2.00 without.

Saturday, April 19

Chinese Students Association Sweetheart Ball at Veterans' War Memorial Building at 8 p.m.

Monday, April 21

Student Council Meeting in E-101, 12-1 p.m.

Tuesday, April 22

Curriculum Committee of the Academic Senate meets at 11 a.m. in S-346.

Part-Time Work Available

Part-time Post Office work will be available this month for all those who qualify for a transitional appointment.

Juan Serrano Receives Standing Ovation at City College Concert

World-renowned flamenco guitarist Juan Serrano's outstanding performance in the College Theater last Tuesday was received with a standing ovation. He held a capacity crowd absolutely spellbound.

Perhaps the most amazing thing about Serrano is the fact that he does not read or write music. His music is spontaneous; his ideas come as he plays.

His impact on his audiences is electric. He made his debut in the summer of 1962 in Greenwich Village, and a few months later he played at a concert in Manhattan's Town Hall, where he received a standing ovation. Since then, he has become known world-wide.

Serrano, who is 27 years old, is from Cordoba, Andulusia, a province of Spain. Because of this, he is "steeped in the vibrant flamenco dance rhythms and melodic chants of his native province," and his music possesses all of the rich and dark colors of old Spain.

Juan Serrano held his audience captivated with his guitar.

Japanese Film Screened Here

The celebrated existential thriller, Japan's Hiroshi Teshigahara's "Woman in the Dunes" will be screened tomorrow night at 8 p.m. in the College theater as the season's Film series continues.

This 1964 allegorical masterpiece was the combined work of two of Japan's young intellectuals, Director Teshigahara and novelist Kobo Abe.

A young teacher with a net on his back sets out in some obscure sand desert to find an unknown creature to bear his name in a desperate grapple for immortality. He encounters a stranger of the sand dunes and is lured to a deep sand pit where a mysterious woman resides. He is lowered with a rope and ladder and passes the night.

He awakens to find the rope and ladder gone and is pitted into a predicament of shoveling sand with the woman to survive. The bizarre conclusion of the film relays a shocking metaphor on man's fate.

With an awesome blend of black and white, the camera, microscopically, focuses in on the unyielding, grainy texture of sky, insects, water, and sand. The culmination of performances, directorial execution, and expert photography provides the backdrop for one of the most unusual and haunting films ever made.

Contribute Work To Literary Mag.

City College's literary magazine, The Forum, is again seeking student contributions. Donald Cunningham, faculty advisor of the Forum, stated that poetry, short stories, one-act plays and photographs are needed. April 25 will be the deadline to submit all articles. The authors must include a self-addressed stamped envelope with each entry.

From these entries, the best ones will be selected by the Forum staff, which is headed by Editor Gloria Keeley.

All articles must be taken to Cunningham's office C333A.

The Forum will be distributed to students with AS cards at the end of the semester.

Two Draft Card Burners Receive Prison Sentence

Emil Kangas, 21 - year - old freshman student at City College has been sentenced to four months imprisonment for tearing up his draft card in front of the Federal Building on December 18, 1968.

The federal court, which has sentenced him on March 11, has also placed Kangas on a 32 months probation period.

Kangas said he tore up his draft card in support of his brother's burning of the American flag on the day before, December 17.

Although Kangas has been allowed to finish this spring semester, the court has ordered him censored by a "complete and total avoidance of discussion, association, and demonstration as an individual or in a group of the draft controversy, selective service system, resistance movement, etc."

Before his arrest, Kangas had been classified by his draft board as a conscientious objector and had involved himself in the anti-war movements and peace marches.

Another City College student, Gary Young has also been sentenced to prison after this semester for burning his draft card earlier last year on Phelan Avenue, just off the campus.

Young, a 22-year-old Navy veteran was warned beforehand of the penalty for destroying a draft card by Dean Ralph Hillsman.

"As a citizen of the world, I cannot accept irresponsible government actions in Vietnam and in the ghettoes," said Young on that day in May. "I'm an American, and I love my country.

"Some people will think my act unpatriotic," continued Young, "but I think it un-American to follow blindly whatever the government says."

For those who have been missing the Free Critic and wondering what has happened to it, don't despair, it's coming out next Monday. So look for it at your favorite newsstand.

Fraternities, Sororities Start 'Hell Week' Here

Students who are potential members of the various Greek Letter Societies can expect this Hell Week, which began Monday, to be a memorable week in their lives.

Pledges will be put through various initiations to demonstrate their sincerity in wanting to become members.

Hazing, although illegal in most states because of many deaths associated with it, had been a part of fraternal life since its onset in 1776.

This was the year Phi Beta Kappa was organized at the College of William and Mary in Williamsburg, Virginia. It had all the characteristics of the moderinday organizations in that it was inundated with secrecy, rituals, oaths of fidelity, a grip, motto, and it had a background of high idealism and a strong tie of friendship and comradeship.

"Our philosophy of brotherhood is the hope of the world. We have no choice but to learn to live together as brothers . . . Fraternities have long emphasized this policy," said President Willis M. Tate of Southern Methodist University. This was the point in instituting the fraternal organization.

Many people are critical of these organizations claiming clanishness and discrimination and that fraternity life is merely a round of parties.

The National Interfraternity Council gives what it believes to be an adequate rebuttal to these claims via one of their surveys. The council cites five propitious advantages to being a member. It provides: training in getting along with people; social-cultural opportunities for the student; assistance in developing a feeling of mutual interest and responsibility among its members; encouragement of service to the freshmen in their adjustment to college life.

An article by Bill Hall in the San Francisco Examiner said there is an indication that the fraternities are dying out not only because of indifference among the students, but also because they are taking on an austere nature.

It is inconceivable that colleges could ever devoid themselves of these social organizations.

The Spring semesters gala affair for the Inter-Sorority Council will be the ISC Cotillion.

The Cotillion is the traditional and formal presentation at which time the sororities take the opportunity to proudly present their new sorority sisters—girls who have managed to survive the rushing affairs and Pledge Week.

New Dean of Student Activities Found To Be Multi-Talented

By Randy Flynn

A man who backed Nat King Cole, Ethel Merman, Alan Sherman and other greats on the ivory keyboard not long ago is now backing City College students behind a desk as the new dean of Student Acitvities.

Prior to his arrival at the College in 1965, Art Samuels played professional piano behind many greats and is still very active in showband and country club work.

The now part-time musician came to the College as a counsellor and wasted no time involving himself in student affairs.

Having been Coordinator of Student Activities for several years at Mission High, Samuels took an immediate interest in Student Government and spent many hours working with the A.S.

This semester he was chosen to take on the job full-time.

With the new title and position, Samuels has taken on many time-consuming responsiblilities. As Dean of Student Activities, he is the advisor, counsellor, overseer and trouble shooter for the Associated Students and their Government.

As he explained, "I'm really the representative of the students to the administration but I am in no way the head of student government."

"I work with the College clubs and organizations and handle their social affairs and distribution of literature on campus."

As if all that isn't enough, the Student's Dean is also the College representative to the Golden Gate Conference for athletics. In another "equally important" position, Samuels is a coach for a little league baseball team.

The man is probably busier than he has ever been before but his interest in students is still there. As he commented, "The A.S. Council handles all student problems and activities but if anyone has a problem they don't wish to convey in public or would rather discuss privately, my office (E109) is always open."

Art Samuels
Dean of Student Activities

Summer School

During the six-week session of summer school, students may take 6½ units (two 3-unit courses and one P.E. course), or 7½ units (a 4-unit course, a 3-unit course and a P.E. course). If students select both the six week and 3½-week sessions, they will be permitted to take as many units as they can fit into a program up to 15 units.

For further information, see your counselor.

Pre-fabricated Bungalows Still Remain Unused

By Rita Carroll

Eight new bungalows, located in the parking lot next to Arts Hall, still remain unused.

These bungalows were installed last term to alleviate classroom congestion.

Each of the pre-fabricated bungalows is put together in three sections and is secured on concrete case-mouldings.

Last March construction was halted when the Building Trades Council and a San Francisco AFL-CIO Union stepped in with a powerful nay! The action by the local union came just as the concrete foundation was to be poured, after nearly a year of planning and paperwork by the college.

The only specific reason for the construction halt was based on a 1963 agreement between the school district and the council which they said stated there would be no more temporary buildings erected.

Bungalows were and are used for various purposes on campus, such as offices for the Associated Students, Student Council meetings and meeting places for a number of other school clubs and academic functions.

WHITE ELEPHANTS?—Built to absorb some of the overflow of students, the bungalows still remain unused.
Guardsman Photo by Russell Wong

The buildings provide temporary classroom space—which is adequate. They also supply plenty of light and a good heating system. Hopefully, the buildings will allow some of the classes that are using projection rooms to move into a suitable classroom.

These buildings are leased at $2,000 per classroom per year. The buildings come as standard units from the factory.

The project which was started two years ago, has gone through a lot of turmoil and has been halted several times.

One problem which halted the opening was the fact that they didn't meet with the city electrical requirements.

Presently, City College is negotiating for 20 additional bungalows which will be located west of the women's gym. It is, possible that to conserve space, the 20 bungalows will be double story. The problem of meeting the city code arises once again, though.

Superintendent Robert Jenkins told the Board of Education, April 1, that there is a critical need to build 81 new classrooms by September.

And despite "adamant" objections by the San Francisco Building Trades Council, Jenkins recommended that prefabricated, portable classrooms be used under a lease-purchase arrangement.

Jenkins recommended that 20 of the classrooms go to City College, the rest to various overcrowded elementary schools.

Black Film Series Here

The Afro-American Curriculum Department has scheduled a film series to be shown weekly on Black Culture beginning April 17 and lasting through May 29 in the C246 Auditorium during the College Hour.

The topics will extend from the "Advent of Slavery" to a focus on the present role of Black people in America. These films will attempt to trace the sequential stage of the historical development of the Black man relevant to a further understanding of the importance of Black identity.

The roster of these films, designed to stimulate an assessment of the Black man in America, includes:

April 24: Frederick Douglas' Sound Film or Harriet Tubman's "Underground Railroad."

May 1: "History of the Negro in America" (1861-1877) Part 1 and Part II (1877 to today) or "Negro Heroes from American History."

May 8: "The Negro and the American Promise."

May 15: "Walk in My Shoes" (2 parts) or "Fourteenth Generation of Americans."

May 22: "Fourteenth Generation of Americans" and "The Negro faces the Twentieth Century" or "Portrait of the Inner City" and "Inner City: School, a place to learn."

May 29: repeat of May 22 program.

Further information regarding this series may be obtained from the Afro-American Curriculum Department in room S143-B.

Drug Expert Says:

'Drugs Not Desirable or Necessary for Survival

By Ray Gin

"Drug abuse is the barometer of the society in which we live in," stated the world's leading expert on mind-altering drug use and abuse, Dr. Joel Fort, here last Thursday.

The recent increase in the drug traffic, according to Fort, is a "symptomatic reflection of our social pathology."

"We live in a drug-ridden and saturated society that has procured the motto "Better living through chemistry," continued Fort. He grouped alcohol, nicotine, sedatives and stimulants under the order of mind-altering drugs and attributes the drug fever to the social effects of mass advertising, accepted identification of adult models, group pressure, and the drug police glorification of marijuana and the accompanying drugs.

He also observed that America is caught up on a "national negativity program" that has distorted the true picture of the mild-altering drugs. Using aspirin as an example of this distortion; he told how many medics have reprinted a campaign that tells of the pill's effects on birth defect to some 250,000 patients. This has misled the public to refrain from aspirin without revealing that the patients were lower animals and not human beings.

Fort went on to dispel the misleading definitions of names attached to the drug scene. He rejects the concept of "soft narcotics" by saying that there appears to be no clear definition of what "hard narcotics" are. "Hallucinatory drugs" implies a psychotic experience while "Psychedelic drugs" implies consciousness expanded. Both are misleading labels because of the question "What are the normal boundaries of experience?"

Fort wants to annihilate the stereotype of the drug user as a dope fiend, pothead, speed freak, or skid row bum because this is all part of the socially created mythology on the drug scene.

He also says that "assumptions that drug usage can lead to criminal effects and creativity" are absurd because no drug can transform a socially stable

(Continued on Page 3)

IFC Holds Annual Blood Drive Tomorrow In Statler

By Barbara Hamann

The Inter-Fraternity Council (IFC) will hold its annual blood drive tomorrow and Friday from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Statler Wing.

Donors will receive one of a wide variety of valuable prizes including hot dog roasters, tape decks, movie and theatre tickets, records and golf balls.

Any person between 18 and 60 years old is eligible to help save a life by donating one pint of blood to the college blood bank. Donors under 21 are not required to have parental consent as was the case in years past.

Persons unable to donate during the Blood Drive, tomorrow and Friday, may contribute to the College blood bank any time during the year by giving at the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank, on the corner of Turk and Masonic Streets in San Francisco.

A donor is privileged to withdraw, from the college blood bank, an unlimited supply of blood for himself, his immediate family, or a maximum of eight pints of blood for any person of his choosing who is in need of blood.

It is essential that donors eat regular meals on the day they donate, avoiding fatty foods.

In recent years the IFC has worked in conjunction with the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank to acquire enough blood to meet the ever-growing emergency needs in the Bay Area.

The annual balance of each blood fund is contributed equally to the Veterans' Hospitals and to the San Francisco Disaster Fund.

The gifts are being supplied by KFRC Radio Station, Warner Brothers, Coty Perfumes, A.C.T. and Mr. D's nightclub in North Beach.

Please help those who are dependent upon your gift for life.

Evaluation of Courses Still Underway

The course evaluation project is still underway for the benefit of those students who were unable to attend Monday and Tuesday's evaluating periods.

The project is designed to provide instructors with extensive "feedback" for increasing the effectiveness of their courses and to guide students in selecting instructors and classes that best suit their individual needs.

Tables are available near Smith Hall, the flag pole and Arts Hall for those interested in filing their evaluation forms.

Questions have been designed to prevent the program from degenerating into a popularity contest, according to Ed Jimison, chairman of the Constructive Program in Course Evaluation committee.

From the testing blanks used in the evaluation, IBM punch cards will be run through the computer for the compiled results.

The CPCE committee hopes to have the results published by the end of this semester.

Any faculty member who has ideas that they'd like to have mentioned concerning their particular course is advised to contact Ed Jimison care of the Associated Students Office, E109.

Students are again reminded to bring dark lead pencils with them when filling out the IBM answer forms.

Drama Instructor Back From Wreck

Drama instructor James Haran, seriously injured in a traffic accident several weeks ago, was back at work although handicapped by casts on his leg and arm.

While returning home from the East Bay, Haran's automobile was struck from behind by a drunk driving at great speed. The force of the collision rendered Haran unconscious and totally demolished his auto (which had been knocked completely across the freeway).

Haran has been teaching his classes while sporting a pair of crutches.

Festival-Spring Flop

STAR, Students and Teachers of All Races, had a successful car wrecking booth at the Spring Festival here two weeks ago. The festival bombed, however, because of a poor turnout.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Weekly Publication of the Students in the Journalism Department of City College of San Francisco

Thomas O. Graham, Editor

JU 5-7384

Vol. 68, No. 8 | WEDNESDAY, APRIL 23, 1969 | Page 2

Apathy versus Involvement

APATHETIC is an adjective that is used too frequently and often times erroneously in describing students here at City College.

This isn't to say that student apathy doesn't exist, however.

Many times when an activity fails to draw the correct response from the students people start harping about student apathy. But this isn't the problem though.

A case in point was the recent Spring Festival, which fell on its face again this year. And the reason for its skinned nose wasn't student apathy. Those who were in charge of organizing and publicizing the festival were the ones who showed little concern for making the festival a success. Students weren't even aware that there was a festival because no one told them.

There is a great deal of student involvement here that nobody ever talks about—programs like Tutorial and Experimental College are examples of students taking the initiative to help other students. And these programs aren't restricted to this campus. The structure of this campus makes it possible for organizations like these to reach out and lend a helping hand to the community.

This week there are two important activities taking place on campus—one is the Blood Drive and the other is the Course Evaluation program.

We would like to take this opportunity to invite everyone to participate—to involve themselves—in something that will benefit both themselves as students and others.

If everyone would donate a pint of blood (tomorrow or Friday) and fill out a Course Evaluation form it might prove that at least this semester's enrollment cares.

Contact Lens

Should Students Be Allowed To Grade Their Instructors?

Greg Winters, Criminology Major

No, because grading teachers would prove nothing except what the student felt about the teacher. Students should not have too much power in a class. The teacher should teach the way he wants to without interference from the student. It would destroy the student-teacher relationship.

Diana Matson, English Major

Yes, to let the Administration know how the teacher is doing. Also, if a student lets a teacher know how he is doing, the teacher can then improve on his weak points. By using a grading system on instructors, they can then improve on their methods of instruction.

Carl Cordini

I think they should. There are a lot of bad teachers on this campus. If teachers could see their own grades maybe they would improve. They are in a way playing God when they tamper with our grades: if they flunk us for life. If a teacher is doing bad, he should know it.

Charlene Fung, Social Welfare Major

Yes, and I think there are certain teachers that should not be teaching. Some teachers kill the courses they teach. I get more from reading a book in some classes. By grading them, we would get the lousy teachers out. But then, my opinion may be biased since I don't like this college anyway.

Ed Fedder, Business Major

I'm not sure that we as students are in a position to judge teachers. We are a result of their instruction, but it seems to me that students are always grading their teachers. We constantly ask them questions to try to test them. Besides, we don't have any tangible method of grading them.

Complied and photographed by Lavine Lee.

Coit Tower: Marked Surface in Beauty

By Boku Kodama

A winding road led up Telegraph Hill to Coit Tower. The road was narrow with cracks on its surface. Large houses lined one side of the street and trees and bushes on the other.

At the foot of the Tower was a small circular parking lot looking out over the bay. A 12-foot statue of Christopher Columbus stood in the center of the lot commemorating the pioneers of America. The statue held a book in its hand. Someone had scratched "Book of Zen" on its cover while someone else had scratched out "Zen" and inserted "Topless."

In Coit Tower, a desk was placed and a cash register behind it. "25 cents to ride the elevator," said the man.

The ride to the top took about 30 seconds and once arriving there, one is presented with one of the most beautiful views in the world.

The bay with its bridges and small sail boats, the East Bay and Sausalito are visible to the North. The other views show the hills with apartments and old houses and cable cars slowly making their way up to their destination.

In the low sections, one can see crowds of people and cars busily moving and a girl in a bikini getting a suntan on her roof.

The most beautiful parts of San Francisco can be seen from Coit Tower and Coit Tower itself is a sight to behold, not just because of the beauty of its structure but because of its ugly, marred walls at the top of the Tower. Marred by some jerks who wanted a permanent place in Coit Tower with signs like "Joe was here" and "Cathy, drop dead."

A telephoto shot of Coit Tower from Hyde and Lombard.
Guardsman photo by Jules Claassens

Coit Tower was erected in 1932 in memory of Lillie Hitchcock Coit, a rich young woman of an earlier era who followed firemen whenever a fire arose. It is a beauty of a memorial for a fascinating lady and an asset to the city of San Francisco. Just keep your marks off the memorial and let the future enjoy it.

La Raza Views Domestic Situations

Last Friday a Faculty Committee passed a Resolution recommending "that the Academic Senate approve in principle that departments hiring instructors who will teach in whole or in part courses in the Latin American Studies curriculum obtain the advice and approval of representatives of La Raza Unida in recommending instructors to be hired to teach those courses." Immediately after this action The Guardsman talked to three RAZA spokesmen: Marcos Ortiz, Gabriel Castillo and Terry Lira—

Q. What did you accomplish today?

ORTIZ: This was the first step. The resolution now goes to the Academic Senate for approval.

Q. Can you tell us something about the origins and aspirations of LA RAZA?

CASTILLO: The concept of LA RAZA originated in the farmlands of the San Joaquin Valley. The objective is to have solidarity amongst our people, the oppressed people in this country, the Latinos. We have a common idology, a common goal: liberation.

Q. What does LA RAZA mean?

ORTIZ: It means, the people. And in Spanish it means the Latinos: people from Mexico all the way down to the tip; Cuba, the Caribbean Islands. Everybody from the border down. Literally, it means, The Race. LA RAZA is just a way of saying, our people.

CASTILLO: I want to make a point that as Latinos our exploitation begins at an early age. We are poorly educated, underpaid and discriminated against. We don't complete our education. We get drafted. And then we get results like this: 20 per cent of the casualties in Vietnam are composed of Latinos, even though some of us can't even speak English, even though some of us aren't even citizens. In Latin America the U.S. sends the Green Berets, the CIA and the money to governments that exploit and murder our people. Here in this country they exploit us in employment, in education. They take away our freedom. They subject us to a new form of genocide. That is, they send us to Vietnam to kill and be killed. This is one manifestation of the problem. The other is that the Mexican-Americans in this country, the people ranging in age from 14 and over have only eight years of schooling as compared with 12 years for the average Anglo-American. Mexican-American children have a drop-out rate that is twice the national average. We can go on with more statistics but the point has been made. We are fighting right now: Fighting for the ultimate liberation of our people.

Q: Why do you support the Delano grape strike?

LIRA: The people in Delano have been on strike for four years. They've been trying to win one of the basic rights for organizing: the right to organize and bargain collectively. They do not have unemployment benefits or Social Security and health benefits or any of the benefits guaranteed to other people in the U.S. They have been severely oppressed in the field for many years and this has been the first successful attempt made at forming a union in the history of California agriculture. The reason that we support the grape strike is that they are our people and they've been oppressed for a long time.

Q. Do you have connections with movements in Latin America?

CASTILLO: As I said before, our goal is the liberation of our people. We are not in any direct contact with the liberation movements in Latin America but we are in contact with the ideological movements. We have picked up their ideology and their goals. So we have solidarity on that basis.

MARCOS: There are people in our organization who come straight from Latin America because of political persecution. These people are continually in contact with the persecution that has been suffered by our people in Latin America. Some of us are political refugees because of the American imperialistic system in Latin America trying to oppress our people.

Q: Is LA RAZA affiliated with the Third World Liberation Front?

MARCOS: We are part of the TWLF.

Q: What is your position on the student sit-ins at Stanford and Harvard?

MARCOS: Because of the nature of this society which has

(Continued on Page 8)

Guardsman Staff

(The Guardsman is the weekly publication of the students in the journalism department of City College of San Francisco. It is published each Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacations. The opinions expressed in the columns and editorials are those of the individual writers and not necessarily those of the Guardsman, the department or the college. Editorial office, 304, Science Hall; telephone 587-7272, ext. 246.)

SPRING 1969

EDITOR IN CHIEF ... TOM GRAHAM
Managing Editor ... Barbara Hamann
Feature Editor ... Boku Kodama
News Editors ... Jack Ruiz, ... Randy Flynn
Sports Editor ... Phil DiCarlo
Editorial Assistants: Rita Carroll, Lavine Lee, Lynda Sandstrom.
Reporters: Patrick Chan, Gerry Engler, Ray Gin, Marc Kovacs, Jack Ruiz.
Photographers: Eugene Wong, Chief; Jules Claassens, Bert Flowers, Antony Ragadia, Jerry Warren, Earl Williams, Samuel Woo.

A Light Silence

The Educational Services Building never looked better. Even the plywood fence and the grass in the foreground seem to add to the environment. Too bad it's not for real.
Photo by Claude Santo Domingo

Summer Session Programs Offer 15 Units for Students

By Lavine Lee

Summer session registration is now in progress for students interested in taking a few units during summer vacations.

For the first time in the history of City College students will be permitted to take up to 15 units of college work in the summer session program.

It will be broken down into three sessions. First there will be a three-and-a-half week session, which will begin June 16 and end July 8. Then there will be a six week session, which will begin June 23 and end August 1. The third session will be a three-and-a-half week session; it will begin July 10 and end August 1.

There will be a limitation of units. Students may take up to seven-and-a-half units during the six week session. If students decide to go both to the six and three-and-a-half week sessions, they will be allowed to take up to 15 units.

Registration for the summer session will be limited to those attending day classes on this campus. June 1969 graduates of San Francisco public and private high schools, low and high seniors in San Francisco public and private high schools who have enrolled in the Special Summer Program, and San Francisco residents who are high school graduates and who have all transcripts on file and have completed admission requirements by April 28, 1969.

Non-resident students will be required to pay the tuition fee of $12.50 per unit. It must be paid to the Residence Officer (EL-202) no later than May 19 to receive a confirmed schedule.

Eligible veterans or veterans' dependents will receive full subsistence for taking six units. For taking three units, these students will receive one half subsistence. In order to qualify for these benefits, these students must report to the Veterans' Counselor (ES-202) during the first three days of the summer session.

Schedules for the summer session, which are available in the Registrar's Office (ES-107), list specific courses and dates of classes being offered.

Students interested in attending summer classes must consult their counselors before May 19. Counselors will provide the program and course request cards which are needed to register.

'A Bad Joke'

State Senator John G. Schmitz from Orange County was defeated by the Senate Judiciary Committee in his attempt to pass a bill to police campuses and expel students and faculty dissenters.

Another senator, Anthony C. Beilenson from Beverly Hills called the bill "a bad joke."

Book Review-- The Black Man Yesterday, Now

By Jim Browning

The despair, indignation, and suffocation of slavery, as evoked from the writings of people who themselves were slaves, is the basis for this latest addition to Black literature as brilliantly chronicled by noted Black author Julius Lester.

Lester has pieced together several original works dealing with slavery to transform the realities of another era with the stark nakedness and frankness of the Afro-American today.

TO BE A SLAVE by Julius Lester (Dial Press $3.95)

Most of the passages in the book are written by slaves, but some space is given to the influences of the "Establishment."

Thomas Jefferson said in 1772 "that blacks ... are certainly inferior to whites, in the endowments of both mind and body."

Lester comments, "Blacks in this country had little at their disposal with which to combat such fanatical ideas."

"What could they point to as proof that they were not inferior? Nothing except an innate feeling within, that it wasn't true."

But there were also those who had no such feelings.

Edward Taylor, a slave, wrote, "I thought folks made the stars, sun, and everything on the earth. I knowed of nothing but to drive and beat all the time."

Lester further comments, "it was ... that a system of slavery evolved that was more cruel and total than almost any other system of slavery devised by one group of men against another.

"The slavery instituted by the founders of America has few comparisons for its far-reaching cruelty ..."

Drugs Not Desirable

(Continued from Page 1)

person into a monster or a genius."

Dr. Fort would like a social policy that includes the demise of drug usage out of criminal law and bring control of drug usage by a combination of many steps; reduce availability of drugs, halting advertisements of legal drugs (cigarettes and alcohol); prohibitive taxation, self-examination on human values rather than on the value of the drug, and rehabilitory programs.

With a stunning conclusion, "no drugs are deslrable or necessary for man's survival," Dr. Fort ended his oration on drugs.

CINEMA SCOPE

'Sweet Charity'-Fancy Feet; 'Monterey Pop'-Soul on Film

By Ray Gin

The film version of the highly successful Broadway musical "Sweet Charity" is enveloped into the screen's danciest syndrome since the zesty, shuffling days of the 1930s and the accompanying fancy footwork of the Busby Berkeley and Broadway Golddigger dancers.

The outstanding choreographic feats accomplished in "Sweet Charity" compensates much for the somewhat belabored and schmaltzy story line about a downtrodden, dime-a-dance hostess (Shirley McLaine) who, in her need to love and be loved, becomes an easy "push-over" for every Tom, Dick and Harry she encounters.

Director Bob Fosse has successfully jostled and integrated a tasteful cauldron of contemporary camera techniques (the montage and the frozen frame), meticulously rehearsed and imaginatively conceived dance numbers, and a memorable score that satisfies both the eye and the ear. The spectrum of colors in each frame are vivid.

To say that the saga of Charity Hope Valentine suffers in comparison to its source, Federico Fellini's film classic "Nights of Cabiria," is really to state one's own preference for one form over another. "Cabiria" was a simple but haunting piece of drama while "Charity" is an elaborate and brassy example of the musical genre. Both forms differ in intent and framework. The musical comedy has reached an established form that has its goals in light entertainment and audience amiability.

Director Fosse, working within the context of the traditional form, has added a contemporary scope with his addition of unique photographic tricks that has its roots in the works on the "now" director, Richard Lester. Fosse has improvised some dandy footwork for such show-stopper tunes as "Hey Big Spender," "If My Friends Could See Me Now," "I'm a Brass Band," and the irrelevant and if not irreverent, "Rhythm of Life."

Also from the current film "music bag" is D. A. Pennebaker's record of the June, 1967 Monterey International Pop Festival, "Monterey Pop." The film, with an earthshaking 4-track stereophonic sound, generates an electrifying AC-DC sensation that is not to be forgotten.

If you are not a folk-rock enthusiast — as I find a dreary, monotonous tone to the overall sound — it is likely you'll be a surprised convert to the folk-rock cult at the end of the film. "Monterey Pop" dwells on the distinctive attributes of each performer by using rhythmic close-up angles and a well-structured sound system. The end product is a series of polished vignettes showing the many perfected artists at work.

Shirley McLaine gyrates as sweet, "Sweet Charity."

Those of you who remember Murray Lerner's "Festival," the fantastic film record of the Newport Jazz Festival, will find fault in "Monterey Pop" because it does not emit a definable spirit or mood of the overall festival. Instead, the film focuses more on the performer and his performance rather than the mystique surrounding the festival itself.

I found myself applauding unconsciously at the expert renditions by Janis Joplin and Big Brother and the Holding Company, Otis Redding, and Ravi Shankar. Although I found myself deeply engrossed in the film, my experience seemed rather incomplete in contrast to the reactions of others in the audience. The participants of the show I attended, were high on "grass" and "acid," grooved and reveled with much more enthusiasm and involvement towards the screen's projected figures than the straight attendants.

Ethnic Books

The San Francisco Board of Education has approved 54 new books for use in the ethnic studies program by a vote of 5 to 2 last week.

Two of the new books are James Baldwin's "Go Tell It On the Mountain" and Eldridge Cleaver's "Soul On Ice."

David Sanchez, who had voted against the proposed books, criticized the board members for not including books by other minority groups rather than just those by Black authors.

PEANUTS REPRODUCTION GRANTED BY UNITED FEATURES SYNDICATE AND CHARLES SCHULTZ CARTOON BY MARY LEE

Students Model Afro-American Fashions

Dean Edna Pope wos the sponsor of the unique Afro Foshion show.

Cheryl Baugh strides to become the Top Model of the show.

Denise Purefoy, runner-up, in on exceptionol notive; African attire.

Doris Goodwin modeling a new roge, the bore midriff, top ond ponts outfit.

Lynette Janks shows a floir for the Africon print smock.

(photos by Sam Woo)

Women's News

Make Your Own Lamp, and Cheap!

By Rita Carrol

For those of you who are tired of reading by candlelight (not to mention the condition of your eyes) and cannot afford to buy a new lamp, why not make your own lamp, cheap?

With the various types of electrical lamp fixtures available today and their adaptability, almost any object may be made to serve as a lamp base: old pieces of statuary, old vases, even old pickle bottles if they are large enough.

The manager of the local bowling alley will gladly give you a used bowling pin which can be cut down about two inches from the top making the shape unrecognizable. Simply drill a hole in the top and insert a special kind of electrical fixture in it, the standard type of fixture made for use in converting china vases into table lamps. The bottom piece is fixed to the bottom of the bowling pin by means of a large three-inch wood screw.

If a color is desired, then the pin can be covered with one of the quick-drying enamels that come in pastel shades and that do not reveal brush marks. Such a lamp, with a nice shade, will sell for $75 in New York and can be made for $5 or less.

Many other objects can be used for a base for a lamp such as a large empty grapefruit-juice can filled with concrete to give it weight. This can be sprayed or painted and placed on a circular piece of wood. This type of base, with a shade, may sell for $90.

Old shades are piled high in the junk shops and second-hand stores. Some of the shapes may not satisfy the buyer entirely, but there is always a new shape to be had with the aid of a pair of pliers or perhaps wire nippers and a soldering iron.

Coverings may be made of a number of things: fabrics, sheet plastic, paper, or even sheet metal. When fabric is used something is needed on which to fasten it to the wire frame. This may also be true with the plastic sheet or heavy paper. Such a foundation is built on wire frames by simply wrapping cloth tape around them. The tape should be wound in places as tightly as possible, and the shade attached to it by ordinary needle and thread. To prevent the thread from showing, it can later be covered with any kind of tape, paper, fabric or plastic in keeping with the decorative scheme on the shade.

The very heavily oiled paper sold in the paint stores for the making of stencils will make wonderful shade material. This can be sprayed with one of the newer enamels in a light attractive color.

Recipe For Single Girls

By Lavine Lee

You beat your brains out studying for that Physics test (or another test), and you got a D. It's really blowing your mind.

You think one good turn deserves another so you decide to do your instructor a big favor and beat his brains out. After all, even the Bible says "an eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth," right?

But now that you have the brains - what are you going to do with them? That's what I'm here for. But you're going to have to pretend that they're calf brains.

We're going to have scrambled calf brains for breakfast.

1 lb. calf brains
1 cup butter
4 eggs, beaten
1 teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
1 tablespoon Worcestershire
2 tablespoons tomato catsup
Parsley

Prepare brains as follows: cover with cold water and let soak 30 minutes, then wash thoroughly and remove as much of the membrane as possible. Drain and simmer 15-20 minutes in vinegar water (1 tablespoon vinegar to each pint water). Drain and cool in cold water. Then handling carefully, remove any remaining membrane. Heat butter in heavy skillet, combine brains with next five ingredients and cook like Scrambled Eggs. (The Modern Family Cook Book)

Cheryl Baugh Receives Highest Title In Afro-American Fashion Show

Cheryl Baugh was chosen top model of the year along with Denise Purefoy as runner-up, in last Thursday's unique AWS fashion show, entitled "Afro-American Fashions of Today."

Models displayed the African print fashions to the beat of Conga drums, which turned Smith Hall into an exotic atmosphere.

For the first time in the history of AWS fashion shows, male models were present and participated in the show. They were clad in African-print cotton shirts and stole the show.

Not only were there male models, but men viewers were scattered throughout the hall captivated by the colorful event as were the women.

Everyone was awed by the beautiful Afro-American fashions. Brilliant multi-color silk mini dresses as well as colorful bell-bottom pant-suits seemed to dominate the show.

Casual Aires, one of the stores providing the fashions, presented the latest in fashions that every American girl would enjoy wearing. Again color predominated. Colorful pants-suits, some mod hip huggers, with midriff tops and bell bottoms were shown.

Soft easy-wearing shifts with pleated skirts, and petite pantdresses with colorful sashes seemed to be the message for the gals who were fashion conscious.

The decorations which were authentic helped to enliven the theme of the fashion show. They were gaily displayed on the table for all to view.

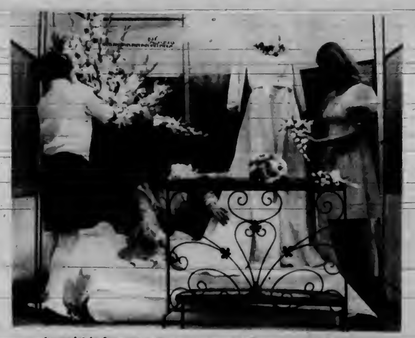
It is hoped that in the future there will be a great effort to have men models as well as women models participate in more AWS fashion shows.

—L.S.

What is Happening To Today's Woman?

By Lynda Sandstrom

Women are always concerned with what the male specie expects of them and just what a man looks for in a woman.



The question that was put to some male students and instructors on the campus was, what is happening to today's woman? Their response to this question was favorable.

Victor Hanna, a pre-law major, stated that "I don't think that women are too aggressive today." When asked what he looks for in a woman, he said, "personality and beauty just about covers everything." He feels that women aren't losing their femininity.

A photography major Sam Woo, says that he likes women to act feminine. "Some girls don't act feminine and I feel that every girl should. I like mini skirts and the fashions of today; they are very enjoyable." He feels that girls who have nice figures should wear mini skirts and the latest in fashions. "Girls with figures not appropriate for these kinds of fashions should not wear them, because they lose their charm."

Dan St. John, a physics instructor, stated, "I like women's fashions today and I think that women should always have their skirts above the knee. Women aren't losing their femininity." He also added that housewives should be encouraged to become career women after the kids have reached a certain age. "A woman would go nuts if she stayed home and cleaned house all day especially if she is a college woman."

Wedding Bells

June bids for marriage vows ore being accepted now.

Photo by Samuel Woo

Labelled And Recorded

Randy Newman Emerges as Talented Singer-Writer

By Martin J. Arbunich

Randy Newman is the marvelous singer and writer who's kept his voice behind bars for the past seven years while writing hit songs for such well-known artists as Eric Burdon, Alan Price, Petula Clark, Blood, Sweat, and Tears, and others.

Randy's singing debut ("Creates Something New Under the Sun", Warner Bros.) is an enjoyable LP with a fine batch of songs highlighted by one of the most unusual and original voices around.

Warner Brothers hit the nail squarely on the head in one of their recent advertisements for Newman: "Once you get used to it, his voice is really something." Randy Newman has the king of voice you'll either choke on or laugh at the first couple of listenings. (I'm a member of the latter group.) Somewhere around the fifth spin the album blossoms, and the soul of Randy Newman, in the midst of all the peculiarities of his voice, surfaces. From that point on it never seems to lose its inherent luster.

Newman's voice lacks beauty (at least beauty as we know it), and he is more off key than on. However, he puts these imperfections, to good use, not as if they were handicaps but as if they were advantages. Coupled with his superb and appropriate songwriting (he wrote all the tracks), the imperfections seem to be effective as a vehicle of expression.

"Love Story" is the first track, a number about a young couple that dares to map out the years of their married life, not overlooking their dying days in Florida where "we'll play checkers all day until we pass away." It's an attractive piece "We'll have a kid/ Or maybe we'll rent one/ He's got to be straight/ We don't want a bent one") which Newman sings in such a naive manner that you know it's got to be a put-on.

The soul of Randy Newman can really be felt on "Living Without You" and "I Think He's Hiding." The former is a love song with a lot of guts and an introductory lyric ("The milk truck hauls the sun up/ And the paper hits the door") that paints a beautiful opening picture. In the latter, Newman drags along, holding the melancholic mood down nicely, and he pours on the feeling and sorrow as if his life depends on it.

There's a very good commercial number included called "The Beehive State." Randy tries something different here, applying an up-tempo rhythm, and it comes off very well. The lyrics are ridiculous — intentionally so, no doubt — about Kansas and Utah ("our friendly beehive state"), and Newman's vocalizing twists what appears to be a salute to the two states into an indirect put-down.

The classic Newman number "I Think It's Going to Rain Today," a song which has been recorded by many, is sung here in a solemn performance by the author.

The most interesting, and certainly the most expressive, track is the finale called "Davy the Fat Boy." It starts off as a sad song and Randy inches along in a sour, grieving voice that delivers the lyrics beautifully. The mood changes sharply, and we discover that Randy has put us on again. His wit is laughable here ("Isn't he round? What do he weigh, folks?") and his performance is a dramatic one, playing the part of a friend who's trying to get Fat Davy socially accepted by having people guess his (Davy's) weight. It's quite a number.

Randy Newman is unlike anything you've ever heard before. He'll sound ugly at first—then things begin to happen.

Campus Police Have Endless Job Tagging Illegally Parked Cars

The City College campus police have a never-ending job when it comes to administering tickets to illegally parked cars in the reservoir.

According to the campus police chief, Kenneth Cottura, somewhere in the vicinity of 25 parking tickets are written out every two hours for illegally parked cars.

Automobiles of all makes and models use the reservoir. They range from "pigrunners" (Volkswagens) to Cadillacs to campers. To be allowed to park in the reservoir, each of these cars is required to have a sticker placed on the lower corner of the front windshield (these stickers are available through the campus police office located in C-120).

Of course, there are those who try to escape having to display a sticker. They soon become one of the 25 receiving a ticket within the two-hour range.

Students parking in the wrong parking lot or over-extending their stays in a limited zone are also presented with parking violations.

Two Students Form Talent Studio Here

Two former City College students have formed a talent development studio here in San Francisco.

The studio draws out and develops all types of talent. With experienced teachers to train singers, dancers and comedians, a fledgling entertainer can polish his latent talent.

Nan Murphy is the director of the new Talent Directors Studio, located at 230 Powell.

Frank Wolf, a former GUARDSMAN staff member and current student, is the Assistant Director. Also on the staff are Janis Koch and Jim LeGallee.

Currently T.D.S. is involved with a charity show for the Recreation Center for the Handicapped to be presented at Nourse Auditorium May 10 and 11.

For further information call the studio at 982-8232.

Mayor Alioto's Big Party

THE WAKEFUL WAITING FOR A QUAKEFUL—Alioto, Goble ond 10,000 'nuts.'

(photo courtesy S.F. Examiner)

Mayor Alioto Throws 'Faultless' Party For 'Smalltown' San Franciscan Nuts

By Barbara Hamann

Once again San Francisco, the sophisticated metropolitan city by the bay, proved that in spite of its "swinger city" title it still has the heart and spirit of a small town.

Television cameras panned over a crowd of thousands who gathered eagerly in front of City Hall last Friday spoofing the long-awaited return of the 1906 quake. They watched, still sleepy eyed, under a darkened sky as Mayor Joseph Alioto introduced a lineup of celebrities including Herb Caen, Jack Rosenbaum, Police Chief Thomas Cahill and several senior citizens who survived the 1906 holocaust.

Dr. Don Tocher, a scientist from the Earthquake Mechanism Laboratory said, "Mayor Alioto has asked me to speak today on San Francisco's faults." Meaning, of course, the famous faults that run beneath the city responsible for the quake.

Still half asleep, the crowd cheered with applause as Earthquake Magoon's dixieland band let loose with some rag-time jazz.

Some were lucky enough to make their way through the jam-packed crowd where free coffee, donuts, minestrone soup and french bread were waiting. Others brought their own coffee seasoned with a little Irish brew.

Signs towered overhead that read "Split the Earth, but Don't Split the Muffins" and "Who's Afraid of the Big Bad Quake."

Paul Speegle, advertising manager for Roos-Atkins said, as he faced the half-awakened crowd, "I'm here for the same reason you're all here — because I'm nuts!"

This commemoration may well be remembered in the eyes of those who were there, but to those who were still home in their warm beds — we were definitely nuts.

Local radio stations caught some people off guard with on-the-spot interviews, but all were more than happy to cooperate with the press, even at 5 a.m.

The Black Cowboy; 'Soul On Spurs'

By Ray Gin

Recently, several people told me of their astonishment in finding the Black man in the Old West in such films as "The Scalphunters" (Burt Lancaster and Ossie Davis) and "100 Rifles" (Jim Brown) and a t.v. show entitled "The Outcasts" (Don Murray and Otis Young). Indeed, the Black man's role in taming the western frontier has been virtually obliterated from American history records.

Many Negroes were among the many farmers and riders who poured into the western frontier after the harrowing days of the Civil War. The approximate figures show that almost 5,000 Negro cowboys rode the trails to Texas, Kansas, the Dakotas, and Colorado after the Civil War. George W. Saunders, ex-president of the Old Time Trail Drivers Asse., estimated that one-third of 35,000 cowboys who came to Texas were either Negro or Mexican.

Many came out to the West as slaves while others sought emancipation and a new life where skill was not a major criterion in finding a new place under the sun. The white and black cowboy rode together, worked at the same jobs, and slept on the same ground.

The trail crew, with a typical number of eight, always included two or three Negro cowboys. The trail bosses were usually white (although a few Negroes did run their own outfits after they became free men) and the wrangler and cook was almost always Negro.

When the Civil War concluded and the Negroes became free men, many of them carried all their possessions on their backs and moved toward the West in hope for a free farm and a span of cattle from the state government. The Negro carved sod huts and dug into them to wait out the long, cold winter and wet spring. A large portion of them were discouraged and headed back to the Old South but many stayed valiantly to leave a landmark of their presence in the West.

The Frontier became the seed of many illustrious tales about the unforgettable Negro cowboy.

Fierce loyalty to the master was evoked when George Glenn, a Negro cowboy, rode through the Chisolm Trail to Abilene to retrieve his master, R. B. Johnson's body after his death. He loaded the casket onto a wagon and rode for 42 days and nights to bring the casket to its final resting place in the family cemetery in Texas. It was a bold gesture because the trails were often threatened with volatile Indian menace and waterless deserts.

Britton Johnson, a former slave who was known for his brute strength, was considered the best shot in Texas. In 1864, a Commanche raid on his settlement found his wife and three children kidnapped. Johnson planned a reunion by entering the Indian camp and gained the tribe's confidence by volunteering to be their warrior. He made a clean escape following this.

But in 1871, when Johnson and a few other Negro cowboys were nearing their settlement, a group of 25 Commanches attacked. They fought fearlessly but were struck down. To measure Johnson's stamina, a settler later found 173 bullets near his body.

There were desperadoes in the West who were notorious for their haphazard killings. The most prominent of these was Cherokee Bill, a half breed (part Indian and part Negro). He robbed banks and trains and killed people without provocation, and whether or not his victims were armed. He died at the age of 20. When Cherokee Bill was brought before the hanging galleys in the midst of a cheering crowd, he said, "I have no last words. I came here to die — not to make a speech." An interesting historical note uncovered was that Billy the Kid rode with a band of Negroes in his rampage.

Next week Part II: Soul on Spurs.

SPORTS DESK

By Sports Editor, Phil DiCarlo

AT THE CROSSROADS

Last week we said that baseball was dying, that the division system wouldn't work and that the fans don't get turned on by baseball anymore. We might have been too hasty with our comments.

The column was actually written before the season really got going. Now we find that our interest has really perked up and that others seem to be similarly affected. Lowering the pitcher's mound and decreasing the strike were supposed to aid the hitters, thus sparking more interest for the fans. Though it's hard to figure such things out during the earlier part of a season, baseball does seem to be offering a more appealing package this year.

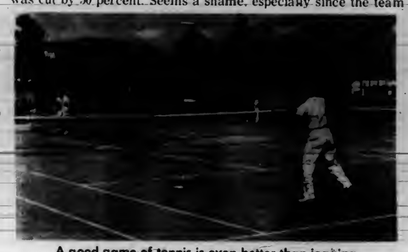
We refer not only to the many slugfests witnessed so far (the Giants extra-inning 11 to 10 loss to Cincinnati readily comes to mind), but also to the well-pitched games as well. There have been a couple of one-hitters and a no-hitter as of this writing, so no one knows what to expect when one goes to a game. This is the way baseball should be. The fact that Bill Stoneman pitched a no-hitter for an expansion team should be worth the price of admission.

GIANTS COULD BE TOUGH

San Francisco's team again looks like a winner. Second place finishers the past four years, the Giants have the best record in all of baseball during the past 10 or 11 years. Yet they have only won a single pennant in that time. With a year of experience under his belt, Bobby Bonds may become just the impetus the team needs. The team is solid from top to bottom, but just can't seem to grab the brass ring. Maybe this year??

All-State tackle, Ed Diaz. Chris Rozales photo

Across the bay, the Oakland A's are picked to win their division as are the Giants. Though they play exciting ball, for the most part, the Athletics don't seem to possess that certain quality that makes a pennant winner. We will live to see a Bay Area World Series—but who knows when.



WARRIOR BLUNDER?

This week's blunder concerns the recent National Basketball Association draft, or more correctly, the choices made by the San Francisco Warriors in that draft. Leading the LA Lakers two games to zero in the first round of the play-offs, the Warriors lost star guard Jeff Mullins to a knee injury. The local cagers proceeded to lose the next four games and the play-offs. Because the loss of Mullins seemed to hurt the Warriors so badly, and since guard Al Attles has mentioned retirment, wouldn't it have been smart to draft a top-notch backcourt player? Blessed with three fine forwards, in Rudy LaRusso, Clyde Lee and Joe Ellis, the Warriors proceeded to draft forwards Bob Portman (a former St Ignatius star) and Ed Siudut. JoJo White, the great playmaker of the U. of Kansas and the Mexico Olympics, was available at the time the Warriors picked. Maybe they think that Ron Williams, Bobby Lewis and Jimmy King can take up the slack in the future. Maybe LaRusso will retire. Who knows? We don't.

THIS AND THAT

Did you know that the college swimming team had to cancel three of their meets this year due to lack of funds? Their budget was cut by 50 percent. Seems a shame, especially since the team doesn't even have their own pool to practice in . . . For all you car buffs, there is a big rally this Friday at San Jose State. The American Institute of Industrial Engineers (AIIE) and the Royal Flush Touring Society will present "'69 Quake" starting at 6 p.m. Gathering area is the parking lot on S. 10th St., between San Fernando and San Antonio . . . Footballers from last season's fine team have begun to move onward. Joe Bell and Ralph Bayard are now at the U. of Washington. Willie Lewis and John Dyson will be playing at Arizona next fall, and Sacramento St. grabbed off George Nicholson and Gregg Jackson. All-State tackle Ed Diaz and former prep All-American Monty Consani are leaning toward USF, as is center Bill McKenna . . . Ex-CCSF cager Gene Williams was selected by Philadelphia in the second round of the NBA draft. Kentucky, of the ABA, made Williams their fifth pick. . . .

Don't like jogging but want to stay in shape? Try tennis. A fast competitive game, tennis will certainly keep you fit. San Francisco provides plenty of courts for public use too . . . Golf is another great way to exercise and enjoy yourself at the same time. Golf is the fastest growing sport in the United States today (faster than Roller Derby???) . . . We spoke too soon in our praise of the Oakland Seals. Maybe we put the hex on them. Anyway, the lost their best-of-seven play-off with LA to bring a sudden end to their season. At least little Norm Ferguson was voted Rookie-of-the-Year and selected for the Western Division All-Star Team. Teammates Ted Hampson and Carol Vadnais made the second squad . . . Skiing conditions continue excellent in all of the local resorts. Most of your favorite spots will remain open indefinitely due to the big snow falls of the past winter. Depending on the time of day and the exposure of the run, most places are ski-able all week. Mt. Shasta may stay open til mid-June.

A good game of tennis is even better than jogging. Photo by Bennie Chin

Women's Gymnastic Team Places Third At College of Marin Competition

City College's Women's Gymnastic Team finished third at an eight-college meet last week at the College of Marin.

106 young ladies from two and four-year Bay Area colleges competed for both team and individual trophies. Diablo Valley College won while San Jose State finished second in the team competition.

Little Vickie Spencer placed fifth, individually in the High Intermediate Division. Miss Spencer took a third in free exercise, a fifth in vaulting, and a seventh on the parallel bars.

Sandra Lowe finished fifth in the vaulting, and seventh in the free exercise and balance beam to capture seventh in the Lower Intermediate Division.

Others who participated at the Beginning Level were: Olga Schneider (7th All-Around), Lois Kwan, Brenda Scott (first in vaulting), Stephanie Meivin, Juanja Ross, Janice Miller, Jeanne Crabtree, Linda Redman, Dale McKenna, Donna McKenna, Cheri Richards and Pat Zamora.

Denise Barr and Stephanie Low (10th All-Around) were in the Lower Intermediates, while Sandy Hansen ranked with the higher classification.

The Guardsman SPORTS

Tracksters Come Back To Swamp San Jose CC

Rebounding off two straight losses to Merritt and Foothill, the City College Ram tracksters picked themselves off the floor to knock out a tough band of SJCC Jaguars, 87-54, on April 12.

Before five thousand empty seats at Jaguar Stadium, the Ram lungbusters again proved why they're the No. 1 distance runners in the conference. Humberto Hernandez won his first two races of the season in the one and two-mile events. He also set a new meet record of 9:35.4 in the two-mile, breaking the standard set by Jim Sullivan.

Bob Darling and Dave Power, who finished second and third in the race ALSO broke the old record with times of 9:37.6 and 9:41.8.

Vic Cary and Jim Tracy finished behind Hernandez in the one-mile, to place second and third.

Only a Jaguar second place in the 880 prevented a complete Ram sweep in the distances, as Klaus Hoffman took his usual win in the half-mile at 1:57.2.

The cindermen also had one of their better days in the sprints as Andy Watkins cracked the .10 barrier for the first time this season at 9.9. Unfortunately Watkins had the misfortune of facing Mike Miller, who turned in a 9.7. Watkins also finished second to Miller in the 220—22.1 to 22.2.

Miller also deprived the Rams of a well-deserved victory in the 440 when he overcame a big CCSF lead while running as anchor man. The Jaguars came in at 43.1 to the Rams' 43.5.

Hurdler Don Bruce took his dual wins in the 120HH and 440IH, clocking in at 15.8 and 57.0. In the 440IH Bruce defeated Dayton Evans, the younger brother of Olympic champion, Lee Evans. He overcame Evans in the last ten yards with a last gasp burst of energy at the finish line.

Evans again proved he was not his brother's equal with his performance in the mile relay. Midway through his lap he ran out of gas and was burned by Ram Bob Mathews. Mathews opened up a wide lead enabling the Rams to win the relay, 3:29.1. It was their victory in this event since the Diablo Valley meet.

In the field events Tom Clyburn took his usual victory in the long jump with a leap of 21-10½, barely edging teammate Dave Robinson, who hit the 21-9¼ mark. Clyburn also took a third in the triple jump, with a 43-3¼ effort.

Jaguar John Lepas had to set a new school record to tie Clyde Saddler, at 6-6, in the high jump.

Weightmen Jim Baldocchi and Andre Hicks tossed the discus 137-3 and 132-9, respectively, for first and second places while Brian Kennedy took a second in the shotput with a toss of 44-6.

Sports Quiz

1. Who was the only San Francisco Giant to pitch a no-hitter last season?
2. Which NBA team lost the most consecutive games?
3. Who holds the NFL single-season record for the most pass receptions?
4. Who has won the NBA's Most Valuable Player award the most times?
5. Which major league team has won the most consecutive pennants?
6. Who was the last pitcher to win 30 games in one season?

(Answers on Next Page)

Runners Smash U. S. Record

Ram distance runners Bob Darling, Jim Tracy, Humberto Hernandez and Klaus Hoffman comprise the nation's No. 1 Junior College four-mile relay team. Their record-breaking time of 18:06.5 was set at the Easter Relays hosted by Chabot.

The mark erased the year's former best of 18:14.6 set by San Diego Mesa.

In addition to the victory in the four-mile the Rams took another blue ribbon in the distance medley. Steve Jordan, Humberto Hernandez, Jim Tracy and Klaus Hoffman breezed to an easy 10:40.0 win, finishing way out in front of second-place Chabot. The Gladiators clocked in at a miserable 10:56.8 (more than 16 seconds behind CCSF!).

Bob Darling took the only individual event of the meet for the cindermen with a 15:54.5 clocking in the three-mile.

Vic Cary at the tape. Photo by Jens Protze

Merritt College, led by Warren Edmonson's flashy 21.1 220 leg, just barely managed to edge Contra Costa in the 880 relay.

The T-Birds also grabbed another win in the two-mile relay, defeating second place Chabot.

With regular season meets now concluded, the Ram runners will prepare for the hodgepodge of conference, regional and state tourneys which follow.

City College will again travel to Chabot College next Wednesday for the All-GGC trials. The big All-Conference meet is slated for the following Saturday, May 3, at San Jose's all-weather track.

Save a life— Share a pint

Ram baseball is excitement, action, and a great way to spend an afternoon. Why not head over the Southern Freeway to Balboa Park and take in a game. It's only a five-minute walk. —Photos by John Chan (Above), Richard Sandino (left) and Elaine Diwa.

BASEBALL ACTION

Rams Shutout By CSM, Face Diablo Tomorrow

Righthander John Portoni twirled a masterful five-hitter against the College of San Mateo last Tuesday afternoon, but still lost, 2-0. It was his fourth loss of the year against only one win and left the Rams in sixth place in Golden Gate Conference play with a 4-9 record.

Portoni struck out 11 batters and allowed only ONE basehit during the first six innings. The defeat marked the first time the Rams had been shutout this season.

Bulldog Barry Sbragia, the league's current leader in ERA and wins, picked up his seventh straight victory of the year. The flashy fireballer, who held the Rams to only a measly four hits, possesses a glittering 1.31 ERA.

CSM picked up its only two runs in the seventh inning when a basehit by Bill Jensen and error by rightfielder Chris Calen enabled Dave Berg to score. Tim Knapp then drove in Jensen for the final tally.

The only Ram threat came in the fifth inning when Hans Vigil and Rich Escalambre were on first and third base with only one out. But Portoni fanned and Dave Kline flew out to end the scoring opportunity.

The Rams travel to Concord for a meeting with their "cousins," the Diablo Valley Vikings, tomorrow. In the last two games with DVC, the baseballers have rocked the Vikes, 10-2 and 11-0.

GGC Standings (as of Monday, April 21)

Team	W	L
San Mateo	12	1
Chabot	11	2
Foothill	10	4
Laney	6	7
Merritt	5	9
CCSF	4	9
Diablo Valley	4	10
San Jose	3	11

DVC has a pair of good pitchers in Cliff Ballou and Dwight Adams. Ballou has an unimpressive 1-4 record, but he's fanned 34 batters, in only 38-1 3 innings, and possesses a 1.87 ERA. Adams, another strikeout artist, has 23 K's in 20-1 3 innings along with a 2.60 ERA and a 1-1 record.

In the batting department Diablo is led by Tom Duncan, a .341 hitter according to the latest stats.

The Rams got off to a bad start in league play this year, losing six of their first seven games. They allowed 42 runs while scoring only 24 themselves.

During that time the most pleasant surprise of the season was the performance of rookie hurler Rick Cole. Fresh out of Poly High School, Cole picked up two wins against Merritt, 10-4 and Diablo Valley, 11-0.

In 33 innings he has fanned 24 batters and allowed only 17 walks.

Tom Mayfield and Manny Berrios have been the club's two top batters. Berrios, a .280 hitter has knocked in 11 RBIs while Mayfield, who's batting .277, has knocked in six.

Berrios also leads the club in extra base hits with one double, two triples and a home run.

Distance Men Stunned; Rams Still Smash Glads

By Pat Chan

The long distance runners, which have been the strongest part of this year's edition of the Ram track squad, finally met their match in Chabot College last Friday afternoon. It still wasn't edition of the Ram track squad, finally met their match last Friday afternoon. It still wasn't enough to prevent City College from bulldozing past the Gladiators though, 81-55.

The Chabotians astonished the Rams by taking both a first and third in the two mile, an event which has usually been the scene for CCSF sweeps this season. Bob Darling was the only San Franciscan that managed to place, clocking in at 9:36.0 for second place.

City College received another unpleasant surprise when Thompson of Chabot edged a gutty Humberto Hernandez and Dave Power for first in the 880. Thompson clocked in at 1:59.5 to Hernandez's 2:01.8.

The Rams managed to dominate, however, in most of the other events. In the mile run, it was CCSF all the way as Klaus Hoffman, Power and Hernandez overcame an early Chabot threat and led most of the way.

The Rams also took command in the sprints as Andy Watkins took two wins in the 100 (10.0) and 220 (23.0). Jim Brooks was second in the century with a 10.2 while Steve Jordan took the silver medal in the 220.

Don Bruce won his usual 120HH victory (15.4) but was deprived of 440 IH win when coach Lou Vasquez wanted to use him in the mile relay. Chabot's Robin Little took the intermediate hurdles in 60.2, a time which Bruce, running one-legged, could have beaten.

In the field events the Rams had another big day in the triple jump, sweeping the event 1-2-3. August Berry came in first with his 42-5 leap followed closely by Bruce's 39-3¼ and Ron Van Pool's 37-2¼.

Clyde Sadler took the high jump with a 6-6, while Clyburn tied for second with 6-4.

Clyburn also took a first in the long jump with a 21-3½. Van Pool finished third at 20-1.

In the weights, Brian Kennedy tossed the shotput 46-5½ for a first place while Jim Baidocchi hurdled the discus 137-2½ for a second.

Andre Hicks took third in each event with a 39-8½ in the shot and 134-4¼ in the discus.

Paul Conroy lost his battle in the pole vault, against Bob Witt, finishing second at 13-6.

WEEKEND SCORES

SWIMMING

City College's mermen, the team without a pool, floundered hopelessly, and finished last at the Golden Gate Conference Swim Meet held last Friday and Saturday.

Foothill, which lost the conference title (to San Mateo) for the first time in that college's existence, grabbed the team title for the ninth straight year. CSM was second.

Curt Decker's squad was pretty disappointed with its performance, but gets another chance this week-end at the Northern California Meet.

Rich Glass, who last week set a new college record in the 200 yard butterfly, was probably more disappointed than most. Glass swam ten seconds slower at the Conference Meet to finish a dismal 12th.

The Ram water babies, who must go to Balboa Pool early each morning to practice, were simply no match for the league's super teams.

Diver George Smith placed 8th on the one meter board, Len Lynch set a CCSF record in the 1650 yard (almost a mile) event and Jeff Tsu finished 8th and 9th in the 200 and 100 yard breaststroke, respectively. Lynch's 21:23.5 broke the mark he had set earlier in the season.

Basketball teams would love to add Delores Pullard to their squad. The 21-year-old Louisiana gal stands 8 feet, 2 inches tall!

BASEBALL

Rain, the killer of pre-season practice, was the giver of life last week.

Losing 8 to 1 in the third inning of Thursday's game with Laney, the Rams were glad to see the rain come and wash out the contest. Getting a reprieve, the Ram nine came back on Friday to whip the Eagles, 4-2, in a game that went 15 innings.

Golfers Lose 3 by Forfeit, One to SJCC

Going from first place to the middle of the pack in one day is no easy trick, but the Ram Golf Team pulled it off last week.

Because of an infraction of conference regulations, three matches, which the Rams had won, had to be forfeited. One of the team's golfers, a transfer student, was declared ineligible, necessitating the forfeitures.

Last week, the team lost a match to San Jose City College, 23-12, at Harding Park. It would have been only the second Ram loss of the year.

Fighting a strong head wind that hampered all the players, Alameda Commuter champ, Forrest Fezler, led his team to victory with a one under par 71.

Ram Ken Kundert continued his own fine play, shooting a 74, his seasonal average. John Susko and Paul Rea came in with 77s, while Gregg Corvi used 79 strokes. Duane Cosper skied to an 82.

Coming Events

Thursday (April 24)
BASEBALL — CCSF vs. Diablo Valley Vikings, at Concord, 3 p.m.
Friday (April 25)
GOLF — CCSF vs. San Mateo, Harding Park, 1 p.m.
SWIMMING — Northern California Championships.
Saturday (April 26)
BASEBALL — CCSF vs. Foothill, Balboa Field, 11 a.m.
TRACK — Northern California Relays, at DeAnza, 10 a.m.
SWIMMING — Northern California Championships.
Tuesday (April 29)
BASEBALL — CCSF vs. Merritt, Balboa Field, 3 p.m.
GOLF — CCSF vs. Diablo Valley, Contra Costa, 1 p.m.

ANSWERS TO SPORTS QUIZ

1. Gaylord Perry pitched a no-hitter against the St. Louis Cardinals.
2. The San Francisco Warriors lost 17 games in a row during the 1964-65 season.
3. Johnny Morris of the Chicago Bears caught 93 passes in 1964.
4. Bill Russell has won the award five times.
5. The New York Yankees won 5 consecutive pennants from 1949-1953 and from 1960-1964.
6. Denny McLain won 31 games for Detroit last season.

New Careers Project Combines Work With Study

The New Careers Project is a three-year program which combines work and study, taking people without crafts or skills and making them into employable and useful citizens.

The New Careers Program began on August 15, 1967 and is one of three programs carried on by the Arriba Juntos (up together), a non-profit organization which is located at 1249 Alabama Street.

All applicants are screened by the Arriba Juntos staff and given tests which record their reactions to a given situation and their educational background. Selection of members is made after a complete physical examination.

Another requirement is that all applicants must come from a poverty area and must be in a low-income bracket.

Ben Rivera, project director, with the help of his assistant, Don Manion, has completely revised and updated the program and laid out a new policy format which is slanted toward a career work program instead of the old concept of a scholarship program.

Programs such as New Career deal primarily with persons who have not been able to negotiate the middle class educational structure. This is due to the fact that varied learning styles of individuals are not dealt with in the standard approach to education. There is little relevancy between education received and tasks performed.

Although the majority of the new careerists are Latin-Americans, the program is multiracial. Black Americans, American Indians, Orientals, Filipinos, Chinese, and Caucasians are in the program.

By bringing agency services closer to community needs, this program takes full advantage of true career mobility and thinking through necessary linkages with educational and training facilities.

For the first time in City College history, instructors will be going into the Mission District for an 11-week summer school session for the New Careers program.

Tact Squad?

—photo by Glenn Graham

Conveying Ideas Key To Experimental College

The Experimental College is alive on this campus not as a reaction to the established college but as a positive community-oriented approach to experimental education.

Education is not a passive process, it is active and must involve participation in a task rather than merely absorbing facts and data. The Experimental College claims that if people (students, faculty and administrators) work with each other in these ways, the finest quality education will occur.

The Experimental College was organized to create a new way of learning and teaching. Students and faculty members can organize a group and set their own methods. All participants have the freedom to think individually.

Students and instructors make the Experimental College what it is. The funetion of this college is for students and instructors to convey ideas, which is the most effective way of communicating.

No grades or credits are given in the Experimental College. Students have an opportunity to participate in the learning experience out of self interest. This college is a forerunner to where education is headed.

Students are trustworthy, have valid ideas and are creative in this program.

In the Experimental College catalogue there is an introduction which reads: "You've experienced registration number 12,899, sitting in the second seat in the fourth row, dull subject matter, duller instructors, rules, rules, rules! Well, why not experience something you can be? Join us in ourselves being alive!"

H&R Department Receives Grant

Thanks to Uncle Sam, the City College Hotel and Restaurant Foundation has a new title and a lump of money this semester.

The H&R Foundation was established as the "Western Region teacher training center for high school teachers designated to teach courses in the hospitality industry."

The appointment was made by the United States Office of Education and along with the title came a Federal grant.

The grant will be used by Project FEAST (Food Education and Service Training) which offers workshops at the College during the summer.

Final Concert A 'Happening' Next Tuesday

The final concert of the concert and lecture series offered here will be a "musical happening" presented by the West Coast New Music Ensemble, on Tuesday, April 29, during College Hour, (11 a.m.) in the College Theater.

Titled "You Know?", this musical piece and lecture features two performers—Howard Hersh, director of music at KPFA-FM radio, and Robert Moran, a bay area composer and pianist.

Moran has just returned from a concert tour of Austria and Sweden. He teaches composition at the San Francisco Conservatory of Music.

The strueture of "You Know?" is open and depends upon the selection of musical and theatrical events by each of the participants, all regulated through a circuit board by the "conductor."

This work was performed by the Ensemble at the University of California in La Jolla in January of this year and recently at the San Jose State festival of the Avante Garde.

The Ensemble has received invitations to festivals of New Music in both Mexico City and Athens, Greece.

Hiring of New Instructors Involves Tedious Process

Despite the fact that over 1000 applications are submitted to the college yearly, the selection of qualified instructors must still undergo a rather formal procedure involving a departmental hiring committee.

A notice of departmental job vacancies, the number of openings reached by a consultation between the administration and department chairman, is publicized nationally each year. Qualified hopefuls submit their applications to the college.

The department chairman then appoints an interviewing committee, representing the range of philosophies, attitudes, and special bodies of knowledge in the department. The committee establishes a set of criteria on which applicants must follow to acquire a teaching position. This hiring committee evaluates all applications, conducts interviews, and submits a list twice the number of openings to the appropriate dean or co-ordinator.

This list of probably instructors is called the "list of preferred candidates" and these applicants are given priority in the available positions in their qualified department. The preferred candidates are then given the task of being a long-term substitute which, after the regular faculty members and continuing year-to-year staff have been considered, will inevitably extend to being a day instructor.

The hiring committee will evaluate the work of the new appointee by making classroom visits or procuring a written evaluation from the participating students. From this the committee will recommend a note of retention or dismissal to the administration. If dismissal is asked for, members of the committee must provide documentation. But if retention is stated, the recommendation for hiring is forthcoming.

For this coming September, a total of 30 new positions with an additional call for 50 instructors will be initiated. This is in keeping with the college's policy of maintaining one teacher for every 23 students.

City College Grad Receives Art Award

Marjorie Close, a former City College student, has received the President's award for a painting, "Basket with Onions" at the 1969 Grant National Exhibition of the American Artists Professional League in New York.

A graduate of University of California, Mrs. Close came to City College as a grandmother in 1954 and began to study oil painting under the direction of Franchon Mead, who was then in the Art Department.

For the last three years, Mrs. Close has been the President of the Society of Western Artists.

As a student of CCSF, Mrs. Close was afraid that her ideas might be outdated, because of her age. But according to Mr. Evan Ecke of the Art Department, Mrs. Close was one of the most inventiye students he ever had.

"Basket with Onions" will be on display through April 27 at the Lever House in New York.

The show includes more than 200 works by members of the Artists Professional League.

—J.E.

THE VIEW OF DEATH

The eternal place of rest. Earth. Shall be the one and only one for all of us as kings, presidents, good or bad. We shall all reside in the eternal hall of our environment, for here and after generations, with no social distinctions.

Renato Larin

'Kwitchyerkikin'

"Quit your kickin" is the theme of the photo display near the Cloud Hall administrative offices this week.

La Raza States Opinions

led to actions taken at different colleges throughout the country, we feel strongly in agreement with the principle which they are basing their actions on. That is, the manslaughter in Vietnam. Mostly because 20 per cent of those people over there are our people. I mean, we're getting killed for nothing. For a country we can't believe in. For a country that doesn't represent us. For a country that doesn't sympathize with our ideology or our feelings as human beings. For a country that doesn't accept us as people.

Which country poses the greatest challenge to North American exploitation?

A: Mexico.

CASTILLO: Cuba. In Latin America Cuba is the vanguard of the liberation movement, and is the model the Latin American countries are going to have to adapt to.

Will LA RAZA have a voice in selecting the authors to be hired in the new Latin American literature courses?

MARCOS: Once we have the right faculty, they will determine it.

Q: I understand you're planning a LATIN WEEK from May 12 through the 16th. What do you have in mind?

MARCOS: An art show in Library. We're trying to book the TEATRO CAMPESINO. We'll have tacos and frijoles. Mariachis.

Q: Who are some of the persons LA RAZA looks up to?

MARCOS: We respect all revolutionaries. Tijerina. Cesar Chavez. Che Guevara. Sandino.

Q: What is your numerical strength here at City?

CASTILLO: Out of the 550 Latinos that we have here at City College we have approximately 330 who are members of LA RAZA UNIDA. Of these, 95 are actively involved. There are perhaps ten spokesmen.

Q: Does anybody have a concluding remark?

MARCOS: Viva la causa de nuestra gente! —Marc Kovacs

CCSF Blood Drive Successful

Not just anyone could give blood—donors were required to have medical check first.

Some students didn't let donating a pint of blood interfere with their studies.

Students & Faculty Turn Out in Large Numbers

By Tom Graham

The City College Blood Drive, which was sponsored by the Inter-Fraternity Council on Thursday and Friday of last week in Statler Wing, recorded the largest turnout for blood donations in the college's history.

Over 400 pints of blood were donated by students, faculty members and administrators.

Ed Lew, publicity chairman, was responsible in large part for the success of the drive. A $50 grant was given to Lew by the Retailers Community Relations Committee for publicity expenses. A special thanks also goes to Ray Tannehill for publicizing the event on his news program.

PRIZES

The 400 prizes given away included: Warner Bros. albums, linen cloth, calendars, a tape deck, cologne, golf balls, tickets to Mr. D's, sweat-shirts, coffee mugs, tool kits, tattoo kits, 300 single records, a hot dog roaster, a carpenter's kit, tickets to A.C.T., plus posters and pens.

Refreshments were served before and after blood donations compliments of KFRC radio station.

KEN KNIGHT

A need for blood arose for Ken Knight, a student here, when he discovered in June that he had a kidney infection. Ken spent much of his time this past year in and out of an artificial kidney machine. Last week he underwent a kidney transplant operation. His mother donated one of her kidneys and luckily his body accepted it. Standing by just in case, however, was Gil Kroger, a fraternity brother of Ken's here at City College. Ten pints of blood were needed for Ken's operation and thanks to donors he's alive today. Both Ken and his mother are in satisfactory condition at U.C. hospital.

IT'S NOT TOO LATE

Those students who were unable to donate during the Blood Drive here may still contribute to the college blood bank any time during the year by giving at the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank.

Ken Knight has one of his mother's kidneys now. The transplant operation was a success.

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Journalism Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 68 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—WEDNESDAY, APRIL 30, 1969 NUMBER 9

Students Motivated To Work On Their Own In Coil Program Here

By Rita Carroll

COIL, the Center Of Independent Learning, is presently in full operation after a one-semester pilot period last fall.

Dean Jules Fraden, chairman of the Curriculum Committee, recommended the organization of such a center three years ago. The center was finally started under the initiation of Fraden and Dean Jack Aldrich.

The prime reason this program was organized was to help those students who were motivated, to work on their own. COIL provides backup or basic material to improve the background of various subjects for the students.

Eugene Roberts, who acts in a supervising capacity, was approached to work on this project and select most of the material.

Material is segregated into units so students can get exactly what they need without spending unnecessary time searching for the material. Students may use the material for two hours during the day or overnight by checking it out at 4 p.m. or for the weekend by checking it out on Friday afternoon.

Approximately 150-200 students use COIL daily, depending upon midterms. Hilda Wolf, who also is a dedicated COIL worker, stated that they are

(Continued on Page 8)

Those who collected the course evaluation forms also answered questions concerning the project.

Photo by Jerry Warren

Course Evaluation Week Ends

Approximately 1500 students participated last week in the Instructor-Course Evaluation Project here at City College.

With an average of six instructors and courses evaluated on each form, a total of 9000 evaluations were made by the students. The project is intended to provide students with an objective analysis of the many courses and their accompanying instruetors offered at the college. With this information, the student will be able to choose the specific course and instructor according to his need.

The results of the evaluation will be published towards the end of the present semester. The lithographic booklet may procure expenses that will result in a minimal charge to the student.

Ethnic Studies To Offer Major in Afro History

By Ray Gin

The college's newly created Ethnic Studies Program is slated for the upcoming fall semester and will be the first of its kind among the many junior colleges in the state, to offer a major in Afro-American Studies, according to Assistant Dean of Instruction, Jack Aldridge.

A student who completes a major in Afro-American Studies before July 1, 1970 and receives an Associate of Arts Degree will be able to apply and be considered for a provisional secondary teaching credential in Afro-American studies.

At the present stage, the college offers more specifically created ethnic courses than any other junior college in California. The screening and interviewing of possible instructors for these courses is now in process. Aldridge revealed that there is a definite shortage in the recruitment of qualified instructors because of competition from other colleges who are setting up their own ethnic studies curriculum.

The curriculum in Afro-American studies, offered by the Department of Afro-American Studies, will comprise an extensive lineup of courses relating to the Black man. Within the realm of Black artistry, such courses as Music 23: "Afro-American Musical Traditions," "Primitive Dance," "Swahili 1," and Drama 30: "Introduction to Black Theater" will be offered. Examples of Black drama are produced periodically through the Drama Department and credit will be extended to these productions.

In addition, previously initiated courses in English, Black Poetry and Prose, will be carried over into the new curriculum. The sociological and historical reaches of the Negro will be explored through such courses as Anthropology 36: "The Afro-American in the U.S.," History 38: "South in U.S. History," History 48: "African Civilizations," Political Science 7.48: "Government and Political Life in Africa," and

(Continued on Page 8)

New Courses Scheduled for Fall Semester

Orthopedic Assisting and Medical Records Technician are just two among many new courses slated for the upcoming fall semester here at City College.

The two-year course in Medical Record technology includes a basic knowledge of medical and anatomical terminology; ethical and medico-legal aspects of record-keeping; supervision of personnel; preparation of material for data processing and tabulating data for research.

A brand new course in Astronomy entitled Astronomy 14: "Exploring the Universe with Great Ideas of Modern Astronomy" will be taught in a seminar-discussion-lecture format and will encompass the most important developments in 20th century astronomical thought.

An exclusively oral training course entitled French 11, "Conversational French" will be offered to develop and build a vocabulary, improve pronunciation and increase facility in speaking and understanding French.

Music 19: "Piano Ensemble and Repertoire," an extensive study in four-hand, two-piano, and solo literature performance from all stylistic periods, and Music 5A-5B: "Composition Workshop," a course in which students analyze and use 20th century styles and techniques in music, are two course additions to the Music Department.

These new additions will further expand an already growing academic curriculum.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Weekly Publication of the Students in the Journalism Department of City College of San Francisco

Thomas O. Graham, Editor

184

Vo. 68, No. 9 WEDNESDAY, APRIL 30, 1969 Page 2

Campus Disarmament

ARMED student dissidents at Cornell University carried their demands too damn far this time.

Yet faculty members and administrators allowed themselves to be pushed around by these terrorists. They think that by relenting they have avoided violence.

A few weeks ago they made a decision that they felt was in the best interests of their university. Now, all of a sudden, they have reversed their decision by dropping the charges against those students who participated in earlier campus disturbances. This is evidentally what the hoodlums demanded, amnesty, not only for their rabble-rousing friends, but for themselves also, for taking over one of the buildings on campus.

With the growing trend toward liberalization on colleges across the nation, Cornell has gone one step further by sanctioning gun toting on their campus.

According to newspaper reports, "they left the building that they had been occupying carrying rifles and shotguns, many wearing bandoleers of shells slung over their shoulders. Others carried broomsticks with knives wired bayonet-like on the end."

One of the spokesmen for the group issued the ultimatum, "We only leave now with the understanding the university will carry out the agreement reached. Failure to do so will result in further confrontation."

At first the faculty and administration refused to let in saying that "to reverse the decision under coercion and threat of violence would endanger the future of the university."

The threat of renewed violence, however, was apparently enough.

In the past many protests, demonstrations, strikes, or what have you, have been successful in obtaining their goal without the threat of violence. But lately bombs and firearms have crept into college life.

The reversal of the university's decision on disciplinary actions only proves that "might makes right" regardless of who's right.

The faculty and administration of Cornell University compromised academic freedom by yielding to threats.

Louria's 'Drug Scene' Looks At Illegal Drug Use in U.S.

By Jim Browning

THE DRUG SCENE by Dr. Donald B. Louria (McGraw-Hill $5.95)

In "The Drug Scene," Donald Louria attempts to present a comprehensive and extensive view of illegal drug use in the U.S., Britain and Sweden, along with a consideration of the social conditions that appear to favor it.

Louria contends that drug addiction is attributed in a general way to various social influences, among the poverty, alienation, the decay of the family, sexual maladjustment, and a "rudderless society."

"The leadership of this country at every level is clearly dominated," Louria says, "by men of limited ability and restricted imagination."

Louria contends that users of illegal drugs be punished by making possession a serious criminal offense. He further suggests that first and second violators be punished "constructively" by assigning the convicted drug user to a local anti-poverty program.

While the author shows concern over the severity of present drug penalties, he appears indifferent to the implications of making criminals of millions of persons simply because they have "undesirable personal habits."

To Louria "... it seems unfair to punish the purveyor but not the buyer who encourages and supports the seller's criminal activities."

Surely the limited facilities of our jails, courts, and prisons can be put to better use than that of processing or housing people who engage in practices, which are mainly injurious to the person himself. Louria neglects to consider the adverse effects on the individual and society of needless criminal prosecutions, effects that are probably more serious than those of any drug.

He emphasizes that community rejection of the drug-user virtually guarantees the failure of rehabilitative efforts, but at the same time he advocates a program of criminal prosecution which makes such hositility all but inevitable.

Guardsman Staff

(The Guardsman is the weekly publication of the students in the journalism department of City College of San Francisco. It is published each Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacations. The opinions expressed in the columns and editorials are those of the individual writers and not necessarily those of the Guardsman, the department or the college. Editorial office, 206, Science Hall, telephone 587-7272, ext. 246.)

SPRING 1969

EDITOR IN CHIEF ... TOM GRAHAM

Managing Editor ... Barbara Hamann
Feature Editor ... Boku Kodama
News Editors ... Jack Ruiz, Randy Flynn
Sports Editor ... Phil DiCarlo
Editorial Assistants: Rita Carroll, Lavine Lee, Lynda Sandstrom.
Reporters: Patrick Chan, Gerry Engler, Ray Gin, Marc Kavacs, Jack Ruiz.
Photographers: Eugene Wong, Chief; Jules Classens, Bert Flowers, Antony Raggadio, Jerry Warren, Earl Williams, Samuel Woo.

Route S.F.

The Golden Gate Linkage

By Gerald R. Engler

The Golden Gate Bride, in its infancy, had almost no reason for being; it connected San Francisco with a few sparsely settled suburbs and a vast vacation land.

The bridge was not built out of need, but because the people wanted it and they were willing to hock their own properties to get it. What they got was a bridge that was probably the world's most beautiful and certainly the world's best loved.

On June 14, 1846, Captain John Fremont declared California's independence. While on a trip to Northern California, Fremont named the mile wide entrance to San Francisco Bay the Golden Gate.

Richard J. Welch, on the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, on November 12, 1918, introduced a resolution ordering a site study for the Golden Gate Bridge.

Shocking effects of the Great Depression were beginning to strangle the economy of the San Francisco Bay Area when, in 1930, people in six California counties were asked to heap a $35,000,000 mortgage on their properties to finance the Bridge.

Bay Area conservatives declared that to borrow so much at such a time to build a bridge that probably could not pay its own way was the height of economic irresponsibility.

On June 29, 1933, the Marin pier was turned over to the Bridge District as the span's first completed unit.

To prevent accidents, engineer Joseph B. Strauss instituted the most stringent safety precautions in the history of bridge-building.

The Grand celebration began on May 26, 1937, with the arrival of official caravans from as far north as Alaska, from as far south as Guatemala. There was time to play; the bridge was opened to traffic on the eve of the long Memorial Day weekend and for everyone the opening ..fiesta offered something.

"The Bridge that couldn't be built."
Guardsman Photo by Samuel Woo

Build a bridge across the Golden Gate, opposers said and you will impede movements of the U.S. Fleet, but during the war years there were no reports of attack or sabotage. In June 1946, a Japanese torpedo was found buried in the sand of the bay's entrance, only 200 feet west of the bridge.

To hundreds of thousands of soldiers returning from the Pacific, the Golden Gate was home. Its tall twin towers were the first signs of America glimpsed by those returning from battles.

The Golden Gate Bridge today has changed in only one form perhaps and that change is the new one-way method of toll pay

Pope Asks For World Peace

The April 17th issue of the Monitor, the official newspaper of the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of San Francisco reported that Pope Paul VI referred to wars being fought in Nigeria, the Middle East and Vietnam as "three atrocious wounds" to the very peace that Christ bestowed on the world after his resurrection.

During his Sunday talk (April 13) to a crowd gathered in St. Peter's Square, the Pope recalled Christ's words: "Peace, peace be with you."

The article went on to say that the Pope said that the word "peace" is Christ's word "and we will repeat and repeat it often because there is always need for peace." Amen, brothers.

Contact Lens

Which Country Presents Greatest Threat?

Compiled by Lavine Lee
Photos by Ken Batiloro

Bill Rayhill, General Education Major—One big threat to the U.S. is the U.S. itself. I believe you cannot interact with other nations effectively until you are stable from within. By this I mean supplying the demands of the majority of the people and keeping the government aware of these demands. When this is accomplished, our goals are reached.

Rich Heintz, Foreign Relations Major—All the countries in South America because the students down there are infiltrated with communism. Through South America, the U.S. will be invaded by the Communists. It's already in Cuba. From there it will proceed up north. Our country will have to do what it can to obtain the high standards of Americanism.

Ken Batiloro, Political Science Major—North Korea poses the biggest threat to the U.S. What with the Pueblo incident and the reconnaissance plane that was shot down, it is time for the U.S. to act. We can no longer allow fourth rate nations to intimidate us without repercussion. We must take a stand before the U.S. is humbled by these nations.

David Shane, 'Everything' Major—The U.S. represents a threat to itself. All countries are the same; men think they are different. Capitalism is the same as communism; men think it is different. Both strive for material gain. But everything exists without men thinking about it. Why do men think—things that exist will continue to do so.

Frank Burtnett, General Education Major—Viet Nam, indirectly, because it's the testing ground for the formation of U.S. policy. It will influence most of our foreign policies in the future. If we blow the war in Viet Nam, we'll blow it everywhere else in the world Communism will take over Viet Nam. The great loss of men represents a threat to the U.S. also.

Sam Woo, Photography Major—The U.S. represents the greatest threat to itself. It is involved in so many problems so far away from its homeland (for example: China, Korea, Vietnam, Laos). These don't involve the U.S. directly. The U.S. should do something about its poverty problems. We should worry about our problems before we worry about someone else's.

Earthquake

Those who laughed at the rumors of earthquakes in California this year were given a jolt earlier this week when a quake registering between 5.25 and 6 on the Richter Scale rocked areas of Southern California.

Teaching Assisting Offered: Opportunity To Be Involved

By Lavine Lee

Teacher Assisting is one of the many semiprofessional curriculums offered on this campus. It gives the student who wants to major in education, but can't afford to or does not want to spend the time in a state college or university, the opportunity to be involved in the teaching profession.

It is a two-year course which is designed to train students for jobs as assistants to prekindergarten and elementary school instructors or to elementary school instructors in charge of classes for handicapped children.

This program includes field training through work experience. Students who complete any one field in this curriculum with a final average grade of C or higher receives the Certificate of Proficiency in Teacher Assisting. The Department of Teacher Assisting makes a special effort to find employment for students who receive this certificate.

The program in prekindergarten assisting includes instruction in prekindergarten procedures and practices, nature study, and the child and family.

Students who complete this program are qualified to assist instructors in public, private and nursery schools, head start and children's centers, and pre-kindergarten programs.

These graduates have such duties as performing clerical work, preparing bulletin board displays, receiving children at the start of a school day, assisting in supervising children before and during meals, in playing areas and during field trips and excursions, and in distributing, collecting and maintaining equipment.

The program in elementary school assisting includes instruction in elementary-school procedures and practices, use of the library, preparation of audio-visual materials and operation of audio-visual equipment, and children's dramatics.

Graduates of the elementary pro ram are qualified to perform such duties as assisting children during library periods, assisting in physical education activities, assisting in the preparation of teaching materials, and scheduling and operating audio-visual equipment.

Students interested in either the elementary program or that of assisting instructors of handicapped children may qualify for these fields by completing Psychology 73 and Community Service 66 or 67.

Enrollmen in this semiprofessional curriculum is open to all interested students (even those not majoring in teacher assisting). Meredith Grubbe, whose office is located in C-334B, is in charge of this program.

Education Project Started By Arriba Juntas, Schoon

By Boku Kodama

We live in a society which makes education a necessity. As the commercial on television states, "to get a good job, get a good education." But what happens to the ones who missed the education needed for a good job. Minority races have an even tougher time finding work since many of them can only speak a little English. Are they to be deprived of the training and education to better themselves? Arriba Juntas and Howard Schoon don't think so.

Schoon, head of the New Careers program here at City College, was approached early last December by members of the community Spanish organization, Arriba Juntas to initiate a program to help education-seeking individuals in the Mission District.

The program is set up for June 16, with classes starting June 23 and lasting ten weeks. There will be three college accredited courses and several non-accredited courses, all which will last for four hours in the afternoons.

Presently, two instructors from City College have volunteered to teach for Arriba Juntas. Sophia Vlamis, an English instructor and Patrick Westbrook, a sociology instructor will teach with an "interdisciplinary approach to education." Schoon, who made the above statement then added that what he hopes to accomplish is for his students to run the classes; to have "unstructured courses."

The students will do assignments in sociology with the mechanics which they learned in English. In other words, the courses will intermingle with each other.

As the weeks progress, Vlamis will also begin a typing course and have each student type his assignments.

At the end of ten weeks, the students will be given the same final as the one given in Communications G5A.

The New Careers program, a nation-wide organization, will head this project. Its major purpose is designed to educate and train in specific skills, those who are unemployed. The organization is under the Department of Labor.

Arriba Juntas is a Spanish community organization with a goal to better its community. This studies program which they are sponsoring has been financially backed by the federal government.

Harvard Boycott Eases

Out of a possible 15,000 students at Harvard University, only 4,000 voted on the question of whether to resume their strike. The voting, however, favored not boycotting classes by a margin of four to one.

John Hanify, 20 year old president of the Harvard Under-graduate Council, said that the Monday's turnout was a big disappointment.

The Harvard stike has existed for several weeks now and easing of the strike has just recently come about, but only 4,000 students voting?! Sounds like City College.

Moog!

By Jeff Schanker

What musical instrument looks like a computer, costs $8000, and can reproduce any known sound? The answer is the Moog Synthesizer, which is currently being used by such diverse music-makers as John Cage, the Beach Boys and the Rolling Stones.

The Moog Synthesizer is a voltage-controlled analog computer consisting of a system of oscillators, signal generators, modifiers and mixers which make it possible to produce sounds that may be varied in step with each other in any conceivable figure ground relationship. All of which means, if you're really interested you can look it up.

Several hundred interested listeners got a chance to hear the Synthesizer at the College recently in a series of lecture concerts presented by the San Francisco Rad Laboratory, a group of Bay Area artists who work in a variety of modern forms. The Lab, represented at the College by Bruce Hatch and Doug McKechnie, is one of the only organizations devoting full time to mastering the Synthesizer and exploring its unlimited capabilities.

Audience reaction to the music ranged from that of a crusty few traditionalists who stalked out immediately, presumably to go back listening to fugues in D-flat minor for xylophone and zither, to those who let themselves be completely captured by the total experience of the compelling sounds.

Questions from the audience varied from the extremely technical to "what's with the flashing lights?" Doug fielded them all with amiable good will, illustrating with demonstrations as he talked. The futility of trying to translate the Synthesizer into words was pointed up by Doug's description "it's anything you want it to be."

For those who missed the demonstration, or those who attended and were fascinated, the Lab will present a mixed-media concert with bands and lightshow tomorrow evening (May 1) at the Palace Theater, Powell and Columbus in North Beach. It's an excellent way to treat your head.

Former Student Publishes Book

"The Others" is the title of a newly published book compiled by an aspiring author, and former City College graduate, Terry Carr.

A collection of short stories, "The Others" is Carr's first publication with Fawcett Publications Inc., a noted paperback company.

The theme of the short stories, written by Philip K. Dick, Daphne Du Maurice, Richard Matheson, Ray Nelson, R. A. Lafferty, Damon Knight and Robert Heinlein, deals with the threat of invasion or control of Earth by alien beings.

Carr's other works include The Anthology: World's Best Science Fiction (four volumes, 1965-68, in collaboration with Donald A. Wollheim); New Worlds of Fantasy; Science Fiction for People who Hate Science Fiction; and magazine articles.

A Sneak Preview; 69-70 Films

By Ray Gin

What can the avid movie-goer expect of the new 1969-1970 film season?

If not for outright quality, he will find the answer in numbers. The major film companies have promised and slated a total of 477 pictures, a 11.2 per cent jump over last year's releases, to hit the screen during the '69-'70 period.

Due to their prestigious and highly touted stage origins, many of the new films are already causing much talk. High on the list is the filmization of HowardSackler's Tony award-winning play, "The Great White Hope," the tragic story of the first Negro heavyweight champion, Jack Johnson, and society's consternation towards his white mistress. The film will have its original strength by retaining actor, James Earl Jones. Jones will also play the role of Nat Turner, the self-educated black man of Virginia who led an abortive slave uprising in 1831, in the film version of William Styron's award-winning novel, "The Confessions of Nat Turner."

Peter Shaefer's play, "The Royal Hunt of the Sun," the tale of the bitter conflict between Pizarro and the Inca Chief during the bloody conquest of Peru by the Spanish, reaches the screen with the established talents of Robert Shaw, Peter Brook, and Christopher Plummer. Those of you who caught the college's Drama Dept.'s outstanding production will have a chance to savor cinema's expansion of the play. The Mart Crowley off-Broadway hit about a homosexual birthday party, "The Boys in the Band," will receive screen treatment with the entire original cast intact.

Musical Row will include the filming of "Your Own Thing," "Cabaret," Barbra Streisand's duo package of "Hello, Dolly!" and "On a Clear Day You Can See Forever" and Warner-Brother's adventurous musical-drama, "Yes I Can," starring Sammy Davis Jr. in the story of his life.

For a quick lesson in history, the cinematic biography is a must.

The most-awaited screen biography is "Che!", the chronicle of the 50's Cuban revolutionist, Ernesto "Che" Guevara, with Omar Shariff in the title role and Jack Palance as Fidel Castro. Although it has been sneak previewed in Honolulu and the reviews have been lukewarm, much editing is expected and hopefully, the final product is as dynamic as the company will have us believe.

The racing film will chance a comeback after a brief period of dormancy following "Grand Prix." Steve McQueen will come down the speedway in "Le-Mans" while Paul Newman is entangled in the Indy 500 in "Winning." For the war-monger there'll be George C. Scott as the World War II hero, "PATTON—Blood and Cuts" and the fusion of American and Japanese film forces in recreating both sides of the Pearl Harbor incident, "Tora! Tora! Tora!"

Into the corridors of the dark and sinister, arises American International's first self-proclaimed artistic and literary venture, "De Sade." Keir Dullea and John Huston will join in unraveling the sadistic high points of the life of the 18th Century riter and rebel, the Marquis De Sade. The same company will release "Dunwich," a tale of Satanic rape a la "Rosemary's Baby."

Topicality will be touched upon with the filming of Oscar Lewis' novel about Puerto Rican ghetto life, "La Vida and Down These Mean Streets" and Ossie Davis' "Explosion," a film that can be called the black man's "In the Heat of the Night" because this time a Negro officer hunts a Negro killer in the South.

Personally, the five films I look forward to and expect the most out of are deviants from the regular Hollywood package. First on the list is Arthur Penn's newly improvised film of Arlo Guthrie's song, "Alice's Restaurant." The ballad of a unique group of people adhering to the "free-spirit" by living in a commune called Stockbridge seems to have that spark of magic that lends itself to celluloid. Penn has another unique film in the Dustin Hoffman and Fay Dunaway starrer, "Little Big Man." Hoffman ages 130 years to tell it the way it really happened at the Battle of Little Big Horn.

The film of Joseph Heller's satire on the military set in World War II, "Catch 22," will have the directorial virtuoso of Mike Nichols and the acting expertise of Alan Arkin. In 1968, producer Joseph Strick was the man responsible for the monumental screen translation of James Joyce's "Ulysses." The remarkable Strick will attempt, I hope successfully, the awesome task of emitting Henry Miller's novel of erotica, "Tropic of Cancer." And my final hopeful will be a film in the now-popular cinema-verite style, an unexpurgated and unedited account of Lenny Bruce's last night club act entitled "LENNY BRUCE."

Fashion Scene Pants Predominately "In"

Montage by Bert Flowers

Pants are "in"—Taking a quick look across the campus it appears that pants are predominately the thing.

Especially fashionable and popular is the wide-leg pant that swings above a clunky heel shoe or boot. The Harlow pant is not only comfortable but its sharp styling gives the average girl a more shapely and slim figure. So the focus is now on sportswear.

With a basic pant you can assemble an outfit that will be versatile enough to take you anywhere.

So if all eyes are on the pant, isn't it time you joined the pant family and enjoyed the style and comfort of active sportswear?

Women's News

Elaine Wong Crowned Queen

Elaine Wong was crowned Sweetheart Queen last Saturday night during the Chinese Students Association's 24th annual Sweetheart Coronation Dance in the Veterans War Memorial Building.

Miss Wong, a graduate of George Washington High, was presented the traditional robe and crown by Carole Young, the current Miss Chinatown U.S.A.

Serving in Miss Wong's court are Shirley Louie, first princess, Evelyn Lee, second princess, Veronica Lee, third princess, and Chris Wong, fourth princess.

Each finalist received flowers and trophies from the CSA and a case of perfume from radio station KFRC.

KFRC disc jockey Don Kelly served as the Master of Ceremonies, while The Bold Rebels and Marvin Holmes and the Uptights provided the entertainment.

Alice Gee, last year's Sweetheart Queen and Ed Lew were called upon at the last minute to assist in the coronation.

Proceeds from the event will help provide scholarships to needy Chinese students. In the 24 years the event has been held more than $10,000 has been raised to help needy students.

—J.B.

Flunk Out

(ACP)—A math instructor at Ohio's Wright State University is apparently "flunking out" because he gave all his students "A's" last semester. Arthur DePre called his special hearing before administrative officers a "virtual attack" and said he was going to resign.

He defended his position by stating his students earned their "A's" by achieving all the standards he had set up. While DuPre was continuing to express amazement at his students' academic prowess, fellow faculty members seemed less impressed.

Ancient Papers Contain First Known Facts On Flying Saucers

One of the earliest flying saucer sightings occurred between 1504-1450 BC during the reign of Thutmose III.

The papers containing this information were found among the belonging of the late professor Alberto Tulli, then director of the Egyptian Museum at the Vatican.

In these papers was found the earliest known records of a fleet of flying saucers written on papyrus long ago in ancient Egypt. Although damaged and having many gaps in the heiroglyphics, Prince Boris de Rachewiltz translated the papyrus, and irrespective he stated that the original was a part of the Ammals of Thutmose III. The following is an excerpt:

"In the year 22 of the 3rd month of winter, sixth hour of the day . . . scribes of the House of Life saw a circle of fire coming out of the sky. it had no head and the breath of its mouth had a foul odor. The body was one rod long and one rod wide and with no voice. Confused and frightened they laid themselves upon the ground and sent a message to the Pharoah who meditated on the matter while the subjects became more numerous and much brighter. The army of the Pharoah looked on with him while these fire circles ascended higher in the sky towards the south. Because of this the Pharoah caused incense to be brought to place upon the hearth to make peace and to be written in the annals of the House of Life so that it would be remembered forever."

—R.B.

GIRLS

Patricia Stevens coming May 8, 11 a.m. in E-101 Lecture Hall.

Recipe For Single Girls

I'll bet you never thought pineapples would help you "whip your date" into submission, did you? Well, maybe it won't, but at least it will show a little initiative on your part.

If it doesn't work, tough luck. Look at it this way: at least you won't have to make dessert for the next few nights. Oh, and better luck next time.

½ cup evaporated milk
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 cup chopped pitted dates
Sugar to suit taste

Chill evaporated milk in refrigerator. Put into chilled bowl and beat 'til thick. Add lemon juice, continue beating until stiff. Fold in pineapple, dates and salt; then fold in sugar, if required. Serve immediately. 5 servings. (Modern Family Cook Book)

—L.L.

Safari?

If you want to avoid the regimented coach tours abroad this summer, there's a unique safari expedition by land rover and mini bus offered by an English traveling agency named Safari.

The safari will encompass Spain, Morocco, Gibraltar, and the Sahara Desert. All information regarding this information into North Africa is available by writing Safari, 112 Elmgrove, Brighton, England.

The cost is only 39 guineas ($98.38) from England.

Dodge City Paved Way For Black Cowboys In The Good Ole West

By Ray Gin

Dodge City was a typical cowtown.

This legendary town was the cattle market for the ranchers of Nebraska, Montana, and the Dakotas. The Black cowboy drifted into Dodge by way of the long cattle drives. They suffered some discrimination in Dodge, but for the most part they were supported by white bosses and rode with the white frontiersmen. Abilene, Wichita, and Ellsworth were other infamous cowtowns.

Black and white cowboys shot it out on the streets of Dodge and Abilene. The first man shot in Dodge City was Tex, an innocent bystander to a fight and he was a Black man. The first man to be jailed in Abilene was a Negro cook. Drowned in too many glasses of Abilene whiskey, the cook began shooting up the town with much more noise than damage. The hungry trail crew grew restless and galloped into town to free their lovable cook. Thus, the Negro set a record of sorts in the West: he was the first man to be arrested and put into a new jail, and the first man to break out.

"There were many more dubious examples of the Black cowboy. Ben Hodges, the black counterpart of the "Flim-Flam Man," was a thoroughly beguiling rascal and confidence man.

He managed to swindle land grants in Kansas and cattle from the white cattle entrepeneurs.

B. M. Ford was a Black man who operated the finest hotel in Cheyenne, Wyoming. His Ford House was constantly crowded and frequently he had to turn guests away. After a tragic fire had caused the hotel's sudden demise, Ford built his infamous Inter-Ocean Hotel, considered by his peers to be the "best hotel in the West."

The Black women were pillars of strength and courage in aiding the men who conquered the western frontier. Rache) Briggs, a Negro woman, was on her arduous way to settling in Laramie when a band of Indians killed her. But the most memorable of these feminine strongholds was Stagecoach Mary Fields. She was a restaurant owner, a freighter, stagecoach driver, and at 70, a laundress in Caseade, Montana. She was familiar with a shotgun and often fought duels and defrayed the Indian menace. Her taste for hard liquor and black cigars left an unshakable impression of a durable frontiersman.

Harry Chrisman in his book "Lost Trails of the Cimarron" tells of how cattleman Willis Peoples, a Negro, used a keen sense of psychology and science to track down the most feared wolf-killer of that time, Two-Toes. The wolf, known for his omnivorous attack on cattle, was tracked down by Peoples when no other professional wolf hunter was able to.

The adventurous trail days lasted a little more than 25 years after the Civil War. The vast spaces were being rapidly filled by an unprecedented volume of settlers. After the big blizzard of 1886-87, the open range was increasingly reduced to small and fenced-off land grants that dealt mainly in agriculture.

Today there are still some Black cowboys riding in the Southern ranges. Some still herd in Florida, Texas, and Montana. When the legendary cowboy rode into the sunset, the possibility that a Black man was in the saddle cannot be doubted.

Testing Office Serves Students

By Rita Carroll

The testing office, operating under the direction of Dr. Thomas Humiston, is open daily to serve the students at the college.

The office serves primarily three functions. The entrance test battery is administered through the testing office. The entrance test classifies students as to their background in basic study and determines the best place for each student to begin his college courses, Humiston stated. With City College admitting all students with a high school diploma there is a "much bigger range of abilities and backgrounds and the entrance test gives the students a better chance," he continued.

Another function of this office is to provide machine scoring for objective tests and also to program special aptitude and achievement tests for vocational guidance.

The special testing is, in Humiston's opinion, the most important function which tends to be the least used largely because of the increase in the student population.

These tests, on which students can base their decision on a career, are "not perfect instruments." They give the student the opportunity to compare himself with others and observe differences within himself. The results can give clues and leads to follow in other ways.

Humiston stressed the importance of supplementary test results and tries to provide supplementary information.

The testing office presently is developing a file of informational material regarding occupations. This file provides information on long-range trends in occupations, opportunities, training requirements and the location and availability of schools for training.

Students who wish to take guidance tests or use the informational file should ask their counselors for a referral card indicating the test the student wants to take or the information the student wants to see.

Cherry Blossom Queen, Sharon Kimoto, stands in front of the peace pagoda in the Japanese Cultural Center.
(Photo courtesy Jerry Telfer—S.F. Chronicle)

Credit/No-Credit System Offered

During the past month and a half, a proposed credit/no-credit grading system in social science courses for 1969-70, has been the topic of discussion among instructors teaching in these various fields.

The question of credit/no-credit grading was proposed in a number of courses of study. Lengthy conferences have been held with groups in history, political science, economics, sociology, psychology and philosophy.

Based upon common agreement among instructors teaching in the field, the following courses are offered by the departments for optional credit/no-credit grading, beginning in the fall semester.

In the economics department, economics one, three, five and ten will be offered under this new system. In other departments, history 18-a and b, five, 40, 32-a and b, and 34, Philosophy 40 and Sociology one and 35, will be included. In addition Political Sciences courses three, five, seven, 20 and 36 and Psychology courses one, five, 20, 30, 40, 45, and G-6 will also be included among the courses under the optional credit/no credit grading system.

Psychology 22-23, 39 and 49 will be offered for grading entirely on a credit/no-credit basis beginning in the fall semester.

Summer Program Offered To High School Students On Campus

City College will offer a college credit summer session program for high school students from June 23 to August 1, to help students in choosing realistic careers that will allow them to utilize their abilities to the fullest advantage.

The college is making it possible for 11th and 12th high school students to investigate the training and career opportunities available in one or more of 12 different career areas plus two psychology courses; one designed to help recognize one's own aptitudes, skills, and chances of success in a particular career; the other to improve study skills.

One of the leading causes of difficulty for a large number of entering college students is the fact that they have selected unrealistic career or educational goals — either far above or far below their capabilities.

It is very important that a future college student get as much information as possible regarding career opportunities, personal and academic requirements for various careers and available specialized training plus an understanding of himself to help in making a wise career choice.

A student may choose to receive college credit or credit toward high school graduation for the courses completed.

New Cherry Blossom Queen: In Search of Her Culture

By Jim Browning

Sharon Kimoto, beauty queen and business major is a typical Japanese student in search of a culture.

"The Japanese community has always been such a silent and passive minority," Miss Kimoto stated. "Until recently we kept all our opinions to ourself.

"This goes back to the old customs of Japan, when the parents told their children to keep their feelings in check (the Japanese call it Enryo).

"Now some members of the community are becoming more militant and outspoken in their views. There's still a large group of people who are torn between the new militancy and the customs from the old country. This group doesn't know what direction to take."

Miss Kimoto believes that most of the rioting by Japanese students is being done in order that the old customs be broken down.

"You have to stand up for your rights," she added, "just as the Blacks are doing. You have to speak out and say what you mean and feel."

Recently she was chosen to reign as Cherry Blossom Queen for the Japanese community.

"I really think it's an honor to represent my community. By being queen I can learn more of my culture, and make myself more aware of what's happening in my community," she stated.

One of her prizes is a trip to Japan, where she will send greetings to the mayor of Osaka, San Francisco's sister city, from Mayor Alioto.

"I'm looking forward to the trip, not only because it will allow me to see the people of Japan, but it will also serve as an insight into what the customs of the old country are like.

After graduation, Sharon wants to become either a legal secretary or a social worker helping disadvantaged youths.

Labelled And Recorded

Texas Blues Guitarist Gets Big Columbia Contract

By Ray Rezos

Probably the biggest new name in rock music in 1969 is that of Johnny Winter. Known only to patrons of a few small blues clubs in Texas a year ago, the young albino blues guitarist has suddenly been catapulted into the national spotlight.

It all began, innocently enough, with an article covering the Texas music scene in Rolling Stone magazine last December. The article described Winter in glowing terms, noting that Mike Bloomfield called him, at 16, "the best white, blues guitarist he had ever heard."

Such reports inspired Steve Paul, a New York promoter, to make the trip to Texas in search of what he called "A Daydream." After a brief stopover in San Francisco, which included a gig at Avalon (the Family Dog's final show there) and a Fillmore West audition, Paul brought Winter back to New York. The major record companies soon got wind of the new sensation, and there ensued an incredible bidding war with six-figure contracts being tossed around by major labels, including Elektra, RCA Victor, Atlantic and Columbia.

Winter eventually signed with Columbia for what company president Clive Davis said was "the largest sum ever paid to a new performer in Columbia's history." He had previously turned down a reported $500,000 contract offered by RCA.

Meanwhile, Winter had been receiving extensive air-play on local FM stations via an LP entitled "The Progressive Blues Experiment." It was recorded two years ago on Sonobeat, a tiny independent label in Austin, and recently re-released on Imperial, who purchased the masters from Sonobeat. It is a fine LP, valuable both as a sample of Winter's early work and as an indication of his promise.

Winter is backed on the album by Tommy Shannon on bass and Red Turner on drums, the two musicians who have played with him for some time. Neither is particularly brilliant, but it doesn't matter much. Winter is the whole show, and he doesn't disappoint. He gets off some brilliant solos, particularly on "Mean Town Blues," and "It's My Own Fault."

Overall, he conducts himself well, alternating between standards by such blues masters as Howlin' Wolf, Muddy Waters and B. B. King, and highly derivative original material. Winter has been greatly influenced by Muddy Waters, most notably on "Broke Down Engine" and "Bad Luck and Trouble," where his guitar technique is patterned closely after Water's. There is also his fine blues "Tribute to Muddy."

The only faults on this album lie in the shoddy production work and the relative incompetence of Shannon and Turner. Winter's guitar playing and blues singing are superb.

Comparing this LP with Winter's first for Columbia (released last week) is rather hard. On one hand, Winter, who did the production work, has seen fit to include a horn section for a couple of numbers. He has also gathered some pretty heavy musicians around him, such as Willie Dixon, Big Walter Horton, and his twin brother, Edgar Winter, who plays sax and piano.

In addition, Turner and Shannon are much improved and are given more of a chance to express themselves musically. Those who have been critical of Turner and Shannon may be surprised and a little dismayed at seeing them on the LP; but they have stayed with Winter during the hard times, and it is only fair that they share in the good times.

The problem with the Columbia LP lies not in the music itself but in the production and arranging of it. It appears that Winter was so overjoyed at the prospect of recording an LP in one of the nation's finer studios that he went overboard. He got caught up in the multi track recording process.

SPORTS DESK

By Sports Editor, Phil DiCarlo

LADY JOCKS HERE TO STAY

It started as a big joke—so everyone thought. Penny Ann Early, a 25 year old divorcee from Arcadia, California, wanted to ride in a real race at Churchill Downs in Kentucky. Barbara Jo Rubin and Diane Crump were clamoring to get mounts in New York and Florida. The newspapers began publishing daily reports of their progress, male jockies refused to ride in a race with women and race fans began to take sides. Then Miss Early signed to play with the Kentucky Colonels of the American Basketball Association (sic) and the sideshow was at its peak.

The whole thing started when Kathy Kushner, a former member of the United States Olympic Equestrian Team, applied for an apprentice license in Maryland. She was allowed to ride in two special qualifying races at the Laurel Raceway in Laurel, Maryland—home of the famous Washington International. Miss Kushner was granted a temporary license but unfortunately broke her leg before she was able to use it.

But the die was cast. Before long, gals were riding in half a dozen states; not as exercise uh, girls, but as regular jocks. Diane Crump became the first woman ever to win a race, and more recently, was the first ever to be involved in an accident (she suffered a mild concussion in a three horse spill). Miss Rubin was the first gal to ride more than one winner on a single day (3), and is the leading winner among the gals. This has all been culminated in the recent Lady Godiva Handicap at Suffolk Downs near Boston. Former baseball promoter Bill Veeck, now the track General Manager, staged the race which featured all female riders (on fillies of course). Miss Early finished almost five lengths ahead of Miss Crump and Tuesdee Testa (sounds more like a horse's name). Miss Rubin? She didn't ride in the race. Since she thought men had once discriminated against her, she didn't want to be unfair to them by riding in an all girl race!

KEN, JOE—SAY IT ISN'T SO

We're crushed. And we guess that youngsters all over the country are too, and with good reason. Two of their favorite characters—all, we mean heroes—have soiled their images . . . and our illusions. First Broadway Joe Namath, the New York Jet super swinger and quarterback, was picked up and arrested on a drunk driving charge. And he didn't even have his LICENSE along with him! Oh Joe, how could you do such a thing. We know that you like to swing with the chicks and all, and even take a nip or two once in a while, but DRUNK—and driving your ear in that condition—well we are appalled. We thought all athletes were good, wholesome creatures. For shame.

Bob Phelan receives team trophy at State Tournament.
Samuel Woo Photo

Then came the big Boston - Cleveland baseball trade. Ken "Hawk" Harrelson, a big favorite in Boston and all around the country, was being traded. When he said he wouldn't go, we cheered. "Good for you Hawk, you show 'em." The fans love you and you love them, right Hawk? You can imagine how chesttallen we were when Harrelson announced that he wouldn't go, not for the fan support, not because he loved Boston, but for MONEY. Was that the only reason Hawk? Just because of a sandwich shop and some clothing stores. . . .

BITS AND PIECES

Let's hear it for the Recreation Association here at CCSF. They put on one helluva Sports Day. Kim Jong, RA President, and the others that put the show together are to be congratulated. Well Done! . . . The college golf team has heart. When the team had to forfeit three matches because of an ineligible player (it knocked them out of first place), they didn't give up. Credit Coach Grover Klemmer and his boys for their good spirit. Let's hope they can make a good showing during the post season tournaments . . . How 'bout them Boston Celtics? I guess they showed the "experts" that they weren't so old after all . . . Former CCSF soccer All-American Gary Delong is the goalie for the U.S. National Team . . . We're glad to see that Jackie Jensen has recovered from his heart attack. He is a fine athlete and a real sportsman. And not many people have ever played in the Rose Bowl and in the baseball All-Star game (He was the American League's Most Valuable Player in 1958 also) . . . Ram basketballer Bob Phelan, the coach's son, has been getting scholarship offers from all over the country. Only a freshman, Bob has been approached by the U. of Alabama, Idaho and Hawaii . . . The latest issue of the JC Track and Field Wire lists the Rams' national record time for the four-mile relay as 17:26.6. Unfortunately it's only 18:06.5. Humberto Hernandez, a member of that record team, is a newlywed. Wonder where he gets the energy? . . . The Santa Ana Register has been predicting track results with their new computer SOCKETOME. There's no mention of its accuracy . . . We see where an Oakland Raider Fan Club has been started on this side of the bay. Those interested should attend the weekly luncheon held at Del Vecchio's Restaurant. But watch out, the club just elected officers and the secretary's name is (stand back) John Gounilhardou. Oh, last week's guest speaker was All-League defensive tackle Tom Keating . . . Speaking of the Raiders, they drafted former Ram Ruby Jackson (a 270 pounder) in the fourth round of the football draft.

Duffers Split

Completely outclassed one day, the Ram golfers came back to win the next in their most hectic week of the season. (See WEEKEND SCORES for other results.)

JAG FLAG

Led by Forrest Fezler, old super-stroke himself, San Jose dismantled the Ram team 33 to 2 last Monday (April 22). Playing on their own home ground, the fast, dry Almaden course, the Jaguars were not to be denied. Fezler had a three under par 69 but was outdone by teammate Bob Poen, who shot a terrific 68. As a team, San Jose averaged a fantastic 71 strokes per man.

The locals were not used to the nice, dry fairways and skied

Ken Kundert, top Ram golfer of 1969, leads his team against Diablo Valley this Friday at the Olympic Club. Kundert is averaging only 74 strokes per round this season, the lowest ever for a Ram duffer.
Photo by Babs

to rounds in the 80s. John Susko's 81 was tops for the Rams.

With the win, San Jose virtually wrapped up another Golden Gate Conference Championship.

RAMS BULL DOGS

The next day, Tuesday, the good guys bounced back with a 24½ to 10½ victory over the College of San Mateo.

Playing the long Peninsula Country Club Course, the Ram

(Continued on Page 7)

Sports Quiz

1. Which National Football League defensive end was one of Notre Dame's greatest athletes in baseball, basketball AND football?
2. Which Olympic gold medalist, immediately following the games last year, went in pro football with the American Football League?
3. Boston Bruin center Phil Esposito set a new National Hockey League record for the most points scored in a single season. How many points did he get?
4. What are the nicknames of the following sports teams? a) Indiana of the ABA b) Miami of the AFL c) Pittsburgh of the NHL d) Phoenix of the NBA e) Detroit of the NHL.
5. Who is the second leading home run hitter in National League history?
6. The record for most assists in one basketball game (pro) was set by Bob Cousy. How many?

(Answers on next page)

CCSF Sports Day, A Smashing Success

City College's Sports Day, an invitational fun and games day sponsored by the Recreation Association, was a tremendous success. To add frosting to the cake, CCSF's contingent walked off with the first place team trophy.

"We had nice weather and everything went very smoothly," remarked an obviously pleased Kim Jong, the current R.A. President. "Everybody did a great job." Miss Jong continued, "including the R.A. officers; Jenny Crabtree, Secretary, Treasurer Candy Mizler and Historian John Blick."

Over 360 students from 16 Bay Area colleges enjoyed themselves. West Valley and Foothill Junior Colleges tied for second place in the team standings, followed closely by Hartnell JC. In team events, the local group took firsts in mixed bowling and volleyball and a second in women's badminton. Individually, Gerald Masheiw placed first in the riflery contest. Jessica Waidler was third in gold, while tennis players Moirio Wolohen and Pam Prout took third in the women's doubles and Lorrie Loy and Randy Kwock second in the mixed doubles.

Monterey Peninsula College will host the next Sports Day on Saturday, May 17. All students with an AS card and currently enrolled in any P.E. class may attend.

The Guardsman SPORTS

WEEKEND SCORES

TRACK

Flashy Clyde Sadler, in his first big post-season test of the year, passed with flying colors, as he set a new meet record in the high jump with a leap of 6-10¼ at the Northern California Relays held on Saturday at DeAnza College.

Fresh out of Riordan High School, the cool Sadler waited five hours before taking his first attempt. He passed until the bar reached 6-4.

The mark erased the former record of 6-9 held by CCSF star Dwight Tucker in 1965. It also topped Sadler's old high of 6-8 set earlier this year.

As a team the Rams tied for an overall fifth place along with Contra Costa.

The long distance men had their usual big day as Humberto Hernandez, Steve Jordan, Jim Tracy and Klaus Hoffman won the distance medley in 10:12.4.

Bob Darling, a lungbuster who didn't run in the medley, broke a meet and division record in the two-mile with a 9:34.2.

Unfortunately, George Stuart of Marin also ran in the race and completely destroyed the old mark with a 9:10.6. Darling finished in third place.

Tom Clyburn leaped fairly well in the long jump leaping 23-7 for third place. He could have placed higher though, since he started his leap at least SIX INCHES behind the starting point.

Merritt College suffered its first defeat of the year in the meet, finishing second, 66-63½, to Fresno City College.

Warren Edmonson and the T-Bird "sprint circus" still had a big day though, setting new national JC marks in the 880 and mile relays. Edmonson also tied the nation's JC mark in the 100 with a 9.3 clocking.

SWIMMING

There were few bright spots for the college swim team at the Northern California Swimming Championships held last weekend at the beautiful Foothill College pool.

Though they were completely shut-out in team competition, Roddy Rodriquez and Ron Melnis swam the 100-yard breaststroke in their best times ever! The 400-yard free relay team, Frank Johnson, Jeff Tsu, Rich Glass and Len Lynch, broke the college's record when they clocked the course in 3:42.1.

Swimming Coach Curt Decker took the results in stride, but added "This is a tough conference, and the lack of facilities really kills us." CCSF is the only school without a pool.

GOLF

Playing on a windy Harding Park course, Ram golfers destroyed San Mateo, 26 to 9, last Friday afternoon.

Ace Ken Kundert again was top medalist as he shot a 76. Greg Corvi and Paul Rea were close on his heels, as they both carded 77s. John Susko came in at 78 while Duane Cosper took an 81.

The duffers take on Diablo Valley this Friday, in preparation for the Conference Tournament to be played next Monday at Castlewood, near Pleasanton.

BASEBALL

Damaging their chances for a first division finish, the Ram baseball team lost to Diablo Valley, 8-1, last Thursday in Concord.

Relief pitcher Irv Jones, the Ram's number one fireman, made his debut as a starter, as the locals met the Vikings for the third time this season. The Rams won the first two games.

Manny Berrios' solo homer, in the second inning, gave CCSF a short-lived lead, 1-0. But the Vikes put a pair of three-run innings together to win going away. Berrios and Hans Vigil, with two hits apiece, accounted for most of the Ram attack.

Saturday, Foothill's Owls dealt a severe blow to the Rams by winning a 14-inning, 11-to-8 decision here at Balboa Field. The loss dropped the Ram's league record to six wins and eleven losses, two games behind fourth-place Laney.

Relief pitcher John Portoni took the loss, his fifth of the year against only two wins, after taking over for Rick Cole in the 11th inning.

(Continued on Page 7)

Bulldogs Dump Trackers

By Pat Chan

City College's Ram tracksters fell prey to San Mateo for the seventh straight year in a row, losing 70-66 on April 22, to close out the regular conference season. The meet gave both CCSF and CSM 4-3 records for 1969.

The freezing weather, along with the absences of pole vaulter Paul Conroy and triple jumper August Berry, were the main factors that contributed to City College's defeat.

Without Conroy the Rams had no one in the pole vault and as a result automatically surrendered nine points. The Rams lost by four points.

The absence of Berry hurt the Rams in the triple jump event, which has been the scene for some CCSF sweeps this year. A first and second place in this event would have won the meet for the Rams.

Hurdler Don Bruce managed to grab a win in the event, but Bulldog Steve Mitchell took second place to cinch the win for San Mateo. Berry would have been the difference.

The distance men had their usual big day sweeping the one and two-mile events and allowing CSM only one point altogether.

San Mateo got their only score when Tom Sershen turned in a 2:05.4 for a third place in the half mile. Klaus Hoffman fought off Jim Tracy's finishing kick for the 880 win with a 2:04.3 time.

Tracy also finished second in the mile run as Humberto Hernandez flashed home with a 4:28.7 win. Dave Power took the bronze medal in the event and also in the two-mile.

Vic Cary came off his leg injury of last week to show it hadn't hurt his form. He took the two-mile in 9:35.8 while Bob Darling came in one footstep behind.

Sprinters Jim Brooks and Andy Watkins had their best performances of the year, smashing the 10-second barrier in the century with wind-aided marks of 9.7 and 9.8. Watkins also managed to turn in a 24.2 in the 220 for a third place.

In the quarter mile, Vince Ainsely, though still hampered by a leg injury, actually led the pack for a while before being overtaken and relegated to a fourth place finish. He still turned in a respectable time of 50.6 though. Steve Jordan placed second in the race with a 50.4.

Hurdler Don Bruce had another good day. Not only did he sub for the injured August Berry, but he won the 440IH (57.7). Bruce also had a wind-aided 15.0 second place in the 120IH.

The Rams won their third 440 relay of the year (42.7) but lost the mile relay.

In the field events CCSF completely swept by the Bulldogs in the high jump as Clyde Saddler came through with a 6-4 win while Tom Clyburn followed at 6-4. Clyburn was also the only Ram to place in the long jump with a 19-11 leap for second place. Andy Kennedy took third place in the high jump with a leap of six feet even.

Weightmen Brian Kennedy and Jim Baldocchi were outclassed by Bulldog competitors but still grabbed off a pair of third places. Kennedy put the shot 45-2¾ while Baldocchi hurdled the discus 138-6.

Baltimore Oriole outfielder Frank Robinson has hit nine homeruns this month to tie a major league record.

Conference, State Meets Face Trackmen

By Pat Chan

May is going to be a busy month for Lou Vasquez's Ram tracksters. With the close of regular league play all thoughts now turn to the big conference and state meets.

This Saturday afternoon the Rams will make tracks for the All-Golden Gate Conference Meet to be held at Jaguar Stadium in San Jose at 10 a.m.

Led by speedy Warren Edmonson, Merritt College is the overwhelming favorite to win the GGC crown. The T-Birds are yet to be defeated this season.

Edmonson could take three gold medals in the sprints, Saturday, having run a 9.4 in the 100, a 20.9 in the 220 and a 46.9 in the 440. These times are the best recorded for the GGC this year.

Merritt also possesses the league's top hurdler in Eric Barfield and best weightman in Dan Mosely. Barfield has run the 120HH in 14.6 while Mosely has put the shot 54-0.

In addition the T-Birds have the league's fastest 440 and mile relay teams.

With a batch of good runners in the distance events City College will be favored in the 880, mile and two mile. Clyde Saddler is also picked to win the high jump for CCSF.

After the conference meet the Rams will travel to Fresno Saturday, May 10, for the All-West Coast Relays.

LATE ANNOUNCEMENT

The Golden Gate Conference Track and Field Meet has been switched from San Jose City College to Chabot. The trials will be held at the Hayward college today, beginning at 1:30 p.m.

Chabot, San Mateo To Visit Here As Baseball Season Nears End

Portoni Tosses Three-Hitter As Rams Knock Off San Jose

John Portoni pitched seven straight hitless innings before giving up a hit to defeat San Jose, 4-1, last week.

The former Sacred Heart star gave up only three safeties in going the distance to win his second game of the season against four losses. Portoni lost his bid for a shutout in the ninth inning.

CCSF got three of their tallies in the seventh when Manny Berrios drove in Portoni and Dave Kline for two runs. Andy Fracchia scored the third run of the inning.

Ken Batiloro came home in the eighth inning to end the Rams' scoring for the day.

In another game played that week Rich Heinz had to go 14-1/3 innings before defeating the Laney College Eagles, 4-2, on April 19. Heinz fanned 14 batters while allowing only nine walks in picking up his second win of the season against four losses.

Fireman Irv Jones relieved Heinz in the final inning of the game. Jones preserved the win by fanning one batter and getting the other to ground into a fielder's choice.

Cleanup man Manny Berrios knocked in the winning runs by driving Dave Kline and Rich Esclambre in in the top of the fifteenth.

The Rams had gone hitless until the eighth inning. Then they scored the second two runs to tie up the game and send it into overtime.

ANSWERS TO SPORTS QUIZ

1. Kevin Hardy of the 49ers.
2. Jimmy Hines joined Miami.
3. 126 points on 49 goals and 77 assists.
4. (a) Pacers (b) Dolphins (c) Penguins (d) Suns (e) Red Wings
5. Hank Aaron of Atlanta.
6. Twenty-eight.

Coming Events

Today (April 30)
TRACK — Golden Gate Conference Trials at San Jose City College, 1:30 p.m.

Thursday (May 1)
BASEBALL — CCSF vs. Chabot at Hayward, 3 p.m.
SWIMMING — State Championships at DeAnza Junior College.

Friday (May 2)
GOLF — CCSF vs. Diablo Valley at Olympic Club.
SWIMMING — State Final cont.

Saturday (May 3)
TRACK — Conference Championships at San Jose City College.
SWIMMING — State Finals conclude.
GYMNASTICS — Women's team in optional meet at U.C. Davis, 10 a.m.

Monday (May 5)
GOLF — League Tournament at Castlewood Country Club in Pleasanton, 7 a.m.

Tuesday (May 6)
BASEBALL — CCSF vs. San Mateo, Balboa Field, 3 p.m.

Duffers Split

(Continued from Page 6)

duffers felt right at home in the strong winds. Ken Kundert fired a 75 to lead all golfers. Paul Rea shot a 77, Duane Cosper came in with an 80, while Greg Corvi and John Susko were in the low 80s.

Coach Grover Klemmer was duly impressed with Kundert's performance.

Top Ranked CSM Poses Big Problem For Diamond Crew

League-leading San Mateo will be coming to town next Tuesday afternoon to play the Rams in their final home game of the season.

The Bulldogs, currently in a three-way battle for the league title, with Chabot and Foothill, are paced by the top pitcher in the league, Barry Sbraiga, a strikeout artist with a 1.31 ERA.

The last time the Rams and Barry butted heads, Sbriaga pitched a shutout 2-0 and handcuffed the Rams, allowing only four hits.

CSM also has two other top-flight twirlers in Don Belluomini and Roger Carmine, both of whom possess impressive 2.76 ERAs.

When it comes to hitting the Bulldogs aren't any slouches either. At last glance they had a .253 team batting average, third in the conference.

Mike Prieto (.364) and Gary Meyers (.318) paced the Dogs on offense.

With the first three spots in the league standings virtually cinched by CSM, Chabot and Foothill, the Rams hope to emerge out of the season with at least a fourth-place ranking.

The Rams will wind up play with a game against Laney at Oakland on Thursday, May 8.

Tuesday's ballgame begins at 3:00, and is at Balboa Field, only a short walk across the freeway.

WEEKEND SPORTS

(Continued from Page 6)

Three straight baseHits along with a throwing error by second string catcher Pete Edwards allowed three runs to score in the 14th inning to cinch the Owls' 12th win of the season.

The loss snuffed out a fine comeback made by the Rams. Behind from the very start, the Rams were trailing 7-2 at one point. A disastrous four-run fifth inning which knocked starter Rich Heinz was the major factor behind CCSF's defeat.

Behind 7-5 in the ninth inning the Rams prolonged the agony of losing by carrying the contest into extra innings.

Dave Kline scored on a double play to bring in one run. Tom Mayfield then rapped out a clutch hit single and Hans Vigil drew a walk to keep up the rally. Jim Smith then blasted a double to knock in pinch runner Chuck Gray for the tying run. John Lawhorn then walked to load the bases.

With the score all knotted up at 7-7, pinch hitter Vince Anderson had a big chance to drive in the winning run. But Foothill caught John Lawhorn leaning a little bit too far off first base and through a series of throws tagged Hans Vigil off third base.

CCSF again had to make another comeback in the 11th inning as Foothill took over a 9-8 advantage. Chuck Gray was the man of the moment as he knocked Andy Facchia for the tying run.

Laguna Seca Action!

Racing fans, this is your weekend. Starting Friday afternoon, a busy schedule of racing activity begins down at Laguna Seca in Monterey. Sunday the action climaxes with the 150 mile, Group 7, road race. All classes will race through during the three day meet. By the way—if you wish to receive the Laguna Seca Racing News, a bulletin carrying news about upcoming events, plus order blanks for race tickets and Monterey hotel-motel information, just send your name, address and zip code to SCAMP, P.O. Box 2070, Monterey, California 93940. It's free!!

(Photos courtesy Kevin Shea)

Author of 'Up the Down Staircase' To Speak Here

Bel Kaufman, author of the best-seller, 'Up the Down Staircase,' will speak here next Tuesday during College Hour.

Bel Kaufman, author of the best-selling novel, "Up the Down Staircase," now a Warner Bros. motion picture, will speak here next Tuesday during College Hour (11 a.m.) in the Little Theater.

Miss Kaufman was born in Germany and raised as a child in Russia.

She was educated in the United States and while in college she was elected to Phi Beta Kappa, received a B.A. degree, graduating Magna Cum Laude. She earned her M.A. degree with highest honors at Columbia University, specializing in 18th century literature.

Miss Kaufman entered teaching immediately upon graduation. It was her vast range of teaching experience that gave "Up the Down Staircase" its wide base of appeal.

Presently she is an Assistant Professor of English at the Borough of Manhattan Community College in New York.

"Up the Down Staircase" originated as a short story written for the Saturday Review, entitled "From a Teacher's Wastebasket." Then someone suggested that Miss Kaufman write a novel on the subject.

Shortly after publication on January 27, 1965, "Staircase" skyrocketed up the national best-seller lists. It was chosen by Reader's Digest Condensed Books and by the Book of the Month Club.

Miss Kaufman's plans include continued teaching and continued writing. On the inevitable question of how she goes about writing, Miss Kaufman explains: "I try to avoid writing by doing all kinds of things —the equivalent of sharpening pencils, I suppose. But in the end, there I am, at the typewriter."

Ethnic Studies To Offer Major In Afro-American History

(Continued from Page 1)

Sociology 48: "Social Change in Contemporary Africa."

The Department of Chinese Studies will offer a Chinese curriculum to the multitude of students that have requested such a program.

Chinese 1 (1-4) will provide a student with an opportunity to progress from elementary to intermediate Chinese. Conversational Chinese under the title Chinese 10 will provide oral practice in the Cantonese dialect. History 35 will be the only available Chinese history course while in the area of philosophy, Chinese 39 and 49 will illuminate on the major achievements of Chinese thought and culture.

The most arresting course addition in the Chinese curriculum is Art 88: Oriental Calligraphy. The ancient art of Chinese characters and meticulous brush strokes will be taught under the college's Art Department.

The Latin-American Studies Department will also establish their own curriculum. Two art courses, Art 1E and 1F, will explore pre-Columbian and Latin-American Art and Architecture. Historically, the Latin Americans will be the subject of such courses as History 15: "The Indian in North America," History 20: "History of Mexico," History 18A, 18B: "History of Latin America," and Political Science 18: "Government and Politics of Latin America." The social structure of the Latins will be taught under Sociology 5, 6, 36 and the courses will look at the organization of the Latin American family and community. The existing language courses for Spanish will be retained while a course in the translation of Spanish and Latin American literature will be created.

There are two ethnic studies courses that encompass all three ethnic groupings. Psychology 22 and 23 will pay particular interest in the psychological makeup of Minority groups. Ethnic Biology will explore the biological differences among the minority groups. Credit in most ethnic courses will be accepted by the University of California. All courses will be accepted by San Francisco and San Jose State colleges.

New Approach To Learning Shows Role Reversal

A new approach to learning will be attempted at City College this summer, when ghetto youths will instruct teachers in a role reversal relationship.

The experimental program is designed to show participating instructors that edueating the disadvantaged students requires new methods, and making them sensitive to the human and educational needs of persons residing in the ghettos.

The nature of the problem is such that middle-class educational values may often alienate more than aid the child, who has a baekground of poverty and cultural deprivation.

In the spring of 1968, a former student, Derriek Hill, originated a eourse in the Experimental College entitled Minority Group Membership, whieh limited enrollment to City College faeulty and administrators.

Hill's idea of edueating the edueated was to set up a course of study which ineluded informal seminars, recommended readings, guest speakers with diseussions afterwards and field trips to the ghettos of San Francisco.

This format is being used successfully at Golden Gate College by Instructor Ray Towbis and he will use the same eourse design at the summer institute.

All 20 institute participants will spend one week in each of the four ghettos of San Francisco with their ghetto instructors on a one-to-one basis, according to Don Peterson. Director of the Edueational Personnel Training Program at City College.

"The social economic strata of the ghetto student is like a student from a foreign country for some instructors," said Peterson. "The lack of understanding leads to the breakdown of eommunieation and therefore defeats the edueational process."

The institute will be held July 7 through August 1, and all interested applicants may contact Don Peterson at City College.

(From left to right): Steve Diener, Bill Levens, Lawrence Wong, Pete Briggs, Cliff Replogle, Roy Hammerich, Mike Raasch, Bruno Leuzinger, Les Porter, and Phyllis Beck.

Eight H & R Students Return After Trip to So. California

By Jaek Ruiz

Eight Hotel and Restaurant Department students returned to City College last week with their two instruetors after a fabulous trip down to Southern California.

The students were wined and dined at the finest hotels and restaurants and slept in luxurious accommodations throughout the trip. At the Los Angeles Biltmore, everyone had individual suites ("Wow"), and as they recounted their experiences, left their classmates green with envy.

The tour is sponsored jointly by the Northern California Hotel Association and the Southern California Restaurant Association. It performs a double service, giving the partieipating students an insight into all types of operations in the industry, and valuable eontacts are made for job opportunities.

They were well received at every stop and met many City College graduates along the way who are in responsible positions as Managers, Direetors, Presidents and Owners.

At the Collins Food International in Culver City they spent seven hours overseeing the operation, meeting the Company President, and other officials, and said it was one of the highlights of the trip.

They dined at the Scandia Restaurant in Los Angeles acclaimed as the finest restaurant in Southern California where reservations must be made six weeks in advance and it is open only at night between 5 and 10 p.m.

The largest hotel on the tour with beautiful aceommodations was the Sheraton-Universal Hotel in Universal City owned jointly by the movie studios and Sheraton chain with 800 rooms which will be expanded to 1800 rooms.

"I think it was a rewarding experience and a great eye opener" said Peter Briggs, one of the participants. "I wish that everyone in the department eould make this trip and it is an added incentive for future H and R students."

The one-week trip toured Santa Clara, Pebble Beach, Monterey, Carmel, Santa Barbara, Los Angeles, Beverly Hills, Hollywood, Universal City, Bakersfield and Fresno.

Making the trip were instructors Lawrence B. Wong and Roy Hammerieh, and students participating were Phyllis Beck, Michael Raasch, Leslie Porter, Peter Briggs, Steve Diener, Bill Lovens, Clifford Replogle, and Bruce Leuzinger.

Coil Program Motivates Many

(Continued from Page 1)

busier before midterms and on the hour. Those interested in browsing should visit COIL on the half hour between eight and five in C306.

Aside from Roberts and Mrs. Wolf, work-study students, sent by Joseph Amori, director of placement, help staff this project.

Three thousand dollars from the college budget is used to obtain materials.

Next semester, Roberts, working with the same budget, hopes to double materials and institute an all-day tutoring serviee in math, scienee and English in conjunetion with the Tutorial Center now on campus.

This tutorial service would be under the direction of Howard Schoon who is now in charge of the Tutorial Center.

COIL is faeed with the problem of laek of working space. Roberts hopes that next year the eampus will have two bungalows for COIL and the Tutorial Center working together.

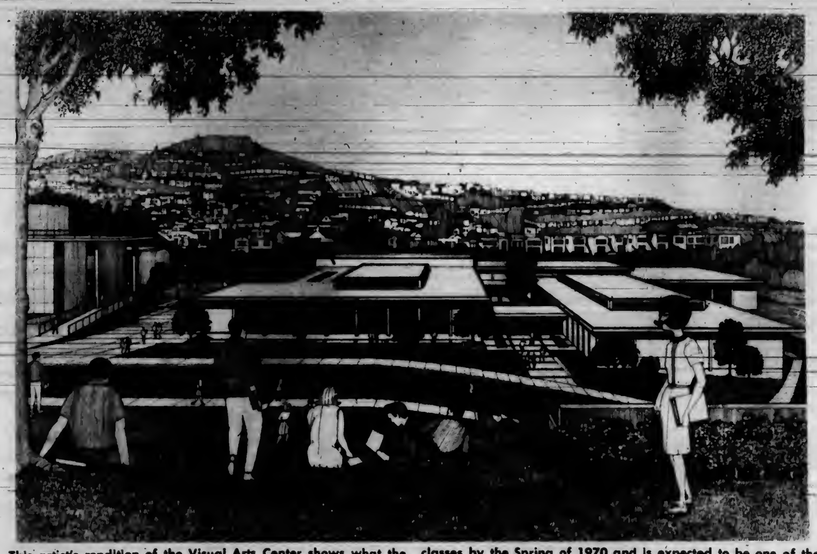
'Wonderful World Of Color'

Donna McDonald shows here second place trophy for Retail Floristry Open House display.

photo by Joe O'Brien

The Retail Floristry classes here held their 11th annual Open House Tuesday, April 15, with a group of advanced students setting up window displays based upon the theme "The Wonderful World of Color."

Each student chose a color for his window. Some of which were "Deep Purple" using a garden wall and patio scene. Danny Thomas won the Zappetini Award.



First prize was awarded to Donald Card for his study in green. He used a backdrop of the Golden Gate Bridge with arrangement of green flowers and foliage in a garden scene. Card also was awarded the Zappetini trophy for the abundance and quality of flowers.

Second prize went to Donna McDonald who grew sunflowers especially for the baekground of her yellow window. It featured yellow mum plants, yellow fence, a daisy table with a glass of lemonade on it. Miss McDonald also received the Victor Stein Memorial Scholarship at the dinner following Open House.

Jackie di Traparri won third prize with her Blue Heaven window. Musical chimes and an angel flying around amidst angel hair clouds were included with blue flower arrangements.

The next event in which the Retail Floristry students will take part in is the Teleflora Design School at the Jack Tar Hotel in San Francisco on Sunday, April 20th.

Campus Development Continues

This artist's rendition of the Visual Arts Center shows what the building will look like when it is completed. It will be ready for classes by the Spring of 1970 and is expected to be one of the finest buildings of its kind in the Western states.

Visual Arts Center Ready Next Spring

By Tom Graham

Editor's note:

In an attempt to give students an idea of what City College will look like in the near future, the Guardsman is writing a series of articles concerning the various phases of the campus-development program.

Initiated by the Board of Education of the San Francisco Unified School District in 1950, the program was designed to enable the College to improve both instruction and the appearance of the campus.

The Advertising Art and Design, the Printing Technology, and the Photography Departments here at City College have developed an unusually close working relationship, yet they have not been able to function with maximum effectiveness because their facilities are scattered; temporary; and, in some instances, inadequate.

To overcome this difficulty, the College allocated a portion of the funds made available to it through the San Francisco school-bond election of 1964 and a state construction grant to provide a new building containing all facilities necessary to the proper functioning of these departments.

Visual Arts Center

The building, to be known as the Visual Arts Center, is now under construction on a site east of the present Arts Building, and is scheduled to be completed in October of this year and ready for classes by the Spring of 1970.

The Center, which will be quite spacious (34,000 square feet), will cost $1,200,000 including equipment.

Facilities

The principal facilities in the Center will include: laboratories for the Photography, the Advertising Art and Design, and the Printing-Technology Departments; two theater-lecture rooms, one with a seating capacity of 280, the other with 160 seats; four classrooms, each

(Continued on Page 8)

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Journalism Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 68 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—WEDNESDAY, MAY 7, 1969 NUMBER 10

Library Obtains Federal Grant For Equipment

City College's library and audio-visual departments have been awarded federal grants estimated at about $60,000, according to head librarian Ethel Crockett.

Mrs. Crockett announced recently that the grant enabled her to order new books, films, tape recorders, projectors, records, and other equipment vital to the College.

The College received the money from the Library Resources Program, which comes under the Higher Education Act of 1965, and from the National Education Act of 1958.

Some of the immediate advantages will be the increase in the Ethnic Studies Department. The library will be able to buy books and film clips on Black, Latin American, and Chinese culture.

Fifteen thousand dollars has been set aside for new film which will be used for instruction in subjects such as history, social sciencee, psychology, biology, and engineering.

Another advantage is that this grant will cut down on rentals and mail service involving film needed for the different departments.

There will be seven new 16 m.m. movie projectors for classrooms, plus 10 super-eight cartridge loading projectors.

There will also be 20 Cassette playback recorders, five Wollensak tape recorders, five Carosel 35 m.m. slide projectors, and one microfilm printer to reproduce microfilm paper prints similar to the copy machines now in use.

Financial Aid Office Hopes To Extend Program for Fall

By Peter Cushman

Details of the financial aid activities planned for the fall semester have just been released by Kenneth Castellino, head of the Financial Aid office.

An expanded program is anticipated, depending on the funding authorized by the Federal Government, for City College. Castellino seemed especially hopeful that more National Defense Student Loans would become available.

Any assistance granted a student is generally based on need, grades being held to secondary importance, and generally the only requirement for eandidacy is that the student be enrolled and carrying at least half the full work load.

Since its inception in August of 1968, the college Financial Aid office has awarded over one million dollars in financial assistance. Castellino eagerly looks forward to an even greater achievement through increases in several areas of assistance, principally: Educational Opportunity Grants, National Defense Loans, and an expanded college work-study program.

Castellino stressed that for this semester, the only assistance still available is in the form of Federally insured loans.

Of particular importanee to teaching majors is the National Defense Student Loan program, which allows for a maximum of $1,000 per annum to be loaned to a participating student, in the form of twice yearly cash payments. Should a student decide to pursue a

(Continued on Page 8)

Petitions Due May 9

The deadline date for petitions for the Spring 1969 elections has been extended until May 9th.

Petitions may be obtained from the Election Commissioner in E109 and must contain the signatures of 15 members of the Associated Students along with their Associated Student Body Card numbers. All candidates must be approved by the Election Commissioner.

Elective offieers must be active members of the A.S. and must carry a 2.0 grade point average with a minimum of 12 units from the previous semester and during their term of office.

In the past, only nine to ten per cent of the school has turned out to vote, it is hoped that the elections on May 14 and 15, will draw larger crowds. The polls will be open from 7:45 a.m. to 2 p.m. Precincts will be set up at the discretion of the Election Commissioner.

Veterans who plan on returning to City College in the fall semester under the GI bill must file a certificate of attendance with the Veterans' office this month.

The eard must be in by the end of May or the veteran will receive no payment for eurrent or further enrollment in the autumn.

GI's who plan on attending summer session do not have to fill out the form but instead should report to the veteran's counselor in ES 202 during the first two or three days of class.

Students will be able to run classified ads in the Guardsman starting today. Local merchants may also advertise in the paper. For further information concerning rates turn to page 3.

—photo by Jerry Warren

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Weekly Publication of the Students in the Journalism Department of City College of San Francisco

Thomas O. Graham, Editor

184

Vol. 68, No. 10 WEDNESDAY, MAY 7, 1969 Page 2

Ethnic Studies

THE newly created Ethnic Studies Program, scheduled for the upcoming fall semester, will make City College the first junior college in California to offer a major in Afro-American Studies.

An Associate of Arts Degree will be conferred upon any student who completes a major course of study in Afro-American History before July 1, 1970. This will enable those individuals who complete the program here to apply and be considered for a provisional secondary teaching credential in Afro-American studies.

The college will also offer curriculums in Chinese and Latin American studies.

There will be two ethnic studies courses that will incorporate all three ethnic groups.

Psychology 22 and 23 will pay particular attention to psychological makeup and Ethnic Biology will explore the biological differences among the minority groups.

These additions have certainly expanded the already broad range of courses that the college offers.

Contact Lens

How Has President Nixon Done His First 100 Days?

Jerry Bolick, Psychology Major

I don't know, but he hasn't made me mad. I think he's holding back in his actions because of what happened in the Johnson administration. His approval of the anti-ballistic missiles shows what direction he's leaning toward, but that's the only thing I've been against. He's being very careful.

Anita Dulay, Medical Assistant Major

President Nixon hasn't done very much in his first 100 days; he just took over where Johnson left off. He hasn't accomplished much in the passing of legislation, or dealing with the war in Viet Nam, or slums, or pollution, or the draft. He closed off the job corps program; that wasn't a good idea.

Walt Sundberg, Dental Technology Major

His idea of trying to save money by closing down the job corps program is going to create more hazards for the unemployed. He should create a program that will benefit the minority and low class people instead of putting them on welfare because we are facing such great technological progress.

Pat Bretzer, Social Science Major

He didn't do much about the incident involving North Korea. He increased the defense, but he just reduced it again. I didn't really care for his decision on the anti-ballistic missiles, but it's here now and there's not much we can do about it. He hasn't made me angry yet, but he still has three years.

Gordon Shiozaki, Architectural-Engineer Major

I think he should take more action. He hasn't done much about Viet Nam nor has he done much domestically. He could not do much in the North Korean incident because we would have become involved in another Viet Nam. We're trying to stop a war, not create one.

Arleen Zunig, General Education Major

He's been very shaky. He's under pressure, but he's got to make decisions and some people won't like those decisions. His decision in the anti-ballistic missiles is dumb, but I guess it's practical because this way countries with them will counteract against one another.

Compiled, photographed by Lavine Lee.

Are Grades Necessary?

(Editor's note: The following editorial appeared in Science, September 20, 1968. It raises the question of grading in our educational institutions.)

College grades and grading systems have become targets of criticism for several reasons. Before the rules concerning student deferment were changed earlier this year, some students objected to the release of grades to draft boards. Grades have symbolized objective examinations, machine records, and other efficient devices and practices that critics have sometimes indicated as evidence of the dehumanization and regimentation of higher education. And students have objected to having permanent grade records given by instructors from whom they feel alienated for courses they consider irrelevant.

There is irony in this situation. Students sometimes complain of the impersonality of undergraduate instruction, and often justly so. Yet in the impersonality of language laboratories, computer - assisted instruction, and other "teaching stations" that provide the student with a range of instructional material and with rapid feedback to his responses is to be found the best hope of achieving the maximum individualization of instruction—each student (given the time he needed) could master each course he took. What then would course grades mean?

There is further irony, for many instructors are also skeptical of the grading system. That grading standards vary widely among institutions, departments and instructors is generally known; a student's grade in a particular course is at best an imperfect measure of what he knows of the course content. When college grades are used to predict success in later life, the correlations usually turn out to be too close to zero to be of much practical use. The scores received by graduating students on tests of the Graduate Record Examination, whether in the humanities, the natural sciences, or the social sciences, appear to be nearly independent of available measures of university or college quality or excellence, after account is taken of differences among students at the time of college admission. (Alexander Astin, Science August 16, 1968).

In short, a student's accomplishment in college and later is primarily determined by his own ability, knowledge, and motivation, and at best only slightly by the characteristics of his teachers and his college. This state of affairs is no exeuse for abandoning efforts to improve teaching and educational facilities. But it does mean that students cannot escape responsibility by explaining their own deficiences in terms of instructor or college inadequacies; and that students can therefore be given substantial responsibility for deciding whether they are to be graded.

The practice of allowing students to take some courses without credit or without grades is spreading. The practice is not one to be made universal and mandatory, for grades provide somestudents with standards for self-appraisal and for motivation, and they provide the institution with comparative information concerning students. But educational effectiveness and the ability to make institutional decisions concerning the earning of college degrees do not require that grades be given to all students in all courses. A student has wide latitude in deciding which courses to take, how assiduously to apply himself and how long to remain in a course or in college.

Why should he not also be permitted to decide whether he is to be graded, and even whether he is to receive a certificate of enrollment for a specified period of time instead of a grade record and degree?

—Dael Wolfle

City College's Communication Medias Serve To Be Heard, Create and Inform

By Gerry Engler

Most students at City College find out about campus news through at least one of the three sources of news media.

The least used of the three medias is the student-run closed circuit radio station KCSF. This station can only be heard in Smith Hall.

The purpose of the station is to provide on the job training for students who plan to make the field of broadcasting their career.

Many students might be unaware that such a station exists, but it does and can be heard in Smith Hall from 8 a.m. to 11 a.m.

Newest arrival to the campus is the Free Critic started by Lawrence Lazore. When the paper first came into being, it was given a page on the Guardsman.

Now the paper comes out on its own on every other Monday. Its purpose is to try to solve problems not just present them.

This semester, the Free Critic was given a new look. According to Kevin Shea the last few issues were devoted to finding out about people and if they know who they are.

A good example is the interview by Dudley Yasuda. If the reader was to pose the questions to himself he would realize the Free Critic's theme.

The Free Critic also gives Artists a chance to express themselves. There are few beginners given a chance to have their art printed, because it would be a disservice to themselves.

Critic editors want writers who have a message and solution because there has been enough written on the problems already.

There is also the Guardsman, a student publication written by the students of journalism.

With a circulation of 6,000 copies the Guardsman is able to reach a majority of the students who want to find out what is going on in their school.

Objective writing is the purpose of the reporters. The purpose of the paper is to print unbiased news to inform the readers.

All segments of school functions are printed.

For the first time in City College history, the Guardsman came out with eight page editions. At first a discussion about the eight pager brought out the possibility of a bi-weekly four page edition.

All three stems of news media are on campus for the use of the students. All would like to hear comments regarding the good points and the bad points of their certain media.

Notes of interest: KCSF has repeatedly broadcast the same information recently even though the events have passed. Beginning in the next edition, the Guardsman will go into advertising.

Housing Problem

It seems as though humans are not the only creatures in this world who have housing problems. However, the life of an alligator is much less complex than that of human beings. Housing has always been a major problem in our society and of others and no wonder, 57 percent of our nation is considered to be in the lower class.

Guardsman Photo by Samuel Woo

Associate in Arts Degrees To Be Given to 855 Students

By Lavine Lee

Approximately 855 students will be graduating and receiving Associate in Arts degrees from City College this June, according to Gertrude Somerville, registrar. How did they accomplish this great feat? They simply fulfilled all the graduation requirements.

The following are the requirements established by the Board of Education of the State of California and the faculty of this college for graduation from this campus.

In the American-Institutions, U.S. History, and state and local government requirements, a student must pass either Political Science 36 or 56, or a combination of Political Science 1 and Economics 10 or History 17A or 17B.

The student must either have passed the English entrance test or Business 70 or 74 or 75, or Communications G5B or G6 or G12, or Engineering 56 to satisfy the English requirement.

Passing the mathematics entrance test or Business 60 or 61, or math E is the requirement in mathematics.

Unless the student is exempt from the personal health requirement, he must pass Health 22 or 23 or G31 or G32 of G33, or Medical Assisting 50, or Nursing 50.

In the physical education requirement, the student is required to pass four courses in a physical education activity, unless he is exempt from this requirement.

The completion of 20 or more units in satisfying the general-education breadth requirements of a California state college or the University of California's breadth requirements of the College of Letters and Science; or completion of 20 or more units in the student's particular field of study is the major requirement.

In the unit requirement, the student must have completed at least 60 units of lower-division college work.

The maintenance of an average final grade of C (2.00 grade-point-average) is a requirement in all courses the student is offering for credit toward graduation.

In case you have completed all of the above requirements, and you decide to file your petition for graduation, it is too late; the deadline was February 28, 1969. But there's always next semester, and next semester, and next semester, and . . . (If you want to stick around here, that's your hangup).

For further information, contact your counselor or, if you want, invest 50 cents and buy a City College catalogue.

Guardsman Takes Classified

Bulletin boards are a thing of the past. If you want to buy or sell something with the least amount of trouble and the most effective results—place your ad in the classified section of the Guardsman, it's 50 cents a line (two line minimum).

ANNOUNCEMENTS

HOUSING

LOST & FOUND

AUTOMOTIVE

PERSONALS

FOR SALE

SERVICES

HELP WANTED

TRANSPORTATION

This is your chance to sell that Edsel that you've been trying to get rid of since 1958 or buy that item you've been scrimping for all year long. Classified ads are due 4 p.m. the Wednesday prior to publication. To place an ad, go to the information booth on the first floor, Science Building (S117) open daily from 11 a.m.-1 p.m.

What Happened Here?!

No, there wasn't an earthquake. This disaster was man made. With the building of the underground Rapid Transit, the overground transit has left much to be desired. Congestion and confusion reigns above the tunnel. The noise level on Market street is almost unbearable. Even the Ferry Building does little to beautify the picture because of the crane that blocks out part of it. Overhead wires are strewn over the wooden roadway for the use of the electric buses only to have been knocked down by a careless crane operator. The only point in favor of construction is the clickety-clack of the streetcars which remind many of the once great railroads of the past.

Guardsman photo by Samuel Woo

Letters to the Editor

Rams Horn

Well, Editor:

I think you went too damn far this time. You can really get upset at those Cornell students but before you blow your top next time look at the facts.

A burning cross was erected in front of a black girl's residence, a recent fire at a fraternity house (all white) revealed a substantial number of guns, radio reports of vigilante groups were heard by black students occupying the building. Given those factors wouldn't you have a gun too?

As a former journalism student, I find that this is a poor example of editorial writing. Your reactionary racism disgusts me almost as much as your disregard for truthful reporting.

Where are you loudmouths when the National Guard murders American citizens? I can tell you about a black brother who was afraid to turn on the lights or go near the windows in his home because of his civil rights activities in Alabama. No, the "great" state of California. Get hip, if you're not part of the solution, you're part of the problem, editor.

James R. Wochot

Editor's Reply

Mr. Wochot asks me to "look at the facts next time before you blow your top." What would he have to say if I told him that the facts are what caused me to write the article in the first place?

The reason that I came on so strong against the trouble at Cornell is because I feel that weapons don't belong on campus. If that's being a "reactionary racist" then in Mr. Wochot's definition I am.

The point is that weapons have been introduced into college life—and I don't care who's doing it—it's wrong in my opinion. I'm afraid that if there were more people who thought like Mr. Wochot, no one would be allowed to express their opinions except those who agreed with him.

I don't agree with Mr. Wochot's opinion but at least the Guardsman can't be accused of limiting opinion.

KSAN's own Roland Young

Guardsman Photo by Jerry Warren

Former Student Gives Talk

Roland Young, KSAN disc jockey, visited City College recently, and spoke before a broadcasting class in the Arts Hall.

Young, a controversial figure, has a different slant on radio, believing that there should be no restrictions except each person should do his thing.

His show is 65 per cent rock and 35 percent Classical-Jazz and middle of the road stuff.

Young does not believe in colleges because they're not relevant to things as they are. He himself has completed his time at City College. Then he dropped out of San Francisco State College, 17 units short of his political science degree.

Young plays the alto and tenor sax but says they're not used in college orchestra. He calls college orchestrations "lame," as they do not allow full expression of feelings.

He had no previous broadcasting experience but submitted an audition to the station. Young didn't know the equipment, but he fumbled through it and learned.

These days, Young is on the air from ten at night until two in the morning.

Women's News

Irish Shillelagh

You're having trouble with your boyfriend and-or dates. You're trying to talk them into getting married (after all, you're not getting any younger), but they don't want to.

Want to forget your troubles? Here's one sure way of doing it: just sit back, relax, and enjoy yourself; have an Irish Shillelagh.

Irish Shillelagh
Juice of ½ lemon
1 teaspoon powdered sugar
½ ounce sloe gin
1½ ounce Irish Whiskey
½ ounce rum
2 slices of peach

Shake well with cracked ice, and strain into a five ounce punch glass. Decorate with fresh raspberry, strawberries, and a cherry.

The longest reign as the "best-dressed woman" was 15 years (1938-1953) by the Duchess of Windsor.

ISC To Hold Annual Dance

The Inter Sorority Council will present their new members at their annual Cotillion to be held, May 16, ISC President Jayne Nelson reported.

Yvonne So and Valerie Hughes will be the two new sisters presented by Theta Tau. Because these are the only two pledges being presented, the dance will be more of a social event for all of the sisters.

All students are welcome to attend the dance which will be held at the Claremont Hotel in Berkeley.

Tickets may be purchased from Dean Edna Pope in E106, through Friday or may be bought at the door at $5 per couple.

This traditional dance comes after Rush Week and Pledge Week. During Rush Week, held in March, both on-campus sororities, Phi Beta Rho and Theta Tau, set up booths around campus with displays on their sorority and during Pledge Week, last month, potential members demonstrated their sincerity in wanting to become members.

Here's Lookin' Atcha

EYE CATCHERS—Richard Anvari a chemistry major, here, has an unusual hobby of making "rings and things" out of glass eyes. Two items from his collection (pictured above) include a ring for your pinky and a bookmarker for your latest horror novel. Richard feels he has an "eye" for art and displays his creations for his own enjoyment. However, he did mention that if his art pieces caught the eye of a potential buyer—he might be persuaded to part with them. (Photo by Samuel Woo)

Frances Braunworth

Louise Delnevo

Two 'Coins' in a 'Fountain' of Youth

By Randy Flynn

A warm smile and a friendly greetings have always been highly valued, but when those smiles and words endure early classes, finals and even student unrest, they become priceless indeed.

For more than 15 years, two ladies have come to work each morning in the Hotel and Restaurant Department of the college to brighten the day for hundreds of students.

Frances Braunworth has had a smile and a cheery word for every student she has served for the past 24 years, as has Louise Delnevo, serving students for 17 years.

Mrs. Braunworth and Mrs. Delnevo work as cashiers in Smith Hall and are waiting for students when they arrive at 7:30 a.m.

Anyone who has worked with the public for any length of time can appreciate the power of endurance possessed by the two ladies. Those who haven't only know how much their smiles can mean.

In the words of George Spencer, one of hundreds of early morning coffee gulpers, "They have wonderful attitudes. They are cordial, willing to help and most of all, they treat students with respect."

But what about rewards? While on a summer vacation in Hawaii, Mrs. Delnevo recognized a young man as a former student she had served. Both ladies have been remembered as "the lady in Smith Hall" many times over.

To be remembered by students now grown and often married is a great reward in itself. The faces of beautiful people never fade.

Many contributions have been made to the students of City College since it opened in 1935, but possibly the greatest of all has been two familiar faces that add a little sunshine to the foggiest day. (Photos by Samuel Woo)

Guest Speaker Talks On Poise

Toni Dahl, a representative from the Patricia Stevens Finishing School will speak tomorrow at 11 a.m. in the E-101 Lecture Hall.

All women students, faculty members and staff members, are invited to hear Miss Dahl speak on grooming, wardrobe, posture, cosmetics and make-up.

She is being sponsored by the Associated Women Students. Laurie Chan, a student at CCSF who is taking a course at Patricia Stevens Finishing School, was responsible for lining-up this speaker.

The AWS hopes to have half of the hour for presentation by Miss Dahl and the remaining time for a question and answer period.

This may be the beginning of a program of in depth meetings that have real meaning for the women on this campus, Dean Edna Pope stated.

AWS officers are Hattie Knox, President, Norma Wonocott, Vice President, Susan Swearinger, Recording Secretary, Gladys Cooks, Historian, Helen Yee, Treasurer and Constance Henderson, Corresponding Secretary.

ACADEMIC SENATE
meets today, 3 p.m. in the Educational Services Building, Room E-104.

STUDY IN SECLUSION—this coed found a quiet spot to read what seems to be a very interesting book. What we're trying to figure out is—what's the name of the book.
(photo by Tony Ragadio)

At the Movies

The Decline and Fall of Our Dear Ghoul Friends!

By Ray Gin

Several weeks ago, a film in the horror genre entitled "Dracula Has Risen From His Grave" swept onto the local screens and left with the same promptness it came. The publicity ads read "The last time we left Dracula, he had a stake through his heart. You just can't keep a good man down." The resulting box-office receipts was the disastrous stake this time and Dracula sadly retreated back to his musty crypt.

In restrospect, there hasn't been a single successful horror movie (with the possible exception of "Rosemary's Baby") in the past several years. Such film greats as King Kong, Rodan, Godzilla, Frankenstein, and The Fly have lost their place on the theatre marquees. What has caused the prolonged suppression accorded to these monster film sagas?

There are many answers, but the most obvious is that the times are changing. Time has made present-day audiences break out in guffaws over what seemed to be serious thrillers in the '40s and '50s. We fail to see them in the conventions of their period and realize the impact they had on the audience then. Our sociological atmosphere defeats the survival of this monstrous film lot. The credo today is realism and the human condition. The visual effects of the monsters do not register the same shock we receive when we view a film that is attacking our human frailties. We are less interested in what lies in the darkly mysterious or in the fantastic than we are in the self-debasing elements and banality of our own lives.

Films like "Faces" and "The Shame" bare the human condition to its ugliest. The stripping away of our psychological and sociological makeup seems much more horrifying because we become the victims rather than some obscure character on the screen battling with a physical monster. Such realistic self-awaredness deadens the escapist mystique hovering over the horror epics.

Indeed, because of such sophistication towards realism, the evasiveness and eeriness of the supernatural appear superfluous and outright ludicrous. For example, when Frankenstein came through that creaky chamber door in the '30s, people by the millions gasped and fainted from the shock of such a despicable character. Today it is merely high camp. In fact, a Broadway musical is being planned from Mary Shelley's classic creation. Julian Beck of The Living Theatre has utilized Frankenstein as the mouthpiece for a philosophical play. It seems tragic, since I have a nostalgic attachment to this incredulous lot, that the monsters of the cinema are being satirized and misused so unaffectionately. We were in good company for four hours on a lazy Saturday afternoon. To see old friends tossed to the wayside seems almost sacriligious to the sacred order of the monsters.

What was our strange union with these creatures composed of? Part of this bond was our complete submergence in fantasy. We used to relish the fantastical odds against man when he was pitted with a monster gigantis. How the monsters strategically move and man's tactics to evade the move was an art form. We participated in the fantastical ritualistic battles and knew the odds-on favorite was the humanoid. Unknowingly, these epics were satisfactory in releasing our Olympian impulses.

But today, these films have lost their power to horrify and delude us with fantasy. We are dismissing the array of the fantastic because we also live in an age of violence. The excessive blood and viscera splashed on the screen has conditioned us to be less shocked when we see King Kong's crushing of the people with his paws or human beings being eaten alive by the enlarged pterydacl, Rodan.

Even the so-called "elite" group of monster actors were aware of the demise of the horror film. Boris Karloff is a notable example.

Since our age is turning towards rationalism, I think that is more the reason why we should have the monster epics as a therapeutic outlet of fantasy. Also, when people point to the television set and the accompanying late, late shows for the horror films they miss the point of these films. The desired effect and the director's intent in a horror movie is that the simulated terrors be projected in a hypnotically, eerie, darkness of a theater. This psychological setting seems much more appropriate. But as it is, the horror movies seem to have lost their power to terrorize. And what will we say to the children of the next generation when they ask us about the horror films? "Yes, Virginia, There really was a Dracula!"

Bookstore Theft Now On The Rise

Theft in the Associated Students Bookstore is a continually growing thing, Richard Main, bookstore manager, reported.

There are various "lookouts" and plainclothesmen throughout the bookstore which help a great deal in catching those who have been picking up items.

Bookstores throughout the United States reported from one to four percent of sales have been pilferage. "This figure used to be two or two and a half percent," Main stated, "but as you grow this is normal."

College administrators are aware of this bookstore thievery and students caught are being punished according to the seriousness of the theft. Some students have been expelled.

Dean of Students, Ralph Hillsman said that "students who do these thoughless acts don't realize the severity of such actions. Some penalties are disciplinary measures which would reflect quite negatively against the student and jeopardize his college career as a result."

Those doing the stealing should be cautioned that they are being watched and being caught. Dean Hillsman stated that all students should be cautioned that they are the unwilling helpers of those who steal by making their books and belongings available.

Those who steal, Dean Hillsman said, take advantage of crowded situations such as in the library and cafeteria. During finals, while students are selling their used books, there is a great amount of loss.

Students are advised to keep their books in their possession during finals. During this time some students will pick up books, belonging to someone else, and sell the books to the Bookstore for a clear profit.

Students should always be able to identify their books, Dean Hillsman commented, by having their name plainly written and with an identifying mark they can verify.

MALE DANCERS NEEDED

No training necessary to perform in the Black Light Explosion Company under the direction of Zack Thompson.

Auditions held Wednesdays 4-6 p.m. in the Womens Gym. For more information, contact Grace Yamaguchi at 386-4299.

Sundial

Time is the essence.
(photo by Jules Classens)

JOAN BAEZ

FLYING HIGH in the loving arms of Joan Baez, a young boy at a recent Santa Clara concert enjoys a dose of affection from the top-rated female vocalist. Her songs fit the times and collectively reflect her involved and recently tragic life. Her direction: straight ahead. (photo by Jerry Warren)

Labelled And Recorded

Classical Music Influences Dominate New Rock Releases

by Martin J. Arbunich

SEA TRAIN (A&M 4171): A new group made up of musicians from the late Blues Project, Jim Kweskin band, and the Mystery Trend. Their performances here is a blend of jazz and classical influences. Richard Greene's violin, the most unique side of the group, is the driving force that keeps the music soaring. The arrangements are often in the form of theme-and-variation (on the beautiful "Sweet Creek's Suite," for example), changing tempo and mood frequently without disrupting the precision and flow of the music. Sea Train has delicately woven some delightful songs into an impressive debut album.

TONGUE AND GROOVE (Fontana 67593): Yet-to-be-exalted San Francisco band that plays blues well and has probably the finest female blues vocalist since Janis Joplin—Lynne Hughes. She always seems composed, yet manages to churn plenty of excitement. "Devil," "Sidetrack," and "Come On in My Kitchen," Miss Hughes' own compositions, are her best efforts. Her rendition of Mance Lipscomb's "Cherry Ball (Shake Shake Mama)" is also beautiful. The piano of Michael Ferguson, once a member of the Charlatans, is multi-tracked in some numbers, providing the rhythm source as well as some dazzling keyboard virtuoso sections.

PROCOL HARUM — "A Salty Dog" (A&M 4179): The group continues its excellence in recording with this record, more a group effort with arrangements and singing than in previous albums. The influences of classical music are not as evident here as in the past, though two of the best track ("A Salty Dog" and "Wreck of the Hesperus") use classical melodies. Pianist Gary Brooker, the high-point of this record, delivers a superb performance as does Barrie Wilson, their multi-styled and economical drummer.

THE NICE—Ars Longa Vita Brevis" (Immediate 1252020): After listening to this record, I can find no reason to question why a British rock magazine poll recently put the Nice behind only the Cream and Jimi Hendrix for performance. Keith Emerson, rated England's best rock organist in the same poll, maneuvers the trio with his exceptional keyboard wizardry. His best work is found on the classicaladaptations "America" and "Karelia Suite." The latter is one of the most beautiful instrumentals I've ever heard; Emerson starts with a few droplets of sound from his organ and works himself through a swirling maze and finally steers back into an involved communicating rhythm.

The title song, a long instrumental threaded together by a series of four movements, is an abstract piece that can be difficult to grasp. Listening to it as a suite, rather than dissecting it into distinct melodies, isn't easy; but familiarity with the composition inevitably breeds appreciation. This record is a superb example of progressive rock and a captivating exploit of classical music.

This weekend: Santana, Cold Blood, and Allmen Joy play the Fillmore West. Next week: Creedence Clearwater Revival and the Bangor Flying Circus.

Don't Go Hungry!
THE SMITH HALL CAFETERIA WILL BE CLOSED DURING THE 5:30 P.M. DINNER HOUR ON MONDAY

SPORTS DESK

By Sports Editor, Phil DiCarlo

THE ABA CRISIS

Two years ago, a new basketball league made its way into the bludgeoning world of professional sports. The other pro cage league, the National Basketball Association, was beginning to do right well for itself, but not after years of struggle. With lots of money, to carry them through the lean years, the new league owners sought to get in on a good thing, while stating that they wanted to bring the game to cities that deserved a major league team.

George Mikan, a grand old name in pro basketball was picked as the Commissioner for the new league. Franchises were doled out and players selected. Customers weren't that easy to get though. The '67-'68 season saw overflow crowds of two and three hundred fans fighting to get into the second-rate arenas where the ABA was in action.

This past season has been much better. A few of the franchises were shifted, the populace became more aware, some new players were added and a superstar became a part owner and main attraction. The New Jersey Americans became the New York Nets, Pittsburgh's Pipers (the League Champs!!) became Minnesota's Pipers (and might move to New Jersey this year), while the Minnesota Muskies transferred to Miami where they're known as the Floridians. (The Houston Mavericks have switched their franchise to North Carolina recently.) Attendance has risen in some of the league's towns with the addition of new faces and a year of experience gained by most teams. But the single most important change the ABA ever made was acquiring Rick Barry, the San Francisco Warriors great sharp-shooting forward. The handsome, white Barry had made quite a name for himself after only a couple of seasons in the NBA. His jump to the upstart pro league caused a considerable amount of shock in the sports world, to say the least. Franklin Mieuli, the Warrior owner, still hasn't recovered.

Jim Farnham
—Jens Protze Photo

Now we happen to think that the ABA has a few fine ballplayers (very few) who could play in the NBA. Connie Hawkins, Mel Daniels, Jimmy Jones and Barry, of course, could make the switch. Louie Dampier, the Oaks' Warren Armstrong, Roger Brown and Bob Netolicky might be able to crack the elite also. We're not alone in our opinion—no less than Bob Cousy, who declined to coach the Nets, remarked that there are some good players in the ABA (again we say, very few).

One thing we wonder about concerns the divisional playoffs in the ABA this year. All eight teams were tied at either two or three games apiece. Could the play-offs have been set-up? Prolonging the play-offs would bring in more money for the participating teams. Na, it couldn't have been rigged, the Oaks beat New Orleans four straight didn't they? Well, didn't they?

A few parting shots—we hate to mention the red, white and blue striped ball the ABA uses, or the horrible (you wouldn't believe it) officiating, or the sweatshirts the officials wear, but we must mention Penny Ann Early. Last week we wrote about the lady jockettes and how one of the first was hired by the Kentucky Colonels of the ABA when she failed to secure mounts at Churchill Downs. For a struggling league, trying to build an image, it seemed to be a foolish thing to do—especially since Miss Early missed both shots she attempted.

THE HAWK IS VINDICATED

We were dismayed to hear that Ken Harrelson reneged on the proposed trade between Cleveland and Boston because of monetary reasons. Relenting, after a long talk with new commissioner Bowie Kuhn and others, the Hawk has joined the Indians. Now he announces that all income derived from personal appearances (Harrelson has been swamped with offers) will be donated to various charities in Cleveland. Big-hearted Ken (he's back in our good graces), says all the money will go to Catholic Charities Inc., the Council of Churches, the NAACP and Urban League, the United Jewish Appeal, Rainbow Babies and Children's Hospital of Cleveland. You covered all the bases Hawk . . . Jim Farnham, the gutsy defensive halfback and place-kicker, will play at Nevada Southern next year. Big Mike Streich, the monstrous tackle from the 1967 squad, is Sac State bound. He gets married on August 10th . . . FRISBEE lovers, the first annual inter-collegiate frisbee tournament will be held at Sonoma St. tomorrow, May 8. There are NO entrance fees and prizes will be given to the winners. The college is located at 1801 East Cotati Ave., Rohnert Park, California . . . Happy Birthday Claire . . . Have you checked out the new Sears Point Raceway up near Vallejo? It's a terrific set-up. Great way to spend the day . . . Our Roller Derby man keeps reminding us that fast action and excitement is the name of the game when it comes to Roller Derby. The Bay Bombers are the best team in the country—so he says . . . We made a big mistake last week—we said that the Ram four-mile relay team did not have a record time of 17:26.6. We was wrong. Unfortunately, the record has since been broken by I-A Valley. But our boys did have it! . . . With the Giants doing so well, do you find yourself thinking about pennants again? We do . . . drat it!

Tracksters Travel to Fresno for West Coast Annual Relays This Saturday

By Pat Chan

With a successful fifth place finish at the Northern California Relays already behind them, the Ram tracksters will next travel on down to Fresno for the annual West Coast Relays this Saturday.

The meet will act as the final major turning point for the cindermen, who are now in preparation for the REALLY big track clashes of the season—the Northern California and State Championships.

Colleges from every section of California will be represented in what could be a sneak preview of what to expect at the Modesto state finals, two weeks hence.

In order to qualify for the West Coast Relays, an athlete or relay team must possess among the top 18 times recorded in California in their event.

Unfortunately for coach Lou Vasquez, the four-mile relay is NOT among the events listed for the Fresno meet. Until recently the Rams had the nation's best time for relay with a 17:26.6.

Los Angeles Valley completely demolished that with a new low of 17:00.4!

CCSF will still have a good chance to display its long-distance runners though, while Merritt College is also expected to show those Southern Californian speedburners what speed really is.

Merritt, of course, has the best chance of taking the meet with the Nation's best JC times in the 440, 880 and mile relays. The T-Birds also have the GGC's best clocking in the sprint medley relay with a 3:27.5.

Incidentally, Merritt won the conference's round robin track crown with a perfect 7-0 record while CCSF tied for third place alongside San Mateo with a 4-3 effort. San Jose City College and Foothill tied for second at 5-2.

The Guardsman
SPORTS

Record high-jumper Clyde Sadler sets bar during practice. Sadler leaped 6'10" at NorCal Relays.
—Bill Paul Photo

Hernandez, Tracy Pace Rams To All-GGC Meet 2nd Place

By Pat Chan

Long distance runners Humberto Hernandez and Jim Tracy each set new stadium records in the one and two-mile events at the All-Conference meet on Saturday. It wasn't enough to defeat Merritt, though, as City College finished in second place with 104¾ points.

The T-Birds, already winners of the league's round robin season, took the All-GGC meet with 140¾ points.

Hernandez, who has been improving all year, climaxed the spring by winning the mile run in 4:17.3, shattering the old stadium record of 4:18.3. Klaus Hoffmann was right in back of Hernandez, finishing at 4:17.6.

Jim Tracy also set a new stadium record, this being in the two mile, with a clocking of 9:19.6. It topped the former record of 9:30.7 held by Ted Lydon of CSM by almost 12 seconds!

Bob Darling and Vic Cary ALSO broke the old stadium mark in the two-mile with 9:27.6 and 9:27.2 clockings.

CCSF failed to place in the 880.

The biggest story outside the lungbusters performance though, was the stunning upset of Clyde Sadler in the high jump. Sadler finished second with a leap of 6-4 to Dave Fishbaugh's (Chabot) 6-6.

It is even more surprising when one takes in consideration his 6-10¼ leap at the NorCal relays last week.

City College still managed to put on a good show in the jumping events though. In the triple jump, one of the Rams' strongest events this season, August Berry took the gold with a 47¼ leap while hurdler Don Bruce finished third at 45-8.

Bruce also took a third in the 120HH with a wind-aided time of 14.9.

Tom Clyburn rounded out the individual scoring with a second place 21-11 in the long jump.

In the relays CCSF did surprisingly well, finishing second to Merritt in the 440 relay and fourth in the mile.

Warren Edmonson had his usual good day for Merritt, establishing meet or stadium records every time he ran. He figured in some 25 points altogether for the T-Birds winning the 100 in 9.4, the 220 in 21.6 and running legs on the 440 (41.1) and mile relays (47.6).

Sports Quiz

1. Mark Spitz is noted for what sport?
2. Who was awarded the Heisman Trophy for outstanding college football player in 1967?
3. How many times has Mickey Mantle been chosen as the American League's Most Valuable Player?
4. What hockey team has won the most Stanley Cup championships?
5. The U.S.A. won its only Winter Olympics in what year?
6. Who won the high-jump event during the 1968 Summer Olympics in Mexico City?

(Answers on next page)

Hackers Defeat Vikings

In the style of a ninth-inning rally, the Ram Golf Team caught up with and defeated Diablo Valley College, 23½ to 11½, last Tuesday afternoon.

It was a great day for golf and the conditions at Concord's Municipal Park were excellent for all golfers.

Gregg Corvi led the Ram contingent with a 77, while dependable Ken Kundert and Paul Rea came in at 78 and 79 respectively. John Susko and Duane Cosper had scores in the low eighties.
—M. Chan

Freshman Flash—Rick Cole is pictured getting one of his many strike-outs. At the far left Cole winds up, fires the ball and then follows through. Results: another K. Notice the umpire's right hand and leg. That batter is out!
—Photos by Bert Flowers

Laney Here Tomorrow For Diamond Finale

Ernie Domecus' Ram baseballers will end a disappointing season tomorrow afternoon against fourth-place Laney College at Balboa Park. The game originally slated to be played in Oakland was switched, due to a schedule change.

With a 6-11 record at press time, the Rams hope to edge the Eagles for a first-division berth. Laney, thus far, is two games out in front of CCSF.

The Oaklanders possess a pretty fair ball club, currently they rank No. 4 in the GGC's team batting average with a .235 figure. In 17 games they've scored 78 times.

In the pitching department Laney is pretty well set, with some fine talent in Mark Reeser and reliefer Mike Price. Reeser has fanned 76 batters in only 63 innings to rank second in the GGC in this category. He's 4-4 and has a 3.14 ERA.

Fireman Mike Price may be no strikeout artist (he has only 10 K's in 21 innings), but he possesses a respectable 2.14 ERA, along with a 2-0 record.

The Eagles also have two fine hitters in Jerry Vitatoe (.344) and Larry Lintz (.311), the league's No. 4 and 9 batters.

CCSF has split the two previous games played against Laney, winning, 4-2 and losing, 3-4.
—P. Chan

T-Birds Beat Ram Batsman

Dave Kline's three hits and Tom Mayfield's two seemed to be of no use as Merritt batsmen ripped 15 hits, three of them home runs, to lift themselves to victory over CCSF, 11-8, last Tuesday.

Nine hits (two home runs) were charged to starting pitcher John Portoni, who lasted only four innings. Reliever Irv Jones was taken out three and two-thirds innings later after giving up six hits, including one home run. Freshman Rick Cole stepped in and put the fire out, allowing no more hits and striking out the side in the eighth.

Merritt's catcher displayed a slight temper by huring his bat against the backstop after striking out in the ninth. After being warned earlier about keeping a "cool head," he received an immediate heave-ho by the plate umpire.

Rick Cole later apologized for striking the catcher out.
—Edwards

Outfield To Lose 'Magic Glove'

City College's baseball team will be in search of a centerfielder next season to replace graduating sophomore Manny Berrios (known to teammates as Burritos).

Berrios, a graduate of Balboa High, is said to possess a "magic glove." Any ball hit in the vicinity of centerfield is as good as caught.

Berrios has only two legs, but the two he has are speedy and enable him to beat-out bunts, steal bases, and chase long fly balls.

At the plate, Berrios is the man who will come through in the clutch, as he did in the second game against Merritt. With no score and two men on base in the sixth inning, Berrios stepped to the plate and sent one over the left-center fence 400 feet away.

Batting close to the 300 mark, Berrios leads the team in homeruns with two, has four doubles, and one triple.

Berrios' future looks a bit fuzzy. When he turns age 21 he'll become a San Francisco policeman.

At left: The Rams' top slugger, Manny Berrios, steps to the plate. Below left: Berrios slides, headlong, into third base for a triple. Below: Congrats from John Portoni.
—Photos by Bert Flowers

Coming Events

Thursday (May 8)
BASEBALL — CCSF vs. Laney at Balboa Park, 3 p.m.

Friday (May 9)
TRACK — West Coast Relays at Fresno (and Sat.)

Saturday (May 10)
WOMEN'S TRACK — Second annual Women's Invitational Track Meet at San Jose State.

Wednesday May 14)
TRACK — Northern California trials at Modesto.

WEEKEND SCORES

BASEBALL

Backed by an impressive ten strikeout six-hitter by Rich Heintz, City College's Ram Baseballers destroyed second place Chabot's dream of a league title, by defeating the Gladiators, 12-5, on May 1.

The defeat put Chabot two games in back of College of San Mateo, the league leader, with only two games to play.

Heintz, in one of his best outings of the season, got his second win of the year, as opposed to four losses. He had to pitch against tough competition, though, as he faced the Glad's Dave Barnum. Going into the game, Barnum had a four and two record with a sparkling 1.80 ERA.

The Ram "wrecking crew" really went to work as they banged out 17 hits in the game. The locals continued their three-game hitting rampage in which they had plated 28 runs in three outings.

City College drew first blood in the fourth inning when first baseman Hans Vigil slammed a double to score Tom Mayfield, the Rams' stocky catcher.

The East Bay crew came right back, scoring four tallies in the bottom of the fourth to take the lead. But the Rams were not to be denied, as they plated six men in the top of the fifth frame.

City College picked up a little insurance in the ninth stanza. Manny Berrios led off with a three-bagger to ignite a four-run uprising. The frosting was on the cake.

Third baseman Jim Smith, last season's top hitter, smacked three singles and a home run, going four for five on the day. Smith's homer cleared the 380-foot mark in left field. Vigil and left fielder Dave Kline rapped three hits apiece while Berrios and Mayfield chipped in two each.

GOLF

Playing on the beautiful Olympic Club course, the Ram golfers whipped Diablo Valley College, 27½ to 7½, last Friday afternoon. It was the last league match of the year for both teams.

Strong winds hampered an otherwise beautiful afternoon, as the City College duffers swept past the Vikings in a tune-up for Monday's Golden Gate Conference Championships. (The results will appear next week.)

Gregg Corvi and John Susko beat out team ace Ken Kundert for individual honors. Susko and Corvi each fired 78s. Kundert settled for an 81, while Duane Cosper stroked an 82. Paul Rea came in with an 86.

TENNIS

Foothill, the class of the league all season, showed they had it again in the Golden Gate Conference Championships.

The Owls tallied 26 points to completely out-distance their league opponents. Chabot had 15 while the local contingent could only get three.

Owl aces Steve Stefanki and Felix Ponte reached the finals of the singles competition. Ponte gave the championship to his teammate without even playing, thus conserving the energy of both for the doubles event. Of course, they won that too.

GYMNASTICS

Competing at an optional meet at U.C. Davis, the Women's Gymnastic Team captured fifth place to continue their excellent progress in this difficult sport.

Miss Sue Conrad's charges finished ahead of such colleges as Stanford, Cal State Hayward and the College of Marin. Sacramento State finished first.

Individually, there were some outstanding performances. In the Beginning Level, Lois Kwan finished first in the vaulting event, Cheri Richards second in free exercises and Olga Schnieder second on the uneven bars. The attractive Miss Schnieder placed fifth All-Around in her class.

Denyse Barr came in fifth in vaulting in the Low Intermediate classification, while Sandy Hansen and Vickie Spencer took a pair of fifths on the beam and in free exercises, respectively, in the high Intermediate competition.

Other gals who participated include: Pat Zamora, Brenda Scott, Cheryl Rhaeffle, Penny Parsons, Stephanie Melvin, Janice Miller, Juanja Ross, the McKenna twins, Dale and Donna, and Sandra Lowe. Miss Lowe competed with the Low Intermediates while the others are Beginners.

ANSWERS TO SPORTS QUIZ

1. Swimming, he holds World's Record for three men's butterfly events.
2. Gary Beban, quarterback for U.C.L.A.
3. Three times, 1956, 1957, and 1962.
4. Montreal Canadiens have won the cup 11 times since 1937 and had a string of five years in a row from 1956 to 1960.
5. In 1932.
6. Dick Fosbury of the U.S., with a jump of 7 ft. 4¼ in.

Concert Program To Aid Music Scholarships

The College's Music Department will present a Band Concert next Tuesday and Wednesday in the College's Little Theater at 8 p.m. The entire concert will be the combined efforts of the Concert Band under the conduction of instructor Joseph Alessi and the Stage Band under the auspices of instructor Gerry C. Olda.

On the Concert Band agenda will be such works as J. J. Johnson's "Perceptions," Henry Mancini's "Days of Wine and Roses," and Armenian Dances composed for the band by Aram Khachaturorian and will be under the supervision of Dr. Kruth from San Francisco, State's music department. The concert will also feature a solo clarinetist, Mariko Abe, in a rendition of Alfred Reed's rhapsody, "Rahoon."

The Stage Band will offer a unique number entitled "Correlation." This is a new composition by instructor Gerry C. Olda and will be the first time it will be presented. The admission fee will be $1 and the proceeds will go towards the college's music scholarship fund.

During College Hour of the same Tuesday, the College's Baroque Chamber Orchestra under the supervision of instructor Richard Fenner will present a Concerto Concert. The event, also in the Little Theater, will feature Johan Bach's piano and string concertos. The participants will include student pianist John Chan and instructors William Grothkopp Jr., Madeline Mueller, and Joanne Hedey.

QUITE A SPREAD—When it comes to putting on the Cal-Norther Dinner, the H & R Department doesn't fool around.

33rd Cal-Norther To Honor Coste

The 33rd annual Cal-Norther Dinner will be held on Monday, May 12, in the cafeteria giving Hotel and Restaurant students an opportunity to display their skills before visiting owners and representatives in the industry.

The entire operation will be handled by students who will manage, supervise, cook, and serve without assistance from faculty instructors.

The event started out as a luncheon in 1936, and became so popular that it was shifted to the evening, and has remained that way up until the present time.

Pierre Coste, retiring chef, who has been in the H&R Department for 24 years, will be honored at the dinner by his many friends in the industry.

As a farewell gesture, Coste will make his famous "Pierre's Punch" for the last time, although the students are preparing the feast.

Peter Briggs, student chairman of the event, expects a turnout of 450 people, who will combine their monthly meeting and dinner, with participants coming from all points of the globe and throughout the United States.

Cocktails will be served at 6:30 p.m. and dinner is scheduled to begin at eight.

Visual Arts Center Slated For Spring '70 Occupancy

(Continued from Page 1)

seating 45; a light-lunch area including food-vending machines; and a conference room.

Advantages

The new complex will have a very large indoor display area as well as an exterior courtyard display area which will be used for student exhibitions and for various shows and conventions.

And the San Francisco Art Directors and Artists Club has expressed their interest in holding their annual exhibition here in the future.

The two lecture rooms or little theaters will enable the college to host film festivals.

The courtyard will be one of the few areas on this campus where students will have a nook for relaxation.

The Center, which will provide a truly functional and esthetic environment, was planned jointly by the Administrative Staff, the faculties of the three departments, and their advisory committees in conjunction with the School District architect. All expect it to be one of the finest buildings of its kind in the Western States.

Completion of these facilities will enable the College further to improve instruction by undertaking an extensive remodeling program in the released space made available in Science Hall, Cloud Hall, and Smith Hall.

One Of the Best

Bill Davis, head of the Advertising Art and Design Department here, feels that City College has a great curriculum in Visual Arts and one of the best faculties in the field, and he believes that the completion of the Center will provide the College with the ideal facilities necessary to make the Visual Arts program here one of the best in Northern California.

"Students are getting a chance to work with top-notch professionals in the field, which gives them an excellent opportunity to gain first-hand knowledge and experience," according to Davis.

Considering the cost for training in the program is practically nil, the program is unsurpassed by any other institution around.

Veterans who plan on returning to City College in the fall semester under the GI bill must file a certificate of attendance with the Veterans' office this month.

The card must be in by the end of May or the veteran will receive no payment for current or further enrollment in the autumn.

GI's who plan on attending summer session do not have to fill out the form but instead should report to the veteran's counselor in ES 202 during the first two or three days of class.

Financial Aid Plans

(Continued from Page 1)

teaching career, he will receive a ten per cent credit toward the loan for every year he teaches, and up to fifty per cent of the total amount loaned. If the student decides to teach in an urban problem area (officially designated as such by the Office of Education) he will receive a fifteen per cent credit toward his loan, for every year he teaches in such an area, and up to one hundred percent of the total amount loaned.

For those who decide not to teach, the National Defense loan is still attractive in that the interest rate is lower than in any other program.

Federally Insured loans can be obtained by a wider segment of the student body, since their need requirement is the least stringent. Interest on this type of loan is paid by the Federal Government for as long as the student remains in school, however the loan must be repaid on a pre-set schedule beginning no later than nine months after the student receives his degree.

Scholarships provide another form of financial aid, and are awarded on a basis of need and scholastic ability. Anyone desiring more information about scholarships should consult the current college catalogue (pages 73-80) which contains all the necessary information and details.

Educational Opportunity Grants may become available in the Fall semester for a few extremely needy students. These are not loans, but are outright grants provided to enable certain students to attend college, who would otherwise be absolutely unable to do so without such assistance.

CCSF Provides Varied Community Service Programs

"Community service at the college encompasses such a broad range that many of the courses in the college curriculum serve the program as well," stated Warren White, Assistant Dean of Instruction.

Most junior colleges in California, due to the minute sizes of the towns they're located in, must levy a standard community service tax to serve the entire city community as a cultural center. But, according to White, a college such as ours that dwells in such a flourishing cultural atmosphere as San Francisco, a community service tax to provide for symphonies, theatre, and other cultural events would be unfeasible and unnecessary.

The concert/lecture series on campus, funded by the Faculty and Students associations, is a community service that provides students during the school day with a wide spectrum of cultural affairs that range from music concerts to distinguished lecturers like black novelist, James Baldwin. By welcoming public attendants to these events, the college serves the entire community.

The college is also a participant in the San Francisco Consortium, a program that seeks to pool the resources of such local colleges as University of San Francisco and San Francisco State College into studying and solving the vexing urban problems of the city. The college is also responsible in recompensing three instructors here in their valiant efforts of giving teaching aid in the city's ghetto areas.

Through Federal grants, the college provides the community with "Project Feast," a special summer program in which teams of teachers and food specialists come to the college and instruct students in the preparation of food. Expert food training like this provides a student in the community who is not adept in academic studies a skill that is immediately usable. In fact, President Nixon has designated this program as the model food curriculum throughout the nation's junior colleges.

The Experimental college, which is planning a summer institute here, is also a serviceable program for the entire community.

Thomas Nesbitt, Dean of Instruction, is also involved in a summer careers program that is specifically tailored for prospective high school seniors in the city. Approximately 250 students participate each summer in coming out to the college and taking several psychology courses, career guidance counselling, and a study in semi-professional careers. This allows the future college student a chance to savor and decide on the many available life careers. This program is highly important to the community in providing stable guidance in a student's occupational search.

Community clubs such as Youth for Service, Mission Rebels, and Hi-Sons Unlimited are involved in the college through their recruitment of drop-outs back to the college's academic environment.

Courses in Horticulture, Hotel and Restaurant Management, Fire Science, Dental Technology, Medical Technology, and Business introduces semi-professional training to the entire community. "In actuality, the college's efficient and thorough curriculum is in itself a community service."

Thrasher Wins Poster Contest

Moses Thrasher took first place and honorable mention in the Anti-War Poster Contest April 25.

The winning poster, out of the thirty-three entires, depicted an American flag bearing, "Thou shalt not kill" on each stripe.

Runners-up were: second place, James Burke, for his circular peace symbol with "Fallout Shelter" superimposed; third place, James Lewis, for his drainage pipe with bombs going down one end and budding life coming up the other, entitled "Peace."

"Peace is a state of Mind," representing a man on a mountain with hands upraised to the sun, took honorable mention for Thrasher.

The contest, sponsored by the Experimental College, was judged on originality, communicative effectiveness, relevance to Anti-War theme and aesthetic appeal. Contestants had to be students of the college.

Cash prizes of $30, $20, and $10 were awarded for first, second and third places, respectively. Judging was done by representatives from The American Friends Service Committee, The Resistance and William Davis of the College's Graphic Arts Department.

All the entries are on display in the library now.

Final Film Shown Here

"Bierderman and the Firebugs," a modern allegory on contemporary times by Swiss playwright Max Frisch, will be presented on the weekend of May 21-24 by the college's Drama Department as the final production of the season.

This adventurous production will be directed by drama instructor, Dr. Walter Krumm. The east and stage-hands have been working feverishly in creating an atmosphere of originality and excitement for the expected attendants.

An unique addition to the production this time will be student Peter Kors. According to Krumm, Kors, the assistant director, will be the first student in the Drama Dept. to tackle the directorial reins.

The play has been described as a funny satire of a middle class family and will encompass a chorus of firemen as an unusual counterpart to the tragic Greek chorus. And what the drama group will innovate for the final sequence in Hell may prove to be quite fascinating. Music in the near-avant-garde mood of "The Three Penny Opera" will be integrated into the play.

Krumm would like to tip returning fall students to the Drama Dept.'s plans on utilizing a fresh and original approach to Shakespeare's "Midsummer's Night Dream." Instructor James Haran will provide the outline for a mod version of the Bard's play.

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Journalism Students of City College of San Francisco

VOLUME 68 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—WEDNESDAY, MAY 14, 1969 NUMBER 10

Minor Traffic Incident

A minor traffic incident drew a huge crowd of onlooking students last Friday when campus police stopped an engineering student in front of the Science Building.

Michael Houston was detained by officers after he allegedly drove by an officer stationed at the entrance to Cloud Circle.

Campus Police Chief Kenneth Cottura said that Houston ignored a hand signal from Officer Bill Carter to stop, and continued on his way narrowly missing the officer as he passed by.

Houston was cited for resisting arrest according to Cottura.

In the mix-up, a San Francisco police paddy wagon and several police cars were called in and were standing by in the event of a confrontation.

Writer Bel Kaufman Raps On Today's Generation

Bel Kaufman, educator, philosopher, and writer, has a strong conviction that college "is the only place where discussion between the generations is possible."

Miss Kaufman spoke on the problems of education last week in the Little Theater, during College Hour.

"I feel that today's young really are on the side of angels in what they don't want. Their questions are meaningful and they show the discrepancy between what education is and what life is.

"This feeling is everywhere—I found it in students in the Soviet Union, which I visited last year. And I can understand the impatience with a huge depersonalized system that does not serve today's needs. It's a mechanical de-humanization of the creative juices.

"I'm crazy about this generation," she said. "They make a lot of mistakes but they're morally and intellectually committed. They care about the condition of man.

"The pendulum of change is still swinging," she added, "and we don't know where and when it will stop."

Miss Kaufman describes her 1965 novel, "Up the Down Staircase" as "really a composite of my teaching experiences—I taught in 14 different high schools."

"After the book was published I became a kind of unofficial spokesman and champion of teachers. Teachers need a new image. They need to feel a little better about being teachers," she added.

"I take this role seriously and hope I can be able to do something for teachers."

NOTED AUTHOR Bel Kaufman says she's crazy about the present generation. (photo by Samuel Woo)

She is still a teacher—currently a part-time professor of English at New York's Manhattan Community College.

She is angered at what she considers the "waste of time and talent" among teachers in large high schools, and "the lack of communication" between almost everyone—teachers, students, parents, and school administrators.

"You have kids, a teacher and a room," she explained, "something exciting must happen—thoughts being thought, honest feelings being felt, the impact of mind against mind. Most of the time nothing happens.

"It's a waste of talent and time—all those paper miles and so little real teaching."

Miss Kaufman, born in Berlin, and raised in Moscow and New York, is currently at work on a new novel.

State Colleges Still Open For Fall Semester

Dr. Sidney W. Brossman, Chancellor of the California Community Colleges, announced recently that there are still openings in most of California State Colleges for the fall semester.

According to Dr. Robert D. Clark, president of San Jose State College, SJS has trimmed down graduate student admissions to accommodate additional junior college transfer students.

Clark also stated that "There is every indication that there will be ample room for Community College transfers somewhere within the State College system."

One of the points being stressed by Chancellor Brossman and other Community College educators is the hardship that rent, food, and travel places on the economically disadvantaged student when he is not admitted to a state college in close proximity to his home.

Being admitted to a State College "somewhere within the State College system" might have the de facto effect of ending higher education for the poor student, according to Brossman.

Clark advises that there is still room at the present time at "Fresno, Hayward and Stanislaus in the north and all southern State Colleges except Fullerton have space available also."

President Clark emphasized, "Upper division transfer students wishing priority consideration must make their applications by tomorrow."

RAP Helps Dilenquents

Pete Contuzzi, recruiting director for the Real Alternatives Program, a program designed to help troubled youths, is in the process of recruiting volunteers here on campus to help troubled youths in the Mission District.

The goal of the Real Alternatives Program, better known as RAP, is to provide an alternative to detention for youths on probation through a volunteer program under community control in the Mission District of San Francisco.

Rap's proposed solution is to create an invironmental setting that will be conducive to the growth of the youth.

Applications are available at the Guardsman office (S304). Applicants may leave their applications in the Guardsman office and they will be picked up by a RAP representative.

The major goals of the program are: to decrease the number of Mission Area detentions and to involve community members and ex-probationers in the problems of youth. Other objectives are to establish a multi-purpose youth center, and create a channel for communication

Business & Engineering Grads Recruited Today

By Jack Ruiz

Two hundred graduating Business and Engineering students will be interviewed at City College today by prospective employers from five western states in the 14th Annual Recruitment Day.

The one day Career Opportunities Conference was initiated in 1955 to enable college students in search of employment to meet employers from a variety of companies recruiting new personnel.

Charles Knipschilds to receive City College Service Award for assisting the College during the past year.

RECRUITMENT DAY

Recruitment Days have brought approximately 1000 employers to the College since its inception, and have been judged an outstanding success by individual employers.

Fifty-five employer teams from California, Washington, Oregon, Arizona, and Nevada will participate in today's event, and most of them are the original pioneers of the venture.

They keep coming back because they are pleased with the training program here. "It's one of the most lucrative campuses in Northern California, and provides the kind of trained personnel that our company must have to survive," said one leading employer.

Experienced Graduates

The graduating men and women have had extensive part-time and full-time work experience in their fields according to Joe Amori, Director of Personnel placement.

Graduates here are classified by their instructors as one of the most outstanding groups in recent years and are active in campus activities, holding many high offices and positions of responsibility.

"They know what they can do, and what they want from business, industry, and government," said Amori. "These students are willing to give of themselves, to assist an organization, to get the job done."

City College Service Award

Charles Knipschilds, personnel manager of the California State Automobile Association, will receive the City College Service Award given annually to the company which has assisted the College in carrying out its major objectives during the past year.

Knipschild and his personnel staff have shown particular interest in the two year college graduate and have made every effort to recruit, train and place qualified community college students for part-time and full-time work assignments, including many from the minority groups.

It is to competent and dedicated individuals like Charles Knipschilds and many others on the California State Automobile Association staff that City College is deeply grateful.

Dr. Louis G. Conlan, President of City College, will greet the employers and present the award. Amori will act as Master of Ceremonies.

Queen

Glenda Susan Gogel, a journalism major in the evening classes, has been selected as the Recruitment Day Queen. Miss Gogel, a full-time employee of the California State Automobile Association, is serving as a special correspondent for the company.

Personnel interviews will begin at 9 a.m. in the faculty lounge on the 3rd floor of Cloud Hall and will continue throughout the day.

Workshop Offered For Orthopaedic Assisting Soon

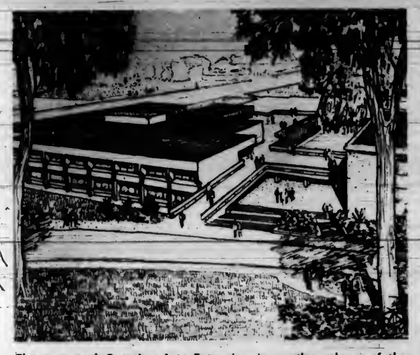
The American Academy of Orthopaedic Surgeons in conjunction with Presbyterian Hospital, Pacific Medical Center, and City College of San Francisco is announcing a workshop on the Orthopaedic Assistant to be held at the Fairmont Hotel on May 23 and 24.

This program is designed for orthopaedists and educators to discuss the Orthopaedic Assistant, to delineate the curriculum, and to acquaint the participants in the use of resources available in both academic and clinical facilities.

The orthopaedic assistant is a graduate of a two-year program designed not only to give him certain required skills, but also to broaden his understanding and permit his participation in supervised specific patient care. The objective of the orthopaedic assistant is to facilitate and improve orthopaedic medical care for the public.

Students interested in enrolling in orthopaedic assistant courses at City College, should contact Jules Fraden, Dean of Instruction here at the college and Project Director for the program, for the required information. Dean Fraden will also have information on the workshop and will be a guest speaker for the workshop on the orthopaedic assistant.

Veterans attending college here under the GI Bill will receive a certified attendance card along with their checks this month (probably before May 15th).



They must immediately mark the proper boxes, date, sign and return the card to the Veterans' Administration in the envelope provided, or they won't get any more checks.

In section C, under re-enrollment plans, veterans should notify the VA of their plans for the fall semester.

If they plan to attend summer session they must report to the veterans' counselor in E202 during the first two or three days of classes.

The Guardsman Editorial Page
Weekly Publication of the Students in the Journalism Department of City College of San Francisco
Thomas O. Graham, Editor 184
Vol. 68, No. 11 WEDNESDAY, MAY 14, 1969 Page 2

Creative Arts Extension

The proposed Creative Arts Extension is another phase of the campus development program.

Sketch by Milton T. Pflueger, Arch't.

The campus development program has been based on enrollment projections, according to Dr. Harry Buttimer, coordinator of educational management.

The objectives of the Creative Arts Extension are the provision of needed space for general classroom use and the extension of areas devoted to music practice and closed circuit television.

The proposed multi-story extension would be located on a site west of the Creative Arts Building.

Completion of this project will centralize the closed circuit TV facilities in the new area proposed and release the existing smaller TV area for reassignment to the Music Department for listening and practicing studio purposes.

The TV-Radio area will house centralized facilities for distribution of closed circuit programs to all parts of the campus. The arrangement of control rooms and studio areas will permit students to observe broadcasting activities from a classroom gallery.

The Music Department facility is designed to supplement other Music Department facilities in the adjoining Creative Arts Building. Nine practice rooms, an ensemble room and storage area are provided in the plan.

Kidney Operation Successful, Knight Recovering Smoothly

Alive and doing well at the University of California Medical Center is City College student Ken Knight, recovering from a kidney transplant.

Knight is now recovering from an operation which removed his infected kidney, replacing it with one of his mother's.

According to Knight the kidney is still moving around trying to find its right position. Some kidneys find the correct position right away, others take weeks, and some never find it which means it was rejected.

In case the kidney is rejected, a fraternity brother, Gil Kroger is standing by ready to donate one of his kidneys.

Knight's doctors say there is little chance that another operation will be needed, because Ken's new kidney is almost identical in shape and weight.

Knight does not know when he will get out of the hospital, but last weekend he was allowed to go home to let his new kidney get used to normal use.

Ken has lost about 10 pounds during the ordeal.

During the day Knight spends his time watching television or reading, or talking with the two other patients in his tenth floor room.

Both of Knight's arms are heavily bandaged.

His right arm is healing from the blood transfusions which required 10 pints. His left arm was connected with the artificial kidney machine which kept him alive when his own failed.

Guardsman Staff

(The Guardsman is the weekly publication of the students in the journalism department of City College of San Francisco. It is published each Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacations. The opinions expressed in the columns and editorials are those of the individual writers and not necessarily those of the Guardsman, the department or the college. Editorial office, 304, Science Hall, telephone 587-7272, ext. 246.)

SPRING 1969

EDITOR IN CHIEF ... TOM GRAHAM
Managing Editor ... Barbara Hermann
Feature Editor ... Bob Kodama
News Editors ... Jack Rutz, Nancy Flynn
Sports Editor ... Phil DiCarlo
Editorial Assistants: Rita Correll, Lavine Lee, Lynda Sandstrom.
Reporters: Patrick Chan, Gerry Engler, Ray Gin, Marc Kovacs, Jack Rutz.
Photographers: Eugene Wong, Chief; Jules Classner, Bert Flowers, Antony Regadio, Jerry Warren, Earl Williams, Samuel Woo.

Edward Kennedy's 'Decisions' Probes American Problems, Change of Course

By Jim Browning

DECISIONS FOR A DECADE by Senator Edward M. Kennedy (Signet 95 cents)

In an extraordinarily candid and challenging book, Senator Edward Kennedy takes a deep and probing look into the problems facing America and maps a change of course for her in the 1970's.

Senator Kennedy speaks of the issues — Europe, Asia, racism, politics, alienation, and poverty — which face the American public.

"These tendencies appear to be converging at some early period—probably the 1970's—on a situation of great national distress and danger," the author writes. "And their seriousness lies not primarily in their own intractability as problems, but rather in the fact that most of them have already been before us for some time."

The tasks of the 1970's will require sweeping changes in the attitudes of Americans toward the character of their own lives.

"If we are to avoid defeat, we must know clearly what we must do, and how we are to do it. This requires a willingness to think differently, and to challenge accepted notions which have proven either false or outmoded.

Decisions for a Decade is divided into 2 parts: At home and abroad.

Part 1 deals exclusively with the problems — politics, the draft, crime, poverty, racism— facing us here at home.

Kennedy probes the problems and conflicts of war and the draft in general by stating, "The coming decade will, unhappily, still see the nations of the world spending much of their resources on weapons of death. The tensions of the cold war, national rivalries, and the resort to armed violence will hopefully begin to disappear; but we will still have to maintain and equip large armies.

"Therefore it is necessary that we in the United States examine with care the basis on which we will select young men for military service."

"We should recognize, at the outset, that the draft is inevitably a form of drastic compulsion over the lives of individuals. Military service is the strongest degree of control government has over its citizens. To take a young man away from his home, his job and his family for two or three years, is a stringent interference with his life."

Kennedy's proposal for draft reform would include raising the pay for servicemen in order that there be an incentive for a volunteer army; the random drafting of 19-year olds; and drastic curtailment of deferments, except in the most extreme hardship cases.

The three trouble spots that Senator Kennedy chooses to focus upon in Part II are Europe, Asia, and Latin America.

On our intervention into the problems of Asia, Senator Kennedy writes, "It would be a fatal mistake to assume that our political and social aspirations — indeed, even our frame of reference — can be superimposed on the Asian peoples. The Asian societies, diverse, complex, and far more venerable than those of the West, rise out of distinct cultures and experiences, which are not ours."

Kennedy suggests that our Asian policy, once the Vietnam war is over, should stress political and economic rather than military efforts. Asian solutions rather than American solutions.

"It is a stance which will recognize what we all know — that we cannot, and we should not— impose our world view on distinct, diverse, and alien cultures."

Kennedy goes on to outline his course for American foreign policy in the 70's. He suggests that America should drop its world policeman, judge, and chief policy maker attitude, and work closely with other nations, in order to solve the world's problems.

"We can no longer afford to be the sole bearer of the entire world's problems. With the grave problems of the 1970's lying before us, it will require the close cooperation of every country — large and small alike —if we are to succeed in solving the problems of the world."

Contact Lens

Do You Believe in the Concept of God?

Greg Denike, Political Science Major—There is an outside force which affects all our lives. The concept that this force has human characteristics (fear, anger, etc.) was invented by man; this man-made concept of God is responsible for our hangups (prejudice, etc.). This is because man-made gods have an absolute standard of morality.

Sonia Schmidt, Criminology Major—Yes, I believe in God. I was brought up in a home that believes in God; and I attend a church that teaches the meaning of God. I know he exists and he does help persons who truly seek His guidance. Belief in God can be taught to a person, but acceptance of His existence is up to the individual.

Chester Davidson, Business Major—No. I think this is because God was forced on me when I was young. My parents took me to church and crammed everything into me. But after you get older you decide for yourself by looking at the pros and cons. If there was a God, things would not be as they are in today's world.

Chuck Leone, Business Major—Is there a God? There has to be some type of a supreme being, that is called a God (if you want) which one needs to look up to in times of need, mental depression, want, sorrow, anger, and anguish. I would think that there must be someone or something in this universe to direct and guide us.

Rev. Jackson, M.R.S. Degree Major—God? Which one? I think that deep down inside everyone believes in a god—I do. If there wasn't a god, it would not be any fun for people to swear! Ancient man needed to worship a supreme being. Realizing man is not the highest form of life, one can approach the future with hope rather than despair.

Ken Englund, Criminology Major—Of course. There's just too much order in the universe: things couldn't have happened by chance or coincidence. Even if our world started from one single organism, someone had to create that organism. Somebody had to start it. If people believe that the universe always was, why can't they believe that God always was.

Compiled by Lavine Lee, photos by Sam Woo.

Former Instructor Who Has B.A. Degree Now A Janitor

By Lavine Lee

Recently, the Guardsman was surprised to find that on the custodial staff of this campus, there was a custodian who had a Bachelor of Arts Degree.

Richard Kirk holds a B.A. Degree in Social Science, but he states, "B.A.'s don't really mean anything; they are a dime a dozen."

He sets high standards for himself, and because he hasn't met these standards, he refuses to pick up his career as an instructor. "I, as an individual, am not resourceful enough as an instructor," he stated.

He first began his teaching career in the South in segregated schools 30 years ago. He found the teaching profession disenchanting (with the low salaries, his black students, the environment, and the poor teaching conditions).

"The situation is more than I want to cope with. I have visited classes where there is a disrespect for instructors not only from students, but parents as well."

"As an instructor, I tried hard to reach all my students; when I failed in this respect, it grieved me, and I chose not to teach.

Kirk said he was glad black students had become "aware of themselves as individuals." He, however, does not condone the means they've used (violence).

With a great deal of experience behind him, he states, "I know you can't win with violence, but the majority of the group leaders don't realize this. I would employ peaceful methods (although our people have been doing this for the past 300 years). If we are to survive, we will have to seek what we desire and deserve in an intelligent and peaceful manner."

Laguna Seca: Good Food Plus Death

By Boku Kodamá

Sports writers have stated that auto racing is fast becoming the biggest spectator sport in America.

Laguna Seca, down in Monterey, has provided Northern and Central California with first-class racing for over a decade.

Each year thousands upon thousands of spectators have watched Ferrarris, MGs, Triumphs, Cobras, Corvettes and McLarens compete.

Many people "camp out" by the entrance of Laguna Seca, some sleeping, some getting drunk and others making love; and by 6:00 a.m., the next day, cars are lined far down the Monterey - Salinas highway, waiting to get in.

Once inside, people begin to spread out all around the curvy, hilly track and wait another three hours for the show to begin.

Why is it that millions and millions of people come to watch auto races every year throughout the country? Perhaps the major reason stems from the psychological principal of wanting to see death. There is always a feeling of blood, fire and wreckage in the air; only these descriptions are all hidden under the general category of "excitement."

The highlights of a race are not who wins the race or how competitive it is, but rather the number of accidents which occur. One's heart speeds up at the sight of destruction as wheels fly and metal crumbles. A sigh of relief comes about with the sight of the driver slowly walking from his damaged vehicle, everyone knowing that the racer has escaped death by a thread's margin.

Like any other spectator sport, each person loses his individualism. He is a part of a group sharing the same interests and for this reason he feels secure in such company. An auto race is more like a picnic to spectators. There are always groups of people eating chicken, drinking beer or blowing "grass," and always there is yelling and plenty of "horsing around," and why not? A road race can get boring if one thinks about it. All a race is, is a bunch of cars running around a course; excitement comes only once in a while.

Route S.F.

S. F. Bay's Forlorned, Spooky Island

By Gerry Engler

A 12 acre island in the middle of San Francisco Bay has always been a forlorned spooky place, always an area of imagination for citizens of the Bay Area and the rest of the country.

Alcatraz, so named by an Indian scout for the Spanish explorers, named Yarla. Yarla named it Isle de Alcatraces. The Indian natives believed the island was taboo, and all but convinced the Spanish into believing the taboo also.

In 1860 a lighthouse was built on Alcatraz and a year later a small fort and guardhouse was added.

Towards the end of 1861, Confederate sympathesizers fitted out a sloop with the intention of taking over the Bay Area for the Confederate States of America, but the ship got as far as outside of the harbor and fell into the hands of Union Warships without a shot fired.

The crew of the I.M. Chapman (the Confederate ship) became the first prisoners of Alcatraz.

After the Civil War the prison was expanded to hold Army prisoners.

During the Spanish-American War, Army deserters were confined to Uncle Sam's Devil's Island as it was known at the time.

During World War I the prison was used to hold the conscientious objectors, enemy aliens, spies, and the San Francisco German Consul General.

In 1933, the Federal Authorities were looking for a supermaximum security prison for the worst Prohibition-era gangsters. They concluded that Alcatraz would be escape-proof because of the cold water, and length of the nearest point of mainland.

Some of its better known "residents" included Al Capone, Machine-Gun Kelly, Alvin Karpis, and Basil "The Owl" Banghart.

A typical day in the life of a prisoner on "The Rock" included an eight hour work day, which meant working in the laundry, scrubbing the floor, or painting the cell blocks. During the day the men were given two periods of exercise in the main yard. From 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. the men were allowed to read, paint, write letters or listen to piped in music.

From as early as 1939, the Federal Authorities were beginning to believe "The Rock" was obsolete. The main cell house was over 60 years old, and the cornerstone on a building read, Alcatraz 1857.

Alcatraz: perhaps the most famous prison of modern time as seen from Hyde Street.

—Guardsman Photo by Samuel Woo

In 1939, Attorney General Frank Murphy condemned Alcatraz as a "place of horrors."

In 1961, Alcatraz was abandoned as a Federal Prison and is still empty. No one is really sure as to what should be done with the island.

Some say put a "Statue of Liberty" type sculpture, others say make it a National museum, but something better be done soon, because the buildings are slowly crumbling away.

Physics Students May Face New Grading System In Fall

Fall 1969 physics students may find themselves faced with a choice of choosing a grading system for themselves. If proposals for two new grading systems are passed by the Academic Senate and Administration, it will become effective beginning next semester.

One proposed method would be the A B C/No Credit system. The second would be the Credit/No Credit system. The instructor would determine the minimum level of competency necessary to receive credit in the course. This system, if passed, would not be necessarily connected to the A,B,C or A,B,C,D grading systems in which these grades would be equivalent to passing.

THE BRASS KNUCKLE by mike berman and brian chin

News Media . . . At City College

By Randy Flynn

The following is a comprehensive look at the Television, Radio and Broadcasting Department and the Journalism Department of City College. Its purpose is to offer students a behind-the-scenes look at the college's communications media; KCSF and KALW Radio, the CCSF closed circuit television system and the Guardsman weekly newspaper.

With a total enrollment of over 14,000 students, City College can be compared to a small city.

Lacking only its own fire department, the CCSF community has medical services, a police department, entertainment, industry (education), a governing body and to keep them all coordinated and well informed, a communications media.

As in a city, that media is devoted to informing, entertaining and serving the community as best it can.

The vast majority of students at City have never seen more of the communications media than the finished products. Therefore, we will now lead a "back-stage" tour of the television, radio and newspaper industries as represented at the College.

TELEVISION

The CCSF closed circuit television system (CCTV) is located in the Arts building, far from the beaten path on the first floor.

There, behind soundproof doors, students from two beginning and one advanced class put together educational programs for everything from modern dance to sociology.

Aside from live productions, the classes video tape and broadcast films for classes when individual projectors fail to supply demands for a given film.

The CCTV system involves nearly $100,000 worth of equipment and broadcasts on channels 11 and 13. According to Robert Berke, a department instructor, the system will be broadcasting on four channels next semester with the addition of new equipment.

A formal CCTV system production involves many steps, many students and many weeks of work. It usually begins when an instructor suggests a video production to serve as a course aid.

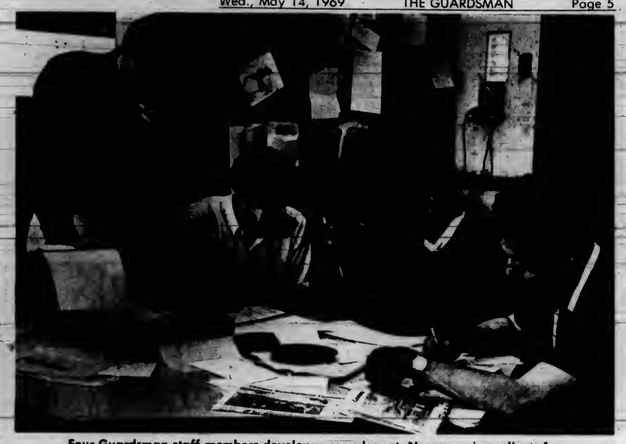
A student director and faculty advisor spend several weeks meeting with the instructor to determine what is needed and how the production can be handled.

(Continued on Page 5)

For love and money.

You can fly.
As a TWA hostess.
And you know what that means.
None of that 9 to 5 jazz, first of all. Good coin, second of all. And third of all, lots of time off to do what you want to do.
And as an added option at no extra cost, we'll throw in a chance for you to fall in love.
With all the people you'll meet. Or all the fantastic places all over the world you can go on TWA.
Depending on the temperament of your boyfriend, of course.

the date: Wednesday, May 28
the place: Placement Center
the time: Contact Placement Center for an interview appointment.
the non-ogre interviewer: Roberta Hawkins



Make a decision. We probably won't be here again this year.

Be a TWA Hostess
It's like no job on earth

An equal opportunity employer

The Guardsman is waiting for students when they arrive Wednesday mornings. (Photos by Samuel Woo)

Four Guardsman staff members develop a page layout. Necessary ingredients for a good design: long pencils, big erasers and imagination.

A student technical director mans his section of the "Video Production Control Panel" during a CCTV system production. His controls maintain the quality of electrical signals received from cameras.

(Continued from Page 4)

After the script has been written, usually by the instructor, the production is taken into the studio. The student director coordinates and heads the production, backed up by a graphic crew, a set director, a lighting director and the faculty advisor.

The Graphic crew handles all pictures, cards and other aids; the Set Director handles all props, and the Lighting Director takes care of lighting effects. The faculty advisor serves as a source of information to the students but takes no active part in the production.

When the set is complete and the script is well-rehearsed, nine more people go to work to produce and video-tape the project.

The Director, an Assistant Director, a camera switcher, a technical director, and an audio coordinator take their places at the Production Console.

In a studio closed off by glass, the instructor takes his place on the set along with two cameramen and two floor managers who give cues.

When the production begins, every person on the set becomes a close-knit team, communicating through earphones and hand gestures.

A half hour later, the production is on tape. More than three weeks of work has paid off in a half-hour production.

RADIO

KCSF Radio is a closed-circuit station that broadcasts in Smith Hall daily from 8-11 a.m.

The small station is suffering from rather serious growing pains, earmarked by the fact that most students on campus have never heard it as any more than a murmur.

In brief, the problem lies in the fact that the station cannot persuade Hotel and Restaurant workers in Smith Hall to turn up the volume or the Board of Education to extend speakers into Statler wing. The problem is indeed a serious one because slowly but surely, disc jockeys and many radio broadcasting students are losing interest in the station. In the words of one DJ, "we're talking to ourselves."

There are valid arguments on both sides of the issue and because the station is potentially a source of great tunes and great entertainment, the Guardsman will offer an in-depth look at the problem in its next edition.

The station manager is Glenn Howell, a fourth-semester radio broadcasting student. Backed by 18 DJ's, he oversees the entire operation with Faculty Advisor Phillip Brown.

KCSF offers a wide range of programming during the week, including one hour DJ shows featuring rock, jazz, classical, and middle-of-the-road music.

In addition, Kathy Nather puts together "News from Myra Breckenridge Land" every Friday. The ninety-second spot takes a humorous look at entertainment around the City.

One broadcast offered a way to make the movie Romeo & Juliet a happy experience. "Walk in, in the middle of the picture so you miss all the bad stuff, then leave before the sad ending. It's really a happy movie when you see it that way."

Other programs include "Potpourri," featuring specials on "everything from Lenny Bruce to Kate Smith," and an "Album of the Week" give-away spot.

Each DJ makes up his own show and must submit a complete log 48 hours before the show is to go on. The log must include on and off times for each music slot and each announcement.

Therefore, the DJ must know exactly how long each record cut and announcement slot will require. By the time records have been chosen and logs have been drawn up, a DJ puts about 2 hours of preparation into an hour show.

KCSF also interviews recording artists for specials. An actual tape interview usually lasts about 15 minutes. However, the tape must be cut and edited.

It usually takes an hour and a half to prepare a 15-minute tape. Stutters, background noise, unacceptable slang and unimportant information all have to be cut out.

A "promo" or opening slot must also be prepared for any special. This is usually the toughest of all jobs. The DJ must coordinate music, phrases and time perfectly. The job can take from one to five hours.

Understanding the amount of time and effort put into programming a three-hour broadcast day, it also becomes evident that students should be able to enjoy it.

The Radio Broadcasting Department also broadcasts over an educational FM station licensed by John O'Connell Vocational School. KALW, 91.7 on the dial, is an educational station.

City College broadcasts through the John O'Connell facility via phone line from 11 a.m.-2:30 p.m. daily. This gives DJ's an opportunity to broadcast over the air.

NEWSPAPER

The Guardsman is the weekly publication of the Journalism Department of City College. The paper is staffed by 12 journalism students who write, copy read, edit, and lay out the eight-page publication distributed every Wednesday.

Monday morning at 10:00, news and feature editors post assignments for the week. These assignments, three or more to each staff member, are accumulated the week before from literally hundreds of sources.

The assignments are initialed by each reporter before leaving for interviews with administrators, faculty and students.

The class meets Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 10 a.m. to noon. However, because the paper is understaffed, most of the people spend between 25 and 30 hours a week on the publication.

The feature pages and the sports pages are made up and brought to the printers on Wednesday. At least five hours are required just to complete those two sections.

On Friday, the news, the women's and the special pages are made up and the page layouts, pictures, headlines and edited copy are given to the printer. Friday is usually the longest day, lasting at least seven hours for most of the staff.

Monday nights and often Tuesday nights are spent at the printers making last-minute corrections and inserting late copy into the pages.

Wednesday morning at 8 a.m., 6,000 copies of the finished product are delivered to the college and are distributed throughout the school.

Tom Graham, the Editor-in-Chief, pretty well summed up the operation when he commented, "the Guardsman provides journalism students with an excellent opportunity to learn the mechanics of a newspaper. But once you get involved in the production, you have to be prepared for a long and never-ending swim upstream. It's a challenge from the word 'go'."

Three other newspapers published by City College students, the Free Critic, Han and the Black Guard, also serve to inform and entertain the college community.

Put them all together and what have you got? A mass project by and for the students of City College, striving for efficiency and better service.

MEANINGFUL MOTION—Ruth Squires moves with the grace and skill of an accomplished dancer in her solo dance. Here her motions symbolize a graceful bird escaping to freedom. She is one of several students enrolled in the Composition Modern Dance class under the direction of Lene Johnson. The class meets every Monday, Wednesday and Friday in the Women's Gym.
(photo by Don Morales)

Nurse Judith Carey A Dedicated Worker

By Lynda Sandstrom

After six months of dedicated work and effort Judith Carey, the public health nurse here at City College, has provided this campus with an excellent health program.

Now a full-pledged public health nurse with a Public Health Nurse Certificate and a Health Credential for the state of California, her main concern is the welfare of students' health.

As the school nurse, Miss Carey has numerous duties to perform. Some of these functions are, health counseling and promotion, identifying campus health problems and handling these problem situations with the Department of Public Health.

She administers limited first aid to students. Her objective is to get students under a medical care program while they are still healthy.

Miss Carey chose this field of work because she finds it to be a tremendous area in which to strive for success. She is concerned with the prevention of future illnesses. She stated that, "this task can best be accomplished not in hospitals, but in health programs. It is most important to get people especially from adolescence to adulthood to help themselves in health matters."

A dramatic number of students ask for her assistance in health matters. She sees an average of 20 students a day. The peak periods are on Mondays and Wednesdays, although it is unpredictable. She offers students a wide range of counseling and is devoted to helping them with their problems.

For the health and safety of everyone on campus, it is part of her duty to keep up the clinic areas and supplies. She also investigates environmental hazard areas on campus and helps to alleviate these danger areas.

Miss Carey stated, "students on this campus are very cooperative and are looking for assistance. They come for help on their own accord and this is commendable."

It is her hope that the mental health program established this semester on campus, will expand in the future.

She is always willing to assist students in their problems and encourages them to be concerned with their health.

Before coming to City College, she received training at the Quincy School of Nursing in Massachusetts and obtained her Bachelor's Degree at Boston College. After six years as a surgical nurse in Boston, she went back to school for a degree in public health.

Students seeking help can contact Miss Carey in room S190 daily 8-4 p.m.

JUDITH CAREY, Public Health Nurse on campus, encourages students to be concerned with their health.
(photo by Tony Ragadio)

Former City College Coed Now A World Traveller

GIRL ON THE MOVE—Today in Bermuda, tomorrow in the Orient. For Stewardess Tatiana Konstantinov, it's just part of the job.

Tatiana Konstantinov helps to "make the going great" for people who travel by air—especially those travelling via Pan American World Airways.

A former City College graduate, Miss Konstantinov recently completed training at the airline's International Stewardess College in Miami, Florida and is now based in New York.

Her busy schedule takes her to far away places like Bermuda, the Bahamas and Caribbean, as well as across the Atlantic to Europe, Africa and the Orient.

Travelling is nothing new to Miss Konstantinov, as she was born in Belgium and later lived in Spain before coming to San Francisco.

While attending City College she majored in Russian and was an active member and officer in the Recreation Association.

The sprightly brunette claims fencing as her favorite sport and has several medals to prove it.

Panel Talks Give Insight On Both Sexes

A newly formed fact-finding panel sponsored by the Associated Women's Students will meet Monday, 12-1 p.m. in E-106, announced AWS President Hattie Knox.

The panel's function will be to discuss and inform interested persons of the Planned Parenthood Program and how it services the community.

Panel members will consist of the AWS board of directors (all students) and Dean Edna Pope.

The response of Monday's meeting will determine any future discussions.

Recipe For Single Girls

Now don't be gettin' yer Irish up (that is if ye be Irish) 'cause ye just burnt the life out o' the Irish Nut Bread.

With no Blarney Stone aroun' ta be kissin' fer luck, ye best be jottin' down the makins of a lip-smakin' batch o' Blarney Stone cookies.

2 cups sifted flour
3 tsps. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
4 eggs, separated
2 cups sugar
1 cup boiling water
1 tsp. vanilla.

Sift flour. Measure and sift three times with baking powder and salt. Beat egg yolks until light and lemon-colored, about 5 minutes. Gradually beat in sugar. Add water as needed. Add boiling water to egg-sugar mixture. Add flour. Blend well. Fold in egg whites, beaten until stiff but not dry, and vanilla. Pour into greased 9x9x2-inch pan. Bake in moderate oven (375 F.) 20 to 25 minutes or until done. Remove from pan, cool, spread with Frosting and roll in ground peanuts. Makes 1½ to 2 dozen.

FROSTING

2 tablespoons butter
½ tsp. vanilla
1 cup sifted confectioner's sugar
Cream

Cream butter until soft. Add vanilla. Gradually beat in confectioner's sugar. Add cream carefully, to moisten. (Time Reader's Book of Recipes)

ISC Dance This Friday

Inter-Sorority Council members are reminded of the annual traditional Cotillion to be held this Friday, 8 p.m. at the Claremont Hotel, Berkeley.

During the dance Theta Tau Sorority will present two new sisters, Yvonne So and Valerie Hughes.

All students are invited to attend the dance.

Tickets will be available at the door for $5 per couple.

SECRETARIES $450-$600
Glamour & variety NOW available in a number of exciting positions for personable sectys. with or WITHOUT shorthand. Aid TOP LEVEL EXECS. & take advantage of fabulous benefits. NO FEE (also FEE jobs) Call 521-5315
DRAKE PERSONNEL AGENCY
690 Market, Suite 1001

'Big Time Buck White'; Six Stagestruck Blacks

By Ray Gin

Currently across the nation, a Black culture revolution is being carried on. The new upsurge in the Black Arts has its roots in the very "soul" of the Black man. Their reawakened quest for an affirmation of their own identity instead of selling out to a predominantly white culture has a "no-compromise" label on it.

On the east coast, the theatrical season has been blessed with Black Theatre. I think Black Theatre can be referred to as a theatre that incorporates black writers, producers, directors, and actors and a company that works within the Black community.

Here on the west coast, our experience with Black Theatre has been stifled. But with a local production of "Big Time Buck White" we have a partial example of what Black Theatre is all about. Be you black or white, do not hesitate to see it! It is as spirited and as relevant a black artistic form you're likely to see.

The play opens in the meeting hall of a black organization called B.A.D. (Beautiful Alleluiah Days) and on the scene are four prominent members. The organization is supported by the honky government and various foundations but the group serves as a platform for Black nationalism. The four brothers prepare for the big meeting and arrival of their majestic speaker, Big Time Buck White. They fight and make raucous fun among themselves while each one plans for a personal coup d etat.

Ted Lange, Anthony Williams, Bill Parish, James Earl Garrison, and Herschell Burton in "Big Time Buck White."

The first act, with its superb slapstick overtones and self-ribbing jokes, proves to be the strongest part of the play. Their free-wheeling comedic improvisations are remarkably light in view of the play's focal point. Of the four, Ted Lange as Weasel, a sharply dressed operator whose wealth comes from some foul maneuvers, comes across with musical and comedic marksmanship. His body movements and facial contortions complement the broad-farcical air of the play with exacting cohesion. James Earl Garrison as Honeyman, Mr. Highpockets whose flexibility with loyalty sways with money, is brilliant with his impressionable eyes. Bill Parish as Jive, the organizer and aman who dips into the collection plate, is a hilarious and expert foil for the entire cast. Herschell Burton as the Hunter and Anthony Williams as Rubberband are both excellent in somewhat stereotyped roles.

Their ultra-leader, Big Time Buck White arrives in the second act, amidst a gleaming aura of lights and music, and the inevitable preaching begins. Behind the podium, Buck White lectures on the historical progression of the Black man and he helps to lift the Black man's yoke of subjugation with a fantastic musical rendition of "Big Black Balloons."

The second half of the play is very verbal without being dramatic. It nearly makes one feel he has been lured into the theatre with the comical first act and induced to sit through a solemn sermon. But nevertheless, what Big Time Buck White has to say has genuine values. He proclaims a Black culture revolution, a revolt we are sensing now, and at one point, one of the cast demands a valid monetary retribution for the 400 years of slavery imposed on the Black man from a white member of the audience. But the final ten minutes of the play, consisting of a solemn epilogue, is tedious and repetitive.

Plans are now in the setting to take the musical version of Buck White to the Great White Way, New York's theatrical circle. The off-Broadway version that had just closed was a non-musical comedy - drama. Brown Jr. saw fit to provide a score for the production and has emerged victorious. Every number is a memorable gem. From "Money, Money, Money" to "HNIC" (Head Nigger In Control), each song fits perfectly in the mainstream of the play.

"Big Time Buck White" is an intended instrument of the new Black cultural revolution to achieve artistic as well as financial success. In this way, the producers hope to see more Black productions sprout.

But the Big question that arises with "Big Time Buck White" is "Is a white man capable of writing a truthful and faithful Black play for a knowledgeable Black audience?" Joseph Dolan Tuotti, a white man of Italian and Irish descent, wrote the play briefly after the first outbursts at the Watts riots back in '66! Many of the characters are outright caricatures and stereotypes but if it were not for the actor's emerging humanism in each of the respective roles, they would have been exact parallels to the damaging Amos n' Andy school. In fact, if it were not for the actor's streak of humanness, the satiric tone of the overall play would have been damagingly divisive. The author sways from the first act, the mocking of the Blacks, to the second act, the mocking of white, with surprising menace. But I think the entire production crew in the local show has worked to avoid an entire theatrical mockery piece.

What the Black theatre doesn't need now is integration. Black theatre is only one artistic outlet in telling the Black Man's story as it really happened. And the only one who could tell it that way is the Black man himself.

Instructor Zack Thompson Resigns

A very exciting repertory troupe called "Black Light Explosion Company," under the direction of world famous dancer - choreographer and college instructor, Zack Thompson, will make its formal bow on June 1.

According to Thompson, the company will be a mixed media type of theatre with a rotating coeterie of players in the dance, drama, poetry, and music forms. The company will reside on campus in the Little Theatre beginning June 1 through 29.

Admittedly, Thompson has met with a great degree of static from the administration in his pursuit for this cultural event. This cultural event was frowned upon by the administration because it reeked of commercialism. The company is to charge an admission of a dollar with proceeds going to the performing students.

Another roadblock by the administration was the dispute over the use of the Little Theatre. Thompson told of how he had to contact, endlessly, the entire line of bureaucracy, from Dean Buttimer to President Conlan, and was met with evasiveness on the issue of using the Little Theatre when it was unoccupied for rehearsals and ultimately the show. This led to Thompson's conclusions that "artists are not encouraged on campus" and the emphasis is on "politicans" rather than artists and students.

To this extent, Thompson has decided to resign from his teaching post. However bold his intentions may be, his newly found company will still perform through the summer.

In order to prepare for a truly unique production, Thompson desperately needs help from all concerned and talented students on campus.

Thompson needs a piano player, bass player, drummer, horns player, set decorators, photographyenthusiasts,writers (the range is from heavy drama to satiric review), helpers on posters and flyers, male dancers (with no experience needed), and above all a place to rehearse on campus. Due to class conflicts, the dance studio is not available to Thompson anytime he wants it. All buildings must be closed by 6 p.m. on campus and this poses a problem in setting up rehearsals that need deep concentration. He needs a suitable room on Tuesdays and Thursdays from noon on. Any faculty member who wishes to provide for such a facility please contact Thompson in the Dance studio of the Women's gymnasium.

Veterans attending college here under the GI Bill will receive a certified attendance card along with their checks this month (probably before May 15th).

They must immediately mark the proper boxes, date, sign and return the card to the Veterans' Administration in the envelope provided, or they won't get any more checks.

In section C, under re-enrollment plans, veterans should notify the VA of their plans for the fall semester.

If they plan to attend summer session they must report to the veterans' counselor in E202 during the first two or three days of classes.

Classified

PERSONALS

VOTE for Steve Kass Soph Councilman. He gets things done.

TABBY Kittens need home, FREE call 282-7675.

AUTOMOTIVE

DUNE Buggies (2) street legal, flake bodies, call 566-7970.

SERVICES

FACTORY trained VW Specialist. Far in prices, acll 566-7970.

HELP WANTED

SECURITY Guard position weekends, eves or full time. Earn $14 plus per 8-hr. shift. Clear record required. Hair neatly trimmed. Apply: 690 Market St., Room 509.

LOST & FOUND

LOST — 1 Waltham 17 Jewel wrist watch with silver band. Reward $10. Call Grim Dept. at 586-4498.

SPECIAL
PROM SHOWS with dinner & dancing
Make reservations for May 15-28
THE NEW CHRISTY MINSTRELS
May 29-June 4
NEIL DIAMOND
June 5-18
JACKIE WILSON
RESERVE EARLY
PHONE 474-0365
BIMBO'S 365
THEATRE-RESTAURANT
COLUMBUS & CHESTNUT

Labelled And Recorded

Blues Legends Re-Discovered By New Blues Revivalists

By Ray Rezos

One of the nicer side effects of the current blues revival is the "re-discovery" of several older bluesmen. These are men who have been playing, singing, and living the blues for years with little or no reward. They are responsible for much of the music played by today's rock and blues bands.

It is largely through the efforts of the young white blues musicians that these re-discoveries have come about. Of course, the Rolling Stones have always paid tribute to Muddy Waters, Howlin' Wolf and Sonny Boy Williamson; while Eric Clapton and Mike Bloomfield freely acknowledge B. B. King as their main influence. As a result, these black artists are becoming legends in their own time.

But there are hundreds of others who have had to scrape up a living for years and are just now starting to reap their rewards. Albert King, for instance, toiled for years as a laborer and truck driver, playing and singing in his spare time before he was signed by Stax. Now, after several top-selling albums and dozens of sold-out concerts, Albert pretty well has it made.

Another King, Freddy, recently recorded his first LP for a major label (Cotillion, a subsidy of Atlantic). It was recorded under the auspices of King Curtis, a noted sax player. Freddy is a brilliant Texas guitarist and though this LP doesn't contain his best material, it is nonetheless quite good. One side consists of instrumentals, including the fine hit single, "Hideaway." The other side contains some good samples of Freddy's singing, including another hit, "Play It Cool."

Also on Cotillion with his first LP is Otis Rush, a Chicago bluesman. Rush is another powerful guitarist and his vocals come off very well, too. His LP was produced by Mike Bloomfield and Nick Gravenites, two musicians who owe their existence to men like Otis Rush.

Albert Collins, another Texas guitarist, was introduced to the world largely through the efforts of Bob Hite and Alan Wilson of Canned Heat. Albert King has listed Collins as his main influence and, indeed, the two men have very similar styles. Both have a clean, biting sound that is hard to duplicate. Again, the material is not Collins' best, but it's hard to fault his singing and playing.

Canned Heat also had a hand in a new LP on World Pacific by Albert Luandrew, or Sunnyland Slim. Slim plays excellent piano and sings. He has some pretty heavy people backing him up on the LP, including Harmonica George Smith and Shaky Jake, both of whom are featured in their own LP's on World Pacific.

George Smith's tribute to Little Walter was recorded with the Muddy Waters Band. Shaky Jake, another harp man, recorded his LP with the All-Stars, who have played with him for some time.

Swimming Season Mercifully Ends

It's Been a Forgettable Year for City College Aqua Lads

It hasn't been a year to remember for City College's Swimming Team or for its coach, Curt Decker.

Starting off with a disastrous 0-10 record in their inaiden water polo season last fall, Decker and his team was made to suffer through another losing season in swimming competition. The squad finished 0-6 in the Spring sport.

To make matters worse, in addition to not having a pool of their own to practice (and hold home meets) in, the Student Council cut the team's budget by 47 per cent. This necessitated the cancellation of two meets with the Olympic Club and one with San Bernardino College.

Swim Team Members: (back row l-r) Dave Nelson, Frank Achim, Bill Carter, and Frank Johnson. (Front row l-r) Rich Glass, Bret Higdon, Ron McInnis, Jeff Tsu and Roddy Rodriquez.
—Sam Woo photo

Without a doubt though, the main reason behind the team's past record is the fact that they must compete in the Golden Gate Conference, probably the toughest swimming league in California. Evidence of this was illustrated at the recent State Championships. FIVE of the six teams that swam in the GGC finished among the State's top eleven teams! Foothill College, from down the Peninsula, won the State crown for the umpteenth year in a row.

There were a few bright spots for CCSF. Lee McCollum set a new college record in the 500-yard free style with a 6:08.1 clocking. Rich Glass, the team's top swimmer, and Len Lynch also set new CCSF marks in the 200-yard butterfly and the 1,650-yard free style. Another pleasant surprise was the performance of freshman diver George Smith.

Perhaps the biggest highlight of the year was the team's stunning wins over USF and San Francisco State in a double dual meet in early March. The aquamen knocked off SF State, 53-51, and socked it to the Dons, 57 to 44.

The Rams did have a chance to win a conference meet when they visited Chabot at the end of the season. Alas the Gladiators prevailed, 71-40.

City College finished off their year when they got shut-out at the Nor-Cal Championships hosted by Foothill. At that meeting though, the 400-yard free relay team (Frank Johnson, Jeff Tsu, Glass and Lynch) broke the CCSF mark when they recorded a 3:42.1 in the event. Roddy Rodriquez and Ron McInnis also set new personal highs (or lows, as the case may be) in the 100-yard free style.

With the swimming season now concluded, the mermen turn to thoughts of next fall and water polo. Practically the entire 1968 squad returns, led by high scorers Dave Nelson (17 goals) and Glass (13). Goalie Bill Carter will also be back on the team that allowed 261 goals while scoring only 39.

The team certainly hopes to improve on their record in their second season of participation in the grueling sport. No place to go but up.

Better luck next year fellows, you certainly deserve it.

Sports Quiz

1. Who is the player-coach of the NBA's Atlanta Hawks?
2. What is the name of the Australian yacht that challenged the U.S.'s Intrepid for the America Cup in 1967?
3. Which NBA team grabbed off the most rebounds in a single game—and how many did they get?
4. What are the nicknames of the following teams? Minnesota and Philadelphia of the NHL; Boston of the AFL and Dallas of the ABA?
5. Roger Bannister is noted for what great track feat?
6. Who was the last man to hit four homers in one game?
7. Who holds the American League record for hitting into the most double plays in his career?
8. True or False. Bobby Hull of the Chicago Black Hawks has scored more goals than he has tallied assists during his NHL career.
9. Which man hit more home runs in 1967?
   a) Willie Mays
   b) Mickey Mantle
   c) Roberto Clemente
10. Who was the World Grand Prix champion in 1967?

ANSWERS TO SPORTS QUIZ

1. Richie Guerin 2. Dame Patrie 3. Boston Celtics-12 4. North Stars, Flyers, Pirates and Chaparrals 5. First mile 6. Willie Mays 7. Babe Ruth 8. True 9. Roberto Clemente 10. Denis Hulme

The Guardsman SPORTS

Golfers Fail

1969 was not a year in which the Golf Team was destined for glory.

At last week's Golden Gate Conference Golf Championships the team finished fourth, losing a (State Tournament berth to a team they've had in their hip pocket all year. In individual play, Greg Corvi missed a trip to Palomar when he lost a sudden death play-off. Earlier in the season, the team had to forfeit three matches (all wins) because of an ineligible player.

Playing the GGC tourney at Castlewood Country Club, located near Pleasanton in Alameda County, the Ram duffers came in behind San Jose City College, College of San Mateo and Chabot. San Jose is the class of the league, and one of the best in the state, while Chabot was playing on its home course, which could account for their narrow three-stroke margin of victory over the Rams.

But finishing well in back of San Mateo has to be a bitter pill to take. CCSF's duffers whipped the Bulldogs in convincing fashion in the two matches they played this year. To add insult to injury, Corvi tied for the sixth, and final, State Tournament spot with San Mateo's Mike Chesson. On the first hole of the play-off, Corvi's drive from the tee put him in bad position for an approach shot to the green. Chesson drove right down the middle of the fairway and won the hole.

All golfers had to play both courses at Castlewood with tee-off time starting at seven in the morning. San Jose's Bob Poen, who only weeks ago shot a superb 68 against the Rams, won the individual title after a play-off with Jeff Lane of Chabot. Third and fourth places were also decided by a sudden death play-off as San Jose teammates Forrest Fezler and Mark Good battled. Good was better as he bested Fezler. Chris Mountain of San Mateo was the sole possesser of fifth place; Poen and Lane had 36-hole totals of 146 on the par 144 courses. Good and Fezler finished at 148 while Mountain came in at 152. Corvi and Lane had 154s.

Ram Ken Kundert shot a 155, Paul Rea had a 158, John Susko used 159 strokes while Duane Cosper finished with a 167. It was a long, hot day for the Rams.

Coming Events

Wednesday (May 14)
TRACK — Northern California Trials, Modesto. 1:30 p.m.

Friday (May 16)
TRACK — CCSF women's track team at Humboldt State; continues through Saturday.

Saturday (May 17)
TRACK — Northern California finals, Hancock. 10:30 a.m.

Sports Notes

All men interested in playing football this fall should go down to the Men's Gym and sign up with one of the football coaches. See one of the following coaches: Dutch Elston, Alex Schwarz, Grover Klemmer or Ernie Domecus.

Those interested in traveling down to Monterey this Saturday must contact Mrs. Vasquez in the Women's Gym. Monterey Peninsula College is hosting a Sports Day for both men and women students.

State Finals: Best in West

City College's trackstersstars will head on to Modesto on May 24 for the final meeting of the year—the State Championship Finals.

Athletes qualify for the meet by placing among the top four competitors in an event at the Northern and Southern California regionals.

For the first time in years, the Northern section of the state will have a chance to compete on an equal basis with their Southern cousins.

Depending on the results of the NorCal meet, Merritt and CCSF will be among the teams spearheading the fight for the north.

—Pat Chan

League Champs Smash Ram 1st Division Hopes

San Mateo's League Champs dealt the final blow to the Rams' first division hopes last Tuesday, as they defeated CCSF, 5-2, in ten innings.

The loss put the Rams two games behind Laney with only one game to play.

Barry Sbragia, CSM's top pitcher, picked up his ninth victory of the year against no defeats. He fanned seven Ram batters, walked two and allowed only six hits in going the route for the win. It was Sbragia's second decision over the locals this season.

Sbragia also starred with the bat as he got the three-run, tenth inning rally started with a single. Three singles and a sacrifice bunt got the three runs home for the Bulldogs.

City College scored its two runs in the fourth inning to take a short-lived two-to-one lead. Dave Klinc led off the inning with a single and was sacrificed to second by Andy Fracchia. Third-baseman Jim Smith then smashed a double to plate Kline. Tom Mayfield's single scored Smith.

Hard-luck pitcher John Portoni absorbed the loss.

All swimmers who wish to play water polo this fall, contact Mr. Decker in the Men's Gym.

Jim Smith
—Bert Flowers pic

WEEKEND SPORTS

It must be very hard for a team to finish third in their conference and still take a fifth in the state but City College did it!

Though CCSF tied for third place in the GGC with a 4-3 record the Rams still managed to grab a fifth place finish at the annual West Coast Relays this Saturday with 15¾ points.

Clyde Sadler got back on the winning track after being upset at the All-GGC meet by tying for first place in the high jump with a 6-8 leap.

Bob Darling took a second place in the two mile run by sprinting in at 9:22.1, behind Marin's George Stewart.

Merritt won the meet, as expected, finishing way out in front with 45 points to second place Bakerfield's 27.

In other late sports news the Ram baseballers ended their season on a winning note as Tom Mayfield homered in the bottom of the eighth to boost CCSF to a 2-1 victory.

Sophomore pitcher Jerry Lagomarsino was called on to start his first game of the season and picked up his first win of the season. Lagomarsino hurled an almost flawless nine innings, scattering 10 hits while allowing the Eagles their only run in the first inning.

Behind 1-0 in the sixth inning, Hans Vigil doubled and scored on Rich Heintz's second hit of the day.

It was a day for second-stringers Pete Edwards, Chuck Grey, Rick Esclambre, Ken Batloro, John Lawhorn and Chris Callen all got chances to play.

Coach Ernie Domecus handed out free root beers after the game.

Spring Elections Postponed

The Guardsman
Official Publication of the Journalism Students of City College of San Francisco
VOLUME 68 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—WEDNESDAY, MAY 21, 1969 NUMBER 13

Elections Scheduled For Fall Due To Lack of Candidates

Due to a lack of candidates, the Asociated Student body elections have been postponed until next fall, according to Art Samuels, dean of student activities.

Samuels proposed the postponement to Student Council last week because "there weren't any presidential or vice-presidential candidates and there were only 11 candidates for 14 Council seats."

Council unanimously passed the proposal, which will postpone the elections until September 25 and 26.

Petitions for student body officers will be accepted the remainder of this semester and the first two weeks of the fall term.

Interested students may obtain petitions from Frank Alvarado, election commissioner, in E109; petitions must contain the signatures of 15 students along with their AS card numbers. All candidates must be approved by the election commissioner.

Requirements

All candidates are required to carry at least 12 units during their term in office and maintain satisfactory grades.

Candidates for Frosh Council must have no more than 27½ units completed with an overall grade point average of 2.0.

Soph Council candidates must have at least 28 units completed with a 2.0 average.

Presidential and vice-presidential candidates must have completed 42 units or more (in five semesters or less) with a 2.2 average.

Ad Hoc Committee

During the first three weeks of next term an ad hoc committee will be in charge of student affairs. The committee will be made up of Don Ortez, AS president, Brendel Kreighbaum, chairman of the Council of Organizations, and all members of the present Student Council who are returning in the fall.

The committee will also function as a constitutional revision committee and continue in that capacity during the fall semester at the discretion of the new Student Council.

Dean Samuels attributes the lack of candidates to a basic fear that students have about getting too involved.

President Conlan Confronted By La Raza Unida

By Jack Rulz

Latino delegates representing La Raza Unida strongly protested the proposed hiring of a new Latin-American counselor during a stormy confrontation with the president of City College, Dr. Louis G. Conlan and administrators here last week.

The arguments centered on whether the prospective counselor who was interviewed and recommended by both the Counseling Department and the Academic Senate was acceptable to La Raza Unida.

The meeting, the second one in two weeks, became quite heated at various points in the discussions as participants on both sides became involved in sharp vocal exchanges.

'Unacceptable'

The applicant came to the College and was interrogated by La Raza Unida members who stated then and at the meeting that he was unacceptable as a Latin-American counselor.

Gabriel Castillo, one of the spokesmen for La Raza Unida said that although the applicant was a Latino, and raised in the Hunter's Point area, he had changed, and could no longer relate to students from the Mission District.

Question

"Are you going to hire him or not?" said Castillo, as he asked Conlan point-blank in a dramatic exchange.

Conlan said the man had not been hired, although he was highly recommended, but no decision had been made. Later in the meeting, he said if the applicant were hired, it would be as a regular counselor, not as a Latin-American counselor.

Conlan then said that he was interested in hiring a Latin-American counselor.

Conlan then said that he was interested in hiring a Latin-American counselor "now" and if La Raza had any qualified applicant they recommended, he would be glad to interview him.

Hiring

One of the high points during the discussion centered around whether the students would participate in the hiring of all applicants for the Latin-American Department.

Basically it means this, the students want to screen all prospective candidates first, and either accept, or reject them, before they are hired by the administration.

In another development, Don Ortiz, A.S. president, and a La Raza member, said that all of the Latin-American curriculum had been drawn up by the students after over a year of research and that they had little if any help from the administration.

"We made some mistakes due to the lack of assistance," said Ortiz. Later we found out some of the courses were not related to four-year colleges, such as Cal and therefore the credits were non-transferable."

Dissatisfaction

The meeting ended with both sides dissatisfied with the results, and with questions unanswered, but agreeing to leave the door open on future negotiations and to meet again whenever it was deemed necessary.

Dave Salazar, a spokesman for La Raza Unida, points out his organization's stand on City College's policy of hiring new Latin-American counselors to President Conlan.
—Photo by Samuel Woo

A.S. Card's Price Hike

A resolution calling for an increase in the price of Associated Student body cards, from the present $5.00 to $7.50, will be presented and voted upon at next Monday's Student Council meeting.

"Our actual revenue has fallen short of our projected income and it has caused Student Council to re-evaluate our financial standing and a boost in the A.S. card price is in order," stated Derrick Quan, student finance chairman. According to Quan, the revenue was $4000 shy of the predicted and already distributed $40,000." It's impossible to operate under the present income," added Quan.

Reasons cited for the increase was inflation, the increased cost of conducting business and providing equipment and supplies, increased budget demands from the various campus organizations, and a new upsurge in college services.

All students are invited to attend the meeting this coming Monday at noon in E101.

Recruitment Day; 'Job Hunting on Campus'

Employment For Two-Year Grads

By Ray Gin

"This is the finest program we've ever had, measured in the numbers and quality of employers and graduates present," stated Joe Amori, director of placement here, in his evaluation of the College's 14th annual Recruitment Day held last Wednesday.

Participating were 200 graduating Business and Engineering students who, along with their extensive part-time and full-time experiences in their respective fields, met with 55 prospective employer teams from this state, Washington, Oregon, Nevada and Arizona. The two-year program graduates were interviewed according to their records and respective experiences and approximately one-third of them were hired by the presiding employer teams. The remaining two-thirds will continue with further interviews and some will be employed immediately upon graduation.

Amori, a down-to-earth official whose main concern is student welfare, expressed disappointment in the few numbers of Blacks involved with the semi-professional program. Of the 200 students in these two-year programs only 4 were Black. He attributes the Black numeral deficiency to the fact that many Blacks do not realize that these semi-professional courses are offered.

George Crippen, Amori's assistant, claims the problem is due to the inefficient and unknowledgeable high school counseling staff. He feels counselors are inappropriately geared towards academic studies and

(Continued on Page 7)

Joe Amori, director of placement, was toastmaster at the 14th annual Recruitment Day Breakfast held here last Wednesday.
—Photo by Samuel Woo

Blood Drive

Four hundred and thirty-one pints of blood were donated during the City College Blood Drive which was sponsored by the Inter-Fraternity Council in Statler Wing a few weeks ago.

The organization that donated the most blood was Alpha Sigma Delta Fraternity. The faculty also made a good turnout.

Ed Lew, publicity chairman for the drive, deserves recognition for doing an outstanding job.

A special thanks to Ray Tannehill and his news team, KFRC, ACT, Mr. D's, Coty Perfumes, Columnist Lucille Lando, Warner Bros. records.

A 70c breakfast is now being served daily in Smith Hall from 7:30 to 10 am

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Weekly Publication of the Students in the Journalism Department of City College of San Francisco
Thomas O. Graham, Editor
184

Vol. 68, No. 13 WEDNESDAY, MAY 21, 1969 Page 2

Crime, Poor Housing And Filth Characterize Haight

By Gerry Engler

Since the departure of the "true" Hippies, Haight street has reverted back toward a slum.

All the requirements for a slum have been fulfilled. There is poor housing coupled with high rent. Hoodlums roam the streets at night and pick up a little extra money.

One incident reported was a gang of youths that attacked a five year old boy, brought him into the park and cut him up.

One student is paying 90 dollars a month for a two room apartment. The two rooms contain a bedroom and a small kitchen. The bathroom is outside in the hall for the use of the five other apartments on the floor.

In the past few years, fire inspectors and the Department of Public Health have gone into a few of the buildings and condemned them.

During the height of the "Hippie invasion" the city kept the streets clean as possible, because Haight Street was a tourist attraction. Grayline Sightseeing buses included the "Hippie Haven" on their tour of the city.

According to some officers in the Park Police Department, crime and drugs have risen more last year than any other previous year.

There are quite a few armed robberies which deal mostly with drugs.

The Park Emergency Hospital backs up the report citing numerous cases of victims coming into the hospital suffering from knife wounds and wanting treatment for cuts and bruises.

One resident of the Haight blames the mess on the apathy of most of the residents of the area. There is a small movement attempting to rid the area of the filth.

Before World War II the Haight district was inhabited by upper middle class residents. The returning soldiers bought newer houses under the G.I. bill.

Lower middle class people began to move into the area, and as time went by, the class got lower.

White residents began to move out of the district as more Black residents moved in.

In the summer of 1967 young people from all over the nation moved in and attempted to change the Haight district to the Love district.

Unsuccessful in San Francisco, the "Love" people moved to New Mexico and other desolate areas of the Southwestern United States.

'Guns Are Ugly, People Are Beautiful'-- Eldridge Cleaver States In His New Book

By Jim Browning

ELDRIDGE CLEAVER Post-Prison Writings and Speeches edited by Robert Scheer (Random House $5.95).

"The basic problem in this country today, is political confusion," states Eldridge Cleaver, in this collection of his post-prison writings and speeches, brilliantly edited by Robert Scheer.

"People don't know who their enemies are," Cleaver adds, "they don't know who their friends are. They don't know whether to be afraid of the right or of the left. They don't know whether they themselves belong on the right or on the left."

In "Open Letter to Ronald Reagan," written in May, 1968, Cleaver denies the charges brought against him and states that he was, in fact, a "political prisoner."

The black revolutionary theme is discussed in "Psychology: the Black Bible," an evaluation of Frantz Fanon's "The Wretched of the Earth," and in "The Land Question and Black Liberation," an essay on black power activism vs. the land-acquisition policy of the Black Muslims.

"The Decline of the Black Muslims" and "The Death of Martin Luther King: Requiem for Nonviolence," are two approaches to the radical problem that Cleaver asserts are "played out."

The Panthers, according to Cleaver, never advocated "people going around inventing hostilities and burning down schools." Rather as Cleaver says, they urged that hostilities in the black community be "focused on specific targets."

"I don't dig violence," Cleaver writes. "Guns are ugly. People are what's beautiful; and when you use a gun to kill someone, you're doing something ugly."

Cleaver assesses the growing disgust of black America correctly when he says, "There is a large and deepening layer of black people in this country who cannot be tricked anymore by having a few black faces up front."

"We start with basic principle," says Cleaver, "that every man, woman, and child on the face of the earth deserves the very highest standard of living that human knowledge and technology is capable of providing. Period. No more than that, no less than that."

Jerry Bradford's Jam Session, An Unstructured Music Program

By Boku Kodama

When I first began rapping with Jerry, I had a feeling of ease and informality. With guitar in one hand, an amp in the other, we walked toward B-5 where he held his jam sessions on Tuesday nights, an activity sponsored by the Experimental College.

Jerry Bradford, a year out of Lowell High School, has been a guitarist for four years. "What's the purpose of your jam sessions?" I asked.

"Well, it's a get-together of musicians, you know, and we just do our thing," he said, and then continued, "I personally like to play the Blues but sometimes someone just gets a tune going and the rest of us just join in . . . we have an unstructured situation here, which is a groove."

With guitar in hand and amp ready to go, Jerry began hitting some notes. I asked him, "How many musicians do you usually have for these sessions?"

"It fluctuates," he said, "sometimes only three and sometimes as many as twelve. We also get people who come in and listen to us which is okay except that we're working and they're just sitting around."

"Last year, I played with a folk group," Jerry revealed, "we used to play gigs for clubs and organizations but we had personality conflicts, so we broke up. Man, when you've got chicks in your group, it doesn't work."

"How did you conceive these jam sessions that you now hold?"

I asked him a second time. He was too caught up on a tune to hear me the first time around.

"I've wanted to jam and I knew about them but it wasn't until I heard 'Super Session', with Mike Bloomfield, Steve Stills and Al Kooper at the Fillmore, that I made up my mind to form one."

Jerry commented, "Jamming's a groove! I hope this article gets people to jam with us."

I left before the music began. Anyone for jamming?

Route S.F.

City's Fight to Save Victorian Homes

By Boku Kodama

San Francisco is perhaps the most colorful city in America, not only because of its fascinating history, its hills or bridges but because of its attempts to preserve those precious things of yesteryear. The latest project being undertaken is the preservation of the once majestic Victorian homes.

The era when Victorian homes were built began in 1880 and lasted until the 1920's. Today, 1100 of those buildings still stand, most of which are to be condemned and destroyed. However, in an effort to protect a memory of the past, the Landmarks Committee and the San Francisco Redevelopment Agency have brought about preliminary plans to save as many of the old houses as possible.

Jim Vann of the Central Redevelopment Agency stated that so far, over 500 Victorian homes have been rated by city building inspectors as being in satisfactory condition or as good enough to be reconditioned to meet the city requirements. Vann also said that of the 1100 homes which stand, 42 percent of them are located in the Western Addition, the site of the Japanese Cultural Center, the Fillmore slums and the new St. Mary's Cathedral. In this district, its tenants are mostly low-income families but owned predominately by "outsiders." In several cases where the owners were required to bring up the standard of their property, the tenants were faced with an increase in the rent; thus, on occasion, these tenants were forced to move.

The agency has acquired a few of these homes. They will be put up for sale with the hope that the federal government will provide for a loan with a small three percent interest rate to help new buyers recondition their new old Victorian buildings. (The loan proposal will be or will not be approved no earlier than July 1 of this year.) Those who live in these homes or who live in the district will have first crack at purchasing these buildings; second will be the non-profit organizations; and last will be outside private buyers.

In reconditioning the buildings, Vann has estimated that anywhere between $5,000 to $6,000 would be necessary. In some cases where the owners have already improved upon their homes, about $10,000 was needed.

One project in the preliminary plans was to have a block of Victorian homes but this idea has since been dropped due to several complications. There has also been an idea of moving these structures, if the buyer is able to afford it. In this situation, he would need land to place the building plus a foundation.

For further information on these Victorian homes, contact the Central Redevelopment Agency, 863-7750 or the Western Addition Redevelopment Agency, 992-9100.

Left alone in a TR-3, this little boy got behind the wheel, put goggles on his head and pulled out a cigarette. As we all know, little boys like to imitate.

—Guardsman Photo by Samuel Woo

Physics Center Established to Help Students

The Physics Center, in conjunction with the Tutorial Center, has initiated the Physics Students Service Center in an effort to help students understand the subject of physics better. It is located in S-160G.

Its purpose is to provide a room in the Science Building where students can go to obtain help with problems in physics anytime during 30 or 35 hours a week.

Tutors include a combination of advanced physics students and instructors, who will be available at the center to answer questions in the area of physics during specified hours of the week.

The Physics Students Service Center will be open from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Thursday, and from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Fridays.

If this service meets the needs of the students, it will probably be expanded. For further information, contact Dr. Lance Rogers, S-170, or any other member of the Physics Department.

The Physics Department has also been actively promoting the adoption of a new grading system next semester, in which students of physics will choose a grading system for themselves.

There are two methods from which students will choose if these grading systems are approved by the Academic Senate and Administration.

Guardsman Staff

(The Guardsman is the weekly publication of the students in the journalism department of City College of San Francisco. It is published each Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacations. The opinions expressed in the columns and editorials are those of the individual writers and not necessarily those of the Guardsman, the department or the college. Editorial office, 304, Science Hall; telephone 587-7272, ext. 246.)

SPRING 1969

EDITOR IN CHIEF .... TOM GRAHAM
Managing Editor .... Barbara Hemann
Feature Editor ..... Boku Kodama
News Editors ..... Jack Ruiz, Randy Flynn
Sports Editor ..... Phil DiCarlo
Editorial Assistants: Rita Carroll, Lavine Lee, Lynda Sandstrom.
Reporters: Patrick Chen, Gerry Engler, Ray Gin, Marc Kavacs, Jack Ruiz.
Photographers: Eugene Wong, Chief; Jules Claessens, Berri Flowers, Antanyl Raggadio, Jerry Warren, Earl Williams, Samuel Woo.

THE BRASS KNUCKLE by mike berman and brian chin

Summer Work

A new and unique program to help the young people of San Francisco to find work this summer has been initiated by the leaders of City Hall, unions, churches and big businesses.

The founders pledged to buy 1000 shares of stock at $50 a share to start its campaign. They will then set out to raise another $50,000 from the general public.

"The San Francisco Summer Happen-Thing," as the program is called, will try to help the 40,000 teenagers who will be vacationing for the summer.

33rd Cal Northern Banquet Huge Success For H & R

The Hotel and Restaurant Department presented their 33rd Annual California Northern Hotel Association Dinner last week to 613 members of the H&R industry, the largest attendance and the most successful banquet in the history of the department.

"This year's dinner involved more student participation and involvement. The students who helped plan the dinner displayed inititive and excellent teamwork," according to Pete Pucetti, publicity chairman for the Hotel and Restaurant Department.

Filet Wellington was served at the banquet and the delicacy of wine from Beaulieu Vineyard wa served for the first time.

Pete Briggs, general manager for the dinner and a graduating student of the H&R Department was pleased at the tremendous success of the banquet.

English Chairman Resigns

Don Snepp resigns as chairman of the English Department after four years.

Snepp Pursues Other Interests

"Naturally, I resign with reluctance from the chairmanship of the department I consider the most vital and important in the entire college," stated Donald Snepp, chairman of the English Department here.

"However, I sincerely feel that after four years, a change of chairman is necessary and beneficial," he continued. "I anticipate with great pleasure the return to teaching, and the possible pursuance of an additional degree."

During Snepp's chairmanship, the English Department has doubled in size and will boast 83 members in the fall. Communications 5A and 5B have been completely reorganized, all U.C. Berkeley sophomore transfer courses have been added to the curriculum, and ESL (English as a second language) has been reorganized and enlarged to 10 instructors.

Snepp was appointed chairman of the department by President Conlan in September of 1965 and is presently completing his fourth year in that capacity.

He entered the English Department here in September of 1948.

City College's Department of English is now one of the largest in the United States, even among four year colleges. This in itself is a tribute to Snepp and the chairmen before him who worked so hard to achieve this success.

Jim Cagnacci will pick up where Snepp has left off as chairman and hopefully carry the department to new and greater heights.

Classified

FOR SALE

Camera: Rolleiflex with flash in cases —No. 1 and No. 2 close-up lenses $75. Slide projector: Wollensek Automatic No. 815; 25 ft. hand cord; 12 trays $60. Phone: 566-9745.

1967 Honda 305SC $450 or offer. Call eves 566-2618.

'63 Ford "Funny Car" & parts $500. Harley 45" $275; other car and bike parts. Electric motors $7.50. Sid 664-2336 nites 467-3033.

1965 Triumph TR 4, beautiful. Call eves, 731-9211.

8 ft. cab over camper, Trovett. Clean $825. 344-4692.

LOST & FOUND

Found: 35 mm stand. auto camera at Nat'l Forest west of Greenfield 1st wk. April. Contact Charles Stellings, 741 Amigo Way, No. 7B, Newport Beach, Ca.

PERSONAL

Wtd.: Beautiful Chinese Girls to meet G.H. and J.H. at KCSF.

Typing: My home 661-7337. Expert all fields, reasonable.

Wanted immed.: exchange 2-4 hrs. hswk/babysit. for rm. & board. 921-7836

Wanted: Ride to Chic. or N.Y. before June 18. Lee, 752-2796.

Jim: I love you! I love you! I love you! Love and kisses, Carola

It's Book Buy-Back Time

WE PAY TOP PRICES FOR YOUR USED BOOKS

$ $ $ $ $ $

california book co., ltd.
11 PHELAN AVE.
SAN FRANCISCO

Signs of Society's Last Stand?

Problems of Population and Pollution

Clean Our Air Or We Will Die

By Philip Fairbrother

High atop Coit Tower, I was horrified to gaze upon a murky blanket of polluted air covering the city. This polluted air is becoming a dangerous menace to one's well being. This foul-smelling air is a menace because it reduces visibility, as well as irritates eyes, nose and throat. If such air pollution continues, we humans will die in the near future.

The continual exposure of individuals to even relatively low levels of air pollution may promote the development of cancer, heart disease, and chronic bronchitis.

Our air is becoming nothing but a vast sewer. Factories, power plants, and paper mills are often the culprits that are adding to this sewer system. The air in urban areas seems to have about four times as many air contaminants as rural areas; so we poor urban dwellers are condemned to death sooner than our rural dwellers.

Man can live for five weeks without food and five days without water, but only 5 minutes without air. Because poisonous gases go into the air, and we must breathe to live, our life span will be shortened.

We must all be made aware of this dangerous air pollution problem and take immediate steps to correct it, before it is too late, and we perish due to our procrastination.

Is this a modern playground? It was once a beach where children could swim and play.

—Photo by Steven Tsiptsis

Why Not Turn On???

By Pat Sherman

The main crime among students is drugs. Drugs are easy to get hold of, go at a low price, and have no funny taste like alcohol, so why not turn on?

Drugs are a hangup which too many youths can't shake. The more the young use and publicize dope, the more the adult society becomes uptight with the youthful rebellion.

Drugs are already being widely used by youths. It is becoming part of the swinging society to be a "head." The number of people who indulge in discreet little trips—just for the fun of it—grows constantly.

Marijuana is the drug most used by people today, for it is the easiest drug to get. The trip is usually very mellow and one tends to laugh, talk, and eat alot. Marijuana has not as yet been proven harmful to the body or brain. Other drugs which are harmful to the body include Acid, Speed, Smack, STP, THC, diet pills, and downers.

Taking drugs is illegal; but many other crimes stem from drugs as well. One might steal or rob in order to get money for his supply. Frequent sex crimes, such as a girl having her body mutilated by friends while on Acid, are committed while on drugs. The most serious crime committed while under the influence of drugs is murder. Not only the Haight-Ashbury but the Sunset District has experienced such a crime.

If you want to ruin your mind, your sex life, or even your future life, why not take a little trip? Everyone else does. But do you want to live or die? The decision is yours!!

Speaking of Refuse...

By Karen Chin

Don't throw away that candy wrapper, paper cup or cigarette package. There are enough garbage problems already without your adding to them.

San Francisco creates more than 1,800 tons of refuse per day. This volume would be approximately 750 truckloads per day. Just think of that mountain

No place for flowers . . .
—Photo by June Resner

of garbage stacked outside each house, and you'll be thankful for that red truck that makes its weekly rounds.

The problem of garbage is more pressing every day due to the sharp increase of population. More people create more garbage. The crime problem is where to put all the refuse. The old saying here is, "I don't care where you put it, but don't put it next to me." In a short time, there are going to be very few places anywhere where it's "not next to someone."

Before anything can be done to solve the garbage problem, there are various conditions that must be considered.

A hot climate often needs treatment different from a cold climate. Garbage cannot be kept long in hot climates without causing a nuisance. Therefore, it must be collected often and regularly.

Different areas have different types of garbage. The materials thrown away from a residential district will differ from that of a manufacturing town. Residential garbage can either be burned, buried or recycled into the economy. Industry garbage, may, for example, include chemical wastes that are usually dumped into rivers.

The location of the city will obviously affect the methods and treatments of refuse disposal. A place where there are marshes and lowlands could have garbage dumped. A city of beauty and scenic views cannot.

The government plays a part in how garbage should or can be disposed. Any garbage disposal plan requires several years before any improvements take place; years in which the hands of government may change. With that change, a new policy of garbage disposal would probably appear, thus breaking and changing the old plan.

With all this information in mind, one can readily see that the garbage problem requires a vast array of solutions; solutions that are not known but must be found.

Children Endangered

Trash Poses Threat of Death

By Mathew Montgomery

Eight children in New York have contracted typhoid fever from eating a floating watermelon. The cause of this disease has been traced back to you, the citizens. In the near future, many high authorities may contact you concerning the cause of such diseases and many other offenses that you are not now aware of. The best way to meet such a problem is to face it head on. Know what you are doing and correct it. Here is what's happening.

The reason the eight children in New York contacted typhoid fever from a watermelon was because of the millions of tons of garbage being thrown into the Hudson River. This garbage comes from paper people are throwing away, the water with which people wash their clothes, and oil that many people drain from their cars. Also, unwanted bath water and the water from toilets make up a large portion of domestic waste. But when domestic wastes combine with agriculture and industrial wastes, a tremendous amount of garbage flows into rivers, lakes and bays all over the United States.

Industry throws away their wastes from cooling, washing, flushing, extracting and from chemical treatment. Each may cause sickness or death in marine life. The United States Public Health Service has reported more than 6.3 million fish were killed in thirty-six states over a seven-month period due to garbage thrown into rivers and lakes. Such water pollution not only affects marine life, but in many parts of the United States such as Ohio, Michigan and Pennsylvania, people use river, lake and bay water for drinking.

In agriculture, chemicals are used to destroy insects and to produce richer soil for food production. These chemicals are washed into rivers and lakes by rain. This again affects people because the same water is used for drinking. Of one hundred fifty million Americans that are served by municipal water supplies, one hundred million of them are getting water from sources into which one hundred twenty million have already dumped garbage.

In San Francisco, water isn't taken from the bay for drinking. However, the bay has been termed a cesspool because of all the sewage dumped into it. Such sewage consists of household waste, service station waste, waste from slaughter houses, chemicals used to produce canned food and garbage from streets.

Since our water supply is running short, we will eventually get our drinking water from the bay. What are we going to do when we want a drink of clean water?

Unless we, the people in San Francisco, demand the authorities establish treatment facilities for waste, many people will die from disease and thirst. Not only must we demand treatment, but we must also promote the idea to our relatives and friends in other cities. We must convince them to demand clean water because their jobs, their living standards, the future of their children, the economic and social health of their communities, the stability and continued strength of this nation depend upon the cheapest resource they have, water.

Remember that the water on this planet stays about the same while the population continues to grow. Moreover, almost every creek, river, lake and bay in the United States is polluted.

Act NOW or—

Water Pollution Here to Stay

By Rodney Tom

"NO SWIMMING."

Does this sign look familiar? Because of pollution, we now swim in mud water at our Aquatic Park.

Every day, almost 400 million gallons of treated sewage and industrial wastes are dumped into the San Francisco Bay. That amount of liquid waste is enough to cover Golden Gate Park more than a foot deep!

For survival, man needs only two pints of water a day. However, each man demands hundreds of gallons of water for other uses.

Water is the main raw material used in industry. It is a power source, coolant, transporting device, ingredient, and cleansing agent. It has been estimated that to produce a dollar's worth of steel requires about 1,400 gallons of water. To produce a dollar's worth of paper, nearly 200 gallons of water is needed, and our daily need (for the things we eat, wear, use) for water is approximately 1,200 gallons.

By the year 2020, the San Francisco Bay and Delta areas' population will triple totaling more than 15 million. Fifteen million people multiplied by 1,200 gallons is a lot of water just for a small section of California for one day!

This demand for water means that we must reuse the water over and over.

Yes, we will be using more and more water, but we will be producing more and more wastes also, and it still won't be enough. As the wastes are dumped into the water, pollution occurs. By using the oxygen in the water, nature is able to decompose organic matter into a more disposable form. However, there is just too much waste dumped into the water and the natural oxidation can't handle the job.

Sewage treatment plants are used to speed up the process of decomposing organic wastes.

If we want clean, cheap water in the future, we must act now to stop polluting our streams, rivers, bays, and oceans.

This special section was prepared by the members of the Com 5A Experimental Sections. Editors: Eileen Turner, Roxanne Young. Copy Editors: Shirley Chin, Don Tait, Philip Fairbrother. Layout: Barbara Bradford, Lewis Schrech. Photography: June Rasner, Steve Swett, Steve Tsiptsis.

Contraceptives..a No, No?

By Roxanne Young

Catholic couples can go on practicing birth controls without making an issue of it. But a priest must preach and teach. He cannot avoid the issue if there is conflict between what the Pope directs him to teach and what his conscience tells him to do.

Let me first define some terms so that we can better understand the issue. Contraception is the means of preventing conception. Conception is a term for a female mammal's becoming pregnant. Conception takes place following sex relations when the sperm from the male joins an egg in the female. Birth control depends on preventing this meeting and union. A medical device or product used for this purpose is called a contraceptive.

The methods presently used in the U.S. include: oral contraceptives; the diaphragm, cervical cap, and chemical contraceptives; the condom and coitus interruptus; the rhythm method; and intrauterine devices.

Turmoil over birth control was spread through ranks of Roman Catholics worldwide because of Pope Paul VI's encyclical, Humanae Vitae ("Of Human Life") issued July 29, 1968, which reaffirmed the church's prohibition of abortion, of temporary or permanent sterilization, and of artificial conception, and approved only the rhythm method of family planning.

The Pope supported his reasoning by placing primary reliance on Catholic tradition and the authority of the papacy. But theologians defied the Pope's authority insisting that the encyclical was not binding on married Catholics who have good reasons to practice birth control.

In a long introduction, the encyclical cites the many reasons put forward by theologians in favor of birth control: the population explosion, the economic difficulties involved in raising a large family, new insights into the psychological nature of sexual experience. In the end though, the Pope rejects them all.

Many Catholic theologians declared that there is no moral difference between the rhythm method and the pill and that the latter only affords greater ease and certainty. Increasing numbers of Catholics were following the advice of their physicians and using various contraceptives instead of the rhythm method, since there had not been any definite papal announcement on the subject for five years.

There are right ways and wrong ways to resolve the tension within the church. The worst possible way would be for dissenters to leave the church. Another would be for dissenters to be forced out of the church.

Unless differences over the Pope's encyclical can be straightened out there will be a long period of discontent, not only in the Roman Catholic Church, but also in the daily lives of Catholic married couples.

Food Supply Seen as India's Major Concern

By Eileen Turner

It's eleven o'clock and you're beginning to feel hungry. But, if you think you're hungry, think about the poor people in India. You might be hungry two hours a day, but in India most of the people are hungry 24 hours a day. And although the average life span in India is a short 30 years—well, thirty years is a long time to be hungry.

Wonder why the people in India cannot help their starving people, or why other countries don't try to help them? Looking into the problem of food supply will show you how complex the difficulties of the underdeveloped countries are.

India is primarily an agricultural country, but many of the farmers are still using old tools and ancient techniques for farming. They're afraid to break with tradition and try new products and modern techniques. Often they reject advice on more advanced farming methods; they refuse to try new grains. Therefore, their food production is not as high as it might be.

But people in India also have much larger families to feed. Because the average man in India has very little education and does not believe that he can control his fate, he fails to realize that he need not produce fifteen children to have ONE to carry on his farm and name. Imagine one million men with families of fifteen children each. There would be fifteen million people in just one generation.

Until the population is reduced or until the food supply catches up with the population growth, most of the people of India will go hungry.

The next time you feel hungry and head for the cafe, just think about India.

DANGER: Polluted Air

By Carol Quinby

Air pollution is becoming a major problem. In many communities pollution is the cause for many sickness such as acute respiratory infections, chronic bronchitis, pulmonary emphysema, bronchial asthma and lung cancer.

One sign of air pollution is reduction of visibility. This is caused by the high density of dust and smoke particles plus the darkening effect of nitrogen dioxide. Other signs of air pollution would be the darkening of paint, the cracking of rubber and the corrosion of metals.

Pollution is also harmful to plant life. Rather than killing the plant it will lessen the quality and quantity of it. The annual plant loss in the Bay Area is over $5,000,000.

Pollution is caused by ultraviolet rays of the sun reacting with the various chemical compounds in the air. During the summer months from June to October pollution is the heaviest. This is because during these months with long hours and bright sunshine the chemicals are exposed to ultraviolet rays for a sufficient time to "cook" them. However, on days when the area is covered with fog, the pollution will not form.

Smoke, dust, mists, ash and fumes are some of the names given to particles in the air that form pollution in either a solid or a liquid state.

In general there are three reasons for pollution "burning or the application of heat, chemical reactions in the grinding, or polarizing of material."

Urban Housing--The Problem and a Solution

By Al Suguitan

Urban housing is a major problem in San Francisco today. The problem areas that lack adequate housing are concentrated in the Hunters Point, Western Addition and south Market Street sections of the city.

Hunters Point

In the Hunters Point area of 134 acres, 114 acres contain 834 units of temporary housing from World War II still being occupied by low-income families. Of the 263 buildings, 187 are now dilapidated beyond repair. An additional 14 are a blight to the community. There is no area for recreation or community facilities and landscaping is completely absent.

South of Market

South of Market Street there exists a chaotic combination of blighted residential, commercial, and industrial buildings unfit and unsafe for occupancy, and a group of overcrowded dwellings with inadequate provisions for ventilation, light and sanitation. These conditions contribute substantially and increasingly to problems of health, the rise in crime and the maintenance of fire safety.

Western Addition

The same conditions exist in the city's Western Addition area and through the Fillmore district where blighted and forgotten neighborhoods provide substandard homes for many low-income families.

As a result of proposed planning and added financial assistance from the 1965 Federal Aid Legislation, the city has executed a program for renewal, now in progress, in six major areas of San Francisco.

A program to renew the Western Addition is nearly completed with the Japanese Town Center and the modern apartment housing (such as Martin Luther King Towers and the Cathedral Hill complex) suited for low-to-moderate income families.

In the Hunters Point area, plans for better housing and recreational facilities have passed the planning stages and now employment will be provided when the projects begin.

The Yerba Buena Center project in the south of Market area will add a new downtown section to the city along with a new sports complex and improved housing. In the Embarcadero district new hotels, theaters and shops will be built.

Completion of the projects is expected in 1974 when the city will also have a new rapid transit system linking Downtown San Francisco with outlying suburbs in the Bay Area. Total expenditures will amount to 433 million dollars for renewal and redevelopment.

Times are changing, but the housing problem goes on—as the population grows.

—Photos by Steven Swett

Women's News

Sylvia Curtis Voices Opinion On Alioto, Panthers, Nixon

By Jim Browning

"Some individual Blacks in this country have the means to succeed in life, but for the mass of Blacks living in the ghetto, these means are a long way off," stated Sylvia Curtis, political science major and a Financial Aid secretary.

"The Panthers and the Mission Rebels have done a lot to organize the community into one body and to make the people aware of the goals and opportunities available. Although I'm not a militant, I believe in what they're trying to do.

Sylvia Curtis speaks her mind. (Photo by Samuel Woo)

"They've really helped the ghetto dweller," she continues, "but they can't do the entire job alone. So far, the White community hasn't done very much to help."

Miss Curtis thinks that Mayor Alioto has a "bad" opinion toward the Panthers. "Instead of trying to understand and communicate with them, he merely sits in his great white castle, always criticizing them."

"He could really see what's happening in this city but hasn't. By communicating he could break down the wall of racial hatred that exists."

She brands ex-vice president Hubert Humphrey as being "a wishy-washy old liberal, who has no mind or backbone of his own.

"It actually represents part of the conservative opinion."

Of President Nixon, she says, "Now that he's in office he's better than when he was running last year. He has proposed some very good programs — allowances to poverty families, the lottery draft, and his new foreign policy."

Miss Curtis thinks that the best segment of City College is the small classes and the Experimental College. She attributes the negative characteristics to a lack of campus spirit.

"Since the students are here for only a brief time, they ask themselves 'why should I do anything for the school. I'm only here for two years, let the next guy worry about it.'"

Born in Berkeley, raised in Palo Alto, Miss Curtis plans to attend U.C. Berkeley.

New Attitudes For Filipino Club

A recent improvement characterized by progress and the initiative to unite academically as well as socially has overcome the Filipino Club. Members and officers of the club have gradually become aware of this new change.

The stress on club members this semester lies on academic achievement, a representative reported. Verification of this stress is shown in the formation of a club tutorial and counseling program, wherein members help each other academically on a more personal level.

Attitudes shared between club members have risen to a more nationalistic degree. This is exemplified by the recent action taken to change the club's former name, "Filipino-American" Club to the now used "Filipino" Club.

Filipinos on campus are now taking strides toward political activity. Club officers and members are in the process of conferring with Filipino teachers in the community in the quest of discovering why there is a lack of Filipino teachers in the San Francisco Unified School District.

Recent achievements of the Filipino Club include the acquisition of a club office loacted in the old bookstore. The room is now being utilized to its fullest extent for the club's academic and social purposes.

"Undoubtedly, this semester the Filipino Club of this campus has provoked a stronger attitude of Filipino nationalism for the good of its members and the Filipino community," secretary Josie Domingo, commented.

SIDESHOW — As she leisurely wandered around the campus conversations would stop and heads would turn to look at the beautiful young maiden. But as the sun slowly settled, the girl became a lovely memory—a memory that man will not forget. (Photo by Tony Ragadio)

SUMMER TIME—With summer nearly here girls can put away those skies, boots and parkas and begin concentrating on fashions for beach wear. This particular display suggests that women shoppers who buy now can save on next year's ski wear or can purchase the latest style bikini for this year. (Photo by Samuel Woo)

Recipe For Single Girls

You look into your purse, and you find you've only got 11 cents. That guy you've been drooling over for months has finally accepted your invitation to have dinner with you. You're getting desperate; after all, what can you buy for 11 cents?

No sweat!! Cook the "Poor Man's Goose," and just hope that you have all the necessary ingredients.

Poor Man's Goose
1¼ lbs. beef or pork liver, sliced
2 tablespoons bacon fat
Salt and pepper
5 medium onions, sliced
5 medium potatoes, sliced
5 slices bacon

Remove skin and veins from liver, then cut liver into serving pieces. Brown slices lightly on both sides in hot fat, about one half minute on each side. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Put liver and drippings into bottom of large (ten-cup) casserole. Add onions, then potatoes, and sprinkle with more salt and pepper. Top with bacon slices. Cover casserole and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F) one hour. Then remove cover and bake 15 minutes longer to crisp bacon. Serve hot.

Make Your Own -- and Cheap!

During the early part of the 19th century American furniture craftsmen developed a mode of decoration that is still popular, and what is more, that lends itself to modern application: the stencil.

The stencil is not limited or restricted to any particular form; it may be as easily employed to create a Diesel locomotive as to create the quaint old design of nuts, maple leaves, or roses.

Those who are attracted to the old designs but who at the same time feel that they are not wholly suitable to modern furniture should not overlook the possibilities of adaptation — that is, the modernization of these old motifs. Anyone who is at all artistically ingenious, can modernize the old craft by the use of such naturalistic objects as leaves, flowers, shells, etc.

All those who use the craft should first make a number of practice panels before they apply their work to actual furniture.

The baste principle is that of taking a piece of paper, drawing a design on it, and then cutting out the design — which for simplicity's sake, we will say is an apple. We wish to duplicate this apple many times. The stencils should be cut into thin stenciling paper, which may be purchased at any large paint store; or we may prepare our own stenciling paper. This may be a good tough grade of wrapping paper that has been dipped in melted paraffin. This will prevent anything but superficial sticking to the sort of tacky surface that the stencil must be used on.

In the actual cutting of the stencil, we must avoid all ragged edges — such as a dull knife might make.

The cut stencil is then placed on the surface to be decorated, and the open space representing the apple is covered with whatever kind of paint we wish.

In actual practice, of course, the matter is not quite as simple as that. If we smear paint in place of the simple way mentioned above, we shall very soon find ourselves in plenty of hot water. We shall find that the paint has seeped underneath the edges of the stencil so that when the stencil is lifted we have a ragged, ugly-looking edge.

—R.C.

EL REY RESTAURANT
Breakfast—Lunch—Dinner
FINE FOOD—GOOD SERVICE
C.B. Steaks—Our Specialty
Open 7 days a week
1923 Ocean Ave. Ph. 587-4829
10 Pct. Discount for CCSF Students

SECRETARIES
$450-$600
Glamour & variety NOW available in a number of exciting positions for personable sectys. with or WITHOUT shorthand. Aid TOP LEVEL EXECS. & take advantage of fabulous benefits. NO FEE (also FEE jobs) Call
421-5315
DRAKE PERSONNEL AGENCY
690 Market, Suite 1001

Joe Amori's Campus Job Agency Hosts Recruiters

(Continued from Page 1)

guiding students to general education courses. The atmosphere of racial discrimination still hovers over the minds of the Blacks and other minority groups although many employers have emphasized equal opportunity, concluded Crippen.

The number of students, in general, participating in the semi-professional courses are all too few according to Amori. He feels that 200 out of 10,000 students enrolled in the program is much too small a number. Amori thinks there should be 500 to 1000. Two school years (354 days) is all the student needs to invest for a rewarding return of a stable job and a high pay range of $400 to $750, with a good chance to earn more, he said.

The annual Recruitment Day's City College Service Award was given to the California State Automobile Association on behalf of its undying contribution in the recruiting, training, and placement of qualified community students over a period of 26 years.

The presiding Recruitment Day Queen was Glenda Susan Gogel, an evening class journalism major and a full-time employee of the C.S.A.A.

The 14 year old wholesale-type, recruitment program has met with undeniable success. What are the participating student and employer reactions?

Linda Granucci, secretarial graduate: "Better insight into what a company has to offer. It's much more of a personal thing and it's better than having to go downtown."

Darlene Crowley, accounting graduate: "Gives expert experience in talking and interacting with people. Students benefit by the experience of this interaction for future reference."

Juan Givens, data processing graduate: "I'm taking the data test this Friday from the Civil Service Commission through an interview here. This program gives you a chance to see which company suits your particular skill without needless and extensive travel. A definite personal touch!

Virginia Gillespie, personnel manager for "Employers Overload": "All these graduates are excellent candidates. They are far above the average applicant we receive. I've been coming back for the past 14 years because of the high quality of applicants. They all make excellent trainees and many have elevated themselves to the executive seat."

Frank Graeber, CCSF alumnus and regional personnel officer for State Fund, "These students are tremendously well-prepared and know exactly what they want. We've twice the amount of vacancies than applicants. Quality is exceptional."

Behavorial Sci. Dept. Started At the College

A new department, Behavoral Sciences, will begin here next fall when the Social Sciences are realigned.

Psychology and Sociology will be the only studies in the department; the remaining, History, Political Science, Economics, Anthropology, American Studies, and Philosophy will comprise the Social Science department.

"This is a reflection of the growth of the school," explained James Billwiller, Dean of Instruction, "the department has become too large for smooth operation necessitating a reorganization into like sciences."

Students will not be affected by the change either in graduation or transfer requirements.

A Thank You

The Students and Teachers of All Races (STAR), an organization here at City College, expresses their grateful appreciation to Geary Dodge and in particular to owner George Riggs for donating the 1961 Chrysler Newport for the STAR car wrecking booth at the recent Spring Festival.

A special thanks also to John Absalom, sales manager, for representing the dealership at the festival.

—Joel Panzer

Doranné Von Ende receives her $250 scholarship from one member of the International Foot Printers Association.

Crim Majors Receive Awards

The Criminology Department saw two criminology students each receive a $250 scholarship May 8, at a luncheon here.

Henry Friedlander and Doranne Von Ende were presented the scholarships from the International Foot Printers Association.

These students were chosen by the criminology department heads based on the students' service to the department and the school, their interest in attending a four-year college in the future and their scholastic standing.

Under Sheriff from San Francisco County Frank Smith presented the awards.

The Sophomore Class invites you to a "Bonanza Dance" this Friday from 9 to 12 p.m. in Smith Hall. The 5-piece band "Arsenal of Light" will be playing. They are hoping for a sensational turnout—so they've slashed the admission charge in half. The price will be 50 cents with an A.S. card and $1 without! (usual price is $1.25 to $2).

For love and money.

You can fly.
As a TWA hostess.
And you know what that means.
None of that 9 to 5 jazz, first of all. Good coin, second of all. And third of all, lots of time off to do what you want to do.
And as an added option at no extra cost, we'll throw in a chance for you to fall in love.
With all the people you'll meet. Or all the fantastic places all over the world you can go on TWA.
Depending on the temperament of your boyfriend, of course.

the date: Wednesday, May 28
the place: Placement Center
the time: Contact Placement Center for an interview appointment.
the non-ogre interviewer: Roberta Hawkins

Make a decision. We probably won't be here again this year.

Be a TWA Hostess
It's like no job on earth

An equal opportunity employer

AMS Sportsfest Tomorrow Nite

'Big Jess' Is All-State

Jess Arterberry, the Rams' big 6-6 center, capped off his return to City College by being named to the second string All-State team recently.

The 26 year old ex-GI came to the college after an absence of several years during which he did a service hitch and got married.

His height played a big factor in CCSF's basketball fortunes this past season as the Rams had no one else over 6-3.

Not an offensive player, Arterberry, nevertheless, still managed to place 16th in league scoring with a 12.6 ppg. He was third in team scoring behind Telvis Jones and Darrell Fregia.

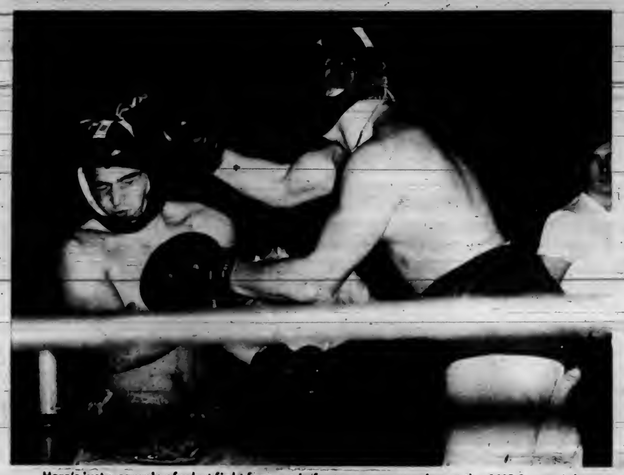
It was primarily his defensive ability along with a talent for blocking shots and intimidating opponents that resulted in his All-State selection.

Arterberry's presence at the pivotal position enabled the Rams to lead the league in defense with only 788 points allowed in 14 games.

Arterberry, who is currently being sought by Cal State at Los Angeles, also made the All-Northern California first team.

Telvis Jones, another Ram cager, placed on the All-NorCal third team. Jones, an ex-prep All-American, was 12th in the GGC scoring leaders with a 13.4 ppg.

Arterberry in action at the State Tournament.
—Photo Samuel Woo



Two other players from the GGC took post season honors. Larry Carter of San Jose made the All-State first team. An All-Conference choice, Carter led the loop in scoring with a 23.4 ppg.

Sam Hill of Laney, who was second in league scoring with a 21.1 ppg, made the All-NorCal second club.

George Trapp of State champion Pasadena City College, was named player of the year of the All-State team. The 6-9, 220 pounder was also named as the top player of the state basketball tournament.

Malcolm Taylor (Allan Hancock), Larry Carter (San Jose), James Speed (Imperial Valley), Chris Smith (Fullerton Junior College) and Mike Washington (Los Angeles City College) filled out the All-State roster.

Last year Ray Hearne of CCSF made both the All-State second team and NorCal first team.

Here's just a sample of what fight fans are in for tomorrow evening at the AMS Sportsnight.
Photo—P. Elliott

CCSF Boxing Fans In For Big Evening

The school year is rapidly drawing to a close and the Associated Men Students plan to help celebrate its closing with their semi-annual Sportsnight scheduled for tomorrow evening at the Men's Gym. Action starts at 6:30 and won't let up until 11:00. Admission is free.

Activities at Sportsnight will include such varied events as the intramural championship basketball game, a gymnastic exhibition and boxing matches.

The Black Students' Union will meet the Alpha Phi Absalom fraternity for the intramural cage crown to open up the evening. Tipoff time is set for 10 minutes to seven.

After the game, starting at around 8:10, will be a gymnastics exhibition. It'll star members of the college's gymnastic classes.

The biggest event of the evening, though ill start at a quarter to nine with the boxing matches. The fighters, current cream of the colege's boxing classes, are selected from a series of elimination bouts.

Trophies will be given to the respective winners in their categories tomorrow night.

In the past few years attendance at AMS nights have greatly fallen off.

Sportsnights are semi-annual events, held every January and May, near the end of each semester. In addition to Sportsnight, AMS also sponsors the intramural basketball league.

Individuals or teams that wish to join the AMS league should see either Mr. Gaddy or the AMS president early next semester.

The main purpose of the AMS is to provide an outlet for the amateur athlete who either doesn't have the time or the talent to participate on any of the college's intercollegiate teams.

The Guardsman SPORTS

Weekend Sports

"Quality is better than quality" is an old saying City College proved true last Saturday afternoon at the Northern California track championships. Though not one Ram managed to place first in an event, CCSF stil grabbed second spot honors, edging out third place Sacramento City College by half a point, 48-47½.

Merritt's sprint circus finished way out in front of the herd with 70 points for first place.

Humberto Hernandez put on his best show of the year, placing second in the mile with a 4:15:7 as George Stewart edged out the gutty San Franciscan with a 4:14.7.

Stewart also took first place in the two mile with a 9:16.8 while Vic Cary and Bob Darling of CCSF took third and fourth in the race with 9:22.8 and 9:23.4 recordings.

City College did surprisingly well in the 440 and mile relays after a poor conference season. Both teams qualified for the state championship trials by taking a fourth in the 440 (41.5) and a third in the mile (3:16.9).

Performers qualify for the state meet by taking a fourth place or higher at either the NorCal or Southern California meets.

CCSF also did well in the jumping events. Tom Clyburn had one of his best leaps of the year with a 24-4 second place performance in the long jump. Clyde Sadler took third in the high jump with a 6-4 showing.

Hurdler Don Bruce failed to qualify for the state trials as his 45-9½ outing in the triple jump was only good for a fifth.

Vince Ainsley was the sole Ram sprinter to place with a 49.0 fourth in the 440.

The biggest story of the meet, though, was the startling upset of Warren Edmonson in the 100 and 220. For the THIRD time in a week Eddie Hart of Contra Costa had beaten the T-Birds' freshman flash.

Hart edged Edmonson with a 9.5 clocking to his 9.6.

Edmonson again tasted defeat in the 220, taking second to San Jose's Mike Miller. Miller flashed in at 20.8 to crack Ernie Provost's old meet record of 21.1.

Fresno City College, the team that upset Merritt a few weeks ago at the NorCal Relays, had a miserable day, taking sixth place with 29½ points.

The Ram tracksters will next travel to Modesto for their final meet of the year—the State Finals. Today the cindermen will go there for the trials, in preparation for the twinight affair to be held on Saturday night at 6:00.

The top teams from Southern California are Los Angeles City College (winner of the SouCal championship), Bakersfield and LA Valley.

The Southland has some good talent in the distances this year, Jim Estés (LA Valley) has turned in 1:52.0 and 4:07.6 in the 880 and mile. Rich Hitchcock (Bakersfield) has run the two mile in 8:59.6.

Gary O'Sullivan (Compton) is the top weight man for Southern California having tossed the shotput 56-2½.

As usual the Southland has a wide array of talent in the sprints.

Athletic Banquet

City College will honor this semester's athletes with the semi-annual athletic banquet scheduled for next Tuesday.

The dinner, which is sponsored by the block SF club, will present the sportsmen with the blocks and awards they earned this past spring.

Coaches from the various high schools will attend to see their ex-players receive their various prizes.

All of the spring sports teams along with the basketball team will be at the banquet.

In addition to giving out the blocks, most valuable players awards will also be presented at the dinner.

Everett's
of
San Francisco
STYLE SHOP FOR MEN
1418 OCEAN AVENUE — PHONES: 586-0323 & 586-5605
RAZOR CUTTING IS OUR SPECIALTY
Three Leading Barbers To Serve You
The Warrior Customers With Appointment
Jeff Mullins
Jimmy King
Clyde Lee
Bob Lewis
Regular Cut $3.00
Razor Style Cut 4.00
Children's Cut 2.50
(25c off with A.S. Card and appointment)
SAN FRANCISCO WARRIORS' TICKET OFFICE

Bill Somerville, executive director of the Wright Institute, expressed how he felt about the training program.

The Wright Institute will help administrators to cope with the problems of minority and disadvantaged students. (Photos by Samuel Woo)

The Guardsman

Official Publication of the Journalism Students of City College of San Francisco
VOLUME 68 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—WEDNESDAY, MAY 28, 1969 NUMBER 12

Summer Employment For Students Scarce Here

Summer jobs for college students this year are in short supply because of cutbacks in summer hiring and an increase in the number of job seekers, according to Joseph A. Amori, Director of Placement here.

"This is one of the poorest years for summer hiring I have witnessed in the past ten years," Amori said.

As the college enrollments increase throughout California and the nation, a job squeeze results for the reason that the demand for summer jobs is far greater than the increase in job supply.

Many firms involved in the military complex have shut the door on summer hiring because of losses in government contracts, which have resulted in the release of several thousand full-time employees. This curtails hiring of engineering, chemical and other allied major field appliants.

Too Many Applicants

With swollen college enrollments, the demand for summer jobs has reached the point where there are approximately three and four job seekers for every job.

Resorts in California, Arizona, Wyoming, and New Mexico report as many as 10,000 college student applicants for jobs.

In order to obtain outstanding candidates for resort jobs employers have organized professional recruitment teams who engage in nation-wide college recruitment drives in search of highly qualified applicants. City College has had fifteen recruitment teams this spring recruiting qualified candidates.

More than 200 men and women have been hired through this system, including cooks, accountants, stenographers, hotel and motel workers, travel agents, tour leaders, cashiers, storeroom clerks, office machine operators, sales and merchandising, acquatics, maintenance engineers, and hotel front office desk clerks. More students could have been placed if more qualified applicants had been available.

While the summer labor market was overrun with applicants, the scarcity of qualified applicants, has driven the wages and salaries up 5 percent over 1968.

Hotel and Restaurant personnel, trained and experienced in their specialties at City College, receive the highest salaries of any summer job applicants. The range was $400-800, depending upon the resort, the location, the responsibilities of the job, the training experience and recomendations of the department.

Yellowstone National Park, Wyoming, with an overall personnel count for the summer season of 2600 employees, recruited nationwide, was the top recruiter on the campus with 25 students. Yosemite, Grand Teton Lodge, Harrah's Club, and Camp Mather were among the other large employers coming to the campus.

Scarcity of Jobs In San Francisco

A real scarcity of jobs for the summer season exists in San Francisco. Since sales jobs are not available during the summer season, the number of job possibilities is reduced to a minimum.

A few openings are available for stenographers and clerk typists as summer relief. Here the requirements are rigid and very few applicants can qualify. However, there are jobs in camp counseling, both in San Francisco and the surrounding counties. But these job openings do not offer the financial remuneration as do other jobs and many remain unfilled. Some are offering $10.00 per day for a six hour day. Other $400 for six weeks work. These jobs should be taken by majors in education, social welfare, recreation, and youth work, but provide very little appeal to the job seeker.

Part Time Jobs Available During Summer

The trend is away from summer jobs in San Francisco and more for part time workers, including clerical personnel with skills. In addition, there are many full-time career positions for stenographers, accountants, data processing, management trainees, sales, and general clerks.

Hiring Policy Includes Student Recommendations

The Executive Council of the Academic Senate here proposed a resolution for implementation of a new hiring policy for the college at their April 23rd and May 21st meetings.

The resolution of the April 23rd Executive Council meeting was adopted by the Council. The resolution states, "The Executive Council of the Academic Senate recommends that Departments hiring instructors welcome and consider advice and recommendation on new personnel from appropriate student representatives. We especially urge immediate implementation of this recommendation in hiring of faculty in the developing ethnic studies curricula."

Added to this resolution were the following plans for implementation adopted by the Council.

The policy of the College is to employ, whenever possible, qualified instructors from particular ethnic groups for those positions within an ethnic curriculum. In hiring ethnic personnel in the area of Student Welfare, including Counseling, the department interviewing committee will be obligated to have a department member of the same ethnic group participate in the personnel interview.

Student groups should encourage qualified persons to submit formal applications, resumes and transcripts to the appropriate Department Chairman in accordance with the hiring timetable of the College.

Within three weeks after the public announcement of departmental vacancies, any chartered students to discuss with departmental hiring committees the students to discuss with apartmental hiring committes the qualifications and personal attributes the group believes are important in the prospective faculty member.

The Resolution and plans for Implementation will now be forwarded to the President to be included in the Hiring Policy of the College.

Institute Develops Training Program

by Jack Ruiz

The Wright Institute, an independent non-profit corporation, has developed a training program for academic administrators designed to bring out the skills and awareness needed to cope with the problems of minority and disadvantaged students.

The major goal of this program will be to use the resources of social science to solve the problems in the community, but at the present time will concentrate on the college campuses.

This program, the first of its kind in the nation, is sponsored by the U.S. Office of Education (Education Professions Development Act) completely funded by the Federal Government, and will operate on a year-round basis.

Action-Oriented Approach

Dr. Nevitt Sanford and his colleagues developed this action-oriented approach to research and training at the Institute for the Study of Human Problems at Stanford University.

Sanford currently is president of The Wright Institute, which is located at 2465 LeConte Avenue, Berkeley, and is just two blocks away from the University of California campus.

Berkeley was picked as a site primarily because of the resources of U.C., the Graduate Technological Union there, and because the Bay Area is filled with controversy, has more problems, thus more solutions to be sought.

It will offer internship experiences at Bay Area campuses which conduct special programs for minority students and which will relate to the campuses of the trainees.

Seminars

Extensive seminar sessions will include recruiting, flexible admission procedures, special fund-raising and financial assistance, tutoring, counseling, and setting up new curriculum innovations.

Bill Somerville, executive director of the institute, visited City College last week accompanied by Doug Barker, a member of the training staff at the Institute.

After luncheon with student leaders of various organizations on campus, and administrators, Sommerville and Barker met with them to explain their program and answer the questions pertinent to each group.

Enthusiastic Response

Bob Tealer, Assistant Dean of Men, expressed the views of all present saying that every effort will be made to cooperate with the program, and that further meetings would be held to implement and insure the success of this new venture.

Earlier, in an interview at Berkeley, when asked about violene on campus, Somerville said that there are three important points most people disregard. First, most people are under 25 years of age, second, these young people oppose violence and third, we are undergoing change.

When asked if he feared change, Somerville said he did not and in fact welcomed it, as it was a necessary part of life.

"Racism is to generalize the role of another human being," he said, when questioned about racial prejudice. "To see people as they are, and in so doing you elevate your ability to see that person as an individual, and to be sensitive to that person's worth."

Somerville said that the five week training session will begin on August 18th, 1969, and at the present time are programmed through April 3rd of 1970.

Information will be made available to interested people on campus by contacting Bob Tealer.

Grad Shoots Chief

City College photography graduate Johnny Phillips, a ten year police veteran, was appointed to the police photo staff recently. Attending classes days and working nights, Phillips was an "outstanding student." He is shown with Chief Thomas Cahill during a recent photo assignment.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Weekly Publication of the Students in the Journalism Department of City College of San Francisco

Thomas O. Graham, Editor

184

Vol. 68, No. 12 WEDNESDAY, MAY 28, 1969 Page 2

Contact Lens

What Should Functions of Police Be in Our Society?

Sgt. John Flannigan, Criminology Major

They should protect life, liberty and property, and the basic inalienable rights of all citizens. The police have been criticized lately of overextending their authority, but this is mainly the fault of the mass media who stress only their weak points. Without police, who would we call on to protect us?

Suzy—"Talk" Major

The police should be here to prevent violence, not make it (as they are doing in Berkeley). Police are necessary, but a lot of them are just power mad; they think their badges give them that power. They have to realize, though, that the laws are made for them as well as for the individual.

Tony Antonini, II & R Major

"The police should help and protect the rights of all citizens. They play a very necessary and important role in our society, and without them everybody would be a "loser." But in times such as these, the police must be very careful in the actions they take to be as fair and just as possible.

Angela Dacosta, Medical Assisting Major

The functions of the police should be to keep law and order; this is important if people are to live together. They should protect the rights of people in our community by guarding it against anyone causing harm to it. What are these rights and harm? Each individual must form his own conscience for an answer.

David Domeniconi, General Education Major

They should help little old ladies cross the street while wearing shorts and Smokey the Bear hats, guard my house from politicians, and give traffic tickets to old ladies driving Cadillacs. There should be police, but they should be the servants of the people, rather than being the rulers.

Officer Henry Morgan, Criminology Major

To protect the people, keep law and order, to seek out the problems people face and try to help solve them, to get involved. Without the police who would protect the rights and security of people. They have been accused of overreacting in riots, but what would you do if someone was throwing rocks at you?

Compiled-photographed by Lavine Lee.

Student Councilman Speaks Out

Apathetic is the epithet frequently used for students of the college; Mike Shafer, student councilman, is its antithesis. He may be the most involved student on the campus.

The Student - Faculty - Administration Committee, Course Evaluation Committee, Student Government Revision Committee, are just some of the groups in which he participates.

"A lot of students have outside activities—they may have a job which, perhaps, they think is more important," answered Shafer in an interview last week, to the question of the cause of the apathy.

Shafer's involvement, however, is the traditional non-radical type.

"I think generally when a protest is constructive and the demands are realistic ones, youth can make a great contribution to the American university system," commented Shafer on student protests. Some of the goals desired and methods used, however, by student protesters, he believes, are damaging the image of universities and youth.

He said our commitment to stop the spread of Communism in Southeast Asia obligates us to remain in Vietnam. "Naturally, we want to bring back our troops, but is it militarily possible?"

Death in the Gas Chamber

By Lavine Lee

With the formal announcement last week that Sirhan Sirhan would die in San Quentin's gas chamber, once again the issue of capital punishment has become a major one.

Will killing Sirhan make everything all right? Will it bring back Robert Kennedy? No, and even members of Kennedy's family, who made a plea to stop violence and spare Sirhan's life, do not think so.

Proponents of capital punishment argue that it is a deterrent to crime, but statistics have proven that there is no real connection between the two.

Perhaps this is because homicides are committed under two sets of circumstnaces. First, there are the homicides committed by individuals who act in moments of anger. They do not care what the consequences may be since they are acting on human emotion alone.

Secondly, there are those individuals who commit homicides with premeditation and deliberation. They do not consider the consequences either because they are acting on the premise that they will not be caught; thus, they will escape any punishment.

If people either don't care about the consequences, or they feel they can escape punishment, it obviously shows that capital punishment does not deter crime.

If capital punishment is to be effective, it should be swiftly and systematically applied to all those sentenced to die; but because it isn't, it proves that our courts do not wish to apply the death sentence. This is why there are so many loopholes in the system; and this is why there are so many appeals, stays of execution, and acquittals.

Today's proponents of capital punishment also argue that the gas chamber is the most humane way of killing a convicted criminal who is sentenced to die, but it is just as barbaric and cruel as was torturing, burning at the stake, nail pulling, boiling in oil, and hanging. Either way, a person dies.

However, even if one is against capital punishment, there is one major question that needs an answer. How would we punish criminals?

One possible and very reasonable solution was made by the producer-author of a documentary film that is now in progress; Death Row USA, which is to be presented on television sometime in the future.

He suggested that an amendment be made to the Constitution removing all capital crimes away from the jurisdiction of the state courts and giving it to the Federal Government.

One advantage of this is that all murder trials could take place outside the area in which the crime occurred. This would solve the difficulty of pre-trial publicity prejudicing jurors.

A person convicted of homicide would receive no definite sentence, but, rather, an indeterminate sentence of from one day to life. The definite sentence would not be decided by a judge and jury nor a parole board, but rather by an expert psychiatric staff attached to a special Federal prison reserved for homicidal cases. This prison would be a treatment center, and it would be a formidably guarded place.

In this prison, an earnest effort would be made to rehabilitate criminals by competent psychiatric staffs, and not by the shadowy and somewhat "shady" staffs running our state prisons today.

Because each individual would not know how long he would have to stay (the length of the prison term would probably be determined by the seriousness of the crime), and, thus, preserve an element of hope for these people who so desperately need help and confidence.

How Sunny Tijuana Treats the Individual, And How the Individual Looks at Tijuana

By Boku Kodama

At three o'clock in the afternoon, when the hot sun was to the right, I reach the Mexican border. A small line of cars was slowly making its way across the entrance, each car being briefly stopped and questioned. When my turn arrived, the border guard asked, "Where are you going in Mexico . . . what is your business . . . how long are you planning to stay?"

To these questions, I replied, "Tijuana . . . sightseeing . . . just for the afternoon."

Having only driven 100 yards, the road became rough with cracks, holes and lumps on its surface. The main road leading to Tijuana was no different, and along its sides were outdoor seat cover stores and several small children selling little items such as gum, candy and miniature Mexican souvenirs.

Driving toward the sun, the sky was clear of clouds. Tijuana, with its old, raunchy buildings and crowded streets looked like a cheap, filthy town which was built in two days.

I parked my car and began walking down the street. A man in his late thirties was standing in front of a theater. "Come right in," he enthusiastically said in poor English, "we got the best girlie shows around, come on, come right in."

I said, "No thanks," and kept on walking.

A little further down the street, I entered a shop and found other shops behind it. I discovered that this situating of shops in one cluster was common.

The shopkeepers were very persistent salesmen and on the whole, dishonest. I was uncomfortable and angered at being pushed on a sale. The crooked ways and prices of the items were the most annoying. For instance, I was looking for a ring as a gift. I was impressed with a white gold ring in the window of one of the stores.

"How much for that one?" I asked.

"Seven dollars," said the man.

I replied, "Too much, I'll give you five you five and no more."

The shopkeeper gave in and sold the ring to me for five dollars. There was a satisfied look on his face, and I felt that I had been taken. Later, I found the same exact ring in another store for four dollars.

In the most respectable shops in Tijuana, the prices may be a little higher than they should be but; nevertheless, they are decent and honest in their sales and do not push the customers.

Walking out in the streets again, the crowds of people were moving in different directions at rapid paces. The sightseeers-tourists were easy to spot from those who actually lived in Tijuana. The people of Tijuana were a symbol of poverty. There seemed to be no unity to combat their common problem. The motto in this border town seems to be "the survival of the fittest," and if this motto is not correct, then it is "live while ye may," thus I understood the persistence and dishonesty of the merchants. Their livelihood depended on the things they sold in whatever way they could.

Tijuana is not just a shopping center, it has its residential areas too. In one such area, human beings lived in cardboard structures and survive only by picking left-overs out of garbage cans. Some of the other people are only a little better off, such as taxi drivers. There have been cases where taxi drivers have been known to pick up a little extra cash by rolling their passengers. There are also the taxi drivers who work for prostitutes on a commission basis. Prostitutes are a dollar a dozen and so is syphilis.

I left Tijuana at six and drove back across the border, vowing never to return. The poverty there is different from any in America. Mexico is a poor country and though the slums in America are not much better, the Mexican government seems to have left the entire problem up to its people to solve. The people themselves seem not to care, only to live day by day.

In conclusion, I would like to thank all those Americans who help make this town what it is today.

The Last Issue of the Guardsman will be Wednesday, June 4

Guardsman Staff

(The Guardsman is the weekly publication of the students in the journalism department of City College of San Francisco. It is published each Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacations. The opinions expressed in the columns and editorials are those of the individual writers and not necessarily those of the Guardsman, the department or the college. Editorial office, 206, Science Hall; telephone 587-7272, ext. 446.)

SPRING 1969

EDITOR IN CHIEF .... TOM GRAHAM
Managing Editor .... Barbara Homann
Feature Editor ..... Boku Kodama
News Editor ... Jack Ruiz, Randy Flynn
Sports Editor ..... Phil DiCarlo
Advertising: Barbara Homann, Ray Gin.
Editorial Assistants: Rita Carroll, Ray Gin, Pat Chan, Lavina Lee, Lynda Sandstrom.
Reporters: Jim Browning, Mike Chan, Mike Colgan, Dan Costello, Pat Crippen, Jeff Schanker, John Kindregan.
Cub Reporters: Ronnie Burton, Doug Chan, Pete Edwards, Albert Hebert, Bob Rosenthal.
Photographers: Eugene Wong, Chief; Jules Claessens, Bert Flowers, Antony Ragadio, Jerry Warren, Earl Williams.
Special Photographer: Samuel Woo.

P.K. BROWN AND HIS WIFE WERE WATCHING T.V. ONE NIGHT WHEN THE PRESIDENT DELIVERED AN IMPORTANT MESSAGE--
... IF WE DO NOT FIND THE MAIN STEAM REACTOR... THE WHOLE WORLD IS NOT FOUND, THE WHOLE WORLD WILL BE IN DANGER!!
I IMPLORE ANYONE WHO CAN HELP TO CONTACT THE WHITE HOUSE SPECIAL HOTLINE. JUST DIAL RE-ACTO-R! WE NEED HELP OR WE WOULD NOT HAVE TAKEN THIS CHANCE OF CAUSING PANIC!
WE ARE BROADCASTING THIS INFORMATION ONLY TO PUT MORE PRESSURE ON THE ONES WHO TOOK THE REACTOR FROM THE PEOPLE OF THE UNITED STATES - GO OUT AND SEEK!
WELL DEAR - I'VE GOT NO CHOICE! NO CHOICE! AS THE KNUCKLE, IT'S MY DUTY TO HELP! I'LL HAVE TO GO TO THE WHITE HOUSE!
SIGH
MAIL POUCH
MAY I?
MAY I?
MAY I?

Involvement '69

Youth for Service Needs Volunteers as Instructors

Members of YFS channel youthful energy into clearing a blighted city lot.

The students of this college are extremely eloquent — at bitching.

There isn't one student on this campus who doesn't have an idea of what needs to be done to save the world from itself.

Although, in the end, it always comes down to the same old cliche. "Well, I'm only one person, what the hell can I do."

Start where you live, here in San Francisco. Get off your butt and just do it.

By John Kindregan

Youth — underprivileged — misguided — dropouts — gang members — if this is where your heart is; Youth For Service is the organization for you this summer.

"We can use all the help we can get," said William Goldstein, Director of Special Projects for the organization. The volunteers will be used as tutorial instructors, recreational supervisors, street workers with gangs, newspaper writers and in other jobs.

Because this is a private agency, founded 12 years ago by the American Friends Service Committee, its funds are limited; and therefore all help is on a volunteer basis without pay, except for an administrative staff which is financed by United Crusade and Federal funds. Qualified volunteers are eligible for staff membership.

Last year this organization found jobs for 558 youths; it is presently assisting in various ways about 5,000 young people throughout the city. Minerva, a tutorial program for dropouts, is operating on this campus.

Offices of the organization are located at 1160 McAllister and 1095 Wisconsin. The phone number is 922-8886.

CYO Tutorial and Recreation Summer Program For Youths

By Dan Costello

Last summer, Chuck Ayala and his gang were able to give 2,000 kids a summer they could remember with a smile.

Chuck Ayala is a leader in the Catholic Youth Organization and one of the originators of the Inner-City Summer Tutorial and Recreation Program for Youth.

That's a pretty long title, but all it means is helping kids, and his gang—it consists of anyone who is willing to help him.

The problem they faced has always been there. Children, preschool through elementary school in the Inner-city neighborhoods of San Francisco, confined to their ghetto by lack of interest and stimulation to think beyond their confused world.

They are not prompted to be curious about the wider world; instead they often learn resentment and frustration from those who have failed. They seem resigned to their position in "society."

Ayala's program is simple, and maybe that's why it works so well. Eleven school areas were staffed by providing programs of learning where a variety of experiences were used to prompt non-academic achievements in children who did not do well in the traditional school curriculum.

Rather than just remedial work in academic subjects each school provided some of the following activities: story telling, arts and crafts, painting, ceramics and field trips, dancing, music, speech and typing. Mathematics, reading, sports, woodshop, recreation and city field experience.

Four additional school areas will hopefully be added this summer, bringing the total to 15. The problem is, it will take over 500 people to staff these facilities.

Chuck Ayala needs help. He needs that help so that the children of San Francisco can think, but more important so that they can laugh.

Get in touch with him at 1830 Market Street or call 431-1618.

Chinatown's Youth Council Helps Motivate Poor Youths

By Mike Chan

This summer a vast majority of the many youths that live in the Chinatown and North Beach areas will be sitting around because they are unable to find jobs. These idle jobless youths, if mobilized correctly, could form a constructive force that could aid themselves as well as their own communities.

The Chinatown North Beach Area Youth Council Inc. is a non-profit corporation which was created to fulfill these ideals by helping youths find their maximum potential in order to be useful and productive citizens.

The Council consists of and is representative of 15 youth groups. Under the non-profit organization laws the council is eligible to receive Federal funds for its 1969 youth program. The Council's program operates on a year-round basis.

The main goal of the council, through its given services, is to maximize each participating youth's potential to its absolute fullest.

The youth council is definitely not independent of the many services provided by other private or public organizations in the community; the council emphasizes that its services are supplements to those given by the present abundance of agencies.

It is definite that qualified persons 18 and up can participate in the council's job of aiding the youths of these areas. One important prerequisite will be demanded from all who apply for positions: applicants must be sincerely interested in the welfare, promotion, and the enhancement of the Chinatown-North Beach youth. All other qualifications will be weighed but can be subordinate to the above prerequisite except in cases where certain specific knowledge is needed.

The essential targets of the youth program are on motivation and new careers with emphasis on job horizons outside the ghetto.

The young program itself consists of five main components: education, employment, recreation, special services, and research / development. The courses or programs within these components are designed specifically to meet the needs of its youthful adherents.

The opportunities available to help others in these five components are tremendous. In education there is a considerable need for tutors and counselors. Right now Chinese and English-speaking tutors are vitally needed at Samuel Compers H.S., which prepares Chinese immigrants for assimilation into the educational system.

The council will need people to carry out their employment program. To make an individual aware of the various opportunities available, counselors for a variety of services will be needed.

Education and recreation will go hand-in-hand, this summer when the council institutes the concept of team leaders. The people that will become team leaders will conduct workshops or classes in a variety of activities—i.e. drama, gung-fu, newspaper work—that will try to bring out the individual potential of each participating team member. At this moment positions in the program are open.

A special service section is being provided by the council, and it could consist of a number of programs which would aid others through the use of street workers. These workers would not only be in contact with the poverty-stricken but also with juvenile delinquents. Within the proposed programs—Social Welfare of Youth, Personality Development Course—an element of direct contact is an essential part the street worker must fulfill.

All of these positions are open and will need to be filled. The Research and Development component will need people to judge the entire program's effectiveness (mathematicians are welcome), and furthermore a great many administrative positions to handle the entire operation will be needed.

Those interested in team leader positions contact: Mr. Franklen Chow, Youth Director, Chinatown-North Beach Economic Development Agency, 1074 Stockton St., 94108. Phone: 397-5305.

Need For Ghetto Help

By Pat Crippen

The problems of the American Ghetto are frighteningly complex and intricate, and the solutions seem too distant to ever be realized. To those who would volunteer to help their Nation, the Ghetto screams loudest for attention, but in the end swallows up the builders and the destroyers indiscriminately.

On June 14, from 9 a.m. until at least 4 p.m., a Workshop-Seminar will be held in the Joseph Lee Recreation Center, Newcomb at Meindell, in Bayview-Hunters Point. Sponsored by the National Institute for Cooperative and Economic Development (NICED), this public meeting will be exploring the potential of youth participation in solving Ghetto problems. NICED Director Bob Oser can provide additional information on the Workshop-Seminar at 771-7100.

On June 14 some people will be giving a damn; where will you be?

Free Bread

Diggers Do their Thing

A member of the Diggers, an organization which finds temporary room, board, and assistance to young people in need, distributes free food to the needy. With the expected great influx of youth to the city this summer, help is needed. Contact the Diggers at 1350 Waller, or phone 863-4718.

KSAN To Use Positive Vibes To Help Keep a Cool Summer

By Jeff Schanker

Stefan Ponek is the amiable voice with the easy laugh that fills the 10 till 2 daytime slot on KSAN. For a couple of weeks now, he has also been program director of the increasingly popular FM station.

Like most of the KSAN disc jockeys, Stef has been through the mill of "regular" radio, having played everything from Bach to bubblegum music. Also like the others, he is at KSAN because he's got a different idea of what a radio station should be.

What that idea embodies is that a radio station is part of the community, and that public service means exactly that. Public service announcements on KSAN are meant for the people who listen; they aren't just intended to satisfy the FCC.

In an attempt to become even more involved with the community, Stef and the station have formed a working alliance with the San Francisco switchboard (formerly the Haight Switchboard). Originally intended to bring people living in communes in touch with each other, the scope has broadened considerably.

"Our relationship with the switchboard," says Stef, "is as broad as anyone can envision, it's as broad as anyone's creative energies go. We're constantly rapping down ideas to see how we can improve what we're currently doing and what we can do in the future in the sense of community service and just plain people things. If there's a group of people anywhere or any kind of action group interested in making things a little bit better, it pertains to them."

Stef finds himself becoming increasingly concerned with the confrontation situations that are developing currently. He says, "on the one hand you've got this solidifying Reagan-like reaction, and on the other you've got increasing numbers of committed people gathering to protest the way the police operate in the ghetto. And the minute those people do anything you have the establishment overreacting and then you have both sides over-reacting and all this that you see happening now goes on. I see our function as a really important one right now to try and head off as much of this confrontation as we can."

On the prospects for involvement, Stef observes, "there are jillions of opportunities, but I've found that most people won't involve themselves until they get an idea that's good and everybody tells them it's good, so they finally say 'hell, I'm gonna do this thing'."

Whether your thing is an idea you want to develop, something you want to turn other people on to, or whatever, you've got a unique service available as near as your phone. Share your thoughts and energy. Write Stef at 211 Sutter Street, or call Switchboard at 387-3575. It feels good.

600 Bodies Needed Now

The San Francisco Volunteer Bureau is appealing for summer assistance from teen-agers and college students. More than 500 young men and women are needed to help in hospitals, community centers, offices and welfare organizations.

The jobs available range from messengers, occupational therapist assistants, laboratories helpers, to recreation leaders, typists, clerical workers and art instructors.

Appointments for interviews may be made by calling 885-6574, or by visiting the bureau's offices at 750 Eddy Street.

According to Mrs. Hilda Penn, executive director of the bureau, "Last year we had about 400 teen-age volunteers, but we still had several jobs left open because we couldn't get enough help.

"This year because we're involved in helping more organizations than ever before we'll need at least 500 to 600 volunteers."

The bureau was founded in 1946 with the help of Community Chest (now the United Crusade) and the Junior League of San Francisco. In 1949, The Adult Education Division of the S.F. Unified School District provided additional financial and administrative support to the bureau.

From a total of 633 volunteers in 1947 the number has increased steadily through the years to 2,800 last year.

The number of agencies the bureau serves has risen from 117 in 1949, to 300.

"By donating one or two days a week of your spare time," adds Mrs. Penn, "you could be helping a ghetto youth or an elderly person enjoy their summer."

—By J.B.

This special 2-page section on Summer Involvement was written and edited by the students of Journalism 21A.

All students interested in entering the Hotel and Restaurant Departments' "Name the Fountain Contest" may receive entry blanks at the cashier's booth in Smith Hall.

The fountain to be named is located on the right side of Smith Hall where the students buy hamburgers and hot dogs.

All blanks must be in by Monday, June 2 at 2 p.m. The reward will be one weeks free lunch for the lucky winners.

Participating students are limited to three names per person. The winning names will be posted in the cafe area after the H&R department has made their final decision.

Contestants are required to PRINT their name, major, and where they can be reached on their entry blanks.

Neighborhood Arts Program Provides Opportunity For Community Involvement

By Jim Browning

"We do the things that people in the community want," said Becky Jenkins, youth co-ordinator for the Neighborhood Arts Program. "If they want classes in sculpting, for instance, that's what they get."

The Neighborhood Arts Program was officially formed in July of 1967, the result of an extensive education and lobbying effort by a group of private citizens known as the Neighborhood Art Alliance.

Under an initial $23,000, one-year budget, the program produced its first big event in February of 1968, a "Big Afro Thing" at five minority neighborhood locations. Designed as a pilot program to show neighborhood groups what kind of show they could put on themselves, the event drew some 2,000 people to the five performances.

Counting a staff of 30 full and part-time people, including 18 workshop teachers, growth of the program reflects "a geometric acceleration of neighborhood needs."

Miss June Dunn, co-ordinator of the program, said "Our largest activity is as a service organization. The word has gotten out what we can provide, and people simply keep calling.

"Probably half a million people have attended or taken part in the program in the past," Miss Dunn added. "You don't see the same people coming to every event, so it's a good indication that we are in fact reaching the people at the neighborhood level."

Neighborhood arts involve, of course, a social as well as artistic function, and members of the program are far from oblivious to their roles as neighborhood organizers. Six staff members are classified as such, including Black, Chinese and Spanish-speaking program organizers.

"Our original idea was to go through already existing neighborhood groups," Miss Jenkins explained. "We had found that existing groups often don't respond to needs. But you can get quite diverse people together around a special event in the arts — something open, that can be carried off within a workable span of time."

"By indicating the extreme ends of the spectrum, you let people know there is room for everyone to participate," she observed. "One interesting aspect is that it involves young people like myself, who have left the ghetto, to come back and pull it together."

Besides neighborhood activities, the Neighborhood program has made initial efforts to bring more people in contact with Establishment Culture through help for such groups as the Western Opera, The San Francisco Ballet and the American Conservatory Theater (ACT).

Workshop programs also are geared toward long as well as short range goals. There are currently 18 in operation, teaching close to 600 students in subjects ranging from photography, drama and poetry to Philippine Dance.

"We want to get people excited about the artistic side of their lives," said Miss Dunne. "We need to encourage anything aimed at neighborhood activity, a sense of neighborhood identity."

"Our main worry is people; we need them to help with the various programs and to encourage other people to participate with us."

Anybody interested in participating in the Neighborhood Arts Program can contact Miss Dunn at the San Francisco Art Commission office, 165 Grove Street or call her at either 558-3465 or 621-0068.

Building a bridge of understanding.
—Photo by David Meyer

The Guardsman Tells You Where To Go

COMMUNITY AND SERVICE ORGANIZATIONS
S.F. City Switchboard	558-6161
Chinatown Switchboard	421-0943
Chamber of Commerce	392-4511
Chinatown-North Beach Community Center	392-4027
American Indian Center	552-1071
Jewish Community Center	982-4000
Neighborhood Arts Program	621-0068
Black Free Clinic	563-7878
Haight-Ashbury Free Clinic	431-1714
Parks and Reercation Dept.	558-3706
Black Panther Party	921-3860
NAACP	922-0650
United Filipino Assn.	989-5402
Mission Rebels	431-2224
Latin Youth Assn.	648-1144
Japanese-American Assn.	921-1782
Chinese-American Citizens Alliance	982-4618
Lions for Black Unity (Berkeley)	849-1277
Catholic Youth Organization	431-1618
Youth for Service	922-8886
Western Addition Community Organization	922-5757
Adult & Youth Counseling Service	566-7434
The Diggers	863-9718
Glide Foundation	771-6300
YMCA	885-0460
YWCA	775-6500
Student League	397-0445
Chinatown-North Beach Youth Council	776-9672
Chinatown Economic Development Agency	397-5305
Red Guard	362-2935
Baker Place	567-1498
Council of Churches	982-4161
Hunters Point Health Service	648-6483
Mission Coalition	647-3110
Chinatown Clinic	558-3158
Mission Medical Clinic	552-3870

EMPLOYMENT INFORMATION
Federal Job Information Center	556-6668
Post Office Employment Bureau	556-1547
Office of Economic Opportunity	556-3706
U.S. Department of Labor	556-5583
California Department of Employment	626-3400
Concentrated Employment Program	771-5355
Civil Service (S.F.)	558-6141
S.F. Health Department	558-4343
S.F. Department of Social Services	558-5721
S.F. State Personnel Department	469-1871
City College Job Placement Center	587-7272, Ext. 332
National Alliance of Businessmen	421-9660
OEO Job Corps	391-2465
Job Corps	863-2655
Economic Opportunity Council	282-8505
S.F. Volunteer Bureau	885-6574
Youth Opportunity Center (Bayview)	285-2000
YOC (Western Addition)	922-4757
YOC (Central City)	626-2550
YOC (Chinatown-North Beach)	391-0670
YOC (Mission District)	648-7227
Huckleberry House	626-1886
Mission Switchboard	863-3040
Haight-Ashbury Switchboard	387-3575

A PENNY FOR YOUR THOUGHTS—A thoughtful co-ed, enjoying the rare sunshine, ponders yesterday, today and all of the tomorrows. (Photo by Samuel Woo)

Be Really Creative-- Use Driftwood

by Rita Carroll

The popularity of driftwood arrangements has been growing at an astonishing rate in the past few years. And little wonder. What a challenge there is for the flower arranger when she first turns to driftwood.

Here is material that lends itself to the utmost subtlety of treatment. Here shapes and textures are not overwhelmed by the competing color of flowers. Here are the bare bones of nature herself—wood, stone, branches, weathered by wind, sun, and water.

Here is fresh enjoyment and endless opportunity for anyone who enjoys flower arrangement—for anyone, in fact, who enjoys nature and natural materials.

Now for some simple rules that may be helpful in fixing arrangements:

Be sure that the size and color of the main object and container will fit harmoniously in the location you have chosen for your arrangement.

Keep the arrangement simple, with one object standing out more than the others.

Use different heights and different amounts of materials. Try to avoid placing two objects of the same height or size in the same arrangement.

If possible, add an accent. This can be a small piece of odd material, a figure, a bit of bright color. Just a touch of contrast can add a great deal to an arrangement that otherwise might appear dull or ordinary.

When you have selected the main piece of driftwood, study it. Examine it from above, from below and from both sides. A little time devoted to such a study will be repaid many times over in the final arrangement.

Odd numbers are better than even numbers for good composition. The "rule of three" suggests the use of three objects of varying size.

Repetition of forms and shapes make for effective arrangements.

Add a small figure to make the main object appear larger.

Most important—turn your imagination loose: give your group a plot. This will provide the originality that produces the best arrangements.

Art Exibit

Fourteen students from this college's art department have been selected to exhibit their paintings at the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce on Montgomery Street.

The exhibition has been shown since Saturday, May 24 and will conclude in six weeks.

Of the 30 works, which were requested for the show by the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, many were based on student field trips to Sausalito Yacht Harbor, Marin, Sonoma and Mendicino Counties.

Other art compositions were based on a variety of objects in the department's collection which have been assembled over a period of 25 years. Some of the objects painted are a carved wooden angel musician which came from a Munich cathedral, a casualty of World War II; a brass sun disk from Ceylon; carved wood Geisha combs from Japan; a zither from London; a Victorian candy scale from the Mother Lode; and many other interesting items. Some of the other exhibits are the result of a drawing trip to Bay Area museums.

Those artists participating in the art show are; Monte Bingham, Richard Garret, Glen Gee, Lester Gok, Arlan Huang, Diana Pellegrini, Dennis Shimoda, Claudia Suen, Susie Tien, Jeffrey Thomas, Sheila Webb, Gerhard Weihl, John White and Pat Wong.

—B.K.

Recipe For Single Girls

Be a yankee doodle winner with your Jiffy Noodle dinner.

8 ounces broad noodles
1½ cups grated sharp cheese (⅜ lb.)
1-3 cup chili sauce
¼ cup melted butter
Salt to suit taste

Drop noodles into 2 quarts rapidly boiling water with 2 teaspoons salt, and boil rapidly until tender, from 8 to 10 minutes. Drain, then turn into mixing bowl. Add remaining ingredients, toss and serve immediately on hot platter. Spaghetti or macaroni may be used in place of the noodles.

PARTNERS

Good partners for broiled lamb chops are hot broiled canned peach halves filled with mint jelly. Put the peaches in to broil while you're cooking the second side of the chops. The peaches will be hot, bubbly and lightly glazed in about 5 minutes. (The Modern Family cook Book).

L.L.

SECRETARIES $450-$600

Glamour & variety NOW available in a number of exciting positions for personable sectys. with or WITHOUT shorthand. Aid TOP LEVEL EXECS. & take advantage of fabulous benefits. NO FEE (also FEE jobs) Call

421-5315
DRAKE PERSONNEL AGENCY
690 Market, Suite 1001

Petticoat Lane
Authentic
English Fish 'n' Chips
(eat in or take-out orders)
Open 7 days week:
Mon.-Thurs. 5 p.m.-9 p.m.
Friday 11:30 a.m.-10 p.m.
Saturday 5 p.m.-10 p.m.
Sunday 5 p.m.-9 p.m.
4479 Mission St. S.F.
Phone 587-9893

AH QUAN
Finest Quality Food in Chinese and American dishes.
(Also Takeout Orders or Delivery)
Open 7 Days Week, 11 A.M.-10 P.M.
1537 Ocean Ave. (near Capitol)
San Francisco Phone 334-6030

IBERO

HANDMADE JEWELRY FROM FINLAND

"HYPNOTIZED by the BEADY LOOK"

A weightless and unique array of handmade jewelry influenced by old Finnish peasant ornamentation, gives any outfit a touch of simplicity and subtle elegance. This fascinating arrangement of wooden beads are available at:

Milton Mann Studio
60 MAIDEN LANE
and

ADLER'S
360 SUTTER ST.
in S.F.

Women's News

Seminar Probes Problems of Sex Education Birth Control

"There are certainly several avenues of help available to the expectant mother," a tall blue-eyed girl said. "It's just a question of realizing that these avenues do exist and that there is always somebody—whether it be a social worker, school nurse, or family doctor—present to help the new mother."

"But what of the pill?" another girl asked. "Are the myths that it can cause side effects and possibly cancer really true?"

Such were the typical opinions and questions voiced during a seminar on birth control and sex education, held last week.

The seminar, sponsored by the Associated Women Students, was presented so City College students could discuss the problems of sex education, birth control, abortions and planned parenthood.

Headed by the Dean of Women Students, Edna Pope and the AWS board of directors, the seminar drew a crowd of 25 interested students.

"I think," stated one girl," that if a new mother is to receive proper care for herself and her new baby, she has to seek out the appropriate agency and place her faith in that agency."

"Many times a mother will have severe doubts about seeking help. Or she won't approach the proper authorities at all, for fear of having her problems made public.

"Of course such ideas are nonsense since all cases are kept private.

"Science hasn't proven that the myths of the pill and other contraceptives—side effects and possible cancer—really exist. "There has been a lot of studies made on these problems but no real conclusions have been reached," stated one student.

On the problem of abortions a dark haired girl said," I think we should realize that abortions are now legal in this state, but only if the child is dangerous to the physical or mental health of the mother, or if she was raped. We should also realize that illegal abortions — performed in Mexico and in this city — constitute a very serious problem.

"This group," a short blonde said "is indicative of others our same age. Our ideas of birth control, and the pill are made up from bits and pieces of information. We obviously don't know enough about the subject.

"There are several ways of helping either an expectant mother or a person just trying to find the right answers, but we neglect this, because we're afraid. We're afraid to seek professional help for fear of having our name thrown in the gutter, or having our problems made public. To seek professional help shouldn't be dirty or embarassing.

"But I also believe this negative attitude is now changing. We are beginning to realize that the doctors, nurses and social workers are there to help a person not destroy them."

Members of the Contemporary Music Appreciation class on campus will perform a revue of their own compositions tomorrow during the college hour in the Choral Room A133.

One of the unusual offerings will be a choral troupe's musical handling of the art of eating potato chips. Everyone is welcomed.

'Biedermann and the Firebugs'--A 'Four Alarm Loser'

Due to an error, The Guardsman failed to notify students and faculty members of the college Drama Dept.'s final play production of the spring season presented last weekend in the Little Theatre.

The play in question was Max Frisch's journey into the Theatre of the Absurd, "Biedermann and the Firebugs." Written and displayed in 1958 by the notable German-Swiss dramatist and novelist Frisch, the play is described as a "didatic play without a lesson." The play is totally lacking in interest and often lapses into unbearable tedium.

Gottlieb Biedermann, a hair lotion manufacturer, has his house invaded by three devious characters. Although he knows his home town is being interrogated by a series of fires started by a group of would-be arsonists, Biedermann allows his questionalbe quests to reside in his attic. Biedermann's hideout is burnt to the ground and in the epilogue, he and his wife are caught up in hell.

At the core of the play is Frisch's allegorical theorem that man's destruction of values have been so complete that he is unable to distinguish among those values that are meant to be preserved and those that deserve their demise.

Frisch's assumptions are so stately stated (without a shred of conviction in what he is saying) and so muddled that what seems to be a modern "morality" play (in the "Everyman" and "Dr. Faustus" vein) appears as a contrived and isolated situation. The pseudo-Greek chorus, a nice little novelty, tends to boggle the play down with too many words of wisdom and not enough forcefulness. The play lacks any backbone or impact to engross today's audiences.

But praise should be given to a valiant cast and crew who worked feverishly to provide Frisch's play with some definable spirit and purpose. The superb and disciplined characterizations by ACT's James O'Neil as Biedermann, Joi Greig as his wife, Robert Jones as Sepp Schmitz, Irma Bolton as the maid, and especially, Barry Ybarra as Willi Eisenrigh, the devil in disguise, were all but wasted in the light of the written text.

The production was adequately directed by Dr. Walter Krumm. Set designs and art direction under the supervision of Paul Crowley, Harold and David Rossit, and Malcom Brown were highly innovative and professional.

But alas, "the play's the thing" and all the frentic drive and energy of a thoroughly competent cast and crew could not rescue a very weak and unsatisfying play of the absurd.

—R.G.

DANCE AND SHOW
Grass Roots Productions present
Charles Lloyd
"get full with"
Red Beans and Rice
"smile with the"
Shades of Joy and surprise guests
Potpourri of Music
(Jazz Folk-rock, Rhythm and Blues, and Soul)
Friday and Saturday: May 30 and 31
Place: Original Film Auditorium
1805 Geary St. (near Fillmore).
Admission:$3.00 per person
Time: 9:00 p.m. till
Questions Regarding the Shaw, Call 992-5816
Produced by Arnald Whitmare wanted

(with love)
Your Used Textbooks during finals week we pay more
our 15 store buying power enables us to pay top prices for discontinued texts calbook
11 phelan ave.

Give My Regards To 'George M!'

Joel Grey invites thunderous applause as he belts out "Give My Regards to Broadway" in a scene from "George M!" (left). A rare photo of the original "Four Cohans;" Jerry, Josie, Nellie, and Little Georgie (right).

by Ray Gin

George M. Cohan. George who? George M-for-Michael Cohan. Little Georgie, the Yankee Doodle Kid!

Except for a periodic television revival of James Cagney's film "Yankee Doodle Dandy," few young people have ever encountered the phenomenal theatre impressario, COHAN. But for two exasperating decades in the early 1900's. Cohan overshadowed the Broadway scene with over 31 productions of his own for which he wrote 500 memorable songs.

What was Cohan's part in these plays and revues? He was the star, director, producer, composer, lyricist, choreographer, and author, simultaneously. "Work, work and lots of it—and plenty of speed, too kid. Don't forget the speed" was Cohan's reply to a dumfounded public who weren't accustomed to such a mercurial output by a single man.

This it seems fitting that a musical memorial to the great Cohan entitled "George M!" has been wrought from where he lived—the stage.

"George M!" explodes with such star-spangled splendor that the spirit of Cohan and his era is recalled back onto the stage. And for two and a half short hours, the show's star, Joel Grey, gives THE definitive musical-comedy performance in the history of the American Theatre. Without the usual dosage of corn and sentiment that accompanys this type of backstage yarn, Grey strives successfully to be the near-perfect personification of Cohan.

From his performance, Cohan was a self-awared genius, a hard-driving egoist, and a man with an uncanny instinct for the stage.

And most of the older patrons I've asked, who have seen the original Cohan perfarm, state emphatically that Grey becomes Cohan rather than mere play-acting.

"George M!" is thoroughly satisfying in its depiction of a dazzling bygone epoch. A luminous cavalcade that encompasses a thousand dancing feet, elaborate garbs, blockbuster production numbers, patriotic red-white-and-blue choruses, and a firecracker score of the unforgettable Cohan melodies.

Director Joe Layton has created a flamboyantly brash and honest staging and fine cinerama choreography. The stage is constantly occupied and this requires precision movement. The show moves along with such whirlwind speed that it leaves the audience elated and breathless at the same time.

But the rapididty of show seemed to be aim at covering a flimsy and thin-thread book by Michael Stewart, John and Mary Pascal. The book spotlights the Cohan highlights over a span of 50 years, from the turn of the century. The crucial points in Little Georgie's life such as his first smash musical "Little Johnny Jones" his breakup with his first wife, Ethel Levy, his remarriage to Agnes Nolan, his father's death, and ultimately his own retirement are treated so nonchalantly that they appear to be nothing more than concise footnotes to the brassy Cohan songs.

It is difficult to find a cast that complements each other with so much skill and deftness as the one incorporated in "George M!" Betty Ann Grove, Jerry Dodge, and Jennifer Williams as Ma, Pa, and Sis Cohan, sparkle with irresistable charm. Jacqueline Alloway as Fay Templeton, one of the darlings of Broadway, Bill Gerber as Cohan's partner Sam Harris, Judy Knaiz as wife no. 1, and Gene Castle as an elastic tap dancer are all outstanding.

But the entire show belongs to Cohan and Grey. By the end of the evening, not only has Grey sung and strutted across the stage but the mystique of Cohan himself has made itself felt. As the curtain falls, Cohan's own voice is heard; "My mother thanks you, my father thanks you, my sister thanks you. And as for myself, it goes without saying." The warmth and sincerity of that track seems to justify Director Layton's and star Grey's addition of charm to Cohan's character. Otherwise why else would there be a statue of Cohan at Times Square, a special gold medal from Congress, the fond tag of "The Man Who Owned Broadway," and the continued popularity of his songs?

The Guardsman SPORTS

Racketeers Chalk Up Miserable 1-6 Record

By Mike Chan

If there ever was a straw that broke a Ram's back it must have been a tennis racket, for the Ram racketeers aren't exactly excited over what they've done this past season.

The Ram quartet rolled up a 1-6 won-lost record in GGC league play for the year. It was also the first time a Ram had failed to qualify for the State matches. Needless to say some thought this season was one of the worst in decades.

The Ram tennis team was really hurt when tennis coach Roy Diederichsen had to cancel all of the practice matches through a lack of funds. The competitors of these matches came from the big college teams such as those at Berkeley and USC. Diederichsen explained that at the beginning of the season his team's budget was slashed from a usual $1,000-700 to $350. At midseason the budget was increased considerably but the damage had already been done.

The Rams were really mowed down by forfeits. On certain occasions the team lost a number of matches on account of forfeited individual play matches.

Next season all four players of the team will be back and will try to better their previous record. Among the returnees are two bright prospects. One is Steve Lucchesi who lost only 2 out of 14 matches in league play. In fact he qualified for the Northern California sectionals but was eliminated in the first round when he played against the number one player in the league and thus could not qualify for the state matches. He is considered by his coach to be an outstanding player. The other bright prospect is Dave Locke.

OSU Bound Bob Phelan Deserts Rams

By Phil DiCarlo

The only freshman starter on this season's basketball team will not be returning to City College next year.

Bob Phelan is headed for Oregon State University at Corvallis, Oregon. The 6'2" defensive standout averaged about ten points per game during the season, with a 16-point performance against Diablo Valley College, his high mark of the year.

Bashful Bob had been approached by a number of other colleges before he decided on joining the Beavers. Chico State, Idaho, Alabama, the University of Hawaii and Utah State were among those interested in the talented son of the Ram cage coach, Sid Phelan. The younger Phelan made his own decision concerning OSU, it might be added. No doubt his father would have welcomed him back on the Ram squad next year.

Phelan cans two points. —Photo by Samuel Woo

Bob is excited about traveling to OSU and playing in the Pacific Eight Conference. "I think it's a great school," said the former All-City (second team) performer, referring to Oregon State.

We asked him about the prospects in the Pac Eight next year now that UCLA's big center, Lew Alcindor, has graduated. Though he was hesitant to comment (perhaps because he did not yet know the policy of Oregon State's basketball team on such matters), young Phelan played the politician and said simply that the entire conference "would be better balanced."

Looking back on the 1968-69 season we found that Phelan saved his best performances for the tough games.

RA Takes 3rd Place

City College's Recreation Association smashed their way to a well-deserved third place finish at Monterey Peninsula Sports Day to close out the semester in style.

Monterey Peninsula won its own Sports Day.

Richard Ng was the most outstanding player of the day for CCSF, smashing out a first-place victory in the badminton singles.

He also teamed up with RA Historian Joh Blick to win in the men's doubles, and Rebecca Woo to win in the mixed doubles.

The San Francisco trio didn't lose a single match all day!

In other sports that afternoon CCSF took second places in the volleyball and fencing competition.

The Recreation Association ended the semester with their annual banquet held last Thursday night.

Students interested in joining the RA should contact Mrs. Vasquez in the Women's Gym next year.

The RA offers competition in all sports. The most popular are fencing, volleyball and badminton. In addition to traveling to other colleges for sports days, City College also sponsored one sports day of its own this semester.

The RA hopes it can sponsor another one next year.

Coach Diederichsen commented that Locke had shown great improvement and with his potential Locke had a good chance of becoming an outstanding player.

This season was a far cry from 1968 when the Rams went all the way to the Northern California tennis championship (in a tie with American River) and the State finals.

Definitely the biggest loss to the team this year were the graduations of Chuck White and John Wong. Last season the two were the strong men of the team.

Up until the state finals the pair had never lost a doubles match.

The Rams hope for another season like '68 next spring.

Four of the Rams' top distance men, Klaus Hoffman, Dave Power, Jim Tracy and Humberto Hernandez. —Photo by Samuel Woo

Rams Take 13th Place at State Meet

by Pat Chan

After bagging a surprising second place finish at the Nor-Cal meet on May 17, the Ram tracksters proved they were all too human by placing 13th at the State meet on Saturday night with only 16 points.

Merritt's sprint circus won the California JC track title by amassing 54 points to second place Sacramento CC's 44.

Not a single representative from CCSF managed to finish among the top three competitors in one event as the best the Rams could manage were just three fourth place spots.

Vince Ainsley took fourth in the 440 at 48.5 while Tom Clyburn and Clyde Sadler wound up with fourths in the long and high jumps.

Clyburn had a 24-2 2-3 leap while Saler's best effort of the day was a 6-6¼ jump.

It turned out to be a tough night for the distance runners. The lungbusters, best in the GGC this past season, could place only one man in the distances. Humberto Hernandez was that man, finishing sixth in the mile run with a 4:18.7 clocking.

The 440 and mile relaymen had a good outing, though. After suffering through a miserable conference season, the two teams grabbed fifth place in the 440 (41.4) and a sixth in the mile (3:16.4).

Other highlights of the meet included Warren Edmonson's FOURTH straight loss to Contra Costa's Eddie Hart in two weeks.

Hart edged Edmonson in both the 100 and 220 dashes. Hart took the 100 with a wind aided time of 9.3 while grabbing the 220 in 21.2.

His twin wins in the springs brought Hart the trophy as the most outstanding performer at the state meet.

Edmonson got his revenge in the relays though. The T-Bird freshman flash ran anchor leg on the 440 relay team as it set a new national JC record of 40.5.

He also ran a blazing 440 leg of 47.5 in the mile relay as Merritt took first place in that event. (The winning time of the 440 at the meet was only 47.9!

Mayfield, Kline Make All-GGC Glamour Team

Catcher Tom Mayfield and outfielder Dave Kline capped off City College's 8-13 baseball season by being named to the All-Conference team recently.

Mayfield, who's won a letter every semester he's been at the college, led the club in batting with a .324 BA.

The stocky, ex-quarterback was second in RBI's with 13 and tied for second in runs scored with 15.

Dave Kline was second on the club in batting with a .322 BA. He fulfilled his function as a leadoff batter to perfection, leading the club in hits (29), at bats (90) and tying for the lead in walks (16).

Kline tied for second in runs scored in the GGC with 23.

Pitcher Barry Sbragia (San Mateo) and Kent Calderon (Chabot) took the Pitcher of the Year and Most Valuable Player awards.

Sbragia has an 1.79 ERA for the year along with a perfect 9-0 record.

Calderon was third in the GGC in batting with a .395 BA. He led the loop in total bases (47), doubles (12), tied for the stolen base crown (14) and was second in RBI's with 24.

Everett's
of
San Francisco
STYLE SHOP FOR MEN
1418 OCEAN AVENUE - PHONES: 586-0323 & 586-5605
RAZOR CUTTING IS OUR SPECIALTY
Three Leading Barbers To Serve You
The Warrior Customers With Appointment
Jeff Mullins
Jimmy King
Clyde Lee
Bob Lewis
Regular Cut $3.00
Razor Style Cut 4.00
Children's Cut 2.50
(25c off with A.S. Card and appointment)
SAN FRANCISCO WARRIORS' TICKET OFFICE

EL REY RESTAURANT
Breakfast—Lunch—Dinner
FINE FOOD—GOOD SERVICE
C.B. Steaks—Our Specialty
Open 7 days a week
1923 Ocean Ave. Ph. 587-4829
10 Pct. Discount for CCSF Students

Berkeley In Turmoil Over People's Park

The National Guard was called in by the Governor when the fence was put up around the People's Park. Students listened to propone... during breaks. photos by Samuel Woo

Students Hot Over People's Park Issue

The Berkeley campus of the University of California is still reverberating from the latest outbursts of violence and bloodshed.

This time the issue at stake is the disputed site of the People's Park.

The University claims that it had planned to acquire the additional land way back in the early 1950's and the Regents finally approved it in 1956. But Earl Cheit, Executive Vice Chancellor at the Berkeley campus, told the Regents that specific plans for getting the present site of the People's Park was made in June, 1967. He also stated that since 80 per cent of the undergraduates now at Berkeley were not there in 1967, they "might not have been aware of this decision."

On the other side, the proponents of the park say that the University took steps to convert the land on the disputed site only after students and street people in the area began to make the 2.3-acre plot into a park. They also claim that the Berkeley administration only gave the park's negotiating committee two days to form and then refused to meet with them on the basis that the administration owned the land.

On Wednesday May 14, Chancellor Roger Heyns issued a statement in the Daily Californian stating that "the field is indeed the University's and to exclude unauthorized persons from the site." The following morning saw the onslaught of over 300 policemen to move 50 to 100 demonstrators who held an all-night vigil on the park's premises.

The strife and bloodshed is still continuing up to this moment although Governor Ronald Reagan has removed the presence of the National Guard.

The Guardsman
Official Publication of the Journalism Students of City College of San Francisco
VOLUME 68 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—Thurs., June 5, 1969 NUMBER 13

A.S. Card Price Raise Passed In Student Council

A resolution to increase the price of Associated Student body cards from the present $5.00 to a new high of $7.50 was passed by a majority of the voting members in last Monday's Student Council meeting.

This new price hike will be in effect this coming fall semester. According to Finance Chairman Derrick Quan, the student turnout to this particular meeting was very poor.

Although no great debate ensued, due to prolonged discussions in three previous meetings, a student member of the audience, Steve Kass, spoke out against the new price rise. Kass, a would-be candidate in the upcoming fall elections, charged that student council was forcing him and others alike to use a "lower-the-price of A.S. card" platform for their campaigns.

A petition with 125 names calling for the retention of Political Science instructor, William Harris was also passed earlier in the meeting. Harris became a substitute instructor for Peter Spinetta while Spinetta was devoting his time to Mayor Joe Alioto's office.

A special Student Council meeting was called last Friday to evaluate and approve the many campus organization's budget requests for next semester. The Finance Commission along with its chairman, Quan, met previously for 20 hours and reviewed over 31 budget requests that totalled $58,000. The commission at that time granted $47,000.

Owing to a sharp decline in A.S. card sales this semester (a deficit of $3500), the budget had been set at $45,000. Thus, the commission had to take a 10 percent slash from every organization's granted sum. A total of $43,000 will be distributed among the many campus organizations while Student Council will use or distribute the remaining funds as they see fit. The highest budgets were Football at $5200 and Drama Dept. at $4000. The lowest budget grant was the stage band with $90.

Experimental College Is Recruiting For Fall '69

The Experimental College is recruiting new student and faculty learning groups for the fall semester.

"There are endless possibilities for group offerings in the Experimental College next term," said Herb Gunther, EC staff member.

"Many of the popular classes which were offered this spring will be repeated plus many new additions."

During summer registration, Gunther and Roger Cassell will pass out information sheets and handbooks explaining how to organize a class.

Three hundred students participated in the spring EC session of 25 classes programmed in a wide variety of subjects.

Gunther predicts an increased enrollment up to 500 students and 50 classes for the fall semester as more students will take advantage of the new approach to learning where grades and credits are non-existent.

Any student or faculty member who wishes to form a learning group should contact Don Peterson, EC faculty advisor, in Bungalow 5.

Deadline for organizing a class is September 12th.

Horticulturists Win 7 Trophies

The Horticulture Society of City College, in a surprising show of strength, captured seven trophies including three first-place honors at the Oakland Flower Show last week.

The first-place trophies were in the Amateur Division and were in Structural Emphasis, awarded by the Oakland Chamber of Commerce Club; Plant Composition, the Lakeside Garden Cup; and the Highest Award Garden Club Competition, the coveted Arthur H. Breed Cup.

In the specimen plant division, which was open to amateurs and professionals, our campus gardeners won two 2nd place and three 3rd place ribbons.

Second place awards were for the Cymbidiums and Staghorn Fern. Third places were for Palms, Assorted Orchids and Maidenhair ferns.

Members of City College's Horticulture Society who participated included Don Piana, Fred Davis, Bob Mennucci and Nick Viccrra.

The College will enter the San Mateo Floral Fiesta this summer and expects to make a good showing.

Nixon Speaks Out on Campus Riots in U.S.

Times-Post Service

President Nixon warned recently that rebellious students and permissive faculties threaten to undermine the American educational system which he called "the best in this whole imperfect world."

In a sharp attack on university leaders who bow to "unreasonable demands," the President criticized faculties that "follow the loudest voices" and "parrot the latest slogans."

He also declared that the more victories student violence produces the more the rights of all students will be undermined.

Speaking at the dedication of the Karl E. Mundt Library at General Beadle College in Madison, South Dakota, Nixon said that "both the process of freedom and the rule of reason are under attack" in America today.

Referring to the move in some institutions to lower standards to recruit more underprivileged youths, the President said, "Our colleges are under pressure to collapse their educational standards, in the misguided belief that this would promote opportunity.

"Instead of seeking to raise lagging students up to meet the college standards, the cry is to lower the standards to meet the students," the President said.

"This is the old, familiar, self-indulgent cry for the easy

Continued on Page 3

5 Instructors Get AS Awards

At the Associated Students Awards Banquet last week, Ron Greene, a psychology instructor and Lawrence Lawson, a criminology instructor, were voted the two outstanding instructors for this term.

An audience of around 80 to 90 people witnessed the presentation of awards given to student officers, student council and song-girls.

Special awards were presented to Don Peterson for his dedication in the Experimental College Program. The La Raza Unida Club presented Pat Westbrook with a special award to show their gratitude and appreciation. The Chinese Student Club awarded Gloria Dunn of the physical education department a beautiful portrait on silk.

The banquet was planned by Rosa Perez, vice-president of the Associated Students.

On behalf of the entire GuardsmanDepartment— Have a good vacation & see you next fall.

FINAL EXAMINAGION SCHEDULE
Spring 1969

Thursday, 5 June, 1969
*Chemistry 1A 8-12
1-2 Daily 1-5
1-2 MWF 1-3
1-2 TTh)
1-2:25 TTh) 3:30-5:30
1:45-3 TTh)

Friday, 6 June, 1969
8-9 Daily 8-12
8-9 MWF 8-10
8-9 TTh)
8-9:25 TTh) 10:30-12:30
8:45-11 TTh)
2-3 Daily 1-5
2-3 MWF 1-3
2-3 TTh) 3:30-5:30
2-3:25 TTh)
2:45-4 TTh)

Monday, 9 June, 1969
12-1 Daily 8-12
12-1 MWF 8-10
12-1 TTh)
12-1:25 TTh) 10:30-12:30
12:45-2 TTh)
Friday only classes 1-3
*Bus. Ad. 1A 3:15-6

Tuesday, 10 June, 1969
11-12 Daily 8-12
11-12 MWF 8-10
11T, 11TF, 11 TTh)
..... 10:30-12:30
4-5 Daily 1-5
4-5 MWF 1-3
4-5 TTh)
4-5:25 TTh) 3:30-5:30
4:45-6 TTh)

Wednesday, 11 June, 1969
10-11 Daily 8-12
10-11 MWF 8-10
10-11 TTh) 10:30-12:30
10-11 TTh) 11T
..... 10:30-12:30
9-10 Daily 8-12
9-10 MWF 8-10
9-10 TTh)
9-10:25 TTh) 10:30-12:30
9:45-11 TTh)
3-4 Daily 1-5
3-4 MWF 1-3
3-4 TTh)
3-4:25 TTh) 3:30-5:30
3:45 TTh)

Friday, 13 June, 1969
7-8 Daily 8-12
7-8 MWF 8-10
7-8 TTh)
7-8:25 TTh) 10:30-12:30
7:45-9 TTh)
5-6 Daily 8-12
5-6 MWF 8-10
*Rooms to be arranged with instructor.

N.B. A class that meets at more than one of the times on this list will take its final test according to the earliest time scheduled in the regular school week: e.g., a class that meets MWF 9 and WF 8 will have its final test on Friday, 6 June.

The Guardsman Editorial Page

Weekly Publication of the Students in the Journalism Department of City College of San Francisco

Thomas O. Graham, Editor

184

Vol. 68, No. 13 THURSDAY, JUNE 5, 1969 Page 2

Contact Lens

How Do You Feel About Reagan's College Policies?

Erin Malsberg, Pre-Law Major

I don't think too much of them. He uses a lot of words, but he says absolutely nothing. He has no constructive programs. His views on law and order belong back in the Middle Ages. He does not get at the causes or roots of any given situation; all he does is use action (force) first. Perhaps this is because he is prone toward emotionalism; he isn't a rational person.

Chris Abbey, X-Ray Technology Major

I don't think he has any background in the educational field, and because of this, he jumps to too many conclusions from a layman's point of view. This puts the educators at a disadvantage because while they may want to put more expansive programs into the college system, they are always being "shot down" by the Administration; this hurts the student because he is then limited to only what the college has to offer.

A Concerned College Student, History Major

As far as Berkeley is concerned, it has been a power play for him. When he was running for governor, he said he would clean up the campus. But he's made Berkeley a disaster area in the past year because of his feelings about Berkeley (he thinks the Board of Regents and not the students, should run the campus). He's not giving the students a chance to have their say, which I think is unfair.

Judy Brown, General Education Major

I think the college officials should run the colleges, and their problems. If Reagan doesn't feel that these officials can handle the issues on the campuses, he should have them replaced. If he thinks that he can do something more constructive on the campuses, he should resign as governor and take over running the colleges as a full time job. He's just using Berkeley to prove his control.

David Longo, College Custodian

Reagan has been having trouble on university campuses mainly because he is not giving the students what they want. The students should be given the Park back; but until the situation changes, the National Guard should stay around the campus area. All the instructors should stick together because of college policy (they could be fired as the instructors were fired at State during that crisis).

Aileen Logan, General Education Major

Many people fear an attack that which they do not understand. That our governor falls into this category is the tragedy of our times. His level of awareness is as real as his movies of the 1940's. Sad to say, enough of his constituency falls in the same sorry category to politically reinforce his primitive attitude toward an aware generation.

"The streets of our country are in turmoil. The universities are filled with students rebelling and rioting. Communists are seeking to destroy our country. Russia is threatening us with her might and the Republic is in danger. Yes, danger from within and without. We need law and order. Yes, without law and order our nation cannot survive. Elect us and we shall restore law and order."

Adolf Hitler, Hamburg, 1932

Compiled by Lavine Lee

What It Means To Be Middle Class, A Not So Quiet 'Silent Majority'

By Boku Kodama

To be in the middle class means to be in the strong majority and to have habits and thoughts like everyone else in the neighborhood. The middle class people have been called the "silent majority" because they are just that.

To be middle class means condemning student demonstrations because they are Communist inspired by professional agitators running from campus to campus. It means wanting a soccer stadium instead of a creative park. It means rationalizing police killing of demonstrators. It means having nightmares of Hitler's Nazi Germany with its killings, mass arrests and censorship but condoning Reagan's military state with its killings, mass arrests and censorship.

To be middle class is to call people living in the slums "lazy bums." It means referring to black people as 'niggers" and never associating with them. It means watching racial riots on television in the quiet of your neighborhood and hoping that the riot "troublemakers" will be put down by police force. The philosophy in mind is violence is needed to control violence.

To be middle class means that the Vietnam War is a just one. It means believing that the Communists are war mongreis and that they are suppressing an innocently weak South Vietnam. It means believing in the Defense Department's war program and believing the Defense Department is for defense, not war. It is the belief that anti-Vietnam war views are unpatriotic and placing such stickers as "America, Love It or Leave It" on cars is a sign of true patriotism. It is believing that the draft system is to keep America strong enough to combat possible Communist assaults. It is allowing the military to build atomic weapons to such a capacity that they could demolish the world 15 times.

To be middle class is to want more beneficial programs from the federal government at no increase in revenue but complain bitterly among themselves over programs to benefit poverty as needless money consumption.

To be middle class means to condemn the use of marijuana because the use of the weed is against the law, a law written because the effects of marijuana was not understandable. It means not knowing that one's son or daughter is a regular user of marijuana. It means a parent would rather see his growing child drinking scotch and smoking cigarettes than turning to grass because everyone knows that grass will lead to more harmful drugs.

To be middle class means wanting one's kid to do well in school and go to a respectable university, not to be educated but to be programmed for an occupation in the future and to be a success in life. To succeed means to accomplish as much as the parent has accomplished. He wants his kid to be like him—think like him, act like him and be financially like him.

To be middle class means to work from nine to five, five days a week and drive on the crowded freeway to that home in Serramonte with the hard-earned money while the wife has been cleaning the house, watching the soap operas and "having the girls once-a-week bridge club over." It means bitching about the taxes one must pay from his salary to such irrelevant programs as welfare and urban development when one could have used the money as first installment for that new Chevrolet he saw in the dealer's window. It would have impressed the neighbors.

To be middle class is taking a second look at a white man holding hands with a non-white woman walking down the street because it looks too unusual to accept the first time around. It is wanting one's son to marry a nice girl of the same religion and finding a respectable well-to-do man for one's daughter.

To be middle class is to attend an art exhibition so one may talk about it at the next cocktail party. It is to have reserve seats to the opera and symphony because this type of culture is so respectable and may raise the person to a higher social level of friends.

To be middle class is to be in the "silent majority." It is to be so silent that the entire economy and social morality are centered around this majority. The preceding has been some of the characteristics of the middle class. They are a strong majority and what they say is law in our society. God bless thee.

This Is A Feature Story By A Feature Writer, Gerry Engler

This is a feature story on feature writers who work on the feature pages of The Guardsman.

On the staff, four members work long and tedious hours each week to bring the readers stories that may be of interest to some, and boring as hell to others.

This week was one of those weeks. This story is coming to you, the reader, for two reasons. The main reason is to fill space. The second reason is purely selfish: it gives us a chance to give a terrific boost to our egos.

The leader of the troupe is Boku Kodama (not a misspelling): each week he comes forth with six heart-stopping ideas for stories. The excitement usually wears off on Tuesday night when the writers attempt to get the stories done on Wednesday by 10 a.m.

The rest of the staff is made up of Lavine Lee, Jim Browning and myself.

Boku's assignments send Lavine as far away as Statler Wing to get the answers to her world-shattering questions asked in Contact Lens.

Jim Browning, who works in some capacity with the Chronicle and doesn't need any ego boosting, was added onto the feature staff when he began to submit his book reviews. He makes Lavine sick. He also talks in abbreviations.

So remember good readers, when you read our stories give thought to the time and trouble we go through to present you with stories up to your standards. This one took 45 minutes.

On behalf of the entire GuardsmanDepartment— Have a good vacation & see you next fall.

Guardsman Staff

(The Guardsman is the weekly publication of the students in the journalism department of City College of San Francisco. It is published each Wednesday during the college year with the exception of holidays and vacations. The opinions expressed in the columns and editorials are those of the individual writers and not necessarily those of the Guardsman, the department or the college. Editorial office, 304, Science Hall; telephone 587-7272, ext. 446.)

SPRING 1969

EDITOR IN CHIEF ..... TOM GRAHAM
Managing Editor ..... Barbara Hamann
Feature Editor ..... Boku Kodama
News Editor .. Jack Ruiz, Randy Flynn
Sports Editor ..... Phil DiCarlo
Advertising: Barbara Hamann, Ray Gin.

Editorial Assistants: Rita Carroll, Ray Gin, Pat Chan, Lavina Lee, Lynda Sandstram.
Reporters: Jim Browning, Mike Chan, Mike Calgan, Don Costello, Pat Crippen, Jeff Schanker, John Kindregan.
Cub Reporters: Ronnie Burton, Doug Chan, Pete Edwards, Albert Hebert, Bob Rosenthal.
Photographers: Eugene Wong, Chief, Jules Classens, Bert Flowers, Antony Ragadio, Jerry Warren, Earl Williams.
Special Photographer: Samuel Wao

Saturday Night In Hunter's Point

By Jim Browning

Saturday night on the streets in Hunters Point.

A soft wind—it's called The Hawk—blows in off the bay, whipping litter and debris across an almost deserted Third Street.

A young Black man and his date walk briskly towards the old Bayview Community Center, where a dance has just begun.

Overhead an airliner drones, its running lights blinking, carrying affluent Americans to their destination.

An elderly, short woman waits on a deserted corner for a bus as another bus speeds by in the opposite direction, kicking up a trail of garbage and dirt.

Only a few young men now stand on the corner of Newcomb and Mendell. Joe Lister, 21, is among them.

"It's still early," Lister says and we decide to walk up Third Street to "check out the action."

Born in New Orleans, Lister has lived in Hunters Point since he was 7. He dropped out of school in the tenth grade and is unemployed.

"You might say I was a rebel in revolt; revolting against being taught the white middle class standards, in a white school by a white teacher.

"I just couldn't stand it in school — all the Black kids being suckered into believing all that crap about the white man being the savior of the entire world. You realize that there must be some viewpoints other than the white man's, but you have to seek them outside of school.

"I'm sort of sorry I did drop out of school," Lister added. "You wish you had that high school education, but then again you don't."

We walked up Third Street, past the rows of vacant buildings, houses with broken or boarded-up windows and stores with out-of-business signs. Black power slogans and revolutionary pictures of Vietnam and Communist leaders are posted everywhere. The sidewalks are littered with weatherbeaten newspapers, broken glass and aluminum cans. Three Black kids shoot craps in a vacant store front.

The scars of the September, 1966 riot are still very evident in Hunters Point.

"That building (Lister points to the new Hunters Point-Bayview Community swimming pool, built entirely with private contributions), is perhaps one of the better things to come out of the '66 riot.

"It's sort of funny," Lister notes, "that before the riot nothing was really happening here. There was a lot of lip service from the Federal and City governments, about providing jobs and improving the Point, but they wouldn't do anything. The residents themselves weren't concerned with what was happening here or not. They were just playing it cool, because whitey told them to.

"Then after the riot everything changed. The lip service started to become real ideas, real buildings, real improvements. Everything that they had promised was coming true.

"The residents have started to become more concerned about their community. They're becoming more aware of what's happening. They're learning how to expend a helping hand to a brother or sister in trouble. They're learning that there's a sister down the block with the same problems and that by getting together they can at least discuss the problems which confront them.

"Along with this new community concern goes a certain pride. Before when a 'pig' would ask where you lived, a person would answer in a soft mouse-like voice 'Hunters Point, sir.' But now he'd say 'HUNTERS POINT' and show some enthusiasm when he speaks it."

We crossed Third Street, carefully avoiding a large hole in the middle of the street, and proceeded in the other direction. To the left the street lights form a jeweled silhouette against the darkened sky. The sidewalk is badly cracked, and dirty. The unpainted wooden houses sag with age and neglect.

"The Point's sort of pretty by night," Lister exclaims. "At night from a distance it looks like any other neighborhood, except it isn't.

"Night doesn't show a community of poor, hungry people living in rotten, rat-infested houses.

"It doesn't show the frustration of the people who can't find jobs and are forced to live on welfare. It doesn't show the anger and hatred of the people who have been refused the right to succeed in life because of the color of their skin.

"The Blacks' future in America is like that street light over there—it's only a small ray of light lost in a sear of dark hope."

A white policeman, in a shiny new patrol car slowly passes by, gives us a look of contempt and hate.

"And that's another thing," Lister added. "Those damn 'pigs' are always cruising around on our streets. They're just looking for an excuse; any excuse, to take over the community and throw us all in jail — just like they did in Berkeley. They're looking for trouble, and if they can't find any they'll start some.

"Man, the white police here are the worst motha's on earth," Lister explained. "When the summer comes the 'pigs' are gonna be the ones to start the trouble.

"I think we should be able to talk to 'pigs' who come into the neighborhood and just tell them about what the public thinks.

"We should have some community meetings with them just to voice our feelings, because man, the heads of the 'pig' department downtown don't know how we really feel.

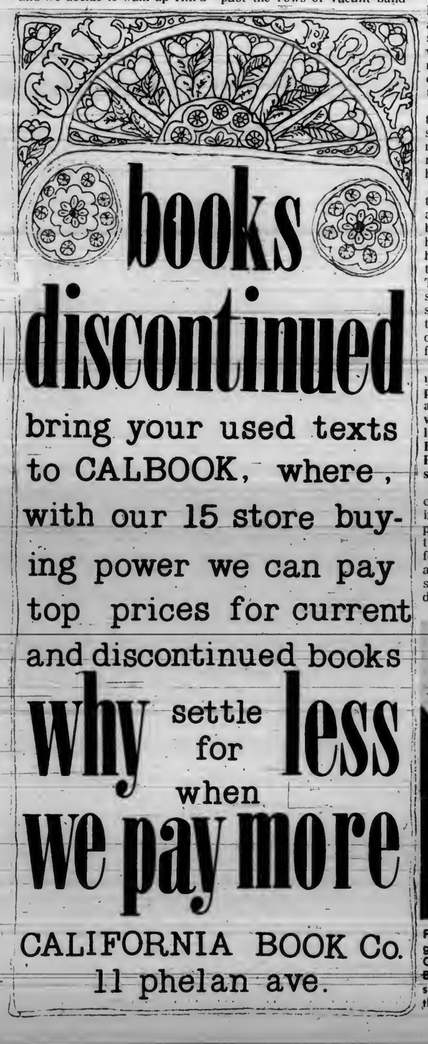
"Perhaps if we . . ." Lister's voice trails off into the night.

We walk down to the old community center building at Mendall and Newcomb, where a dance is in full stride.

On the stage, silhouetted against a white brick background, the Hunters Point Inspirations sing:

"It's all right, it's all right
"Say it's all right . . .
"Have a good time 'cause
"It's all right . . ."

Lister checks out the scene and we walk back outside. Young men walk back and forth, in the dance and out at the curb. Someone produces some paper cups and a jug of cheap white wine.



Inside, the Inspirations sing:

"It's all right, it's all right . . ."

Joe Lister, 21 years old, born in New Orleans, and raised in Hunters Point, California, leans against a car, sips from his paper cup and looks up at the blinking lights.

"One of these days, the problems of poverty, violence, unemployment, housing are going to be solved and Hunters Point will be the best neighborhood in San Francisco. You just wait and see."

Inside the Inspirations sing:
"It's all right, it's all right,
"Say it's all right . . .
"Have a good time 'cause it's all right,
"Ohhh, it's all right."

From the feature staff, we bid farewell for the semester. Just to get our picture in the paper once, we give you us. Left to right: Gerry Engler, Lavine Lee, Boku Kodama and the head of Jim Browning, who was not available at the time of the picture. We sit here after ten hours of time-consuming work glad that this is the last issue. Peace!

Guardsman Photo by Ray Gin

Nixon Speaks

Continued from Page 1

way. It debases the integrity of the educational process."

Nixon also stressed what he termed are longstanding national values that have become cliches to the point where "we feel apologetic about espousing them."

"The values we cherish are sustained by a fabric of mutual self-restaint, woven of ordinary civil decency, respect for the rights of others, respect for the laws of the community, and respect for the democratic process of orderly change. The purpose of these restraints is not to protect an 'establishment' but to establish the protection of liberty; not to prevent change, but to insure that change reflects the public will and respects the eights of all."

Attention all prospective transfers to San Jose State College. Dr. Ralph Cummings, Dean of Admissions at San Jose State College, has notified City College of San Francisco that all City College students whose records are now on file at San Jose State College officially applying for admission and who are qualified, will be accepted for the fall 1969 semester. Those qualified students are urged to attend the orientation for new students on June 2nd or July 28th at 9 a.m. in Morris Dailey Auditorium on the San Jose State College campus.

Happy Summer And Be Concerned For All Peoples

Classified

HOUSING

Take over CCSF Student Rooming House. Free Room plus $70/mo. See Mr. Amari, Employment, or call Ed Jimison, 334-4499.

PERSONAL

FREE Room & Board exchange for light household/babysitting. MO 1-3413 betw. 6-9 p.m.

Wtd. exch. summer Rm. & Bd. for hswk/babysit possible sat. 921-78[illegible]

Carole — once and for all, I hate you!! Drop dead!—Jim

Jim—you make me feel sad and sorry for a woman. Please reconsider. I love you—Carole Spending Your Vacation In San Francisco?

Discover City By the Bay For Yourself This Summer

For those discouraged students who find themselves stuck in San Francisco again this summer either with school or work, here are a few suggestions on how to spend those precious weekends.

Whether bored with work or school or just plain sick of the same old routine, students are reminded that there are many places to go and things to see in San Francisco where they can get away from it all and relax.

Buildings of the Gold Rush days and the following Victorian era are plentiful throughout the city. Rebuilt not once but seven times, San Francisco is a living monument of the great determination and courage of its early settlers.

It was the city's bayside location which attracted its earliest pioneers. The San Francisco Bay was first discovered by the Spanish in 1769, first entered by ship in 1775. The first white settlement was established in 1776, when the presidio or Spanish military post was begun at the end of the Peninsula.

SPOTS TO SEE

Mission San Francisco de Asis, known as Mission Dolores, is on Dolores Street near 16th Street. One of the oldest buildings in San Francisco, it was founded June 29 and opened October 9, 1776, by Father Junipero Serra. It differs architecturally from the other missions in its combination of Moorish, Mission and Corinthian styles. The massive facade of the chapel is adorned with round pillars and above the arched doorway are three bell niches. The rough-hewn redwood roof timbers are still lashed together with rawhide. The altar was one of the most ornate among the missions and the original decorations and books were brought from Spain and Mexico. Here was written California's first book, Palou's Life of Junipero Serra. In the graveyard adjoining the mission a monument marks the burial place of Don Luis Antonio Arguello, first Mexican governor of California.

The Barbary Coast, once the center of lusty waterfront entertainment, is now lined with shops and decorators' studios along Pacific Avenue between Montgomery and Kearny. This block consists of a group of buildings built in the mid-1800's. Many of the buildings have been restored and now house showrooms and galleries. It was here that characters like Shanghai Kelly furnished unwilling sailors for ships in port.

Chinatown covers about 16 square blocks bounded by Pacific, Bush, Kearny and Stockton Streets. With the single exception of Singapore, more Chinese live in this "city within a city" than in any other place in the world outside of China. Grant Avenue is the main thoroughfare.

The Haight-Ashbury District, lovingly called "Hashbury" by its remarkably garbed inhabitants, was the center of concentration of those latter-day philosophers, the hippies. In the past year, however, many of the flower children have headed for the hills where, presumably, they are less hampered by publicity.

The Civic Center occupies more than seven square blocks and contains the City Hall, Public Library, the Civic Auditorium (Convention Hall) and Brooks Hall, State Building, Federal Office Building, Health Center, Opera House and Veterans Memorial Building. The Opera House is the only municipally owned one in America. Civic Center was the scene of the United Nations Conference on International Organization held in 1945, in which the representatives of 50 nations participated. The Charter of the United Nations was signed June 26 in the main auditorium of the Veterans Building.

These are just a few of the many spots that are well worth visiting if you've never seen them. San Francisco is scenically beautiful and historically significant—discover it this summer. For further information and tour guides of not only San Francisco but all of California the Guardsman (S304) has a limited supply of brochures which we are willing to give to any interested students.

Twin 746-foot towers of the mile-long Golden Gate Bridge loom majestically above the water of the Golden Gate. The $35,000,000 span connects San Francisco with Marin County.

Perched on the crest of Telegraph Hill in San Francisco is Coit Tower. The tower, a monument to San Francisco firemen, was the gift of wealthy Mrs. Lillie Hitchcock Coit, a pioneer fire buff who was an honorary member of the city's fire department. Thousands of tourists visit the tower annually to enjoy the vista of San Francisco, the Golden Gate and the San Francisco-Oakland Bay bridges and Alcatraz.

Mission Delores was founded in 1776, the same year that the Declaration of Independence was proclaimed. Once an isolated structure, Mission Dolores, a mecca for tourists, is now practically in the heart of the city, just a few blocks south of Market Street.

Grim Alcatraz Island and its former federal penitentiary looms in the Bay.

SUMMER WORK

ALCOA subsidiary, (Cutco Service & Sales Div.) now interviewing College Men for Summer positions. Pay: $360 to $600 per month, commensurate with your ability and ambition. Two openings for our College Management Program also availalbe.

ALCOA scholarships awarded to qualifying College Students based on work performance.

For Interview, Call Mr. Dan Kiser, 362-2384

WATER, WATER EVERYWHERE — AND LOTS OF IT TO PLAY IN. Stow Lake (left) is a great place to spend a summer day. You can rent a row boat, canoe, inboard or paddle-boat and enjoy the pleasures of being on the water. Located in the center of the beautiful Golden Gate Park, Stow Lake is, indeed, an oasis in the middle of a busy city.

If you want to bodily get IN the water, Fleishacker Pool (right) affords one an excellent opportunity to "cool it" on a hot day. While in that area, stop at the wonderful City Zoo. There are new attractions every day.

The GUARDSMAN staff wishes to express its great appreciation to the Redwood Empire Association and the California Automobile Club (AAA) for the use of the pictures used on these two pages. Happy Summer!

There's always City Hall. Don't laugh! Built of granite in the French renaissance style, it's most important feature architecturally is the copper-sheathed dome rising 300 feet from the ground and surpassing, by ten feet, the height of the nation's Capitol in Washington, D.C. Civic Center Plaza is most attractive to the casual stroller, day or night. You can drop into one of the courts while they're in session, take in an event at Brooks Hall or the Civic Center or stop by and browse at the well-stocked City Library.

San Francisco's fascinating Chinatown (right) offers untold mysteries and delights for its visitors. Countless shops, fine restaurants and marvelous sights are to be found in the largest settlement of Chinese descendents in the Western Hemisphere.

The world famous Fisherman's Wharf (below) is a great place to visit—providing you can get through all the tourists. Blessed with a charm all its own, the Wharf is a stroller's delight. Many great restaurants, curio shops, the Wax Museum and other attractions (including the boat tour of the bay) are all yours.

FEED THEM BIRDS! Residents of the City by the bay are very fortunate that so many parks are provided for their comfort and relaxation. Most are equipped with tennis courts, baseball diamonds and playgrounds for the young — and the young at heart. The aforementioned Golden Gate Park, has just about everything: museums, lakes, athletic fields, gardens, water falls, almost unlimited space to play, plus horseback riding and bicycle trails.

Near the Palace of Fine Arts (right) is another play area, the Marina Greens. Take in a rock concert, toss the Frisbee around, fly a kite or just sunbathe. Enjoy—enjoy!

Interesting Objects Add Feeling to Creative Arrangements

By Rita Carroll

You have an interesting bowl that you believe would make an excellent planter? Use it! You have an old brass pitcher, a broad and shallow Mexican tray, or perhaps a giant-size garden ash tray? Part of the fun in arranging comes in finding unusual containers, and designing arrangements to suit them.

Just for fun, try using the homeliest objects as containers. An old coffee pot with a piece of metal bent to form a handle and the whole given a quick coat of paint can be put in the kitchen window and seem right at home.

Almost any bowl, pot, pan, or dish—if its size is right—will serve you nicely for practice arrangements. Keep them near by, study your effects, change and change again as you experiment with combinations of greens and grays; small leaves and large; upright and cascading plants.

A shell is one of the rare times when the container dominates the composition. It is so unusual in shape and design that it deserves top billing. The curves of the shell can be echoed by the twisting curves of a piece of driftwood.

Choose your materials with your finished design in mind. You can work with many variables; size, shape, texture, color and height. In an indoor plant arrangement your only stable elements will be your container, driftwood, and stones.

Women's News

Sondra Locke is that dynamic personality who just won the Foreign Press' "Most Promising Actress" award for her startling performance in the film of Carson McCuller's "The Heart Is a Lonely Hunter." The pretty blonde from Shelbyville, Tennessee has an eye-catching touch for fashion. Here, Sondra is in "high mini" style. She models (left) a unique "Elvira Modigan" influenced outfit. The blouse is long-sleeve and of chiffon. The collar is in the very "in" mode of a turtleneck. The skirt is semi-flair with a high buttoned waistband. Sondra is also alluring (right) in a silk-satin shirt dress. A skirt coverlet made of braided rope is highly useful. The skirt could easily be carried anywhere without needless space-taking. And if by chance, you're up north, the skirt could be innovated to catch fish.

'Making Pot'

THROWING CLAY on the potter's wheel is an ancient art, but then so is taking pictures of pretty girls. However, when you combine the two arts you may come up with what you see right now. Not bad, hey? (Photo by Samuel Woo)

Recipe for Single Girls

You don't have to be a city chick to have City Chicken Legs. Just grab a pad and pencil for this bit of city slicker news.

1 lb. lean pork
1 lb. boneless veal
1½ tsps salt pepper
1 egg, beaten
¼ cup milk
½ cup fine dry bread crumbs
¼ cup shortening
½ cup meat broth or water

Trim off excess fat from pork, then cut both pork and veal into 1½ inch cubes. Stick skewers through center of these cubes, alternating pork and veal, using enough to fill skewers a little more than half full. Sprinkle salt and pepper over meat, then press into chicken-leg shape. Dip in egg mixed with the milk. Then roll in crumbs until well coated. Heat shortening in a heavy skillet and brown "legs" slowly on all sides. Then add broth, reduce heat, cover and SIMMER about 1 hour or until tender. Make gravy from drippings to serve with the "legs" if desired. 5 to 6 servings. (Modern Family Cook Book) L.L.

Photo Student

A photography exhibit on "The Nature of Light," by Guy Sherman, former City College student opened May 27 in Oakland's Kaiser Center Mall.

Sherman, currently enrolled at the Art Center College of Design in Los Angeles, majored in Advertising Art and Design while here at City College.

Bookends

Old Friends,
Old Friends,
Sat on their park bench
Like bookends.
Can you imagine us
Years from today,
Sharing a park bench quietly?
How terribly strange to be seventy.
Old friends,
Memory brushes the same
years.
Silently sharing the same fear. . . .

Photo by Jules Classens

(photo by Jules Classens, poem by Paul Simon)

AH QUAN
Finest Quality Food In Chinese and American dishes.
(Also Takeout Orders or Delivery)
Open 7 Days Week, 11 A.M.-10 P.M.
1537 Ocean Ave. (near Capitol)
San Francisco Phone 334-6030

Petticoat Lane
Authentic
English Fish 'n' Chips
(eat in or take-out orders)
Open 7 days week:
Mon.-Thurs. 5 p.m.-9 p.m.
Friday 11:30 a.m.-10 p.m.
Saturday 5 p.m.-10 p.m.
Sunday 5 p.m.-9 p.m.
4479 Mission St. S.F.
Phone 587-9893

PERSONNEL TRAINEE
Our International Placement Co. seeks a self-motivated, well-groomed, career-minded business gal to join the S. F. branch. Must be flexible, personable and have EXCELLENT typing skills (60). Will learn from the ground up coordinating with reception functions. All employees are salaried! Salary to $450. Call Anne Cella, 421-5515 (appointment only).
DRAKE PERSONNEL AGENCY
690 Market, 10th floor

EL REY RESTAURANT
Breakfast—Lunch—Dinner
FINE FOOD—GOOD SERVICE
C.B. Steaks—Our Specialty
Open 7 days a week
1923 Ocean Ave. Ph. 587-4829
10 Pct. Discount for CCSF Students

A Candid Chat With Joel Grey!

By Ray Gin

Venturing backstage at the Curran Theatre, I made my way through the hustle and bustle of performers and props to finally reach the small dressing room cubicle of Joel Grey, the galvanic little actor whose performances in both "Cabaret" and "George M!" has earned him a rightful place in theatre history books.

Although of a small physical frame, Grey has a very impressionable face. As one of the matinee ladies from Hillsborough remarked, "he has the most crinkly eyes, perky nose, and charming smile. Gee, I wish I could take him home and cuddle him to death."

Grey, now 37, who projects a dynamic, straightforward attitude on stage as well as off, originated his first starring role and ultimately won a Tony award as the seedy master of ceremonies in the celebrated musical "Cabaret." Discussing his role in the show, Grey stated, "After the success of "Cabaret" I was quite apprehensive and afraid of being stereotyped in that particular role. I've received many offers with characters who have similar traits of that nightclub host character. I've been fighting against being typed and I think the battle's won in my handling of "George M!"

Before Grey soared to such renowned heights, he was involved with a quarter-century experience program. At ten he was playing featured roles at his native Cleveland Playhouse (where Grey said that he got the better part of his education) and during his adolescence he toured in Yiddish revues with his father, comedian Mickie Katz. After a stint with Eddie Cantor's Colgate Comedy hour on television, Joel made his way to the nightclub circuit at the age of 19.

Joel Grey as "Little Johnny Jones," one of Cohan's biggest successes, in the blockbuster musical "George M!"

"I'm not a loner—I've been attached to be attached," he said, referring to his marriage to actress Jo Wilder. They have two children, Jennifer, 11 (in whom he sees blossoming talents in dance) and James Rico, 5. "I don't like to be away from my family for great lengths of time. That's why my wife and kids are flying in tonight and will remain with me for the rest of the tour."

Turning to "George M!", Grey told me that his characterization crystallized from reading Cohan's biography and autobiography ("Twenty-five Years on Broadway and the Years it Took to Get There), from this and further research, rather then from what people who had seen or had known Cohan said about him," Grey formed his characterization. Mary Cohan, Cohan's eldest daughter, also gave Grey some invaluable materials to use.

"Many people fail to see Cohan's rawness and vulnerability at the same time. All they see is his rough and mean characteristics, and not to have seen his humaness and vulnerability is not to have seen him at all," Grey said. "George M!" is a very sketchy play. The songs come first in the early part of the show while a very good dramatic impact is achieved at the end of the show."

While brushing his hair, he added that the "show is very effervescent and light-hearted and concludes with a ray of hope. In real life, Cohan died a bitter man. And few people know he died of cancer." Those of you who've seen the show will be delighted to find out that Little Georgie did get a chance to do his "cane bit" in a musical comeback entitled "I'd Rather Be Right," however outdated it was.

What does he think of the Broadway of today?

"I'm afraid very little," Grey said. It is starting to look up now with musicals like "Hair," a thoroughly wonderful and revolutionary showpiece. But plays like "Promises, Promises" are from a formula and in that one in particular, it seems to have borrowed heavily from "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying."

Asked of his next venture, Grey acknowledged a wish to go into motion pictures.

Is there any possibility of him recreating the role of the MC in the film version of "Cabaret"?

"I should find out in a month or so," he said. "Our tour of "George M!" will take us through to October and that's the earliest possible date I can start."

Cohan was known to have despised the critics.

Asked of his own reaction to critics, Grey offered this comment, "Critics are useful in illuminating a point missed by either the audience, actor, or director. They serve the purpose of clarifying in writing. But careless criticism, in which the reviewer forgets important points and takes advantage of a reader at everyone's expense, is something I detest."

For aspiring musical-comedy students, Grey revealed that David Craig and his actress-wife Nancy Walker have a theatrical school in New York. There students can learn the ropes of musical-comedy. "Craig keeps the validity of SELL YOUR BOOKS NOW!

HIGHEST PRICES PAID
FOR YOUR USED BOOKS
REGULAR BOOK-BUY STARTS JUNE 2nd
WE DO NOT BUY USED BOOKS AT THE BEGINNING OF ANY SEMESTER
FOR YOUR CONVENIENCE WE SHALL BUY DISCONTINUED BOOKS
(NOT OLD EDITIONS) JUNE 10, 11, 12
SELL YOUR BOOKS WHERE THE STUDENT
BENEFITS AT YOUR ASSOCIATEDSTUDENTS
BOOKSTORE ON CAMPUS
WE SUPPORT YOUR ACTIVITIES!

SELL BOOKS EARLY
JUNE 2nd THRU JUNE 13th

Labelled And Recorded

An Incredible Kaleidoscope

By Ray Rezos

Kaleidoscope is one of the most inventive and imaginative groups on the West Coast. They have been playing their beautiful music for over three years now with little commercial success. Now with their third LP release, Incredible Kaleidoscope, they should start to receive some of the recognition they deserve.

Kaleidoscope is into all kinds of music, including rock, blues, folk and country. But the most interesting things they play are done with a strong Turkish or Eastern influence.

Responsible for this influence is Saul Feldthouse, a native of Ismit, Turkey. Feldthouse is an incredible musician: he plays a variety of Eastern instruments, in addition to guitar and clarinet. He also sings lead on most songs; his voice is as powerful and expressive as any on today's Rock scene.

Dave Lindley plays almost any stringed instrument, and is the country boy of the group. He sings most of the country and folk-styled numbers; he's funky and very talented.

Templeton Parcely plays lead violin, organ and harp, in addition to vocals. Stu Brotman on bass and Paul Lagos on drums round out the group.

If you missed the first two Kaleidoscope LP's, Side Trips, and A Beacon From Mars, you're missing some very good music. Trips includes several brilliant Eastern-flavored things, like "Egyptian Garden," "Oh Death," and "why Try." There are also the simpler things like "Please" and "Keep Your Mind Open," in addition to some fine old-timey material.

Beacon contains more varied material. There's "Taxim," a long Easter thing; "Greenwood Sidee," an old Scottish folk song; and Willie Cobb's beautiful blues, "You Don't Love Me." There's also a couple of country things, including the fine "Louisiana Man." The title song is a long bluesy thing with some beautiful instrumental work. The personnel on both LP's is somewhat different from the latest one, but Feldthouse and Lindley are on all three albums.

The latest LP promises to be the group's best. Included are: "7-Ate Sweet," the best Eastern thing Kaleidoscope has recorded; "Let the Good Love Flow," in the country bag; "The Cuckoo," a good blues; and "Tempi Arizona," which incorporates several styles. There's also a good violin duo between Lindley and Parcely. As of this writing, the LP has not yet hit the stores, but it will be available soon. Watch for it.

At the Movies

'I Am Curious (Yellow)' Is Curiously Boring

By Ray Gin

If general audience reaction is any indication of a movie's worth, "I Am Curious (Yellow)" would be far from the masterpiece many highly noted critics regarded it to be.

After a recent performance of the new Vilgot Sjoman film, I questioned leaving patrons on their reactions to the notorious "Curious (Yellow)." The overall consensus was that the film was an undeniable exercise in tedium.

"The film was totally ridiculous and irrelevant to the American movie-goer," was an answer given by a middleaged couple.

"The film was boring. Very boring. If you're not concerned with what Sweden's social, political, and sexual makeup, as most people are not, it is a tiresome film," was the expressed feelings of a secretary attendant.

An off-duty special police officer found "Curious (Yellow)" "one of the most unpretentious films I've ever seen," "What was the honesty behind the film?" I asked. "I've been to Sweden and the sexual mores are exactly as they portray them in the film. The people are loosely cold and indifferent to their class-structure and government," was his reply.

It's difficult to say whether one likes or dislikes "Curious (Yellow)" as a total film. There are many brilliant episodes intermingling with ones that are completely banal. Sjoman's comments on non-violence, with some fascinating footage on an interview with the deceased Martin Luther King, are very effective. But his panoramic commentary on Sweden's class-structure fail to engross us because we are so very distant from how the Swedes live and think.

The overall style of the film is despondently incoherent. The film shifts from a man-on-the-street interview and a seemingly dramatic narrative to being a film-within-a film.

As for the sex, it is indeed as explicit as the recent propagandizing purports it to be. But somehow the eroticness is missing. This is probably due to its almost clinical and antiseptic quality of photography and the act itself. This is a historical breakthrough for the screen's depiction of sex and how future moviemakers will handle this new freedom remains to be seen.

Rams Show Title Potential For Fall

Willie Lewis (since departed for greener playing fields) finds running room against American River —Photo by Gavin L. Watt.

The Guardsman
